CHAPTER XLVIII
HIS FLORAL OFFERING.

"Bless you, sir," replied the gardener, delighted with Sir Charles's affability and trimming the leaves from a plant as he spoke—"bless you, sir, never see such a silent, solemn young man in my life. Excepting a good-morning or good-evening, as the case may be, he never opens his mouth. Always thinking, thinking, with his hands behind him and his spectacles bent on the ground. They do say that he is very clever up at the house, but of course I don't know."

"Very difficult to know whether a man's clever or not if he says nothing more than good-morning, eh?" said Sir Charles, with a pleasant laugh. "Well, I'm curious to see him. Good morning, Thompson; and thanks for the flowers."

And Sir Charles strolled away. Now there was nothing particularly culpable in being possessed of so beautiful a nosegay; but, seeing a bevy of ladies on the terrace, Sir Charles, with a sudden flush of color, that made his haggard face look exceedingly handsome, put the bouquet behind him, and then, as if still fearful it might be seen, turned down an alley in the shubbery and made his way back to the house.

After breakfast, as Thompson was putting on his coat preparatory to taking a walk, Sir Charles re-entered the conservatory and, looking round in a careless way, to see that all was clear, said:

"Here's the bouquet, Thompson. If you are going up to the Warren perhaps you will take it to Miss Goodman with my compliments; if you are not, I will stroll up with it myself, as I should not like one of your men to crush it."

"Oh, I am going that way, sir!" said the man, promptly. "It'll be safe with me, sir; a man don't spoil his own work."

The baronet watched him till he got clear of the terrace and upon the high road, then turned back with a shrug of the shoulders, muttering:

"Perhaps if Master Thompson guessed there was something else there besides the flowers he might not feel so flattered."

But if the gardener did not know there is no reason why the reader should not; and although letters are a nuisance in general, we must be permitted to communicate the contents of this one, as they are of some importance.

"My dear Rebecca," it commenced, and it was wonderful how easy these first three words were to write in comparison with the remainder, for Sir Charles was not quite so ready with the pen as he should have been.

"My Dear Rebecca:—This is the first letter I have written to you since one indited some ten years back which, if I remember rightly, contained principally—and solely, I am afraid—a modest request for a ten-pound note. I feel this morning that I ought to have taken that old fogey, Toddy's, advice and remained in the quiet seclusion of the sick-room a day or two longer. That is to say, I have spent so restless and unsatisfactory a night as to be reminded that I am not in good training as yet.

"Seriously, my dear Rebecca—for I feel that this attempt at light-heartedness is out of place—I feel most terribly miserable. I wish sincerely that there was no such person as Reginald Dartmouth and no such place as this new Hall.

"I seem scarcely able to breathe with the dread and horror of the thing. What you must have endured with the constant, never-ceasing nightmare continually with you, night and day, since the old man's death, must be indescribable.

"Great Heaven! It is fearful—indeed! And at present I see no way out of it at all.

"Were it not for your wish—which with me has more weight than a king's command—I would not stay here another moment; but for once I must serve the cause of justice, and hold myself ready to follow your directions.

"These expressions will naturally prepare you for what I have to tell. Last night—tormented by the suspicions your story had filled me—I devised a plan whereby I might get some clew to the truth of the terrible fears you possess. Rebecca, I am almost without a doubt of the correctness of your surmises. To be brief, during a quiet moment in the drawing-room, while no one was near us save the countess, I got into conversation upon the old Dale, and with intentional suddenness mentioned the old well, watching Reginald's face intently.

"It changed—nay, he changed, shrank and quailed beneath it to such an extent that in an effort to recover his usual calmness he broke between his finger and thumb a massive ivory chessman, which I could not, if paid ten thousand pounds, break with my two hands.

"Of course, he lost his presence of mind only for a few moments, but I saw enough to confirm my worst fears.

"What my night has been I can not describe to you. I will only remind you that for long years I have called this man friend. 'Tis true, I always knew him to have no heart, and scarcely gave him credit for conscience; but he was my friend, and this sudden revelation of the man's true character has been nothing more or less than a shock.

"I hasten to let you know the result of my test—scarcely knowing whether I am doing right in so doing. The bouquet in which I have inclosed this, I trust securely, will be brought to you by the gardener, an unscrupulous and honest fellow. If you have any message, written or otherwise, you need not fear to intrust it to him.

"I am a bad letter-writer, Rebecca, but you will believe me that, though I can not express my gratitude any better on paper than I have done in words, my sense of your kindness, gentleness, and goodness grows clearer every moment.

"Ever your,
C.

"P.S.—I have omitted to say that the secretary is away in London. He seems a strange character from what I hear, and I am almost convinced—though why I could scarcely say—that he is in some way a part and parcel of this fearful system. If he is not, he is, I should think, a tool of R. D.'s. I leave him, and all else, my dear Rebecca, to your keenest comprehension. Do not forget, I entreat you, that I am, heart and soul, at your service, even to death."

Strong language; but, unlike most written strong language, perfectly true, for Sir Charles wrote as he felt.

CHAPTER XLIX.
THE END OF THE SEASON.

All thoughts, all passions, all delights, whatever stirs this mortal frame, All are but ministers of Love, And feed his sacrificial flame.—COLERIDGE.

It was the last ball of the season at the new Hall.

On the morrow the guests who had been enjoying its hospitality were to take unto themselves wings and fly to fresh fields and pastures new.

The great saloon was all ablaze with light, the ante-chambers affording welcome relief with well-toned candleabra and half-darkened nooks of satin and buhl.

Flowers, added by foreign perfumes, threw a subtle scent upon the atmosphere, and the strains of fifty choice performers wafted from the carved and gilded orchestra at the end of the magnificent saloon, gave the finishing touch to the scene of gayety and luxurious abandon.

But a small number of the original guests had been compelled to depart, and the saloon was well-filled, and looked like a splendid conservatory of exotics all in flowers and bloom.

It would be difficult on the first moment of entering such a scene to pick out the principal actors in it, but the dazzled eye after a few minutes would single out first and foremost among the ladies the tall and graceful form of the Countess Vitzarelli.

Attired in a magnificent costume of pearl-gray satin, dotted with sprays of frosted silver and glistening with precious stones, that at every rise and fall of her perfectly-molded bust shot out innumerable scintillations of dazzling light, her glorious hair bound round in one massive Ionic coil and shining in the brilliant atmosphere like satin, and her dark, lustrous, yet mournful eyes, gazing dreamily around her with a look of calm meditation, she did indeed seem the impersonation of all that was goddess-like and beautiful.

At least, so thought all the men—most of them acquainted with beauty and loveliness of no small order. They one and all declared her to be, in grace and queen-like beauty, perfect and matchless.

More than the rest did Reginald Dartmouth so consider her.

To him she was the one thing to be ardently desired—the one thing, at the present, to thirst after, to scheme and plot for.

There was no lack of high spirits and ever excitement upon the faces of the pleasure-makers that wonderful night; but his face, though the heart below it throbbed with the excited pulsations of a stern and sudden resolve, remained as placidly calm, serene, and nonchalant, as he stood with one foot resting upon the slightly raised dais, looking round the room and its magnificence, as it had when he lounged through the old Dale rooms, toying indolently with the fiery, untamed nature of the young girl, Grace. Yes, quite calm and placid—so much so that one man, who has been watching him from behind a statue of the Venus de Médici, with keen eyes, turns away with a sorrowful sigh and murmurs in the voice of Sir Charles Anderson:

"Wonderful! He must be more than man!"

But the next moment the placid quiet of the handsome face had given place to a sort of keen scrutiny as the small, lithe figure of the Count Vitzarelli paraded itself through the maze of dancers and reached the side of the host.

The count had honored this ball because it was the last. Usually he remained in his room during festivities, busily engaged morning, noon, and night, in receiving and answering the dispatches which came sometimes by the ordinary post, but more frequently by well-mounted special messengers, who were great at swallowing the new Hall ale, and also great at keeping their counsel, as the prying domestics did not fail to complain.

General Ironside of the British forces probably will command the troops. Turkish Nationalists continue to raid Greek villages on the south shore of the Gulf of Ismid. The Greeks were shut into a Church which was set on fire. The Patriarch reports that there are only one burned and fifty Greeks alive in the village.

