Building Up St. John Social and Personal

There is one question on which this province should be united, absolutely, the Nationalization of the port of St. John. We want St. John to be a "free" port, so far as such a condition can be brought about in respect to port charges. The people of St. John have shown a lot of faith in their port and the amount of pluck displayed by them in investing millions of dollars in terminals has excited the admiration of business men far and wide. Now, admiration is all very well in itself but St. John deserves something more tangible. The city has mortgaged its future in other directions by providing shipping facilities for the rest of Canada and citizens are paying a pretty stiff tax rate as a result. What is needed by the city is an arrangement under which the Dominion Government shall assume responsibility for the maintenance of the docks and relieve St. John of its immense bonded indebtedness. That will give the city a chance to reduce its rate of taxation and should make it more desirable place for manufacturers to do business as if we succeed in building up a great St. John the province of New Brunswick should benefit as a whole.

There has never been a time in the history of this province when the need of such action was more apparent. The C. P. R. has already secured a firm foothold in St. John and the Grand Trunk Pacific has recently purchased land for terminals at Courtnew Bay. The Canadian Northern, the Mackenzie and Mann system, will soon have a free access to ocean and when these three roads commence to pour their freights into the eastern hopper, we must be prepared with a spot big enough to discharge the contents with dispatch. That the people of St. John should be asked to burden themselves further is preposterous. That they should be relieved, in view of the interest of Canada has in obtaining a suitable outlet for her produce, is apparent to all who have given the matter consideration. How can we bring about the Nationalization of St. John and our other ports? The record believes that every part of New Brunswick should press for action. We should assist that our members of Parliament take up the question seriously and call for its adoption. There should be no question of Liberal or Conservative enter into a discussion of this proposal. The people of New Brunswick desire more terminal accommodation and they should have a fair deal in obtaining it. If newspapers in this province want something to discuss, here is a big question for them to tackle. It means more than we realize now. It means a strong blow for the "Bigger and Better New Brunswick."--Record.

The newspaper is a home enterprise. The merchant who advertises besides reaping his own benefit helps and encourages this enterprise. Would it not be fair to patronize the merchant who helps to keep a newspaper in the town.

One of the most prominent merchants in our town in speaking of the question of advertising said, "If I did not advertise I might as well lock up my door." Nowadays competition is keen and an ad in our paper will do a world of good.

The fishermen report a scarcity of fish in the spring school. Almost without exception an abundance of fish in the spring is followed by a scarcity in the fall. It looks well then for a good summer and fall season. Let us hope so.

While it looks as though the snowy weather was gone for good, it is a little too early to be sure of it. In April 1908 there were six snowstorms on the 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 8th, 16th and 21st, with accompanying cold and blustering weather. In 1909, the month also gave us six snowstorms, falling on April 3rd, 4th, 10th, 25th, 29th and 30th.

In discussing the Government's Naval Bill, Hon. H. R. Emmerson said he was somewhat Lord Dan-drey's peacock to fly alone. But under instances he could or "mpar" he bird he fancies most. Consequently he would support the government's bill as being in principle along the lines of what he advocated and believed to be best.

"Doctor," said the patient, upon whom the hospital doctor surgeon had just operated for appendicitis, "you're the same surgeon that amputated the first finger of my right hand, when I had it crushed in a railroad accident a few months ago, ain't you. "Yes," answered the surgeon. "Well" you got my index then, and now you've got my appendix, I hope you are satisfied."

(From the New York Sun.)

The menace of broken relations and of a trade war which could only prove costly and harmful to both, in any event, served a useful purpose. It has placed a new light and before a greater number of people the value and perhaps the necessity of commercial concord between Canada and United States. The present experience may even serve as a prelude to a community of economic interests of incalculable profit to both countries. In effort to establish closer trade relations with our northern neighbor there is a splendid opportunity for the administration. The argument of immeasurable benefit to both countries is unquestionably sound.

James R. Dill, whose recent speech on Grant at Oberlin College attracted so much, told recently, apropos of 'graft' a story about a swindling tramp.

"This tramp," said Mr. Dill, "had the alert, unscrupulous, bold mind that makes grafting profitable. He was walking in Chicago one day when he saw a little boy stoop and pick up something. He crossed over to the boy quickly.

"You have made a find, my lad he said.

"Yes sir," said the boy. "I found a silver ring."

"I thought so," said the tramp. "It's the one I just dropped. 'Now ain't it lucky I had my name cut in it?"

"What's your name?" said the boy suspiciously.

"Sterling, lad."

"Take it, then. It's yours!" said the boy, handing over the ring with a disappointed air."

William McIntosh, of the Natural History Society at St. John, received instructions yesterday morning from W. W. Hubbard, secretary for agriculture, to make a thorough search for traces of the brown tail moth in the province. Mr. McIntosh had already begun the search in St. John district and will finish the work here before proceeding elsewhere. An important feature of the campaign will be that Mr. McIntosh will address the school children wherever he goes with a view to getting them interested in the search of the pest.

The State of Maine, Mr. McIntosh says, is infested with the brown tail and after leaving St. John he will go to the south west portion of the province adjoining that state. A thorough and systematic search will be made around St. Stephen and St. Andrews and in all the orchards in the district where the moth is likely to be found. The search will be extended to all points along the line of the C. P. R. Mr. McIntosh conducted a similar search last year, and he is of the opinion that it will be necessary to continue the work for many a year to come.

CORRESPONDENCE

Dear Editor--

I wish to correct the statement made in the last issue of your paper in connection with Percy Trainor's death and burial. He was just sick one week with pneumonia and was a member of the Baptist Church. The funeral was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Thorne and he was interred in the Baptist cemetery. The funeral was attended by the Masons and Orangemen. The Orange lodge presented him with a handsome arch of flowers.

