HERE IS THE PROGRAMME FOR THE OLD HOME WEEK

Promises One of Best Celebrations Ever Held BUSHY ALL THE TIME

Courtenay Bay Work Opening, Band Concerts, Baseball and Other Sports, Parades and Other Features of Six Big Days

One of the gayest and probably one of the most enjoyable events in the history of the city will be the Back to New Brunswick celebration next week.

With the advent of the new period of development, expansion and progress in the city and province, which have almost stood still for many years, will become the mecca for many residents of the province who will return here to live under more prosperous conditions than those which drove them forth to seek their fortune elsewhere.

For those who are coming back, however, the city is preparing to welcome them with a programme of amusements and festivities which will indicate the warmth of their welcome and to emphasize the fact that although St. John is busier than ever, the people are not too busy to enjoy life or to entertain their returning friends.

The official opening of the celebration will be on Tuesday but several of the amusements features will commence their programmes on Monday.

Monday, July 9 8 p. m.—Concert by Cambridge City Band, St. Andrew's Rink. Tuesday, July 10 Local band meets incoming boats and trains, commencing with the Boston boat at six a. m.

Wednesday, July 11 4.30 p. m.—A special programme of amateur field sports has been arranged by the Y. M. C. A. to be held in one of the open fields at Courtenay Bay.

Thursday, July 12 9 a. m.—Special excursion by steamer May Queen on the St. John river returning at 3 p. m.

Friday, July 13 10 a. m.—City Fire Department parade and contest.

PINKERTON PLAYED IN EVERY GAME; AND HAS FINE BATTING AVERAGE OF 306

McGovern and Riley at the Top in The Fielding Figures—Here is the Showing of all Marathons at Bat and in Field

The table printed below, shows the batting and fielding averages of the Marathons team not including yesterday's game. All the players, with the exception of Sheldon Cook, Jr., who played with the Greeks at all this season, are included in the compilation, and the only reason Mr. Cook's is not there is because he did not stay long enough in any game to get into the column. It will be seen that Pinkerton, the snappy second baseman is practically leading his players in the batting list, having played in all the twenty-five games with a batting average of 306.

Table with columns: Player, Position, Games, A.B., R., H., Avg. Lists players like Corey, Duffy, Fraser, etc.

ALL HAY FEVER BE NEXT "INCURABLE" DISEASE TO BE CURED?

Wonderful Results Obtained by Using Tablets Made From Fresh Fruit Juices—Lady in Cornwall Centre Tried Them

Genuine Case of Severe Hay Fever Completely Eradicated From the System by "Fruit-a-tives," The Famous Fruit Medicine

"I suffer tortures every year with Hay Fever—please tell me frankly if 'Fruit-a-tives' will do me any good." You are saying this to yourself as you read this article. First of all, read the facts about this distressing trouble. Hay Fever is not a nervous affliction. There is probably no actual disease of the nerves. But the nerves—and in fact the whole system—is affected by the condition of the blood. The nerves are intensely irritated by impure blood, due to defective action of the bowels, kidneys and skin. In fully ninety per cent of the cases of Hay Fever, there is chronic Constipation, Weak Stomach, Indigestion and hot, dry skin. The great truth of this is shown by the fact that sprays, gargles and other local treatment do not cure. They cannot. The trouble does not lie in the case itself, but in the stomach, bowels, kidneys and skin. This is why "Fruit-a-tives" cured Mrs. Kemp of Hay Fever.

Cornwall Centre, Ont., November 27th, 1911.

I was a martyr to Hay Fever for a long time—probably fifteen years—and I suffered terribly at times. I consulted many physicians and took their treatment—and I tried every remedy I heard of as good for Hay Fever. But nothing did me any good. Then I tried "Fruit-a-tives" and this remedy cured me completely. I am now well and I wish to say to every sufferer from Hay Fever—"Try Fruit-a-tives." This fruit medicine cured me when every treatment failed and I believe it is a perfect cure for this dreadful disease.

MRS. HENRY KEMP.

Impure blood causes the itching eyes, sore throat, irritated nose that we know as Hay Fever. As this is true, the sensible thing to do is to purify the blood by taking "Fruit-a-tives." Mrs. Kemp took "Fruit-a-tives" and is cured.

Why not let "Fruit-a-tives" regulate your bowels and skin? Why not let "Fruit-a-tives" give you health, and strength and appetite? Why not let "Fruit-a-tives" build up the system that you won't have Hay Fever this summer? "Fruit-a-tives" is the only medicine in the world made of fruit juices. It is particularly suited to the use of women because it is pleasant to take and acts mildly and gently. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. Dealers in all parts of Canada sell "Fruit-a-tives." But if you are unable to obtain them in your neighborhood, they will be sent you postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

The Talkative Wife

By RUTH CAMERON

HE is growing daily more common, I think. Indeed, I somehow can't imagine her existing at all in grandmother's and "Aunt Tabitha's" day, and must believe her entirely a growth of the last two generations.

Perhaps I'm wrong, but that is certainly my feelings about her.

And she—as you are probably quite ready to know by the time—the young married woman who talks about her ultra-private matrimonial affairs, who tells her sister, or her best friend, or her cousin, or even her next-door neighbor, things about her most intimate family life which should have been kept absolutely sacred.

This young married woman should confide "every thing" to her mother has always seemed doubtful tactics to me.

That she should open her whole heart to any less trustworthy and intimate confidante than this friend who is bound to her by a tie, second only to that which makes "two one flesh," seems to me the very height of folly.

And yet, how many women nowadays do make just this mistake!

And not only coarse and uneducated women, either.

I recall especially just now the case of a young professor's wife at college who made an intimate friend of one of the students and confided many things to her that one would have thought she would at least have known enough to keep for married ears. The intimate friend "leaked" and soon half the college was in possession of the young professor's wife's silly confidences.

She was a woman whom we had been inclined to admire very much at first, but I assure you that after this incident she suffered a decided loss of prestige.

While I am on the subject there is a very similar folly which I should like to say a word against, and that is the decidedly delicate way in which two intimates will sometimes talk and act in each other's presence.

For four young married folks to find pleasure in each other's company is a very good thing. It often comfortably relieves the too continuous strain of tele-estimation.

But for any couple to become so intimate with another as to throw down the barriers and talk and act as they would if alone is decidedly bad.