Rotten Mail Service.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—How long will the people of Bonavista District have to endure that intolerable yacht "Carmen"? There never has been such bungling and incompetency, to say nothing of gross neglect, since this Bay has had a representative in parliament. Surely the Government must have set out to enrich the owners of this contemptible little ship or else they would never have chartered her, or, on the other hand, they would have handed her over immediately they saw how utterly unfit she was for the work. No one ever knows when she will appear or what ports will be skipped. The first mail dispatched from St. John's is the last to be received. What is wrong with the Minister of posts? Must mails go out to connect with the "Carmen" which seldom gets anywhere. When he knows the condition of things why doesn't he send our mails by "Prospero," "Susan," and the Wesleyville motor boat alone. These boats arrive regularly. Or better still, have the motor boat to run twice a week in Gumbo as was done before the "Carmen" was put on the Bay. Bonavista itself is served by train, therefore honest John is satisfied; Port Union is the second city and W. F. Coaker is satisfied; but what is Mr. Winsor doing for his side of the Bay. We cannot expect much from him, for a more incompetent representative never sat in parliament. He is ever on the alert to find jobs for people more incompetent than himself, and to get down with the proletariat and listen to the prattle of Bob, who imagines that Jim, who supported the other Government, got twenty cents more than has been accounted for.

I would say to Mr. Coaker that even his friends feel a bit out with him, and hard as they may try to conceal their displeasure, it is very evident that they are extremely unsatisfied with the manner in which he treats his district. Every district in the country is treated better than this one, and I suppose for this reason. Mr. Morine held Bonavista spell bound for a quarter of a century. Government's might come and governments might go, but Mr. Morine seemed to go on for ever—but he didn't. But whatever he did, he did nothing wrong in the eyes of his district, and however glaring might be his failure, Bonavista would not see it. Mr. Coaker knows all this and says to himself, "I'll hypnotise my district like Morine did, and then I'll just do what I like and treat them as I please, and however dastardly I behave towards them, I'll never do wrong in their eyes. I'll go on, not for ever, but just long enough to satisfy all my ambitions, and then Morine's fate will be mine. There is one thing that can be said in Mr. Morine's favor, he always stood by his district, every part of it, and was kind and considerate to foe as well as friend, and although I could never persuade myself to vote for him, yet I always admired him, and I am sure if he were our representative, even in the Opposition, the Government would think twice before they would allow this district to be so neglected. We sigh for the days of the old "Rimouski" and Capt. Brown, the "Dundee," captained by Blandford and Blackmore, when twice weekly for the greater part of the season they made their ports, as regularly as the trains. But now we have gone back over twenty years. Whilst the war was on we were patient, but now matters are ten times worse than they were then and we must set a limit to our patience. As for Mr. Squires, we know he has very little to say in the Government, but he may or may not be as his master said, a "black rascal," but we know he is slipping up a good sum of money for services rendered, and as they are all trying to make as much hay as they can while the sun shines, of course the master allows it to go on, besides after all he cannot very well do without him. What a farce his manifesto was. Will we ever get decent patriotic government?

Thanking you for space, Sir, I am,
Yours truly,
J. W. G.

P.S.—Since writing above we have heard that the "Carmen" is in King's Cove, broken down. She has been there several days, and no attempt made to forward mails, and this business men are much inconvenienced and the general public ignored. It all goes to prove the insincerity of Squires, Coaker & Co's ballooning of last fall.

The Zylex treatment for eczema is not only a logical one, but a good one. Some cases of eczema of long standing have not only been relieved, but soundly and entirely cured by the use of Zylex Ointment, while the soap has detergent, antiseptic and healing qualities as well as being a toilet soap of outstanding merit. Knowing the Zylex remedies as we do, we have no hesitation whatever in recommending them in any case of eczema which ordinary skin remedies do not reach, with every hope of at least effective relief. The soap may be used either in combination with, or independent of the ointment, and is in any case a fine toilet soap for general use. WARSAW, July 19. The Poles are withdrawing from the south and southwest from the railway junction of Lida, which has been occupied by the Bolsheviks in their drive in the direction of Gradno. This Bolshevik sweep across Lithuania, is giving the Soviet forces possession of a rich harvest, as they are occupying thousands of acres planted by the Poles with grain and hay now standing in stacks. The Polish population is fleeing before the Bolsheviks onrush, the peasants crowding the roads with their livestock and vehicles loaded with household goods. It is said in Polish quarters that the retreat on the northern front is being continued in an orderly way according to plan.

This 10-Day Test

Has shown millions the way to white teeth

All statements approved by high dental authorities

This is how millions have found the way to whiter, safer teeth. You see the results on every hand—perhaps in teeth you envy. Send now for this simple ten-day test and see what your own teeth show.

Why teeth discolor

There is on your teeth a viscous film. You can feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. That film is the teeth's great enemy. It dims them and destroys them.

The tooth brush fails to end it, for the ordinary tooth paste cannot dissolve it. So for months between your dental cleanings it may do a ceaseless damage.

It is the film-coat that discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea—a trouble which few escape.

Dental science has for years sought a way to fight that film. Five years ago the way was found and convincing tests have proved it. Now leading dentists everywhere advise it, and millions of people have been led to employ it.

The method is embodied in a denturice called Pepsodent—a tooth paste considered ideal by authorities. It is believed that its use will create a new dental era.

Supplied on request

A ten-day tube of Pepsodent is now sent to all who ask—to 10,000 people daily. This is done to let everyone know quickly what it does.

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to dry by day combat it.

Pepsin must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth. That is why it long seemed barred. But science has found a harmless activating method, so it can be daily applied to the film.

Two other new factors in tooth protection are also combined in Pepsodent.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coat disappears. A ten-day test will be a revelation.

Compare this new method with the old. Then let the clear results decide what is best for you and yours. Cut out the coupon now.

Archbishop Mannix Interviewed.

AUSTRALIAN PRELATE TELLS OF BAND INCIDENT.

(Montreal Daily Star, July 13.) Archbishop Mannix, of Australia, left Montreal for New York on his journey from Melbourne to Europe. A large number of clerical dignitaries and others gathered at Windsor Station from where he took the 10.40 train this morning.

The archbishop, a man of about 50 years of age, with iron-grey hair, tall and of commanding presence, but with a very approachable manner and an instantaneous smile, said: "I am journeying from Melbourne, in Australia, the dominion which in two elections turned down conscription and then voluntarily joined the army in greater numbers than did any other dominion, and had, too, a greater percentage of casualties than any other, and am on my way to Rome, on that visit which must be made periodically to the Pope. I came to Montreal to see a little of your beautiful city, and am now on my way to New York, where I expect to be until Sunday, and then sail for Rome via Ireland."

Questioned as to his well-known Sinn Fein sympathies, the archbishop replied that he certainly was a Sinn Feiner, but the object of his present journey had nothing to do with the work of that cause. "I am a Sinn Feiner all the time, and have always been so, but am not at all the time engaged in work on their behalf." The object of the journey was entirely the necessary visit to Rome.

The red uniform of a mounted policeman caught the archbishop's keen eye, and he was interested to learn what force the man belonged to, saying that he understood the British Army was returning to the redcoat uniform for peace service, though they will keep the khaki for war service. As to the theory that there will be no more war, the archbishop stated that he did not for a moment believe that there is to be no more war, and in fact he felt that the nations are now getting ready for the next one, "which will occur whenever they have completed their preparations." As to the date of the next war, however, he laughingly refused to venture any prophecy.

The Band Incident.

The band incident, which occurred on board ship while on his way out was a matter of some interest. It appeared from the archbishop's statement, that some fellow-royager, who had during dinner one evening asked the ship's band to play The Star-Spangled Banner and the British National Anthem. "It was an impertinent action," said His Lordship, "and I stood while they played the Star-Spangled Banner and sat down during the British National Anthem. It was a very small matter, and would have been of no interest, except that it had been noised round the world. In fact it has gone so far that I do not think it matters if it goes a little further."

The archbishop said he was sailing for England on the Baltic, adding: "I have no secrets to keep, and no desire to withhold anything connected with my journey."

It was rumored that Archbishop Mannix visit to Rome may, however, portend something more than the formal visit which he indicated, and it was thought probable that he may be about to receive some promotion while in Rome. He, however, did not mention this.

It was said that a meeting and banquet in honor of Archbishop Mannix are being held at Madison Square Gardens in New York on Sunday next, and, while his journey is not one of propaganda, as he himself said, he is to address a meeting of Irish sympathizers while there.

Bishop Foley in the Party.

