"I might say here that men are being laid off for the most trivial reasons, and many such cases were reported to us at our general meeting last night. For instance, I spoke to a motorman yesterday—a privilage I have always had-and as a result he was laid off. That seems like tyranny, doesn't it? LOVE IS EVER YOUNG

Rev. Henry McCook Weds at the Age

Philadelphia, July 1.-Rev. Henry C. McCook, 86 years old, the eminent Presbyterian clergyman and scientists, and Mrs. Eleanor D. S. Abbey were married on Tuesday. Dr. McCook belongs to the "fighting McCook" family. During the civil war he aided in organizing the Forty-first Regiment, Illinois volunteers, and served as its chaplain. During the war with Spain he visited Cuba as a general of the national relief commission and did splendid work in locating and marking the graves of American soldiers.

COMBINED AGES 126 YEARS. Jackson, Mich., July 1.—A couple, whose combined ages is 126 years dropped in on County Clerk Patch, and after whispering to him to not give their names away, politely pushed a new silver dollar under the wicket and said they would like a marriage license. They had of personal prop-erty one alarm clock, which exploded its tones in the office, when the old gent let the satchel, in which he carried it, fall to the floor. They gave occupation as "farmer" and "house-keeper," said they didn't know where they were to pass the night, but "guessed they'd get along all right if tt didn't rain."

THE BOSS SWIMMER

Is the Bullfrog-Most Expert in the World.

[From the Washington Star.] "A swimmer, no matter whether he is a beginner or an expert, cannot improve upon the advice of his greatgrandfather, which is to go to a brook or a swamp and study the manner and methods of the frog," remarked an ex-champion recently. "The most expert swimmers in the world are tyros compared to the lazlest bullfrogs. The difficulty with all swimmers is that they spoil the effect of the stroke by the recovery. When a frog starts off he draws his legs carefully and slewly up When a frog starts off he under him until he is in the position of a man sitting on his haunches. Then he suddenly gives a mighty-spring in the water, kicking his legs out, not behind him, but almost directly sidewise. After the kick his legs are slow-ly drawn together by his motion through the water until they hang out behind him in a perfectly rigid form. Every toe of his web feet is held out as straight as an arrow, and then nothing retards his motion through the water. He will lie in this position until every bit of the momentum is lost -that is, until he has gone as far as the force of the kick will send him through the water. Then again he slowly and carefully draws his legs in and repeats the performance. You will notice that in drawing the legs up to his body for a second kick the frog recedes a little. This is owing to the action of the upper leg on the water, and it corresponds exactly with the similar movement on the part of a man. The first thing a frog does is to give his body a good start through the water, and he holds himself in such a way that he gets the whole value of the stroke. A man starts out with just such a kick, but after he has gone two or three feet he will begin to swing his hands forward or draw up his legs in such fashion that they offset the whole value of his work. He stops his own body half way before the effect of the stroke had spent itself."

JOTTINGS FROM

In Wilson vs. Manes, the judgment of Chief Justice Armour was virtually upheld by the court of appeal Thursday. Mr. Manes was a deputy returning officer in a municipal election at Parkhill, and refused a ballot to the plaintiff, who was a duly qualified elector. Wilson recovered the statutory penalty of $400 against Manes, and was in addition awarded nominal damages at common law. The defendant appealed against the judgment, but the appeal failed. As regards the statutory penalty, the court reduced the common law damages to one shilling. BETTER THAN STATUTE LABOR. Municipal World, June 30: The council of the township of Euphemia, Lambton county, of which Mr. G. A. Annett is reeve, has introduced a new and somewhat novel method of keeping up and improving the roads. At the beginning of the year the pathmasters were consulted as to the advisability of commuting, at the rate of 25 cents per day, the money so collected to be used in operating a road grader in the divisions favorable. About half agreed to try the change, and so a grader was purchased and put to work. It cost $1 per hour to operate the machine. Some pathmasters say they have four times the usual amount of work done, while all seem to think that 25 cents expended in this way is worth more to the roads than 75 cents worked out under the statute labor system. The council passed bylaws that parties in those divisions shall commute at 25 cents, while in the others parties may commute, and the result is that nearly all say that they intend to commute rather than work, at 25 cents per day. The council are very willing for all to do so, but, of course, money so collected must be expended as the council may direct. The council think they have hit upon a splendid scheme for introducing a road grader, and it may go a long way towards the abolition of statute labor, when a better scheme still can be initiated.

A CATHERING OF FORCES.

Viavi Representatives From All Over the Dominion.

Plans Outlined for the Further Develop ment of the Great Cause.

The last four days of the week just passed have presented a spectacle of great interest to the city of Toronto. But this interest is not confined to Toronto alone; it spreads throughout all of Canada, the United States, Great Britain, Europe, Australia, South Africa, Asia, and the isles of the sea.

The occasion of this interest was the gathering together in the city of the Viavi representatives from all over Canada. Mrs. L. Stein, of London, was conspicuous among those present. Dr. Hartland Law, the founder of the celebrated Viavi treatment, was in Toronto at this time, and in addition to delivering a series of lectures on "The Troubles Peculiar to Women," was conducting this convention. The object of this meeting was for the workers to meet with Dr. Law, to learn more fully the best methods for advancing the "Cause of Humanity," in which they have enlisted their sympathies, and to more closely bind the ties of fraternity Fort Erie, July 1.-Yesterday's turf which unite them, one and all, together in this great work.

The Viavi work is an education for both women and men. It begins at the foundation of the world—the home, and it begins its work for the future by explaining the needs of today. As rats 2, Pearl 3. A mother should prove a blessing to her children, a companion for her husband, and a joy to her fireside. True happiness cannot exist where the nerve. of the one who should make the home mappy are racked by disease, or where the physical powers of the one who should care for her children are weakened by suffering. The ideas and instructions presented to this convention by Dr. Law have been listened to by enthusiastic representatives, and in many instances they have been moved to tears. A further address was given by Mrs. Egbert, of Cleveland, Ohio, touching the standard of Viavi work, and the bond of sympathy which bind these workers together. Mrs. Egbert controls a large section of territory in the United States, where she is doing a wonderful amount of good. A paper on the Viavi work was also presented by Mrs. H. A. Cooper, who is now managing a branch at Kingston, and also a paper from Miss Lilian F. Staples, who is watching over the management in Hamilton. Miss Martha Smith, of Toronto gave a most interesting address on the subject of "Principles of Success in the Viavi Work." Her two principal points were "Conviction" and "High Aim." Among others who took part at this convention were Edith Adams, of Halifax, Nova Scotia, and Mrs. D. W. Armstrong, of St. John, New Brunswick. Letters of greeting were received from Mr. Sharp, of Washington, D. C., and Mr. Marsh, of Chicago, proprietors of the eastern division of the United States; from Miss Glassford, who is watching over Viavi interests in Great Britain and in Europe; and also messages from California, and even far away Australia. All over the world, at this time, are these Viavi conventions being held. their object being the "Higher Physical Development of Woman." The convention here was managed by the Canadian branch of the Viavi Company. With such an enthusiastic, in-telligent band of workers as there is under the Viavi Company in this Dominion, there is no need to look further for the reason of the wonderful progress this cause has made. SPAIN'S DECADENCE

History of the Decline and Fall of a Once Great Empire.

It is the closing chapter in the history of the decline and fall of an empire whose flag was once mistress of the seas. The colonial history of Spain is the most thrilling narrative in annals of Europe. It was in the middle of the fifteenth century, and under the united sovereignties of Ferdinand and Isabella that Spain, which then com-prised only the two kingdoms of Castile and Aragon, expelled the Moors and gained possession of the whole Spanish Peninsula. During the year that the last Moorish city surrendered, Columbus sailed for America, and in the next century the founding of Spanish colonies began in South America, Central America, Mexico, Florida, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas and California. In the meantime Charles V. and Philip II. extended the Spanish dominion over Germany, the Netherlands, much of Austria and a considerable portion of Italy.

London, Saturday, July 1, 1899.

"Knowest Thou the Land?" This is the 32nd birthday of the Dominion. A natal day is always an ocion of retrospection, but in Canada's case the prospect is as pleasurable as the retrospect. Looking over the past we realize that Canada has had her critical periods-periods when orms of racial and religious pasaion shook the new fabric of Confederation-but happily these are composed-they are quiescent for the present, at least-and appeals to sectarian prejudice no longer find a response. The Canadian people were never so united and prosperous, and the national spirit and self-consciousness were never so strong as now. It is wonderful how Canada in the past few years has grown in stature. It is as if a new nation had been created. We have taken our place among the family of nations as a practically independent self-governing country, making our own commercial treaties and taking the initiative in matters of Canadian and Imperial concern . The prevailing confidence in the future is not merely a reflection of the present spell of good times, but is based on the belief that Canada is now gathering unto herself the elements of permanent material greatness. Population is flowing in; our "far-flung fenceless prairies" are filling up; foreign apital is coming this way at last; ur natural resources are being developed with unexampled rapidity, and great manufacturing industries are being founded on our timber and mineral wealth. Our immigrants are not the dregs of Europe, drifting into the cities and making slums, but settlers of agricultural pursuits, specially adapted to the conditions of life iz our great Northwest. To mold into true Canadian citizenship those of foreign blood and foreign tongue, is a duty and responsibility which will not be shirked. Altogether, Canada, on this her 32nd birthday, is entitled to the heartiest

A large section of them posed the war from the start. It spired enthusiasm at no time, even ong the staunch upholders of the lministration. They regarded it as necessary evil, forced on the United ites by the recalcitrance of the naes. But the American people, irramorality of the campaign, are bening impatient of its apparent fruitsness. The war in the Philippines has also a direct bearing on the internal politics of the United States. Unless American military fortunes improve, the fortunes of the Republican party will be imperiled. Mr. Bryan, who seems to be ready to jump into any political bandwagon which he thinks the crowd will follow, is making party capital out of the situation, and unless there is a change for the better, public opinion may swing around against the Administration.

The Yukon Debate.

The House of Commons, by a majority of 50, voted down Sir Hibbert Tupper's resolution on the Yukon question. The resolution in the first place was not properly formulated. It included a charge against the Minister of the Interior, which was proved to be unfounded, Sir Hibbert having misread an official return. The member for Pictou, however, refused to amend his indictment, holding that his demand for a royal commission of investigation was the essence of his resolution. The Government declined to accept it, pointing out that the results of the investigation conducted by Mr. Ogilvie in the Yukon were not yet before the House, and should be awaited before any action was taken. The charges made by Sir Hibbert Tupper are the same charges made by the coterie of miners in Dawson. The miners were given the fullest opportunity by Mr. Ogilvie to substantiate their accusations, but this they utterly failed to The Minister of the Interior gives the pledge that if there is the least ground for finding that there should be any fuller and more complete investigation of affairs in the Yukon, the Administration will provide for such

A Prosperous London Institution.

The report of the third annual meeting of the Northern Life Assurance Company appears in another column of this issue. This is a sturdy young London institution, and its remarkable progress is a cause for local pride. As will be seen the business of the Northern Life last year shows a great development, and is so thoroughly established in Ontario, that the company are branching into other provinces. The president, Hon. David Mills, in moving the adoption of the directors' report, pointed out that the management had been conservative, belieying that the best interests of the company and its stockholders would be served by a policy of caution, and by securing a desirable class of business. In pursuance of this policy, the utmost care had been taken in the selection of well-qualified men, so that little money has been thrown away on inferior agents, and many mistakes had been avoided.

