BURGULARS CORRALLED

Thought To Be the Men Who Shot Pearle.

Hamilton, Ont., Dec. 4.—Wm. Ellis and Herbert Yates, two young men, were arrested in the west end of the city Wednesday night by the local police on suspicion of being the men who shot Constable Pearle, of Dundas, after burglarizing the premises of Grafton & Co. in that town. When the police came upon them Wednesday night they pulled their revolvers out and were about to shoot the police, but the latter were too quick for them and overpowered them in quick time. Ellis and Yates are both desperate characters, and in their possession was found, besides the revolvers, a quantity of nitro-glycerine and a dark lantern. The police are confident they have bagged the man who shot Pearle and also believe these men to be guilty of safe-breaking in other places.

The Broken Down Nervous System

Often Found in Persons Who Are Apparently in Good Health—Extraordinary Effects of

DR. CHASE'S NERVE FOOD

A tendency to put off the duties of the day, indigestion, loss of concentration of the mind, depressed spirits, wakefulness at night, indigestion, headache, feelings of fatigue and lassitude, dizziness, specks before the eyes, noises in the ears and irregularities of the sexual organs are among the most common symptoms of nervous exhaustion and prostration. Nervous diseases are slow in coming on and patience is necessary in their treatment. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is absolutely certain to be of benefit to anyone suffering from the exhausted nerves, for it supplies the very elements of nature which go to create new nerve cells and instill new vigor and energy into the nervous system. Miss F. Butler, 1323 Mill street, London, Ont., states: "I was very much run down in health when I began to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and can now say that I have received more benefit from this medicine than any which I have ever used for my trouble. I used to be very nervous and suffered a great deal from nervous headache, but these ailments have entirely disappeared and my health is generally better than it has been for years. I fully believe that this is the result of using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, six boxes for $2.50, at all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto. To protect you against imitations the portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase, the famous receipt book author, are on every box.

KITTIE D. COSTS

Courts Decide That Government Must Pay Them.

Toronto, Dec. 4.—The Dominion Government must pay the costs of the owners, Ryan & Dickert, of Buffalo, in defending the Kittie D. from the seizure by the Government boat Petrel. The admiralty act provides that if a vessel is seized in the inland waters of Canada and later released, the judge may give a certificate of reasonable and lawful expenses, and in such a case the defendants will be entitled to only 4 cents costs. Judge Hodgins, in this case, said that the Kittie D. was not in Canadian waters, and therefore he cannot issue such a certificate. In the result the ordinary rule applies, and the defendants are held entitled to their full costs between $400 and $500.

Coughs, colds, sore throats, and other throat ailments are quickly relieved by Vapo-Cresol Tablets, ten cents per box. All druggists.

A WARNING TO ENGLAND

Surplus Products of U. S. Seeking a Dumping Ground.

London, Dec. 4.—The Board of Trade Journal for December prints a warning to British manufacturers from Seymour & Bell, the British commercial agents in the United States, prophesying an extensive invasion of British markets by American firms in the future. Mr. Bell writes that the decreasing demand in the United States for many classes of manufactured goods indicates that American firms will soon be looking abroad for markets in which to dispose of their surplus products at almost any price. "It would be well, therefore," says Mr. Bell, "to bring before British manufacturers a warning of the possible manner in which the great progress made in recent years by American exporters in securing a hold on the markets within the British possessions, particularly for certain classes of goods which could be manufactured in the United Kingdom."

G. T. R. TELEGRAPHERS

Dispute Will Now Go To International Headquarters.

Toronto, Dec. 3.—After conference extending over five weeks between the head offices of the Grand Trunk Railway Company and the committee of the G. T. R. Order of Telegraphers, it has been found impossible to arrive at any settlement of the differences under dispute. So far as the telegraphers were concerned the negotiations were closed several days ago when Mr. F. H. McGuigan, manager of the road, refused to treat further with the committee. Since then the committee have held lengthy sessions to decide what should be done, and at a meeting Wednesday night finally decided to appeal the case to the president of the international organization of telegraphers. It is understood that if a settlement is not reached upon it would have the sympathy of the local organization.

HERE'S ANOTHER FOR U. S.

Republic Play Put an End to San Domingo's Troubles.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The state department has been informed that already a new revolutionary movement has begun in San Domingo over the provisional government that ousted Wos y Gil has been able to solidify itself into a permanent government. These repeated uprisings number face of United States Minister Powell's warnings has concentrated the attention of the Washington authorities upon the island, where much American capital is invested, and there may be a renewal in a more forcible manner of the United States' declaration that the peace of the United States is not to be troubled in this fashion.

The resignation of the ministry was the outcome of difficulty experienced in getting the budget voted in the face of Republican policy of obstruction.

Failures in Canada.

Toronto, Dec. 4.—Although there was no increase in number, insolvencies during the month of November in the Dominion of Canada involved a much larger amount of defaulted indebtedness than occurred in the corresponding month last year, but in every respect the statement was more satisfactory than in November, 1901, and compares fairly well with preceding months this year. Total commercial defaults numbered 39 with liabilities of $220,513, compared with 89 failures a year ago for $40,984, and 121 in 1901 with liabilities of $85,513. The only exceptionally large failure was in the manufacture of machinery, involving about $200,000, yet all other losses in this class were so small that the total Canadian manufacturing defaults were but 20 in number and $230,494 in amount, against 24 last year for $246,112. Trading suspensions numbered 67 and involved $316,369, against 64 a year ago for $214,172, and 91 in 1901 for $357,248. Other commercial defaults were 24 with liabilities of $23,050, compared with only one failure for $1,300. Five of the manufacturing classes escaped without a single suspension, and five others reported only one default each, but nearly all the leading branches of trade experienced one or more defaults. An unusual event for Canada was a financial failure, but this was a private concern and did not involve any extensive sum.

DEFENSE OF THE GULF

Montrealers Want Great Britain to Purchase Miquelon.