With Archbishop Mannix is traveling Bishop Foley, also of Melbourne. The Bishop said that they had so far had a most pleasant journey.

Their party arrived in Montreal last Saturday, and had spent a night at St. Anne de Beaupre, arriving in Montreal this morning. They were therefore here only an hour or two, and had had little time to view the city. The rainy weather of the last few days had changed, however, to brilliant sunshine, so that Montreal showed itself at its best.

The archbishop came to the observation platform at the rear to bid the final goodbyes, and as the train steamed slowly off the party gave His Lordship a hearty send-off.

NEW YORK, July 12.—(By Canadian Press)—Archbishop Daniel Mannix, of Melbourne, Australia, who is at present in Montreal, will receive the freedom of the City of New York from Mayor Hylan, after his arrival in this city on Saturday next, it was announced in The Times this morning.

He will be one of the principal speakers at a mass meeting at Madison Square Garden next Sunday, which is to be held in the interest of "The Irish Republic." The self-styled "president of the Irish Republic," Eamon de Valera, will also speak.

Esquimaux Killer on Board Nascopic.

The alleged Eskimo murderer, Ouangwak, arrived in this city at 7.15 last night and is now at large on the deck of the s.s. Nascopic, which is being loaded at the Hudson's Bay Co.'s docks.

In spite of reports to the contrary Ouangwak seemed in good health, and except that he has lost weight in the unaccustomed climate, the sergeant in charge of the prisoner thought that there was nothing to worry about. "As soon as he gets some fat seal meat he will be all right," he declared. The prisoner doesn't like varied food, but prefers his native diet, consisting chiefly of fish and deer meat.

The boat leaves in a couple of days and will arrive in Hudson Bay early in September. The prisoner, who is in charge of Sergeant Douglas, another sergeant and two constables, will disembark at Port Churchill and will then be taken 400 miles overland to the place of trial, Chesterfield Inlet, where the case will be judged with great ceremony. Dressed in khaki shirt and European trousers, Ouangwak with stiff bristling black hair and Oriental eyes looks very much like a Korean. He talks at leather boots and is wearing a pair of high moccasins with gaily beaded tops, once the property of his captor, the Star was informed.

When seen on dock this morning he was posing for his photograph and smiled broadly for the camera man. As soon as the picture-taking was over he drew his feet up into the chair, his knees on a level with his chin. The sergeant explained that this was his favorite position, for chairs are dispensed with in an igloo, and he was accustomed to sitting thus. Whenever anyone spoke to him in his own tongue his face brightened wonderfully and he seemed on the verge of tears.

He belongs to the lowest tribe of Eskimos and as such is looked down upon by the members of other tribes.—Montreal Daily Star, July 13.

"There's a Reason"

Big Boyne Celebration.

BOTH BELFASTS LOYALLY OBSERVE EVENT.

BELFAST, July 12.—Special Star Cable.—Grey skies and drizzling rain cannot dampen the enthusiasm of Belfast Orangemen. Despite the bad weather yesterday's twelfth of July demonstration was a record in every way. Never have so many grimly determined men marched in the procession; never was there such a banner display, and never has the appalling noise of Belfast drums sounded so terrible.

This year the concentration point for the fervid oratory incidental to the twelfth was at Finsghy, four miles from the city's centre. Here, loyal Orangemen from every corner of the British Empire were bidding Belfast to be of good cheer and bringing striking confirmation of Carson's words. "Ulster has many friends in Canada, Australia, New Zealand and Africa who, in the hours of difficulty, that God knew might come quickly enough, could be relied on to rush to Ulster's assistance to maintain the old motto, "No surrender." Prominent in the procession were the new banners presented by Canadian Lodges and now unfurled for the first time.

The Londonderry demonstrations having been forbidden by the military authorities, a detachment from that city composed of men who took part in the recent fighting, were given pride of place in the Belfast celebration and, in their midst, was carried the flag of Canada. Throughout the whole procession heavy emphasis was laid on the Orange support forthcoming from the Dominions.

At mid-day no untoward incident had occurred. The military precautions were so complete that any conflict between the Belfast processionists and the rival body was averted.

Carson's Notable Speech.

BELFAST, July 12.—(By Associated Press.)—The celebration of Orangemen's Day had as its great feature the customary parade, and, in addition, a notable speech by Sir Edward Carson, Ulster Unionist leader, whose pronouncement on the present situation in Ireland was looked forward to eagerly.

Sir Edward minced no words, and enthusiasm reached a climax when he declared in effect that the Government had failed to govern Ireland, and that if it could not protect Ulster the volunteers would reorganize and Ulster would take matters into its own hands.

Every hamlet, village and town in Ulster had some kind of a celebration, and reports over a wide area last night are that all passed quietly, even in Londonderry, where the two factions are represented as ready to renew the fighting, and the military forces relaxed their vigilance.

Belfast was heavily guarded by soldiers, but the only troops allowed out of barracks were those actually on duty.

Those people in England who hoped that a conciliatory note might be struck in this celebration will be sadly disappointed. There was nothing conciliatory about it, from the inscriptions on the banners across the streets denouncing the Sinn Fein to Sir Edward Carson's declaration that the people of the South would of their own volition have to hang those guilty of political murders before Ulster would even consider unity, which the sponsors of the Home Rule Bill have said they hoped for.

The parade, which it is estimated numbered 25,000, was unique in the amount and variety of music and the kind and number of banners.

Every lodge made some attempt at music, and there was a band to every half block of the parade. The banners were gorgeous silken affairs, on which were painted scenes depicting the early history of Ulster. There were numerous pictures of King William on his white horse crossing the Boyne.

Rain and heavy wind early in the day threatened to destroy the banners, but the return march from Finsghy Park, where the ceremonies were held, was made in beautiful weather.

The Belfast of Canada.

TORONTO, July 13.—Never before in the history of Orangemen in Ontario was the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne celebrated with more lively interest than was the case yesterday in many centres, and larger parades than usual marked the various demonstrations. Many cities and towns held celebrations and specially big Orange processions were reported at Peterboro, Sarnia, Belleville, and Owen Sound.

In Toronto the parades numbered more than 8,000, which was a record for "the Belfast of Canada," as this city was called by Mayor T. L. Church in his address of welcome to the Orangemen at Exhibition Park.

Hon. W. D. McPherson, former provincial secretary, deputy grand master of the Grand Lodge of British America, announced that he and H. C. Hocken, M.P., Grand Master, had sent a cable message to Sir Edward Carson, at Belfast, stating that the eyes of the world were on him, and the hearts of the Orangemen of Toronto were with him.

In connection with the Toronto Orange celebration a tag day was held in aid of the Orange Home for children, and $12,000 was realized.—Montreal Daily Star, July 13.

Origin of Honeymoon.

Whence the term "honeymoon"? It was an ancient custom among the Scandinavian races to drink mead, or diluted honey, for thirty days after the wedding. In the Island of Rhodes honey is still a factor in the marriage rites. After the ceremony the husband dips a finger in honey and traces a cross over the doorway of his home before his bride enters, while the guests admonish the bride to "Be always sweet and good, as is this honey."

Using Belle Isle Route.

The Belle Isle Strait route, which cuts short the Britain to Montreal route by some two hundred miles, is now opened for the 1920 shipping season. Ten days ago a venturesome freighter, the Serbastien, entered the lower gulf, via Labrador and Newfoundland, but was not followed by the general run of shipping. To-day the freighter Grampian Range is reported in the straits, and she is being followed by the Canada Steamships liner Kamarima, now reported approaching Belle Isle.

The Captain of the Serbastien reported, on his trip through, that he found considerable ice off Belle Isle, but that the strait was quite clear of ice. That the short route through the Belle Isle strait will be popular this season is evidenced in the report just received from the Cape Race Signal Station. This station reports in the past 24 hours a large number of bergs and growlers, north and south of the steamship lanes. This is the first report of ice on this route during many weeks. The report, being relayed seaward by wireless will divert many incoming liners to the Belle Isle route.

The passage of liners through this route in the present season does not precede the average record. Pilots on the local waterfront recall years when boats docked at Montreal, via the Strait of Belle Isle, on the 20th June. Two Canadian Government Merchant Marine ships arrived in port to-day. They are the Canadian Seigneur and the Canadian Miner. Other arrivals include the White Star freighter Turcoman and the new vessel Nebrisch, which is being operated under the War Reparations Commission.—Montreal Daily Star, July 13.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

AN AUTHORITY MAKES SOME BUDGET REMARKS.

