Don't Be a Quitter.

We cannot always find the ways that lead to waiting treasure; There must sometimes be dismal days That are devoid of pleasure; The winds that blow so swiftly now Tomorrow may be bitter; The storm may come, but anybody Don't be a quitter.

We cannot always do the things we wish we might be doing; We may not all be dukes and kings; Some men must plow and some must sow; While some in jewels glitter, But if your place is high or low, Don't be a quitter.

Some men may live in leisure; Some men may never see a day; The sweet rewards of death; Some men may die in lonely state; While others bear the bitter; But rich or poor, or small or great, Don't be a quitter.

You cannot win by sitting; Your career, sitting gravely; Inflate your chest, thrust out your chin; And do your duty bravely; You may have cause to be in doubt; Your hardships may be bitter; But never let the world find out— Don't be a quitter.

Wheat Exports.

We think, for the first time in history, Canada last year was the leading wheat exporting country in the world. Her exports for the year amounted to 129,950,000 bushels, compared with 121,938,000 from Russia, Argentina, which stood third on the list, exported 102,275,000, and the United States was fourth with 99,410,000 bushels. These figures deal with wheat in its raw state, for, in the exports of flour, the United States exceeded this country by nearly three times, sending out 12,273,700 barrels to Canada's 4,894,500 barrels. These latter figures would suggest that the milling industry in the Dominion has not been cultivated to the extent it might. If the finished product were exported instead of grain in its raw state it would mean the expenditure of more money in the country by the extension of the milling industry. There are insufficient foodstuffs manufactured in Canada, a country which has so much of its prosperity in its grain producing areas should be in a position to complete successfully with any other agricultural country in the matter of such foodstuffs.

Joseph Chamberlain Dead.

Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, the greatest Imperial statesman Britain has had since Pitt, died at London on July 2nd. For 38 years he represented Birmingham in parliament. In 1906 his career of storied activities was ended by a stroke of paralysis. Since that time the strong fighter had been an invalid, a pitiable outcast at the political game. Birmingham would not depose her leader, although he was no longer able to represent her upon the floor of the House of Commons. In each year he was returned to his old seat and appeared afterward in the House, but once where amidst respectful silence he made his way to the Speaker's desk on the arm of his son and took the oath of office, January 5, 1913. Mr. Chamberlain wrote to his constituents, resigning his seat and saying: "I cannot hope again to do any work in Parliament, and I feel that our city and the constituency need a younger man." While his greatest claim to fame was his determined and brilliant advocacy for years of a protective policy for Great Britain, the child of free trade, he will also be remembered as the bitterest and most tenacious opponent of Gladstone's policy of Home Rule for Ireland, as one of the founders of the Liberal-Unionist party, and as the minister whose policy in South Africa involved his country in the greatest war it had experienced since the Crimean, but blotted out the two Boer Republics and made South Africa "all red."

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Men are always running down modern dress and modern manners in women, says The London Express. Yet they often find attractive in other women what they condemn in the women of their own house. Women, of course, dress largely for the eyes of other women. But man is still the main object, and it is frowned upon woman who would change the guise in which she presents herself.

Another good way to clean a white straw hat is to cut a fresh lemon in half and rub the hat well with the juice, then rinse quickly with clear, cold water, dry as much as possible with a towel and hang the hat in a current of air in the shade. Of course all trimming should be removed first.

Playing in Streets is Dangerous.

CHILDREN MUST PLAY SOMEWHERE—URGENT NEED OF SAFE PLAYGROUNDS.

