TAXATION IN CANADA

(Prepared by the Taxation Division, Department of Finance, Ottawa)

Introduction

Canada is a federal state with a central government and ten provincial governments. In 1867, the principal colonies of the British Crown in North America united to form the nucleus of a new nation and the British North America Act of that year became its written constitution. This statute created a central government with certain powers while continuing the existence of political subdivisions called provinces with powers of their own.

Under the British North America Act, the Parliament of Canada has the right to raise "money by any mode or system of taxation", while the provincial legislatures are restricted to "direct taxation within the province in order to the raising of a revenue for provincial purposes". Thus, the provinces have a right to share only in the field of direct taxation, while the Federal Government is not restricted in any way in matters of taxation. The British North America Act also empowers the provincial legislatures to make laws regarding "municipal institutions in the province". This means that the municipalities derive their incorporation with its associated powers, fiscal and otherwise, from the provincial government concerned. Thus, municipalities are also limited to direct taxation.

A direct tax is generally recognized as one "which is demanded from the very person who it is intended or desired should pay it". This conception has limited the provincial governments to the imposition of income tax, retail sales tax, succession duties and an assortment of other direct levies. In turn, municipalities, acting under the guidance of provincial legislation, tax real estate, water consumption and places of business. The Federal Government levies direct taxes on income, on gifts, and on the estates of deceased persons and indirect taxes such as excise taxes, excise and customs duties, and a sales tax.

The increasing use by both the Federal Government and the provincial governments of their rights in the field of direct taxation in the 1930s resulted in uneconomic duplication and some severe tax levies. Starting in 1941, a series of federal-provincial tax agreements were concluded to promote the orderly imposition of direct taxes. The duration of each agreement was normally five years. Under the earlier agreements, the participating provinces undertook in return for compensation not to use, or permit their municipalities to use, certain of the direct taxes. Under the present arrangements the federal income tax otherwise payable in all provinces and the estate tax otherwise payable in three provinces are abated by certain percentages to make room for provincial levies.

The current arrangements became operative on April 1, 1962, and were originally scheduled to terminate on March 31, 1967; they have, however, been extended to March 31, 1969. They amount to a partial federal withdrawal from the field of direct taxation and a re-entry of all provinces in the vacated area. The federal personal income tax otherwise payable on income earned in a province and on income received by a resident of a province is reduced by the following percentages.

- 16% for 1962 income
- 17% for 1963 income
- 18% for 1964 income
- 21% for 1965 income
- 24% for 1966 income
- 28% for 1967 and 1968 income.

The abatements in respect of income earned in Quebec or received by a resident of Quebec are 44 per cent for 1965 income, 47 per cent for 1966 income and 50 per cent for 1967 and 1968 incomes. The additional points of abatement in the case of Quebec is to allow that province to collect revenue to pay for certain programmes that are paid for in whole or in part by the Federal Government in other provinces.

The Federal Government also reduces its rate of corporation income tax on taxable income of corporations earned in the provinces. The reduction was 9 per cent of taxable income earned in any province except Quebec and 10 per cent of taxable income earned in Quebec for the years from 1962 to 1967. The additional 1 percent reduction in respect of taxable income earned in Quebec for these years was to compensate for the additional tax levied by the province during this period on corporation income to provide grants to universities. These provincial grants replaced federal grants which, in other provinces, were paid to the universities by the Federal Government through the Canadian Universities Foundation. For 1967 and 1968, with the termination of direct federal financial assistance to universities, the abatement of the federal rate of corporation income tax is 10 per cent of taxable income in all provinces.

The Federal Government also abates the federal estate tax otherwise payable by 75 per cent in respect of property situated in a province that levies its own death tax.* Only Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia now levy death taxes in the form of succession duties.

These reductions in federal income tax and estate tax do not apply to the Yukon or the Northwest Territories or to income earned outside Canada. The Yukon and Northwest Territories do not impose income taxes or death taxes.

The provincial tax rates are not restricted to the extent of the federal withdrawal. The constitutional position of the provinces permits them unlimited use of direct taxes for the raising of revenue for provincial purposes. However, in five provinces (Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Alberta and British Columbia) the provincial rates of income tax do not exceed the federal abatement.

As part of the 1962-69 fiscal arrangements, the Federal Government has entered into tax collection agreements under which it collects the provincial personal income taxes for all provinces except Quebec and the provincial corporation income taxes for all provinces except Ontario and Quebec.

Federal Taxes

Individual Income Tax

Personal income taxation in Canada is on the basis of residence rather than citizenship.

Every individual who is resident in Canada at any time during a year is liable for the payment of income tax on all his income. Every non-resident individual who is employed or carries on business in Canada during a year is liable for tax on his income earned in Canada. The term "residence" is difficult to define simply but, generally speaking, it is taken to be the place where a person resides or where he maintains a dwelling ready at all times for his use. There are also extensions of the meaning of Canadian resident to include a person who has sojourned in Canada for an aggregate period of 183 days in a taxation year, or a person who was, during the year, a member of the armed forces of Canada, or an ambassador, a high commissioner, or an officer or servant of Canada or of any one of its provinces, or the spouse or dependent child of any such person.

* The original agreement was for a 50 percent abatement. However, at the conclusion of a federal provincial conference in late 1963, it was increased to 75 per cent in respect of deaths occurring after March 31, 1964. Currently, only the estates of domiciliaries of British Columbia qualify for the full 75 percent abatement. Quebec and Ontario estates are temporarily eligible for only 50 per cent because these two provinces have elected, for the time being, to take a payment from the Federal Government on account of the additional 25 percent abatement rather than to increase their succession duty rates.