MRS. PERCY TRAINOR.

Earned His Board.

"During the early part of my business career," said Sir Thomas Lipton in the London Strand Magazine, "I became imbued with the idea that it was possible to prosper quickly in America, and at the age of sixteen I left home and started for the United States. I had not dared tell my mother or father, so they only knew of the great ship I had taken when I had gone. Had it not been for the kindness of my fellow passengers my journey would have been very miserable, and once or twice, I confess, I lost heart.

I had no money nor anyone to go to when I arrived in New York, and before we landed I caught my brain as to what I was to do. As the steamer drew alongside the pier I took up my few belongings and rushed away to the nearest hotel before any one else had left the vessel.

"As it seemed a clean well kept place, I asked to see the proprietor and told him that I could get him forty patrons, provided that he would board and lodge me for a month. To this he consented. I made my way back to the boat and was just in time to catch my fellow passengers and persuade them to go to this hotel, where I assured them they would get excellent accommodation. And they did."

Proposing to William.

The blinds were drawn, the curtains were drawn, and the draperies over the room a cloistered aspect. There was moreover, only one light in the room, and this was a portable gas lamp covered with a green shade, and turned down to a dim and mournful point, such as might illuminate a tragedy, for instance. And on the table, by the side of a lamp, stood the portrait of one whom we will call William, and walking thoughtfully about the room was Arabella, pausing from time to time to gaze at the portrait of William and giving it (each time) a look of intensity that alternately said "Beware!" and "I'll get you!"

She was dressed in black; a soft and crushable black, cut low in certain places and embellished with a train. Around the whiteness of her neck was a narrow velvet ribbon, and in contrast with her dress her face seemed pale and like that of one who has suffered much in silence. "Ha!" she murmured as the doorbell rang. "Now for it! At last!"

And as William entered the room she drooped toward him gracefully, and placed her little hands in his and drooped again and sighed.

"Well," said William, "how have you been?"

She only sighed.

"Mmm?" said William.

"Well," she said, "do you really care?"

And when she still made no response although her attitude was that of one almost persuaded he gently repeated: "You know I care, Arabella!"

"Dear Billy!" she sighed.

And again she drooped toward him gracefully and placed her hands in his, and drooped again and sighed.

"What's the matter?" asked William.

Whereupon she arose, walked glowingly away, pressed her hand to her side, and walked slowly back.

"Will," she said, "I am going away."

And after she had intently studied William's features from underneath her lashes she turned her head away and this time she drooped for fair.

"Oh!" said William.

And if our William could have seen her face to face, he would have blinked his eyes forthwith and have gone away from there.

"Yes," she said.

"Where are you going?" asked William.

"I am going abroad," she said, "Yes."

"When are you going?" asked William. She reverted to her earlier tactics.

"Will," she said, "do you really care?"

"Why, of course I care," said William.

And again she made no response, but this time William, too, helped keep the peace and when she saw that no further protestations were forthcoming, she softly exclaimed: "Dear Billy, I really believe you will miss me!"

DOCTORS FAILED. RESTORED BY PERUNA

Catarrh of the Lungs Threatened Her Life

Miss Ninette Porter, Braintree, Vermont, writes: "I have been cured of Peruna."
"I had several hemorrhages of the lungs. The doctors did not help me much and would never have cured me if I saw a testimonial in a Peruna almanac of a case similar to mine, and I commenced using it."
"I was not able to wait on myself when I began using it. I gained very slowly at first, but I could see that it was helping me."
"After I had taken it a while I commenced to raise up a stringy, sticky substance from my lungs. This grew less and less in quantity as I continued the treatment."
"I grew more fleshy than I had been for a long time, and now I call myself well."

"You won't go?" said William.

"Will," she said, covering her eyes again.

"I just can't bear to leave you!" And looking at him with eyes of admiration she cried before he had a chance to say: "Beams."

"How could I leave my Billy!" She regarded him with a challenge, but he did not deny the possessive case of the pronoun.

"And besides" she whispered, daring all.

"Yes?" smiled William.

"We can go abroad," she breathed, "on our honeymoon!"

And it was not until he was on his way home a fettered man that William began to see the light.

"Hang it all!" said he, "I wonder if she really was going abroad!"

And in the morning Arabella knocked her knuckles against the photographic representation of William's head, much as one might rap a coconut to see if there was any milk inside. Having thus enjoyed herself she set a few cold corners.

"Hard work!" she laughed, "all the game!"

The old-fashioned way of dosing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. Dr. Shoop's first pointed out this error. This is why his perception—Dr. Shoop's Restorative is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments—the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak Stomach, Heart or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then those organs must surely falter. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and see! Improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all druggists.

How It Feels to be Starving

Sir Ernest Shackleton told a fashionable audience the other day what it feels like to be ferociously hungry.

During the last stage of his Antarctic expedition, he said, when the members of his party were sitting in their tent, each nibbled his own biscuit, a man happened to drop a crumb six pairs of eyes would follow it on its downward path to the floor. If he had not noticed it, it would have been a very rare occurrence, his attentions would be drawn to it and he would wet the tip of his finger and pick it up. Not a morsel escaped.

In his diary for the same day last year he found the entry: "Very hungry, dreaming of food all day." They were hungry for three months, he continued, and during that time had only one full meal, on Christmas Day.

They often asked each other what people in the cities did when they were dying of starvation, because no law of man would have stood between them and a bake-shop if they had had an opportunity of getting in.

When they were back to civilization they were so shrunken in size that at first they were unable to eat as much as an ordinary man, but they then made up for it. They then made up their minds that they would never see a hungry person flattening his nose against a cook-shop window without giving him something.