The supplementary report of the capable manager, Mr. Milne, shows that the Northern Life, in the present year, is more than maintaining its record of The squabble in the Reichstag over the North German Canal Bill is instructive. The bill is mainly opposed by the agrarians on the plea that the canal would increase the facilities for importing foreign goods. This is consistent with protectionism. The other objection to the canal is that it will benefit one section of Germany at the expense of another by improving the communication between the east and the west. It is natural that one part of Germany should desire to be protected against another. The opponents of the bill are therefore acting with the utmost logic. But what shall be said of their intelligence?

It is understood that a petition signed by practically all the teachers of East, West and North Middlesex has been presented to the Minister of Education, strongly recommending the appointment of Mr. John Dearness to the principalship of the new Normal School in this city. Leading educationists and some of the teachers' associations outside of Middlesex have also made strong representations in Mr. Dearness' favor. Mr. Dearness, as is well known, is a man of splendid natural ability, and has a wide experience in matters pertaining to public schools. No official appointment has yet been made, but apparently, if reports be true, the Minister's choice is narrowed down to two candidates-Mr. Dearness and Mr. Merchant. Both are popular with the public and the teaching pro-

It will undoubtedly be found, after a year or two's trial, that a 2 cent rate for letters will produce as large a revenue as the former 3 cent rate. London, July 1.-The paramount thought among the crowds which thronged the enclosures at the review of troops at Aldershot Monday, judging from the frequent references to the subject, was one of admiration for the wonderful powers of endurance displayed by Queen Victoria, enabling her to bear the fatigue such an afternoon necessarily inflicts on any one of such an advanced age. The heat was intense, the glare of the sun was blinding, the dust was thick and the troops occupied two hours in passing the saluting point. Yet in spite of the fact that her majesty had traveled by train from Windsor, and had been driven from Farnborough to Laffans Plain, she appeared to enjoy the scene from first to last, though many young and strong persons left the ground

THE LADIES' DOG SHOW. While the Prince of Wales and the masculine members of society have been enjoying the racing at Newmarket, the Princess of Wales and the ladies generally had their sporting tastes gratified by the magnificent dog show of the Ladies' Kennel Association at the Bottanic Gardens, at which about 2,000 dogs were on view, a truly remarkable record, when it is realized that the entries were confined to canines owned by ladies. The Princess of Wales was a big prize winner with Borzois collies and bassets. Viscountess Deerhurst was also a prize winner. Some historic dogs are on view, including "Furthest North," the sole survivor of Lieut. Peary's pack in his Greenland expedition.

ROYALTY ON THE MOVE. The Duke and Duchess of Connaught are to arrive in Dublin Sunday. They will be the guests of Lord and Lady Roberts of Kandahar at Kilmainham. Their visit is in the nature of a prospecting tour, as now that the duke has definitely renounced his claims to the Gotha succession, he is certain to succeed Lord Roberts as commander of the forces in Ireland, unless unexpected state difficulties supervene. The appointment would be most popular.

The Prince of Wales has decided to take the waters at Marienbad instead of going to Hamburg, unless the presence of the Duke of Orleans at Marienbad determines a change of plans. Both Queen Victoria and the Prince of Wales dislike the Duke of Orleans, and the latter is much annoyed and mortified at being utterly ignored at court. The Duke and Duchess of Orleans have gone to Austria. They had desired to stay at Brussels and Turin previously, but received strong hints from King Leopold and King Humbert that their presence was not desirable. fact is that the absurd and elaborate fuss a handful of the duke's followers persist in making when he is in Brussels or Turin has caused a great deal of trouble to the respective govern-

IN SILENCE

Reception of Capt. Dreyfus at Rennes -No Demonstration.

Rennes, France, July 1.—Captain Dreyfus landed at Quiberon and was conveyed by train to Bruz, twelve kilometres from Rennes. There he entered a landau, accompanied by chief of the detectives, and was driven to Rennes, where 25 gendarmes waited his entrance into the town. Ten of the gendarmes entered a wagon and fol-lowed the carriage. The others followed on foot. The party arrived at the prison without incident. A large crowd assembled and witnessed the arrival in silence and without manifesta-

TAMMANY TIGERS

In a Fierce Fight-Law To Be Invoked in the Croker-Sheehan Contest.

New York, July 1.-The Herald says: District Attorney Gardiner, the grand jury, and, if necessary, Gov. Roosevelt, will be asked to interfere in the fight now going on in Tammany Hall between the supporters of Richard Croker and those of John C. Sheehan.

It is the intention of Mr. Sheehan and his friends to ask the grand jury to find indictments against several men high in Tammany councils on the ground that they have violated the Corrupt Practice Act by intimidating and threatening Tainmany officehold-

The fight between the Croker and Sheehan forces has become so bitter that the legal machinery of the county may be invoked to see that both sides have fair play. It is openly asserted by Sheehan's friends that they are being threatened with removal from office unless they join in the effort to depose him as Tammany leader in the ninth assembly district. The same methods, it is added, are being resorted to by the Croker men in other districts where the fight is on.

The Redistribution Fight Will Open at Ottawa.

Sir Charles Tupper Looking Forward to Prorogation - The Condition of the Doukhobors.

Ottawa, July 1-The house spent the greater part of yesterday's session dis-cussing the question of the prevention of tuberculosis in human beings and animals. At night the Yukon supplementary estimates were passed, sub-ject to further discussion. Several items were passed within a minute or two of the close of the fiscal year, and the house adjourned on the stroke of midnight. The redistribution bill will be discussed on Monday, as the government has taken private members' day and may soon commence morning sessions. TALKING OF PROROGATION. Sir Wilfrid Laurier at the opening of the house moved that government business have preference on Mondays for the remainder of the session.

Sir Charles Tupper said he was not sorry to see this motion passed, as a stage of the session had been reached when everyone was very anxious to get through the business of the house rapidly as possible. It had been stated in the press that he had an engagement in London on August 3, but this was news to him, and he hoped to have pleasure of staying at the house until prorogation.

Mr. Britton asked the premier if he could give any idea when the session would close.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier, for the information of the house, stated that the government had no new business to introduce other than that which had been foreshadowed—the supplementary estimates for next year, the cable resolution and the senate resolution, of which notice had been given. If it met the convenience of the house, the propriety of meeting at 11 o'clock in the morning shortly might be contained to the house of the comsidered, as the business of the committee was pretty well advanced.

Mr. Davin protested that private members' day should not be taken away so soon. Sir Hibbert Tupper inquired as to the intention of the government with regard to introducing legislation respecting Chinese immigration. The premier replied that he might be able to make an announcement on

CONDITION OF THE DOUKHOBORS In the course of the tuberculosis report Mr. Fisher regretted that Sproule had seen fit to say that the Doukhobors were rotten with tuberculosis, and that their coming into Can ada was a menace to the public health. Dr. Sproule said the authority for his statement referring to the Doukhobors was an article in a monthly magazine, which said that the Doukhobors had a death rate from tuberculosis of one in

Mr. Fisher pointed out that that was a death rate of two-tenths of 1 per cent only, whereas the death rate from the same disease in Canada was much higher than that. According to the mighty hunter and catch Hons with a figures just given by Dr. Sproule, the Doukhobors were one of the most healthy people in the world, instead of being rotten with the disease.

Dr. Roddick said that the Doukho-bors were not as badly diseased as Dr. Sproule thought. Dr. Sproule denied that he had said the Doukhobors were rotten with tu-Mr. Fisher was glad Dr. Sproule withdrew the expression. Dr. Sproule said he withdrew nothing; he had not used the expression. Mr. Archibald Cameron (Kent)-The honorable gentleman did say it; I heard

Dr. Sproule reiterated his denial. Continuing, Mr. Fisher quoted Dr. Montizambert, chief quarantine officer, who reported that he had never met a more healthy or better class of immigrants than the Doukhobors.

Mr. Clancey contended that the disease could not be stamped out in Canada so long as the farmers were allowed to keep animals known to be diseased, nominally in quarantine, to the danger of the other stock and the members of the farmer's family well. He protested against a halfhearted policy in this matter, and pointed to the experience in countries as an argument for more thorough and effective measures in Canada. The system adopted promoted rather than minimized the growth of the disease.

> FEMININE FINESSE. [Detroit Journal.]

She did not poison her husband, although he was 73 years old, while she She was far too clever for that.

Instead she kissed his brow, and asked him would he not, for her sake, try to live to be a hundred. Of course, he could not refuse.

The effort to live to be 100 was, at his advanced age, necessarily fatal; and the young wife came at once into all his property.

ITCHING PILES

A Farmer Tells How He Was Cured by Using

Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. F. G. Harding, a retired farmer, living at Nilestown, Middlesex county, states: "I had been troubled with itching, bleeding piles for about five years, and intense agony at times from the dreadful itching. Though I tried almost everything I could get no relief. Part of one box of Dr. Chase's Ointment has cured me, and I am recommending it to all that are troubled with the same torturing disease." Such evidence comes from all parts of the world to justify the claim that Dr. Chase's Ointment is an absolute cure for piles. For chafing and all itching skin diseases this celebrated Ointment stands without a rival. It is guaranteed to cure any case of piles. 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or EDMANSON, BATES & Co., Toronto.

LONDON BOYS AT CAMP NIAGARA

North Winnipeg.

Major-General Hutton Praises Sixth Field Battery-Camp Notes,

Camp Niagara-on-the-Lake, June 29. -[Special.]—The major-general in command of the Canadian forces paid his official visit to Niagara Camp on Tuesday, 26th inst., and first inspected the lines, beginning with the Artillery Brigade, and we were pleased to hear of special praise for the good condition of our lines, the Sixth Field Battery, of London, standing second to none in this respect-in fact, they were complimented as being the cleanest and most orderly battery along the line, while their field maneuvers were only excelled by the regulars from "A" School, King-Special mention was made of the officers' reports, and the regular commercial enterprise in which the routine business in connection with the efficient orderly clerkship was conducted. The major-general is very much pleased with Niagara Camp, and the Sixth Field Battery has profited well by the example set in the encamp-ment previously held in London, and by the good conduct of "A" Battery, Kingston, who are encamped on our right flank.

The London boys are very jubilant over their success in proving themselves proficient in the eyes of the major-general. They celebrated the occasion by holding a mammoth campfire last evening, when an amusement committee, with Lieut. J. L. Fitzgerald as chairman, entertained its own members and many from the neighboring batteries and battalions to a concert, proclaimed by all to be the best held in camp so far.

CAMP NOTES.

Lieut. Fitzgerald is the most popular officer in the First Brigade.

Sergt.-Instructor George Henderson, the crack instructor of "A" Battery, Kingston, is attached as our drill instructor, and the fine showing made by the Sixth is largely due to his untiring efforts for the welfare of the battery. He is a great favorite with master-Sergt. Irvine are kept very busy performing their respective duties. We had an invitation to go to Chat ham with the Twenty-fifth Battalion for the First of July, but could not make satisfactory arrangements.

Sergt. T. Mackintosh has charge of the orderly room, and is also captain of the brigade baseball team. Mr. Fred Cooper, of Boston, formerly of London, was one of our guests last Sunday. A great many Americans came over to spend the day in camp. The Queen's Own, Royal Grenadiers and Forty-eighth Highlanders, of Toalong, also the Thirteenth, of Hamilton, and Thirty-eighth (Dufferin Rifles) arrive this evening, and take part in the sham battle at Queenston row. The Forty-eighth Highlanders' Band will be entertained by our offi-

THE ARRIVAL OF DREYFUS

Driven From the Railway to Prison at Breakneck Speed.