 See also Section 139(3)(c), which extends residence to employees under certain development-assistance programmes.

The Canadian tax law uses the conceptions "income" and "taxable income". The income of a resident of Canada for a taxation year comprises his revenues from all sources inside or outside Canada and includes income for the year from all businesses, property, offices and employments. It does not include capital gains unless they arise out of the conduct of a business or as a result of an adventure in the nature of trade.

In computing his income for a taxation year, an individual must include all dividends, fees, annuities, pension benefits, allowances, interest, alimony, maintenance payments and other miscellaneous sources of income. On the other hand, war service disability pensions paid by Canada or an ally of Her Majesty at the time of the war service, unemployment insurance benefits, compensation in respect of an injury or death paid under a workmen's compensation act of a province and family allowances do not have to be included in the computation of income.

In computing his income for a taxation year, an individual who is carrying on business may deduct business expenses including depreciation (called capital-cost allowances), interest on borrowed money, reserves for doubtful debts, contributions to pension plans or deferred profit-sharing plans for his employees, bad debts, and expenses incurred for scientific research.

In general, no deductions are allowed in computing income from salary and wages, although there are exceptions. These exceptions include travelling expenses of employees who have to travel as they perform their work (such as employees on trains), union dues, alimony payments, and contributions to registered pension plans. Individuals may deduct, within limits, amounts set aside to provide a future income under registered retirement savings plans. Students attending universities, colleges, high schools, public schools or certain other certified educational institutions in Canada may deduct their tuition fees if they exceed $25 per annum. Students in full-time attendance at universities outside Canada are also allowed to deduct their tuition fees.

Having computed his income, the individual then calculates his taxable income by deducting certain exemptions and deductions. These exemptions and deductions are as follows:

For single status	$1,000
For married status	$2,000
For dependent children eligible to receive family allowance*	$ 300 a child

* Family allowances are monthly welfare payments by the Federal Government to the parents or guardians of children under 16 years of age. The allowance is $6 for each child under 10 years of age and $8 for each child between the ages of 10 and 16. These allowances are not subject to income tax. Payments are also made in respect of children between the ages of 16 and 18 in full-time attendance at educational institutions. Such payments are called youth allowances and amount to $10 a month. The right to deduct $550 for a dependent child is not affected by the receipt of these youth allowances.

For other dependants (as defined in the law)	$ 550 a dependant
Where taxpayer is over 65 years of age*	additional $500
Where taxpayer is blind or confined for the whole of the taxation year to a bed or a wheelchair	additional $500
Charitable donations	up to 10% of income
Medical expenses	in excess of 3% of income

In lieu of claiming deductions for charitable donations and medical expenses an individual may claim a standard deduction of $100.

As already stated, an individual resident in Canada is taxed on his income from both inside and outside Canada. An individual not resident in Canada at any time during the year but who carries on business in Canada or who earns salary or wages in Canada is taxed only on the income earned in Canada. In computing taxable income earned in Canada such a non-resident is allowed to deduct that part of the exemptions and deductions that may reasonably be attributed to the income earned in Canada. (A non-resident who derives investment income from Canada is taxed in a different way described under a separate heading). An individual who ceases to be a resident of Canada during the year, or who becomes a resident during the year so that he is resident for only part of the year, will be subject to income tax in Canada on only that part of his income for the year received while he is resident in Canada. Under these circumstances, the deductions from income permitted in determining taxable income will be the amount that may reasonably be considered as applicable to the period during which he is resident in Canada.

A progressive schedule of rates is applied to taxable income. These rates begin at 11 per cent on the first $1,000 of taxable income and increase to 80 per cent on taxable income in excess of $400,000. In addition, an old-age security tax is levied on taxable income at the rate of 4 per cent, with a maximum of $240 reached at the level of $6,000.

After calculating income tax using this progressive schedule of rates, an individual is allowed a deduction from such tax under four main headings:

a) Dividend tax credit:

In order to partially eliminate the double taxation of corporate profits and to encourage participation in the ownership of Canadian companies, Canadian residents are allowed to deduct from their tax an amount equal to 20 per cent of the net dividends they receive from Canadian taxable companies.

* This special deduction is not granted to taxpayers under 70 years of age who receive an old-age security pension.

b) Foreign tax credit:

Foreign taxes paid on income from foreign sources may be deducted from Canadian income tax, but the deduction may not exceed the proportion of Canadian tax related to such income.

c) Abatement under federal-provincial arrangements:

In 1967, the federal personal income tax otherwise payable on income of a resident of a province and on income earned in a province is reduced by 28 per cent.*

d) General tax reduction:

In 1967, all persons may deduct from their federal income tax an amount equal to the lesser of 20 per cent of "basic tax" or $20. "Basic tax" is personal income tax excluding the old-age security tax after deduction of the dividend tax credit but before abatement for provincial income tax.

To a very large extent, individual income tax is payable as the income is earned. Taxpayers in receipt of salary or wages have tax deducted from their pay by their employer and, in this way, pay nearly 100 per cent of their tax liability during the calendar year. The balance of the tax, if any, is payable at the time of filing the tax return before April 30, in the following year. People with more than 25 per cent of their income from sources other than salary or wages must pay tax by quarterly instalments throughout the year. Here again, returns must be filed before April 30 in the following calendar year. Farmers and fishermen pay two-thirds of their tax on or before December 31 each year and the remainder on or before April 30 in the following year.