Coughs that are tight, or distressing tickling coughs, get quick and certain help from Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. On this account Druggists everywhere are favoring Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy. The tender leaves of a harnik lung-healing mountainous shrub give Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its curative properties. Those leaves have power to cure the most distressing cough, and to soothe, and to soothe the most sensitive bronchial membrane. Test it once yourself and you will be cured.

"Will," she said, looking up at last. "I just won't go!"

Rev. Father Morriscy

Father Morriscy's No. 10 Strengthens Weak Lungs

The person whose air passages, from the nostrils to the innermost cells of the lungs, are lined with vigorous, healthy membrane, can pass unharmed through exposure to cold or wet, or even to the germs of consumption itself.

Under similar exposure one whose air passages are weak at any point, or whose vitality is low, will be almost certain to fall a prey to some form of throat or lung trouble. Every common cold neglected weakens your defenses at some point. A succession of them leaves you an easy victim for bronchitis, pneumonia or consumption.

Father Morriscy's No. 10 (Lung Tonic) protects you from this danger. It not only stops the cough and drives away the cold, but it repairs the damage done to the delicate membrane, making it as strong or stronger than ever to resist throat or lung diseases.

Being entirely free from opium, morphine or any harmful drug, Father Morriscy's No. 10 is perfectly safe for the youngest or the oldest.

Trial size 25c. Regular size 50c. At your dealer's.

The Czar's Freedom

(Boston Advertiser)

A recent account of the narrow escape of the Czar of Russia from injury by collision between his carriage and a street car emphasized for the world the fact that the Czar in these days goes about his capital much as any high official might go about in a country where the bomb and other forms of assassination are unknown or rare. It is a very different state of affairs from those which existed some years ago, when every open move by the Czar brought to him the chance of death or physical injury.

The Anglo Russian, published at London and seeking, as it states at the head of its editorial page, "to spread accurate knowledge of internal affairs and events in Russia and their bearing upon international policy," advocating "civil and religious liberty and universal peace and brotherhood," and aspiring to the attainment of just laws for both sexes alike," makes comment on the new freedom of the Czar in his capital, and thinks that it should be stated "at what price the Czar has won his personal liberty of movement. To establish their own tyrannic 'peace' in Russia, the Czar's agents ruthlessly organized the whole sale massacres in Kishineff, Bielostok, Ekaterinoslav, Baku, etc., judicially or without any judicial formalities, tortured, hanged, shot, and in other ways destroyed thousands upon thousands of Russia's not least and heroic sons and daughters, imprisoned and exiled to Siberia members of the two first dumas, with some hundred thousand of other Russian citizens who are at this moment pining and dying in the Arctic wilderness, all this that the Czar might drive in St. Petersburg with an ease and freedom about shopping!"

It is the commoner understanding outside of Russia not that this price was paid to insure greater safety for the Czar, but the fear and panic which the Czar suffered in former days were the price which he had paid for those atrocities, condemned by all humanity. If he has attained a greater degree of personal freedom and safety in later years, that fact is due, as the world reads the situation to a lessening of the measures of brutality. With the coming of the third duma, even lacking as it is in the best possibilities, a new era of peace and liberty shone on the Russian horizon. The world believes that better days are ahead for Russia and that better days are ahead for Russia in that future lies the basis for the Czar's present freedom of movement at St. Petersburg.

The fiancee of a Louisville girl has been spending the winter in Florida in connection with his father's business interests in that quarter.

"Marie," said the girl to a friend the other day, "Walter has just sent me the dearest little alligator from Florida!"

"Dear me!" rejoined arie with affected enthusiasm, "And how shall you keep him?"

"I'm not quite certain," was the reply, "but I've put him in Florida water till I can hear farther from Walter."

Will Raise the Maine

Washington, March 23.—The bulk of the ill-fated battleship Maine, sunk in the harbor of Havana, will be raised so that the remains of any of the sailors dead that may be within the wreck may be recovered and so that an examination may be made to determine if possible the manner in which the vessel was destroyed, if the Senate bill passed by the House today.

The remains of sailors that might be recovered would be interred in Arlington cemetery on the Virginia shore, opposite Washington. The mast of the Maine would be erected in the cemetery near the graves of the Maine dead.

For two hours Republicans and Democrats spoke in favor of removing the wreck from Havana harbor. As passed by the House, the bill was changed in its general terms so as to authorize the work to be done under the direction of the engineer corps of army, with the consent of the republic of Cuba. On the insistence of Mr. Salzer of New York, the bill was worded to require the "raising" as well as the "removal" of the wreck so that an examination could be made of the bulk, to determine the manner of the vessel's destruction.—Bangor Daily News.

A Sign of Insanity

An Irishman over the age of four score and ten, who in strict economy had accumulated a modest fortune, and was about to die, called in the parish priest and the family lawyer to make his last will and testament. The wife, a grasping, covetous old person, was also in the room. The preliminary of the will having been completed, it became necessary to inquire about the debts owing to the estate. Among these were several of importance of which the old lady had been in ignorance, but was nevertheless pleased to find that so much ready money would be forthcoming after the funeral.

"Now, then," said the lawyer, "state explicitly the amount owed you by your friends."

"Timothy Brown," replied the old man, "owes me $50, Jim Casey owes me $37, and—"

"Good! Good!" ejaculated the prospective widow, "rational to the last!" put in the eager old lady again.

To Michael Levy I owe $200."

"Ah!" exclaimed the old lady, "hear him rave!"

Morse Pardon Petitions.

New York, Mar 23.—At the headquarters of the Morse Petition League in New York it was announced today that on or before April 15 the league will open branch offices in New York, Jersey City, Philadelphia, Boston, Buffalo, Syracuse, Detroit, Cincinnati, Dayton and Washington.