In connection with the 'safety first' campaign, much is being said just now as to the danger of children playing in the streets. Films are being shown in the moving picture theatres, presenting dangers from motor-cars and other vehicles vividly before the eyes of the children themselves. No doubt this is a good work for the cause of child life, but it is a sad state of affairs that the children have no better place than the streets in which to play. Very often the man with the automobile is only using the streets for a playground—there are as many auto-bombs on pleasure as on business—and if we give the man in the motor the right of way over the child on roller-skates, it is incumbent upon us to find the latter some place in which to amuse himself, free from danger. If new subdivisions were laid out on garden city lines, there would be a space in the centre of every block where small children could play near home, and open spaces would be reserved here and there for larger children and adults. Much must be done, however, to remedy existing conditions, as well as to plan for adequate recreation facilities in the future. A much greater use could be made of school playgrounds after hours than is now the case, and in many cities, where sufficient playing fields do not exist, a very considerable expense is justified in providing such. A city is a place in which not merely to work, but to live completely, and complete living includes wholesome bodily exercise for every citizen.

Robbing Women of Their Health.

ANEMIA UNLESS CHECKED PASSES INTO RHEUMATISM.

Anemia is like a spectre that steals on you unawares and drives all happiness out of existence. It is a thief that robs you of your life and energy. Thousands of women in this country are the victims of anemia (that is, bloodlessness), which spares neither rich nor poor, young or old. It robs woman of her health, her vitality, her beauty of everything that gives a woman her charm. The chief symptoms of this trouble include a distaste for food, prostrating headaches, extreme languor, loss of weight, nervousness, pale cheeks, lips and nails, heart palpitations, dizziness and a constant feeling of wretchedness.

The only way to effect a cure is to increase the blood supply—to make it pure, rich and red. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have saved thousands of young girls and women from the fearful fate that threatened them through anemia's ravages, for these pills enrich the blood, stimulate the circulation, nourish the nerves, and restore the energy and perfect health that make women attractive. If you are a victim of bloodlessness in any way, do not let it run into a hopeless decline, but begin the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today. The following bit of evidence proves the worth of this medicine. Mrs. Maurice Sims, Liverpool, N. S., says: "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been a blessing to me. About two years ago I was so badly run down that I had to give up all work and go to bed. My husband and parents were much worried about me as they thought I was going into consumption. The doctor who was attending me changed his medicine several times, but it did me no good and I began to feel very much discouraged myself. One day a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I decided to do so. In a few weeks I felt much better and I continued taking the pills for a couple of months until I was again in perfect health. I believe that if I had not always been very grateful for what they have done for me."

You can get these pills from any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Flowers on Icebergs.

Flowers blooming on icebergs would certainly be a rare sight, but travelers in the northern portions of the Pacific and sometimes in the North Atlantic have witnessed this strange but very beautiful spectacle. It appears that some animals carry on their feet a growth of moss, which is deposited on the ice while it is attached to the mainland in Polar regions. In time this decays and forms a shallow soil, in which the seeds of buttercups and dandelions often find a lodging, borne by currents of wind that doubtless caught them up in some Southern clime. These take root and bloom when the great gleaming icebergs float out to sea and are carried southward, where the soft winds melt the surface and give the plants the moisture they need.—Manchester Evening News.

From an Autograph Album.

There are no friends like old friends. Friendship, like confidence, is a plant of slow growth.

The only way to have a friend is to be one.

Guard well thy thoughts, for they are heard in heaven.

He is the richest who the most beloved.

A pound of pluck is worth a ton of luck.

The foolish and the dead alone never change their opinions.

Love is better than lame.

There is no beautifier for face or complexion like the wish to scatter joy and not pain about you.

Be satisfied with doing well and leave others to speak of you as they will.

The best way of destroying an enemy is to make him your friend.

Live for the happiness of others so you will be happy yourself.

Experience is the best teacher but the school fees are heavy.

The way to obtain a good reputation is to endeavor to be what you desire to appear.

Live not for thyself alone.

Those who wait friends must show themselves friendly.

Your character cannot be essentially injured by yourself.

He is coward who will not turn back when he discovers that he is on the wrong track.

The Business of House-Keeping.

