THE OLD SCHOOL BOOKS.

(From the Christian Union.) What pleasant memories cluster round those volumes old and worn.

With covers smirched and blinding creases, and pages thumbed and torn! These books we used to con, I and poor brother Will.

When we were boys together, in the school house on the hill, we used to pore on these books with pride.

Our eyes bent to the task as though they'd never been stray. The old-time proverb scribbled here, the caution to beware.

"Steal not this book my honest friend," it scrawled roughly here and there.

The blurs, the blots, the lichenous spots, the numbers dog's ears.

When grief was so short-lived I smiled before my tears were dry.

When, next to father's angry frown, I feared the awful nod.

"Trust to a woman to find that out," observed the settler. "Anyhow we can't improve matters by losing our sleep. So let us go to bed."

Settlers on the border have a proverb that the first visit from an Indian brings up to the house.

When the settler, who of course noticed the peculiarity of their changed manner, spoke to them, they replied with every evidence of respect.

Ransom Bishop told the story of his last visit to his nearest neighbor, the ranchman at Cottonwood Bottom.

"Why so?" demanded the settler. "I certainly don't."

"Then I'll enlighten you. He is the greatest warrior of the Apache tribe, his big feet and broad chest are his pride."

His chief pleasure seemed to be with little Dora, and he was quite as fond of her as she was of him.

Once it was a crowd that turned somewhat and talked some Indian words.

the chief's own horse, the Indians led to the stable. The fugitives as they departed could hear the exultant shouts of the Apaches as they revelled in the plunder of the storehouse.

But the birds they had sheltered were well on their way to safety. All night long the fugitives galloped the open prairie unobserved.

By the time the sun was up the fugitives were well on their way to safety. All night long the fugitives galloped the open prairie unobserved.

THE QUESTION OF THE HOUR.

Mr. Parnell's Land Bill in the House of Commons. REPORT THAT HE HAS CAUSED GRIEVIOUS DISRUPTION-ATTITUDE OF THE IRISH MEMBERS ON THE SUPPLY MEASURES.

(By cable to the Boston Sunday Herald.) LONDON, Sep. 11.—The question of the hour is Mr. Parnell's new land bill, which was introduced into the house of commons this morning at about two o'clock.

The interest taken in the bill is strikingly manifested by the very full house which gathered on the evening of the 10th.

The Irish leader said that he moved for leave to bring in a bill for certain purposes and to see that the bill was read in the house.

S. S. ASSOCIATION.

Proceedings of the Second Session.

(Special to This Sun.)

FRIDAY, SEP. 18.—The second session of the N. B. S. S. Association was opened this a. m. in St. Paul's church by singing, after which prayers were offered up by Wm. Leonard, J. G. Forbes, Rev. Mr. Bookwith, Rev. Mr. Mowat and others. About 100 delegates were present and the devotional exercises were thoroughly entered into by all. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the Rev. T. F. Fotheringham, recording secretary, the assistant recording secretary being absent, and approved.

FRONT GAMES named the following committees:—(1) That the thanks of the association be tendered to the session and trustees of St. David's Presbyterian church, St. John, for their generous and liberal gifts of the use of the new as well as the old church for the purpose of holding their meetings in (2) To the people of Fredericton for their great kindness in entertaining the delegates to the convention, (3) To the press for their favorable notices and publication of the proceedings of the convention, (4) To the railway and the delegates coming to the reduced rates given to the delegates, (5) To the Rev. Mr. Huxley then read an able and interesting paper on the subject of the Sunday school, and the Rev. Mr. Bookwith followed in an earnest speech, telling his own long experience in connection with the S. S. work, and agreeing in the main with the remarks made by Mr. Oakes.

REMARKS were also made by Mr. Thompson, Mr. Fotheringham and others. After the discussion had been brought to a close, it was moved, seconded and carried by a large vote, that the thanks of the association be tendered to Mr. Oakes for his able and interesting paper on "A Sunday school time table." The convention was then closed by devotional exercises.

CHURCH CENTENARY.

Hundredth Anniversary of James Church, New Glasgow.