The following table shows what taxpayers pay at various levels of income:

* Except in the case of income earned in Quebec or received by a resident of Quebec, where it is reduced by 50 per cent (see Introduction).

In calculating these taxes, it has been assumed that all taxpayers take the standard deduction of $100. No allowance has been made for the 20 percent dividend tax credit.

The income taxes shown above are the combined federal and provincial taxes in all provinces where the provincial tax is the same as the federal abatement (i.e. in all provinces except Quebec, Manitoba and Saskatchewan). In Quebec the provincial tax approximates the federal abatement. In Manitoba and Saskatchewan the provincial tax exceeds the abatement by 5 percentage points.

Corporation Income Tax

The Income Tax Act levies a tax upon the income from everywhere in the world of corporations resident in Canada and upon the income attributable to operations in Canada of non-resident corporations carrying on business in Canada.

In computing their income, corporations may deduct operating expenses including municipal real-estate taxes, reserves for doubtful debts, bad debts, and interest on borrowed money. They may not deduct provincial income taxes other than provincial taxes on income derived from mining operations. (For this purpose "income from mining operations" is specially defined.)

Regulations covering capital-cost allowances (depreciation) permit taxpayers to deduct over a period of years the actual cost of all depreciable property. The yearly deductions or normal capital-cost allowances are computed on the diminishing-balance principle. (Taxpayers engaged in farming and fishing may choose between this and the straight-line method). Published regulations establish a number of classes of property and maximum rates. There is provision for recapture of any amount allowed in excess of the ultimate net capital cost of any asset.

Accelerated depreciation is allowed in respect of property acquired in the period April 27, 1965, to December 31, 1967, to prevent water pollution (full write-off in two years).

Expenditures on scientific research related to the business of the taxpayer may be written off for tax purposes in the year when incurred.

Taxpayers operating mines, oil-wells, gas-wells, and wells for extracting potash by the solution method are allowed a depletion allowance, usually computed as a percentage of profits derived from mineral, oil or gas production, which continues as long as the mine or well is in operation. This allowance is in addition to capital-cost allowances on buildings, machinery and similar depreciable assets used by the taxpayer and the deduction of his exploration and drilling expenses. Taxpayers operating timber limits receive an annual allowance sometimes called a depletion allowance. This is a rateable proportion of the amount invested in the limit and is based on the amount of timber cut in the year. When the amount invested in the limit has been recovered, no further allowance is given.

In computing taxable income, corporations may deduct dividends received from other Canadian taxpaying corporations and also from foreign corporations in which the Canadian corporation has at least 25 percent stock-ownership. Business losses may be carried back one year or forward five years and deducted in computing taxable income. Corporations may also deduct donations to charitable organizations up to a maximum of 10 per cent of their income.

The general rates of tax on corporate taxable income are 18 per cent on the first $35,000 of taxable income and 47 per cent on taxable income in excess of $35,000. Corporations deriving more than a half of their gross revenue from the sale of electrical energy, gas, or steam, pay tax on their taxable income from such sources at the rate of 18 per cent on the first $35,000 of taxable income, plus 45 per cent on taxable income in excess of $35,000.* Corporations that qualify as investment companies pay a tax of 18 per cent on their taxable income. In addition to these rates, all corporations pay an old-age security tax of 3 per cent of taxable income, bringing their rates up to 21 per cent and 50 per cent (21 per cent and 48 per cent for the public utility companies and 21 per cent for investment companies).

In calculating the amount of their income tax, corporations are allowed a deduction from tax under three headings:

- (1) Foreign tax credit - foreign taxes paid on income from foreign sources may be deducted from Canadian income tax, but the deduction may not exceed the proportion of Canadian tax related to such income.
- (2) Abatement under federal-provincial arrangements - corporations may deduct from their federal tax otherwise payable a tax abatement equal to a fixed percentage of their taxable income attributable to operations in a Canadian province. This abatement is to make room for the provincial income tax levied by each Canadian province. The amount of the abatement is 10 per cent of taxable income attributable to operations in each province.
- (3) Provincial logging tax - corporations may deduct from their federal tax otherwise payable an amount equal to two-thirds of a provincial tax on income from logging operations not exceeding two-thirds of 10 per cent of the corporation's income from logging operations in the province. (At present only Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia impose logging taxes.)

Income from the operation of a new mine, including wells for extracting potash by the solution method, is exempt from income tax during the first three years of the productive life of these assets.

Corporations are required to pay their tax (combined income and old-age security tax) in monthly instalments but the period during which they pay tax for a taxation year does not coincide with that taxation year. In each of the last eight months of their taxation year and in the following two, they pay a twelfth of their estimated tax for the year (such estimate is based on the taxable income of the previous year or the estimated taxable income of the year in progress). In each of the following two months, they pay a half of the estimated balance of the tax computed by reference to the income of the taxation year. In the sixth month following the end of their taxation year, the final return has to be filed.

Taxation of Non-Residents

A non-resident is liable for payment of income tax if he was employed or was carrying on business in Canada during a taxation year. The expression

* 95 per cent of the federal tax collected from these corporations is remitted to the provinces.

"carrying on business in Canada" includes: (1) maintaining a permanent establishment in Canada; (2) processing goods even partially in Canada; and (3) entering into contracts in Canada.