The following is an excellent thing to keep in the house, it is a fluid that will remove paint, grease, etc., from all sorts of fabrics without the least injury to the most delicate material. Carpets, portieres and draperies are also renovated by its use. The form is: four ounces of ammonia, two ounces of finely chopped shavings of white soap and two quarts of water. Mix together, let stand a few days with out using. Cover the spot to be cleaned and rub with a sponge, then wash out with clear, warm water. For carpets sweep off the dust first, then apply the liquid and scrub gently with clear water. If corked and sealed this will keep for a long time.

To remove machine oil stains cover them with lard for several hours, and then wash with soap and water.

Mad stains can be removed from dresses by dissolving a little carbonate of soda in some tepid water. Apply with a piece of cloth, rubbing the spot well, and press out the part later with a hot iron.

In order to make a dusty straw hat look like new, brush it well with a bit of wet muslin with alcohol. The result is surprising.

Another good way to clean a white straw hat is to cut a fresh lemon in half and rub the hat well with the juice, then rinse quickly with clear, cold water, dry as much as possible with a towel and hang the hat in a current of air in the shade. Of course all trimming should be removed first.

Woman's Dress.

Men are always running down modern dress and modern manners in women, says The London Express. Yet they often find attractive in other women what they condemn in the women of their own house. Women, of course, dress largely for the eyes of other women. But man is still the main object, and it is frowned upon woman who would change the guise in which she presents herself.

Dividing the Sheep and Goats.

Two boys went out nutting and gathered quite a lot. On their return they sought a nice quiet place to divide them, by sitting over the high cemetery fence. In doing so, they dropped some of the nuts, but said they would get those on their return. They then began saying 'I will take this and you'll take that, I will take this and you'll take that,' repeatedly. An old dorker, half-boiled came along and heard them talking and became paralysed with fear. He called a white man and said 'The Lord and the devil are dividing up the dead.' They returned to the fence to hear the tried words concluding, 'I will take this and you'll take that, that finishes them.' Then one boy remarked, 'what about those on the other side of the fence?' Needless to say the other two 'beat out.'

Her Mother's Partner.

A sturdy little figure she was trudging bravely with a pail of water. So many times she had passed I passed to remark: 'You're a busy little girl today.'

'Yes'm.' The round face under the broad hat turned toward us. It was freckled and perspiring, but cheerful withal. 'Yes'm; it takes a heap of water to do a washing.'

'And do you bring it all from the brook down there?'

'Oh, we have a cistern mostly, only it's been such a dry time lately.'

'And is there nobody else to carry the water?'

'Nobody but mother, an' she is washing.'

'Well, you are a good girl to help her.'

It was a well intended compliment; but the little water carrier did not consider it one at all, for there was a look of surprise in her gray eyes and an almost indignant tone in her voice as she answered: 'Why of course I help her. I always help her to do things all the time. She hasn't anybody else. Mother'n I are partners.'

What's the News?

High line in this newspaper is of interest to some one.

Each has been written and printed with a definite purpose.

To many men and women the most important thing this journal has to offer for their consideration is the advertising.

It is constructive, helpful, brightly written, often cleverly illustrated. It is all supposed to have a 'punch' in it.

It is the news of business—the voice of opportunity.

To overlook reading the advertising is to neglect one of the best features in the newspaper.

Legal Brutality.

A New York lawyer tells of an English widow who, by reason of certain legal complications found it necessary to retain a distinguished attorney to represent her in the adjustment of her late husband's estate.

'You will,' said the attorney, during the course of this consultation, 'you will get your third of the estate.'

'Oh!' exclaimed the widow, aghast, 'how can you say such a thing, with my second scarcely cold in his grave!'

A lawyer for a railway company once had to defend his employers from the charge of negligence in the case of a farmer whose cart was demolished at a grade crossing. The accident happened at night and the principal witness was an old colored man who was on guard armed with a lantern to signal the approach of trains. 'Now, John,' said the lawyer, 'did you swing your lantern when you saw the cart coming?'

'Yesir, I swin'ly did, suh, I done swung dat lantern right cross de road.' On the strength of this testimony the lawyer won his case. He took occasion to thank the witness. 'Much obliged to yo' Marse Tom,' replied that worthy. 'Ise pow'ful glad I could be yo' yo'.' But I was plumb frightened dat other lawyer gwine ax me ef dat lantern was lit.'