Pathetic Meeting Between the Prisoner and His Wife.

Rennes, July 1.-Dreyfus, on arrival here, appeared to be in good health. His hair is turning gray, but he held himself very erect.

The clock was striking 6 when the crowd, which had been waiting since midnight around the prison, the people beginning to think themselves the victims of a practical joke, saw a landau surrounded by gendarmes beyond the station. Then they all cried with one voice:

"THERE HE IS!"

At this cry the police started off to meet the carriage, and suddenly the troops and mounted gendarmes hurried madly forward, yelling and shouting as if accompanying a fire engine instead of escorting a prisoner. The carriage was driven so fast that it covered the distance in a few minutes, passing the watchers like a flash. It was a race for the prison gates between the gendarmes with the captive and the spectators. The gates then opened suddenly, and about twenty gendamnes rushed out and barred the street, pressing back the crowd with rifle-stocks. The transformation from tranquility to a wild scene of gesticulation aimost defies description. The suddenness of the movement stupefied everybody as much as it did the prisoner, whose face showed quickly-passing carriage. But beyond the exclamations of surprise and curiosity, there were no cries of any

Preceded by his guards, Dreyfus entered the prison, and was formally consigned to the care of the governor. MEETING OF HUSBAND AND WIFE

The governor of the prison sent Madame Dreyfus the news of the arrival of her husband, and she immediately went to the governor and asked permission to see the prisoner. Leave being granted, the faithful wife entered the prison almost unobserved, and was conducted to cell No. 830, accompanied by Madame Havea. The meeting between the long-parted husband and wife can better be imagined than described.

Up to noon there has been no sign of a public demonstration.

The Situation to Date.

There are few vassals of the Company in the present City Council. There will probably be fewer in the next.

The position of Mr. Everett, the controlling holder of the London Street Railway stock, is somewhat that of an Irish absentee landlord, draining every dollar he can from an estate, to be spent abroad. All London gets out of the franchise is the amount men receive in wages; hence it is clearly the interest of the city that the men should receive not only good treatment but good wages.

The Company, through their solicitor, are again insidious in endeavor to load up public opinion against organized labor. Driven from the cutand-dried interview and the anonymous letter methods, the method now appears to be the preparation, for publication in connection with the city council committee, of well-prepared statements, designed to make the worse appear the better cause. This was shown by the Company yesterday in their reluctance to proceed until their special press representative could be telephoned for.

The point upon which the Company, through its solicitor, have most descanted of late, is the impossibility of Mr. Everett being so unfeeling as to give back their jobs to the old hands. at the expense of the temporary men who replaced them. Is anybody likely to be taken in by these belated professions of tenderheartedness from a corporation that reduced the wages of the regular men last autumn, and would probably sacrifice half the city without compunction for an extra dollar of profit? When a corporation solicitor drops into the weepy, in the course of a carefully prepared professional address, at so much per weep, itemized, buncombe can hardly

The Company may say they will continue, at all hazards, to give preference to the temporary non-union men, over their old men whose places the former were content to take. But the vast mass of the people of London take a different view, and show it by refusing to ride. They feel the Company are themselves chiefly to blame for the significant record of two strikes in less than a year. The public believe the present situation the outcome of an attempt on the part of the Company and its instruments, to destroy, for selfish reasons, the unity

The Advertiser believes it speaks in the interests alike of the Company and of the men's Association when it advises that the men should be reinstated, organized labor frankly recognized, and arrangements made as to the future for the protection of each side and interest by arbitration. The Company should pause before making the mistake of t_king up an impossible position, and leaving themselves no door of withdrawal.

MAKES A CHANGE

Mr. Blair's Amendment to the Intercolonial-Grand Trunk Agreement.

Ottawa, July 1.-Last night it was decided by the minister of railways that an important change should be made in the Intercolonial-Grand Trunk railway agreement. The alteration in question will do something, if the phrase be allowable, to make an already perfect compact more perfect. In place of clause 40, which provides that the freight traffic transfer clause shall remain in force for 99 years, the agreement is to be so amended as to give the minister of railways power at time terminate the freight transfer agreement, upon giving the Grand Trunk people one year's notice. The Grand Trunk will have no option in the matter, and on their part will be powerless to initiate any change.

CONFERENCES

> A Promising Proposal From the Men Proves Fruitless, as the Company Will Make No Concession-Dominion Day Celebration at Queen's Park-Strike Notes.

Conferences of the strike committee with the street railway company and the men again took place at the city hall this morning. At the outset there seemed to be bright prospects for a speedy settlement of the strike. The strikers had intimated through Chairman Parnell that if the company would meet them on the question of the return of all the men they would see what could be done about waiving the recognition of the union as set forth in their proposed agreement. This understanding was arrived at during a meeting with the men. While the a meeting with the men. While the committee presented this proposition to the company, the men's committee was in readiness to be called at any time, in case the company were at all conciliatory. But there was no reason for calling them. Mutual ground was not touched. The company refused posi-tively to do any better than the offer made yesterday, which was as follows: "1. The company are prepared to take back about 40 per cent of the men now on strike, in addition to the 23 old employes now in their employ, or about 30 more men.

"2. The company have no objection to any man in their employ belonging to a union. "3. The company will not consent to any man in their employ being compelled to join a union. "4. The company will agree to submit all grievances, past, present or future to a board of arbitrators, to be appointed under the arbitration act of the local legislature. "5. The company consider the wages now paid are as large as they can afford to pay, but will agree that all men who shall be in the employ of the company at the close of this strike, including those who are taken back, shall be paid the uniform wage of 151/2 cents per hour, without grading or sliding scale. "6 The company are willing to give where vacancies occur. "7. The company agree to give to the corporation of the city of London for the due fulfillment of the above proposition, an agreement to the above ef-

the preference to their late employes

When the men's committee was met subsequently they said there was no-thing to discuss, if that was all the company had to say. They could not

B. Cox, the president of the board of trade, and the president of the Trades and Labor Council.

When Chairman Parnell presented the men's latest proposition to the company, Mr. Hellmuth said emphatically that the company would not displace any of the new men. Ald. Parnell appreciated the company's position and considered fully what they said about their right to be loyal to the present employes. he said, "it would be hard to make the public believe that 100 men placed their families in want without cause. of the opinion there must have been a cause.

Mr. W. M. Spencer, one of the direc tors, did not see how in common sense they could displace for those who became strikers those who became workers.

The new men were spoken of highly by the directors. Ald. Wilkey wanted to know if their characters had been investigated, and Mr. Smallman replied that if the aldermen knew anything against them it was their duty as representatives of the citizens to point it out. The aldermen continued smiling, and the subject was changed. A straight question was put to Mr. Smallman by Chairman Parnell, as follows: "Suppose those men as a body could demonstrate to a board of arbitrators that there was sufficient cause for them going out, would you take them all back?"

Mr. Smallman replied that the company on no condition would displace the present employes; also that an offer had been made by the company to arbitrate all individual grievances. Ald. Parnell-Yes, individual grievances. You persist in dealing with them individually, and we want you to deal with them collectively. Demonstrate by arbitration there no just cause for the strike, and your position will be stronger. The company's representatives reiterated their statement about not being able to displace any new men, and that the strikers brought their present position upon themselves. Ald. Parnell-But you shouldn't have given a first cause. The discussion was kept along the line of arbitration for some time. The chairman thought the strike would be justified if it were shown by arbitration that the management had been of such an arbitrary character that the men could not bear with it. Mr. Hellmuth said: "No; under the first agreement there should have been an appeal to the board of directors if an employe was dissatisfied with the management." It was elicited that one case had been before the management, and six or seven appeals had been made, six or seven days before the strike. From the time the appeals were made until a strike, a meeting of the board was not held, said Mr. Carr.

At the meeting with the men later, the committee was informed that seven or eight appeals had been made on April 20, and that a meeting of the board had been held, but the appeals were not heard. Mr. Carr, in summing up the company's position, said: "The men will have, through you, a definite proposition. I have delayed engaging men all week. I was to see the applicants this afternoon, but will now put them off until Tuesday morning. The door will be left open for the strikers until Monday night."

The company can do it, if they want to, as a means of settling a strike. If the public will not ride on the cars so long as the present men are taking the places of the old men, why should the company act so unbusinesslike as to keep them on? But the company, as they could well afford, should deal generously with the temporary men, who should get full wages up to Saturday night, and a fair sum in pocket besides. It is nonsense to say the company cannot do this if they want to." W. D. Mahon, president of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes, left the city at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Jessie did not try to analyze the impulse that bade her announce the relation she bore to Roy Third Annual Meeting of This at the very time when her doubts of him were at their height. Perhaps she felt the need of a safeguard for herself, or her conscience may have rebuked her that she had not defended himright or wrong—when attacked; or the suspicion of his unworthiness stimulated her to a strained generosity, a resolve to leave undone no part of the duty she owed while she was under contract to him. Given this lever unappeased distrust in and latent resentment towards him, to whom her allegiance was due, and a less adroit diplomat than Orrin Wyllys might have so weakened the defenses of her love and constancy as to make her question whether surrender were not unavoidable-even desirable. She was tired, poor child, dismayed that her labor in "deep mid-ocean" was so tedious and severe, longing for rest in whatever port her worn heart might make. "I shall be tamed by the time you come home," she said, between tears and smiles, to Roy, at their parting, "Quite tame and old!"

She had swung her hat upon her arm, and pushing back her hair with the palms that supported her fore-head, that the wind from the water might cool her beating temples, she rested her listless weight upon the frail railing. The woven twigs, once supple, were dry and rotten under the bark, and swayed outward with a sharp crack-a warning that came too late to save her. She caught, in falling, at the shattered panels left standing, and dragged only a handful of broken sticks with her into the creek. Coming to the surface after the plunge, she threw her grasping, struggling hands widely abroad, succeeded in seizing one of the upright supports of the bridge, and clung to it. Her head and shoulders were out of water. She was not actually drowning. In the strength imparted by this consciousness, she drew a long breath, and called for help.

A faint echo came back from the hills. The rest of the shout was lost in the spreading meadows or overpowered by the commingled sounds that were the voice of the early autumn day. She heard them more distinctly than when she had stood upon the bridge; the beat of the mill wheel, the rattle is $37. and rumble of the farm wagons, even the tread of the teams upon the oaken flooring; the now distant whistle of the quail, and, close beside her, the lapping of the creek among the sedges. She weighed her chances of speedy release from her unpleasant and dangerous situation before she raised another outcry. The stream was the feeder of the mill pond, and was made deeper and more sluggish by the dam, than half a mile farther down. She remembered to have heard that the depth just under the bridge was about feet. It might as well be a hundred if she were to relinquish her hold. She could do nothing but cling and wait until her calls should bring rescue or some chance passenger espy her. This was an unfrequented byway, and it might many hours before assistance came to her in the latter form. As to the other, the parsonage was the nearest dwelling. The mill was no farther off, but the united shriek of twenty drowning persons could not be heard above clatter of the machinery. Patsey was alone in the kitchen, her whole soul in her semi-weekly baking, and deaf to all outdoor noises excepting those from the poultry yard. There was no one else in the house unless Orrin had arrived. Jessie believed that she tasted the bitterness of death, as she imagined him, expectant of her coming, yet thoughtless of evil as the reason of her delay, taking a few restless turns upon the portico; then, wandering into the parlor, and standing, as he often did for several minutes together, gazing at the picture of the girl at the wishing well; opening the piano and running over some remembered air, or improvising dreamy, wistful strains, with absent thoughts, and eyes fixed upon vacancy. [To be Continued.]