It does not hurt either the young man or the young woman, but it does hurt their conduct any less immodest and indecent.

It is natural that the young married woman, carried away as she is with her new viewpoint on life, should be in an expansive and communicative mood.

But if she wants to be sure of having nothing to regret in after life, let her keep constantly in mind the saying of the old Greek philosopher—

"I have often regretted my speech; never my silence."

Senator David Rice Atchison, of Clay county, Mo., claimed the unique distinction of holding the office of the President of the United States for one day. The terms of office of President James K. Polk and of Vice-President George M. Dallas terminated by limitation on Saturday night at midnight, March 4, 1849. General Zachary Taylor, Polk's successor, was not inaugurated until Monday, March 5, 1849. Senator Atchison was at the time president pro tem of the United States. The expiration of Vice-President Dallas' term left a vacancy to which Senator Atchison instantly succeeded. This made him ex-officio vice-president of the United States, but at the same instant there was likewise a vacancy in the presidential office, to which in turn Atchison instantly succeeded.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Contest For Ancient Barones Before House of Lords Committee—The King and Lloyd George

(Copyright, 1912, by the Broadwood Co.)

Francis Coutts, whose contest with the Duke of Atholl for the ancient and long dominant baronies of Latimer, Seales and Baldernere, as well as for the Earldom of Oxford, has been engaged by the committee of privileges of the House of Lords during the last week, as the latest nephew and principle heir of the late Baroness Burdett-Coutts, through whom he is the dominant shareholder in Coutts' Bank, where George V. (like Edward VII. and Queen Victoria) keeps his money.

Francis Coutts was disinherited by his aunt, who left away from him every vestige of property she could, it was owing to her quarrel with a man, the late Mrs. Money-Coutts. The two sisters got on very well together, till Lady Burdett-Coutts married her second husband, the late Ashmead Bartlett, now William Ashmead Bartlett Burdett-Coutts.

Mrs. Money-Coutts opposed this marriage, but the most downright manner and treated her sister to such plain speech about her proposed marriage to a man young enough to be her grandson, that all relations were broken off. Mrs. Money-Coutts died before the Baroness, and her son Francis inherited his aunt's fortune by virtue of the will of Harriet Duchess of St. Albans, whose first husband, Tom Coutts, had everything he owned to his widow.

The duchess, a former actress, named Mellon, left nothing to her son, the late second husband (the Duke of St. Albans), who had failed to treat her with proper consideration, but bequeathed her fortune to the younger of the two granddaughters of old Tom Coutts, Angela Burdett, who was the wife of the late Duke of Atholl.

With regard to the De Vere Earldom of Oxford, his prospects are distinctly inferior to those of the Duke of Atholl, who claims them through a line of descent different from that concerning the Latimer barony. Moreover, there are other pretenders to this honor, in the persons of the new-made Marquis of Lincolnshire, formerly known as Earl Carrington, the Marquis of Cholmondeley, and the Earl of Ancaster, who is married to Miss Elosee Brevce of New York. It is not only the Duke of Atholl which is at stake, but the ancient office of lord great chamberlain, one of the highest dignities of the realm, originally bestowed on a hereditary.

SECRET OF MYSTERIOUS POWER REVEALED AT LAST

How Prominent People Have Gained Wealth and Popularity

Famous Hypnotist Perfects Simple Method That Enables Anyone to Control Thoughts and Acts of Others, Cure Disease and Suffer Without Drugs, and Read the Secret Desires of People Though Thousands of Miles Away

Wonderful Book Describing This Strange Force and Character Delimitation Post Free to All Who Write at Once

The National Institute of Sciences has appropriated $5,000 towards the free distribution of Prof. Knowles' new book, "The Key to the Knowledge of the Inner Forces." The book lays bare many astounding facts concerning the practices of Eastern Yogis, and explains a wonderful system for the development of Personal Magnetism, Hypnotic and Telepathetic Powers, and the curing of diseases and habits without drugs. The subject of practical character reading is also extensively dealt with, and the author describes a simple method of accurately reading the secret thoughts and desires of others through thousands of miles away. The almost endless stream of letters requesting copies of the book and character delimitations indicate clearly the universal interest in Psychological and Occult Sciences.

"Rich and poor alike benefit by the teachings of this new system," says Prof. Knowles, "and the person who wishes to achieve greater success has but to apply the simple rules laid down. That many wealthy and prominent people owe their success to the power of Personal Influence there is not the slightest doubt, but the great mass of people have remained in utter ignorance of these phenomena. The National Institute of Sciences has therefore undertaken the somewhat arduous task of distributing broadcast, without regard for class or creed, the information heretofore possessed by the few. In addition to supplying the books free, each person who writes at once will also receive a character delimitation of from 400 to 500 words as prepared by Prof. Knowles.

If you wish a copy of Prof. Knowles' book and a Character Delimitation, simply copy the following verse in your own hand-writing:

"I want power of mind, Force and strength in my look, Please read my character, And send me your book."

Also send your full name and address (state whether Mr., Mrs. or Miss), write plainly, and address your letter to: National Institute of Sciences, Dept. 808, No. 285, Westminster, Bridge road, London, S. E. If you wish you may enclose six 2-cent stamps of your own country to pay postage.

any honor in the twelfth century by Queen Maud upon Aubrey de Vere, first Lord of Oxford.

On the death, without issue, of Henry, the eighth earl, in 1625, the sovereignty, upon the erroneous advice of the committee of privileges, declared the dignity of lord great chamberlain to have devolved upon Robert Lord Willoughby de Eresby, through his mother, Lady Mary de Vere. The present Earl of Ancaster, and the Marquis and Countess of Lincolnshire are co-heirs of this Robert Lord Willoughby de Eresby, and share jointly the duties of the office.

On the other hand, the husband of Henry, the deceased eighteenth Earl of Oxford, was assigned to Robert de Vere, a remote cousin, with the death of whose child and heir Aubrey, the honor fell into abeyance in 1703.

The Duke of Atholl claims the Earldom of Oxford by descent on the distaff side from the eighth earl, and if he can establish his right there, King George will have no alternative but to reverse the action of his Stuart predecessor on the throne, to deprive Lord Ancaster, Lincolnshire and Cholmondeley of their dignity of lord great chamberlain, and to restore it to the Earl of Oxford, in the person of the Duke of Atholl.

