THE WAR IN SOUTH AFRICA

Discussed in the Senate by Hen. David Mii . and Sir Mackenzie Lowell.

Ottawa, March 2.-When the orders of the day were called in the senate yesterday, Hon. David Mills stated that since the senate's adjournment there had been great anxiety regarding the war. There was a powerful combination making ready for aggressive action on British soil. All felt it ould only end one way. A courageous enemy, however, had the opportunity of inflicting serious damage on the Fritish authority in South Africa. The British authorities had risen to the ccasion, as was expected. If they me with reverses the effect was only to make them put forth more effort, and today the prospect was brighter. Within a few days Kimberley had been plieved, and within the last few hours tiey learned that Ladysmith was also mieved, and the force so long shut up was at lib orty to assist in further operations. He was pleased to say that canada had taken a great interest in he matter. He alluded to the great forearance of Great Britain in regard to the treat-ment of the uitlanders. Forbearance had been carried too far, and instead of the Boers having been allowed to commence hostilities, Ghat Britain should have done so. British soldiers alone did not march to he relief of these places. Canadians had responded, and the result of this would be to strengthen the bonds between Canada and the motherland. The expenditure made by Canada in this chalf was as profitable an investment as she ever had been carried too far, and instead profitable an investment as she profitable an investment as she ever made. He was pleased a see Canada showing such bravery, to see her sons there, and though some of hem had lost their lives, and would be seen no more on this side, their spirit bould embrace the youth of this countr. He regretted to note that the son of the speaker was amongst the wound, but rejoiced that his wound was dry slight, and he hoped he would live o return and receive the honors the country would shower on him. No settlement could be made which did not ach whedge British supremacy.

Sir Mackenzie Bowell ejoiced in the position taken by Mr. Mills, and rechoed his sentiments. Ie rejoiced the more because the Canalans had played so important a part securing that his had been so long trampted. The which had been so longattempted. The part Canada had playedwas great, and the money expenditure as small. They all regretted that som had lost their lives, and hoped that pital would live to sturn in good health, and that the esult would be London, March 1.—A Ladysmith dis- Prince of Wales telegraphed his conpatch by heliograph to Colenso, says: A portion of the forces of Gen. Buller, headed by Lord Dundonald's forces, the full force of the Natal Carbineers, and seven companies of infantry, along with them some Dublin Fusiliers and Lancashires, have reached this city, and raised the siege. WHITE READY TO SALLY. Gen. White made preparations to sally out and aid the advance of the British, if it became necessary.

Dundonald reports that when the Lancashires charged on Pieter's Hill Tuesday they overtook the Boers flying from the trenches ,and bayoneted them. Sixteen of the fleeing men were killed and 23 wounded. The Boers, after the capture of Pieter's Hill, Tuesday, by Gen. Barton, with the Dublin Fusiliers and two battations of the sixth brigade, seemed to fade eway. There was no general retiring movement observable, but they simply disappeared as the British advanced Grobler's Kloof was abandoned, and his men, the road seemed to be entirely clear. Dundonald, with his troop of horse, was sent on a scouting expedi-tion to Weston on Tuesday night, and reconnoitered all that night. Wednesday morning he reported that he could reach Ladysmith, and the Natal Carbineers, with the Fusiliers and Lancashires, with several other companies. were placed under his command. They had little difficulty in making their way through the ravines and around the hills to the southwest of the city, and last evening crossed the plain, following the railroad track, and entered the city.

FRANTIC WITH JOY.

Their arrival was hailed with frantic joy by the besieged. At first it was thought they were the advance of Buller's main force, but this was not so. Buller, according to the relieving force, is rapidly moving north along the railroad from Pieter's Station, and expects to occupy Nelthorpe, four miles south of here, by tonight. It is expected Buller's main column will reach here tonight or tomorrow. The Boers have not made any demonstration from Bulwayana this morning. They unquestionably have retired in great numbers from the country surrounding Ladysmith, for, cording to Dundonald's reports, hills that had been occupied by enemy to the southwest were bare of Boers yesterday. JUST IN TIME. Dundonald came just in time. were in desperate straits for water to drink, and fevers of various kinds were making sad havoc among the members of the brave garrison. BULLER'S BRIEF STORY.

London, March 1 .- 7:02 p.m .- The folfollowing is Gen. Buller's dispatch:
"Nelthorpe, March 1-7:20 p.m.-I have just returned from Ladysmith. Except a small guard, north of Sur-prise Hill, the whole of the enemy lately besieging the town have retired in hot haste, and to the south of the town the country is quite clear of them. The garrison were on half a pound of meat per man a day, and were supplementing the meat ration by horses and mules. The men will want a little nursing before being fit for the

ESCAPE OF THE ECERS. London, March 2.-The Boers seem to have gotten quite away from around Ladysmith without losing a gun or their baggage. Van Reemen's Pass is only about 20 miles from Ladysmith. The enemy had artillery in action on Tuesday, and they probably utilized both railroads in retreating, sending heavy pieces to Pretoria and lighter ones into the Free State. The conditions at Ladysroith are now better understood, as the military authorities no longer retain their spe-cial information. It appears that since the middle of January the horses have been half-starved, and altogether too weak either to drag guns or to carry cavalrymen. Hence the impossibility of dashing out. THE QUEEN'S CONGRATULAS

LONDON THRILLED London, March 2-1:15 a.m.-Until midnight London gave itself up to the wildest expressions of joy. From the Mansion House to the West End all the leading thoroughfares were constantly paraded by cheering crowds, intermittently breaking into patriotic songs. Bands marched through the streets, assisted with strains of jubi-lation, and the same exultant notes were to be heard at every railway station or place of public gathering throughout the metropolis. The West End clubs, the cafes and restaurants and the public buildings were all brilliantly illuminated, and their interiors, even to the tables, were beautifully decorated with flags, bunting, and ingenious arrangements of electric lights. At all the music halls patriotic songs were given, the people rising and joining, amid scenes of unbounded enthusiasm. Hardly a person could be met with who was not wearing the national emblem. One striking feature is that great numbers of American mags were intertwined with the British AT MIDNIGHT. At 11 o'clock, when the theaters and music halls poured forth thousands, the cheering was doubled. In Trafalgar Square every space was filled, Neison's Column being occupied by a surging, singing, cheering crowd. All joined in "God Save the Queen," wildly applauding every reference to Roberts, Buller, White, Bagen-Fowell and the rest. The scene at this part was most striking incident, and is not likely to be forgotten by the people who witnessed it. A smaller demon-stration occurred in the vicinity of St. Paul's churchyard, where the peal of bells was rung in honor of the occasion. Pall Mall, the Strand and Cheapside echoed and re-ecnoed until long after midnight with the cheering of thousands. IN THE EARLY MORNING.