PAPERS AND ADDRESSES BY NOTED PRELATES.—GRATIIFYING SUCCESS OF THE CELEBRATION. (Special to the Halifax Chronicle.) NEW GLASGOW, Sep. 17.—The centenary celebration of James Church, the pastoral charge of Dr. McGregor until his death, was begun this afternoon at half-past one o'clock. George W. Underwood was chairman. The platform was profusely decorated with flowers. The devotional exercises were presided over by Rev. T. F. Fotheringham, A. P. Miller and D. B. Blair. After a prayer and reading of the scriptures, the chairman delivered a short address and called on the secretary to read the address of the Rev. Mr. McDonald; Rev. Wm. Fraser, of Barris, Oct.; Rev. Dr. G. M. Grant, of the Rev. Mr. Underwood, all of whom were unable to be present.

Rev. E. A. McCurdy, the pastor, read a paper on the civil and ecclesiastical condition of the church in Nova Scotia at the time of its founding. He described the sparse population, the few forests, and almost impassable nature of the country at that time. Responsible representatives of the people were debarred from any share in the administration. The dwellings were largely brought out of the country were scanty, and the food was of the simplest kind. Husbandry was at that time a primitive occupation, almost the exclusive occupation in Pictou county. Fishing and lumbering had been introduced somewhat on the north shore, and shipbuilding had not yet begun. The project of starting a college at Windsor was then in the air. There was an established church in Nova Scotia at that time, and the Roman Catholics had recently been emancipated from severe disabilities. There were eight or nine Presbyterian churches in Nova Scotia, and only three others throughout the Dominion.

Dr. William McCulloch followed with a paper on the planting of Presbyterianism in Pictou county, in which he related with enthusiasm the pioneer labors of Dr. McGregor, Rev. Duncan Ross and Dr. McCulloch, whose devoted ministrations through their hardships in their new field. He gave many interesting incidents of the trials to which these early laborers were subjected. The next speaker was Jas. W. Carmichael, who gave an address on the political and educational outcome of Pictou Presbyterianism. He ascribed the birth of responsible government in Canada to Pictou county and to John Blanchard, who was a product of Pictou academy, the tangible result of the labors of Dr. McGregor and Dr. McCulloch, and showed that the labors of these pioneers in the direction of academic and political education had been most fruitful of results.

Rev. E. Ross closed the afternoon programme with an address on the later history of Presbyterianism in Nova Scotia, in which he related the origin of the dissenting churches, the Free church in 1843 which gave birth to the Free church and the United, and finally branches of the Presbyterian church in the Dominion. The services were interspersed by extracts and well rendered selections from the choir. The services were continued in the evening at 7 o'clock, when the devotional exercises were conducted by Revs. E. Scott and Geo. Murray.

A deeply interesting paper on the history of James Church, by D. C. Fraser, was read, in which the progress of this honored congregation through many vicissitudes under its three pastors, Dr. James McCurdy, Dr. David Ross and Rev. E. A. McCurdy, who succeeded the late Dr. Fraser, was traced. It proceeded from James Church, which had its origin one hundred years ago—Marigot able to furnish the book, a volume of 800 pages for the very small sum of 15 cents.

St. David's Presbyterian church, St. John, was then introduced by the president, the Rev. Mr. Bookwith, who read a very excellent paper on the Teacher's motto, "Be a blessing to the world." The Rev. Dr. Ross, to whom Mr. Fraser paid a well deserved tribute. Jas. D. McGee followed with an address on the progress of New Glasgow during the last 100 years. He quoted from the late John McKay in regard to the initial business of the city, and from the virtual founder of New Glasgow, and from the same author he gave a sketch of the condition of New Glasgow at that time. He followed with a sketch of the late James Fraser, Adam Carr, James and Roderick McGregor, Alex. Fraser, George McKenzie, Thomas Graham, John McKenna and John Cameron, the leading business men in New Glasgow's earlier days.

An address was given to J. S. Maclean of Halifax, who recalled many memories of the men to whom reference had been made, and called attention to the influence the Presbyterian church had on the business and the public institutions of Halifax, and on the trustees of the Presbyterian church of thirty years ago. An address was delivered by Rev. J. D. McGillivray, who drew valuable lessons from the past history of the congregation. The Rev. Mr. Huxley then read an able and interesting paper on the subject of the Sunday school, and the Rev. Mr. Bookwith followed in an earnest speech, telling his own long experience in connection with the S. S. work, and agreeing in the main with the remarks made by Mr. Oakes.