Montreal, Que., Dec. 4.—The Montreal Board of Trade thinks it would be a good idea for Great Britain to buy the Island of Miquelon in the Gulf of St. Lawrence with a view to keeping the Island out of the hands of the United States, and incidentally from becoming a menace to Canadian shipping in case of hostilities. The council of the board accordingly has decided to urge the Dominion Government to make fitting representations to the Imperial Government with a view to the latter purchasing the island from France. But after this country is purchased the United States might become the purchasers.

ONE MORE FOR MANITOBA

J. J. Perkins' Incurable Kidney Disease Cured by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Tyndall, Man., Nov. 30.—Mr. J. J. Perkins, of this place, declared incurable by the doctors, is a well man now. He had kidney disease, Dodd's Kidney Pills cured him. "For two years," Mr. Perkins states, "I was troubled with my back, and so bad that the doctor attending me declared me incurable. I had severe pains in my back, was unable to work and was becoming emaciated. A friend persuaded me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and the first box cleared me completely. Dodd's Kidney Pills saved my life."

The "Dead-Beat" and the Pass

Among after-dinner speakers Joseph Jefferson ranks as one who can tell a good story in a dry, delightful way. His stories deal principally with theatrical subjects. Here is one of his:

"While strolling through Indiana several years ago," he said at dinner the other night, "my manager was approached by a man who had the look of a professional courtesan. 'I would like to be a dead-beat,' he said. He told the usual yarn about being an ex-actor, and ended by asking for professional courtesies. 'I would like to be a dead-beat,' he said. I haven't a card with me. Just then a happy thought struck him, and he said: 'I'll tell you what I'll do. I will write the pass where it will be easy for you to show it.'"

"Leaning over," with a pencil he wrote 'Pass the bearer' on the fellow's white shirt front, and signed his name. The fellow thanked him and hastened to the gate. The ticket-taker gravely examined the writing and let him take a few steps inside; then he called him back and said in a loud voice:

"Hold on, my friend; I forgot. It will be necessary for you to leave that pass with me!"—Harper's Weekly.

IT MAY BE only a trifling cold, but neglect it and it will fasten its fangs in your lungs, and you will soon be carried to an untimely grave. In this case we have sudden changes and must expect to have coughs and colds. We cannot avoid them, but we can effect cure by using Anti-Consumptive Syrup, the medicine that has never been known to fail in curing coughs, colds, bronchitis and all affections of the throat, lungs and chest.

IT IS THE FARMER'S FRIEND.—The farmer will find in Dr. Thomas' Eucalyptic Oil a potent remedy for wounds or pains in the body or for affections of the respiratory organs, and for household use generally. It will also find it a convenient friend in treating injured horses, cattle, etc., or relieving them when attacked by colds, coughs or any kindred ailments to which they are subject.

PIANO MOVING IN THE ANDES

Done by Man Power—and the Rates Are Very Low.

300 MILES FOR 7 CENTS A DAY

The Instruments Are Carried for 240 Miles Up Grade by Narrow Paths.

New York, Dec. 4.—"Just imagine being able to have a piano carried over 300 miles for a $10 bill, and that, too, by way of difficult paths over mountains 11,000 feet above the level of the sea," said A. C. Slater, a civil engineer, who has spent many years in South America. "And yet that is possible in Ecuador and other of the countries traversed by the Andes Mountains." "The pianos are carried by the natives, who, although seldom weighing more than 110 pounds and rarely being over 5 feet 5 inches in height, will carry as much of a burden as a burro, and sometimes more. It is a common sight in those countries to see one of these little fellows, with a load weighing fully 200 pounds suspended from the back of his neck, going along at his peculiar jogging gait, at the same time urging forward a burro."

"The regular price for carrying a piano from Guayaquil, on the Pacific coast, to Quito, the capital of Ecuador, a distance of 320 miles, on the other side of the Andes, is 20 cents, which is equivalent to about $10 in United States money. To engage the men to take the piano to Quito is a comparatively easy task, as always hundreds of them loitering about the principal square in Guayaquil.

"All you have to do is tell the first man you see that you want a piano, and he will immediately call together a dozen of his comrades, as waiting and waiting to undertake the long, arduous journey as if it were for two blocks instead of over nearly 400 miles of the most difficult, desolate and godforsaken country on the face of the earth.

"The men will quickly secure a pole 25 feet long and about five inches in the middle of which they will swing the piano in such a way that about eight feet of the pole will project from each end. Then six men take their places at either end, swing the pole on their shoulders and away they go at a dog trot on their long trip.

"The trail between Guayaquil and Quito is little more than two days. But this country is so mountainous that the route lies through the main range of the Andes, continually going up grade for miles, and then down again for miles. This 240 miles is traveled along narrow paths which at their widest are not over 30 inches, frequently narrowing down to 18 inches at intervals of about 200 feet are passing places, where one misstep would send one down 1,000 feet or more. Sometimes the paths are so narrow that the men have to pass one another by crawling over their shoulders.

"When the day's journey is finished, the men make preparations for their night's sleep. Usually they are not more than four miles from their destination. This is done in a hut, which is a hunter's hut, and it is on foot of this kind that these natives live all year around.

"After this meal they sit back, for they never sleep in a bed from one year's end to the other. Nearly all the natives are of mixed blood—Indian and Spanish.

"There is no way to taking the pianos to the interior except by this method. Quito, Ecuador, lies on the Pacific coast, and the Andes, which is almost as high as the Alps to the westward, still harder to traverse. After crossing the mountains toward the east lies an unexplored world thousands of miles in extent.

"It will take at the lowest twelve days to carry a piano from Guayaquil to Quito. Each man will receive about seven cents for their night's rest, for on the ground they lounge around, and he must provide his own provisions. They are lucky, they may get another day's pay for their work.

