A GREWSOME ART.

The Strange Revelation Made by a Floating Corpse. The finding of an unknown man floating in the Delaware river at Philadelphia finally led to the discovery of a most gruesome fact.

This was what most attracted the attention of Zizachi, and he begged and pleaded with the keeper of the morgue to give him the strip of cuticle covered by the picture.

He being pined with questions as to what he intended to do with the strip of tanned cuticle after he got it, Zizachi said that in Morocco, where he had passed the greater part of his life, there were many tanned cuticles used for various purposes.

THE TICKET FOR YORK.

ANDREW G. BLAIR, THOMAS J. COLTHER, WILLIAM WILSON, JOHN ANDERSON.

GOING TO THE PEOPLE.

When a party goes to the people asking their support it is only natural that they should show on what grounds they ask for support. The government members for York go to the people presenting a long list of reforms in the management of affairs, they ask their support and show a better system of roads than were ever before seen in the country, they ask their constituents to sanction the abolition of the council, they ask them to give their votes in favor of a reduced executive expenditure, on a better class of bridges and more of them, on the doing away of ferries, and in their place putting bridges. They ask support because they have placed on every farm better class of cattle, horses, sheep and swine than would have been the case had no importations been made by them, they ask support because, by a system of subsidies, have started cheese factories within the county, because they have improved the condition of farms all along the line. Many other important points might be touched upon but this list is not enough to convince the intelligent voters of York that the men who ask for their votes in support of good government are fully entitled to them.

What have the opposition to offer to the people? It is a question that has not as yet found an answer. It has been asked on the hustings, in the house and in private, but a reply has not as yet been furnished. Surely it is too much to ask the people of an intelligent county as they have served them better than ever they were served previously and to place in positions of trust those whom they know have not the ability, judgment nor capacity to formulate a platform nor devise means to remedy an existing evil.

Dr. Stockton, the leader of the opposition, when asked for a platform has dodged the issue. He knows that he and his followers have no measures of economy or reform to advance, all they ask is to get into power and perhaps they may be able to carry on business for a term.

It is a choice between attorney general Blair and Dr. Stockton, and where is the choice of York who will hesitate as to what vote to cast? It is a choice between a man who has promoted all departments of the public service and a man whose only claim is: "I oppose the government led by A. G. Blair." Remember Dr. Stockton's record in connection with the Maritime bank case. The money in dispute was the garnered taxes of the common people, it had been paid in by the laborers, it was their money just as much as though it had been taken from their own pockets. Dr. Stockton went to England to protest against this money of the people being reserved for them, he said practically that the millmen, farmers, clerks, factory operators, etc., must pay this $30,000 over again, that through no fault of their own they must pay this tax. Attorney general Blair said this is the people's money; I am here to defend them; they have placed me in power to see that they are not wronged. Dr. Stockton said you cannot prevent us from taking this money out of the pockets of the people. Blair said he could and did. All know with what pleasure the news came over the sea that Mr. Blair had won the case before the highest tribunal of the British empire, where he had been forced to go to save the people from an injustice.

What should the people of all eastern York and Sunbury do but support the man who has placed the Fredericton bridge where it is. Who saved them more in ferry fees than pays their taxes yearly, who in spite of all the obstructions placed in his way by many of those who are yet opposed to him fought the battle almost alone and gave the people a very substantial token of his interest in their welfare? What should the people do but support a ticket composed as the government ticket is of men whose constant endeavor has been the improvement of the roads so that now York is said to surpass in its road system that of any state in the Union?

Why should the farmers support the government? Because it is the first legislature that has ever improved stock and farm appliances and disseminated information broadcast through the land. Other governments have promised much to the agricultural population but it ended in promises, all reforms are the work of the present government and their enemies will so admit.

We have seen that the opposition have no policy. Have they any superior ability? If not why should they receive support? When Attorney General Blair was in opposition he placed his platform before the people; when he was placed in power he completed these reforms, the most difficult being the abolition of the council which has been well and faithfully performed.

We ask the many readers of THE HERALD to bear these facts in mind and to support what they believe is for the best interests of their county and province and the result will be a triumphal victory for the government and a continuation of reform and advancement.

The convention held in the interests of the government on Thursday last in this city was largely attended, although the exhibition was in full swing and the farmers' parade taking place. The speeches of the attorney general and of Messrs. Anderson, Wilson and Colther, were those of men who felt that they had gained by their acts a strong claim on the support of the people, and were evidence that these representatives had so conducted the affairs of the country that they felt themselves entitled to be further continued in office. The convention was unanimous in its choice. Although a nominating committee was chosen, yet it was not necessary as everyone present desired the four chosen. They had carried the party to victory in the last contest, and it was felt that in the coming election there would be the names of men in whom the voters of York had the fullest confidence.