About once in so often, I am asked by some letter friend to give an idea what proportion of the earnings of a family or individual should be spent on the different items in the budget—food, clothing, and so forth. This is a very difficult question because of the various circumstances, such as the size of the family, the occupations, and so forth, so seriously affect the answer. Besides, one needs to put in a great deal of study on such matters to have one's opinion worth anything. But I have just been consulting with a person who has made a study of this subject, and I am going to tell you some of the things he has to say. His name is Uncle Sam, and he communicated with me through some of his thrift bulletins.

group. Elsewhere Uncle Sam further emphasizes this by saying, "Milk is the most important of the proteins. But at least a pint daily for every member of your family, more for young children. No other food can take its place for them. Save on meat if you must, but do not scrimp on milk."

Clothing and Housing.

So much for foods, (though, of course, Uncle Sam has a great deal more well worth your reading). Now for housing. Uncle Sam says you should not have more than twice your annual income invested in your house. He does not say what your rent should be, but it is possible to figure it out on that basis since, presumably, you should not live in a house whose value, judged by the rental, is more than twice your annual income. Do you?

For clothing Uncle Sam tentatively suggests 15 per cent—that is $180 with a $1200 income, $300 with a $2000 income, $450 with a $3000 income, and so on. He also suggests that you divide your clothes appropriation carefully among your various needs; and that you spend approximately 70 per cent of it for outer clothing, 20 per cent for underclothing, 5 per cent for accessories, and 5 per cent for care and findings. Does this seem reasonable to you?

Fads and Fashions.

The long paneled tunic drops below a tightly fitted underskirt. Some Paris models have drawn in waistlines and full flare skirts. White crepe braid make excellent trimming for the blue serge frock. Some striking duvetyne frocks have been shown in the new tomato red. Silver horsehair lace is very effective used on garments of dark serge. A child's dress of red linen is trimmed with red and white striped lawn. The favorite colors in shoes will be morocco, Chippendale and gold brown. Very short sleeves call for sixteen or even twenty button gloves. Fancy mesh veils with accordion-pleated chiffon borders are popular. It is rumored that evening gowns will have long, transparent sleeves. Frilly, pleated neckwear in white and pastel shades is worn with sweaters.

Gambling With Death.

Adventurous spirits will always find ways to risk their lives. Nevertheless, it is seldom if ever in the public interest for a man to risk his life as a matter of caprice. The "dare-devil" gains more notoriety than fame. As a rule, he is a man with an over-developed ego, whose abnormal self-confidence explains his audacity. The best ever said for him is that he is anxious to make money quickly for legitimate purposes, but when was it desirable to have a sensational advertisement given to that manner of making money? The crowd that watched a visitor from the Old Country dash himself to pieces on the rocks below Niagara Falls the other day may have got a thrill or two out of the performance. But the whole spectacle was far from edifying. There was a "Roman holiday" atmosphere. We have come to regard such things as degrading, for old and young. The authorities of Ontario might well consider putting a stop to this gambling with Death at Niagara Falls. —Montreal Daily Star.

THE MODERN WAY.

I do as little as I can, and ask the highest pay; that's why I am an also ran, now that I'm bent and gray. I fooled along, year after year, at every job I'd touch; I always had a deadly fear that I would do too much. I've heard of men who strive to give full value for their wage; such people are too good to live, and never reach old age. Such people live in story books, and tracts and sacred tales, and many years have passed gadzooks, since I have seen such males. Like other independent wights who swell the tolling throngs, I've always stood up for my rights, and whooped about my wrongs. I've pawed around in noble rage, and shed all kinds of brine; the rights of those who paid my wage was no concern of mine. And now that I am gray and bent I cannot find a place; employers will not pay a cent—they do not like my face. They scorn me when, in woe arrayed, with work I'd get in touch; they've heard I always was afraid that I would do too much.

Bodices of evening gowns are draped snugly to the figure. Combinations of black-and-white in cloth costumes are smart.

OLDEN DREAMS. Drowsy old summer, with nothing to do, I'd like to be drowsin' an' dreamin' with you; I'd like to stretch out in the shade of a tree, An' fancy the white clouds were ships out at sea. An' conjure up pictures of treasures an' things, All peopled with pirates an' princes an' kings, An' just drench my soul with the glorious joy Which was mine to possess as a bare-footed boy.

Drowsy old summer, your skies are as blue As the skies which a dreamy-eyed youngster once knew, An' I fancy to-day all the pictures are there— The ships an' the pirates an' princesses fair, The red scenes of battle, the gay, cheering throngs Which greeted the hero who righted your skies, But somehow or other, these old eyes of mine Can't see what they did as a youngster of nine.

Drowsy old summer, I'd like to forget Some things which I've learned an' some hurts I have met; I'd like the old vision of splendor an' joy Which were mine to possess as a bare-footed boy. When I dreamed of the glorious deeds I would do As soon as I'd galloped my brief boyhood through; I'd like to come back an' look into your skies With that wondrous belief an' those far-seeing eyes.

Drowsy old summer, my dream days have done An' the things which are real I must now look upon; No longer I see in the skies overhead The pictures that were, for the last one has fled; I have learned that not all of our dreams can come true, That the tollers are many and heroes are few; But I'd like once again to look up there an' see The man that I fancied some day I might be.

EVIDENCE OF PROSPERITY.

If the commercial progress and accumulating wealth of a community are to be gauged by the improvements and additions to its buildings, then St. John's is on the crest of a high wave of prosperity. The many additions, structurally, during the past decade, go to prove that the future possibilities of a continuing era of success in business are not regarded as a myth by those who are in the best position to know. And hence they are using their knowledge to improve, and otherwise beautify, by the erection of commodious and up-to-date buildings, a city which possesses natural advantages and only needs modern methods to make it second to none so far as layout and system will go. It is rather a promising sign of the times to note the great rivalry existing amongst the Canadian Banking institutions in St. John's, each one being inspired to have the most complete and convenient suite of offices for the carrying on of their system, and the better satisfaction of their numerous patrons and customers. If the standard of the commercial prosperity of St. John's, Newfoundland is to be measured by the wonderful advance in the growing business of the banks established here, the confidence with which the management and directorate of these financial institutions view the future must communicate itself to our people and give them a feeling of security which otherwise would be lacking. The barometer of trade is closely watched by bank managers, and even for them it does not always "Set Fair" any more than it does for those who are putting through daily transactions, yet their advice is eagerly sought and acted upon, and seldom indeed is it that their judgment of financial probabilities is faulty.

Buttressing this premise then, the erection of two magnificent buildings such as the Bank of Commerce and the Royal Bank have on hand, the former's being rapidly approaching completion, is gratifying proof that there is no fear of any financial disaster to this dominion. The signs of the times as well as the commercial weather glass all point to Set Fair, and such encouragement as the Banks give us of the presence of prosperous conditions, should be correspondingly stimulating. The times look promising. The trade is fast recovering from set backs caused by the war. The wheels of every industry are beginning to turn and move on re-oiled and re-adjusted bearings. The outlook is more hopeful, now that the dark clouds of conflict have been dissipated by the rising sun of peace, and the marts of the world are demanding increased production in order to supply the demand. Newfoundland can well avail of the opportunities offered, and the inducements held out. There is ample scope and wide areas for the disposal of our products than have hitherto been open to us, and with the ever-increasing demand of the world for more and still more food supplies, the portals of markets heretofore unknown to the trade are flung wide for the reception of all that we can send through their gates. In a word the world wants fish and fish can be supplied by this colony in abundance. Prospects perhaps were never better for the reconquest of old and the capture of new markets abroad. The Banks believe that the future is bright. They are making preparations to meet the additional business inseparable from prosperity and progress. They have faith in the ability of this dominion to make good, because they know that the resources of nature are behind us. Shall we not imitate their faith and keep the machinery of increased trade and commerce ever in motion. The catch cries of dismal jimmies must not be taken seriously. Always have there been pessimists wailing their tales of misfortune in the streets, but their day is ended. The sun of prosperity is rising in a clear sky and the watchwords are optimism and faith.

Local Trappers Make Good Hauls.

The trap fishery on the local grounds yesterday was the best for some time past. At both the morning and evening hauls the traps were filled with large sized fish. Many hook and line men assisted in securing the catch and incidentally received a boat load for their services. Up to yesterday very little had been done with fish and trap owners were fearing a bad voyage. However, yesterday's good work has made things look promising.