"Nearly every article of modern use comes from the coast, as comparative in the mountains. Large mirrors and pieces of furniture have been brought over these narrow mountain trails in the same manner as the pianos."—New York Sun.

LECTURES AND INSOLENCE

Hot Shot for England on Boundary Arrangements.

London, Dec. 4.—Hon. W. P. Reves, agent-general for New Zealand in London, contributes an article to the Monthly Review on "The Dangers of the House." He says: "There would not be so much in Canada being bitterly disappointed with her new Alaskan frontier had she not much greater reason to be angry with former boundary arrangements. The British newspapers treat the colonies regularly to heavy lectures illuminated with flashes of insolence. Britain should maintain as large an army and navy as if she had no colonies. To avoid war Britain is always ready to sacrifice colonial interests. It is unreasonably to expect the colonies to contribute to imperial defense unless they share in the imperial councils."

SURE REGULATORS.—Mandrake and Dandelion are known to exert a powerful influence on the liver and kidneys, restoring them to healthful action, inducing a regular flow of the secretions and improving the organs' complex power. These valuable ingredients enter into the composition of Farnie's Vegetable Pills, and serve to render them the agreeable and salutary medicine they are. There are few pills so effective as they in their action.

LONDON, FRIDAY, DEC. 4.

The Grand Trunk Pacific.

The story that the promoters of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, backed as they are by the Grand Trunk Railway Company, had failed to raise $5,000,000, the amount of the Government guarantee, was ridiculous on the face of it, but some newspapers opposed to the project professed to take it seriously. The money has already been provided and is in the banks. To say that Mr. Hays and his associates would enter into a contract to spend over $100,000,000 without seeing their way clear to raise a preliminary $5,000,000 is to call them mere adventurers. It is explained that the payment of the guarantee to the Government has been deferred to allow the company an opportunity of modifying the contract. Any modifications the Government may consent to will be such as may be justified to Parliament and the country. Meanwhile the surveying on the western section of the road is making rapid progress, sixteen parties being at work. The betters, if there are any, will not be financial, but physical, and there is no evidence that physical difficulties will prevent the construction of a modern high-class railroad across Northern Ontario and Quebec. The evidence is all in favor of the feasibility of the route. Sir Sanford Fleming, who was chief engineer of the Intercolonial and the C. P. R., shares these favorable opinions and approves unreservedly of the Grand Trunk Pacific project. In a recent memorandum which he prepared for the Quebec Board of Trade, he says:

"You have asked me to speak unreservedly, and I have acceded to your request. I again express the great satisfaction I have in knowing that the policy of the Government is to establish a great national railway, and to open up for settlement and human industry the untitled and unoccupied habitable lands of the Dominion. I have the strongest faith in the wisdom of the policy. I have faith in an all-rail means of conveying the products of the farm to the seaboard. This policy is the true and only satisfactory solution of the great problem of transportation in the more northern latitudes of Canada. If asked what course should be followed I would answer: Make haste, but make haste slowly and wisely. Do not lose a day in proceeding with the location of such a railway as that specified by Mr. Charlton in his speech on the subject, on the 12th of August last, a railway that would carry grain from the distant prairie field to Quebec cheaper than by any other route whatever. Having secured such a location, and not till then, employ every man, bend every back, strain every nerve, to complete the middle section of the line. This done, and not till then, proceed as it may seem best to complete from sea to sea the National Grand Trunk Transcontinental Railway."

The Flurry in Cotton.

Cotton jumped to a record price in New York and New Orleans markets yesterday on the strength of bearish crop reports. The department of agriculture estimated the yield for the present season to be only 9,962,039 bales. In 1928 cotton sold at an average of 6 cents per pound, but the present price is more than double that. This phenomenal advance has seriously disturbed the world's cotton industry, which depends mainly on the American crop. Manufacturers have not been able to increase the price of cotton goods to cover the increase in the cost of raw material, as a sharp advance in prices would check consumption. Many Lancashire cotton mills have been closed all summer and over 75,000 cotton operatives in the United States have had their wages cut. The price of raw cotton was artificially raised this year by the New Orleans corner, but the production of the United States is diminishing, and cotton must become permanently dearer unless fresh sources of supply are opened up. One-third of the American crop is retained for home manufacture, one-third goes to England, one-half the remainder to Germany and the rest is scattered among twenty countries. The production of United States cotton and the percentage exported during the past five years are shown as follows:

	Production in bales.	Percentage exported.
1928	11,199,994	67.82
1929	11,274,840	65.12
1930	9,436,416	65.18
1931	10,383,422	62.87
1932	10,899,647	64.47

Last year Great Britain paid the United States for cotton $124,707,240. It is not surprising that the British manufacturers are disquieted over the diminishing American supply and the fluctuation of prices. They are seeking to develop sources of supply in British territory in Africa and Asia, so as to free themselves from dependence on the Southern States. Some encouraging experiments have been made on the west coast of Africa, and Egypt is rapidly increasing her cotton production.

Behind the Times.

The inspector of technical education for Ontario is surprised to find that neither manual training nor domestic science has a place in the curriculum of the public schools in this city. He would be surprised at nothing if he were better acquainted with the public school board of this city. These two branches of education are flourishing in 20 centers in Ontario, many of them smaller than London. Manual training and domestic science have been indoctrinated by professional educationists the world over, and have come to stay.

The Partitions of the board of education refuse to see this, and as Inspector Leake says, "they have scarcely taken the trouble to investigate the matter and see what could be accomplished." This was more surprising to him, because they had an object lesson in the Normal School. They have another object lesson at the Collegiate Institute where instruction is given in domestic science, open to the senior girls of the public schools if they were permitted by the school board to attend. The board next year should begin by asking for a report on the whole question from the local public school inspector or some other practical educationist familiar with the subject. London has fine schools and a teaching staff that will compare with any in the land. It should be in the van of educational progress. To denounce every innovation as a fad is stupid.

The Great Canadian Cow.