'Have you an opening here for me?' asked the assertive young man.

'Yes,' answered the capitalist, 'it's right behind you.'

Keep the Flies Out.

It has been generally observed that wire screens serve rather to keep flies in a stable than to keep them out. Stock journals recommend removing the window sash from each window, and nailing laths or strips of wood, six to eight inches apart, across the opening of the window frame on the outside. Then at the top of each frame on the inside a curtain of some cheap burlap or gunny sack is tacked, the height and width of the frame. The strips of wood prevent the curtain from blowing outward, and therefore as the curtain moves to and fro it is blown inward. The insects fly toward the opening, and as the curtain falls back it carries the flies with it. The same device may be applied on the stable door. The door may be removed and a skeleton door, fitted with cross pieces put in.

Owners who have tried this method claim that in a short time after the horses have been taken into the stable, there will scarcely be heard the stamp of a hoof or the swish of a tail.

For a picture he had just planned. Finally he found just the scene he was seeking, and best of all there happened to be a pretty detail—the figure of an old woman in the foreground. The artist asked the old lady to remain seated until he made a sketch of her. She consented but in a few minutes asked how long he would be. 'Only about fifteen minutes,' he replied. Three or four minutes later the old lady, with manifest anxiety in her voice, asked if he would be much longer. 'Oh, no, only a few minutes now,' again the artist replied. 'But why do you ask so anxiously?' 'Oh, it's nothing,' she answered sadly, 'only I'm sittin' on an ant hill.'

A certain rich man did not approve of foreign missions. One Sunday at church when the collection was being taken up, the collector approached the millionaire and held out the collection bag. The millionaire shook his head. 'I never give to missions,' he whispered. 'Then take something out of the bag, sir,' whispered the collector. 'The money is for the heathen.'

'It's going to be war to the knife,' declared the suburbanite, who was leading his chickens.

'What now?' asked the friend.

'Why, Wilkie sent me a box of axle grease and advised me to try it on my lawn mower.'

'Well!'

'Well, I sent it back

Advertising.

Advertising is a great and increasing force in business life, and it is development worthy of note that those who have come to be leaders in the profession are men of standing. That is an evidence that honesty and principle have been proved to be essential factors in successful advertising.

The day has gone by when the man who can make a better mousetrap than his fellows, builds his house in the woods and waits for the world to make a beaten path to his door. The business man, to be sure of the maximum of success, must have a place on the main street and must go out to meet the people. To do this he must utilize newspaper advertising, which has come to be the most effective medium since it carries with it a badge of authorization essential to success in impressing the public.

Very seldom to-day is the remark heard: 'I do not believe in advertising.' Every merchant believes in advertising who puts a sign up over his shop or who puts goods in his show windows. In doing so, he confesses his desire to let the people know what he has to sell. In some degree, everybody believes in advertising. So many business successes have been built up by advertising, that it is possible to-day to lay down the rule—advertising brings success.

Advertising has been developed until it has become a science. Our modern expert is a student of psychology and art as well as literature. He knows how to catch the interest, and hold it, and to impress the reader. He knows how the merchant must be prepared to meet the demand created by his advertising. He works according to a text book, formed by experience and study. The science of advertising has been forced to develop by the increase of production and the increasing spread of wealth. To-day more goods of all kinds are produced than ever before and more people are prepared to buy. To bring the goods to the purchaser is the advertiser's task. From crude and clumsy methods he has been forced to the adoption of exact rules. Modern efficiency in manufacture has set the pace, and he cannot falter.

This is an age of advertising. The science has its lessons for professional men and other workers as well as for business men. Many a man who lacks the scientific spark of advertising is below the plane that belongs to him on the ladder to success. For him, as well as for the merchant, however, a primary lesson of advertising holds good: he must not advertise to modesty—which he is not called upon to sacrifice—he will be a good citizen of the modern world. He will be realizing his possibilities to the maximum of their value to himself and to his fellows.