THE EXHIBITION

Address Presented to His Honor.

HOW THE EXHIBITS WERE PLACED.

The Crowds, etc.

The second provincial exhibition, under the auspices of Agricultural Society No. 34, was formally opened at two o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. A guard of honor from the C. R. L. headed by the band, formed an acceptable escort to his honor, Sir Leonard Tilley, who was driven to the platform where he was met by President Willey, several of the aldermen, Revs. Alexander, Payson, Roberts and Montgomery, officers of the P. H. Collier, M. P. P., while around the platform were clustered an immense crowd eager to hear Sir Leonard's address.

President Willey, on behalf of the society, then read the following: The Address. To His Honor, SIR SAMUEL LEONARD TILLEY, C.B., K.C.M.G., LL.D., Lieutenant Governor of the Province of New Brunswick:

MAY I PLEASE YOUR HONOR: One year ago, at the opening of the first agricultural exhibition held under the management of Agricultural Society No. 34, it was the pleasant duty of those representing this society at that time to come your honor and to thank you for your attendance upon that occasion. The same society, through its president and executive, desire, no less heartily today, to extend to your honor our sincere thanks for your distinguished presence upon the opening of our second agricultural exhibition.

The material interest to the country of the development of and improvement of all the lines of agriculture has frequently been emphasized by both the Parliament of our province and the Legislature of our Canada; and these bodies have from time to time enacted laws with the view of encouraging the farmer to study the more skillful and scientific systems of labor in his pursuits. We are aware of the competitive age in which we live, and recognize in the exhibition an opportunity by which the farmers of our province may be largely benefited by a comparison of methods and their corresponding results.

We regard the great advances made in dairying in several parts of the province as an indication of a more rapid development in the future of that important industry throughout the country. The beneficial results and the progress given to the various departments of agriculture by the effort of last year have been so marked that the industry has been encouraged, although laboring under considerable difficulties, to assume the responsibility of the present exhibition.

This province and the Dominion at large are again the subjects of congratulation. We are proud to have in the person of your honor a man who has been blessed with which he has blessed our land and our country. His long and honorable career in public life in this province; your intimate knowledge and close connection with the various branches of the industry and the educational development of the country, have made your name a synonym for integrity and truth; and we confidently claim for you that counsel and encouragement which you have always so generously bestowed upon us in the furtherance of those essential interests of this province.

It affords us great pleasure to greet your honor here today, and to assure you of our earnest prayer that the same kind of providence which has blessed our land with peace and happiness and plenty dwell within our gates, and call forth the heartfelt thanksgiving of a Christian nation to Almighty God for the overflowing mercies with which he has blessed our land and our country.

It is our wish that your honor convey to the people of this province the successful accomplishment of the great philanthropic institution which she has so generously supported and that many years may be granted to her, whose charitable works and Christian influence have, from the earliest times, been so seasonably devoted towards the amelioration of the suffering and the needy.

C. MURRAY, President. Fredericton, October 8th, 1892. His Honors Reply. Sir Leonard thanked Mr. Willey and the gentlemen associated with him for the very cordial welcome extended to him on the occasion of his visit to the exhibition. He said reference had very properly been made to the assistance given to the farmers by the Dominion and provincial governments. Both governments have endeavored to give all assistance especially in reference to agriculture. Assistance was necessary on account of the strong competition in farm products and in-fertile soils of Canada and the expense of great railway facilities and enterprise in agriculture so that all parts of Canada and the Dominion were able to compete on a level with the farmers of the Dominion and the Dominion at large.

Mr. D. Ross has a pretty crown picture—kittens; it shows much skill. Kelly & Murphy, St. John, three carriages. L. Goodspeed, Nashwaak, has a first prize bull, 5 yrs. old, Ayrshire, that received much credit. Estey & Murphy, Bloomfield, 1800 lbs. 2 yrs. old, 1st prize, weight 1800 lbs. John H. Reid makes a good display of Jersey, carrying off several prizes. G. A. Herley, Sunbury, takes 1st prize, 2 yr. old Zephyr filly. He has also prizes for the amount of $100—among others four firsts in Norfolk cattle.

Alex. Block, city, shows 1st prize Durham and Ayrshire cow, 6 years old. Julius Lynch, city, shows 1st prize, 2 yr. old Zephyr filly. Shows 1st prize draught stallion. He is a good one. Geo. A. Herley, Sunbury, shows a pen of three Aberdeen cattle—very handsome. Ed. Fraser, city, has a fine Jersey cow, carrying 3rd prize. Many call her a 1st prize cow. Andrew Langlois, Catherbury Station, has a 1st prize 3 year old Jersey bull—Paddy Lambert. He was superior to any on the ground. Also 1st prize Clyde, 2 yrs. old, weight 1275, from Clippay Boy; also 1st prize Hillmilly filly. Showed also a matched pair of grey that were very fine animals. Rich. Donald, Penna, a handsome team of matched Clyde Chestnuts—grand draught horses. Michael Crotty, Stanley, 1st prize matched team of bays; can haul anything. Geo. C. Miles, Sunbury, 1st prize Sir Charles gelding, 4 yrs. old; also two other fine colts.

