Speaking of gold mining in Nova Scotiato day, compared with the past, the Maritime Mining Record says satisfactory developments have been made within the past tive years. Of the gold industry of the sixties it may be said it was a speculative business, and while yet it may have its elusive tendencies yet surely it may be said that it is now a legitimate business bereft of its speculative features. The gold business is settling down to hard pan. It is being realized that it must, to be successful, be conducted on business principles. It is not now so much a matter of a lucky strike, as of mining economically, using the best machionly: the revulsion of feeling was so strong that he could not trust himself to speak Bat Alvah Bayley made no response to this mute demonstration of gratitude. He simply reached for his hat and got out of the house as best he could.

It had been an uncomfortable five minutes for him, but he had put the thing through. Some people up and dows the street might call it rather sharp, perhaps, and of course Alviry would feel sore about it, but it was overy man's duty to look out for himself. Charity began at home, every time? He was tempted, nevertheless, to keep on straight to the store, and to lat. Alvira coll off a little before he faced her. But he had rashed out without his overcoat, and was already shivering. So he turned in at his own gate, went around to the side-door, as usual, and entered the sitting-room. He determined to get the first word, if there was to be any further argument, and has mouth was open to pronounce it when he became aware that the room was empty. The deak was sweep these of its bills and silver, and Alvira was nowhere to be found.

Suddenly she thought of Orton Ranney.

-The proposition for a lasting, universa peace, that has originated in a most unex pected quarter-in the palace of the Czar, at St. Petersburg-is the latest bit of highly sensational news. The impression has gen erally prevailed that Czar Nicholas was a warrior, who, since his coronation, has pur sued an aggressive policy for the enlarge nations whose interests in the far east seemed likely to be adversely affected by this policy. Russia and Great Britain have been practically at swords points for years; and now, just when a crisis appeared to be imminent, the Czar comes forward with a proposition for general disarmament among the great nations. The message loses much of its force, coming as it does when Britain is marshalling her forces to check Russian aggression in China, and looks like an original method of performing a diplomatiback down. In apparent intent the proposi tion cannot but commend itself to civilized nations, but to give effect to such a measure would require a vastly increased international confidence. At present the status of military and naval strength, and the justice of an arbitration court is generally shunned Sharp diplomatic practice has engendered general distrust among the nations of the world, and with swords turned into plough shares this feeling would surely be exagger ated; the limit to sharp practice would thus be removed and international discour-tesy could be pursued without fear of disas result in a great international conference a

roposition is too chimerical to be considered

-The question of steel shipbuilding for Nova Scotia received marked attention at the recent meeting of the Maritime Board of Trade, and the discussions that took place there have opened the project to general comment. The field is untried, but it offers rare inducements, and we have no doubt that the experiment will be tried in the near future. In the days when wooden shipbuild ing was carried on extensively at every shipping port of any consequence in the men and was of incalculable benefit to the driven out of the ocean carrying trade by the steel hulks the shipbuilding industry in if steel shipbuilding is instituted, the province will have an excellent chance to com onfined to two or three firms in Great Britain and a like number in the United States. Here we have the iron and coal in abundance and manufacturing facilities t provide the metal for the hulls, splendid deep water harbors, and, in fact, everythe project on a business basis. With to campete with British and United States ed for steel ships in the maritime provinces that would soon result in the building of a fleet capable of supplanting the foreign bottoms in which such a large proportion of our trans-Atlantic trade is now carried.