Editorial Notes.

The Halifax Morning Chronicle seems to be worrying very much these days over the question: 'Will Borden take the plunge?'—referring to the possibility of an early Federal election. If we mistake not there is a provincial election due first, and the Chronicle might more reasonably be troubled over the likely action of Mr. Murray. Will he take the plunge? We guess not.

St. John's Globe.—The State Superintendent of Schools at Columbus, Ohio, reports that it is becoming more and more difficult to keep the domestic science school supplied with teachers, so quickly do they secure husbands. His statement that he can get hundreds of young women to teach grammar, arithmetic and geography, but that it is difficult to keep domestic science teachers, suggests that the young men in Ohio are showing discrimination in picking ready trained wives.

The provincial general elections in the province of Manitoba, which were held on Friday last, resulted in the return of the Roblin government by a very narrow majority. 'Danish the Bar' figured very largely in the campaign, but it is evident the school question was the paramount issue. Many of Mr. Roblin's supporters were strongly opposed to the changes in the school law by which better terms were granted to the Catholic minority, and they voted with the Liberal party. The election was very bitterly fought, a feature of it being the charge of stuffing the voters' lists made by the Liberals against their opponents.

The ACADIAN has received through the courtesy of the authors a copy of the third edition of 'Stories of the Land of Evangeline,' by Mrs. Grace Dean McLeod Rogers, of Amherst. The book is published by the Lothrop, Lee and Shepard Co., of Boston, and is handsomely gotten up. 'Stories of the Land of Evangeline' is perhaps the most interesting of all the publications dealing with the traditions of our province, and the fact that it has been found necessary to bring out a third edition is abundant proof of its popularity. The stories are delightfully told, and the fact that the author is a native of Kings county makes the volume of especial interest to readers of THE ACADIAN.

WANTED.—Kitchen girl, best wages offered. Acadia Villa Hotel, Rock Falls & Co.

Manitoba Elections.

The election in Manitoba results in a small majority for the Roblin government, which has been in power fourteen years. The result is not significant outside the province concerned. The issue on which the campaign was fought was entirely of a local character. Not one single federal issue was discussed during the whole campaign. A leading Liberal organ states, 'the chances are that in the Dominion contest the province would be almost evenly divided in the Conservative column.'

However, to friends of progress, there is nothing quite so discouraging as the way in which the voters allow themselves to be swayed by local appeals to prejudice, bigotry and partisanship. The voters in Manitoba, it is learned, deserted the provincial government to a great extent on the Separate School question.

Looked at from every angle the Manitoba results afford no reason for Liberal congratulations in federal politics, or Conservative discouragement in the same arena. The whole truth is that the Liberals have played the usual political game a little better than the party in power, combined with the fact that the Roblin government, owing to the long tenure of office, has acquired many of the same variety of barnacles that eventually sack the late government of Ontario and will wipe out of existence the present government of Nova Scotia when next it appeals to the people. The government at Halifax know this and are afraid. Nothing but fear actuates the Murray government, and with good reason because there is not one safe seat for them in the whole province. Roblin is in for another five years; what would Murray give for a like condition of safety?

In a review of Dr. Kerschensetter's book on 'The Schools and the Nation' the Manchester Guardian observes that the schools of Munich under his directorship have become the models of the whole of Germany and are finding imitators both in Europe and America. The Guardian says that in reading the book two thoughts constantly recur. We quote:—'We have first his belief in the educational and social value of creative work. The average boy gets more good from making actual things of interest to himself than from any amount of mere book learning. And, secondly, this delight in creation, when shared by a band of workers co-operating for the attainment of a common end, is converted into a socializing force which may be used to counteract the many disintegrating influences that threaten the fabric of the nation's life. Each boy or man may be led to feel that he is helping to make something which will be of use to others, just as each trade may feel that by supporting its own continuation school it is contributing to the welfare of the city or nation.'

Dismissal of E. M. Beckwith.