The Woodford Enquiry.

All of yesterday's sitting of the Commission appointed to enquire into the Woodford Affidavit was taken up with the examination of Messrs. Woodford and Howley, K.C., counsel for the former. There are not any developments expected until Thursday's session, and the time between yesterday and then will be occupied by the Commissioners in considering who they will call upon to give evidence on that day. The answers to the questions of Commr Rendell by Mr. Woodford are most interesting and refreshing and indubitably show that there was something doing when the unexpected gains were made. Truly the way of the professional politician, like that of other unmentionable persons, is hard.

League Football.

There was a fair attendance at last evening's football match between the Highlanders and the Britons. During the progress of the game Reid of the Highlanders, received a kick on the leg and had to retire from the field. The Briton's team put up a rattling fine exhibition, while Patterson of the Highlanders, played well for his team. The game was won by the Britons' by a score of 3 to nil. The gate receipts amounted to $87.

At LaPoile.

His Excellency the Governor General of Canada, who arrived at Port aux Basques on board S.S. Hochelaga yesterday, will have a few days fishing at La Poile. Magistrate Squarey of Channel, whose annual holiday is spent on the LaPoile Rivers and who knows every pool and rapid of them, will accompany the Duke and party.

Young Woman Drowned

Inspector General Hutchings received a wire from Constable Woodford, of St. Lawrence, yesterday, stating that Cecilia Fitzpatrick, aged 16 years, had been drowned on Sunday while bathing in Clarke's Pond, near that place. The body has been recovered.

For years past Newfoundlanders have visited with pleasure, as often as was possible, the great capital of our Empire, "London". This world has only one London, and London has only one great Perfume, and that Perfume is Chamindade; and every person from this country was sure to bring back some of this with them. BISHOP'S are now Newfoundland agents for this wonderful Perfume, Face Powders, Shampoo, Talcum, etc. Habitual users will find this a great convenience.

Noble and Generous Sympathy

At Barbados for a Mariner's Widow.

In the early morning of Sunday, 6th June, 1920, Peter Drew, of Bay Bulls, Nfld., mariner of the British barque 'Madeleine Constance,' lying at Barbados, accidentally met his death by drowning in the carenage at said port. Soon after the body was discovered, the flags of all the vessels in harbor, of which there were twelve Newfoundlanders, were seen at halfmast. Capt. Coward, of the 'Madeleine Constance,' with the assistance of Mr. Henry Taylor, shipping clerk of Messrs. Hanschell & Co., Ship Brokers and Ship Chandlers, arranged the details of inquest and funeral. In the afternoon of the same day, the funeral was held at the Westbury Cemetery, officiated by the Rev. Father Besant, of the Catholic Church in Barbados. The funeral was well attended, Capt. Coward and his men being present, as well as other mariners and friends.

On the following day, at the instance of Capt. Coward, Mr. A. J. Hanschell, partner of the firm of Messrs. Hanschell & Co., opened a subscription list with the object of raising funds for a suitable stone to be placed over the deceased's grave, and the ready and generous response from the captains, crews and friends in the port of Bridgetown, resulted in Mr. Hanschell being able, after paying for the cost of a marble slab and enclosure, to send the deceased's widow a cheque for fifty odd pounds.

It is indeed a pleasure for us to record in our columns this noble and generous action on behalf of the widow of one of our countrymen, whose mortal remains lie buried on an island in the far off Caribbean Sea; and our readers will, we feel sure, agree with us that such acts as these, on the part of fellow-mariners towards a deceased brother in a far distant clime is worthy of great praise, adding as it does another example of the very high principles practised by sailors who go down to the sea in ships.

Poor Trap Fishery North

Reports from the Northward indicate that the trap voyage so far has been a failure, and a change for the better is not expected. Unless dull weather sets in, there is little hope of securing even a saving voyage. The fish, so it is stated, is in abundance, but too far off for traps. Trawl fishermen, however, are doing well. On the Grey Islands grounds for the past two weeks fishermen have taken all the cod they could handle.

MINARD'S LINIMENT HALVES TEMPER.

Given Six Months.

An old offender was arrested last night by Constable Simmonds in connection with a robbery of some goods from a schooner lying at one of the wharves. The matter has been in the hands of the police for the past week, the culprit managing during that time to evade arrest. He was before Court this morning and sent to prison for 6 months.

Visiting Friends.

Last midnight the police received a phone message from the Consumptive Camp at Blackmarsh Road saying that a 7 year old girl of Sheehan's Shute, who was being treated at the Institution had left the place early in the evening to go to her home. The police immediately set out in search of the missing child. About 10 o'clock this morning a message was received at the lockup, saying the missing girl had returned and was O.K.

Obituary.

We regret to chronicle the death of Mrs. Ralph W. Parsons, wife of the manager of the Hudson's Bay Co., which took place at her residence, Sudbury Street, this morning at 3 o'clock of pneumonia. Mr. Parsons was in Montreal when he was apprised by wire that his wife was very ill, and he immediately started for here, arriving by the Sable Island. To the family the Telegram extends sympathy.

Horse & Waggon Taken.

Sunday morning Mr. Halliday of Nagles Hill left his carriage and horse on Harvey Road while he was attending Divine Service. After the service when Mr. Halliday went to get his outfit it was nowhere to be found, some person during the interval having driven off with it. The matter was reported to the police and yesterday evening the horse and waggon were found near the Sandpits. So far no arrests have been made in the matter.

NOTES OF TRAVEL:

And Reminiscences of a Pleasant Tour.

L. C. MORRIS,
 CHAPTER XXXI,
 AT LYNN.

The city of Lynn has long been celebrated for its shoe industry, and its stories have a world-wide reputation for the excellence of their work. To visit the city itself is to see how true this is; for at every turn and in whatever direction one may go, the shoe business is prominent; and tens of thousands of operatives are happy in their work. These operatives have a lot in their favor, and as far as we could learn there is mutual good will between all parties. The management give fair wages, and allow proper hours, and as a result the visitor to the city hears good accounts of its industrial conditions. But within the present century a new industry has grown up in Lynn, and its development has been so rapid, and its expansion so great, that it now ranks among the foremost plants of the place. The industry is known as the Lynn Works, or River Works, and it consists of a vast electric plant. We spent an afternoon at the works, and were shown through them by one of the managers in the person of Mr. Thomas Watson, to whom we had been introduced by one of the staff, in the person of our respected townsman, Mr. John L. Bennett. The buildings which the plant is operated are all very large, and many of them are one thousand feet long. The staff of offices runs into hundreds, and the number of men and women employed at the time of our visit was fourteen thousand; but as the works are annually expanding, the number should now be nearing fifteen thousand. Such an industry cannot be described in a few short notes as these. The task would require many chapters, and such detail; but we will write of those features which especially impressed us, and which directly belong to the special side of the industrial world. The industrial world has long had a hard struggle; but of late it has come into its own. This is worthy of note, nor should it be forgotten by their side. But there is a danger of another extreme setting in; and unless the question is entrusted to arbiters or commissioners, the latter state of industry will be worse than the first, and the high cost of living will swamp the benefits of high wages; because high wages must, of necessity, push the cost of living up; thus when production is high, the product cannot be cheap. But it is not of this phase of the question we wish to write, because this is a controversial point, and we have never written for controversy. We want to record a word of praise for the management of the great River Works of Lynn has done, and is doing for the benefit of its large staff of operatives. These operatives consist of men and women, and of masters, superintendents, workmen, and apprentices, and they are representative of almost every art and branch of industry. The work is divided and subdivided, and as far as possible the burden of toil is lightened, and the operatives have a lot in their favor to encourage them. This was especially noticeable in the fact that in every department into

Old Time Superstitions.

A reader furnishes the St. Louis "Post-Dispatch" with a list of old superstitions which were part of folk lore in that part of the country before we had to have folk lore societies to preserve this sort of thing:
 A rooster crowing at the front door meant a visitor coming.
 A twig catching a young lady's dress meant a beau.
 An itching ear meant that someone was talking about you.
 To turn back after starting meant bad luck.
 Opening an umbrella in the house meant bad luck to the house.
 A measuring worm on a woman's frock meant a new dress.
 An itching left hand meant that you would marry soon.
 Probably most of us are superstitious about the number 13, just as people were a long time ago. Our own superstitions will amuse a subsequent generation, as those recalled by our reader amuse us. Only a subsequent generation can safely laugh at superstition. Socrates was put to death for laughing at some of the superstitions of the Greeks.