Omrocco, 2 year old Zephyr colt, 2nd prize; also 1st prize Knight of Chester, 3 yr. old. These weighed, a year since, 1320 and 1325 respectively. The display of fancy work and home manufactures far surpassed anything yet seen in Fredericton. It was more artistic with better combinations and shows that the result of drawing and practical needlework in the schools is beginning to have an effect.

The cheese exhibit—home and factory made—shows what New Brunswick can do in these lines, and this important industry can not be too much stimulated. A. M. Gibson, Marysville, took 1st prize for foals of 1891. Isaac Teahdy took first with his four year old standard bred stallion. Thos. H. Colter, M. P. P., showed an Ayrshire calf that captured first, also one taking first prize in the Holsteins.

Kingaleer creamery took first in creamery butter. This product was much admired and deservedly so. Among the many visitors to the show was Miss Barrett of the Canadian department of the World's Fair commission. She is visiting the Maritime Provinces for the purpose of selecting fancy work for the Canadian exhibit. Although the city was crowded, yet everything passed off very quietly. Some little quarreling took place, but was little compared with smaller crowds of years ago. Woodstock, St. Stephen and St. John turned out in full force. The C.E.R. brought many visitors and altogether made up a multitude.

Perhaps one thing that was especially noted was the absence of any friction in the working of the show. All the complaints were made in a friendly way and made his special department as good as possible, and no wrangling nor discord was known. Messrs. Wiley, C. Murray, F. B. Edgecombe, G. Dibble, A. S. Murray, M. Tennant, A. D. Thomas, J. H. Reid, and all the others down through the ranks can feel that they did all in their power to make the exhibition a success. The bad weather spoiled the races in great measure, but those that were contested were good heats and were fairly well patronized.

Let us be seen in this country amidst such cheerful surroundings.

L. headed by the band, formed an acceptable escort to his honor, Sir Leonard Tilley, who was driven to the platform where he was met by President Willey, several of the aldermen, Revs. Alexander, Payson, Roberts and Montgomery, officers of the P. H. Collier, M. P. P., while around the platform were clustered an immense crowd eager to hear Sir Leonard's address.

President Willey, on behalf of the society, then read the following: The Address. To His Honor, SIR SAMUEL LEONARD TILLEY, C.B., K.C.M.G., LL.D., Lieutenant Governor of the Province of New Brunswick:

MAY I PLEASE YOUR HONOR: One year ago, at the opening of the first agricultural exhibition held under the management of Agricultural Society No. 34, it was the pleasant duty of those representing this society at that time to come your honor and to thank you for your attendance upon that occasion. The same society, through its president and executive, desire, no less heartily today, to extend to your honor our sincere thanks for your distinguished presence upon the opening of our second agricultural exhibition.

The material interest to the country of the development of and improvement of all the lines of agriculture has frequently been emphasized by both the Parliament of our province and the Legislature of our Canada; and these bodies have from time to time enacted laws with the view of encouraging the farmer to study the more skillful and scientific systems of labor in his pursuits. We are aware of the competitive age in which we live, and recognize in the exhibition an opportunity by which the farmers of our province may be largely benefited by a comparison of methods and their corresponding results.

We regard the great advances made in dairying in several parts of the province as an indication of a more rapid development in the future of that important industry throughout the country. The beneficial results and the progress given to the various departments of agriculture by the effort of last year have been so marked that the industry has been encouraged, although laboring under considerable difficulties, to assume the responsibility of the present exhibition.

This province and the Dominion at large are again the subjects of congratulation. We are proud to have in the person of your honor a man who has been blessed with which he has blessed our land and our country. His long and honorable career in public life in this province; your intimate knowledge and close connection with the various branches of the industry and the educational development of the country, have made your name a synonym for integrity and truth; and we confidently claim for you that counsel and encouragement which you have always so generously bestowed upon us in the furtherance of those essential interests of this province.

It affords us great pleasure to greet your honor here today, and to assure you of our earnest prayer that the same kind of providence which has blessed our land with peace and happiness and plenty dwell within our gates, and call forth the heartfelt thanksgiving of a Christian nation to Almighty God for the overflowing mercies with which he has blessed our land and our country.

It is our wish that your honor convey to the people of this province the successful accomplishment of the great philanthropic institution which she has so generously supported and that many years may be granted to her, whose charitable works and Christian influence have, from the earliest times, been so seasonably devoted towards the amelioration of the suffering and the needy.