While much gossip has been devoted to describing the conviction and punishment of Baron Paterno, who so abominably murdered the Countess Trapani in Rome some eighteen months ago, little attention has been accorded to the unfortunate woman's husband, who is now in the hands of the law, and who is now in the hands of his wife's infatuation for Paterno, and to have tolerated it because of her wealth.

Paterno had spent two-thirds of her fortune in satisfying her husband's constant demands for money, before she fell into the hands of Paterno, who likewise drew heavily on her exchequer. The two men between them had exhausted her resources to such an extent that she was obliged to pawn her jewels, and it was because Paterno believed that she still had funds at her disposal which she was concealing from him, that he killed her in a fit of rage.

If Queen Helena, whose lady-in-waiting she was, had taken charge of her child, and is providing for their education, she is characterized by the same generosity and her virtuously penniless condition, and of the ignominy of their father.

King George does not like his chancellor of the exchequer, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding. King Edward, it may be remembered, was interested in Lloyd-George when he first came to the office of the Exchequer. King Edward, it may be remembered, was interested in Lloyd-George when he first came to the office of the Exchequer.

ANOTHER TRAIN WRECK; SEVENTEEN KILLED

Freight Plows Through Passenger Train—Thirty Injured

La Trobe, Pa., July 5—Seventeen persons were killed and thirty injured, a number fatally, at 4.30 this afternoon when a passenger train on the Ligonier Valley railroad was smashed from behind by a double header freight train. Only one passenger escaped without injury.

The accident occurred at the fair ground at Wilpen, one half mile from Ligonier, a summer resort.

The passenger train had started from Ligonier. It consisted of an engine and coach, the engine pushing the coach. The freight train was made up of many coal cars and was being pulled by two heavy locomotives.

The impact was terrific. The passenger coach was practically laid open and the passengers either crushed or thrown like shot through the air.

Mrs. M. Egan, of Wilpen, identified the history of the Ligonier road for the past forty years.

The Dead.

Mrs. Harry Dillon and baby, of Wilpen, crushed to death.

William Campbell, of Wilpen, crushed to death.

George Byers, of Ligonier, fireman, crushed and scalded.

Louise Rhoady, aged 8, of McCane, crushed.

Elizabeth Rhoady, aged 13, a sister.

John M. Ankey, of Ligonier, fireman, died on way to hospital.

Mrs. M. Egan, of Wilpen.

Thomas Murr, of La Trobe, head crushed.

George Toth, of Wilpen, body crushed.

Mike Hudook, of Wilpen, side crushed.

Frank Overton, aged 10, of Wilpen, mutilated.

Mrs. John Overton, mother of Frank, died on train bound for Pittsburg.

Unidentified boy, aged 12.

Two unidentified foreigners badly crushed.

A majority of the injured, thirty in all, were residents along the Wilpen branch. They were brought to a hospital here or sent to hospitals at Pittsburg when it was found they were in a critical condition.

To Discard Freckles, Tan, Pimples, Wrinkles

(From Feminine World.)

The use of cream on the face sometimes causes hair to grow. You can avoid the risk of acquiring superfluous hair by avoiding cosmetics and using mercurized hair instead. There is nothing better for any condition of the skin, as the wax actually absorbs the offensive cuticle. The latter is naturally replaced by a clear, smooth, healthy complexion, full of life and expression. It's the sensible way to discard a freckled, tanned, over-red, blotchy or pimply skin. Get an ounce of mercurized hair, and apply it to the face in the morning with soap and water. It takes a week or so to complete the transformation.

The ideal wrinkle eradicator is made by dissolving an ounce of powdered salicylic in a half pint hazel. Bathing the face in the solution brings almost instantaneous results.

AGREED WITH BABY

This Mother Found The Right Food For Her Baby Girl.

Mrs. Arthur Prince of Meaford, Ont., writes, on Sept. 12th, 1911: "Some time ago, you were good enough to send me a sample of Neave's Food. Baby liked it so well and it agreed with her, so I am using it right along and think it is excellent."

"I have a friend with a very delicate baby. She cannot nurse it and has tried six different foods, but it does not thrive at all—is always sick and troubled with indigestion. I strongly recommended your food. Will you please send her a sample?"

Mrs. Prince wrote again on Sept. 27th, 1911. "My friend's baby has grown wonderfully. I can scarcely credit it. Her next baby, which she expects in five months, will be fed on Neave's Food right from the start—she thinks it is so good."

Mothers and prospective mothers should obtain a free tin of Neave's Food and a valuable book "Hints About Baby" by writing Edwin Utley, 14 Front Street East, Toronto, who is the Agent for Canada. (Reference to paper)

Neave's Food is sold in 1 lb. air tight tins by all Druggists in Canada.

Pimples so bad He Was Ashamed

One Box of Cuticura Ointment Took Pimples Away.

"About seven years ago pimples broke out all over my face and neck. When they would first come out they would be big and red, then after a while they would turn white, and matter would come out. Sometimes they would itch so I could hardly sleep. I was ashamed to go down street, my face looked so bad. I went to several doctors and got medicine, which did me no good, and bought ointments, salves and patent medicines, but none of them would cure my face and neck. A friend advised me to try Cuticura Ointment. I got out box, and I took the ointment every night. In all used only one box. It is a wonderful cure. Any sufferer who has pimples should use Cuticura Ointment. It is a wonderful cure. I have had my own equal to Cuticura Soap." (Signed) Aviner Mathers, Parkhill, Ont., Dec. 24, 1910.

Sores All Over Baby's Body

"When my baby boy was six months old, his body was completely covered with large sores that seemed to itch and burn, and cause terrible suffering. The eruption began in pimples which would open and run, making large sores. His hair came out and finger nails fell off, and the sores were over the entire body, causing little or no sleep for baby or myself. Great relief would come off when I removed his shirt. We tried a great many remedies but nothing would help. I then tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment but a short time before I could see that he was improving, and in six weeks' time he was entirely cured. He had suffered about six weeks before we tried the Cuticura Ointment, although we had tried several remedies. I think the Cuticura Ointment will do all that is claimed for it, and a great deal more." (Signed) Mrs. Noble Tubman, Dodson, Mont., Jan. 28, 1911.

Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. Sent by Postage Free to Cuticura, 28 Columbia Ave., Boston, U. S. A. In a liberal sized sample of each, with 25-p. booklet.

The Evening Times and Star

ST. JOHN, N. B., JULY 6, 1912.

The St. John Evening Times is printed at 27 and 29 Canterbury Street every evening (Sunday excepted) by the St. John Times Printing and Publishing Co., Ltd., a company incorporated under the Joint Stock Companies Act.

NEXT WEEK'S EVENTS

The Times presents today a partial programme of the events of next week in this city, and it will be seen that the 1912 Club has been successful in making arrangements for features of great interest to the citizens and to all-comers.

Every man and woman in St. John should have something good to say next week about the future of the city, and the richness of the resources of New Brunswick. Outside investors have discovered that there is here a very promising field, and before we are a week older many others who as yet may not have been greatly interested should be convinced that this eastern province has prospects such as should appeal alike to the capitalist and the home-seeker.

ST. JOHN AND AQUATIC SPORT

Whenever it is necessary to provide local features for a celebration at St. John we are made painfully aware of the absence of anything like public spirit in the encouragement of athletic sports. There will be no aquatic sports next week. There will be no aquatic sports except a motor boat race.

Consider the case of St. John's, Newfoundland. Early in August there will be in that city a regatta in which some three hundred oarsmen will compete. They have a regatta association, of some thirty or forty leading citizens who keep the interest in the sport alive.

The new potato and the native strawberry have arrived, although the former is not yet available in quantity. The catch of shad in Canadian waters has declined over 50 per cent. in eleven years. Conservation of this valuable fishery is needed.

The people of Montreal have been sweating in terrific heat for several days. Those who can get away should come to St. John, where there is great astonishment if on any day the thermometer gets up to 80 degrees.

The management of the Home for Incurables have decided against adding a new wing as a sanitarium for patients suffering from tuberculosis. This is no doubt a wise decision, for the reason that means will probably be made available at some time to enlarge the institution for the purpose for which it was founded.

sanitarium should be a separate institution.

The large military camp at Sussex appears to have been successful in all respects.

The great naval display at Spithead next week will eclipse all former reviews of Britain's fighting ships.

The announcement that the Sisters of Charity will establish an infirmary indicates that another beneficent institution will soon be added to those already in existence in the city.

It will be quite a shock to some of the flag-flappers in Canada to learn that Mr. Borden in an interview in London declared yesterday that the Canadian ministers would not even discuss with the British admiral the question of contributing Dreadnoughts to the imperial navy.

In the preface to a new book on Eastern Canada and the People therein, Mr. Edgar Dupuy says—"The west is the land of the great future, we are told; possibly, but the east is the land of the historic past and, I venture to say, of the great future as well."

Now that it is settled that the sanitarium is not to be made a wing of the Home for Incurables, Mayor Frink will no doubt call his committee together at once to determine the question of a site. There is urgent need of prompt action. Nine persons died in the city of tuberculosis during the month of June.

Lord Lansdowne said at the West India Committee banquet Thursday night that if the Conservatives had not been returned to power in Canada there would have been no West India agreement. Lord Lansdowne has been long enough in politics to have learned that it is neither wise nor gracious for a man to make assertions which are not supported by facts.

Since the Tories came into power in Canada there has been much boasting about "linking up the Empire," and an uninformed reader would perhaps be led to believe that nothing had been done in that direction while the Tories were out of power. As a matter of fact, the Liberal party was the one which took practical steps to draw Canada closer to the mother country and other portions of the Empire, and did not go around boasting about it.

Mr. Arthur Hawkes will hardly be classed by the Canadian Tories as a prejudiced witness, for they made much of him and got much help from him in the federal election campaign. Observe now what Mr. Hawkes says to the Tories on the subject of the navy—"A willingness to vote a contribution to Downing Street is only an incident in the situation. Unless one talk about Canada being a nation is the quintessence of poppy-cock we must improve, not destroy, the Laurier policy; never mind whether it means that sundry legislators will have to change the mind in which they spoke within the last year or two. After all the interests of the nation are a little bigger than the verbal consistency of a few men who were distinguished by the irresponsibility of opposition. We are up against a national, a British situation that must be met in a national British way."

War on Advertising Signs With the aid of the public school boys and girls, the National Highways Protective Society of New York hopes to carry on a campaign against objectionable advertising signs which mar the landscape and in many instances destroy the trees along roadways of the state.

The order sent out over the state by the society, with the suggestion that the school boys and girls start the crusade Monday, and continue it so long as an offending billboard or sign may be found. Medals will be presented to the most active and industrious boys and girls. The society has a thousand of these medals ready for distribution.

Why Dublin Parliament Will Not Have Control of This Branch—John Bull's Market Garden and Fattening Farm—Some Trade Figures

(Times' Special Correspondence)

Dublin, June 23—Some exceedingly significant figures on England's export trade which have just been published throw a strong light on the relations of Ireland and Great Britain and reveal at a glance the reason why Irish control of foreign trade was excluded from the home rule bill.

The figures are carried down only to the end of 1910 and the figures for that year are typical of all the rest. They show that little Ireland with her 4,000,000 people is England's greatest customer and that England could better afford to lose even her trade with the United States. In that year England sold Ireland $20,000,000 worth of goods. The United States was her next best customer, taking $10,000,000 worth, while the whole of Central and South America was a poor third with $28,000,000. Germany came next with $27,500,000, India followed with $23,000,000 and then came Australia, $20,000,000, France $17,000,000, Canada $15,000,000 and South Africa $10,000,000. All the rest of the British Empire took only $130,000,000 worth of English goods.

But far more significant than the total figures are those showing the individual expenditure on English goods of the various countries. The whole foreign trade of England is carried on with 1,000,000,000 people. To each of these persons she sold goods valued at $2 in 1910, but to every inhabitant of Ireland she sold 480 worth of goods in the same period. No wonder England is afraid to grant any privileges to Ireland that might tend to curtail that trade.

Helps England Both Ways

Suppose, for instance, that Ireland had control of her own customs and was able to impose a protective tariff on foreign goods. Suppose then that she negotiated a preferential treaty with the United States by which she was to import raw materials at a lower rate than English goods. Who can doubt that in a very few years Ireland would lose that $200,000,000 worth of goods which now constitutes nearly a sixth of her entire income from foreign trade?