The Montreal Gazette in its review of the shipping season calls attention to the continued growth in the exports of dairy products.

In 1896 the exports of Canadian butter and cheese from Montreal were valued at $11,605,000 in 1896 and 1901, over $12,000,000; in 1909 over $14,000,000; in 1920, over $16,000,000; in 1922, over $17,000,000; and in 1923, over $21,000,000. The selling figure per box has been steadily advancing, from $6 75 per box in 1896, to $7 75 in 1899, $8 50 in 1902, and $9 in 1923.

The Gazette says that if to exportation of the season there be added the stocks carried in store in Montreal, both of butter and cheese, the products of the year approach close to $30,000,000, or an increase of $2,000,000 per year for the last half decade. The cheese export alone, in half a decade, has increased seventy-eight per cent.

There is a market in Great Britain for everything the Canadian farmer has to sell, and the prices he will realize will depend upon the quality of his product. Canadian cheese has distanced all competitors, because of its excellence, due to scientific methods and a study of the British market. The rapid rise and growth of the dairy industry in this country has been almost a romance.

The Toronto World, pro-Chamberlain, wants the duty raised against British thread. There's logic for you. Thirty million pamphlets have been issued by the British free traders and protectionists. The poorer classes will have pamphlets to burn during the winter.

The Mail and Empire wants to know what the Government is going to do about the question of the dinner pail. Why should it do anything when the pail is full to overflowing?

A movement is on foot in Washington to bring about an Anglo-American arbitration treaty on the lines of that recently negotiated with France. The question naturally rises in the Canadian mind, "Who are the arbitrators?" If they are to be only Anglo-Americans, Canada may well protest.

Farmers from several states are meeting in Chicago to talk over plans for a farmers' trust. The farmers of a food exporting country cannot in the nature of things organize to raise prices, but they can smash many of the trusts that rob them if they so desire. The farmers of the United States uphold the present tariff system and have no right to complain of tax exactions.

The German Chancellor yesterday announced the continuation of "most favored" relations with Great Britain. This means that a tariff favor granted by Germany to any country will be shared by Great Britain. The latter enjoys similar commercial treaties with the other nations of Europe. Germany realizes that this is no time to make faces at either Canada or the mother country. It would be putting a trump card in Chamberlain's hands.

Naboth's Vineyard.

[Robertson Trowbridge, in Scribner's.] My neighbor hath a little field, Small store of wine its presses yield, Truly it is a slender board, Its harvest brings for hard or board. Yet though a hundred fields are mine, For him I hold no otherwhere is any field so good and fair. Small though it be, 'tis better far Than all my vineyard, for I care, Amid those plenty said I pine— "Ah, would that little field were mine!"

Large kingdom void of peace and rest, And wealth with plowing care possessed— These by my fertile lands are meant, That little field is called Content.

Every Woman Attractive.

[Montreal Witness.]

It is in every woman's power to make herself attractive, and more than that it is her duty to make herself as beautiful as possible. She owes to society demands it and has a right to.

A woman who pays no attention to herself and her physical appearance will never make an impression. An attractive woman will in every case precede her. Don't get the idea that it is wrong or that it is vanity. No woman can afford to be without this, which is her greatest power. It gives her influence, something that all persons like to possess. Every woman should cultivate her beauty, but she should not allow pride to enter her head because of it. Nature is kind and will abundantly reward those who make free use of her gifts.

She has bestowed some mark of beauty upon everyone. Each of us is a single individual endowed with something that no other has, for while nature is kind, yet she is partial, and she is fond of variety, consequently she has not given two persons exactly the same mark.

An Oversight.

[Hamilton Spectator.] Ald. Kerr complained last night in council that only one Grit had been made a deputy returning officer for the coming civic elections. There is reason in that complaint: One Grit is one too many.

[Cornell Widow.] If you and I and eye and eye, And you and eye and eye, Were all to be spelled "u" and "i," How mixed up we should be!

Seven New World Wonders.

[Exchange.] The seven wonders of antiquity were: The Pyramids, Babylon's Gardens, Mausolus' Tomb, the Temple of Diana, the Colossus of Rhodes, Jupiter's Statue by Phidias, and the Pharos of Egypt, or, as some substitute, the Palace of Cyrus. The seven wonders of the Middle Ages were:

The Coliseum of Rome, the Catacombs of Alexandria, the Great Wall of China, St. Peter's, the Leaning Tower of Pisa, the Porcelain Tower of Nan-kin, and the Mosque of St. Sophia at Constantinople.

How will these compare with the seven wonders of the modern world? Perhaps there may be a difference of opinion as regards the latter day wonders:

The Steam Railroad, the Telegraph, the Telephone, the Wireless Telegraph, the Ocean Steamer, the Automobile, the Man-of-War, and the Airship.

It Makes a Difference.

Nothing Common for Her.

[Philadelphia Ledger.] Mrs. Nuritch—I think I'll take this bracelet. Are you sure it's made of refined gold?

Jewels—Oh, yes. Mrs. Nuritch—Because I do detest anything that isn't refined.

LITERARY NOTES.

CHRISTMAS CANADIAN MAGAZINE.

In the December Canadian Magazine are several good Christmas stories. Sarah A. Tooley has an article on Sandringham House, where in each of the last forty years the King and Queen have spent Christmas. The article is well illustrated, and indeed, is a number of others in this issue. Among the notable pictures are a colored portrait of Sir William Mulock, and tinted representations of scenes in the war of 1812. The story illustrations by C. H. Warren and J. E. McBurney are especially good. Among the contents are an illustrated article on Toronto, "A Typical Canadian City"; a symposium on Canada and Mr. Chamberlain, by John Charlton, M. P., Chancellor Wallace, Prof. Shortt, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, W. C. Nichol and Hon. R. P. Roblin contribute; a brief character sketch of Sir William Mulock; "Woman's Sphere," by Miss Helliwell. In "People and Affairs," Mr. Cooper deals with Canada's demand for greater self-governing powers, with imperial postage and the flow of Canadian graduates to the United States. The other departments are decidedly interesting.