2 a.m.—Even now, at 2 o'clock in the morning, there comes from Mansion House Square every few minutes, the sound of vigorous cheering. Every-where groups of people can be seen, and although noisy, they are perfectly orderly. From every part of the empire there is a perfect influx of telegrams describing the rejoicings. LORD LANSDOWNE'S REMARKS

The Manquis of Lansdowne, replying, in the House of Lords, to congratulations and a question, prefaced his announcement of the relief of Ladysmith by saying the news has at last removed the fear of an impending calamity. He did not know whether most admiration should be given to Gen. White and the gallant defenders of Ladysmith, or to the brave men under Gen. Buller, or to Lord Roberts, to whose vigorous and successful offensive movement was due to the fact that pressure on Natal was relieved. Continuing, Lord Roberts said: "The two victories will not be made the pretext for relaxation of our efforts, which will not be relaxed. In the week ending March 3 eight ships will leave England, carrying 4,700 men; during the week ending March 10, fifteen ships, carrying 11,800 men will leave for South Africa; during the week ending March 18, eleven ships with 9,900 men will sail. Finally, during the week ending March six ships, carrying 3,200 men, will sail, totalling about 38,800 men, and during the following month about 17 .-800 men will be ready, for which ships have not yet been allotted. The stream of reinforcement will not run dry.'

MEN AND MONEY.

The Marquis of Lansdowne has issued the following explanatory memorandum: The estimates have been framed under the following adverse conditions: (a) Provision has to be made for carrying on the war in South Africa; (b) it has been decided to make an addition at once to the permanent strength of the army; (c) temporary measures will have to be authorized for increasing the defense of the United Kingdom. As regards the vote for men, £212,449 may be regarded as a permanent balance due to the war and to the special measures for home defense. It is estimated that the expenditure of £61,449,400 is accounted for as follows: Normal estimate, £21,-777,700; permanent addition to the army, £1.925,000; temporary home defense, £6,228,000, and war charges, £31.568,700.

The army estimates issued last night show a total expenditure of £61,499,400, an increase over last year of £40,882,-The total number men is placed at 430.000, an increase over last year of 245,147. The new estimates include the sums of £10,-000,000 and £13,000,000 already voted for

Lord Roberts.

REPORTED AT BLOEMFONTEIN. London, March 1 .- It is reported that Lord Roberts has reached Bloemfontein, the Free State capital. The war office is mute on the subject.

THE TWO COMMANDERS. A dispatch from Paardeberg, Orange Free State, says: It was a picturesque scene when Gen. Cronje was brought to Roberts. A heavy-shouldered, almost hump-backed man, heavily bearded, heavy lipped, clad in farmer-like drab, wearing a broad-brimmed felt hat, lumbered along on a little gray Boer pony, followed by an escort of Lancers. Dismounting, he found himself before little, wiry, close-knit Roberts. It was the greatest contrast possible, Roberts, who was wearing his sword, received the Boer general with a dig-nity that made him look six feet high.

Gen. Cronje bore himself with dignified simplicity. Cronje said it was impossible for him to hold out against the position which the British had gained, and he had to recognize the inevitable. The Boer leader showed no emotion at his situation, accepting it with fortitude, even occasionally smiling grimly. He had had a very uncomfortable time. said he had lost terribly. war office, announced that Gen. Cronje

The Enemy

CONCENTRATING. Paardeberg, Orange Free State, Feb. 28 .- It is understood that some 7.000 Boers are concentrating on the British front. The British cavalry is in touch with them to the eastward, and skirmishing began this morning. London, March 2 .- Dr. Leyds says Gen. Joubert is assembling 50,000 men at Wynberg, 70 miles northwest of Bloemfontein. Col. Albrecht, according to a dispatch from Paardeberg, affirms that the Boers have 75,000 men left. Whether Lord Roberts is at Blbemfontein or not, he doubtless soon will be dating his dispatches there. and using the town as his advanced

The Tide Turned.

A BRIGHT OUTLOOK. London, March 2 .- Mr. Spencer Wilkinson, in the Morning Post, says: Lord Roberts has taken the true measure of the Boers, and has thereby shown his mastery of what Napoleon called the "divine part of art of war." No doubt the chapter of British reverses is now closed. He would be a bold strategist who could now offer to the Boer leaders a plan of campaign promising ultimate success. Lord Roberts will soon have a force of 60,000 The Boer commander-in-chief can now hope for but little from strate-On his interior lines he is not strong enough, while containing one British army, to strike with effect against the other. He may possibly attempt to hold Gen. Buller at the passes leading out of Natal, where a small force, at some risk to itself, can cause considerable delay. Meantime he may gather his forces in the Free State resistance to Lord Roberts. If

Mr. Fielding's $2.000.000 Resolution Re the Canadian Contingents Passes the House-Mr. Wallace Attacks the Minister of Public Works.

Ottawa, March 1 .- Hon. Mr. Fielding's $2,000,000 resolution for the partial paying and equipment of the Canadian contingents in South Africa passed the house today after a somewhat lengthy discussion. The resolution went into committee shortly before 6 o'clock, and was reported just before midnight. An amendment by Mr. Bourassa to strike out the clause authorizing the payment of the difference between Canadian and imperial rates of pay received the support of only three members of the house.

Mr. Russell (Halifax) resumed the debate on the address. He discussed fully the questions connected with the South African war, and thought it would have been criminal for the leader of the government to move in a matter involving a usurpation of the functions of parilament until he was convinced that he had the support, not only of an overwhelming majority, but the practical unanimity of the people of Canada. He was in hearty sympathy with the resolution, and thought the time was not far distant when British freedom and British justice would prevail in South Africa. Mr. Bennet (East Simcoe) charged the minister of public works with be-ing responsible for the delay in sending the contingents. He also spoke of the seething condition of public opinion against the inaction of the government. The Liberals, in the speaker's opinion, were determined to set race against race.