The taxable income of a non-resident derived from carrying on business in Canada, or from employment in Canada, is taxed under the same schedule of rates as Canadian residents, and non-resident corporations deriving income from carrying on business in Canada are taxed on their taxable income attributable to operations in Canada at the same rates as Canadian resident corporations. (Tax treaties with some countries provide certain exemptions from tax for remuneration for services performed in Canada by residents or employees of these countries. They also prohibit Canada taxing profits of a non-resident enterprise unless that enterprise has a permanent establishment in Canada.)

Profits earned in Canada by a non-resident corporation carrying on business through a branch or permanent establishment in Canada are taxed at the regular rates of corporation income tax and are also subject to an additional tax of 15 per cent. This additional tax is imposed on profits attributable to the branch after deducting therefrom Canadian federal and provincial income taxes and an allowance in respect of the net increase in capital investment in property in Canada.

Furthermore, the Income Tax Act provides for a tax at the rate of 15 per cent on certain forms of income going from Canada to non-resident persons. It applies to interest (other than interest on government bonds issued after April 15, 1966, interest on certain bonds issued before December 20, 1960, and interest paid to certain exempt lenders), dividends, rentals, royalties, income from a trust or estate, and alimony. This tax applies whether the income goes to non-resident individuals or corporations. The rate on royalties from motion picture films is only 10 per cent. The standard rate of 15 per cent is also reduced to 10 per cent in the case of dividends paid by a corporation that has a degree of Canadian ownership.* This non-resident tax is withheld at the source by the Canadian payer. Non-residents who receive only this kind of income from Canada do not file returns in Canada.

Gift Tax

The Income Tax Act levies a tax upon gifts. The rates range from 10 per cent on an aggregate taxable value of $5,000 or under to 28 per cent on an aggregate taxable value of over $1 million. Exemptions include complete exemption of gifts of $1,000 or less a donee and a general deduction of $4,000 from aggregate taxable value of gifts made in a year.

* For definition of "degree of Canadian ownership" see Section 139A of the Income Tax Act. Generally speaking, a corporation is regarded as having a degree of Canadian ownership where 25 per cent of its equity and voting shares are owned by Canadians and/or corporations controlled in Canada, or where the voting shares of the corporation are listed on a Canadian stock-exchange and no more than 75 per cent of its issued outstanding voting shares are owned by a non-resident alone or in combination with related persons.

 This $4,000-deduction from aggregate taxable value is in addition to the complete exemption of gifts of $1,000 or less a donee.

Estate Tax

This tax applies to property passing, or deemed to pass, at death. All the property of persons who were domiciled in Canada before their death must be taken into consideration no matter where that property is situated; for persons dying domiciled outside of Canada only their property situated in Canada is subject to tax.

In computing the tax of a Canadian domiciliary the value of the whole estate is first determined. Once the aggregate value of the estate has been determined, estate debts and certain expenses may be deducted. From the resulting "aggregate net value", there may be deducted the amount of a basic exemption, which is increased where the decedent leaves a widow or dependent child, and also the amount of any charitable bequests to charitable organizations in Canada. After these deductions, the amount left is the "aggregate taxable value", to which is applied the tax rates. From the tax so calculated may be deducted (1) a tax abatement in respect of property situated in a province that levies a succession duty, (2) a credit for gift tax paid on gifts made within three years of death (the value of which must be included in the aggregate net value of the estate), and (3) a credit for foreign taxes.

If an estate is valued at $50,000 or less, no tax is exacted. (This figure of $50,000 is not a deductible exemption but simply an amount at or below which no tax is levied.) If an estate is valued at more than $50,000 it may or may not be taxable, depending on its size and the exemptions and deductions for which it qualifies, but in no case must the tax reduce the value of the estate after tax to less than $50,000. The deductible exemption is $60,000 in respect of a deceased male survived by a spouse, or in respect of a deceased female survived by an incapacitated spouse and a dependent child. In both cases there is an additional exemption of $10,000 for each surviving child who is dependent (generally, under 21). In all other cases the exemption is $40,000, but if the decedent is survived by a dependent child (i.e. an orphan) there is an additional exemption of $15,000 in respect of each orphan.

The tax on the estates of Canadian domiciliaries is calculated by applying a graduated scale of rates. For an aggregate taxable value of $5,000 or less, the rate is 10 per cent. For an aggregate taxable value of $100,000 the tax is $19,000 and anything between $100,000 and $150,000 is taxed at 24 per cent. At $2 million of taxable value, the tax is $816,500 and the excess over $2 million is chargeable at the highest rate of 54 per cent. (For the complete rate schedule see Section 8 of the Estate Tax Act.)

As stated above, there is an abatement from federal estate tax otherwise payable, in respect of provincial succession duties. Generally, the abatement is a deduction of 75 per cent from the federal tax otherwise payable in respect of property situated in a province that levies succession duties.

The property situated in Canada of a decedent not domiciled in Canada is subject to estate tax at a flat rate of 15 per cent. No deduction is allowed against the assessed value of such property except for debts specifically chargeable to it. However, there is a special provision that exempts all such property of less than $5,000 value and also provides that the tax must not reduce the value of the property to less than $5,000. (The Estate Tax Convention between Canada and the United States increases this figure to $15,000.) Where property is subject to provincial duties the 15 percent tax is abated by 75 per cent.*

Excise Taxes

The Excise Tax Act levies a general sales tax and special excise taxes. Both the sales tax and the special excise taxes are levied on goods imported into Canada and on goods produced in Canada. They are not levied on goods exported.