History Repeats Itself.

The ex-Kaiser's clocks, with other reputed furnishings of his former palace, have been sold at auction in New York City. In Paris, in 1914, as the train-loads of French soldiers pulled out of the station on the way, as they shouted, "to Berlin!" all the women stopped their tears to cry, "Fetch us back a clock." This saying referred to a tradition of the War of 1870, for it is said that the Prussians at that time carried off all the French clocks. It is a mere coincidence, of course, but all of the Kaiser's clocks in this exhibition were French clocks!
 M. Leon Bausagetta is a Frenchman who is very little known in America, and would probably be seldom heard of on this side of the water were it not that he translated Walt Whitman's poetry for French readers. He is middle-aged, with sun-burned face and dreamy, rather melancholy eyes.

A Sugar Myth.

The story of sugar selling in the Philippine islands at five cents the pound, while it costs from twenty-five to thirty cents in the United States turns out to be a sweet illusion, says the New York "Herald." Sugar retails in Manila at twenty-five cents, stocks are short and speculators hold very tight.
 This is the substance of an announcement by Senator McNary (Oregon) following an exchange of telegrams with Manila. On May 29 he cabled to the acting Governor-General: "Committee on Agriculture of United States Senate investigating the sugar shortage is advised that refined sugar is retailing in Manila at five cents a pound and that great quantities of sugar are stored in warehouses awaiting cargo vessels. As chairman of the committee, would be greatly pleased to have information covering this subject."
 To this inquiry he received the following reply: "Referring to telegram from your office of the 29th ult., refined sugar retailing in Manila at twenty-five cents, United States currency, a pound, and twenty-six cents in Hilo currency. According to leading dealers and exporters of sugar, stock on hand under contract for delivery will all be shipped away by the middle of July. Only 5,000 to 10,000 tons, both centrifugal and muscovado, still in the hands of speculators. There is no congestion of sugar in warehouses."

which we went we saw a platform, and upon it a large first-class piano. On enquiry we were told that at certain hours in the day the staff were regaled with song and cheered by music. This is very commendable; but it is only part of the story; for upon further enquiry we learned that the singers were employees of the plant, and the players were the same, and that all the entertainment was given by the operatives themselves. Thus it is that at proper intervals, there is daily the sound of music, and the voice of song. We did not ask how many instruments were in use in the plant; but judging from what we saw, and bearing in mind the fact that fourteen thousand people work at this place, we should think that there are not less than twenty pianos in use. We further asked as to the use or abuse of this novelty of the work-shop, and we were assured that the management were perfectly pleased with the results in every way, and that all hands were the better of it. This we were pleased to hear, and it all goes to show that where there is mutual good-will between capital and labour, and where workmen appreciate their opportunities, the wheels of industry run smoothly, and the right of both sides can be properly safeguarded. We wish that there were more of this spirit manifested in our industrial centres; men would dispute cease, and extremes be avoided, and living be a whole lot better.

Mainly About People.

The ingenious lady of a Pittsfield house, where it is the duty of the last man in at night to turn out the hall light, solved the problem of informing the last man in that he is the last. When the men went out at night she placed a row of small cards in the hall mirror. As each man came in he removed the card that bore his name. The man who found only one card remaining turned out the light.

He seems the picture of health nowadays and thinks nothing of taking a 10 or 15 mile walk every day.

hored to death, found enjoyment at last in the production of Theda Bara. Despite the heartless creatures she played, they learned to love her, and to such an extent that they longed for autographed photographs to place on their mantelpieces and wear next their hearts. To ask for these photographs without making some return was too cool altogether, so they arranged to send her the skin of the next tiger they shot as a mark of their esteem. It turned out to be a fierce man-eater who had terrorized the natives for miles around. Naturally Theda Bara sent the signed photographs in return and everybody, including the natives, were satisfied. Everybody, that is, bar the tiger.

First Blood to "Shamrock."

Accident to "Resolute" Gave Victory to Lipton Yacht.

Sandy Hook, N.J., July 15.—Shamrock IV's victory was won in the face of what had seemed certain defeat. Resolute had taken the lead at the start and held it by an ever-widening margin until, as she swooped within half a mile of the turning mark 15 miles from the start, spectators on the great fleet of pleasure craft saw her great area of bellying canvas shiver and begin to sink, fluttering down her mast. A sudden gust had snapped her throat halyard and a second later the jaws of her gaff were shattered beyond repair.

Shamrock Across the Line.

When Resolute was seen to be in trouble, a tug bearing Sir Thomas Lipton's colors drew swiftly up to the steam yacht Victoria from which Sir Thomas was following the progress of his challenger. Many yachtsmen believed Sir Thomas was ordering Shamrock IV to fall to cross the finish line, making it no race. A statement he issued later said this was his initial impulse, but that he had been persuaded by his companions to permit Shamrock IV to finish, as it was felt that construction and sturdiness of the contenders should be taken into consideration in determining the issue as well as comparative skill of the rival crews.

More than 100 craft, ranging in size from an ocean liner to tiny power boats that were almost lost in the maze, followed the contenders over the thirty mile course that started even with the Ambrose Lightship and took them fifteen miles southwest by south along the New Jersey coast and back.

Shamrock IV was given a mighty ovation of screaming whistles and strens as she flashed across the line at 26 minutes, 28 seconds after four o'clock, having completed the course in four hours, twenty-five minutes, twelve seconds.

The weather was anything but satisfactory for a yacht race. The sky was heavily overcast and what little breeze was stirring, was fitful.

When the preliminary signal was blown at 11.45 there was just wind enough to give the two yachts steerage-way. The fight for position began at once, and for the first few minutes Captain Burton on Shamrock had his boat nicely berthed over Resolute. Then Captain Adams on the defender slipped out and by a quick twist, gained his favorite berth on the western end of the line near the lightship.

Burton seemed to ignore this and started for the line nearly a minute ahead of the gun. Finding that his calculation was wrong he endeavored to run along the line to piece out the time, but reached the committee boat ahead of the signal and was forced over. He tacked immediately under Resolute's stern and re-crossed 58 seconds after the defender, thereby giving the latter a commanding lead right at the start. It was undoubtedly the poorest start ever made Shamrock's Bad Start.

Interest at once centred on the question whether after such a bad start, Shamrock could overtake Resolute, and this was answered in the negative in about ten minutes. Both yachts crossed the line on the starboard tack and Shamrock was the first to try the inshore hitch. Resolute followed immediately and it was seen at once that the later was pointing higher and footing as fast.

Then a rain squall drenched the two yachts, killing the breeze for a time, and adding several hundred pounds weight to the sails. When the squall cleared both yachts had worked inshore with Resolute gaining constantly. An hour after the start the wind hauled to the westward, giving Resolute a further advantage, and for nearly half an hour, the two yachts ran along the Jersey shore heading straight for the mark, under number 2 jib topsails.

Then the wind headed them off again, but still Resolute was able to hold her advantage.

Made Daring Move.

Finding his boat dropping behind, Burton made a daring move by splitting tacks and heading for the Jersey shore in the hope of picking up another favorable slant. He lost, and when he swung round, on the starboard tack again, he was nearly a mile behind.

Everything seemed to be going fine for the defender. She was gaining in the short tacks which both boats were making off Long Branch, and it looked as if she had the race securely nailed down. She was not only a full five minutes ahead, but had many minutes in time owing to her by Shamrock.

Half a mile from the turning buoy Resolute came round on the port tack and had the mark under her lee off-shore. Shamrock had held the starboard tack a trifle too long and overtook the mark. All preparations had been completed for the turn, and it was only a question of how much Resolute's lead would be.

Accident to Resolute.

The wind which was wafting Resolute along was blowing less than six miles an hour while off-shore Shamrock was getting it much stronger. There were no squalls, not even a puff, when suddenly the mainsail of Resolute shivered, and down came the jaws of the gaff. The club topsail sheet was parted and the yacht, with only part of her mainsail hoisted but peaked far up, was nearly helpless.

Still Adams kept her on and she limped around the mark at 2.52.54. For a time it looked as if the damage might be repaired. When it was found that Shamrock was nearly five minutes astern, it was hoped that Resolute might keep on and perhaps win by a short margin. Soon two of the head sails were taken in and when the sailors began furling the sail which had been hauled down with considerable difficulty, it was seen that the race was over as far as the defender was concerned.