REMARKS were also made by Mr. Thompson, Mr. Fotheringham and others. After the discussion had been brought to a close, it was moved, seconded and carried by a large vote, that the thanks of the association be tendered to Mr. Oakes for his able and interesting paper on "A Sunday school time table." The convention was then closed by devotional exercises.

THE MILLS OF MIRAMICHI.

WHAT THEY ARE DOING THIS SEASON—RAPID DECLINE IN LUMBER SHIPMENTS.

(FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.) NEWCASTLE, Sep. 16.—The quantity of lumber being held at Miramichi ports for higher prices. It is believed that the amount shipped to Europe this season will not exceed seventy million feet, as compared with 117,740,108 and 87 millions in 1882, 3, 4 and 5 respectively. The quantity of lumber shipped at the South West wharf in 1882, 1883, 1884, 1885, 1886, 1887, 1888, 1889, 1890, 1891, 1892, 1893, 1894, 1895, 1896, 1897, 1898, 1899, 1900, 1901, 1902, 1903, 1904, NIGHT AND MORNING.

The last warm flash of sunset light Has faded from the west...

The robin in the roadside fern, And all the merry throng...

The places have hushed their murmuring; No ripple stirs the stream...

Set in their fair and lonely heights, As in an altar high...

What means this universal hush? A season brief of rest?

Not rest, nor death. Infinite life And energy are here...

Eternal in the realms of space— From which progressive life...

And all the forms that fill the earth, In ocean or on shore...

That "all pervading energy," Whose pulse is even flow...

Through day, or night, or century, Doth never feebler grow...

Is here tonight; about my feet, The tender grass blades strive...

So, when the waves of fancy roll On some far dreamland shore...

Through heart, and vein, and artery, As though its sacred essence...

And when the first clear morning beam Across the sky shall break...

New life, developed from the old, Eager its race to run...

We feel the mystic presence near, Parading soul and sense...

Fear is the child of ignorance, Sprung from the human brain...

Far as the universe to man Unveils its mysteries...

Inform the mind; and God draws nigh; Not with a tyrant's frown...

But lovingly, to light the gloom Through which we blindly grope...

The widening circle of the known Proclaims the glad to be...

Dread not the transient gloom that shrouds The height we stand upon...

Have faith! The veil that hides the light In God's own time...

Will break the golden morn.

OLENS.

The cornalike tassels on the ridge Are brooding in the sun...

Grow purple through the golden days; Barberries by the wall...

Old Ocean dreams in slumbers deep Of wintry storms to come...

The partridge in lone country lanes, Within low a speckled wing...

From yellow cornfields slowly pass The crows, with clangor cry...

Escapes the earth at thought of death For summer's life so brief...

Long ere Columbus in the breeze unfurled His venturesome sail...

The smallest ocean which the west wind curled Had born strange waifs to Europe...

Oh for a wall from o'er that wider sea Whose margin is the grave...

But all in vain we watch upon the brink; No wall floats up from black infinity...

SEEKED HIM RIGHT.

Old Birch, who taught the village school, Wedded a maid of homely habit...

Poor Kate had scarce become his wife Before her husband sought to make her...

One day the tutor went abroad, And simple Kate sadly missed him...

The husband's anger rose, and red And white his face alternate grew...

JOB BEEB'S EPITAPHS.

Charles McKiernan, or "Joe Beeb," as he is usually called...

his establishment during their stay in the city. The following epitaphs which appear above...

In memory of Margaret McRee and her baby, a native of Quebec...

She leaves a dear husband and four small children to mourn her loss...

With my Darling Babe upon my breast, Free from all earthly care...

Freddie dear, you are here alone, Jenny wants to know...

Where do you now stay, Or with what little boys Do you play?

For the little from out Poor mother bought Still waits for you at home.

Belmont, Sep. 12.—A desperate attempt was made tonight to assassinate District Inspector Cosgrove. At the corner of Percy street, Shankhill, two detectives were knocked down and kicked, but not seriously injured, while dispersing a crowd which had gathered.

Cosgrove ran up a side street after a young fellow who had been the only member of the crowd who had not been run away. A month ago the whole neighborhood was in a state of excitement over the fact that Cosgrove had been shot at and wounded.

One encouraging feature of the whole affair is that no attempt was made to stop the policeman during the riot. The general expectation is that such attempts on individuals will be repeated at intervals all the winter.