The sales tax, which is at the rate of 9 per cent, is levied on the manufacturer's sale price of goods produced or manufactured in Canada or on the duty-paid value of goods imported into Canada. For alcoholic beverages and tobacco products the sale price for purposes of the sales tax includes excise duties levied under the Excise Act referred to below. An old-age security tax of 3 per cent is levied on the same basis as the 9 percent sales tax, bringing the total sales tax to 12 per cent.

Many classes of goods are exempt from sales tax. Food-stuffs, drugs, electricity, and fuels for lighting or heating are generally relieved of the levy, as are articles and materials used by public hospitals and certain welfare institutions. The products of farms, forests, mines and fisheries are, to a large extent, exempt, as well as most equipment used in farming and fishing. Production machinery and equipment, together with materials consumed or expanded in production, are also relieved of the impost. Finally, a variety of items are exempt from sales tax when purchased by municipalities. These and other exemptions are set forth in schedules to the Excise Tax Act.

The Excise Tax Act also provides for a number of special excise taxes which are in addition to the sales tax. Where these are ad valorem taxes they are levied on the same price or duty-paid value as the general sales tax.

* Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia are the provinces imposing succession duties. At present, the abatement in respect of Quebec and Ontario estates is 50 per cent. It will go up to 75 per cent when these two provinces increase their succession duty rates. See Introduction Section.

 A comprehensive list of building materials bears sales tax at the reduced rate of 11 per cent (8 percentage points for general revenue purposes and 3 percentage points for old-age security purposes).

 The 1967 budget (brought down on June 1, 1967) announced that, effective September 1, 1967, all drugs would be exempt from sales tax. It also advanced the date of full sales-tax exemption for production machinery and equipment from the April 1, 1968, provided for in 1966 to June 2, 1967. These changes are still to be implemented by legislation.

The special excise taxes levied at present are as follows:

Excise Duties

The Excise Act levies taxes (referred to as excise duties) on alcohol, alcoholic beverages and tobacco products produced in Canada. These duties are not levied on imported goods, but the customs tariff on these products includes a levy to correspond to the duties levied on domestic production. These duties are not levied on goods exported.

1. Spirits - The duties are on a gallon basis in proportion to the strength of proof of the spirits. These duties do not apply to denatured alcohol intended for use in the arts and industries, or for fuel, light or power, or any mechanical purposes. The various duties are as follows:

- (A) on every gallon of the strength of proof distilled in Canada, $13.00;
- (B) on every gallon of the strength of proof used in manufacture of
 - (a) medicines, extracts, pharmaceutical preparations, etc., $1.50 a gallon,
 - (b) approved chemical compositions, 15 cents a gallon,
 - (c) spirits sold to a druggist and used in the preparation of prescriptions, $1.50 a gallon,
 - (d) imported spirits when taken into a bonded manufactory in addition to other duties, 30 cents a gallon.

2. Canadian Brandy - Canadian brandy, a spirit distilled exclusively from juices of native fruits without the addition of sweetening materials, is subject to a duty of $11.00 a gallon.

3. Beer - All beer or other malt liquor is subject to a duty of 38 cents a gallon.

4. Tobacco, Cigars and Cigarettes - The excise duties make up nearly as large a part of the total tax on tobacco products as the special excise taxes which have already been described. The rates of duty are as follows:

- (A) on manufactured tobacco of all descriptions, except cigarettes, 35 cents a pound;
- (B) cigarettes weighing not more than three pounds a thousand, $4 a thousand (nearly all the cigarettes used in Canada are of this type);
- (C) cigarettes weighing more than three pounds a thousand, $5 a thousand;
- (D) cigars, $2 a thousand;
- (E) Canadian raw leaf tobacco when sold for consumption, 10 cents a pound.

Total taxes on tobacco products

Bringing together the taxes imposed on tobacco products under the Excise Tax Act and the duties imposed under the Excise Act gives the following total taxes:

Cigarettes - $9 a thousand (or 18 cents a pack of 20 cigarettes) plus the 12 percent sales tax on the manufacturer's sale price.

Manufactured Tobacco - $1.15 a pound plus the 12 percent sales tax on the manufacturer's sale price.

Cigars - $2 a thousand plus the 15 percent special excise tax and the 12 percent sales tax on the manufacturer's sale price.

Customs Duties

Most goods imported into Canada are subject to customs duties at various rates as provided by tariff schedules. Customs duties which once were the chief source of revenue for the country have declined in importance as a source of revenue to the point where they now provide less than 10 per cent of the total. Quite apart from its revenue aspects, however, the tariff still occupies an important place as an instrument of economic policy.

The Canadian tariff consists mainly of three sets of rates, namely, British preferential, most-favoured-nation and general. The British preferential rates are, with some exceptions, the lowest rates. They are applied to imported dutiable commodities shipped directly to Canada from countries within the Commonwealth. Special rates lower than the ordinary preferential duty are applied on certain goods imported from designated Commonwealth countries.

The most-favoured-nation rates apply to goods from countries that have been accorded tariff treatment more favourable than the general tariff but which are not entitled to the British preferential rate. Canada has most-favoured-nation arrangements with almost every country outside the Commonwealth. The most important agreement providing for the exchange of most-favoured-nation treatment is the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

The general tariff applies to imports from countries not entitled to either the British preferential or most-favoured-nation treatment. Few countries are in this category and in terms of trade coverage are negligible.