-Old World immigrants are pouring into Canada this year at an unprecedented rate, while the United States statistics show that the number arriving at her ports is smaller than for many previous years and principally of an undesirable class. The strength of a nation depends on the character of its people : amd, in Canada, though the national ernment should be careful not to let its anxiety to swell the population of the country prevent the exercise of a proper discrimand the sturdy native stock may be overrun by undesirable exotics. A steady, industrious class of immigrants is required for our great Northwest, but it is not necessary that the steady increase in population of three decades should be supplemented by an unstable, mushroom growth. There is time enough yet for Canada to develop into the "greatest country on earth." Excessive immigration is responsible for the great population of the neighboring republic; but it has been the curse of the country-breeding disease, crime, anarchy and labor troubles, that interfere sadly with the conblight on the nation. Discriminatory immi gration legislation was introduced many years too late. Canada should profit by the mistake of her neighbor and avoid the disas

-There is entirely too much carelessner exhibited in the handling of provincial mails, and the clerks in this branch of the publiservice need reminding of the importance of their positions and the responsibility that devolves on them. Applicants for positions edge of the towns and villages of the prov ince and be able to read handwriting; but apparently, some of the postal clerks hav not this knowledge, or else they are grossly not this knowledge, or else they are grossly careless. Within the past few weeks fully half a dozen letters for the Montron office, and properly and plainly addressed to Bridgetown, have been sent to Bridgewater, and a delay of several days has resulted in the transmission of important papers. The similarity between the names Bridgetown and Bridgewater ought not to be confusing. and Bridgewater ought not to be confusing. special instructions should be issued to pre-vent the recurrence of these annoying errors.

The recurrence of these anneying errors.

The federation of the British West Indies with Canada is now under discussion and there is a probability that the influence of the Imperial government will be used to effect such a union. Just now the islands are exhibiting considerable unrest, and the question of annexation to the United States has been raised, since that country has expressed a willingness to extend her territorial limits by the acquisition of island colonies. Annexation is out of the question, since the consent of the Imperial government would certainly be denied; but federation with Canada would be equally effective as a cure for their discontent. Such a federation is to be desired as it would vastly increase the commerce of both the islands and Canada, as what the one produces for export the other-is anxious to buy, and with a bit of protective legislation to bind them closer, a very extensive and profitable trade could be established.

Where do Days Begin?

APPARENTLY THE POINT IS SOMEWHERE THE PACIFIC OCEAN. Where do the days begin? They must begin somewhere, and by a clever line of ar-out that the place where the days begin lies somewhere in the Pacific Ocean. A straight line does not define the place, but it runs zigzag among some of the islands scattered over the broad expanse of water. This is determined by the following rea soning; Seeing that as one moves westward the time gets earlier, so that when it is Monday noon in London it is some time on Mon this principle were continued without limit moment that it was noon in London it would also be 24 hours later-that is, Tues-

Before the circumnavigation of the globe | followed the markets closely during the past there was no difficulty of this kind. When few years will have noticed that the distin the sun stood over London on Monday, it made Monday noon, and when it moved other quality is becoming more marked. It westward (in the common phrase) and stood over Dublin a little later it became Monday | bacon hogs and heavy, fat corn fed hogs are noon in that city, and then as the western limit of the known world was reached the margin between these two classes of hoga sun dropped out of sight until the next morn will be greater than it is now. In fact we ing, when it came up over the eastern hori-zon and brought Tuesday morning. In this do not make sufficient distinction as between inculcated as a part of our national training interval, therefore, the Sun was passing over the prices for choice bacon hogs and heavy the place when Tuesday began.

As discoverers pushed their way farther that the bacon hog should be produced and eastward and westward this abyss became no other, a greater difference than fifty cents narrower and narrower until the place where time changed and the days became dwindled for the different qualities. If thick, fat hogs into a space no wider than a line. When the sun reached this line, time jumps for- it seems strange that as high as $5.60 to ward 24 hours from noon of one day to noon | $5.75 per cwt. should be paid for them on of the day following. The situation of this line depends on the chance of whether any given place was first discovered by a travel ler from the eastward or the westward. ropeans by travellers from the west and America by voyagers from the east it is clear that the line which marks where the day begin lies between these two in the Pacific Ocean, and instead of being a straight line, zigzags about, dividing islands which hap pen to be discovered from the west. There must be still many islands in tha ocean where it is not yet decided to which side of the line they belong, and where, if one were put down, one would not kno whether it were to day, to-morrow or yes there which, never having been permanent ly occupied by civilized people, change their day from time to time, so that a ship calling there coming from China might arrive on Tuesday, while another ship calling at the same time from America would arrive Monday. There must also be people living so near to this line that by going a few miles they can leave to-day and get into to morrow or by going back can find yesterday.