C. MURRAY, President. Fredericton, October 8th, 1892. His Honors Reply. Sir Leonard thanked Mr. Willey and the gentlemen associated with him for the very cordial welcome extended to him on the occasion of his visit to the exhibition. He said reference had very properly been made to the assistance given to the farmers by the Dominion and provincial governments. Both governments have endeavored to give all assistance especially in reference to agriculture. Assistance was necessary on account of the strong competition in farm products and in-fertile soils of Canada and the expense of great railway facilities and enterprise in agriculture so that all parts of Canada and the Dominion were able to compete on a level with the farmers of the Dominion and the Dominion at large.

Mr. D. Ross has a pretty crown picture—kittens; it shows much skill. Kelly & Murphy, St. John, three carriages. L. Goodspeed, Nashwaak, has a first prize bull, 5 yrs. old, Ayrshire, that received much credit. Estey & Murphy, Bloomfield, 1800 lbs. 2 yrs. old, 1st prize, weight 1800 lbs. John H. Reid makes a good display of Jersey, carrying off several prizes. G. A. Herley, Sunbury, takes 1st prize, 2 yr. old Zephyr filly. He has also prizes for the amount of $100—among others four firsts in Norfolk cattle.

Alex. Block, city, shows 1st prize Durham and Ayrshire cow, 6 years old. Julius Lynch, city, shows 1st prize, 2 yr. old Zephyr filly. Shows 1st prize draught stallion. He is a good one. Geo. A. Herley, Sunbury, shows a pen of three Aberdeen cattle—very handsome. Ed. Fraser, city, has a fine Jersey cow, carrying 3rd prize. Many call her a 1st prize cow. Andrew Langlois, Catherbury Station, has a 1st prize 3 year old Jersey bull—Paddy Lambert. He was superior to any on the ground. Also 1st prize Clyde, 2 yrs. old, weight 1275, from Clippay Boy; also 1st prize Hillmilly filly. Showed also a matched pair of grey that were very fine animals. Rich. Donald, Penna, a handsome team of matched Clyde Chestnuts—grand draught horses. Michael Crotty, Stanley, 1st prize matched team of bays; can haul anything. Geo. C. Miles, Sunbury, 1st prize Sir Charles gelding, 4 yrs. old; also two other fine colts.

Omrocco, 2 year old Zephyr colt, 2nd prize; also 1st prize Knight of Chester, 3 yr. old. These weighed, a year since, 1320 and 1325 respectively. The display of fancy work and home manufactures far surpassed anything yet seen in Fredericton. It was more artistic with better combinations and shows that the result of drawing and practical needlework in the schools is beginning to have an effect.

The cheese exhibit—home and factory made—shows what New Brunswick can do in these lines, and this important industry can not be too much stimulated. A. M. Gibson, Marysville, took 1st prize for foals of 1891. Isaac Teahdy took first with his four year old standard bred stallion. Thos. H. Colter, M. P. P., showed an Ayrshire calf that captured first, also one taking first prize in the Holsteins.

Kingaleer creamery took first in creamery butter. This product was much admired and deservedly so. Among the many visitors to the show was Miss Barrett of the Canadian department of the World's Fair commission. She is visiting the Maritime Provinces for the purpose of selecting fancy work for the Canadian exhibit. Although the city was crowded, yet everything passed off very quietly. Some little quarreling took place, but was little compared with smaller crowds of years ago. Woodstock, St. Stephen and St. John turned out in full force. The C.E.R. brought many visitors and altogether made up a multitude.

Perhaps one thing that was especially noted was the absence of any friction in the working of the show. All the complaints were made in a friendly way and made his special department as good as possible, and no wrangling nor discord was known. Messrs. Wiley, C. Murray, F. B. Edgecombe, G. Dibble, A. S. Murray, M. Tennant, A. D. Thomas, J. H. Reid, and all the others down through the ranks can feel that they did all in their power to make the exhibition a success. The bad weather spoiled the races in great measure, but those that were contested were good heats and were fairly well patronized.

MURDERED.

Fred. Titus of Gibson Fatally Shot.

A Negro Barber His Dastardly Assailant.

Never perhaps in the history of the city and vicinity has such a shock been felt as on Wednesday night at half past eight when it was learned that Frederick Titus, of Gibson, had been killed at a shot from a gun fired by either Othello McMichael or his son Charles.

It appears from the many confused reports that there had been quarrelling during the whole afternoon. That a crowd were standing together in the street in front of Ran Staples' store when the negro came out the door about fourteen feet away with the gun.

The deceased was in his forty-first year, was married and leaves a wife and six children, the youngest child but eleven days.

The inquest took place before Coroner Dr. Coulthart at the office of the Clerk of the Peace, occupying Thursday and Friday nights.