In all cases where the tariff applies, there are provisions for drawbacks of duty on imports of materials used in the manufacture of products later exported. The purpose of these drawbacks is to assist Canadian manufacturers to compete with foreign manufacturers of similar goods. There is a second class of drawbacks known as "home consumption" drawbacks. These apply to imported materials used in the production of specified classes of goods manufactured for home consumption.

The tariff schedules are too lengthy and complicated to be summarized here but the rates that apply on any particular item may be obtained from the Department of National Revenue, which is responsible for administering the customs tariff.

Provincial Taxes

All Canada's ten provinces impose a wide variety of taxes to raise the revenue necessary for provincial purposes. All provinces at present levy a tax on the income of individuals and corporations resident within their boundaries or deriving income from activities or operations carried out therein. Only Ontario and Quebec impose special taxes on corporations in addition to income tax and only British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec impose a tax on property passing at death. Under the terms of the existing federal-provincial fiscal arrangement, the Federal Government makes payments called "equalization payments" to some provinces in recognition of the fact that the potential tax yield in those provinces, measured on a per capita basis, is lower than the national per capita tax yield. For some provinces these payments constitute a very important source of revenue.

Some of the more important provincial levies are reviewed briefly below:

Individual Income Tax

All provinces levy a tax on the income of individuals who reside within their boundaries or who earn income therein. In nine of the ten provinces, these taxes are computed as a percentage of federal "basic tax". As previously mentioned, "basic tax" is federal income tax (excluding old-age security tax) otherwise payable at full federal rates before the abatement under the federal-provincial arrangement and before allowance for any federal tax reduction. These provincial taxes are collected by the Federal Government on behalf of these provinces. In Quebec, provincial income tax is levied at graduated rates that progress from 5.5 per cent on the first $1,000 of taxable income to a maximum of 40.0 per cent on the excess over $400,000. The determination of taxable income for Quebec tax is based on exemptions and deductions which, with the exception of deductions for dependent children eligible for family allowances,* are similar to those for federal tax. Quebec taxpayers who, if single, have an income which does not exceed $2,000 or who, if married, have an income which does not exceed $4,000 are completely relieved of provincial income tax. Quebec collects its own tax.

The following table shows the percentage that provincial income tax liability is of federal "basic tax" for 1967:

Province	Percentage of federal "basic tax"
Newfoundland	28%
Prince Edward Island	28%
Nova Scotia	28%
New Brunswick	28%
Quebec	approximately 50%
Ontario	28%
Manitoba	33%
Saskatchewan	33%
Alberta	28%
British Columbia	28%

Corporate Income Tax

All provinces levy a tax on the profits of corporations derived from activities carried out within their boundaries. In all provinces except Ontario and Quebec the provincial tax is imposed on taxable income in the province determined on the same basis as for federal income tax. In Ontario and Quebec the determination of taxable profits for purposes of provincial tax follows closely the federal rules. The rates of tax levied by the various provinces are as follows:

* Quebec has a family-allowance programme that supplements the federal programme. The Quebec programme provides for allowances which increase from $30 per annum for a first child to a maximum of $70 per annum for a sixth and for each additional child. The Quebec programme is in lieu of exemptions for provincial income tax purposes for children eligible for family allowances.

Province	Rate of tax on taxable profits
Newfoundland	11%
Prince Edward Island	10%
Nova Scotia	10%
New Brunswick	10%
Quebec	12%
Ontario	12%
Manitoba	11%
Saskatchewan	11%
Alberta	10%
British Columbia	10%

Note: All provinces except Ontario and Quebec have signed agreements for the collection of their income taxes by the Federal Government. Five of the ten provinces levy corporate income taxes at rates in excess of the abatement allowed by the Federal Government. This abatement is equal to 10 per cent of corporate profits.

Alcoholic Beverages

Generally speaking, the sale of spirits in all provinces is made through provincial agencies operating as boards or commissions that exercise monopolistic control over this commodity. The provincial mark-up over the manufacturer's price is the effective means of taxation. Beer and wine may be sold by retailers or government stores depending on the province, but in all cases these sales contribute to provincial revenues.

Retail Sales Taxes

Nine provinces impose sales taxes on goods purchased by consumers or users. Some of these provincial levies also cover certain services. The provincial sales taxes are collected by retail vendors acting as agents of the provinces. The provinces imposing sales tax and the rate of their levy are as follows:

Newfoundland	6%
Prince Edward Island	5%
Nova Scotia	5%
New Brunswick	6%
Quebec	8%
Ontario	5%
Manitoba	5%
Saskatchewan	4%
British Columbia	5%

The provincial sales taxes do not apply to goods sold for delivery in the other provinces or to exported commodities. All provinces imposing sales taxes provide comprehensive exemptions for foodstuffs and drugs.

Amusement Taxes

Each of the provinces, with the exception of Alberta and Saskatchewan, has a tax on admission to places of entertainment. In addition, there is generally a licence fee imposed on the operator or owner of these amusement places. The tax on admissions is within the range of 5 per cent to 15 per cent.