The motion that the speaker leave the chair was then carried, and the house went into committee upon the resolution.

After recess the discussion of the resolutions was resumed in committee. In reply to a question by Mr. Oliver, Dr. Borden said that the allowances to dependents was as follows: Sergeants, 50 cents for wife and 5 cents for each child per diem; corporals, wife 35 cents and 5 cents per child; privates, 25 cents for wife and 5 cents for child. The number of dependents of the men in the first contingent is as follows: Sergeants, 13 wives and 24 children; corporals, 9 wives, 15 children; pri-vates, 37 wives and 61 children.

In addition to this allowance the gov-ernment had decided to supplement the imperial rate of pay by an amount equal to the difference between the imperial and Canadian scale of pay. Sir Louis Davies explained that it was proposed to augment the pay received by the Canadians from the Imperi-al Government. In addition, their families would receive the amount allowed to married men by the Queen's as given by Montagu White, the Boer

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said the volunteers had enlisted at the imperial rates paid to Tommy Atkins himself, to whom they did not consider themselves superior. It was not for pay, but out of a sense of duty Canadians volunteered. Mr. Clarke Wallace was not surprised at Mr. Bourassa's resolution, since the education received by that gentleman at the hands of the pre-mier and the minister of public works had prepared them for it. However, he was able to send to the war office the next day the cable that

On Nov 9th the Boers made an at tack in force, but were driven back with losses estimated at between 700 and 800 men. The British losses were remarkably small. For the next month the Boers left White's army severely alone, contenting themselves with keeping up the daily bombardment and cutting off all supplies to the town.

On Dec. 8th the correspondent of the times at Ladysmith sent a dispatch saying: "The situation here is becom-ing graver every day. The enemy is keeping up a more systematic artillery fire and is concentrating it on given points, with the result that consider-able damage has been done. Yesterday the fifty-second shell landed near the hospitals, whose windows, walls, and roof now hang in pieces. A shrapnel shell pierced the roof and flung its bullets among the ill and wounded orderlies. It killed one and wounded seven others. Though every street is now pitted with holes, it is astonishing the escapes that are daily reported. A soldier escaped unhurt, although a shell passed so near him that a blast tore his shirt to ribbons.

SUCCESSFUL SORTIE. On Dec. 9, General White found that the Boer investment was becoming too close for comfort, and accordingly a sortie was made under Gen. Hunter. He surprised a Boer battery on Lombard's Kop, destroyed two guns and captured another. The Boer telegraph wires were also cut. The British loss in the engagement was one killed and one wounded. Since Nov. 11 the British losses in the bombardment had been 8 killed and 44 wounded.

A Strong Reply.

It appears that a Mr. Alban E. Ragg, of Toronto, wrote a letter on the situation in Canada, which appeared in the Outlook for Jan. 27. We did not notice that letter at the time, but we are glad to see that though appearing ability as a place to live in increased. in a journal belonging to our neighbors, it has called forth a vigorous reply from Mr. A. S. Hurst, of Clark University, of Worcester, Mass. We do not know who Mr. Ragg is or what purpose he thinks he can serve, but we think he might be better emto the state of things in his own counvalue, for they are recognized to be fact, as Mr. Hurst shows, the "panic" and "crisis" which Mr. Ragg says has ists in the imagination of the writer and the columns of certain hysterical

No sensible man thinks of charging "disloyalty" upon those who believe that It would have been better to have called Parliament for a special citting as soon as it was necessary to send troops to take part in the defense of the Empire. The most enthusiastic imperialist, if he has any power of political intelligence, will see that this is a fair subject for difference of opinion. When this gentleman, who undertakes to enlighten the American Republic, says that Mr. Tarte "publicly denounced those of his own party who were in favor of sending a contingent to South Africa," his statement is rightly branded as false. To ignore the enthusiastic manifestations of lowalty of Quebec and attach supreme importance to the irresponsible utterances of La Semaine Religeuse are again evidence of unfairness and violent party spirit.

We do not wish to make this a matter of party at all, as we believe that the best men of all parties see the importance of soberness in these great subjects and wish to avoid the stirring up of race prejudice, but we are compelled to admit that with regard to many of the most bitter partizans, the closing paragraph of Mr. Hurst's letter is substantially true: "The fact the sentiment expressed in the letter of Mr. Ragg is that of a disappointed party, who have heretofore walked hand in hand with those now muchhated French-Canadians, but who now seek to regain office by setting race against race. But their attempt will fail. The race question is forever buried in Canada, and when the electors have an opportunity to express their opinion of any attempt to revive it they will do so as a united people. Healthy Stimulus.

We are often reminded that war increases our knowledge of geography by giving a living interest to places little known or unheard of before. Of course, ployed than in scattering through the lessons in geography can be got at a United States misrepresentations as cheaper rate, even if not with the same vividness and power. There is another try. At home the kind of remarks he direction, however, in which the preshad to offer are taken at the true ent war exercises a healthy stimulus, namely, in the direction of historical the outcome of strong party spirit. In research. Many of the articles now appearing in journals and reviews are one-sided statements, with more heat arisen in Canadian politics, only ex- than light in them. While war is actually raging it is difficult for men to divest themselves of national prejudice and party passion. The Briton or Dutchman who has his friends and relatives exposed day by day to deadly peril can with difficulty look calmly at the matter. In fact, we are not inclined to think that too much calmness is a virtue in such a case.

The relation of Boer and Briton which has now developed into a war of such serious sequence, has now extended over more than a century. For our history of South Africa during that period we are indebted to a Dutch historian, and it is not to be wondered at, if under the circumstances, the British representatives have not always been fairly treated. The records of Cape Colony for the earliest part of the perfod are now published, but are only accessible for a few, hence it requires much time and care for a man to traverse this long period and form an independent judgment on the question of British policy in South Africa.