The evidence showed that the deceased and Alex. Atchison were at the barber shop most of the afternoon and that a wrestling match took place between deceased and the old man when the boy interfered and the fight turned to anger and that after Titus and Atchison were separated and the fight changed on both sides.

The juror was out three hours and brought in a verdict of manslaughter against the boy and they severely censured the magistrates of St. Marys for gross negligence of their duty.

POETRY.

THE HEART'S QUESTION.

"Shall I love, or shall I not?" Mused a maid perplexed with care;

"O, to taste this mystic cup, Shall I venture or beware?"

"Is there any human love With unmingled joy replete? Or is it not inter-mixed With the bitter and the sweet?"

I have seen a mother's hair Whiten as the early frost, All for love; 't was her child, Was not loving the dead, or lost.

'T was the care-worm gnawed her heart, Least some danger might befall; In her cup of mother-bless, Was this drop of fretting gall.

I have known a tender wife Smile and sigh, he calm and start, As anxiety's hot hand Held or loosed her aching heart.

For the warm and loving tie Seemed not as it once had been; Jealousy—the skeleton, Slowly mixed the worm wood in.

Then I knew two maidens sweet, One with heart all brimmed and torn, While the other with love, Languis the gapping world to scorn.

And if love were pure and good, Pulse beating calm and slow, Still there comes a time—alas! Either one must surely go.

Ah! methinks this human love Slightly slips its two-edged art, In some subtle drug of grief Ere it plunges in the heart.

Question deeply, O my heart! And the answer weigh it well; What the cup of love contains Only itself can tell.

SELECT STORY.

COUNT OF MONTE-CRISTO.

REVENGE OF EDMUND DANTES.

CHAPTER IV.

ANDREA CAVALCANTI.

"Sir," returned the young man, with a reassurance of manner, "make your mind easy on this score. Those who took me from my father, and who always intended, sooner or later, to sell me again to my original proprietor, as they have now done, calculated that, in order to make the most of their bargain, it would be politic to leave me in possession of all my personal and hereditary worth, and even to increase the value, if possible. I have, therefore, received a very good education, and have been treated by these kidnappers very much as the slaves were treated in Asia Minor, whose masters made them grammarians, doctors, and philosophers, in order that they might fetch a higher price in the Roman market." Monte-Cristo smiled with satisfaction; it appeared as if he had not expected so much from M. Andrea Cavalcanti. "Besides," continued the young man, "if there did appear some defect in education, or of fence against the established forms of etiquette, I suppose they would be excused in consideration of the misfortunes which accompanied my birth, and followed me through my youth."

"Well," said Monte-Cristo, in an indignant tone, "you will do as you please, count, for you are the master of your own actions, and are the person most concerned in the matter; but if I were you, I would not divulge a word of these adventures. Your story is quite a romance, and the world which delights in romance contained in yellow covers, strangely mistrusts those which are bound in living parchment, even though they be gilded like yourself. This is the kind of difficulty which I represent to you, M. le Comte. You would hardly have recited your touching history that it would go forth to the world, and be deemed unlikely and unnatural. You would be no longer a lost child found, but you would be looked upon as an upstart, who had sprung up like a mushroom in the night. You might excite a little curiosity, but it is not every one who likes to make the centre of observation and the subject of unpleasant remark."

"I agree with you, M. le Comte," said the young man turning pale, and in spite of himself trembling beneath the scrutinizing look of his companion, "such consequences would be extremely unpleasant."

"Nevertheless, you must not exaggerate the evil," said Monte-Cristo, "or by endeavoring to avoid one fault you will fall into another. You must resolve to make one simple and single line of conduct; and for a man of your intelligence, this plan is as easy as it is necessary; you must form honorable friendships, and by that means counteract the prejudice which may attach to the obscurity of your former life. Andrea visibly changed countenance. "I would offer myself as your surety and friendly adviser," said Monte-Cristo, "did I not possess a moral distrust of my best friends, and a sort of inclination to lead others to doubt them too; therefore in departing from this rule, I should (as the actors say) be playing a part quite out of my line, and should, therefore, run the risk of being hissed, which would be an act of folly."

"However, M. le Comte," said Andrea, "in consideration of Lord Wilmore, by whom I was recommended to you—"

"Yes, certainly," interrupted Monte-Cristo; "but Lord Wilmore did not omit to inform me, my dear M. Andrea, that the season of your youth was rather a stormy one. Ah! said the count, watching Andrea's countenance, "I do not demand any confession from you; it is precisely to avoid that necessity that your father was sent for from Lucca. You shall soon see him; he is a little stiff and pompous in his manner, and he is disgraced by his uniform; but when it becomes known that he is in the Austrian service, all that will be pardoned. We are not generally very severe with the Austrians. In short, you will find your father a very respectable person, I assure you."