It may be said that England in her turn is Ireland's best customer and this is true at present. Ireland supplies great quantities of food to England, but she does so on other markets to her and she is forced to sell her agricultural products across the channel at the price England is willing to pay. It will be seen that England benefits both ways from Ireland. She retains her position as an excellent customer on the one hand and as a cheap food producer on the other.

The British Tariff Reform Commission recently has produced some interesting figures on Ireland's imports and exports from which deductions can be drawn which it is hardly likely the British protectionists had in mind. For instance, Ireland, which exports most of its produce to the United States, exports more than $6,000,000 worth of cheap American and Canadian hams every year to feed her own people. The fact is that Irishmen can not afford to eat their own bacon. That is reserved for the British breakfast tables, while the producer has to be content with inferior stuff.

Similarly Ireland imports about $3,000,000 worth of wheat and wheat flour every year. It is true that she does not grow much wheat now, but when her population was double what it is she produced enough bread to feed all her own people and had some over to export. The same was true to England's demand for cheap food. She gets her wheat from America, Canada, India, Russia and the Argentine, and has turned Ireland into a vast grazing ranch for fattening cattle for the butcher—and often these cattle are imported from abroad, so that Ireland does not even have the breeding of them.

What this means may be realized when it is stated that a wheat farm which would employ a dozen or more men finds a living for only one cattle herder when it is laid down to grass.

Depopulation

How extensive this depopulation of the countryside has been is shown by the tariff commission's figures. Between 1881 and 1891 the males employed in Irish agriculture declined in numbers by forty per cent and the females by nearly fifty per cent. Wheat cultivation in that period almost ceased, and the average under sown five per cent, and today there are twice the number of cattle per man employed in agriculture, that there were fifty years ago.

The commission also points out two directions in which Ireland is crippled by England's present policy. It has been proved in recent years by extensive experiments that tobacco of excellent quality can be grown in Ireland, but England's fiscal policy compels the imposition of a tax on Irish tobacco equal to that on the imported article. In the same way large areas in Ireland are suitable for growing sugar beets, but Irish made sugar must pay a revenue tax equal to the tariff on foreign sugar.

Both tobacco and beet are crops that are uncommonly profitable to the grower and their manufacture into the consumable article gives employment to a great number of people than almost any other agricultural product. But the Irish parliament under the home rule bill will have no power to deal with this situation, although neither tobacco nor sugar enter into competition with England's own products. Should Irish land be given over to these profitable crops, however, there might be a falling off in the supply of Irish beef and bacon for John Bull's table.

"Why did you abandon your motor car trip so abruptly?" "Oh, my wife is so superstitious! After we had run over the third man she said we ought to turn back, otherwise she felt sure we should meet with some accident!"

A place of interest to visitors during "Old Home Week" will be the M. R. A. stores.

OPERA HOUSE HAS FINE BILL FOR OLD HOME WEEK

MISS ROSE KING, LEADING WOMAN OF LYNOCH-KING PLAYERS.

The management of the Opera House will offer an especially meritorious attraction for Old Home Week in the engagement of Miss Rose King and Edward D. Lynch, who supported by their own company of players will offer for the first time in the maritime provinces, the greatest of all dramatic successes, The Typhoon. This play has created world-wide discussion because of the daring theme involved. This will be its initial presentation outside of New York city and the fact that Miss King and Mr. Lynch have selected this play as a suitable starring vehicle in which to make their debut before a St. John audience shows that they intend to spare no expense to give local theatregoers the best plays available. Twenty well-known players especially recruited from some of the leading Broadway productions have recently closed their seasons, are included in the splendid cast that support the popular stars, and gorgeous scenery, elaborate lighting effects, and lavish staging will enhance the value of the production. Miss Rose King was for two seasons a popular favorite in Winnipeg while Edward D. Lynch comes heralded as one of the most popular leading men on the American stage.

The scenes of The Typhoon are laid in Berlin, the gay, pleasure loving capital of Germany. Here a little band of Japanese have congregated, ostensibly for the purpose of studying European civilization but in reality to learn certain military secrets that are jealously guarded by the Germans. The leader of the little party is

CONDITIONS OF FARMING IN THE WEST POOR

Things Are Quiet, Says New Brunswick in Alberta; Farmers Have Not Been Getting Rich Quick

(Sunset Record)

The Record had a talk with a resident of Alberta, recently and the gentleman, who belongs to New Brunswick, was cheerful in his frankness in discussing conditions as he has found them. He is a man who has made money out of real estate but he got in on the ground floor and got out again by the top story.

Of the wealth to be made from raising wheat in the west he is not so optimistic. For two years farming has not been a homeing success on the prairies, and a good many men have not taken a crop off their broad acreages for a couple of years. In consequence of this state of affairs the west is spoken of by our friend as being "quiet." When a western man rises in meeting to say that things are "quiet" he is quietly telling you a lot. The same story of "quiet" times comes to the East from many sources, and this particular gentleman has no hesitation in saying what he thinks of the situation. He is not a knocker by any means but he does not object to being regarded as truthful and this explains a lot.

That the real estate game is being overdone in some sections and that many suckers have been bitten is his humble opinion, and having been mixed up in the real estate business, he knows whereof he speaks. In one city mentioned by him some $30,000,000 in cold cash was invested in subdivisions, last year which will not bring any profit to the buyers for many years to come at least. The land has been wild-catted until it is impossible to say just where the purchasers will get off. The sum mentioned is a large one, but it shows to what extent the public has been interested in some of the land sales of the west. The truth of the matter is that too much of this land is sold to people who have absolutely no idea of its location, and they must inevitably suffer for their carelessness.

In another direction, too, the west seems to be overdone. In many of the cities straggle are finding their wages are being reduced by the incoming of strangers, who, finding work scarce, have engaged in the doubtful game of cutting prices. The result is that contractors and others are benefitting from this condition, but the workers are meeting with loss.

A letter published by a St. John paper calls attention to this state of affairs and advises New Brunswickers to stay east. Living is high in the western cities but the over-supply of labor had hammered down wages in some cities to the mere cost of board. That is not a particularly inviting outlook for any man, particularly if he be the head of a family. The advice "stay east young man" is getting to mean something more than a catch phrase. There are men making money in the west, but many are losing it. The same conditions prevail here, and there is lots of opportunity for the man who knows how to make money, right here in New Brunswick.