In the meantime Shamrock had come up and made a wild sweeping turn entirely unnecessary and then passing Resolute headed for the finish 15 miles away. Shamrock turned the mark at 2.57.39.

Resolute's tender took her in tow and started for the Horsehoe. Shamrock called anything but a straight course for the finish and one time it seemed as if her commander did not intend to cross the line. He reached there in fairly good time and

Jarvis With Lipton.

New York, July 16.—(By Canadian Press.)—Commodore Aemellus Jarvis, the noted Canadian yachtsman, and Miss May Ryan, equally known in the yachting world, were among the guests of Sir Thomas for the first day's racing, on board the steam yacht Victoria, formerly owned by the late Hon. James Dunsmuir, of Victoria, B.C. Commodore Jarvis was not only a guest of the noted British sportsman, but during the trials and tribulations of the race when the green-hulled challenger and her competitor, the defender, were endeavoring to make the best of decidedly unfavorable weather conditions, he was visibly the "right-hand" man of the great British yachtsman.

It was to Commodore Jarvis, that Sir Thomas first turned in his uncertainty when the accident befell the Resolute, put her out of commission. "I can't take that race," Sir Thomas told the reporters. "It is not Tom Lipton's way. Wait until I talk with Jarvis," he said.

"Jarvis tells me that I must take this race for the general good of the sport, but it makes me unhappy to do so," he said after a brief consultation. "Come to think of it though," Sir Thomas added, "it was at the last Derby that the seemingly winning horse stumbled and fell just before reaching the finish line, and the next horse was the winner."

Bangor Rejeices.

Belfast, July 16.—News that the Shamrock IV had won the first race against the Resolute in the series for the America's cup was received amidst joyous scenes at Bangor, Down, last night, because in the event of the ultimate victory of Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht, future races will occur there.

Jarvis With Lipton.

New York, July 16.—(By Canadian Press.)—Commodore Aemellus Jarvis, the noted Canadian yachtsman, and Miss May Ryan, equally known in the yachting world, were among the guests of Sir Thomas for the first day's racing, on board the steam yacht Victoria, formerly owned by the late Hon. James Dunsmuir, of Victoria, B.C. Commodore Jarvis was not only a guest of the noted British sportsman, but during the trials and tribulations of the race when the green-hulled challenger and her competitor, the defender, were endeavoring to make the best of decidedly unfavorable weather conditions, he was visibly the "right-hand" man of the great British yachtsman.

It was to Commodore Jarvis, that Sir Thomas first turned in his uncertainty when the accident befell the Resolute, put her out of commission. "I can't take that race," Sir Thomas told the reporters. "It is not Tom Lipton's way. Wait until I talk with Jarvis," he said.

"Jarvis tells me that I must take this race for the general good of the sport, but it makes me unhappy to do so," he said after a brief consultation. "Come to think of it though," Sir Thomas added, "it was at the last Derby that the seemingly winning horse stumbled and fell just before reaching the finish line, and the next horse was the winner."

Bangor Rejeices.

Belfast, July 16.—News that the Shamrock IV had won the first race against the Resolute in the series for the America's cup was received amidst joyous scenes at Bangor, Down, last night, because in the event of the ultimate victory of Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht, future races will occur there.

FIREMEN WATCHED BURNING.

DUBLIN, July 19.
A daring raid was carried out by armed men at the King's Bridge terminus of the Great Southern Railroad this afternoon. The raid resulted in the destruction of three railway cars, filled with military stores, which were being guarded by ten soldiers. The raiders armed with revolvers, drove up in motor cars and surrounded and disarmed the soldiers, and afterwards set fire to cars containing military stores. A fire brigade was summoned, but the men refused to extinguish the flames when the circumstances of the fire were learned. Nevertheless the firemen kept the flames from spreading beyond the military stores.

SPONTANEOUS IGNITION.

LONDON, July 19.
A big explosion has occurred in the Sarre region of Germany, caused by aerial bombs, according to a wireless despatch from Berlin. The inhabitants of the vicinity are reported to be fleeing, as an explosion of gas shells is anticipated. A wireless despatch says "A result of spontaneous ignition of some rockets, which caused an explosion of a dozen aerial bombs, a tremendous explosion has occurred in a munition dump in the former German military park in Sarre region. Inhabitants of the neighbourhood are fleeing as an explosion of a large number of gas shells is expected. Two hundred railway carriages are being held in readiness, in order to evacuate threatened districts."

When in Canada last, Mr. Kipling was so dissatisfied with the hotel accommodations that he gave the landlord a severe call-down. Said he: "Of all the hotels under the shining sun, I have never been in one that for unmitigated, all-round, unendurable discomfort, could equal yours."

After the landlord had withdrawn in great indignation, Kipling asked for his bill, and he discovered that the last item was, "To impudence—three dollars."

"No," replied the woman, "but I've tried hot water!"—Pittsburgh Leader.

Radium $3,000,000 Per Ounce.

Radium, the most wonderful of the metals and used chiefly as a cure for cancer, is produced at the rate of one ounce per year, which is valued at about $3,000,000. The accumulated stores of the whole world amount to only four ounces. In actual practice the surgeon generally uses a minimum of fifty milligrams of the powerful substance, which quantity, of about the size of a match head, costs him $600. Radium metal is shaped into a tiny rod no larger than a small piece of the lead of a pencil which is encased in a glass capsule and hermetically sealed, as any contact by the surgeon's fingers with the radium cause serious burns.

Home bread-making reduces the high cost of living by lessening the amount of expensive meats required to supply the necessary nourishment to the body. The increased nutritious value of bread made in the home with

OUTPOURT MAN'S BEST FRIEND SAYS PITCHER

Trinity Fisherman Tells How Tanlac Restored Wife's Health After Her Case Had Been Declared Hopeless.

"I simply can't find words to express my gratitude for all that Tanlac has done for my wife, for it has restored her to health after her case had been given up as hopeless," declared Eli Pitcher, well-known and prosperous fisherman, living at Wintrop Bay, Trinity Bay, when in St. John's, recently.

"I don't think there was a day during the last six years that she didn't suffer untold agonies after every meal on account of stomach trouble. Even a bit of fish and a few raws would send her to bed in her system and she would bleed with gas something terrible. She had to keep her body and hardly able to get up and she was very weak and frail.

"She had headaches that almost drove her distracted and such pains across the small of her back that she could hardly stand it. Her nerves were so upset that the least little excitement would make her tremble all over, and she steadily got worse all the time.

"Finally we had to send her to a hospital in St. John's where she stayed for five months, but she was told that she need never expect to get better.

"We saw by the paper that Tanlac was helping others, so I went to Connors and got some, and it proved just the medicine my wife needed. She has taken five bottles now and really she is like a different woman. She can eat just anything she wants and never has any pain or gas afterwards. Headaches and pains in the back are a thing of the past. Her nerves are steady and she sleeps like a child at night.

"She is so much stronger that she is able to do the housework and when I left home to go on this trip she was working out in the garden. She is always praising Tanlac and is only too pleased to tell her experience for the benefit of others.

"I never expect to be without Tanlac in the house after this, for in times of sickness it's the Outport man's best friend."

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M. Connors; by Reg. Sullivan, Pouch Cove; Sound Island Store, Sound Island; Dennis Flynn, Avondale; J. J. O'Brien, Cape Broyle; J. W. Smith, Baine Harbor; W. A. Burdock, Belleoram; John Morey, Fernouze; Mrs. Jos. Quinn, Renewa.—adv.

How to Become a Centenarian.

Miss Sarah Ann McGuinness has just celebrated her 104th birthday in a home for the Aged in New York.

"She is still hale and hearty, and buckled as she said: "When I reached seventy I was just beginning to feel smart and spry."

"I remember," she continued, "when was a young girl in my teens an old man who had just reached seventy said that from hence on he was living on borrowed time. I thought that rather a cutting remark, but when I reached that age myself I came to the conclusion that seventy was a very spry age, indeed."

Her clear blue eyes need no glasses, her mouth shows no trace of old age, her feet are as firm as those of a young girl, and she is in a very youthful fashion.

"Tell me about the many things you have done since you have reached seventy," said the interviewer.

"It seems as if I have been busier these years than any others," laughed Miss McGuinness. "I was born in County Kerry, Ireland, came to New York at the age of nine and at eighteen earned my living as a seamstress.