The object of the league is to obtain by May 1, 100,000 signatures to a petition, addressed to President Taft, asking for executive clemency for Charles W. Morse, the former banker, now serving a 15 year sentence at Atlanta.—Bangor Daily News.

Wolter Maintains Innocence But Police Have Proofs.

New York, March, 30.—The body of Ruth Wheeler, the 15 year old girl who was buried in the room of Albert Wolter, last Thursday, was quietly buried today while the youth accused of the crime, continued to resist the efforts of detectives to obtain a confession. Only immediate members of the family were present at the girl's funeral.

Standing on his assertion that he will perhaps "tell everything on Wednesday" Wolter remains in his cell, still denying that he killed the girl or that he ever knew her. The District Attorney's office says, however, that evidence sufficient to convict already has been obtained, and that the trial will be rushed, beginning perhaps as early as Monday next. The present plan is to lay the case before the Grand Jury tomorrow without the formality of a coroner's inquest.

Evidence that may fix a motive for the crime was revealed today. In the findings of John Larkin of Columbia University. He reported that there were indications that the girl had been mistreated before being killed. The accused youth's parents employed counsel for him today and he was instructed to maintain silence. His former companion, Katie Miller, is still held at the House of Detention as a material witness and it is through her that the police hope to influence the prisoner to confess. The murder aroused the city authorities to action along a new line today, when a resolution was offered before the Board of Aldermen, calling on the Legislature to pass a law for the supervision of employment agencies as far as minors are concerned. It is through such an agency that Ruth Wheeler learned of Wolter's address.

Died in California

The Herald, published at Eureka, Cal., March 14th, contains the following reference to the death of a native of this country:

Robert H. Allen, an old time woodsman, passed away at the home of his son, T. B. Allen, 18 West Whipple street, this morning at 3.20 o'clock, his demise being caused by old age—eighty two years, six months and eleven days. During the last fifteen years he had been retired.

Mr. Allen was born in Charlotte county, New Brunswick, September 3, 1828, and worked in the Maine woods while a young man, river driving and chopping. He came to Eureka direct from the east thirty five years ago, and again entered the woods, this time in the virgin redwoods of Humboldt, where he found timber and lumbering methods on a much larger scale than in the eastern forests. There are now remaining four children of a family of eight children. The wife and mother passed to the great beyond eighteen years ago. There are living a son, T. B. Allen, and three daughters, Mrs. Leora Frances, wife of J. F. Frances of Auburn Placer county, Mrs. Ruel Russ of Carlotta, and Mrs. M. F. Gardner of Petrolia.

H. Wilbur Allen, who was killed in the woods at Blue Lake two years ago, was a son of the deceased, and Mrs. Frank Quinton, whose husband managed the old Bay hotel and who died several years ago, was a daughter.

The Toll of the Sea

The past winter season has shown a startling loss of life and property in marine disasters on the Atlantic coast of Canada and the United States. In the eighty-three vessels which have met disaster, 225 lives were lost and a million dollars in property was sacrificed. A peculiar feature of the record is that it included the destruction of seven of the larger class of sailing vessels, four, five and six masters, as well as several steamers. To what extent human carelessness may have been responsible for some of these disasters may never be known, but for the greater part, says the Boston Herald, this must be reckoned as the explainable toll which is required, those who go down into the sea in it.

Spring

I hear the wild geese honking
 From out the misty night—
 A sound of moving armies
 On sweeping in their might:
 The river ice is drifting
 Beneath their northward flight.

I hear the bluebird plaintiff
 From out the morning sky,
 Or see his wing a twinkle
 That with the azure vie;
 No other bird more welcome,
 No more prophetic cry.

I hear the sparrow's ditty
 Ancur my study door;
 A simple song of gladness
 That winter days are o'er;
 My heart is singing with him,
 I love him more and more.

I hear the starling flatter
 His liquid "O-wa-lee";
 I hear the downy drumming
 His vernal reveille:
 From out the maple orchard
 The nuttall-ch calls to me.

O, spring is surely coming,
 Her courtiers fill the air;
 Each morn are new arrivals,
 Each night her way prepare;
 I scent her fragrant garments,
 Her foot is on the stair.

—John Burroughs.

Slips of School Boys.

The school boy "howler" is always popular. The following selection from a large number which were sent in for a prize competition arranged by the University Correspondent are excellent examples of the mistake which pupils perpetrate.

Women's suffrage is the state of suffering to which they were born. The earth is an absolute spheroid.

Lord Raleigh was the first man to see the Invisible Armada. Shakespeare founded "As You Like It" on a book previously written by Sir Oliver Lodge.

Gender shows whether a man is masculine, feminine or neuter. James I died from argue.

An angle is a triangle with only two sides. Algebraical symbols are used when you don't know what you are talking about.

Geometry teaches us how to bisect angles. Parallel lines are the same distance all the way, and do not meet unless you bend them.

The whale is an amphibious animal because it lives on land and dies in the water.

A parallelogram is a figure made of four parallel straight lines.

A LAST RESORT.

"You remind me so much of my brother," she said coolly as they sat in the parlor.

"I'm awfully glad of that," he answered gallantly. "I have always admired your brother. In what way am I like him?"

"Oh, Harry seems awfully fond of never offering to kiss me," at it was unnecessary for her any of her relatives.

No Tariff War

All eyes have been turned toward Albany during the last few days with President Taft, and Hon. W. S. Fielding have been in conference by invitation of the former. Preferential tariff has been the subject before them. The maximum rates of the Payne Aldrich tariff law which now comes into effect if applied to Canada's products would have precipitated a tariff war between these two countries by conciliatory measures on the part of the Dominion Government as given by its representative an amicable arrangement has been arrived at. In the conversations made, who will say Canada has been the loser? We are happy in having such a man as Hon. Mr. Fielding to represent us in such negotiations. He has yielded more than enough for the gain that has been made.