"Ah, sir, you have given me confidence; it is so long since we were separated, that I have not the least remembrance of him; and, besides, you know that in the eyes of the world a large fortune covers all defects."

"He is a millionaire—his income is 500,000 francs."

"Then," said the young man, with anxiety, "I shall be sure to be placed in an agreeable position."

"One of the most agreeable possible, my dear sir; he will allow you an income of 50,000 francs per annum during the whole time of your stay in Paris."

"Then in that case I shall always choose to remain there."

"You cannot count circumstances, my dear sir; man proposes, and God disposes." Andrea sighed.

"But," said he, "so long as I do remain in Paris, and nothing forces me to quit it, do you mean to tell me that I may rely on receiving the sum you just now mentioned to me?"

"You may."

"Shall I receive it from my father?" Andrea asked with some uneasiness.

"Yes, you will receive it personally from your father, but Lord Wilmore will be the security for the money. He has at the request of your father, opened an account of 3000 francs a month at M. Danglars, which is one of the safest banks in Paris."

"And does my father mean to remain long in Paris?" asked Andrea.

"Only a few days," replied Monte-Cristo. "His duty does not allow him to absent himself more than two or three weeks together."

"Poor, dear father!" exclaimed Andrea, evidently charmed with the idea of his speedy departure.

"Therefore," said Monte-Cristo, feigning to mistake his meaning—"therefore I will not, for another instant, retard the pleasure of your meeting. Are you prepared to embrace your worthy father?"

"I hope you do not doubt it?"

"Go, then, into the drawing-room, my young friend, where you will find your father awaiting you."

Andrea made a low bow to the count, and entered the adjoining room. Monte-Cristo watched him till he disappeared, and then touched a spring made to look like a picture which in sliding partially from the frame, discovered to view a small intestine, which was so cleverly contrived that it revealed all that was passing in the drawing-room now occupied by Cavalcanti and Andrea. The young man closed the door behind him, and advanced towards the major, who had risen when he heard steps approaching him. "Ah! my dear father!" said Andrea in a loud voice, in order that the count might hear him in the next room, "is it really you?"

"How do you do, my dear son?" said the major gravely.

"After so many years of painful separation," said Andrea, in the same tone of voice, and glancing towards the door, "what a happiness it is to meet again!"

"Indeed it is, after so long a separation."

"Will you not embrace me, sir?" said Andrea.

"You wish it my son," said the major; and the two men embraced each other after the fashion of actors; that is to say, each rested his head on the other's shoulder.

"Then we are once more united?" said Andrea.

"Once more!" replied the major.

"Never more to be separated?"

"Why, as to that—I think, my dear son, we must be by this time so accustomed to France as to look upon it almost as a second country."

"The fact is," said the young man, "that I should be exceedingly grieved to leave this country, and I have no objection to remaining here."

"As for me, you must know I cannot possibly live out of Lucca; therefore I shall return to Italy as soon as I can."

"But before you leave France, my dear father, I hope you will put me in possession of the documents which will be necessary to prove my descent."

"Certainly, I am come expressly on that account; it has cost me much trouble to find you, but I had resolved on giving them into your hands; and if I had to recommence my search, it would occupy all the few remaining years of my life."

"Where are these papers, then?"

"Here they are."

Andrea seized the certificate of his father's marriage and his own baptismal register, and after having opened them with all the eagerness which might be expected under the circumstances, he read them with a facility which proved that he was accustomed to similar documents, and that he was not ignorant of the details of an unusual interest in the contents. When he had perused the documents, an indefinable expression of pleasure lighted up his countenance, and looking at the major with a most peculiar smile, he said, in an extreme tone of enthusiasm: "Then there is no longer any such thing in Italy as being condemned to the galleys?" The major drew himself up to his full height.

"Why?—what do you mean by that question?"

"I mean that if there were, it would be impossible to draw up with impunity two such deeds as these. In France, my dear sir, half such a piece of effrontery as that would cause you to be quickly despatched to Toulon for five years, for change of air."

"Will you be good enough to explain your meaning?" said the major, endeavoring as much as possible to assume an air of the greatest majesty.

"My dear M. Cavalcanti," said Andrea, "taking the major by the arm in a confidential manner, 'how much are you paid for being my father?' The major was about to speak, when Andrea continued, in a low voice,—"Nonsense, I am going to set you an example of confidence; they give me 50,000 francs a year to be your son; consequently, you must understand that it is as likely I shall ever do my duty to you as it is likely I shall ever do my duty to my father. The major looked anxiously around him. "Make yourself easy, we are quite alone," said Monte-Cristo, "we are conversing in Italian."

"Well, then," said the major, "they paid me 50,000 francs down."

"Monseigneur Cavalcanti," said Andrea, "do you believe in fairy tales?"

"I used not to do so, but I really feel now obliged to have faith in them."