We are inclined to think that on the whole the British representatives bear the scrutiny well, though the same cannot always be said for British policy. It is generally admitted that the policy, though well intentioned, and on the whole, benevolent, has been weakened by sudden changes under the pressure of changing public opinion in Britain. This is one of the disadvantages of democracy, but we feel sure that notwithstanding what has been called the "zig-zag policy," of alternate advance and withdrawal, the people have fared better than they would under the representatives of a despotic

The British colonial governors from the first seem to have allowed as much freedom as possible, and consulted as far as possible the feeling of the Dutch. London, March 2.—A special correspondent, telegraphing from Paardeberg, Feb. 27, says: A curious piece of news has just been related to me by Gen. Cronje's aide-de-camp. It appears that Cronje was in daily heliographic communication with Gen, De Wet, who, he supposed, was bringing up reinforcements. Yesterday Cronje helio-graphed that unless he was relieved immediately he would feel bound to surrender. "Gen. De Wet replied with a cheering message, urging him to hold on longer, and that he would soon be relieved, but totally failed to effect any diversion." The mounted infantry today reconnoitered the Boers appreaching from the south, and after drawing a shell they returned. The prisoners all appear to regard the blow as severer than it is regarded by the British. Gen. Cronje's aide-decamp stated that he believed the Free State would continue to fight as long as the Transvaal wished. On the other hand, many Free Staters are anxiously asking for copies of Lord Roberts' proclamation. PRESS COMMENT.

London, March 2 .- The editorials in the morning newspapers are not only jubilant, but are written in a tone of confidence in the future, which contrasts strongly with the gloomy forebodings of the previous six weeks. THE COMMANDER AT KIMBER-LEY.

Kimberley, March 1.-Lord Roberts and Lord Kitchener arrived here this morning and were warmly welcomed by the municipal officials and thanked for the successful relief of the town. Lord Roberts said that it had given him much pleasure to assist Kimberley in her time of need, and that he was glad he had an opportunity of visiting the town. He found that he had a day off, so he came, but would have to leave tonight. There is great excitement and re-

A Page in the Ontario Legislature Started the Cheering.

Premier's Jubilant Words-Speaker Evanturel Joins In.

Toronto, March 2.-The glorious news of the relief of Ladysmith was received with great rejoicing at the Ontario Legislature yesterday. As soon as the speaker had taken the chair, and prayers were over, the members of the assembly rose as if animated by a com-mon impulse, and sang "God Save the Queen." The spectators in the galleries also joined in rendering the "National Amthem." Then Premier Ross voiced the feeling of gladness which was felt on the ministerial side, and Mr. Whitney followed suit on behalf of the Conservatives. It was most appropriate that Speaker Evanturel, a French-Canadian, should join in the expression of jubil-ation on behalf of the people of his race. While the premier was speaking a nimble-footed page slipped to the front and waved a Union Jack. The action was noticed and evoked an outburst of applause. Then the youngster retired and placed the flag on the desk to the speaker's right.

Premier Ross said: "I desire to voice the pleasure, which I am sure is shared by every member of the house, at the great success with which British arms were crowned by the relief of Lady-smith. (Cheers.) For over three months a small band of British soldiers have resisted the attacks of a large army of the enemy. They have shown by their courage and heroism the sterling stock of which British soldiers are made. For the same period of time, during which, I believe, a section of our Canadian forces assisted, an attempt has been made to relieve them. That atempt has at last been crowned with success. (Cheers.) The news of this victory, I am sure, will be received in Canada with the same enthusiasm with which it will be greeted in every other part of the empire. (Cheers.) I rise to express sincerely the pleasure 27.000 bushels; corn, 247.000 bushels; oats, 193. With reference to the present occasion, not the slightest cause for our satisfaction, and joy is that we know that not only will good come of it, but the share which our oung men have taken is glorious. Loud cheers.)

There were loud cries of "Mr. Speaker." and in response his honor rose. He said: "I feel that I can add nothing to the sentiments of loyalty and of joy which this province has re-echoed through the mouths of the premier on the one hand and the leader of the Conservative party on the other. There is no race in Canada today that has learned with a keener feeling of gratification of the precious news which has reached us from South Africa than the race to which I belong." (Cheers.) He referred to what he termed "a temptation without a parallel in the history of the world. The Americans sent to France for Gen. Lafayette, who brought to the frontier of the great nation to the south the flag of my race, the flag under whose fo is we had been born, and addressed to them this appeal: Why not come back to your own flag This flag which they call the Union Jack or Royal Standard of England, you have never seen it upon your shores. Come back to us. I, Lafay-ette, represent on behalf of these people, liberty, equality and fraternity.' Then a voice was heard, the voice of the good Bishop of Quebec, among the French-Canadian soldiers. Advancing to the front, the bishop spoke to the soldiers, and told them: 'This flag may tempt you, and the laws of nature may tempt you, to place yourselves beneath its fold, but do not forget that yesterday you swore fealty to the flag which is to be the flag of this country, and that if you withdraw your allegiance from it now, Providence would with-draw from you the blessings which you may expect.' The appeal was answered, and the French-Canadians, I adjoining planing mill at Stratford am delighted to say, especially in the city of Toronto, took up their muskets and drove before them the soldiers of Benedict Arnold and Montgomery. (Cheers.) * * * Permit me to say, In conclusion, there is no race within the precincts of this legislature to make a stronger appeal or give more one box of Pharmelee's Vegetable rais satisfaction than that to which belongs the first commoner of the province,' (Loud cheers.)

DEBATE ON THE ADDRESS. The debate on the address was resumed by Mr. Carscallen, who said the people of Ontario had to thank the Liberal party for the fact that the country had lost millions of dollars, and was fifty years behind the times. Mr. Graham, of Brockville, followed. Speaking on the pulp wood industry, he thought it had a great future. If the paper manufacturers of the Docombined to raise the price, he would feel strongly like urging the Dominion government to take off the protection which the paper interests en-joyed. As to Mr. Dryden's letter to Mr. Tooley, he thought it was just such a letter as any member of the house would send to any constituent who had West Elgin, Mr. Graham claimed, was the Alpha and Omega of the opposition's policy.