DEAR EDITOR:—I desire to make a few observations in answer to a rather maudlin letter which appears in THE ACADIAN of July 16th, last, signed by E. M. Beckwith. Mr. Beckwith wrote a letter to the Morning Chronicle some few weeks ago in which he stated that Dr. Covert was not worth any consideration from him, but it is now quite evident that he has changed his mind in that regard; or else thinks little of the valuable space which he has taken in THE ACADIAN. Personally I have no fault to find with Mr. B. as a temperance worker or with any other man who desires, according to his own light, to advance the cause of temperance and reform in this, or any other country. The Liberal party of Canada, in which I claim humble membership, has a good record in this respect, and we of that party are proud of the fact. The question of Mr. Beckwith's dismissal has nothing to do with temperance whatever. He was dismissed because the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, sitting en banc, deliberately stated that he was unfit and totally disqualified. The Chief Justice of this province went so far as to state that such justice was not dispensed outside of Russia or some semi-civilized country and verbally said that the government should dismiss him at once. Mr. Beckwith very cunningly attempts to make people think that this was a personal matter with me. He uses the word 'wine' and 'liquor' as being the substance procured at my drug store, endeavoring by this base means to mislead his readers. Now what was really purchased at my store was a patent medicine, patented by the Dominion Government, sold all over Canada, and expressly examined by the Hon. Mr. Justice of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia. My medicine is perfectly safe, as anybody else could do. This medicine, I repeat, because this is the important point, is a patent medicine and sold as freely as Gates' Bitters, Ayer's Sarsaparilla, etc., etc. Nevertheless, this same magistrate, E. M. Beckwith, deliberately convicted a young man for doing exactly what he had done himself, and what was perfectly lawful under the Canada Temperance Act. This is not my decision, but the decision of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia. Mr. Beckwith says, 'He would have absolved Dr. Covert if he could honorably have done so.' I want him and everybody else to understand that I do not want any honorable or dishonorable shielding. If he thought that he was right and had not done something unworthy of his position, why did he not go before the Supreme Court as he had a chance to do, and tell them so? He knew that his expedition would be futile. He says that 'Dr. Covert swore vengeance on him.' This is not true, I told him that the case would go before the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia by certiorari, and that body after investigation (which he says he did not get) would quash the conviction and condemn him, all of which came to pass as I predicted.

Wedding Bells.

An interesting event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hanson, Factoryville, on June 30th, when, in the presence of about fifty guests, their daughter Mabel was united in marriage to Philip S. Beals, B. Sc., of Morrisville. The bride, delightfully dressed in pearl gray silk and carrying a bouquet of pink and white carnations. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. H. Beals of Casard, father of the groom, assisted by Rev. J. F. Foshy, pastor of the church. The wedding march was beautifully rendered by Mrs. McNeil, aunt of the bride. After congratulations and luncheon the young couple left by auto for Middleton. The gifts were numerous and valuable, including silver, silver and articles of furniture. A beautiful piano, cased organ was the gift of the bride's mother, Mr. and Mrs. Beals will reside in Morrisville, where the groom has been engaged in farming for the past five years.

Provincial Exhibition at Halifax.

SEPTEMBER 15TH TO 19TH. Departing from the usual custom of opening the Provincial Exhibition on Wednesday it opens on Saturday. This change has been made for two reasons, viz. in order to provide a circuit for exhibitors, and to accede to the request of the exhibitors in Live Stock who claim that the time their exhibits have been kept at the Fair was too long.

Preparations are now well underway and the prospects for a good show are assured. Many changes will be made in the manufacturers' building and some very interesting exhibits are promised. In the Agricultural Building the Dominion Experimental Farm will put on an educational and demonstrational exhibit along the lines of Field Husbandry, Chemistry, Botany, Horticulture, Bee-keeping, etc. which should prove interesting to all engaged in Agriculture.

The Fisheries Building has been taken in charge by the Fisheries Committee of the Board of Trade with Mr. F. W. Bisset as Superintendent, and this means a successful show in this industry.