A POPULAR PUBLICATION.

A glance at the contents of Success for December (Christmas number) is sufficient to show why this magazine is so popular. Among many interesting articles it contains the latest poem by James Whitcomb Riley, "It's Got to Be," a fascinating piece of work done in the Hoosier master's best vein. Vance Thompson in "Notable People I Have Interviewed," tells of his experience as a journalist while trying to secure information from such men as Zola, Dreyfus and Bismarck. "Does the Higher Education of Women Tend to Happiness in Marriage," by Charlotte Perkins Gilman, explains itself. "The Freedom of the Black-Fig Tree," by Charles G. D. Roberts, is a capital nature study. The witty sayings of Judge Logan E. Blackley, of Georgia, forms the subject of a character sketch by H. Gerald Chapin. Good fiction is supplied by Henry Kitchell Webster, Samuel Merwin, John Oxenham, and Miss Zona Gale, and there are new poems by Mr. Riley, Holman F. Day, Alfred J. Waterhouse, Robert Gray and Mary Gage Heyer.

SCRIBNER'S.

The Christmas number of Scribner is crowded with fiction gay and bright. Christmas is a time when we reach a higher point than in this issue. There are eight full pages, "The Child in a Garden," by Jessie Wilcox Smith, a story in pictures reproducing exactly the original, the "Blue-eyes," by frontispiece by Maxfield Parrish and the many illustrations of Dutch scenes by Penfield are also beautifully reproduced. In addition to the entertaining stories, sketches and bits of poetry by clever writers, all combining to make a choice budget of holiday reading.

CHRISTMAS COLLIER'S.

The Christmas number of Collier's will be published Dec. 5, and in addition to the holiday features will have some points of special interest to all its readers. Winston Churchill's new novel "The Borderland," begins in this number. It is the story as Mr. Churchill says, "of the backward fight of the war of American independence." In this number will also appear the third Sherlock Holmes story, "The Adventure of the Dancing Men," presenting a problem unique even in the great detective's experience. The features of the Christmas Collier's include a special cover by Leyendecker, charming illustrations in five colors; a double page picture by Frederic Remington, representing western adventure, and entitled "The Fight for the Ocean Steamer." There are in this number also contributions by James Whitcomb Riley, Guy Whetmore Carryl and many other able writers.

ATLANTIC MONTHLY.

In view of the prospective nomination of President Roosevelt next year, Charles M. Harvey's paper on "Some Second-Term Presidents," which appears in the December Atlantic, is timely and decidedly interesting. In a powerful article on "The Church," Rev. Theodore T. Munger discusses the needs and necessities of that institution, its present stage of development, and its prospects for the future. Sir Leslie Stephen, in his own experience in "Editing," gives many inside views of English journalism and gives anecdotes of English literati; while Arthur H. Kimball discusses the profession of publicist, apropos of the new Pulitzer Public School Journalism. Mrs. E. Robins Pennell writes of "Vandelay Law," J. R. O'Connell of "The Study," and Professor John Trowbridge of "Radiation." There is also an editorial on "Kipling," and a choice variety of fiction and poetry.

The Sun.

Out in La Porte, Ind., lives a man who is trying to make the world believe that the sun is cool enough to maintain forests and other vegetation. As the spectroscopic shows that iron and other metals exist in the condition of vapor in the solar atmosphere, either that instrument or the hoosier must be mistaken. No one will be surprised to learn that the genius who has made this alleged discovery is not enrolled among the members of the Association of American Scientists, which John Charlton, M. P., Chancellor Wallace, Prof. Shortt, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, W. C. Nichol and Hon. R. P. Roblin contribute; a brief char-

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"The Prince of Lairs," as produced by the Gibney Stock Company attracted a fair-sized audience to the London Opera House last night, and the comedy was well put on and immensely pleased everyone in the house. The various characters were well taken and the progress of the play was in line with justice. The illustrated songs were new and pretty, the views being exceptionally fine. Tonight the bill will be "A Child of the Night," Saturday 100-pound bags of Hunt's Diamond Flour will be given away to the persons who hold the lucky coupons.

"THE GAY MR. GOLDSTEIN."

"The Gay Mr. Goldstein" presents a stage picture of the humorous Hebrew,

SORE HANDS

Itching, Burning Palms, Painful Finger Ends, With Brittle, Shapeless, Discolored Nails, As Well as Roughness and Redness.

One Night Treatment with Cuticura, the Great Skin Cure.

Soak the hands on retiring in a strong, hot, creamy lather of Cuticura Soap. Dry and anoint freely with Cuticura Ointment, the great skin cure and purifier of emollients. Wear, during the night, old, loose kid gloves, or bandage lightly in old, soft cotton or linen. For red, rough and chapped hands, dry, fissured, itching, feverish palms, with brittle, shapeless nails and painful finger ends, this treatment is simply wonderful, frequently curing in a single application. Complete local and constitutional treatment for every humor of the skin, scalp and blood, with loss of hair. Bathe with hot water and Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the surface of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle. Dry, without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment freely, to all itching, irritation and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and lastly, take the Cuticura Resolvent, to cool and cleanse the blood. This treatment affords instant relief, permits rest and sleep in the severest forms of Eczema and other itching, burning and scaly humors, and points to a speedy, permanent and economical cure of torturing, disgusting humors, from pimples to scrofula, from infancy to age, when all other remedies and the best physicians fail.

When a Man Sneezes.