Grand Lodge Decides to Drop the Provision for Mileage. Toronto, July 1 .- At yesterday's session of the grand lodge of Canada of the I. O. G. T., the question of annexing the two counties of Pontiac and Wright in Quebec to the grand lodge Canada (Ontario) was discussed Grand Chief Templar Lambly, of Quebec, spoke favorably on the proposition, and the district executive of Ottawa was requested to memorialize the executive of the grand lodge of Ontario and Quebec and to arrange for a settlement of the matter. The grand lodge decided, on the recommendation of the finance committee, to cease paying mileage to delegates to the grand lodge. The allowance for mileage has been made to delegates for several sessions, but from now on no remuneration will be given. Another important change made as a result of the discussion on this report was the reduction of the per capita tax from twelve cents to ten cents per quarter. It was de-cided to hold the next meeting at Ottawa. THE SUPREME LODGE. At the supreme lodge of the I. O. G. T., yesterday morning, it was decided that the method of electing grand lodge officers should be left to the various grand lodges. Bro. G. F. Cottrill presented a minority report from the committee on constitutions. This report calls for the division of the order into seven sectional bodies, namely: 1. United States. 2. Canada. 3. British Isles. 4. Australia. 5. South Africa. 6. Scandinavia. 7. German-speaking nations, with a supreme body limited in membership, made up of representatives from the national bodies. The matter evoked much discussion.

Satisfactory Report From the Directors-The President's Remarks.

The third annual meeting of the Northern Life Assurance Company of Canada was held in their offices, London, Ont., on Monday, the 19th day of June, 1899.

The President, Hon. David Mills, Minister of Justice, occupied the chair,

The following shareholders were present: Hon. David Mills, President; E. Jones Parke, Q.C., First Vice-President; M. Wilson, Q.C., N. H. Stevens, Esq., Chatham; Robert Ferguson, M. P.P., Thamesville; W. S. Calvert, M.P., Napier; C. Jenkins, Esq., Petrolia; John Durand, Esq., Dorchester; F. B. Leys, M.P.P.; J. D. Balfour, Esq., Medical Director, and Messrs. T. H. Purdom, Francis Love, G. B. Harris, John Ferguson, N. Mills, Alex. Purdom, E. D. Parke, E. Paul, R. Shaw-Wood, A. Robinson, S. Weldon, Drs. Cl. T. Campbell, Weekes and Graham, of London.

The Secretary read a letter from Thomas Long, Esq., Second Vice-President, regretting his inability on account of other business engagements to

At the request of the President the Manager, Mr. Milne, read the following report of the Directors:

To the Shareholders of the Northern Life Assurance Company of Canada: The Directors beg to submit their second annual report of the affairs of the Company, together with the duly audited balance sheet.

The result of the year's business shows a large percentage of progress. It will be seen that the insurance in force at the end of 1898 exceeded that of 1897 by about 150 per cent. At the end of 1898 the amount of the policies in force was $879,950, and the amount written $1,026,450, of which $665,950 was written during the year 1898.

The business transacted has been secured in the Province of Ontario, and the energies of the management have been directed towards securing as thorough an organization of the Province as can be effected. It is now intended to extend the business to other Provinces, and negotiations are in progress with that end in view. General agencies have been established in the Provinces of Manitoba and British Columbia, which promise this Company a fair share of the business of these Provinces.

There are several facts worth noting in connection with the business of this Company which indicate that its management has continued to be cautious and progressive. The average risk is less than $1,200, and the average age of policyholders less than 30 years. More than half of the policies issued are on the Twenty Payment Life Plan, with the majority of the balance on the Ordinary Life and Endowment Plans. The average premium per 1,000

It is satisfactory to note, too, that no deaths have occurred among the Company's policyholders prior to the end of The assets of the Company are all in cash, or securities readily convertible into cash. The capital stock of the Company is now ample for all its requirements. The m of $58,900 was voluntarily paid in by shareholders during the year, on account of stock subscribed for, which makes the paid-up capital on the 31st day of December last amount to the sum of $199,825. The Directors anticipate a steady increase of desirable business, the result for the expired portion of this year justifying such anticipation, the insurance written during that portion of the year being 43 per cent in excess of the insurance written during the same portion of last year, and should the business continue to increase in this Province, the Company will, when that secured in other Provinces is added, have as large a volume of business as is desirable.

The Directors bear testimony to the efficiency of the Manager, Mr. John Milne, and to the valuable assistance in the field of Mr. W. E. Findlay, the Superintendent of Agencies, The Manager and the Superintendent of Agencies have worked with steady perseverance, securing good agents and establishing the Comparty in public confidence.

Respectfully submitted, on behalf of

DAVID MILLS,

The President said that the policy adopted by the Directors in the management of the Company had been conservative. They had proceeded with great care, so as to avoid mistakes. It had not endeavored to do a large business, as they believed that the best interests of the Company and its stockholders would be served by a policy of caution, and by securing a business that was desirable. It was better to do a safe business at the outset, than a large one. The permanency and security of the company was now fairly established, and the aim of the Directors and the Executive Committee was to take care that every step taken was one favorable to the safety and permanency of the institu-tion. He believed that the course which had been taken was one which would enable them to reach a dividend-paying period earlier than if they had en-deavoted to push their business more energetically at a large expense. He was confident that had this been done at the outset, they would necessarily have trade many mistakes. They would have leen compelled to employ agents of whose fitness they could know nothing. As it is, they have been able to secure some well qualified men who have proved successful in securing business, and thus by a tentative proceeding, the Company has thrown proceeding, the Company has thrown away but little money upon persons unused to the business of insurance, and not naturally well fitted for the work. As the staff increases in humbers and efficiency, the business can be each yetr more energetically pushed. He had haplicit confidence in the future Hazel Wichman, Edgar Westby. Reof the Company. They had but to continue this line of policy, and the foundations which had been laid must at an early day lead to that condition of success to which he thought they might confidently look forward. He moved the adoption of the report.

Mr. Parke, First Vice-President, seconded the adoption of the report.

onded the adoption of the report. The Manager also presented a sup-plementary report of the business during the first five months of this year, comparing it with the business during the same period of last year. This report shows that the volume of business has increased over 43 per cent. The cash income has more than doubled, while the expenses have increased only about 19 per cent.

Addresses commenting upon the satisfactory condition of the affairs of the Company were made by Messrs. Wilson, Stevens, Purdom, Leys, Balfour and Jenkins, and all were satisfied with the hopeful outlook for the future. The report was unanimously adopt-

The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. A. Graham, B.A. The bride, who looked charming, was attired in an ivory duchesse satin gown, looped with lilies of the valley in chiffon, and carried a shower bouquet of white bridal roses. The bride wore no ornaments. except a sunburst of pearls, which fastened her bridal veil, and was the gift of the groom. The bridesmaid was her sister Maude, who wore a dress of Nile green silk, and carried a bouquet of pink carnations, while her sister Leona was flower girl, and wore a white muslin frock with pink sash. The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was an opal ring and to the flower girl a gold bracelet. The groom was supported by Dr. MacVannel, of New York. BARON'S EAR RED ft Was Painted That Color by Sargent the Painter.

'A portrait painter can't afford to be entirely independent unless he has a remendous vogue," remarked an artist who has spent a number of years in study abroad. "When I first went to Paris, Sargent, who is probably the greatest master in his special field that America has ever produced, was just beginning to attract attention. He had painted a portrait of his preceptor, Durow, that was greatly applauded, and the stir it created led to his getting a commission from the Baron Rothschild. It was his first big job, but he went about it with exactly the same nonchalance that characterizes him at present. During the last sitting. when the picture was receiving its finishing touches, it chanced that one of the baron's ears became unusually red. circumstance probably due to the beat of the room. Sargent seized on it at once as a good bit of color, and made the painted ear reader, if thing, than the original. When Rothschild inspected the portrait he was greatly pleased. 'But of course,' said, 'you will tone down that left ear.' 'Oh, no,' replied the painter, promptly, I think I shall leave it just as it is. rather like that red.' The banker was astonished and very angry, and while he paid for the canvas, he never hung Of course the incident raised a laugh, and the artist's obstinacy was admired in Bohemia, but it really did Sargent a great deal of harm, and was one of the things that eventually determined him to move to London."-New Orleans Times-Democrat.

LITERARY STORMS

In the United States-How the Waves Deflected Each Other.

The way in which various literary storm waves contend and deflect each other is a matter worthy of brief consideration, says a writer in Ainslee's for July. The "Trilby" wave started from New York in 1895, and moved westward with incredible rapidity. In the meantime, Boston, Hartford, New Haven and Worcester, Mass., were devoted to charades. While passing Louisville the "Trilby" wave was deflected toward the north by a strong local disturbance caused by the works of Mr. James Lane Allen. But just as it had swept the whole country and was beginning to eddy down into New England, the "Bonnie Briar Bush" and 'Manxman' waves started abreast from New York and crowded it into the Pacific. In '96 a Bangs wave, which lasted about two months, was caused by the publication of "A House-Boat on the Styx." It was followed rapidly by "The Red Badge of Courage" wave and then by the waves of "A Lady of Quality." These waves chased one another across the continent and dropped off the map in the vicinity of Portland, Ore. Other brief waves were caused by Parker's "Seats of the Mighty" and Stimson's "King Noan-ett," but in the end the Scotch authors prevailed, and the thought waves of Maclaren, Barrie and Crockett enveloped the land. For some time afterwards the prevalence of Scotch authors (and particularly of Maclaren) was so notable that I think it would simplify matters if it were considered as a condition rather than as a disturbance. The character of Scotch work is such that I think its influence on the intellectual atmosphere is very similar to that of humidity in the physical. A DAINTY DISH

Diplomatic Negotiations - Chairman Parnell Says the Trouble Would Be Over if the Street Railway Company Would Open Its Heart.

The strike committee kept at work late and early yesterday. Another conference with Messrs. Carr, Brodrick and Hellmuth, representing the directors, was held in the afternoon. Chairman Parnell spoke of the two meetings held with the men since the last meeting with the directors. What appeared to be the bone of contention between the men and company was the recognition of the union, and the committee had presented a proposition which it was thought might cover the ground, he said. The proposition was read, and the concessions which the men were willing to make set forth. The speaker thought that if the company would take all the men back an agreement might be arrived at. Mr. Hellmuth said the directors present wouldn't care to make any agreement with the committee without consulting the other directors. There were, in his opinion, but two crucial points—the recognition of the union and the reinstating of all the men. As to these, he felt he could speak positively for the absent directors as well as for those present. They would not agree that every man must join a While they had no objection to their employes belonging to a union they would not insist on any one them joining any association. With regard to the other point, he said, it would be impossible to take back all the men. "It would be acting as curs if the company turned out those who had been loyal to them, to make room for those who struck," he said. 'It would be an act most despicable. Not one of you gentlemen here would act in that way, or if you did would despice yourself for it. I know the feeling of the president on that matter within the last day, and it is, that he will not turn them out without cause." The other questions, Mr. Hellmuth thought, were minor.