The amusement end will be changed somewhat from the past and the old Pakis Row, so called, will be transformed into a tent consisting of Animal Acts, Deep Sea Divers, Motor Shows, Wild West and many other attractions.

The Grand Stand Attractions will be one of the very best obtainable, while the Horse-Racing Programme will be equal to any in the past. The evening show will close with a splendid fireworks display put on by the reputable firm of the International Fireworks Co., Jersey City.

TUMOR IN THE STOMACH

Completely Removed When She Took "Fruit-a-lives"

NEWBURY, Ont., April 14, 1914.
"Some years ago, I was sick in bed, and thought I was going to die. I had a growth in my stomach, which the doctors said was a tumor and they said that the only thing to do was to go to the hospital and have the tumor cut out. I dreaded an operation although both doctors said it was the only cure. I said I would die before being operated on. At this time, my mother in Alvinston sent me some "Fruit-a-lives" and induced me to try them as she had heard of another woman who had been cured of a similar growth in the stomach by taking "Fruit-a-lives".
To please my mother, I began to take "Fruit-a-lives" with the happy result that they cured me. I have not been to see a doctor since and my health is first class.
I recommend "Fruit-a-lives" every time I get a chance and I will be glad to have you publish this letter as some other women may now be a sufferer from the same trouble and "Fruit-a-lives" will cure her."

Road to Happiness.

This is the road to Happiness;
Start now, from where you are;
Turn to the right and keep straight on.
And you'll not find it far.
Along the Path of Willing Feet
And over Heartsease Hill,
Across the fields of Sweet Content,
The stream of Glad Good Will;
Then through the lane of Loving Heart,
The gate that's called To-day,
And down the steps of Little Things
Into the Common Way.
And take the Cloak of Charity,
The staff of Wise Employ,
A loaf of Bread of Daily Grace,
A flask well filled with Joy;
A word of cheer, a helping hand,
Some good to give or share,
A bit of song, a high resolve,
A hope, a smile, a prayer,
And in the Place of Duty Done,
Beside the Door of Home,
You'll find the House of Happiness—
For happiness does not roam.
—Anne Johnson Flint, in the Pacific.

The Test of Education.

A professor in the University of Chicago told his pupils that he should consider them educated, in the best sense of the word, when they say yes to every one of the fourteen questions that he should put to them. It may interest you to read the questions. Hear they are:
Has your education given sympathy with all good causes and made you espouse them?
Has it made you public-spirited?
Has it made you a brother to the weak?
Have you learned how to make friends and keep them?
Do you know what it is to be a friend yourself?
Can you look an honest man or a pure woman straight in the eye?
Do you see anything to love in a little child?
Will a loquacious dog follow you in the street?
Can you be high minded and happy in the wearer draggards of life?
Do you think washing dishes and hoeing corn just as compatible with high thinking as piano playing or golf?
Are you good for anything to your self? Can you be happy alone?
Can you look out on the world and see anything except dollars and cents?
Can you look into a used puddle by the wayside and see anything to be glad about?
Can you look into the sky at night and see beyond the stars? Can your soul claim relationship with the Creator?—Popular Educator.

Rockefeller Family's Total Abstinence Record.

"Young men who want to get on in the world nowadays, do not drink," John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is reported by the Chicago Tribune on January 19, to have said to the Bible class of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church of New York City. He added, "great corporations do not employ men who drink." In the course of his talk, which dealt largely with the temperance and race problems he told the members of his class that his grand father and his father never touched intoxicating liquor, and were total abstainers as a matter of principle, and that he himself had followed their example.

Five million dollars are to be spent by the British Government as early date on cottages for laborers in Ireland. The news was naturally hailed with delight in every province in Ireland. A large number of cottage schemes have been held up for want of funds; but now, yielding to the pressure brought to bear on him by the Irish Party, the Chief Secretary proposes to introduce a short measure making financial provision for the completion of these which needed houses for agricultural workers.