It is reported that Mr. Jonathan Hutchinson has said that "when a man sneezes he is saying to himself to be in the best of health," and that "no person in poor health was ever known to sneeze." The Scientific American, referring to this reported statement, falls foul of the English surgeon for making so dogmatic an assertion, when the contrary is so easily proved. The journal in question then goes on to relate many old superstitions with regard to the ill-luck attending sneezing, some of which, while proving nothing, are interesting. It appears that many savage and semi-civilized races of the orient have some curious customs regarding the sneeze. When the Sultan of Monomotopa sneezes, for instance, the fact is made known from the palace by a certain signal. Instantly every subject within hearing of the signal sets up a shout, the cry is taken up by others, and so extends until it runs through the confines of his empire. When the Sultan of Senegal sneezes, on the contrary, every woman in his harem or within hearing turns her back upon him and makes a sign of contempt by snuffing her nose with her hands—disgusted that so mighty a personage should have to sneeze like an ordinary mortal.—Medical Record.

of the type so much used in musical comedies and variety farce. This Mr. Goldstein is placed in an atmosphere of refined surroundings wherein the author has seen possibilities for laughable scenes and happenings. These possibilities he has materialized, the management has given them adequate presentation, and a first-class company to interpret the different roles. Many opportunities are afforded during the progress of the play for the production of up-to-date specialties. This attraction will be presented at the Grand next Tuesday night.

Margaret Anglin, worthy daughter of a worthy father, has sprung into great prominence on the American stage in so short a time, that she has become a dramatic star in the few years that it takes some people to learn the rudiments. Now she is called to London, the Mecca of the ambitious, there, it is hoped, to show that Canada can produce great actresses, as she has already produced great singers. Before sailing, however, Miss Anglin will pay a farewell visit to her native land, and local playgoers will have an opportunity of seeing this distinguished compatriot in the delightful comedy, "Cynthia," at the Grand next Monday night. Miss Anglin comes here from Buffalo, and London is the Canadian city she plays in on her farewell tour, and it is safe to predict an overflowing house to welcome her.

"THE SLEEPY KING." Speaking of "The Sleepy King," which appears at the Grand tomorrow matinee and night, the Buffalo News says: Walter Jones has brought a good comic opera to the Teck Theatre this week in "The Sleepy King." Comedy is a stronger feature in it than melody. Walter Jones last night presented the part of King Ozo, the monarchial suitor of Morpheus, and so thoroughly filled the part that he exhaled slumber. There was a good company at Mr. Jones' back, so that he did not reign alone in his realm of comedy. Ed. Redway as Yankee D. D., Pickenshawer, was a comical figure. The scenery and stage settings were brilliant, and the costumes gorgeous. The opera deserves crowded houses.

I did not accompany them. Jimmy, who had such an innocent air on the street, took my place and promenade up and down the block, just to see that Mr. Moore did not make too much trouble. And it was well he did so, for though he was not at home—I had chosen the hour of his afternoon ride—his new man-servant was, and he no sooner perceived this crowd of urchins making for the opposite house than he rushed at them, and would have scattered them far and wide in a twinkling if the demure dimples of my little ally had not come into play and distracted his attention so completely as to make him forget the throng of unkempt hoodlums who seemed bound to invade his master's property. She was looking for Mr. Moore's house, she told him. Did he know Mr. Moore, and his house which was somewhere near? Not his new, great, big house, where the horrible things took place of which she had heard was soon to be for rent, and which she thought would be just the right size for herself and mother. Was that it? That dear little place all smothered in vines? How lovely! and what would the rent be, did he think? and had it a back-yard with garden-rose enough for her to raise pink and red and white roses, and so on, and so on, while he stared with delighted eyes, and tried to put in a word edgewise, and the boys, well, they went through that strip of grass in just ten minutes. My brave little Jimmy had just declared with her most roguish smile that she had just run home and tell her mother all about this sweetest of sweet little places, when a shout arose from the other side of the street, and that collection of fifteen or twenty boys scampered away as if mad, shouting in joyous echo of the boy at their head: "It's to be chicken, heaping plates of ice cream and sponge-cake."

By which token she knew that the ring had been found.

When they brought this ring to me I would not have exchanged places with any man on earth. As Jimmy herself was curious enough to stroll along about this time, I held it out where we both could see it and draw our conclusions.

It was a plain gold circlet set with a single small ruby. It was cut through and twisted out of shape just as I had anticipated; and as I examined it I wondered what part it had played and was yet destined to play in the drama of Veronica Jeffrey's mysterious life and still more mysterious death. That it was a factor of some importance, arguing some early school-girl love, I could gather from the fact that its removal from her finger was effected in secrecy and under circumstances of such pressing haste. How could I learn the story of that ring and the possible connection between it and Mr. Jeffrey's professed jealousy of his wife and the disappointing honeymoon which had followed their marriage?

That this feeling of mystery, which I had felt at the time, was not a new idea to me and one which suggested many possibilities. Could this be established, and if so, how? But one avenue had been offered to me. The waiter, who had been spirited away so curiously immediately after the wedding, might be able to give some information on this interesting point. He had been the medium of the messages which had passed between her and Mr. Jeffrey, and he had been seen talking earnestly to that gentleman and later with her certain-ly, it would add to our understanding.

BUILT UP THE SYSTEM AND ADDED TEN POUNDS IN WEIGHT.

Mr. Ed. J. Harris, Newbridge, Ont., was in poor health, but has now been restored to full health and vigor. He writes: "Last spring I was in a very critical condition, my system was all run down. I felt drowsy and miserable, and thought I would surely die if I did not get something to help me up. After reading one of your almanacs I decided to try Burdock Blood Bitters, and before I had taken two bottles I had gained ten pounds in weight, and am now in perfect health, and I can certainly recommend Burdock Blood Bitters to build up the system."

of the situation to know what reply she had sent to the peremptory demand made upon her at so critical a time—an understanding so desirable that the very prospect of it was almost enough to warrant a journey to Tampa. Yet, say that the results were disappointing, how much time lost and what a sum of money! I felt the need of advice in this crisis, yet hesitated to ask it. My cursed pride and my no less cursed jealousy of Durbin stood very much in my way at this time.