Ald. Rumball—You think that if you can come together on these two points the rest will be easy. "That's it, exactly. Ald. Wilkey-How do you know the 23 of your present employes who were with you before the strike will not join the union? Mr. Hellmuth said they had told the management so.

Ald. Wilkey—You have no agreement with them?

Mr. Hellmuth-No. Absolutely no. To the chairman, Mr. Hellmuth said that while the company had no objection to their employes belonging to an association, they would not submit to any forcing. They would not allow non-union cars to be marked. He thought the strikers should act liberally as the company was willing to do, and undertake to abstain from influencing non-union men, in an un-due way, to join the union. A boy-cott, he considered an undue influence. Ald. Parnell-How far are you prepared to go in reinstating the strikers?

Give us your utmost limit.

Mr. Hellmuth—We will give them every vacancy there is at present, the ranks to be filled up completely. Then, as vacancies occur, we will give them the preference over all others. By employing all the men the company could possibly use, we could take about 40 per cent-that is, from 25 to 30 menand in the ordinary course of events, the percentage could be increased 5 or per cent in the near future. LONG HAIR would be at the expense of the men we have working for us. Mr. Carr-Twenty-three of our present employes were working for us before the last strike. Ald. Rumball-Were they at the foot of the list?

Mr. Carr-Some were and some were Ald. Parnell-Let them all take their old places. You can't get a better lot of employes than your old men. We've all made mistakes in our time. I'm not admitting that mistakes have been made, but for the purpose of getting a settlement you should do this. If you want to be vindictive, you're going the right way about it. The company here should do as well or better than was done in Cleveland. Mr. Hellmuth-We offer better. There after only 12 days they took back 80 per cent. We offer after five weeks to take back 40 per cent. If this had come about in the first week it would have been different.

Ald.Rumball commented on the large spare list the company had before the strike, and Mr. Carr stated that during the past six months the men had been coming to work and staying away as they pleased. One morning last winter, with six spare men at work, we had to send out to get more men to take the cars out. Ald. Wilkey thought that might be attributed to sickness. Those were the days of the grip. The chairman made another appeal to the company, and Mr. Brodrick replied that he couldn't see how a man with any heart at all could say to 70 men who came in stood the brunt of the fight, and run the chance of being stoned, "Get out."

Ald. Rumball-Would you take back 75 per cent? The question of how many men should now be considered on strike arose. Mr. Carr said 87 men went out and that 13 have other jobs. The only thing they could do would be to put them on the spare list, and that would be unsatisfactory, he said.

THE MEN HOLD OUT. Later the aldermen met a large committee of the strikers, and with olosed doors, discussed the situation for about two hours. The men took the position firmly that they could not waive the recognition of the union, as contained in the amended clause 2 of their proposed agreement. They would insist on every employe becoming a member of the union after 30 days in the company's employ.

AND LETTERS

The Relation Traditional Not Actual Long Hair No Sign of Genius.

The relation between long hair and literature is traditional rather than actual. Once upon a time all artists were supposed to wear velvet coats. Only artists in plays on the stage now make themselves conspicuous in that fashion. Writers have also generally revised their method of dress, and long hair nowadays is no more a badge of the literary profession than it is a sign of genius.

It is quite true, however, that some writers do wear hair longer than that of the ordinary men who do the serious and common-place work. There is an unfair suspicion on the part of the public-a suspicion that is shared pretty generally by the great majority of writers themselves-that the poets, essayists and novelists who wear their locks below their collars and reaching to their shoulders are a bit affected, and are posing so as to attraot attention. This I believe is an assumption that is both unfair and

A writer, especially a poet, is usvally a man out of the ordinary—an abnormality. If he were only ordinary and commonplace he would not writehe would have better sense, and employ his energies and his talents in ways more profitable and comfortable. If he were normal he would not express himself in verse, but say what was in him in the ordinary speech and writing. Being abnormal, he chooses a different medium and makes the songs for the world. The poet-and other writers, for that -is always seeking to express himself in the way that is most pleasing to him. Now dress and the way of wearing the hair are both methods of personal expression. The abnormal man who does his serious work in an abnormal way naturally inclines toward strangeness of costume and the other things that go along with it. What wonder that he should wear long The wonder is that more of them do not wear it. Mr. Howells tells us that the age of poetry is past—that little good poetry is written, and that even the approved poetry in our literature is little read. Maybe this accounts for the fact that few of the literary men at this time neglect to patronize the barbers. I believe, however, that there is another reason and a better. Literature now is more of a business than it ever was. Not only more men live by it than ever before, but those who live best recognize more thoroughly than the others the commercial aspect of their occupation. They are, therefore, business men, after all; and business men long ago gave up the wearing of long hair. It is not fair, however, to say, that because a literary man wears his hal long that he is trying to attract at tention to his small abilities. He doe no doubt in the same way that player on the bas viol gets fat-be cause he cannot help it.—John Gilme

The premier replied: "It is I who caused the strength legal requisitions made before the re-pression commenced." This statement drew forth a storm of invectives, and socialists cried "Murderer!" Cotton mills are doing well, in spite of the fall in cotton, as the demand gives them enough to do at current prices, and weak spots in the trade are defended by the agreement between Fall River. TREATED A LIONESS ered Suddenly From the Anaesthetic and Roared.

London, July 1.-The British Medical Journal has an account of an operation for cataract performed upon a lioness 3 years old by Prof. Gustavo Pisenti, of the University of Perugia. The animal was placed in a suitable cage in the middle of the menagerie, and the first difficulty was the administration of an anaesthetic

The intervals between the bars of the cage were filled up with cotton wool. and a large packet of gauze impregnated with chloroform was then placed in the cage, the door of which was then closed with a shutter. In about a quarter of an hour a reconnoissance was cautiously made, and the patient was seen lying stretched out and apparently in a condition of deep coma. She was then dragged out of the cage and bound and gagged.

She was then placed on a table, but before the operation could be begun the medical men "with admirable coolness, but not without intense emotion, which might easily be seen in their countenances," held her down while the animal's head was wrapped in a towel steeped in sulphuric ether. The lioness, however, managed to free herself from the gag, and partly from her bonds, and gave a roar which made the majority of the spectators beat hasty rereat. But the ether overcame and Prof. Pisenti, with great pluck, dragged her into the cage again, where the anaesthetic coup de grace was given by means of another packet of gauze steeped in chloroform. The beast's head was pulled out through the door of the cage, and so-Prof. Pisenti curely held in position.

KIPLING AS A FISHERMAN

An Old Angler Gives the Poet Some Advice-Kipling's Description of a Salmon Catch.

A. M. Cheney, writing in Forest and Stream, says:

"Last season while fishing for salmon in the Restigouche, the conversation turned one evening to the Pacific salmon, and a gentleman present made the statement that he would wager $10,000 that he could go to a Pacific coast stream and kill Pacific salmon in the same manner that he had that day killed Atlantic salmon with the fly in the Restigouche, and I thought when he made the statement that he could do exactly as he said. The wager was not for the purpose of making money, as he explained, but he wisned to be assured if he succeeded of sufficient return to pay the expenses of the trip, for he would go simply to decide the matter, for it was generally understood that Pacific almon would not take the fly. One of the first stories I ever heard in rela-tion to Alaska after the purchase was made by this country was of the old Scotch admiral, who said: 'Let the Yankees have the blank country; the saumon will not rise to the flee.

"From that time until this I have not heard of Pacific salmon being taken with the fly (except that possibly Admiral Beardslee did write me that he killed a fish or so when he was in Alaska with the Jamestown, but of this I am not sure now), although I know of a number of efforts in this direction—one by a well-known eastern salmon fisherman—until a few days ago someone left on my desk a copy of Kipling's 'American Notes,' and I opened the book to find that Kipling had been successful in killing Pacific salmon with the fly. Twice I read the chapter to make sure that my eyes had not deceived me, but he states clearly and positively that his salmon were killed on the fly.

There is no mistaking that Kipling is a fisherman. The chapter to which I refer begins: 'I have lived! The American continent may now sink under the sea, for I have taken the best that it yields, and the best was neither dollars nor real estate. The 'best that it yields' was a Chinook salmon, or several of them, and how the salmon were killed is told as perhaps only Kipling can tell it. First, his companion California let the gaudy fly drop in the tail of a riffle. I was getting my rod together, when I heard the joyous shriek of the reel and the yells of California and then three feet silver fish leaped into the air across he water.'

There is no mistake about the fly in this case nor the next. Kipling's own: 'I went into that ice-cold river and made my cast just above the weir. * * * The next cast on, the pride of it, the regular splendor of it! The thrill that ran down from finger-tip to toe! Then the water boiled. He broke for the fly and got it. There remained enough sense in me to give him all he wanted when he jumped, not once, but twenty times, before the up-stream flight that ran my line out to the last half-dozen turns, and I saw the nickeled reel-bar glitter under the thinning green coils. My thumb was burned deep when I strove to stopper the line. I did not feel it till later, for my soul was out in the dancing weir, praying for him to turn ere he took my tackle away. And my prayer was heard. As I bowed back the butt of the rod on my left hip-bone and the top joint lipping like unto a weeping willow, he urned, and I accepted each inch of ack that I could by any means get in s a favor from on high. There lie sevral sorts of success in this world that aste well in the moment of enjoyent, but I question whether the steal hy theft of my line from an able-bodsalmon who knows exactly what are doing and why you are doit, is not sweeter than any other y within human scope.

re is much more of this told in le style before the salmon is nded by being thrown on the the hands of the fisherman, Aipling would not have the fish gaffed, but finally the fish is killed and Kipling sings praises to him: 'The beauty, the darling, the daisy, my salmon Badahur weighing twelve pounds, and I have been seven and thirty minutes bringing him to bank! He had been lightly hooked on the angle of the right jaw and the hook had not wearied him. That hour I sat among rinces and crowned heads greater an them all.'

It is well worth reading, and even eading; but a little further along, re is a very suspicious admission man who has been killing salmon a fly, and here it is: 'Then Porttook my rod and caught some ounders, and my spoon was car-

"This may be a pirated edition of Kipling's book; the spoon may not be in an authorized edition, but in the volume before me the spoon is as much in evidence as the fly, except that the spoon is mentioned but once, and the fly twice. Now, what I would really like to know is this: Were the salmon killed on a fly or on a spoon? If I can find out, I will, in return for the in-formation, give Mr. Kipling what I be-

Susan B. Anthony's Sixteenth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

ONE THING AT A TIME

It is an accepted fact that the man or woman who is most successful is the one who has "specialized" in his or her line of work. Woman particularly has been in the habit of "spreading herself out too thin," trying to reform all the evils and find a panacea for all the ills of humanity, instead of selecting some one and concentrating all her force upon that. The reasons for this are many and obvious, but she is learning better. The most conspicuous "specialist" among women is Susan B. Anthony. She selected one object half a century ago and never has turned aside into highway or byway but once. During the five years of the war she set aside the cause of woman, helped to organize the Loyal League, and devoted all her energies to the emancipation of the slave. This accomplished, she took up again her life work of emancipating those of her own sex, and has steadfastly refused to be drawn into other reforms. These remarks are suggested by a swer to a request to become a member of the Anti-Polygamy League. She savs: "I will tell you the reason why I cannot give my name for that purpose; it is simply because I feel that it is no more my right or my duty to mouse around through Utah to learn whether a Mormon man, elected to the 56th congress, has violated the law of monogamy, than it is to hunt through the other 44 States of the Union to find out whether a so-called Christian man, thus honored, has been guilty of the same offense. If there were an apology to be made for a man belonging to either class, it would be for the one who had been religiously educated into the belief that it was his duty to possess himself of several wives rather than for the one who had been taught from his boyhood that polygamy was not only forbidden by the law, but by every principle of what is called Christian religion. Therefore, I hope that when women and ministers make their protests against the seating in congress of a polygamous Mormon, they will make just as earnest a protest against the seating of any libertine Christian.