The people of the United States and of New England in particular are coming to realize as never before how closely bound up are the interests of the two countries—that restriction of trade which would shut out the raw products of Canada on which American manufacturers are so dependent would be without compensating benefits. Canada would retaliate by placing a maximum tariff upon the imports from the United States which would again reach upon the manufacturers of that Country. President Taft is fully impressed with the importance of friendly trade relations between the two countries and has shown himself most desirous of averting a tariff war. He is quoted as saying, "With 3000 miles of border between us, we must study conditions to prevent conflict, trade or otherwise, and we must be as good friends as possible for the mutual benefit of both. It is to our great advantage to be just to Canada, and it is to Canada's great advantage to be just to us." That there has been a satisfactory argument to the great advantage of both all will rejoice. Nothing has been yielded to our disadvantage or discredit.

Amidst the above it may be of interest to note the pronouncement of the New England district of Tanton where Eugene N. Foss has been elected Congressman, turning a Republican majority of 14,000 into a Democratic majority of over 5000. As Mr. Foss made reciprocity with Canada one of his leading issues the election in face of events at Albany, is of considerable significance.

Read Their Ads.

Every progressive store in Town is important to you; but you haven't the time to visit every one of them every day. Nor can you depend upon your friends to give you the news about them. But the wide awake merchants make that unnecessary for you. They collect and present to you in convenient form the store facts, the store news. They do for you essentially what the editorial end of our newspaper does for you in the matter of keeping you posted about events of interest and value in the world at large. Keep an eye then continually upon our advertising columns. They belong to our up-to-date merchants. They talk "shop" to you, do you "talk back" to them.

The Horror Of It!

Supposing that Halley's Comet should, (as some say it will) by any mere accident, strike old mother earth in passing, and so many of our subscribers who have not paid (some of them three or four mind you) many of them, it should be hurled into fall (?) echo answers to—the horror of it all!

without paying their subscription to the Granite Town Greetings, and who can say where they would land. Oh, the horror of it!

Dear Subscriber, here is food for much serious thought and heart-searching. Don't face the horror of it, but come in and pay up cheerfully. We extend a cordial invitation to pretty nearly all. Don't stay away. If you cannot call, by all means send in the dollars. Who'll be the first.

General News.

Ottawa, April 3.—The following are the dates for camps in the Maritime Provinces command:

Sussex—June 23.
Aldershot—September 13.
Charlottetown—June 28.
Special to the Standard.

New York, April 4.—That intoxication killed four-year-old Joseph Klein, who died to-day, was the assertion of the police, who arrested John Silver, twenty-three years old, a cousin, for the lad's death. Silver has been locked up charged with 'bom' side. The relatives of the Klein child the police say, made him drunk yesterday at a family party.

Detroit, Mich., April 4.—More than 30 saloons were voted out of business by the people of nineteen Michigan counties to-day. Of the thirty-six counties where local option elections were held, the one county not heard from is Osceola, where it is said to possess only one saloon, so the returns are fairly complete. Nineteen counties voted "dry" and sixteen voted for license.

Amherst, N. S., April 2.—(Special)—Fred Cameron, the champion amateur distance runner of the maritime provinces and Thos. T. Trenholm, his trainer, will leave for Boston on Monday to compete in the twenty-five mile Boston marathon on April 19.

Cameron has never competed in any race over ten miles and his friends and admirers in Amherst, as well as in other places, will watch with interest this long run.

Ottawa, April 4.—(Special)—In response to a cablegram from the Mayor of London inviting Canada to take part in the annual Empire day match over the miniature rifle ranges, the department of militia has decided to send a team of three Canadian cadets, the same as was done last year. The three cadets will be chosen from the highest scores in the miniature rifle series of the Canadian Rifle League, which has been in progress for some weeks.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 4.—Following the refusal of the striking car men at their meeting last night to accept the terms of settlement offered by the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company the board of directors of the company to-day practically withdrew their offer to take back all the men. At the close of the meeting of the directors, a statement issued by the company said so many men have been employed in the two weeks since the offer was rejected that it will not be impossible to take back into the service of the company, all of the old men on strike.

Halifax, April 3.—After covering 20,000 miles on a sealing trip in the Indian Ocean the schooner Latoka arrived in port tonight from Cape Town South Africa, where she landed her catch of 750 seals, valued at $30,000. The Latoka sailed from here in July and on the way down came dangerously near foundering and was forced to put into Rio Janeiro for repairs. On his trip Capt. Ryan, located islands in the South Antarctic that had not been visited for eighty years. The trip from the Cape to Halifax was made in fifty-one days, which breaks all records for a sailing vessel.

Montreal, April 3.—Fire this morning destroyed the premises on St. Paul street occupied by J. H. Waldman and Company manufacturers of cloaks and suits. The loss is placed at $100,000 with an insurance of about $80,000. Thirteen firemen were injured by a backdraft explosion, seven being removed to hospitals. In no case is the injury expected to prove fatal.

When the roll-call was made after the explosion Firemen Cote of the Central station was found to be missing. A search of the ruins was at once started, but while it was a progress some men who had returned to the station telephoned that they had found Cote asleep in his bed at the station. He had quit early in the fire. Chief Tremblay at once discharged the man who had a few minutes before had been half a hero.

Towns where Conventions are not held are expected to send delegates to the nearest Convention centres, in order to carry the enthusiasm back to their own churches.

OBITUARY.