A week had now passed since the inquest, and, while Miss Tuttle still remained at liberty, it was a circumstance which must have been very galling to one of her temperamental habits. She rode and she walked, and she entered no house unattended nor was she allowed any communication with Mr. Jeffrey. Nevertheless she saw him, or at least gave him the opportunity of seeing her. Each day at 3 o'clock she rode through K street, and the detective who watched Mr. Jeffrey's house said that she never passed it without turning her face to the second-story window, where he invariably stood. No signs passed between them; indeed, they scarcely nodded; but her face, as she lifted it to meet his eye, showed so marked a serenity and was so altogether beautiful that this same detective had a desire to see if it maintained like characteristics when she was not within reach of her brother-in-law. Accordingly, the next day he delegated his place to another and took his stand farther down the street. Alas! it was not the same woman's face that he saw, but a far different and sadder one. She wore that look of courage and brave hope only in passing Mr. Jeffrey's house. Was it simply an expression of her secret devotion to him or the signal of some compact which had been entered into between them?

Whichever it was, it touched my heart, even in his description of it. After advising with Jimmy I approached the superintendent, to whom, without further reserve, I opened my heart.

The next day I found myself on the banks of the Tampa river, with full authority to follow Curly Jim until I found him.

BOOK III.
THE HOUSE OF DOOM.

CHAPTER XIX.
In Tampa.

When I started on this desperate search after a witness, war had been declared, but no advance had been made on Cuba. But during my journey south the long expected event happened, and on my arrival in Tampa I found myself in the midst of departure and everything in confusion.

Of course, under such conditions it

MERRY WAR IS ON BETWEEN THE RACECOURSE STARTERS

Chris. Fitzgerald and Mars Cassidy at Loggerheads—Their Methods Differ.

The New York Telegraph has the following: "I would take a new idea from anyone," said Mars Cassidy, the starter, before leaving for Baltimore, "and I think Chris Fitzgerald should not be afraid to take one from me. At starting horses before he ever looked at a mile track, and I know the game at least as well as he does. I think the stewards will make him adopt my system."

Truly there is something like a starters' war on now. Cassidy thinks he is right; Fitzgerald likes his own method best, and William Murray, who returned from Baltimore a few days ago, says that he has seen both big guns fighting in hollow fashion. Murray has been wielding the flag at Pimlico with marked success, and to some extent has earned a right to consideration.

Racegoers are watching the starters with interest of the keenest sort. The naming of horses at the post is, and always has been, a vital matter. More important than handicapping; more important than jockeyship, is this branch of the sport. It has been said with truth that many races have been decided at the start instead of at the finish.

Every person interested in racing is familiar with the gate which goes with the horse recall system.

CAUSE OF THE CONTROVERSY.

You who go to the races have seen the horses line up at the webbing, and have watched the starter press the button, when he got the nervous animals in alignment. The different gates work on about the same principle, but the methods of getting the thoroughbreds in line vary, and this is the cause of the present controversy.

Fitzgerald, acknowledged one of the foremost starters, makes the jockeys line up with the horses' heads almost touching the barrier. When they all get straight he sends them away.

At Aqueduct, Mars Cassidy showed a new wrinkle. He made the boys go back twenty yards from the webbing and walk their horses up to it. He reasoned that it was easier to keep a horse straight while walking him than it was when an animal was compelled to stand at attention. There are some horses that cannot be disciplined. Nervous temperaments, fretful dispositions, sore or tender mouths, heavy heads and unskilled riders often make them wriggle about like a group of fishwives.

The walking method proved a success excepting when some horses kept walking regardless as to whether or not the barrier had been raised and sometimes walked through it.

Murray's method differs from both. He makes the boys go further back, and if he sees they are in line on the way to the webbing he presses the button before they get to it. If not he waves them back before they come to him.

If this system should prove to be a success it might do away with the barrier altogether, for a line on the track surface would answer the purpose.

On the first day at Jamaica Fitzgerald old used his own and Cassidy's methods alternately, and although he gained some experience, his success was not great, because the jockeys got both systems mixed and often forgot to obey orders.

WHICH WILL TRIUMPH.

Before many days one of the methods will be selected as the best. It is a matter for the stewards to decide, and they are watching the matter carefully. Will Cassidy triumph or will it be Fitzgerald? There's the point now.

The personal qualities of the two men will have something to do with the result. Cassidy is a short, stout man, with eyes like a mile. His every action is alert, and he knows horses. He also knows the boys better than their fathers need ever hope to know them. His experience as a starter goes as far back as the outlaw merry-go-round at Iron Hill, but his prominence came to him in the days of the Hamilton track. An American, he gained fame on Canadian soil, while Fitzgerald, a Canadian, found distinction on the American track.

Cassidy has had a harder road to travel than Fitzgerald. When the starting was brought from Australia to San Francisco it was not long before it came into use at Chicago. From the Windy City to the Canadian tracks, and only a night's run for the innovation from the antipodes, and the barrier, with Cassidy handling it, was soon in use at Detroit, Windsor and Port Erie.

Cassidy had his own troubles. Bad jockeys and worse horses kept him busy, but his patience never gave out. Out of the riders he made such stars as Lucien, Arthur Redfern, Otto Wondery and Harry Cochran, and with the horses he did the best he could.

Always experimenting, he has now what he thinks is the best system, and he feels that he proved this during the Aqueduct meeting.

Chris Fitzgerald is a different sort of man altogether. A giant in stature, he has eyes like a deer. Looking perfectly cool, he is as full of nerves as Guerrero, the latest Spanish dancer.

The great difference between Fitzgerald and Cassidy is this: "Pitz" pretends to be cool, but is actually easily excited. Cassidy pretends to be flushed, in order to gain obedience from the boys, but as a matter of fact he is cool all the time.

JUNIOR HORTONS FOR THE O. H. A.

The Team Sends In an Application for Admission.

IT IS AN IMPORTANT MOVE

The Aberdeens Have Decided That They Will Not Enter a Team for Series.