Messrs. Boyd and Lumsden (Liberal,

Attention to Dodd's Kidney Pills. Duntroon, Feb. 26 .- Mr. A. N. Wideman's case has been attracting a great deal of attention lately. Mr. Wideman is a resident of this place, and consequently well known here. His case was truly remarkable. For five months he lay in bed, bent, twisted, distorted by rheumatism. He was actually in agony, sometimes screaming with pain. Bed sores came out on his body, one of which was poulticed 500 times before it healed. Until Mr. Wideman started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills it was thought that death was the only way out of his misery.

Mr. Wideman was treated by doctors to no avail. They gave him medicine containing mercury, which made his teeth break off, but which absolutely failed to cure him. Mr. Wideman was cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills. His case is regarded as the most severe on record, and his cure by Dodd's Kidney Pills is the most successful cure of rheumatism known. Mr. Wideman gets letters from all over the country, inquiring about Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Miss Esther Eastman, of Montrose, is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Esther Eastman. A railroad meeting was held here on Monday night, and a large number of ratepayers of the town and different municipalities were present. G. M. Everest was chairman, and gave a lengthy speech describing the great benefit a railroad would be to Arkona and vicinity. He also stated that this English company would build the road from Caradoc station, through Strathroy, Adelaide village and on to Arkona the government grant of $3,200 per mile and the small sum of $1,000 per mile, which they ask Strathroy, different townships and Arkona to give as a bonus. A vote was taken to find out who would be willing to pay a small sum yearly for twenty years, il a bonus should be given, and the whole audience rose in response. Dr. Jaynes, of California, one of our old boys, was called on, and he gave an illustration of how a town situated similar to Ar-kona, in California, was benefited by a company putting a line through. The town grew from 300 or 400 to over 2,000 in a very short time. A great many gave their views, and expressed readiness to do their share. Mr. Casselman spoke of the benefit a railroad would be to us, and also stated that the great water-power we have just a mile from town, would soon be used for electric lights. He also referred to the paint dirt, which could be burned and made into paint; also the clay for brick. Mr. Casselman is one who tries to look a long way ahead. The meeting closed with everybody feeling quite jubilant

Hensall, March 2 .- News of the relief of Ladysmith was received here shortly after noon, and in honor of the long-looked-for event the school was dismissed, business men ran up all available flags, besides firing off many explosives, led by W. J. Miller, who had a big stock on hand. It was decided to hold a patriotic concert in Coxworth's Hall in the evening, for which an abundance of talent offered, and a programme was drawn up as

New York, March 2.- Special cables to the morning papers deal considerably with the cost of the relief of Ladysmith to the British forces. One lict of the late James Hamilton, who was, with his wife, one of the earliest settlers of London. Mr. Hamilton was says that the tabulation of the British losses consequent on the 118 days of at one time manager of the old Bank the siege shows: White's loss-Killed and wounded in battle, 1,580; captured, 1,070. Buller's loss-Killed and woundruary, as compared with that month ed, 3,056; captured, 756. Total loss-White and Buller, 6,912.

CHURCHILL'S STORY. Of the actual relief of Ladysmith, Winston Churchill sends an interesting account, in which he says:

During the afternoon of the 28th, cavalry brigades pressed forward from Murdoch toward Bulwana Hill, under Dundonald, in the direction of Ladysmith. The Boers fired on the advanced from the second for vancing troops with artillery, stationed on Bulwana Hill.

About 4 p.m. Major Gough's regiment, which was in advance, found that the ridges surrounding and concealing Ladysmith were apparently un-occupied. He reported this to Dundon-ald, who thereupon determined to ride through the gap and reach the town with two squadrons of the Imperial Light Horse and Carbineers. The rest of the brigade was sent back to Gen. Buller's picket line. When we started for Ladysmith there was only an hour of daylight left.

A CHALLENGE.

The troops galloped on swiftly in spite of the rough ground, up and down hill, through dongas and scrub, till they could see the British guns flashing from Wagon Hill. Then it was faster, till suddenly there was a challenge:
"Who goes there?" "The Ladysmith relieving army," was the reply. The tattered and almost bootless men of Ladysmith crowded around, cheering very feebly. Even in the gloom one could see how thin and pale they look-where they met White, Hunter, Hamilton and all the heroes of the defense. WHAT CANADA CAN DO.

Following the report that Joseph Chamberlain had asked how many men could be spared from that colony to go to South Africa in case the imperial troops were needed elsewhere, the Times has a special from Toronto. which says that Mr. Chamberlain some time ago asked the same question of Canada, and a reply was sent that she could send 10,000. In addition, Canada would garrison Halifax, Esquimalt, Newfoundland, and the British West Indies. CRONJE AT CAPE TOWN. Cape Town, March 2.—Gen. Cronje and his party were received by Gen. Sir Forestier-Walker and a representative of Sir Alfred Milner, the governor of Cape Colony.

A THRILLING SCENE. London, March 2.-Col. Rhodes, brother of Cecil Rhodes, describing in the Times the entry into Ladysmith of Lord Dundonald and 600 men of the Imperial Light Horse and Natal Carbineers, on Feb. 28, says:

"It is impossible to depict the enthusiasm of the beleaguered garrison. Cheer upon cheer ran from post to post, and staff officers, civilians and soldiers flocked to greet them. At the ford of the Klip River women with children in their arms tearfully pressed forward to grasp the hands of the gallant band. Sisters and brothers, friends and relatives, met again. It was the most moving scene I have ever witnessed. The contrast between the ro bust troopers of a dozen battles, and the pale, emaciated defenders of Ladydled at the postoffice here, the usual amount handled during the night being about 90 tons. The storm has caused the most complete tie-up of railroad traffic this winter. The local traffic this winter. smith, was great. The hour for which we had so patiently walted had come troops in the center of the town. He was cheered with heartfelt enthusiasm. He addressed the civilians and thanked them and the garrison for their magnificent support through trials which we alone can realize. We could possibly have hung on for six weeks longer, but the privations would ed by the Battle Creek Sanitarium have been great, and sickness and the Health Food Company, should con-paucity of our ammunition would have the number of assaults we would have been able to resist.