Tokerama, a highly educated young Japanese, whose shrewdness and keen insight has made him a valued envoy of the Mikado. Just as his ambitions are about to be realized Tokerama becomes wildly infatuated with Helena Kerner, a beautiful adventuress, who is a popular idol in America, and who in turn is the sweetheart of Herr Otto Linder, a disolute German artist. The latter resents the Japs impetuous love making but permits Helena to encourage his attentions because of the fact that Tokerama will confide in her. Helena ascertains the Japs plans and informs Linder. Tokerama, discovering that he has been tricked by the woman he loves, reproaches her, while she is visiting him in his apartments, whereupon the girl scornfully denounces him and casts him off. Infatuated to desperation by her bitter denunciation, Tokerama struggles her and hides the body in an adjoining room. The Japanese courtesies of Tokerama, call at his house and discover the murder. To save him, they permit a Japanese boy to assume the crime and thus allow their leader to continue his life's work. The climax of the play shows Tokerama's drastic finale.

Miss Rose King will have one of the most exacting roles of her career as Helena Kerner, the adventuress, and the part will give her wide scope to display her emotional talents. Edward D. Lynch will be seen as Herr Otto Linder, the artist and Joseph Crehan will have in the part of Tokerama, a role especially suited to him. Others in the cast will be James A. Bliss, the well known comedian, who has been principal comedian of the 2 Baby Mine Company this season; Walter D. Nealand, for two seasons with Paid in Full and favorably remembered here as heavy man with the Lyceum Stock Company; Harry G. Hockey, the well known St. John favorite, last seen in St. John with the Lyceum Company; William D. Dimock, late with Harry Miller; Howard Shopp, Frank McDonald, Grace Belle Dale, Marion Chester, Mzie Sinclair, Ida Parks, Louise Ebele and others. Massive scenic effects will be utilized in the production. The sale of seats opened this morning at the box office.

During the last three days of the week Sidney Drew's farce comedy, Billy, will be the attraction. Matinees will be given on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoons.

Two dear friends were conversing "Take my advice, old chap," said one of them, "and get married." "No, thanks, I have a horror of perpetual slavery." "Ah, but if you could find a wife like mine, so gentle, so affectionate, so devoted." "Then I'll wait till she's a widow!"

KIDNAPPED; BRANDED ON FOREHEAD

Astounding Adventure Befalls Gospel Hall Missioner in London

DECOYED FROM HALL

Taken to Strange House And There Branded With Letter H and While Unconscious Carried into Street—Detectives at Work

(London Express)

An adventure as strange as anything in fiction has been reported to Scotland-yard by Frederick J. Haverley, the missioner of the Gospel Hall Mission, Lismore-circus, Haverstock-hill. He is lying at his home, Mepham Villa, Ladbroke-road, Kentish town, with the strange sign of the letter "H" branded deep on his forehead.

Mr. Haverley was recently reported to the police as "missing." For two days and a night his family and congregation had no news of him. He disappeared mysteriously when he was expected to conduct an evening service at the Gospel Hall.

Just before midnight on the second night he staggered into his home in Ladbroke-road, covered with mud and on the point of collapse. On his forehead was an open wound, where this great letter "H" had been traced with some caustic acid, and his wrists were cut as though by tightly-bound ropes.

He was at first unable to give any coherent account of how he received his strange injuries, or of his experiences since he was last seen by his friends. Later, however, he told an amazing story of having been kidnapped by two unknown men as he was about to enter his mission hall the previous evening, Thursday, May 2.

They had, he said, induced him to get into a motor-car at the corner of Haverstock-road on the false pretext that his wife had been seriously injured in a motor-car accident in the city. He was then drugged and awake to find himself bound hand and foot in a dark cellar.

Hours afterwards he was carried upstairs to a room in which he saw a number of men with their faces hidden by black hoods, questioned and tortured him, and then scored the letter "H" on his head with burning acid.

He fainted under this torture, and his next memory is of finding himself late at night in the porch of an empty house at South Mimms, near Barnet, a district known to him. The driver of a motor-trolley going towards Holloway—seeing that he looked ill—gave him a lift, and from there he found his way home "with this strange story on his lips.

No Clue

The police divisional surgeon and Doctor Thompson Bishop, of Vauxhall-square, Mr. Haverley at his home yesterday found his injuries not inconsistent with the story he told, but the Kentish town police, even with the assistance of Scotland-yard, have not been able to find any clue to the London house to which he says he was lured, or to trace either the motor-car or the "kidnappers."

A letter scrawled in red characters in somewhat illegible Italian has been handed by Mr. Haverley to the police. It was given to him, he states, by his persecutors, and is an unsigned threat of further violence unless he renounces certain religious views.

When an "Express" representative saw Mr. Haverley at his home yesterday he was still in bed, suffering from the shock and other ill effects of his experiences. He is a man of about fifty, with a bushy beard and curly hair tinged with grey, and right over his forehead, still unhealed, is the mark of the letter "H," while his wrists are scarred and torn.

"I was decoyed away from the mission hall at Haverstock Hill by two men," said Mr. Haverley. "I am sure I should know them again."

"As was about to enter the hall two men, both strangers to me, came along. One was about thirty. He had a slight moustache, and was dressed in a brown suit. The other was taller and clean-shaven."

"They told me that my wife had been run over by a motor-car in the city, and as I knew Mrs. Haverley was going to the city that day, I naturally concluded they were telling the truth, and was much upset.

"Both men gave me the impression of being fairly well-off, well-educated men, and I thought it might have been their car which knocked down my wife, and that they had come to take me to the hospital."

"They took me to a closed private car with a turquoise blue top and maroon body with gold lines. It had a number-plate with the letters 'B. M.' which I understand is the Bedfordshire county mark, but the police have since told me how easily number-plates are changed.

Chloroform

"When we reached the end of Haverstock road the car turned to the left instead of to the right as it should have done if going to the city, but when I pointed this out, the two men, who were much more powerful than I felt, and who put something over my head, which I believe contained chloroform."

"When I recovered I was in a dark hole or cellar underground, with my hands tied behind my back—you can see the scars now—and my feet tied tightly."