'As you are doubtless aware, I have given my time and best energies for the last 30 years to the securing of a sixteenth amendment to the national constitution, which should protect woand I am surer today than ever that with the right to a voice in the making and unmaking of every law and lawmaker in the hands of the women of this nation, there would be no need of a seventeenth amendment to the constitution, declaring a polygamist or a libertine ineligible to public office.' Women in general attempt to reform all the evils in the world by organizing societies, holding conventions and passing resolutions. Miss Anthony always has held that women would show In 1760-"Swink" a Taking Worl for more wisdom by concentrating their forces and securing the franchise, which would give them a fulcrum on which to plant their lever .- New York

SHAKESPEARE WAS EVERYWHERE

For one momentary flash, in 1587, we may possibly catch a glimpse of him; but for all the rest a Cimmerian midnight holds him. And what a priceless boon! It was during these seven silent years, while holding horses at the doors of theaters for a livelihood, that he became, if we are to believe all the critics and commentators, a thorough master of law and practice down to the minutest quillet; a thorough master of medicine, with the most searching knowledge of the virtue of every herb, mineral or medicament, including treatment of the insane, and an anticipation of Harvey's circulation of the blood; he became an adept in veterinary medicine, and was familiar with every disease that can afflict a horse; he learned the art of war, and served a campaign in the field; he went to sea, and acquired an absolute mastery of a ship in a furious tempest, and made only one slight mistake, long years afterwards, in the number of a ship's glasses; he studied botany and knew every flower by name; horticulture, and knew every fruit; arborioulture, and knew the quality and value of all timber; that he practiced archery daily, who can doubt? and when not hawking or fishing, he was fencing; he became familiar with astronomy and at home in astrology; he

A Child's Suffering.

Mr. Wm. McKay, Clifford, N. S. Tells of His Daughter's Cure.

She Was First Attacked With Acute Rheumatism, Followed by St. Vitas' Dance in a Severe Form-Her Parents Thought She Could Not Re-

[From the Enterprise, Bridgewater, N. S.]

Wm. McKay, Esq., a well-known and much-respected farmer and mill-man at Clifford, Lunenburg county, N. S., relates the following wonderful cure effected in his family by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills: "About three years ago my little daughter Ella, then a child of 10 years, was attacked with acute rheumatism. It was a terribly bad case; for over a month she was confined to her bed, and during most of the time was utterly helpless, being unable to turn in bed, or, in fact, to move at all without help. She could not even hold anything in her hand. All power or use of her limbs had entirely gone, and the pain she suffered was fearful. By constant attention after a month or so she began to gain a little strength, and after a while improved enough to be taken out of bed and even walked around a bit after a fashion by means of a support. But now she was seized with a worse ailment than the rheumatism. Her nervous system gave way — appeared completely shattered. She shook violently all the time, would tumble down in trying to walk. In attempting to drink from a cup her hand shook so as to spill the contents all over herself. She was a pitiable object. The doctors were called to her again, and said she had St. Vitus' dance in the worst form. She took the medicine prescribed and followed the instructions of her physician for some time, but without apparent benefit. She wasted away almost to a skeleton, and we gave her up for lost. About this time I read in a paper an account of a great cure of nervousness letter of hers recently written in an- fit. effected by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. and resolved to try them. I bought six boxes, and the little girl began using them. The good effects of the first box were quite apparent, and when four boxes were used she seemed so much improved that the pills were discontinued. She kept on improving, and after a few weeks was as well as ever. We were told that the cure would not last, that it was only some powerful ingredient in the pills which was deceiving us, and that after a time the child would be worse than ever. All this has proved false, for now nearly three years she has had unbroken good health, nerves as strong as they are made, and stands school work and household work as well as a mature person. We have no doubt about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills restoring to us our little girl, who we looked upon as doomed to an early grave."

Dr. Willaims' Pink Pills are a specific for diseases arising from an impoverished condition of the blood or shattered nerves, such as St. Vitus' dance, locomotor ataxia, rheumatism, paralysis, sciatica, the after-effects of la grippe, headache, dizziness, erysipelas, scrofula, etc. They are also a specific for the croubles peculiar to the female system, building anew the blood and restoring the glow of health to pale men in all the States of the Union from and sallow cheeks. Protect yourself disenfranchisement on account of sex, against imitations by insisting that every box bears the full name, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. If your dealer does not have them they will be sent, postpaid, at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company. Brockville, Ont.

OBSELETE WORDS

Labor.

[Washington Post.]

"As I was passing a second-hand bookshop one day recently," said the man who buys books, "I saw three old volumes of Thomson's plays-you know the man who wrote 'The Seasons'-lying with a pile of ten cent They were published in 1760, books. and the plays were played by Mrs. Woffington, and Mr. Garrick, and Mr. Sheridan, and Mr. and Mrs. Cibber. Of course, they are such stilted, unnatural, bombastic, interminably talky plays that a modern audience wouldn't sit through the first act, but in their time several of them made tremendous hits. What interested me really more than the plays was a list of obsolete words used in a long poem in one volume—a list of words with their definitions, and I was struck by the fact that a great many of the words that were obsolete in 1760 and had to be defined to Thomson's readers are in common use today. Appal, deftly, fays, glee, carol, scar and un-kempt are only a few that I recall. There was one word, however, in the list that is still obsolete and ought to be revived. It is the word 'swink' and it means to labor. I think it's a beautiful word. LILACS IN ENGLAND

Imported in the Days of King Harry-Ancient References.

The lilac came into England in the days of King Harry, according to the Pall Mall Gazette. In the inventory Pall Mall Gazette. of Nonsuch Palace Gardens, made by Cromwell's orders, we find "six lill-aches, trees which have no fruit, but a pleasante smelle." The lilae was known as the pipe bush, the pipe and blue pipe tree, the pipe privet, as well as lillach and lillache.

Gerard's experience with the white lilac was to be nearly smothered in sweets. He found it "of a most pleasante and sweete smelle, but in my judgment too sweete, troubling and molesting the head in very strange manner. I once gathered the flowers and laid them in my chamber windowe, whiche smelled prore strongly after they had been together a few howers, with such a pinticke (?) and nowers, with such a pinticke (?) and unacquainted savour that they awaked me from sleepe, so that I could not take my rest till I had cast them out from my chamber."

The lilac variety he also found of "an exceeding sweete savour and scent, but not so strong as the former. The flowers," he goes on, "are of an exceeding faire blewe colour, compacted by many smalle flowers, in the forme of a bunch of grapes." That the lilac came so late into England explains its absence from the garden of English poetry. Probably it was long before it came from being a denizen of palace gardens to being the dear, homely cottage lilac we know today. If the old poets had known the lilac as we know it, they must surely have sometimes given their mistresses lilac eyes. But in the days when the garden was made the color lilac had hardly emerged from the purple, and it was left to the eighteenth century to garb its beauty in the delicious fresh "laylock," which must have wonderfully framed powdered hair and brilliant cheeks. Burns is one of the few bards of the

The Causes of Disease and Pestilence Explained-Open Sewers.

The lack of a proper sewage system is the cause of nearly all the disease and pestilence that have made of the world. There are more and better sewers than is generally supposed, but the cause of their breeding sickness is the fact that they are, in many cases, open to the street by manholes, and they all empty into the harbor immediately in front of the city. Two of the main sewers flow into the channel of the harbor directly under the lieutenant-governor's palace, in which Gen. Ludlow lives, and in which he has his headquarters; one empties under the Maestranza de Artilleria, in which some of the troops were quartered; and from these mains flow all the filth of Havana, that pest-hole of disease, while at all times there arises a sickening odor, and it will be the greatest of wonders if there is not much sickness among our troops, who are accustomed to cleanliness at home. The one thing that always is the most noticeable to Americans on their arrival in any of the towns or cities of Cuba is the offensive odor that is ever present .- J. F. J. Archibald, in the July

CONGRESS OF BICYCLISTS

Row the Wheel Is Bringing the Nations Together.

Thousands of Britishers Tour the Continent Every Year-The Wheel Regenerating Society.

[The London Times, June 9.] Among the clearest pieces of evidence of the great part which the bicycle plays in modern life is the International Cyclists' Congress. Probably the members of the Publishers' Congress, numbering representatives of literature and the industries connected therewith from all parts of the world, would be surprised and indignant if any comparison were drawn between the two gatherings as solvents of national prejudices or agencies in making men know each other better. And yet, reading what has already been done to break down national harriers and what is connational barriers and what is contemplated by the International League of Touring Associations, the comparison is not so far-fetched or offensive to the guild of publishers as it might at first seem. How few, after all, are the books of one country which make their way into another and become part and parcel of its literature! The number parcel of its literature! The number of translations annually published is small in proportion of the literature of any year; and outside a select circle a work which happens to be success-ful in France or Germany may be almost unknown here. Mr. Cobden thought that commerce would create "international man," the cosmopolitan above local prejudices and at home everywhere. Commerce has of late stirred up as many jealousies as it has laid, and it looks as if the bicycle might do what so far commerce shows no sign of accomplishing. Every year our young men and young women go by the thousand to France, Germany, Belgium and Holland, to skim over their plains, to penetrate into their remotest parts; to see foreign life as it is, far away from towns and railways; to receive the hospitality of peasants and country folk; to make unexpected friends; and to carry away pleasant impressions totally incompat-ible with the retention unimpaired by continent; youth everywhere roaming over several countries as if they were one, their by-ways sought out, and the stranger making himself at home everywhere. Already the collective strength of the cyclists has managed to get some fiscal concessions, small, to be sure, but such as the Cobden Club has never been able to effect in its long life. More is being attempted. The Union Velocipedique de France, the Ligue Velocipedique Belge, and other powerful associations are doing their best to remove certain vexatious restrictions, particularly the require-ment of the French customs authorities, who demand from the cyclist fresh payment every time he crosses the frontier, though he may have crossed twice or thrice in the same day. The leaguers are hopeful of bringing even the douaniers to reason. Other conquests and reforms are planned. It within the range of possibility that all over the civilized world there will soon be, thanks to the enterprise of the cyclists' organizations, a uniform system of danger sign-boards, which will make the course of the cycling stranger safe; that there will be a minimum standard of comfort kept up In the hostelries which cyclists frequent; that they will be secured against overcharges; and that there will as to such matters be a tribunal of appeal which hotel-keepers will respect. Already over large parts of England and Wales the comforts of inns have been leveled up and their charges leveled down, owing to the action of the cyclists, and in particular the powerful Cyclists' Touring narrow prejudices.