LOSSES. "We originally started the siege with 12,000 troops, 2,000 civilians and 4,000 natives. Between casualties and sickness, 8,000 soldiers passed through the hospital. It is impossible to estimate the privations of the sick. Since the middle of January, a man once down was practically lost. The reduced rations of the soldiers just sufficed for their subsistence. 30 old horses and mules were slaughtered and converted into soup and sausages. From Jan. 15 to now there have been over TWO HUNDRED DEATHS FROM DISEASE ALONE.

"The last fortnight saw the majority of the field batteries unhorsed and the guns permanently posted in our de-fenses. The cavalry and drivers were converted into infantry and sent to the trenches. Mr. Tarte Going to Paris-A Great Snowstorm.

[Special to The Advertiser per C.P.R.] Ottawa, March 2.-Hon. Mr. Tarte will leave for Paris about the 15th of March. He will represent Canada and the Canadian government at the exposition for about four or five weeks, and expects to be back at the end of April or the first of May.

The house will not be prorogued until about May 24, so that the minister of public works will be back in time to consider any matters of importance that may come up in parliament in connection with his department. He played a farmer character, and used circus methods to exploit himself, with such success that he not only became wealthy himself, but formed a school of imitators, who have since worked the game to death. One of his methods of exploiting himself was to wear an abundance of diamonds. He wore more of the gems than any actress. They decorated his clothing in every possible way. It was often said he had from $50,000 to $75,-000 worth of jewels on his person, and it is probably true that he actually did at times wear on occasions gems to the value of $25,000.

THE TRIUMPH OF TRUE LOVE

They fell first upon the proud, imperious face of an elderly lady, the mother of the earl, the Hon. Mrs. Gerald Selwyn, a lady who sits calm and erect. There is not a bend in her agure, not a wrinkle in her calm, outrician face; one can see that she is proud to a fault, scrupulous, ambiti-ous, worldly, and fond of life. She wears a dress of silver-gray silk, and white head-dress. Her face is a fine one, with little trace of care up-

Calm, proud, stately Mrs. Selwyn! her heart cold and haughty as her face, with only one weakness in her nature, and that is her blind, pasclonate worship of her only son. worship that is neither more nor less than pure idolatry, for she gives no thought away from him. As she sits her eyes linger on his portrait, a picture painted when he wore the uniform of the Queen's Own. The unbeams fall there, too, brightening the dark, handsome face into wondrous beauty. Mrs. Selwyn always sits where she can see that picture; it is the next best thing to seeing her

The sunbeams fall on something else on the proud, high-bred face of a young girl, who is arranging some lilies so as to form a bouquet-on a beautiful oval face, with a short upper lip, and a fresh, ripe under one, with clear, calm, proud eyes, and straight brows-a girl with a long, graceful white throat and small white hands, with every mark of race about hera thorough patrician; no smining, dimpled beauty, full of wild, fresh impulse, such as Violante Temple. A court beauty, this—an aristocrat, with all the haughty lovetiness and dignity She wears no jewels, few ornaments, but a plain white morn-ing dress, that is cosed up to the throat and falls in long, graceful folds down to the pretty little feet.

And this young lady, who moves with such calm, serene, proud grace, is called Beatrice Leigh. She is the Mrs. Selwyn, and cousin of Lord Vivian.

Cousin once removed. Mrs. Selwyn had a step-sister, a fair, timid, gentle girl, who married young, and went abroad with her husband, Col. Leigh. The colonel died in Canada; his young wife did not long survive him, and she left her little daughter Beatrice as a legacy to Mrs. Selwyn.

Next to her own son, Mrs. Selwyn loved Beatrice Leigh better than anyone else in the world, and from the first moment the child entered her home, she had one wish, and it was, that her proud, beautiful niece should marry her son.

As children, Vivian and Beatrice spent much of their time together. When he finally went to Oxford and then into the army, they were separat. ed. Vivian retaining for his beautiful little playfellow a warm, kindly, brotherly affection. She, fed by his mother's continual praises of him, and constant reiteration of her wishes, gradually came to love the brave young captain better than all the besides.

If Mrs. Selwyn had kept her wishes to herself, no harm would have been done. As it was, she talked most unreservedly to the girl. She rejoiced In the peerless, patrician beauty that day by day became more and more de-

'Vivian will see no one in India like you, my dear." she would say; "you are sure to win his heart at once when he returns; then I shall have nothing left to wish for-when I see my son at the Castle, and you the Countess of Belwyn."

So the girl grew up to believe implicitly in her destiny. She was to be Vivian's wife. The same picture that charmed Mrs. Selwyn was her constant resource. She spent many hours before it, until the dark, handsome face was so deeply engraven on her heart, nothing could again. She was a beautiful girl, of a haughty, determined, passionate nature; and with the whole force of the passion that was in her-with the whole strength of a strong soul-she loved Lord Vivian Selwyn.

She looks very fair and serene, as the sunbeams kiss the beautiful face and the white dress; her hair, dark and shining like the wing of a rare bird, is braided round the beautiful head, after the fashion of a Grecian statue, leaving the two pretty, pearly ears to be seen.

'Letters!" cried Beatrice, as the foot-"I wonder if Vivian has man entered. written; if he is still lingering at that wonderful place—what is it—Wood-eaves, in Leicestershire? What poseaves, in Leicestershire? What pos-sible attraction can he find there? Ah, this is his handwriting, I am sure." From a number of envelopes she selected the one having his writing upon it. Mrs. Selwyn smiled as she

"How quickly you have found that, Beatrice!" she cried. "Now, what does he say?"

She read the letter hastily. "He is coming tonight," she went on; "and, Beatrice, he says he has a surprise for us. What can it be?"
"A surprise!" she cried, a sudden gleam of light making her face still more lovely; "perhaps he has brought you something, aunty" But Mrs. Selwyn shook her head.

"I do not fancy that is it," she replied. "I fancy, Beatrice, it is, comething about himself. What has he been staying at this place for? Listen to what he says. I hope to be with you on Tuesday night; prepare yourself, dear mother, for a surprise, that will, I hope, be a pleasant one. What can this surprise be, Beatrice?" continued Mrs. Selwyn; "he has done something that he hopes will please me, rely upon it." Beatrice had regained all her calm.