"I don't know how long it was before a hooded man came down. He untied my legs and helped me up about fourteen stone steps and along a passage into a room in which men were seated like an Inquisition bench."

"They wanted me to retract certain statements I had made and to apologise. When I refused and I heard what I was accused the second man on the right said 'He has a bold spirit, but we'll soon get it out of him.' He was excruciatingly painful, but I still retained my senses. I was asked again to apologise, but I refused. They put me up in a chair which had a contrivance fixed to it for forcing my head up."

"I was not able to answer their questions, but I could shake my head and then a man I took to be the leader cried 'Here he goes, you are well marked yet!'"

"A bottle containing something that burned like fire was handed up, and a man with a red marked what I thought were two crosses on my head. It was only when I reached home that I found it was an 'H.' When the 'crowd' was screened down one man called me 'our coward,' and struck me across the face, breaking two of my teeth, as you can see for yourself."

Another said, 'Here is your character and reference and gave me a letter written in red in a language which I did not understand, but an now told is Italian. They put it into my pocket, after taking and destroying all my letters and papers.

Turned Out

"They took me downstairs, and I must have fainted again, for I next remember being in the porch of an empty house in the open country. It was dark, and seemed very late at night. I got up, and saw a notice board, and read, 'South Mimms, sale of work,' and by following the telegraph poles on the main road, I came to some houses and a refreshment shop—which I shall be able to recognize when I am well enough to go there again."

The motor-trolley was passing, and the driver seeing I was dazed and unwell, offered me a lift, and I got under his tarpaulin. He took me as far as Holloway-road. He said he was stopping in Black-frank, but he didn't get into the car, and I saw for a gas engine. I am anxious to find that driver again. He should be identified by description."

Mrs. Haverley corroborated her husband's story of his return at midnight after his two days' absence. "Directly I lifted his hat," she said, "I saw this letter 'H' on his head. It gave me such a turn, that I called for police at once and Mr. Haverley gave them details just as he has given them to you."

WORTH KNOWING

To fill floor cracks get a pound of glue, let it stand over night covered with water. Then pour off the water and stir it into a pound of cornstarch. Fill the cracks with this and smooth off with a knife.

After frying doughnuts, place the kettle of hot grease out of doors and pour in a little cold water, enough to make the grease bubble. This will take out the burnt taste and the grease may be used again.

In mixing mustard use warm, never hot water. If the water is too warm it will make the condiment flat. A delicious mustard is made by mixing the dry mustard with equal parts of olive oil and tarragon vinegar.—Dallas News.

OUTPUT FOR MONTH WAS 391,889 TONS

(Gloucester Gazette). As anticipated some days ago, the output from the mines of the D. C. Co. for the month of June proved another record breaker. The total output for the month was 391,889 tons.

The output for June would have gone over the 400,000 ton mark had there been the usual 20 working days in the month. The tonnage for last month showed an increase of 3,000 tons over May, with one working day less. The July output, provided the men work steadily, will go over 400,000 tons.

It is expected that next month the four collieries at Linga will be producing 4,000 tons daily. No 21 Colliery will obtain a much increased output very shortly, and will probably be producing 500 tons daily in two months time. Barring the possibility of accidents, never absent in mining operations, it will not be surprising.

to see occasional daily output this summer of from 19,000 to 19,500 tons. The 20,000-ton mark will hardly be reached in the present season, but it should be a possibility in 1913.

THIRTEEN DEAD NOT IDENTIFIED

Relatives of Corning Wreck Victims Have Hard Task in Finding Lost Ones

OTHERS MAY DIE

Some of the Injured in Critical State and Unable to Tell Who They Are—Eride of a Day One of the Killed—Engineer of Train That Caused Disaster Very Ill.

Corning, N. Y., July 5.—Of the forty-one passengers killed in the rear end collision on the Lackawanna, two miles east of this city early yesterday thirteen remain unidentified to a late hour today. Of these six are in local morgues and seven in Elmira. In several instances there are notices upon which identification may be attempted and several bodies are so badly mutilated that ultimate discovery of their identity seems but a remote possibility. The unidentified dead comprise six women, five men, an eight-year-old boy and a child.

Coroner H. B. Smith settled a dispute between two claimants of the body of the five-year-old boy, the body had been identified by William R. Laird, of Buffalo, as that of his daughter, Mabel, and had been turned over to him. Today David Cochran, of New York, a brother of Mrs. William Armstrong, who with her husband was killed also claimed the body and that of his niece, who accompanied her parents on the trip and who is missing.

Mystery surrounds the fate of the little Armstrong, as there is no other child of the age in any of the morgues or hospitals. Dr. Smith gave Mr. Laird possession of the body to be sent to New York and advised Cochran to go to that city for more positive identification, if it could be obtained.

Considerable confusion had been caused by the fact that many of the dead and injured were taken to Elmira shortly after the accident. Relatives have flocked there seeking missing ones and their missions failing have been compelled to take the trip to Elmira.

It developed tonight that Mrs. Charles Brandes, of New York city who has hitherto been mentioned in the press despatches as among the dead, was on the train. This fact became known when Henry H. Laird, the press despatcher at the morgue and identified the latter but stated that Brandes' wife and child were at home and well in New York.

Bride of a Day Killed.

A few moments later the body of the young bride, supposed to have been Mrs. Brandes, was identified as that of Miss C. A. Masserve, as Ada Benson, of Poquanock (Pa.). She was married on Wednesday at Pomona (N. J.) by Rev. E. J. Hooper to C. A. Masserve, a clerk in the office at Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway. They were on the wedding trip.

A similarity of initials appearing on a wedding ring led to her identification as Mrs. Brandes. Why dying in the hospital Mr. Brandes spoke of his wife frequently in his delirium and it came to be supposed that she was the bride.

Miss Katherine Jaus, of 1244 East 40th street, Brooklyn, was identified today as being among the injured. At the hospital she has been unconscious since the wreck and her case is considered one of the most desperate.

A blue-eyed, brown-haired boy twelve years old among the unidentified injured at the Corning hospital and his case has given much concern to the physicians. No clue to his identity is to be had.

The fact came to light today that the express car next to the engine of train No. 11 which was badly damaged in the wreck contained $50,000 in currency and $80,000 in valuable shipments. The front end of the car was demolished and the treasure was exposed, although none but the express messengers knew of its existence.