"You have, then, been induced to alter your opinion; you have had some proof of their truth?" The major drew from his pocket a handful of gold.

"Most palpable proofs," said he, "as you may perceive."

"You think, then, that I may rely on the count's promises?"

"To the letter; but at the same time, remember, we must continue to play our respective parts. I, as a tender father—"

"And I, as a dutiful son, as they choose that I shall be descended from you."

"Do you mean by that?"

"I can hardly tell, but it was alluding to those who wrote the letter; you received one, did you?"

"From whom?"

"From one Abbe Basconi."

"How do you know the name of him?"

"No, I have never seen him."

"What did he say in the letter?"

"From the Abbe Basconi?"

"No."

"From whom then?"

"From an Englishman, called Lord Wilmore, who takes the name of Sinbad the Sailor."

"And of whom you have no more knowledge than I of the Abbe Basconi?"

"You are mistaken; there I am in advance of you."

"You have seen him, then?"

"Yes, once."

"Ah! that is just what I cannot tell you. If I did, I should make you as wise as myself, which is not my intention to do."

"And what did the letter contain?"

"Read it."

"You are poor, and your future prospects are dark and gloomy. Do you wish for a name? should you like to be rich, and your own master?"

"Tush!" said the young man; "was it possible there could be two answers to such a question?"

"Take the post-chaise which you will find waiting at the Porte de Genes, and you enter Nice. Go to the Count of Monte-Cristo, Avenue des Champs Elysees, on the 28th of May, at seven o'clock in the evening, and demand of him your father. You are the son of the Marquis Cavalcanti and the Marchioness Oliva Corsinari. The marquis will give you some papers which will certify this fact, and authorize you to appear under that name in the Parisian world. As to your rank, an annual income of 50,000 francs will enable you to support it admirably. I enclose a draft for 5,000 francs, payable on M. Ferrer, banker at Nice, and also a letter of introduction to the Count of Monte-Cristo, whom I have directed to supply all your wants."

"SINBAD THE SAILOR." "Humph!" said the major; "very good! You have seen the count. And has he conformed to all which the letter specified?"

"He has."

"Do you understand it?"

"Not in the least."

"There is a dupe somewhere."

"At all events it is neither you nor I."

"Well, then—"

"If you do not much concern us; do you think it does?"

"No, I agree with you there; we must play the game to the end, and content to be blindfold."

"Ah! you shall see; I promise you I will sustain my part to admiration."

"I never once doubted your doing so."

Monte-Cristo chose this moment for re-entering the drawing-room. On hearing the sound of footsteps, the two men thrust themselves in each other's arms; and in the midst of this embrace the count entered.

"Well, marquis," said Monte-Cristo, "you appear to be in no way disappointed in the son whom your good fortune has restored to you."

"Ah! my lord, I am overwhelmed with delight."

"And what are your feelings?" said Monte-Cristo, turning to the young man.

"As for me, my heart is overflowing with happiness."

"Happy father! happy son!" said the count.

"There is only one thing which grieves me," observed the major, "and that is the necessity there is for my leaving Paris so soon."

"Ah! my dear M. Cavalcanti, I trust you will not leave before I have had the honor of presenting you to some of my friends."

"I am at your service, sir," replied the major.

"Now, sir," said Monte-Cristo, addressing Andrea, "make your confession."

"To whom?"

"Tell M. Cavalcanti something of the state of your finances."

"My lord, you have touched upon a tender cord."

"Do you hear what he says, major? Your son requires money."

"Well! what would you have me to do?" said the major.

"You should furnish him with some, of course," replied Monte-Cristo.

"Yes, you!" said the count, at the same time advancing towards Andrea, and slipping a packet of bank notes into the young man's hand.

"What is this?"

"It is from your father."

"From my father?"

"Yes; did you not tell him just now that you wanted money. Well, then, he deigns me to give you this."

Crasto went to the window, and saw them crossing the street arm in arm.

"There go two miscreants!" said he. "It is a pity they are not really related! Come, I will go to see the Morris!"

"I think that disgust is even more sickening than hatred."

CHAPTER V.

THE TRUSTING PLACE.

Our readers must now allow us to transport them again to the enclosure surrounding M. de Villefort's house, and behind the gate, half screened from view by the large chestnut-trees, which on all sides spread their luxuriant branches, we shall find some persons of our acquaintance. This time Maximilian was the first to arrive. He was intently watching for a shadow to appear among the trees, and awaiting with anxiety the sound of a light step on the gravel. At length the long desired sound was heard, and instead of one figure as he expected, he perceived that two were approaching him. The delay had been occasioned by a visit from Madame Danglars and Eugenie, which had been prolonged beyond the time at which Valentine was expected. That she might not appear to fall in her promise to Maximilian, she proposed to Maximilian that she should take a walk in the garden, being anxious to show that the delay, which was doubtless a cause of vexation to her, was not occasioned by any neglect on her part. The young man, with the intuitive perception of a lover, quickly understood the circumstances, and in which she was involuntarily pleased, and he was comforted. In about the space of half an hour the ladies retired, and Maximilian understood that Madeleine Danglars' visit had at last come to a conclusion. In a few minutes Valentine re-entered the garden alone.