"We shall know tonight, aunt," she said quietly; "and the day is too warm for conjectures."

CHAPTER VI. The clock on the Castle tower had struck seven, the cook had sent more than one message to say that dinner was ready, and the Honorable Mrs. Selwyn, who had expected her son at six, began to grow anxious.

The table was laid in the large dining-room, the servants were hurrying about, all desirous alike of seeing the young master, who was beloved

Mrs. Selwyn was dressed in a rich brown brocade, with golden orna-ments, and looked what she was-a thorough English gentlewoman, a perfect patrician.

Beatrice Leigh looked more than usually beautiful. She remembered a liking Vivian had once expressed for seeing her in high dresses. She had discarded the usual dinner dress, and wore a robe of rich Indian muslin, that covered the statuesque neck and pearly shoulders-covered them, that is, with consummate art, for through the fine filmy lace they looked doubly fair. A string of rare pearls was fast-ened round her graceful head, the rich, dark hair was arranged in soft, shining bands, and one deep crimson rose was placed in the bodice of her white dress. It was a simple toilet, that could have suited a beautiful woman, and it did suit Beatrice Leigh to peromorrow "Neither," replied Miss Leigh, with smile. "I can hear carriage wheels. Why, aunt, you are unlike yourself. I never saw you so nervous."

"He is my only son," was the quiet ply. "He is all I have in the world, Beatrice. No wonder if I am anxious over him. You are right; he is here."

The carriage wheels stopped—there was a confused noise; the barking of dogs, the hurrying of servants; then the drawing-room door opened, and Vivian entered. He looked very handsome in his traveling dress. He went up to Mrs. Selwyn and kissed her. 'I am late," he said; "but there was a delay in the Thornleigh train. How well you look, mother: Then he turned to Beatrice, and as he looked at her he started with sur-

Enthusiasm of Citizens Finds Spontaneous Expression in the Fanfare of Trumpets and the Glare of Fireworks.

A Day of Jubilation Brought to an Ecstatic Close-Demon. strations of a Loyal Multitude-A Monster Procession and a Colossal Bonfire.

In an eestasy of exultation Londoners, last evening, concluded a day spent in celebrating British successes in South Africa. From the time the stores and factories closed, early in the day, the people generally had but one purpose in mind-to celebrate. And even while the stores were open that purpose was greatly in evidence, for the chief business done was in the sale of flags, tin horns, and patriotic emblems. Many of the mercantile houses closed early in the afternoon, and the pandemonium which was let loose in the morning the instant the news of the relief of Ladysmith became general, and raged with increased vigor. Rigs, lavishly decorated with the national colors, and drawn by one, two or four horses, traversed the city streets. Some contained ten or a dozen lusty-lunged young men, with ear-splitting horns and kazoos, the sounds from which rose above the general din. At the corner of Dundas and Richmond streets there was continuously, from early morning until after midnight, a smiling, cheering, flag-bedecked, horn-tooting throng. In the evening, as the time for the procession to start drew near, the crowds there, and similar crowds all along the line of march, grew in density. Walking along the sidewalks in the principal streets in the center of the city was a slow job. Apparently the one aim of the entire population was to jubilate. Men, women and children congregated by thousands, and everybody wore a flag, ribbon, badge, or other patriotic emblem. Rockets shot from upper story windows of the business places, cavorted over head, and the people craned their necks to witness the spectacle. Red fire was burned in great quantities, and shed a continual glare over the thronged streets. The city was merally ablaze. and it is doubtful if London's 40,000 inhabitants could have blazoned their loyalty to the British Empire in any way more pronounced, for the wild enthusiasm which characterized the conduct of the people was as spontaneous as it was general.

FORMING THE PARADE. 7 o'clock in the evening About crowds of people began to assemble in men, and those who were to participate in the procession were nearly all at the hall half an hour afterwa and as they assembled the crowds be-came larger and larger on the adjacent streets and in the park across the road. The men who formed the country's defense in the times that have gone by gathered in the east end of the shed. Gray-haired veterans of '66 and '85 were there. Men who have lost the elastic step and hardy strength of former days, but whose love of their country is as strong as They were the men of the days that are past, but they evidenced their determination that their aid would still be given, should it become necessary. Behind these were the ex-members of the 6th Field Battery of Ar-tillery, who were especially noticeable on account of the old-fashioned knapsacks they carried on their backs. Then came a representation from the First Hussars, with No. 1 Company, R. C. R. I., in the rear, and behind them again were paraded the 7th Fusiliers. These latter made a splen-did showing in their great coats. They were about 200 strong. All these were in the hall, while upon the streats outside congregated the other bodies who were to march. East of Wellington the fire department were stationed. In front of them were the civic authorities, while on other streets nearby there were the cadets, the citizens, the bands and the vehicles. On all streets was the ubiquitous small boy. Seemingly he ruled the city. He rode upon street cars, asking no permission to, and still he was unmolested. The blare of his horn was rending every ear. On all sides there was felt his noisy, squirming, healthy presence. While the crowds were waiting for the procession to start they relieved monotony of the proceedings by the same fan-fare of trumpets, and by cheers and cries similar to those that had been heard continuously on the streets throughout the day. He who made the loudest noise, and certainly he who made a noise that differed from others was a person of distinction. It must be admitted that the boys carried off the honors, not because of a lack of competition, for their grown-up brothers, their fathers, yes, even their sisters and mothers, rivalled them in the variety of their noise-producing endeavors. Staid citizens threw themselves into the joyous jubilation with unrestrained energy. Like the Kaffirs of all ages, every man was a boy last night. ON THE MOVE. The order to move off was given shortly after 8 o'clock, and the procession started. Two mounted men rode in front to warn the people from blocking the streets. They were fol-lowed by Col. Gartshore and Chief of Police Williams, who marched at the head of some 30 stalwart policemen. Then came the veterans and the exmembers of the battery. In these groups there were seen the following well-known soldiers of former days: Messrs. H. Pratt, J. Forster, A. Brown, E. Fitzgerald, R. Poulton, W. H. Chit-tick, N. J. Graham, J. K. O'Connor, J. Waters, J. Mills, J. Donnelly, F. Beas-ley, J. Hance, H. Herbert, John Pugh, S. Spicknell, J. Johnston, O. Richard-son, George Hislop, R. Southam, G. Angus, Robert Wigmore. John Wildern, W. Smith, George Taylor, and of the artillerymen there were W. L. Luca H. C. Smyth, Thomas Wilson, J. Case, J. Smith, L. Leigh, J. Moliand, J. Jury, J. Christie, G. B. Hatris, J. Colerick, H. C. Colerick, J. Webb, H. Wallace, W. Burleigh, P. Parsons, J. Parks, R. Robinson, George Webb, G. B. Clampitt, R. Patton, S. Webb, S. Duckett, R. Scott, T. Wilson, H. Livermore and J. Pike. They carried a banner upon which their name was written, together with the inscription: "All we have left" This combined treatment is unapproachable as an effective method of permanently curing catarrh and ridding the system of every symptom or trace of this distressing, debilitating and dangerous disease.