MAGGIE LELAND.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Leland was saddened by the death of their daughter Maggie Winnifred which occurred on the morning of March 30th. She had been in failing health for two years but last fall she appeared to improve in health and her parents were quite encouraged until four weeks ago a change came but all that kind parents and medical skill could do was of no avail. The angel of the Lord came and whispered "come home," so with a loving smile to all she passed over the river to be with her Heavenly Father, who said, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." She was twelve years and three months of age; she was always kind and loving to all; at home, to her school mates and everyone around her. To know her was to love her. During her illness she never complained but bore it all so patiently as she grew weaker and knew she was going home she called her parents, brother and sister to her bedside and kissed them goodbye and told them not to cry, and with a loving smile she passed to the Happy beyond. She leaves a father and mother, three brothers, Frank, John and Willie, and one sister Jennie at home to mourn her loss.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. E. V. Buchanan and was largely attended by young and old. Her favorite hymns, "Jesus Lover of my Soul," "Pass me not oh gentle Saviour" and "Shall we Meet beyond the River" were sung.

The pall bearers were George Chambers, Kinsman Stuart, Ernest and Percy Stuart. She was buried in the cemetery at Letete. The floral tributes were very beautiful. The bereaved parents have the heart felt sympathy of the community. May the Lord bless and comfort them in their lonely hours.

It is only a little while and then a sweet reunion in Heaven again. With loved ones gone to that happy shore

Where pain and sorrow can come no more
Tis only a little while.

The annual Roll Call of the Baptist church took place on Thursday last. There was a large attendance and a good financial response. The annual business meeting of the church will be held next Thursday night. A full attendance is requested.

It is reported that St. John is to get a dry dock and repair plant, operations to start within a comparatively short time. The government proposes to give an aid to a first class dry dock of three and a half per cent for thirty-five years. The dry dock will be capable of accommodating the largest ships now afloat. The location of the dock is not yet agreed upon but there are several first class sites available.

The Higgins shoe factory at Yarmouth, N. S. was totally destroyed by fire on Monday afternoon. The employees all had very narrow escapes, and some were severely burned. The building was the town's leading industry, and was insured for $29,300. The fire started by the upsetting of a can of gasoline, which came in contact with a small oil stove which was burning and sitting on the same table. They will not rebuild.

The annual Sunday School Convention was held this week in the Presbyterian Church. There were two sessions on Monday both morning and afternoon. The meetings were well attended by delegates from all over the country. J. B. Ganong of Sussex, N. B., the General Secretary of the Sunday School Institute was present and gave an interesting address in the evening. At the afternoon session reports from representatives of all the schools in the county were read. The following officers were elected for the coming year—President, W. R. Wentworth, I. G. G. G., Vice President, Mrs. I. E. Gillmor, Second Falls, Soc'y-Treas, Miss Mary Magowan, St. George. Executive Committee, Edward Oliver, St. George; L. W. Theriault, Back Bay; and H. V. Dewar, St. George.

Commander Wakeham's report on the lobster fishing industry of the Bay of Fundy does not appear to meet with the approval of fishermen interested. The report recommends that in district No. 1, which includes the Bay of Fundy from the Main-broder to Cape Sable, and a portion of the southwestern shore of Nova Scotia, there should be an open season of five and a half months with a size limit of ten and one half inches while in the other districts the size limit should be abolished. It is alleged by the representatives of the Fishermen's union of western Nova Scotia that Commander Wakeham has given undue weight to the arguments of parties interested in the packing industry or some big merger reaching out its tentacles to grab the fisheries of the maritime provinces and bring the fishermen who have attained a fair measure of independence to a state of slavery.—St. John Standard.

LOCAL AND SPECIAL

The last meeting of the present town council takes place next Monday night. Notices for the election are posted. The election will be held on Tuesday April 18th.

H. M. Hooper was appointed general manager of the St. John street railway at a meeting of the company held on Monday afternoon. Alfred Seelye becomes treasurer of the company.

We are compelled to throw out two pieces of correspondence this week from Maces Bay and Lorns Cove on account of the failure of the correspondents to sign their names to it. Correspondence will not be published in this paper unless signed by the writer. Will those writing items of news to us please bear this in mind.

(Special to the Telegraph)
Halifax, N. S., April 4.—According to a report in the house of assembly brought down today by Premier Murray, public education in Nova Scotia last year cost $1,229,834. The technical college cost $116,000, exclusive of equipment. The mileage of highway in this province, according to the report of the road commissioner, is 18,000 miles and cost to the province for upkeep was $247,500.

On Monday evening about forty couples accepted the invitation to attend the ball at the Drageorgian Hall. The following program of dances was successfully carried out—

13 Waltz
14 Lady of the Lake

- The orchestra consisted of—
Miss Mooney—Pianist
Prof. Mooney—Violinist
E. J. O'Neill—Cornetist

The music was excellent. The dances were called off by Mr. Ryder. Refreshments consisting of coffee, cake and sandwiches were served about midnight. Some of the costumes worn by the ladies were very pretty. Every feature of the evening was carried out very successfully, making the ball one of the best St. George has had for some time. Too much credit cannot be given the committee for the pleasing way in which everything passed.

Ransom Darny

E. M. Goodman

We always called her Cook while she lived with us, but when she married Samuel, the stableman, and another cook reigned in her stead, it was recognized that the march of events had left her without a name, and henceforth she was known to the nursery as Ransom Darny on account of her fondness for the hymn, in her version of which the words occurred.

They never had any children, and Ransom Darny, "saw to" Samuel with such assiduity that he straightway became quite elderly, though he really was 11 years her junior.

He had been married nine years, and had long ceased to show "the least morsel of spirit," when Ransom Darny directed him to accompany her to the first women's suffrage meeting ever held in Offord Strawles.