Gasoline and Diesel Fuel Oil Taxes

Each of the ten provinces imposes a tax on the purchase of gasoline and diesel fuel by motorists and truckers. The amount of tax borne by one gallon of motor vehicle fuel in each province is as follows:

	Gasoline	Diesel Fuel
Newfoundland	20 cents	20 cents
Prince Edward Island	18 cents	18 cents
Nova Scotia	19 cents	27 cents
New Brunswick	18 cents	23 cents
Quebec	16 cents	22 cents
Ontario	16 cents	22 cents
Manitoba	17 cents	20 cents
Saskatchewan	15 cents	18 cents
Alberta	12 cents	14 cents
British Columbia	13 cents	15 cents

Motor Vehicle Licences and Fees

Each province also levies a fee on the annual registration of motor vehicles. This registration is compulsory and each vehicle is issued with licence plates for the year. The rates of this licence fee vary from province to province. The amount to be paid may be assessed in relation to the weight of the car, the number of cylinders of the engine, or at a flat rate. The operator or the driver of a motor vehicle must also register periodically and pay a fee for a new driver's licence; in Alberta and British Columbia, drivers' licences must be renewed every five years at a cost of $5; in Quebec and Manitoba, they must be renewed every two years at a cost of $5; in Ontario, they must be renewed every three years at a cost of $6.

Taxes on Mining Operations

All provinces except Prince Edward Island levy taxes of various kinds on mining operations. All provinces except Prince Edward Island and Alberta impose a tax on the income of firms engaged in mining operations in general or in specific kinds of mining operations. British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario impose a tax on the assessed value of minerals or a flat rate an acre of mining property.

Tax on Logging Operations

British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec levy a tax on the income from logging operations of individuals, partnerships, associations or corporations engaged in this activity. In British Columbia, the tax is 10 per cent on income in excess of $25,000. In Ontario and Quebec the rate is 10 per cent on income in excess of $10,000.

Capital Taxes

Quebec imposes a tax of one-tenth of 1 per cent on paid-up capital of corporations, while Ontario levies a similar tax at the rate of one-twentieth of 1 per cent.

Place-of-Business Taxes

Quebec and Ontario have a place-of-business tax. In Quebec, the tax ranges from $25 to $50 for each place of business with the higher amounts being levied in the cities of Montreal and Quebec. In Ontario, the tax for each permanent establishment is the lesser of $50 or one-twentieth of 1 per cent of paid-up capital of the corporation involved, but the total of the capital tax and the place-of-business tax cannot be less than $20. Ontario also imposes an office tax of $50 on every corporation that does not maintain a permanent establishment in the province but merely maintains a buying office, or merely holds certain provincial licences, or merely holds assets, or is represented by a resident employee or agent who is not deemed to operate a permanent establishment of the corporation.

Both provinces levy special taxes on certain kinds of companies such as banks, railway companies, express companies, trust companies and sleeping-car, parlour-car and dining-car companies. In Ontario, these special taxes and the capital and place-of-business taxes mentioned above are payable only to the extent that they exceed the corporate income tax otherwise payable.

Land Transfer Taxes

Alberta, Manitoba and Ontario levy a tax based on the price at which ownership of land is transferred. In Ontario, one-fifth of 1 per cent is imposed on purchase price up to $25,000 and two-fifths of 1 per cent on anything in excess of this amount. In Manitoba, the rate is 1 per cent. In Alberta, registration fees proportionate to the conveyancing services rendered are charged and in the case of transfers and mortgages the fees are assessed on the value of the land transferred as on the amount of the mortgage. In addition, there is an assurance fund fee charged on transfers and mortgages, which guarantees titles in certain circumstances. In Quebec, a tax of 2.5 per cent of the purchase price is imposed only when property is transferred under the Bankruptcy or Winding-Up Act.

British Columbia and Saskatchewan do not have a land-transfer tax but have an equivalent in the land-title fees which are based on land values.

Tax on Security Transfers

Ontario and Quebec levy a tax on the sale price of securities transferred; the rates in each province are:

Share sold, transferred or assigned valued at:

Under $	1	-	1/10 of 1% of value
at	1 to 5	-	1/4 cents a share
"	5 to 25	-	1 cent " "
"	25 to 50	-	2 cents " "
"	50 to 75	-	3 cents " "
"	75 to 150	-	4 cents " "
Over	150	-	4 cents " "

plus 1/10 of 1% of value in excess of $150

Bonds and debentures, 3 cents for every $100 or fraction thereof of par value.

Premium Income of Insurance Companies

All ten provinces impose a tax of 2 per cent on the premium income of insurance companies paid in respect of risks incurred in the province.

Succession Duties

Only British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec levy succession duties. These are a tax upon the right to succeed to property and are assessed upon the interest or benefit passing at death to an heir or beneficiary.

The three provinces impose succession duties on all property situated in the province belonging to the deceased and passing at his death whether the deceased was domiciled in the province or elsewhere. Personal property, wherever situated, of a person dying domiciled within the province is also liable if passing to a successor resident or domiciled in the province.

The rates of succession duty are governed by the value of the estate, the relationship of the beneficiary to the deceased and the amount going to any one person. The rate of tax will increase as the degree of relationship between the decedent and his successor becomes more remote.

Provincial Property Taxes

In unorganized (non-municipal) areas, British Columbia levies property taxes, at varying rates according to class, for provincial revenue. Improved forest and tree-farm lands are taxed at 1 per cent of assessed value; farm land at .5 of 1 per cent; wild land at 3 per cent; coal land at 2 per cent non-operating or 7 per cent operating; and timber land at 1.5 per cent. In unorganized (non-municipal) areas, Ontario levies a property tax of 1.5 per cent of assessed value; the minimum annual tax in respect of any land in that province is $6. Nova Scotia and New Brunswick also have property taxes of limited application.