THE SALUTE. While arrangements were being completed at the hall, the Sixth Field Battery paraded at their gun shed. About 50 men were present, and were under the command of Lieut. George Wilson. Four guns were hauled out onto the street, and were manned. When all was in readiness, a short time after 8 o'clock, the order was given to load with blank ammunition. Soon the resounding boom of the gun was heard throughout the city, and the first of a salute of 21 guns had been fired. Every few seconds the heavy roar was repeated, until the required number of shots had been fired. Then the guns were restored to their places and the men went to participate in the events that were occurring down town. While on the march the following order was maintained:

The route taken was Central avenue Richmond, Richmond to York, York to Talbot, Talbot to Dundas, Dundas to Wellington, and so to Victoria Park. All along the line of march the streets were lined with cheering thousands, who gave vent to their enthusiasm in bursts of patriotic fervor. Most of the buildings along the route were illum-inated, showing up to great advan-tage the brilliant decorations that were everywhere displayed. The scene was further enhanced by the copious use of red fire and fireworks, which made the streets as bright as day. Rockets and Roman candles were discharged in an endless stream from some of the vehicles of the fire department, their efforts being supplemented all along the way by citizens, who discharged fireworks of all descriptions. And there were flags-flags everywhere. Minia-ture flags in the hatband, flags carried in the hand, and waved enthusiastically, or stuck in a buttonhole; flags pinned across the coat, or used as a scarf. The horses of the fire department were at the beginning of the procession somewhat restive from the excitment of the noise and lights, but the efficient management of their drivers prevented any accident to the surrounding crowds, and the horses soon became used to their somewhat novel environments.

PLEASANTRIES. Many amusing features were incorporated in the procession. A miniature "Long Tom" occupied a prominent Cronie was carried in effigy by the St. John's A. C., and as the procession was going up Wellington street the FITTING FINALE: The crowd that lined the streets was especially dense at the corner of Dundas and Wellington streets, where the final turn was made before arriving at the park, where it was to disband. From that point could be seen the splendid effect of the somewhat novel method of decoration adopted by the McClary Company, Along the edge of the roof of their immense warehouse there had been placed hundreds of torches, forming a blaze of light that illuminated the whole street. It was strikingly effective. During the night-time fireworks were set off from the roof also. As soon as the procession had passed the people who had been here, as well as those in other places, made a rush for the Victoria Park, where a huge pile of wood had been placed for a bonfire. Nothing like this stampede has been witnessed since the day that the second contingent went away. Then, as now, the snow was deep upon the ground; men, women and children hastened to the centralized point of interest, running heedlessly through heaps of snow that would have eryone was intent upon reaching

Last night they ran as before, with the difference that the gloom was all about them, while in their hearts there was happiness and brightness, because of the joyous culmination of a noble, brave defense. So the people gathered in the park. The crowd grew larger and larg-The great stack of wood was encircled by a great black mass of hu-manity. The torch was applied. The fire gained strength. Then a scene of fantastic beauty was presented. faces of those who stood about the fire glowed with its warm color. The lights and shadows played upon them with strange effects, as they cheered and swayed and sang. The fire raged more fiercely. Its brightness pierced the gloom of the night-time. It lighted the park to its farthermost corners, and through the bare branches of the maples there could be seen hundreds of people standing on the paths and beaten places that radiated from the glowing pile of fire. Far on the streets on either side could the throngs be seen with vivid distinctness. The flames burned with greater intensity for a moment, and the dull coloring that had spread upon the sky brightened also. Then the strength of the fire waned, and slowly, little by little, the circle of its light be came smaller. As the darkness came on the crowds melted away, the sounds of rejoicing became dimmer. The day of gladness was over. NOTES. A number of British flags were dis-

But It Mas Proven of Interest and Value to Thousands.

Common sense would suggest that if one wishes to become fleshy and plump it can only result from the food we eat and digest and that food should be albuminous or flesh-forming food, like eggs, beefsteak and cereals, in other words, the kinds of food that make flesh are the foods which form the greater part of our daily bills of

But the trouble is that while we eat enough, and generally too much, the stomach, from abuse and overwork, does not properly digest and assimilate it, which is the reason so many people remain thin and under weight: the digestive organs do not complet-ely digest the flesh-forming beefsteak and eggs and similar wholesome food. There are thousands of such, who are really confirmed dyspeptics, although they may have no particular pain or inconvenience from stomachs.

If such persons would lay their prejudices aside and make a regular practice of taking, after each meal, one or two of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets the food would be quickly and thoroughly digested, because these tablets contain the natural peptones and diastase which very weak stomach lacks, and by supplying this want the stomach is soon enabled to regain its natural tone and vigor. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets digest every form of flesh-forming food. meat, eggs, bread and potatoes, and this is the reason they so quickly build up, strengthen and invigorate thin, dyspeptic men, women and child-

Invalids, and children, even the most delicate, use them with marked bene-fit, as they contain no strong, irritating drugs, no cathartic nor any harmful ingredient.
Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the most successful and the most widely known of any remedy for stomach troubles because it is the most reasonable and scientific of modern medicines.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by every druggist in the United States and Canada, as well as in Great Britain, at 50 cents for complete treatment. Nothing further is required to cure any stomach trouble or to make thin, nervous, dyspeptic people strong, plump and well.