HOCKEY.

HORTONS ENTER JUNIORS.

The Hortons, who during the last two seasons have won a name for themselves not only being speedy, but of being an amateur organization of the first water, have sent in their application for admission to the junior O. H. A. series. Manager Foley will leave on the 10:20 train for Toronto, Monday, to attend the meeting and look after the interests of the team. The matter has been under consideration for some time and a few days ago it was decided to send the application in. The club has good backing and it may be relied on to make a good run in the series. Last year the Hortons distinguished themselves in the City League, and many who witnessed their games said that they were fast enough for junior association hockey. They had a fine lot of players who had been together for years. One H. H. that reflects credit on the team is that it has come to the front from a team that played in back-yard hockey. It is composed entirely of London boys, who, if they stick together for a few more years, will be fast enough for intermediate hockey. For the last two months they have been training on the road and all are now in fine condition, so that when the games start they will be able to give the best junior team in the country a run for the money.

ABERDEENS WON'T ENTER.

Among the people who talk hockey a story was going the rounds this week that the Aberdeens intended entering an intermediate team in the O. H. A., but there is not the slightest probability of their doing so. They will content themselves to stay in the City League for this season at least, if a city league is formed. There may be a difficulty in getting the two city leagues started this year. The proprietors of the Jubilee rink, which would most likely be the only one available, is away in England, and arrangements cannot be made to get a lease of the rink. If this difficulty is not surmounted it is possible that City League hockey in London will be a minus quantity for this season. It is to be hoped that arrangements can be made.

MR. E. R. DROMGOLE RETIRES.

Galt, Dec. 2.—Mr. E. R. Dromgole, formerly of London, has been appointed accountant of the Merchants' Bank, Windsor. The appointment that was at first considered temporary is now known to be a permanency. Mr. Dromgole has resigned as a member of the Galt Hockey Club, and, of course, will be out of the running for the O. H. A. The removal from Galt of this popular young banker would at any time be most sincerely regretted, but under the present circumstances he leaves a gap that cannot possibly be filled. As a candidate for an office in the O. H. A. his chances were so very good that his election was a certainty. The Toronto boys were almost solid behind him, and his support, while coming largely from the west, was everywhere. He has been known, extended to the north and east as well. His campaign was handled with some energy, and he has been him with a clear-headed standing in hockey circles—every factor tended toward success.

TORONTO MAY ENTER EASTERN.

The Toronto hockey team has been extended by the easterners to Toronto hockeyists to put a team in the new Senior Hockey League will receive serious consideration at this time. The club has been looking very encouraging at present, but a fairly strong team could be gotten together for the first season, good enough to probably to finish well up in the race.

Besides the argument that Bank League players will not be a complete team, it is also argued that exhibition matches with clubs in Pittsburgh, New York, Houghton, Mich., and Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., will be encouraged rather than discouraged. A strong Toronto team would be able to reap a rich harvest in all of the cities mentioned.

ELORA CLUB ORGANIZES.

Elora, Ont., Dec. 3.—At an enthusiastic meeting of the Elora hockey supporters last night it was decided to enter an intermediate team in the W. O. H. A. The following officers were elected: Honorary president, J. C. Munell, president, J. Kerr, vice-president, Wm. Anderson; secretary, G. T. Armstrong; treasurer, J. McGowan; captain, H. Adams; manager, A. P. Krausman; committee, R. G. Carter, Dr. McGregor, R. Hewitt, G. Dixon. Prospects for a first-class team are brighter than ever in the history of the club.

THE AGITATION ENDED.

The agitation commenced some time ago to organize a team to represent the city in the O. H. A. has died out and there is a possibility of it not being again heard of. The fate of the move is not surprising, for the steps taken to bring about the team were not of the kind that would assure success. There was too much dissension among the representatives of the city, and from which it was proposed to select the material for the O. H. A. team, and thus the move is a dead-letter. It is the opinion of some that the idea of affiliating with the St. John's A. C. in the matter, and this proved to be one of the greatest stumbling-blocks in the way of the club.

FOOTBALL.

SARNIA AND KINGSTON.

Sarnia, Ont., Dec. 3.—The Sarnia Rugby team will play in Toronto on Saturday against the Lincolns of the province. The team will leave tomorrow afternoon. The players who will go to Toronto are: Paul, John Newton, Williams, half, E. Speer, Cranston; quarter, Marriott; snap, McNab; wings, G. Leslie, R. Johnston, Lewis, McCart, K. McKenzie, James Newton, Melvin, Hunt, spare, Hugh Fleming, H. Bastia.

Our Showing of Overcoats Is Impressive and Expressive.

FROM the salesmen's standpoint this is the easiest store in town in which to sell goods. And from their standpoint it is the argument of your greatest satisfaction. It's the easiest to sell from, because there's every style that is desired; in every size required, complete variety backed by the highest grade of value. A larger size doesn't have to be cut down; a small size made larger; your notion of what you want doesn't have to be overcome and a substitute "talked up." But the style that has your preference in just exactly the proper size is sure to be here. You perhaps know by experience how different it is elsewhere. The Grafton & Co. making leaves nothing to the salesman. It makes the best clothing that can be produced—and popular judgment so concedes.

A moment's reflection, and you can see this must be so; it's the concentration of the best talent, the wisest facilities, the most progressive policy—all focused in the making of the clothing we sell in our six large stores throughout the great domain of Canada. The most immaterial point is given important consideration and treatment. Nothing is slighted. It's consistent clothing—best from fabric to finish.

In the Overcoats there are Plain Oversacks of all lengths, from one extreme to the other, in all the staple Overcoatings and many novelties, the Belted Coats, in plain and fancy weaves, including Heavy-weight Harris Friezes. Padded coats in plain black, and Oxford mixtures in several styles.

A study of the prices is as impressive and expressive as the stock. They are as characteristic as the values—as attractive as the styles.
