EDINBURGH SUNDAY CARS TO STAY

From The Edinburgh Scotsman: Amid all the legal uncertainties of the case one thing is certain. The actual question of running Sunday cars in Edinburgh is now decided. The corporation may make good their right to prevent this or that company from running cars on Sunday, but it can never exercise that right. The citizens have now got Sunday cars, and they mean to keep them.

DAMANT'S CASUALTIES NUMBER SEVENTY-TWO

Three Officers and Twenty-Nine Men Were Killed in Fight at Tafel-Kop.

London, Dec. 24.—The list of casualties of the Damant's engagement at Tafel-Kop, Orange River Colony, Dec. 20, when the Boers, dressed as British yeomen, defended a kopje against Col. Damant's advance guard, is heavier than first reported by Lord Kitchener. It now appears that the British lost three officers and 29 men killed, and had five officers and 25 men wounded.

NO IMMEDIATE PEACE

London, Dec. 25.—No further details have been received here up to a late hour of the fighting in South Africa. The news received yesterday convinces the newspapers that it is hopeless to expect peace in the immediate future. That this is also the government's view of the situation is apparent from the fact that between now and January the drafts of troops proceeding to South Africa from home and the colonies aggregate 15,000 men.

WITHELD TWENTY BATTERIES

Present Condition of Guerrilla War in Africa Makes Them Hindrance.

London, Dec. 24.—An army order was issued to-night that in the future no volunteers will be accepted who are only able to devote to training purposes the time required for elementary barrack square drill. The commander-in-chief points out in this connection that modern warfare has so changed conditions that in order to be effective it is now imperative that the volunteers attend the annual instruction camp and field manoeuvres.

CHRISTMAS IN THE OLD LAND IS CLOUDED

THREE YEARS OF WAR AND THE END IS NOT YET

Process of Attrition Brings the Last Stand Perceptibly Nearer, and the Steadfast Loyalty of the Colonies Compensates for Recently Reported Reverses—Queen's Health Shows Improvement.

London, Dec. 25.—"Christmas, for the third year in succession, finds the country engaged in war," that is the burden of the editorials in the London papers this morning, and regrets are expressed that the casualty list issued to-day totals 49 men killed and 71 wounded. Satisfaction, however, is found in the fact that the process of attrition brings the end of the struggle perceptibly nearer.

FORTUNES WON AND LOST ON TURF

One Bookie $50,000 Ahead and Another $125,000 Behind. The racing year just closing has been a lively one for professional turf speculators—bookmakers and punters, says The New York Times.

George Rose, the California pensioner, won $50,000 while his business rival, Eddie Burke, who often acts within a few feet of him, lost $125,000. These amounts represent the extremes of success and failure by the two largest operators in the betting ring of the metropolitan racetracks.

David Gilson was the largest individual winner. This well-known pugner and horse-owner collected the bookmakers of the Metropolitan track for him and $100,000 during the year. His "Pittsburgh Phil" the bookmakers would have been enormous winners. Mr. Gilson began the season badly, and was a big loser at one time, but made up his early deficit and quit a large winner.

His success was mainly due to several coups which he pulled off from the fall meeting at Sheepshead Bay to the close of racing at Washington. His reliable old horse, First Whip, started his change of fortune by winning two heavy bets for him during the concluding days at Saratoga. First Whip, in fact, won the grand prize of $100,000 for the season.

The bookmakers fear Mr. Gilson more than any other punger in the country. It is a clever judge of a horse for a race and a shrewd bettor. He has a keen eye for the horse and a keen ear for the jockey's voice. His careful tuition, three or four times a week, has made him a very successful punger. His losses, however, were not heavy. He has a net profit of $100,000 for the season.

George Rose is now the premier bookmaker of America. He daily handles tens of thousands of dollars where his rival, Eddie Burke, handles only a few thousand. His operations are so skilfully managed by the public that he has a common thing called "tricks" which will record $75,000 to $80,000 a day. He employs two cashiers, three to four outside men and a sheet-writer.

Mr. Rose is not only a punger but a punger. He was born and brought up in Brooklyn. He was 25 years old when he started in the business. He had been a punger for 10 years before he had his first big win. He has since then made a fortune out of the business.