A little lady on the platform, astonishingly well dressed and "high-larnt," rose and addressed the handful of "villagers" who had faced the prospect of remaining awake till 10 o'clock to please Lady D. She marshaled before them the wrongs of the downtrodden women of England. She painted their lives of patient endurance, their enforced silence when a single word of theirs would be enough to save a besotted government from shipwreck. She pointed out the ignominy of being herded with babes, criminals and lunatics, and called on the chivalry of Offord Strawles to rise and deliver them. There were tears in her pretty voice, and her eyes were eloquent. Lady D.'s son cheered, and Samuel listened motionless, his long chin sunk in his Sunday waistcoat, above which appeared a rim of scarlet chest-protector.

His mild eyes brightened under the strain of unaccustomed mental effort. He coughed several times, and refused the Lozenge proffered by Ransom Darny in the corner of an envelope.

"It is cheaper," said the lady on the form, "much cheaper, for a man to 'his wife than' to call his neighbors' names. He may seriously disable her for seven-and-sixpence, but if he kills treats a horse he will go to prison." The front row murmured "Shame" and Ransom Darny gazed fixedly at Samuel, conveying the impression that (but for her skilled handling) he would have been a confirmed and brutal wife-beater. Samuel raised his eyes to the platform, and a gleam of animation came into his long, equine countenance.

"Amazin'," he said, under his breath. "Amazin'!"

"How much longer are women to be slaves?" demanded the orator. "These centuries of servitude are nearly over. It is coming in our time. It is ours to claim freedom for women and hand it down to our daughters, a deathless gift."

Samuel wagged his head approvingly all through the votes of thanks, and joined heartily in God save the King. The meeting marked an era in his life. He regarded Ransom Darny with other eyes since he sat down on that bench.

Ransom Darny improvised the occasion on the way home, and Samuel listened in silence, which she mistook for his customary dull acquiescence. But on the cottage doorstep she became aware of a difference. He walked in before her and lit the lamp.

"No! get me a glass o' beer, and toast a bit o' cheese!" he commanded, in a voice about an octave lower than usual.

There was a pause; Ransom Darny could not believe her ears.

"Ten o'clock," said Samuel. "Too late to wait while you stand chattering-maggin' there."

Ransom Darny stood speechless. She had never made much account of Samuel's brains, but Samuel as a raving lunatic would have to be reckoned with.

"Go to bed, Samuel; go to bed," she ordered, steadying her voice to the tone one uses to a naughty child. "You're that excited there's no knowin'."

Samuel took a plate from the dresser, held it by its edge, and rapped upon the table in a terrifying manner.

"You get the beer!" he said masterfully. "Them things may be changed in our time, but they're not changed yet. I could half kill you for seventy-six, and I didn't know my privileges. All these years I've said yes, mealy mouthed to your orders. Now it's me to order. To think I never rekindled my mercies till she told me?"

He kept an eye on Ransom Darny while she stirred up the fire and toasted the cheese, with trembling fingers and backward glances at the terrible Samuel, who seemed to expand as she looked.

When she had set the smoking dish upon the table, Samuel left his hold upon it.

"Set down, my gal!" he said. "Set down and keep me company. You won't find me unconsiderate. I've had experience." Westminster Gazette.

Paper Car Wheels.

We naturally think of paper as something lacking in strength and of a paper article as being fragile, so are somewhat alarmed when an encyclopedic friend remarks that the wheels of the car on which we are slipping along at the rate of a mile a minute are made of paper. This opportunity to be alarmed occurs, however, on only the best of railways, as paper car wheels, though safer and longer lived than any others, are also more expensive. The principal advantage of wheels made from this promising material is found in the fact that they are not injured by the violent vibrations to which car wheels are subjected.

The paper used in the manufacture of these wheels is known as calendared rye straw board, or thick paper. It is sent to the car wheel shops in circular sheets measuring twenty two to forty inches in diameter, and over each of these sheets is spread and even coating of flour paste. A dozen sheets are placed one on the other and the lot subjected to hydraulic pressure of 500 tons or more. After two hours pressure these sheets, which have now become a solid block, are kept for a week in a drying room at a temperature of 120 degrees, after which a number of blocks are pasted together, pressed and dried for a second week. A third combination of layers is then made, after which there is an entire month of drying. The final block contains 120 to 160 sheets of the original paper and is four and one half inches in thickness. All resemblance to paper has been lost, the block in weight, density, and solidity approximating the finest grained, heaviest metal.

To complete the wheel there are required a steel tire, a cast iron hub, wrought iron plates to protect the paper on either side and two circles of bolts, one set passing through the flange of the tire, the other through the flange of the hub and both sets through the paper. The paper blocks are turned on the lathe, which also reams out the center hole for the hub. Two coats of paint are applied to keep out moisture. The various parts are next assembled, and the paper car wheel is complete.

As may be readily understood, paper which has received the treatment described may be used for almost any purpose for which metal or wood is used if not too much exposed to dampness, and to all practical purposes it is fireproof-Harper's.

Scotch Thrift

Nobody ever charged Harry Lauder, the high-priced Scotch comic, with being a spendthrift. The following story is told of him. He met a friend on Christmas Day and after thanking him for the valuable Christmas present received from him said, "By the way, Jack, what did I give you for your Christmas present last year?"

"A photograph of yourself, I think."

"Then I'll add my autograph to it this year."

Joker's Column

"He was certainly popular with the people, I said, speaking of the trolley road superintendent, whose resignation had recently been accepted. "He seemed anxious to do everything to give them safe transportation."

"That was his trouble," growled the President of the road. "His fool safety schemes came near bankrupting us. Whv, after we had dropped him we found that he had planned to go to the expense of equipping each one of our cars with a roof fender for a protection against airships."