Municipal Taxation

The municipalities in Canada levy taxes on the owners of property situated within their jurisdiction according to the assessed value of such property. Methods of determining assessed value vary widely but, for taxation purposes, it is generally considered to be a percentage of the actual value. The revenues from such taxes are used to pay for street maintenance, schools, police and fire protection and other community services. Special levies are sometimes made on the basis of street frontage to pay for local improvements to the property such as sidewalks, roads, and sewers. Not only is there a widespread difference in the bases used for property tax but there is also a wide variety of rates applied depending on the municipality.

In addition to the taxes described above, municipalities usually impose a charge for the water consumption of each property-holder or a water tax based upon the rental value of the property occupied. There are no municipal income taxes though certain localities have retained the use of a poll tax. In Newfoundland, Quebec and Saskatchewan municipalities are empowered to levy a tax on the admission of persons to places of amusement. This practice differs from that of the other provinces, where the amusement tax is generally a provincial preserve. Electricity and gas are taxed at the consumer level in some Western municipalities, while coal and fuel oil for heating purposes are chargeable in urban areas of Newfoundland. Telephone subscribers are subject to a special levy in Montreal, while certain Ontario municipalities impose a tax on the gross receipts of telephone companies.

In most municipalities, a tax is levied directly on the tenant or the operator of a business. In general, business tax rates are lower than those applying to property. Three bases of assessment are in use: a fraction of the property assessment, the annual rental value of the premises, or the area of the premises. Certain municipalities may charge a licence fee instead of a business tax, while others will charge both a licence fee and business tax. In Nova Scotia, all but one of the municipalities tax personal property (stocks in trade, equipment, etc.) the same as real property.

Miscellaneous Levies

These are not generally referred to as taxes but they are similar to taxes in many ways.

Canada and Quebec Pension Plans

In 1966, a compulsory government-operated pension programme was introduced in Canada whereby each contributor builds up a right to a graduated pension the amount of which is related to his earnings up to a certain level.

This graduated benefit will supplement the universal old-age security pension which is paid out of tax revenues. This government-operated pension programme comprises the Canada Pension Plan, which operates throughout the country except in Quebec, and the Quebec Pension Plan, operated by the government of Quebec. The two plans are similar. Both have disability and survivor benefits. All employees who earn more than $600 a year and all self-employed individuals whose annual income exceeds $800 must contribute to one of the two plans on that part of their earnings between $600 and $5,000. The applicable contribution rate for the employee is 1.8 per cent plus another 1.8 per cent payable by the employer; the corresponding rate for the self-employed is 3.6 per cent. The ceiling for pensionable earnings on which contributions are payable under the Canada and Quebec Pension Plans is $5,000 for 1967. For 1968 and subsequent years to 1976, this ceiling will be adjusted upward in multiples of $100 by a pension index that will reflect cumulative increases in the cost-of-living (measured by the consumer price index) but by no more than 2 per cent in any year. From 1976 onward, a long-term moving average of wages and salaries, called the earnings index, will be used to adjust the ceiling. The $600 floor will also rise gradually by multiples of $100, maintaining a level approximating 12 per cent of the ceiling.

Unemployment Insurance

A national programme of unemployment insurance operates in Canada. It provides relief to those qualified persons who temporarily find themselves without work. It is administered by a federal commission appointed for this purpose and financed by equal contributions from employers and employees, plus a contribution from the Federal Government. The amount paid into the fund by employee and employer is directly proportional to the weekly wages of the employee. The rates of contributions are as follows:

Range of Earnings	Weekly Contributions
	Employer's	Employee's
less than $ 9.00	10 cents	10 cents
$ 9.00 to $15.00	20 cents	20 cents
$15.00 to $21.00	30 cents	30 cents
$21.00 to $27.00	38 cents	38 cents
$27.00 to $33.00	46 cents	46 cents
$33.00 to $39.00	54 cents	54 cents
$39.00 to $45.00	60 cents	60 cents
$45.00 to $51.00	66 cents	66 cents
$51.00 to $57.00	72 cents	72 cents
$57.00 to $63.00	78 cents	78 cents
$63.00 to $69.00	86 cents	86 cents
$69.00 and over	94 cents	94 cents

The wage ceiling for insurability is $5,460 a year.

Workmen's Compensation

Legislation in force in all provinces provides compensation for personal injury suffered by workmen as a result of industrial accidents. In general, these provincial statutes established an accident fund administered by a board to which employers are required to contribute at a rate proportional with the hazards of the industry.

Hospital Insurance

A government-subsidized hospital insurance plan is in operation in each of the ten provinces. In all provinces but Quebec, the programme is a joint federal-provincial undertaking where approximately half the cost of hospitalization for patients who are participants under the plan is met by the Federal Government and the other half by the province. In Quebec, the programme is entirely a provincial undertaking where the share of cost normally carried by the Federal Government in the other provinces has been assumed by the province in exchange for fiscal compensation by way of a larger occupation of the field of personal income tax by that province. (See Introduction.) The provincial share of the cost of the programme is financed by various means. Quebec has increased its personal and corporation income tax (i.e. quite apart from its greater occupation of the field of personal income tax in return for assuming the federal share of the cost of the programme). Certain provinces require the deduction of a monthly premium from the wages of their residents as a contribution or premium for the plan. In such provinces, self-employed people must also pay the premium directly if they wish to be covered by the plan. In some other provinces, the proceeds of a retail sales tax are earmarked in whole or in part for the support of the hospital plan.

(This explanatory paper is not an official interpretation of any of the taxing statutes. The administration of federal taxing statutes is the responsibility of the Minister of National Revenue. The provincial and municipal taxes are administered by provincial and municipal government departments.)