LIPTON WILL CHALLENGE AGAIN

Various Rumors Regarding Prince of Wales' Intentions Increased. Glasgow, Scotland, Dec. 24.—For some unexplained reason the past week has been full of rumors and counter rumors in connection with the American Cup.

So far as can be seen there is no particular reason why attention should have been turned in this direction just at the present time, but the fact remains that assertions and denials have been flying as thick as hail, and also the position remains exactly as it was, there are many who consider that the air is not yet entirely clear. The assertion, which seems to have been made, that the prince had decided to build a first-class cutter and present it to the new club, was published also on this subject.

It is probable that the position of the prince of Wales and the American Cup is a matter of some importance. The prince has been very active in the matter of the American Cup, and it is probable that he will continue to be so.

JEKYLL AND HIDE THREE YEARS IN LAFAYETTE COLLEGE.

New York, Dec. 24.—William Bonnell was arrested yesterday at Morristown, N.J., for being, but was released on his promise to leave town at once and go to his home in New York. Bonnell is about 35 years old. He was reared in comparative luxury, his father having been one of the well-to-do citizens of New York. He spent three years in Lafayette College, and when he chooses can dress, talk and act like a gentleman. When he gets tired of being a gentleman he becomes a tramp. The peculiar thing about him is that he can be a gentleman all the time if he wanted to, for he has an income of about $1000 a year, which is paid to him regularly when he is in New York, and sent to him by check when he is elsewhere. He is most of the time.

When he left college he immediately went to the city and became a tramp. He dressed himself and acted like a gentleman. He then disappeared and was not seen for several years. He was then found in a tramp shelter on and over the city. His father did not know his whereabouts until he was found. He was then taken home and for a few weeks became a gentleman again.

Then one day he left town and became a tramp, going from town to town, working in the fields and acting like a tramp. He was then found in a tramp shelter on and over the city. His father did not know his whereabouts until he was found. He was then taken home and for a few weeks became a gentleman again.

ON "ROAST PIG." Have You Tried It? A Reminiscence of Dear Old Charles Lamb.

Charles Lamb is the best beloved of the English essayists. The fame of the gentle Eliot continues as great to-day as when he was contributing his whimsical masterpieces to the London Magazine between 1820 and 1830. His essays have, to use of "perpetually self-productive volumes great nature's stereotypes." The work upon them is so delicate, so conscientious, so elaborate, and their atmosphere is so genial and fine-spirited that they make lifelong friends of all who read them.

Graceful lightness and subtle artistic charm are the chief qualities of Lamb's literary style. He was the centre of the great group of English essayists that ever lent brilliancy to an epoch. Every body has some favorite among the essays of Eliot, but perhaps his "Dissertation on Roast Pig" is the most famous. It tells how the art of boiling or roasting was discovered by the accidental burning of a pig. It is a delightful and amusing story, and the boy whose carelessness had caused the accident was the first pig-roaster. The story is told in a simple and unassuming style, and is a good example of Lamb's narrative style.

While Ro-Bo was thinking what he should do with the first section of the pig, he was thinking what he should do with the second section. He was thinking what he should do with the third section. He was thinking what he should do with the fourth section. He was thinking what he should do with the fifth section. He was thinking what he should do with the sixth section. He was thinking what he should do with the seventh section. He was thinking what he should do with the eighth section. He was thinking what he should do with the ninth section. He was thinking what he should do with the tenth section. He was thinking what he should do with the eleventh section. He was thinking what he should do with the twelfth section. He was thinking what he should do with the thirteenth section. He was thinking what he should do with the fourteenth section. He was thinking what he should do with the fifteenth section. He was thinking what he should do with the sixteenth section. He was thinking what he should do with the seventeenth section. He was thinking what he should do with the eighteenth section. He was thinking what he should do with the nineteenth section. He was thinking what he should do with the twentieth section. He was thinking what he should do with the twenty-first section. He was thinking what he should do with the twenty-second section. He was thinking what he should do with the twenty-third section. He was thinking what he should do with the twenty-fourth section. He was thinking what he should do with the twenty-fifth section. He was thinking what he should do with the twenty-sixth section. He was thinking what he should do with the twenty-seventh section. He was thinking what he should do with the twenty-eighth section. He was thinking what he should do with the twenty-ninth section. He was thinking what he should do with the thirtieth section.
