Their establishment is a marvel of success and business propriety. They deal in confectionary, temperance drinks, ice creams, biscuits, cigars, &c., of superior quality.

Drowned at Black Brook.

On Sunday night, three sailors be-longing to the bark Glengarden, left Black Brook in a small wherry, to go on board of their ship. They were all the worse of liquor, and upset the boat. One of them, a colored man named Nevman, belonging to Jamaica, and stewart of the ship, drowned almost instantly. The other two clung to the bottom of the boat, and drifted down the river. Capt. Cameron, who had charge of a raft below Black Brook, heard the cries, and rutting out rescued the two unfortunate fellows.

Three representatives of the North of England miners are at present investigating the condition of the Irish agricultural population. They write their experience in the Newcastle Chronicle, and write them well. The letter, which appeared last Monday, signed by Mr. James Birkett was from Barna, near Galway. We cannot reproduce nis the communication in full, but w

side for about half a mile. There sit are probably over fifty of these dwellings. They are, with loo three or four exceptions, built of wa stones thrown loosely on top of ma each other, with mud in the flo middle of the wall to hinder the he wind from blowing through He They have all at one time or dir another, been thatched, but in in most cases the straw is now bu- ha ried beneath a plentiful crop of co weeds and low rank grass. They | ty have all been built by the tenants themselves, and their ideas gar of house-building have been, it she seems, quite rudimentry. I en-tered a dwelling standing near sho the road. The heads of the eri family were away in Galway. A | the girl, about nine years of age, was aw sitting on the floor, near the hou hearth, upon which were a the couple of half burnt clods of lear turf that had expired. The girl ma was rocking a sort of box that of t answered for a cradle, and on a he collection of rags in a corner, an- ling swering for a bed, laying a little gro fellow about three years old, sleeping calmly. There was nothing worthy the name of furniture in the house, and the earthen foor was a great tak deal more uneven than an ill offkept country road. Yet this, as fam I afterward found, was one of onl went up a rocky lane to two tice brokendown looking hovels which stood about fifty yards case from the high road. One of the them was about the size of an ordinary pig-style. The door of the other was suffed with stones an araw. At the gable have of the latter place I met an old ther bent man, whose body was but from half covered with dirty rags. He ville let me round the other side of and "house," and showed the way case through an aperture in the wall man This opening, which was the then only means of ingress and bear egress, had no door upon it. It subm was really nothing more than a poor hole, roughly broken in the wall. their The interior would be about 18 life feet long 10 feet across. There the l