DEBY, N. S.
MIRAK'S LINIMENT CO. LIMITED.
GENTLEMAN—Last August my horse was badly cut in eleven places by a barbed wire fence. Three of the cuts (one) healed soon, but the others became foul and rotten, and though I tried many kinds of medicine they had no beneficial result. At last a doctor advised me to use MIRAK'S LINIMENT and in four weeks time every sore was healed and the hair has grown over each one in fine condition. The liniment is certainly wonderful in its working.
WITNESS, PERRY BAKER, JOHN R. HOLDREN.

The California State Board of Education has revised the qualifications for high school teachers in that State, so that all such must possess bachelor's degrees from standard colleges requiring not less than eight years of high school and college training. In addition to this the applicant must have taken at least a year's postgraduate work in a university approved by the state board of education.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Paper Cannon.
To the already long list of articles made of paper, there may be added paper cannons, which have recently been manufactured at the Krupp Gun Works in Germany for the special use of the infantry, says the Liverpool (England) Mercury.
Their caliber is a little less than two inches, and the pieces are as light as a soldier can easily carry one. But the resistance is greater than that of a field piece of steel of the same caliber. It is not to be understood that these paper guns are in any way to replace those made of steel. The paper arms are intended merely for use in situations where the movement of field artillery would be impracticable.
Paper artillery on the field of battle seems an extraordinary thing; but it is hardly more so than paper wheels for freight cars on railroads appears when they were first introduced, or for that matter, than paper water-pails were.

ONLY SIXTEEN, GIRL VERY SICK

Tells How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

New Orleans, La.—"I take pleasure in writing these lines to express my gratitude to you. I am only 16 years old and work in a tobacco factory. I have been a very sick girl but I have improved wonderfully since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now looking fine and feeling a thousand times better."
—Miss AMELIA JACOBSON, 905 Trempealeau St., New Orleans, La.

St. Clair, Pa.—"My mother was so alarmed because I was troubled with suppression and had pain in my back and side, and several headaches. I had pimples on my face, my complexion was sallow, my sleep was disturbed, I had nervous spells, was very tired and had no ambition. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has worked like a charm in my case and has regulated me. I worked in a mill among hundreds of girls and have recommended your medicine to many of them."
—Miss ESTER MAGUIRE, 110 Thwing St., St. Clair, Pa.

THE "ENTRE NUS"

How Invitation by Cross-Eyed Man Mixed Things Up.

By ADELE MENDEL.
"Don't say another word about the dance, I beg of you," said Beatrice. "I simply can't bear to hear any more about it."
"Since when are such subjects too frivolous for your ears?" queried Drusilla, raising her eyebrows and looking up from her fancy work.
"Especially when in all your fiery and glory you most like, will lead the grand march with Charles."
"Nothing of the kind," answered Beatrice in a I-don't-care-what-happens tone.
"Didn't you have a new gown for the occasion?"
"Yes, and I'll wear it if only to show some people that I can't be stunned by their audacity."
"But if you're not going with Charles, who is?"
"Hattie Weston."
"Incredible! Why, only last week Charles remarked in his nonchalant way, 'What do you girls see in Hattie?' She reminds me of the brook that runs forever, with her incessant talking!"
"Drusilla, when a young man talks to you about a dance and asks your opinion on all details, and then at the eleventh hour asks another girl, do you think he can ever justify his conduct?" asked Beatrice.
"No, and I simply can't understand it," admitted Drusilla.
"Are you sure?"
"Positive. Hattie and I met Charles on the street. He came towards us in his usual cordial way, and stopped to say to Hattie, 'I'm going to take you to the "Entre Nus" affair, Hattie must have had some talking as she didn't appear surprised, and only said, 'I thank you, what time will you call for me?'"
"For a moment I felt the keen insult that he should invite her in my presence, and then I said, 'I'm going with Jessa Tompkins.' You know my usual pestering me to go with him, so I knew I could rely on his taking me. We left Charles at the corner."