BITS OF FUN.

"I've found a cake!" said a sparrow; "And the other birds cried, 'How nice; is there any frosting on it?'"

"Yes, lots; it's a cake of ice!"

The paper doll loved the china doll. "Will you be my wife?" said he. "Oh, you're just sheer nonsense," she laughed "that's all!"

YOU WEREN'T OUT FOR ME.

With only nine hundred and ninety-nine!

A freely with his tiny lamp. Played officer one night. And made the rounds of all the frowns. To see that things went right; And, happening to find a bee Who'd hopped a lily-bell, He marched him straightway to a hive, And put him in the cell.

Suggestion for a Summer Trip.

If you wish to take the trip of a lifetime, purchase the low rate excursion tickets sold by all principal lines in the United States and Canada via the Northern Pacific railroad to Yellowstone National Park, Pacific coast and Alaska.

The trip is made with the highest degree of comfort in the elegant vestibuled trains of the Northern Pacific railroad, which carry dining cars and luxurious Pullman sleeping cars from Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis to Yellowstone Park.

The scenery en route is the most magnificent in the world. The states through which the road passes. Beautiful mountains, rivers, valleys, lakes and plains follow each other in rapid succession to delight the eye with its endless color channels, snow-capped peaks, Indian villages and giant glaciers.

If you wish to investigate this suggestion, further send to Chas. S. Fox, General Passenger Agent, N. P. R. St. Paul, Minn. For the latest and most illustrated "Wonderland" book, Yellowstone Park and Alaska folders.

Bloomer-Benny, why do you refer to your uncle as she? Benny—Because he is a soldier. "But what of that?" "Men of war are always spoken of in the feminine gender."

IT HAS NO EQUAL.

WORSEFAND WEAKER.

Gettars, I suffered for three days very severely from summer complaint, and could not get relief but kept getting worse and worse till the pain was almost unbearable and I became very weak. Some friends advised Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and after I had taken the first dose I found much relief and it did not fail to cure me. I do not intend to be without this valuable medicine if I can help it. Wm. T. GLENN, Wilford, Ont.

Teacher (taking nationality of children as required at beginning of school year)—"Well, Fritz, of what nationality are you?" Fritz (decidedly)—"A Black Republican every time."

RHEUMATISM CURED IN A DAY.—South America Rheumatic Cure for rheumatism and neuralgia radically cures in 1 to 3 days. Its action upon the system is remarkable and mysterious. It removes at once the cause and the disease immediately disappears. The first dose greatly benefits. 75 cents. Warranted by Davies, Staples & Co.

Mamma—Freddie, I wonder if you will always have to tell your father if he is soiled? Freddie (in a pout)—"I 'spose so; papa says wimmin always tell everything."

RICH PLUM PUDDING. This delicious confection is nicely calculated to produce dyspepsia, heartburn, bilious troubles and headache. Burdock Blood Bitters is equally well calculated to cure these troubles and has proved its power in hundreds of cases. B. B. B. regulates and purifies the entire system.

There are only three ways of getting money. It must be begged, stolen, or earned. The only combination is neither begging nor earning $10.40 a ton for hard coal.

It is beyond all doubt that "Myrtle Navy" is the favorite tobacco with the smokers of Canada. They obtain more enjoyment from it than from any other tobacco made and those of them who have used it long enough to test its merits never abandon it for any other brand. The reason for this preference is that the "Myrtle Navy" is made of the very finest leaf which is grown and that in every process of its manufacture the most vigilant care is exercised to preserve the genuine aroma of the leaf.

A certain lady was once described by a rival as having "organs of hearing which were unfortunately too large for care and not large enough for wings."

CHANGE IS WELCOME. GENTLEMEN.—For twenty years I suffered from Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Poor Appetite, etc., and received no benefit from the many medicines I tried, but after taking five bottles of B. B. B. I am at heartily of any food and am strong and smart. It is a grand medicine and has made a wonderful change in my health. Mrs. W. H. LEE, Harley, Ont.

CORNS! CORNS! Tender corns, painful corns, soft corns, bleeding corns, hard corns, corns of all kinds and all sizes, are alike removed in a few days by the use of Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor. Never fails to cure, never causes pain, never leaves deep sores that are more annoying than the original discomfort. Give Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor a trial. Beware of substitutes. Sold by druggists everywhere.—Polson & Co., Kingston, proprietors.