And this, too, is going on all over the

We notice that some speakers at the congress hinted at other changes which might be brought about by combination of cyclists. One of these relates to the carriage by railway companies of bicycles. In this matter we are at a disadvantage as compared with our visitors. The English railway companies charge higher rates, and, with rare exceptions, they offer imperfect, unsuitable accommodation for expensive machines. They still treat the cyclist too much as if he were to be tolerated instead of encouraged; and at some stations they will have nothing to do with storing his machine. So far the cyclists' organizations have failed to do much to mend things, but a change may soon come: and, in view of the fact that about 100 members of parliament belong to one well-known cy- (Cheers.) Do we always recollect when now of classes not nearly so large. One might be tempted to quarrel with an assumption, not always latent with the proceedings at such meetings, that the bicyclist is a being by himself and the touring club an imperium in imperio. But what we miss in the dis-cussions is sufficient recognition of the share which the cyclist is to have in the work of the world as well as in its amusements. The fact that almost every one can at small cost travel three or four times as fast and as far as before is already producing great industrial changes, and others must fol-low, in town and elsewhere. The country doctor begins to make his rounds, the rector his visits, the tax-gather his demands, by means of the cycle. The tradesman takes his orders and executes them by means of the modern shoes of swiftness. They are now the mainstay of many a country house. The clerk or workman reaches his suburban home, except in bad weather, on wheels, and the job which the latter could not take except on condition of receiving "lodging money" is now practicable for him. Not a few things go more smoothly now that they go on wheels. We are only at the begining of considerable economic and social changes, all ascribable to the ubiquitous "safety," which has already done more for the workingman since its introduction than legislation and philanthropy combined during the same period. It is hard to say where its influence ends. Acute critics have fancied that they could find traces of the influence of the cycle in contemporary literature and art. Realism, with lightness of touch, a knowledge of nature, with a perception of its fugitive moods, come as a matter of course, It has been said, to the artist who flies over half a county of a forenoon. One speaker at the dinner of the members of the congress hinted at a further change which the cycling clubs might promote—the discouraging of some objectionable practices, including scorening. Should they bring that to pass we nteresting Allusions to the Real Work of the Church.

The London Times contains spech of Lord Roseberry, at Epsom, on the occasion of opening an addition to a church. We clip the following from

That is as far as I can go into the secular domain of our church-room; but there is an ecclesiastical aspect, and here again one feels invited to venture in that polemical field which has been so freely trodden during the last year. I do not feel inclined to enter upon that field. In the first place, I am quite certain that everybody here-man, woman, or child-has carefully studied the proceedings before the Archbishops at Lambeth, and is versed more than I am in the ecclesiastical intricacies of that case. In the second place, I am well aware, after the history of the last 19 centuries, that there is nothing so fatal to enter upon as theological discussions. They are, for some reasons unknown to the layman, conducted with more asperity than any other form of discus-Why that should be so, why the Gospel that came to preach peace and goodwill in this world should so often be the means of provoking the most violent of disputations, is a problem I confess I am unable to solve. After all, laymen, even the most insignificant, minds, and I confess I have sometimes been led to imagine what would happen if the great apostle of the Gentiles were to return to earth and see the position of the church at this moment. He would see that in the course of a long development of centuries the faith that he preached in poverty, in prisons, in stripes, in persecution to an unbelieving world has assumed very different shape and proportions at this time. He would see the splendor of ritual. He would see great structures -the most beautiful in the worldformed to commemorate that faith of which he saw the foundation laid in circumstances so different. He would see much to praise and perhaps something to condemn. But, if I may carry my conjecture a little further, my belief is that his main source of astonishment would be this-that the most beautiful, the most eloquent, the most pathetic, and the most memorable passage in his writings is the one that in ecclesiastical discussions is the most often to be forgotten. Do you remember the eloquent commendation that St. Paul gave on charity? It was not almsgiving only, but was that brotherly love which says no evil, which thinks the best of all things, and which sums it up by saying, "Now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity?"

clists' club, a committee on a railway we dispute about incense and lights in bill may some day be as watchful of the interests of cyclists as they are est of all virtues that St. Paul inculest of all virtues that St. Paul incul-cated is charity? After all, I am not here for one moment to dispute the merits and the elevation of a careful and beautiful church service, but these are not the essentials of Christianity, and are we not a little apt in striving after incidentals to forget the

Is there no work for the church to do outside these questions of incense and lights? There is no place, I think, in which there is more brought home to the inhabitant the miseries of abject and helpless poverty than in this parish of Epsom. I do not mean simply that the races bring inevitably in their train tramps and vagabonds who represent the failure and hopelessness of destitution, who sleep by the roadside as they fall tired without a farthing to bless themselves with, and who represent prehaps almost the last form of human hopelessness, that we see for some two weeks in the year. But we have another object lesson which is always with us. When the workhouse in the morning opens its doors and discharges its lodgers for the night we may see streaming along in a hopeless procession the moral cripples of the nation. We see them in great numbers in our workhouse which is so near London, and because it is on the high road, and because of these circumstances and because of our races we see perhaps more of the lowest, most abject form of human nature than most other parishes are able to witness. While there are these people here, while there is that benighted poverty, that almost hopeless suffering, that class to whom the world offers nothing but the hope of a better world to come, surely the church is not limited in its efforts merely to the consideration of what is the most desirable form of ritual to use for the church. There are, thank God, in the Church of England hundreds and thousands of clergymen as good, as industrious and as self-denying as their friend (Canon Hunter), but the work is even beyond their efforts or their energies. For, aftheir enorts of their energies. For, alter all, if the church—and I use the word not of the Church of England alone, but of the church in its catholic and its universal sense-is to vindicate in this nation, at this time of the world's history, at this end of the nineteenth century, its claim to be the true church founded by or Lord on earth, it must at least achieve this, it must mold the nation, it was leaven the nation, it must raise the nation, or history will record it to have been a failure. (Cheers.)

ROSA BONHEUR

Her Talent Asserted Early-Her Pet Nubian Lion.

Most of the juniors have heard of Rosa Bonheur, the great French artist who painted the Horse Fair, now in possession of the Metropolitan Museum at New York Mlle Bonheur died a few days ago, and numerous as were the stories told during her life of her strange power over wild beasts, none are more interesting than those which are now coming out about her childish days. Until she was past twelve "The Little Hussar," as her playmates called her. took her pleasures in the rough and tumble fashion of her brothers. When she was thirteen she began to find a great deal of pleasure in drawing borses, cows and sheep upon the barn doors, and by the time she was fourteen she had neither eyes nor ears for anyth ng but some shaggy-headed lion or striped tiger, who forget all their savage instinct when Bonheur looked in their eyes.

There has been much speculation on the secret of that look. "Hypnotism," said every showman in Paris, who was quite accustomed to having Mlle Bonheur walk into a cage of surly lions and pat and poke them into good humor, till they rolled on the floor at her feet like a huge bundle of happy kittens. "Kindness," said the old keepers who helped to attend to Mlle. Bonheur's pets on her estate near Fontainbleu, But whatever was the secret of her power over the four-footed kingdom, it made her the greatest of animal painters.

There used to be an old joke among the French circus men that when a lion or tiger proved refractory and unmanageable it must be given to Mlle. Bonheur. And she never failed to tame the most

In this way she came into the possession of a very beautiful Nubian lion, which was her devoted slave for years. Finally Mile. Bonheur was obliged to leave her estate at Fontainbleu, and, fearing to leave the savage creature in charge of any one else, she turned him over to the Zoological Garden. The lion drooped and pined. They sent for Mlle. Bonheur, but it was too late and the broken hearted king of the forest died with his head in her lap.

MILLIONS IN PETTICOATS

Strange Case of the Late "Countess of Balsch," an Eccentric Miser.

Quite a sensation has just been caused at Jassy, in Roumania, by the death of Mme. Balsch, who has by her eccentricities for years past attracted much attention in that

Some years ago she was the wife of a Herr Veldiman, by whom she had a daughter. After a year or two of married life she divorced him and married a Herr Balsch, by whom she had a son. Soon after the latter's birth she left her second husband.

She then went to Paris, where she called herself Countess von Balsch. Toward her children she never seemed to feel anything but the greatest hatred, and when her son died she sent the body to his father for burial.

She turned her daughter out of her house and the unfortunate girl was only kept from starvation by the kindness of relatives. After the death of her second husband she returned to Roumania, where she lived in complete retirement.

In spite of the fact that she was extremely wealthy, she lived in the most wretched manner and was generally reputed to be a miser. A few days ago she died. When her daughter came to examine her belongings no trace of money could be found. In going through her mother's clothing, however, she noticed that one of the petticoats seemed somewhat stiff, as if heavily lined. She ripped it open and found over two hundred thousand notes sewed under the lin-

This put her on the track, and all her mother's petticoats, of which she had an enormous number, were examined. In nearly every one large sums of money were found, amounting altogether to between 2,000,000f. and 3,000,000f. - Fremdenblatt.

Description of the Paper-Making Pro cess-Another Big Industry Promised.

[Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Express.] Paper-making, one of the most useful and indeed, most necessary of arts, is a mysterious process to the layman. From the beginning of the recording of human thought paper in some form has been the medium through which the human mind has perpetuated its action. Visitors to the works of the Sault Ste. Marie Pulp and Paper Company can examine a sample of paper as made today in the Fiji Islands. It is pounded from the bark of the tappa tree, and illustrates the actual method of manufacturing papyrus of the date of Egypt's highest development in the arts. The paper issuing today from the machines of the Sault Ste. Marie Pulp and Paper Company is

In a well organized woods operation it is intended that all of the trees shall be felled and skidded in piles before the first snowan I the brooks and bogs, before impassable, which the logs are drawn from skidways, to be deposited upon the ice covering the larger streams. By March all of the logs will have thus been deposited upon the larger brooks and rivers, and from the breaking up of the ice and the rising of the waters from the spring rain the log piles are carried swiftly to the lake shore, where they are collected in booms and towed in rafts containing about 5,000 cords each to the mill booms. The logging operations of the large pulp mill thus involves the investment of capital and attention to important details covering a period of one year before the raw material of the paper-maker is safely in store at the paper-mill. The amount of pulp wood necessarily carried in stock to afford a reliable supply to the mills of the Sault Ste. Marie Pulp and Paper Company represents a constant investment of over $150,000. Arriving at the mill the log is drawn from the water, sawed into lengths of 24 inches, and stripped of its bark, which is blown to the boiler-house and furnishes the steam necessary for drying the manufactured pulp. The barked stock is then earried to the grinders to be disintegrated into small fibres. The pulp grinder consists of an iron case containing a grindstone 54 inches in diameter and 26 inches across the race. Hydraulic cylinders, adjusted in position about the circumference of the grindstone, press the blocks of wood against the surface of the stone, which is revolved at about 200 revolutions a minute by a turbine It is the result of thirty years' wheel. Hydraulic pressure of one hundred pounds to the square inch on three pockets pressing the wood irresistibly against a grindstone operated with a turbine of 300 horse-power will produce about five tons putation on the success of our daily of finely ground pulp. No. 1 mill of the Sault Ste. Marie Pulp and Paper contains 21 of these grinders, and allowing the displacement of one grinder for repairs, the total produce of the mill equals 100 daily of pulp of the best grade. The capacity of pulp mill No. 2 equals that of No. 1, so that the aggregate capacity of the mills is about 200 tons of pulp daily-the largest output of any pulp mill in the It may be mentioned that the Lake Superior Power Company are about to estabsh at this point, at a cost of several millions of dollars, a large custom reduction works capable of treating 1,000 tons of ore daily, and when these works have been completed they will compose the only industry of the kind in the Dominion of Canada.

OUR SHORT STORY

"The Making of a Soldier."