An Englishman and a salesman occupied neighboring seats in the passenger train. The Englishman was not inclined to talk. Finally the salesman said: "Could you lend me a match?"

The Englishman took one out of his pocket and gingerly put it out on the window ledge.

"Oh, by the way, I've forgotten my tobacco, too!" said he.

"Oh, then," said the Englishman, "you won't need the match," as he picked it up and replaced it in his pocket.

A small boy in Yonkers recently became the proud possessor of a donkey—not so handsome or young as it might have been. However, it answered the purpose of its acquisition, which was to afford back ride.

One day the urchin was enjoying a ride when the minister of the parish met him.

"Hallo, sonny!" greeted the minister.

"Quite a rare beast you have there."

"Yes," replied the boy, "but I suppose there are a great many of 'em in the theological gardens."

Uncle Rufus, said the young colored man, "how would yo' hab lacked to be body servant to Geawge, Washington?"

"Go 'way boy," responded Uncle Rufus with a broad smile. "Go 'way 'f'm. Ef Ah had to be body servant, Ah'd rathor be one fish President Taft."

"Think y'd lak him best eh?"

"Yea, boy, en' think ob dem fat possums arrivin' at de White House almost ebery day."

"Pardon me," said the young man from New York, "but may I enquire what kind of dog that is?"

"Certainly," replied the Boston maid. "He is an expectorator."

"Indeed," rejoined the man. "I don't think I ever heard of the breed."

"No doubt," exclaimed the fair owner, coldly. "He is what you would call a Spitz."

A city man was visiting one of his country friends, and at the breakfast the host boasted much of the home production of most of the menu, saying:

"This milk was supplied by our own cow; these eggs by our own chickens," &c. When a cake of honey was brought in the visitor turned to his friend and remarked:

"How nice; I see that you also keep a bee."

A very deaf English lady visiting a small town in Scotland went to church armed with an ear trumpet. The elders had never seen one and armed it with suspicion and uneasiness. After a short consultation one of them went up to the lady just before the opening of the service and wagging his finger at her warningly, whispered: "One to-t, and ye're oot."

"Look here! demanded the irate purchaser. "What did you mean by bunking me into buying this horse?"

"What's the trouble with him, sir?" asked the dealer quietly.

"Whv, he runs every time he goes near an automobile. You said he had almost human intelligence, sir."

"H'm! If he runs every time he gets near an automobile I am sure of it, sir."

"Willie, what's your little brother crying about?"

"Cause I'm eating my cake and won't give him any."

"Is his own cake finished?"

"Yes, ma; and he cried while I was eating that, too!"

Standing by the entrance of a large estate in the suburbs of Glasgow are two huge dogs carved out of granite. An Englishman, going by in a hack, thought he would have some fun with his Scotch driver.

"How often, Jock, do they feed those two big dogs?"

"Whenever they bark, sir, was the straight faced reply."

One day a little boy of four was naughty and was threatened by his mother to be shut up in the hen-house as a punishment.

"Very well, mother," said the child, "you can shut me in the hen-house if you like, but one thing I can tell you, I won't lay you any eggs."

HIS FLIGHT.

"Here's a button off, and there is another. I have no clean collars, and my vest is full of greece spots. What would you advise me to do?"

"Why get married."

"Heaven on earth, I am married."

"You must sometimes find it irksome to be lionized wherever you go, don't you?" said the sweet young widow.

"Yes," replied the poet, "especially where they limit themselves to lionizing me when I'm as hungry as a wolf."

"I find it harder and harder to live within my means."

"That ought to be easy enough. What I'm trying to do is to live within the means my wife is endeavoring to make the public believe we have."

"I think a few bargain matinees might go well."

"At what prices?"

"Oh, 49 cents ought to be an attractive figure."

"Yes, he took her for a mate, but she was a skipper."

Italian Revenge

This is a story of Italian revenge. A vendor of plaster statuettes saw a chance for a sale in a well-dressed, bibulous man who was tacking down the street.

"You buy-a de statuette?" he asked, alluring holding out his choicest offering.

"Gar-ri-baldi—I sell-a him verra cheap."

"O, j'ell with Garibaldi," said the bibulous one, making a swipe with his arm that sent Garibaldi crashing.

As a comment the Italian regarded the fragments. Then he seized from his stocks a statuette of George Washington.

"Von t'ell-a with my Gar-ri-baldi?" he hissed. "So." He raised the immortal George high above his head and—crash! it flew into fragments alongside of the ill-fated Garibaldi. "Hal I to hell-a wid your George Wash! Ha, ha!"

Afraid of Ghosts

Many people are afraid of ghosts. Few people are afraid of germs. Yet the ghost is a fancy and the germ is a fact. If the germ could be magnified to a size equal to its terrors it would appear more terrible than any fire-breathing dragon. Germs can't be avoided. They are in the air we breathe, the water we drink.

The germ can only prosper when the condition of the system gives it free scope to establish itself and develop. When there is a deficiency of vital force, languor, restlessness, a sallow cheek, a hollow eye, when the appetite is poor and the sleep is broken, it is time to guard against the germ. You can fortify the body against all germs by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It increases the vital power, cleanses the system of clogging impurities, enriches the blood, puts the stomach and organs of digestion and nutrition in working condition, so such and organs do weak or tainted spots in which to breed. That the germ finds no weak or tainted spot in which to breed. "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no alcohol, whisky or habit-forming drugs. All its ingredients printed on its outside wrapper. It is not a secret nostrum but a medicine of known composition and with a record of 40 years of cures. Accept no substitute—there is nothing "just as good." Ask your neighbors.