"At seventy I was still sewing for my living. But from seventy till ninety I believe I made more dresses and sewed on more buttons than I did from thirty to seventy. You see my fingers kept spry. During this last war I knit too many sweaters and socks that I lost count of them. I think they people keep talking about the 'war' business. It seems to me that the best way to work is just to keep busy every day.

"How do I spend my days? I lead the blind old folks about, read the papers to them and visit the sick every day. I fold and count all the rags and sheets and sew—why I spend at least two hours every day sewing on buttons."

"And your recipe for keeping spry at 104?" the interviewer asked.

"Simply this: Live each day by itself. Eat good plain food, sleep eight or ten hours and, above all, don't worry."

Shocked the Bishop.

An English bishop, visited America during his visit, he stayed at a country house. The negro butler was instructed to say "My Lord" to the bishop. At dinner the bishop, being out of his feed, refused the soup and then refused the fish. The entire was one of America's choicest dishes, but the bishop refused it. The negro butler astonished both the bishop and his host by remarking, "My God, them's 'errapin'." But the greater shock came with the piece of resistance, a sirloin of beef. The butler wished to inform there was nothing more cooking and came out with, "My God, there's no hereafter."

An Old Sea-Dog.

An old sea-dog has passed over to the farther shore. A son of Britain, upon whose shoulders rested the manly work of the long and illustrious company of men of the sea from Drake and Hawkins to the immortal Nelson, sleeps his long sleep, the salt breezes of Devon and of Norfolk still in his nostrils and of action stilled only by death.

It is given to few men to live a fuller life than that which has just closed with the passing of Lord Fishery. Fewer still have retained the magnificence, the daring and the supreme energy of youth until the last hour of the evening of their days. One can almost, without irreverence, picture the old sailor disputing with Charon as to the navigation of the Styx or in flaming language denouncing him as a profiteer if, perchance, the price of the ferryman's toll has been raised by an obol.

Lord Fisher had the honest, downright and implacable nature of the Englishman. Sycophancy and the handing of subtle diplomatic phrases soured on his stomach. Jingoism covered him with a healthy shame and hero worship was outside the limits of his understanding. He would have his countrymen cultivate the characteristics that dominated his life—self-reliance, fertility of resource, fearlessness of responsibility and power of initiative.

His violent letters to the Press, which, however, were softened in sentiment, in spite of their perhaps too vigorous epithets, by an undercurrent of humor and the loveliness of his sturdy patriotism, gave the superficial observer the impression that he was too temperate, too volcanic for balanced judgment. Those who thought thus minimized the depth of the passion from which his tirades flowed or the sincerity of conviction which compelled his outbursts.

Yet in normal days and in the routine of the seaman's life Lord Fisher was a quiet, self-contained man, going his own road at his own gait, and asking no favor of any one, ever pushing forward with an iron determination, uttering neither whine nor threat in the blackest hour of adversity, and striking swiftly and mercilessly when the need for action arose.

Lord Fisher rendered two supreme services to the country he loved so well and served so faithfully. He re-created the British Navy and at a critical moment he mooted the Grand Fleet in quarters where it was able to command the North Sea, itself unassailable.

Forty-eight hours before war was declared in 1914 the British Fleet sauntered out into the English Channel ostensibly bent on an ordinary practice cruise. No one save the admiral in command knew in what direction it was shaping its course. But on the

Football League Honors "The King."

The officers and representatives of the various clubs constituting the Newfoundland Football League, called last evening upon Mr. Mark Chaplin, Hon. President of the League, at the home of Mr. H. Y. Mott, where he is at present staying. In a speech which paid tribute to Mr. Chaplin's great service to the cause of football, Mr. W. J. Higgins, the newly elected President, who has succeeded him in office, stated that the representatives of the League teams had decided on the occasion of Mr. Chaplin's retirement from the Presidency to mark their approval of his work by asking his acceptance of a souvenir which might prove of some little service on his journey abroad, and which during his absence would serve as a daily reminder of his associations for so many years. The souvenir took the form of a magnificent travelling bag, which contained a silver plate on which was inscribed:

"Presented to Mark Chaplin, Esq., by the Newfoundland Football League, on his retiring from the Presidency in 1920, after 25 years in office."

Mr. Higgins, on behalf of the League, wished the late President (who is now the first Honorary President), a pleasant sojourn abroad and a speedy return to the city, where he has given so much of his time on behalf of sport generally, and football in particular. Mr. Chaplin, in reply, thanked sincerely the League for their thoughtful presentation, and spoke feelingly of his many happy days spent in connection with the game. Short addresses were made by the various gentlemen present, all being couched in terms of praise to the honoured recipient. Mr. Chaplin leaves by the Sabie Island this morning to visit his wife and daughters in the United States, and all his many friends wish him bon voyage and a speedy return.

Baseball.

Weather permitting, two of the preliminary games for the Mount Cashel Trophy will be held this evening. The Wanderers-C.E.L. game starts at 7 o'clock and the Red Lions-Cubs match immediately after. Both of these games will consist of five innings each and the bye-game with the B.I.S. will be played on Thursday night.

In the event of rain this evening the preliminary games will be moved up to Thursday evening, and it might be well to point out that in view of the proceeds being devoted to the Mount Cashel Orphanage that Season Tickets will not admit.

The regular League match between the Cubs and the Wanderers will be played at the Garden Party at St. George's Field to-morrow evening at 4.30 o'clock. In the event of rain, this game will be postponed until the Mount Cashel series are completed.

Personal.

Mr. J. Gladney, of Colinet, is at present in town on business. He reports the rivers low at Colinet owing to the lengthiest dry spurt in thirteen years. Some of the mills got down their drives of logs only a few days ago.

Mr. H. Saunders of the Anglo-American Telegraph Co., who was on sick leave for the last year, has resumed his position of Manager of the Company, taking up duty last week.

Miss Mollie Sutton left by this morning's train to spend her holidays at St. Mary's.

His Lordship Bishop March of Mir. Grace, is at present visiting the city. Mr. Newman Johnson, son of Mr. D. Johnson, manager of the Sun Life Assurance Co., of Canada, returned yesterday by the Sabie I. from the General Electric Co.'s works at Lynn, Mass., where he has been an apprentice since last year. He reports that Mr. Nix Duchemin, formerly of this city, holds the responsible post of safety engineer at the Electric Co.'s works, where some 14,000 workers are employed.

Woman Badly Burned.

Passengers who arrived by the Prospero tell of a serious fire, which occurred at Piley's Island on Friday night last, in which a woman, whose name they are unable to give, was almost burnt to death. It appears that the woman was alone in the house when it took fire, and while attempting to save some personal belongings, she was badly burned about the face and body. A doctor was called to attend her, and she was hurried to the hospital at Piley's Island for treatment. The house and all its contents were destroyed.

Fire at Floating Dock.

At 7.25 last evening the Central and West-End Fire Companies were called by telephone message to the Southside, where fire had been discovered in the engine-room of the floating dock. Whilst the firemen were quickly on the scene their services were not needed as the watchman and other people around the premises had extinguished the blaze with a few buckets of water. The fire was caused by a live coal falling from a stove on to a wood floor. The damage done was only slight.

Popular Odd Fellow Visits North Sydney.

North Sydney, July 14.—John Craig, of Yarmouth, who has held the position of Grand Master and about all the other offices in the gift of the Grand and Subordinate Lodge of the Independent Order of Oddfellows in the maritime provinces, has recently returned from his annual visit to Newfoundland. On this trip he makes it a point to visit all the Encampments and Lodges, and the occasion is a most enjoyable one throughout. Mr. Craig at one time did business in Sydney, and later operated a drug store in the town of North Sydney, removing to Yarmouth nearly forty years ago. Here he has built up a large business and grown independently wealthy. In visiting various lodges he has frequently travelled several thousands of miles in one year. It has been customary for years to have what is known as Craig day in the Newfoundland lodges, to each of whom Mr. Craig has presented Newfoundland Victory Bonds, and the proceeds are used for jewels of the order which are presented while on his visits. During the last trip he visited all the lodges and encampments, and banquets and presentations were the order of the day, with degree work by teams of various lodges.

On his visit to Newfoundland various presentations were made to Mr. Craig, including mounted caribou heads set with silver tips made from caribou horns, cut links of Labradorite, a rare and beautiful agate silver tray, and many unique gifts. In short the trip was mutually enjoyed and proved a great pleasure to visitor as well as to visited.