"Yes, Mary," said the old farmer, as he climbed into the wagon beside his wife to drive homeward, "I've got a letter, and it's from William. You take the lines and I'll read it." As they drove out of the village and over the bridge and up the long hill the husband and father slowly read aloud the words written by his soldier son-now at the fort. It was a gloomy letter. It told of hardships and sufferings and privations, and not one brave word was to be found from beginning to end.

"Poor boy!" sighed the mother, as the reading was finished and she relinquished the lines.
"Wall, I don't like it!" replied the

"He was bound to go in father. "He was bound to go in spite of everything, and now he ought to put up with things and not be a baby. Them Spicer boys don't send home no such letters as this."

"I-I wish he hadn't gone!" "But he did go, and now he's got to grin and bear it, same as the rest. Don't you let on to nobody that he's homesick and ready to cry. If the nayburs got hold of it they'd poke all manner of fun at him and be sneering

"But we can sympathize with him,"

"A little, mebbe, but we ain't goin' to say very much. I'm going to write him that he wants to take things as they come and be a man. There's them Spicer boys and Tom Johnson and Henry Doolittle and Ben Smith, and nobody ever hears a whine from

"It's 'cause William is homesick to

"Wall, he must get over it then. didn't want him to go, but bein' he's down there he musn't play baby, and make us ashamed. I'd feel like hangin' myself if our William flunked out of a fight or deserted his colors. You've bin doin' the writin,' and I guess you've writ too softly."

Down on the Rapidan, in the old Sixteenth, Private William Hopkins wasn't making a good record for himself. For the first four weeks of army life he was cheerful and enthusiastic, but after that a change had come. Homesickness is worse than a fever or a wound for a soldier. Every man with a home had had a touch of it, but most of them had thrown it off.
Perhaps he tried to, but if so he didn't succeed. The boys got onto him, and though they felt pity for him, they did not spare him their gibes and He was the booby of Company G, and even his tent-mate had a feeling of contempt for him. One day the orderly sergeant dropped in on him to say:

"Look here, Bill Hopkins, this thing has gone far enough! You are making a first-class fool of yourself, and if you don't brace up the boys will give you away at home. Get out and chase yourself and fling this homesickness off. A boy 10 years old would be ashamed to mope around as you do!" Private Hopkins was hurt by these remarks, instead of being braced up, and turning his face away from the sergeant, he then and there resolved on a desperate deed. He would desent at the first opportunity. He wouldn't admit that homesickness had anything to do with it. He had been

They had given him an extra guard 11-used duty-extra work around camp-had bullied and jeered him in place of giving him a fair show. He could figure out that the captain and both lieutenants were down on him, and of the ninety men of the company he was the martyr. He had given no cause for this, and he wouldn't submit to such indignities. He was certain of sympathy from father and mother, and once more back at home he would stay there, even if he had to hide in the garret. Every soldier who lets the feeling of homesickness get the better of him follows the same train of thought and arrives at the same

An opportunity to carry out his conclusions. plan came to Private Hopkins much sooner than he had hoped for. Company G was ordered out on a night reconnoissance and, pale-faced and weak-kneed, the homesick boy took his place in the lines. No one expectany fighting, but it so happened that a small force of the enemy was in the neighborhood and there was a skirmish and the company was driven back. At roll call it was found that five men were missing. Two of those had been left dead in the road and two others were believed to have been wounded and crawled into the bushes. The fifth man was Private Hopkins, and it was altogether likely that he ad been taken prisoner. At any rate,

Body building, as they understood it in Greece and Rome, seems a lost art. Young men flat chested. flabby muscled. slouch along the streets, with scarcely one physical attribute of manhood. And yet these young men would like to be well muscled, supple, erect and hardy. But they don't know how to go about it. They try dumb bells, rowing and boxing, but only in a half hearted way. These sports should be play to them but are really work. The main factor in this condition is an ill nourished body. The stomach is not working properly. The digestive and nutritive organs are not in active health. The result is that the nutrition for the body is not distributed in proper proportions to make blood, bone and muscle. Weak young men who take a course of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will find a marked change in their physical strength and energy. The body will be built up so that gymnastics will not tax and tire them, but be the natural exercise enjoyed by muscles which are nourished into firm health.

In a letter received from A. D. Weller, Esq., of Pensacola, Escambia Co., Fla. (Box 544), he states: "I have, since receiving your diagnosis of my case as stomach trouble and liver complaint, taken eight bottles of the Golden Medical Discovery' and must say that I am transformed from a walking shadow (as my friends called me) to perfect health. I value your remedies very highly and take pleasure in recommending them to any and all who suffer as I Gid. Four months ago I did not think to be in shape to assist our 'Uncle Samuel' in case of hostilities, but thanks to you, I am now ready for the 'Dons.'"

*666666666 he was thus recorded on the company roll until something more could be learned. As a matter of fact, the homesick boy had a narrow escape from capture, but the danger had no sooner passed than he found his opportunity to desert. Throwing away his gun and accourtements, he headed for the federal lines, and, having reached them, he set to work to dodge pickets and sentrice. When recogning same he and sentries. When morning came he was clear of those who would have halted him. With three months' pay in his pocket he stood a good chance, and two weeks later, dressed as a citizen, and after a dozen close shaves, he found himself within a mile of home. Up to that moment, when a turn in the highway gave him a view of the old homestead, he had been con-sumed with impatience to reach the farmhouse. Of a sudden he felt dis-satisfied and began to wonder and reflect. He had departed amid the waving of flags and the cheers of hundreds. He was sneaking home as a deserter, almost dodging the cows and sheep in the fields. A loss of self-re-spect came to him and he heartly wished himself back at the front. He would go on, though.

He was penniless and way-worn and he wanted sympathy. Perhaps, after a stay of a week he would go back to the army. When he told father and mother how he had been abused they would not blame him-would not call a case of desertion. It was sundown when the boy approached the barn across the fields. He caught sight of his mother at the kitchen door and he heard his father in the barn. From the hour he had deserted up to this he had pictured to himself how he would rush into the house and take the old folks by surprise, but now he changed the programme. He went skulking along the fence until he reached the barn, and there was shame on his face as he entered and stood before his father.

When the old man heard a step he looked up and stood leaning on the pitchfork in his hands. He saw his son William before him. The boy had been heard of last at the front. He was here and in citizens' attire, and he had no shout of greeting. If it had been a case of furlough he would have been in uniform, and some news would have come in advance. Ideas passed through farmer Hopkins' brain like flashes of lightning, and after a long minute his face grew stern, his eyes had a cold look in them, and the watching son realized that the truth was known.

"Well?" hoarsely queried the father, with stern-set face.
"They—they didn't use me right down there!" almost wailed the boy in reply. "And so you ran away?" "Yes. It wasn't exactly deserting,

For half a minute they looked into each other's eyes. The boy's knees grew weak and his face went white, and the face in front of him was so hard and cold that he wondered if he had ever seen it before. By and by the father sternly said:

boy felt a chill pass over him. "That is," continued the father, "unless ye was goin' right back to the army to do yer duty as a soldier, and to stay until honorably discharged. How Mildred Saved the Deer.

-St. Nicholas

[By Anne Spottswood Young.] "I don't believe a lame dog or a sick cat or an old horse will ever come to this house!" wailed a small lassie not long ago. Brother Jack looked up from his newspaper with a puzzled expression. His little sister's eyes were full of tears and her lips were trembling very much indeed, and something dreadful seemed to be the matter. In a moment Jack's paper was thrown aside and the little sister was on his knee being comforted.
"Why, Mildred," said the big brother, what can you want with old horses and lame cats and dogs? It's 'raining cats and dogs' outside now. Shall I go out and get some?"

Mildred laughed at this in spite of the lump in her throat, but she sobered in a moment, saying, with a little

"It does seem funny to wish for such queer things, Jack, but I know you won't think it's queer when I tell you all about it. I belong to a club at school, and everybody in the club must try to help some poor sick animal and make it better, or else feed hungry ones, and do all they can to make animals happier. We've had the club three weeks now, and all the girls and boys have fed starving cats and dogs, and one boy made a man stop beating his horse, and every one of them has helped an animal but me, and I have looked and looked for one, and all found was a mouse in a trap. that go, and the cook was awful cross about it, so I can't even do that now The club meets here tomorrow, and we all have to tell something we've done, and there hasn't a lame or hungry dog or cat been round yet. I've watched all day, and now it's raining and getting dark, and I know I won't have a single thing to tell at the club." Mildred winked very hard to keep from crying and Jack hugged her close a minute as he said: "Well, I wouldn't cry about it. I know something you did a few weeks ago that you can tell at the club. You saved a little deer's life." Mildred was so surprised that she could hardly speak for a minute. "Why, Jack," she said at last, "I haven't seen any deer for a long, long time, not since last summer at the Zoo; but—" she added, slowly, "it must be true if you say so." Jack must be true if you say so."

You find it hard to believe, don't

'Yes." admitted Mildred. "Well, this is how it happened," said ack. "About two weeks ago a cer-Jack. tain little girl I know was singing to her doll, and a certain young man, who happened to be the little girl's brother, was all ready to go hunting. As he came into the room where his little sister was, to say good-bye to her, she looked up, saying. 'Oh, Jack, you're going hunting! 'I wish you wouldn't kill any more dear little rabbits,' and the big brother said, 'I am going 'way up among the hills to hunt for deer this time,' and the little girl cried a wee bit and begged him not to go; but he laughed and teased her until she laughed too, and when he went away he heard her singing once more to her

"'Dear little dimpled darling has never seen Christmas yet. "Now it happened that there were not very many deer in the woods, and that the hunters did not have good luck. The big brother tramped and tramped through the woods, but no deer did he see until the very last day. Then he happened to be all alone standing near a brook, when suddenhe heard the soft patter of feet, and on looking up there stood the prettiest little fawn you ever saw, right on the bank of the stream, a few vards from The big brother stood very still him. indeed and drew up his gun, took a good aim, and was just going to pull the trigger, when the deer began walk slowly toward him. She had beautiful large brown eyes, and for a minute they looked like your eyes his little sister's eyes, I mean-and he seemed to hear the song the little girl was singing when he left home, 'Dear little dimpled darling has never seen Christmas yet.' and—well, the fact is, he could not have killed that deer any more than he could have shot the little oirl if she had been standing there.

The deer came quite close to him, and then bounded away and was soon out of sight and quite safe."

That was so interesting, Jack, that I almost forgot that you were the 'big brother' and that I was the 'little girl.' It was brave of you not to kill her when you had such a good chance. I guess I really did save its life, because if it hadn't been for me you would have shot it, wouldn't vou?"
"I'm afraid so." answered Jack.

"You're a dear, dear brother, so you are and I'm awfully proud of you, and I'll tell the club about it, and they will be glad too."—The Outlook.

Lord God, Heavenly Father, bless unto us these thy gifts, which of thy tender kindness thou hast bestowed upon us; through Jesus Christ , our Lord. Amen.

Almighty God, Heavenly Father, we give thee thanks for all thy gifts and goodness; and pray thee, as thou feedest our bodies, so also keep our souls in the true faith and confession of thy name; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

We give thee thanks, O God, our Father, for all thy benefits, through Jesus Christ our Lord, who, with thee, liveth and reigneth; world without end.

Our Heavenly Father, sanctify to our use, we beseech thee, these provisions of thy love, and us to thyself and thy servce. Amen.

We accept, O Lord, these gifts as from thee, who art the giver of every good and perfect gift that descendeth from above. Teach us, in receiving them, as we live upon thy bounty, so to live in thy glory; for Christ sake. Amen.