For Amateur Sportsmen. In the open seasons in the various state last autumn a number of men were killed outright and many more were severely wounded. The men who were personall responsible for the shooting were tyros of the first water, who permitted excitement to carry them away: who, because they held guns in their hands, took it for granted that every bush concealed a bear; and who, ren took a man's head, including a corncob pipe and a golf cap, for a rampant wild beast: o a hamless woodchopper in a red flannel shi and with an ave over his shoulder for a buck with wide spreading antlers. We have often debated this sad state of affairs, which is growing more common each year, and which is often erroneously credited to sportsmen. We would like to see persons who err thus punished in a manner pefitting their crimes. English justice, a shown in a recent decision, is more severe It is evident from the testimony in the case in question that the defendant had exer cised some care, but not enough to save the a charge of shot in the face at close range The defendant is a son of Lord Hothfield. He said he paid £125 for doctor's services and declined to pay more for the support of damages to the latter. This, it is claimed in England, is a very large sum for such an injury; and now tha we think of it we do not recall a case where a sum so large was awarded any person so

Lying by the Clock. Many a man who would not for any money go into the kitchen at seven o'clock in the morning and say to the cook, "Do it is, and more; it's just thirty five minute past seven, and my train goes in twenty five minutes!" will quietly and in cold blood put the clock up to telling this lie for him. This when a man, or even a woman, in a sudden gust of anger, swears at a tramp, or peddler, or irritating caller, with a slamming door or a banging window. That is done in a quick cuse of great provocation. But lying by the clock is always done with calm deliberation and malice aforethought, and it is persevered in day by day. It's too mean on the clock. Vocal as the big clock at Dombey's, speaking to poor little Paul, these martyred clocks ould sit heavy on the conscience of the teacher, saying all day long, in staccat tones: "My mas, ter, makes, me, lie."-Robert J. Burdette in the August Ladies

Home Journal. An Accidental Success.

Once upon a time, so runs the story, there was a man in London who had ventured upon various publishing schemes with but poor success and was beginning to despair of ever making a fortune when, by chance, he bethought him of a huge scrapbook which his wife had compiled of various literary odds and ends that had enchained her fancy. She called her scrapbook "Tit-Bits," and it curred to her husband that such odds and ends, published in periodical form, might in terest other people as well as his wife.

was the appearance of a little penny paper called Tit Bits, which proved so popular and gained such a wide circulation that its proprietor felt encouraged to place other literary entures on the market, and it was not long before he became known as the publisher o a number of extremely popular penny periodicals. He is now a millionaire many times over and a baronet, while his wife, whose scrapbook proved the cornerstone of their pro ity, finds her reward in the title of Lady

The Mauser Rifle.

The Mauser rifle in hard work is found to be a mistake. It has a case of five cartridges, which have to be all used before any can be reinserted. That is to say, if a soldier has occasion to fire three he must go on and waste the other two or else leave himself to meet a possible sudden rush with only two rounds in his gun. Nine times out of third of a horse-power. For rapid work, ten he prefers to be ready with a full charge, and so his ammunition is wasted. Choice Bacon Hogs at a Premium. No other product of the farm is selling s well at the present time, comparatively speaking, as the first class bacon hog. Salt should at all times enter into the elements of milk, and as these elements are in scanty proportion in your grass it is therefore most needed in the spring and early part of summer. Both the quality and quantity of milk are considerably affected by withholding salt until the cows are the blind boy. The court awarded £1300 hungry for it. Cows in full milk require nore salt than at other times, and those that give the most milk require the most salt. In my experience I found by letting a falling off in milk, both in quantity and quality; a supply of salt at once restored