A special crew of seven men and one dog was dispatched from Elmira to guard the board, which was sent back to Elmira and later today sent west to Quaco.

Engineer William Schroeder of the express train is reported tonight to be in serious mental condition and is under the constant care of the physicians.

Bodies of wreck victims identified tonight besides the bodies of the missing were those of Mrs. Marie E. Duffy, of Brooklyn; Olive L. Duffy, her daughter, and Edmund P. Perrin, Yonkers (N. Y.).

AMERICAN CITIZEN CONVICTED AS SPY IN GERMAN COURT

SCHOONER ADRIFF IN BAY

Drifting about in the Bay of Fundy, somewhere in the vicinity of St. Martins, is the schooner Alaska, which ran aground on Quaco Ledges about 11 o'clock Thursday evening and floated off again about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, after the crew of four men had left her to her fate.

The Alaska is a two-topmast schooner of 118 tons, and hails from Sackville (N. B.). She is owned by J. Newton Pugsley, of Minasville (N. S.). She left Boston on Tuesday morning without a load, bound for Minasville to load lumber, in charge of Captain Power. On Thursday evening before a strong southwesterly wind, in very foggy weather and in a heavy sea, she struck on Quaco Ledges and filled with water. She rolled and pounded badly until about 2 o'clock yesterday morning, when the crew, considering their position perilous, took to the boat, leaving the schooner drifting to sea on her side. She is now a grave danger to navigation.

The crew arrived safely at St. Martins at noon yesterday and seem none the worse for their experience.

The Alaska was built about twenty-eight years ago, and was rebuilt later. The vessel was very well known at this port.

BANK SCANDAL CASE IN COURT

Swiss Failure Involved More Than Million Loss for Thousands of Working People

Geneva, July 5.—The biggest bank failure and fraud in the history of Switzerland, involving the loss of more than $1,400,000 and the ruin of thousands, mostly belonging to the middle and poorer classes, being artistically fashioned into a floral arch and held under which the nuptial knot was tied.

The facts are briefly these: The "Caisse Generale des Arts et Metiers," a savings bank, was founded in 1873. It was very successful until 1901, when a youth named Muller, aged only twenty-three, the son of a director, was appointed as manager.

He began speculating, first with the money of his family and then with the bank funds entrusted to his care. This went on for nearly twenty years, and the bank failed in October, 1909, with a deficit of more than $1,400,000 and assets of a few hundred dollars. Muller was taken into custody, but shot himself soon after arrest.

All the directors of the bank, including several cantonal authorities and deputies, and the cashier, Albrecht (the last named accused of conniving at Muller's operations) appeared in the dock to be examined. The first day's inquiry revealed the outstanding fact that not one of the directors of the bank knew anything about "keeping books," and had never examined the books of the bank, leaving everything to the manager, Muller, and so long as the usual dividends were paid they did not trouble themselves. The papers concerning the case were so voluminous that

P. E. ISLAND WEDDING OF INTEREST IN ST. JOHN

(Charlottetown Patriot)

The marriage of Miss Annie Douglas McKinnon, youngest daughter of the late Alexander McKinnon to Oswald Wright, son of W. W. Wright, was solemnized at the residence of the bride's mother, Easton street, Charlottetown. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. F. Fullerton pastor of St. James' church in the presence of members of the families of the bride and groom, and a few of the intimate friends. The house was prettily decorated for the joyous occasion, ferns and daisies, being artistically fashioned into a floral arch and held under which the nuptial knot was tied.

The bride, who was unattended, was attired in a costume of white silk, trimmed with Honiton lace and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. Her little niece, Miss Grace McKinnon, of Slesbrooke, who assisted as flower girl, was prettily gowned in white, trimmed with yellow sash and ribbons, and carried a basket of white daisies. After the wedding breakfast had been served, Mr. and Mrs. Wright left by the Northumberland on an extended honeymoon trip along the southern coast of Nova Scotia. On their return they will make their home in this city. The bride's traveling suit was of brown Shantung silk, with hat to match.

The bride is a popular and accomplished young lady, and Mr. Wright holds the responsible position of travelling representative for the well-known firm of Gaulth Brothers of Montreal. The large number of handsome and valuable wedding presents indicate the high esteem in which the young couple are held. The wedding was made the occasion of a delightful reunion of the McKinnon family, the members present being Mr. and Mrs. J. McKinnon and children, Charlottetown; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. McNeill (nee Miss Mills McKinnon) and children of Melrose, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. George McKinnon and children of Sherbrooke, Que.; Hedley V. McKinnon, of St. John, and Mr. and Mrs. Alexander McKinnon of Charlottetown. George Douglas, of Pictou, uncle of the bride, with his wife and daughter, Miss Hazel Douglas; W. W. Wright and Mrs. Wright, parents of the groom, his sister Miss Wright, his brother Leith Wright and aunt Mrs. Andrew Stiggins, formerly of Texas, were also among the wedding guests. The Patriotic joins with many friends in extending best wishes.

FRENCH ABOUT RIPE FOR A REVOLUTION

Unrest General and Flare-up Seems Inevitable

FIVE YEARS WILL TELL

Politician Says There Will Be Outside War Or Up-heaval at Home—Trying to Root Out Absinthe Evil—Some of Society's Demands.

(Times' Special Correspondence) Paris, June 25—The general uneasiness which the prevalence of socialism, the increase in the price of living, and the general political discontent in France had brought with them, encouraged the Bonapartists, who have been quiescent recently, to hold a monster meeting at the Salle Wagram the other evening. The Marquis de Dion was the principal speaker. Five thousand people listened to him and applauded to the echo his plea for a "constitutional republic." The implication, of course, was that Prince Napoleon would be the consul.

Although there is little likelihood of a monarchy, an empire, or even a constitutional republic in France in the immediate future, there is no doubt whatever that the French people are ripe for another revolution. Nobody is quite satisfied with the present form of government. Everybody feels, no matter what the cause, that there is a general feeling that the real rulers of the country are not merely the government, but all the members of the two chambers, and far too many of these friends are much too expensive a luxury.

If General Boulanger were alive there might easily be a coup d'etat. By turning out the congresses, the abnormal rulers of France have set the many-headed hydra of the Bonapartists, rather than either the priests or even the nobles ever there. The bourgeoisie is a long-suffering animal, but he is beginning to kick. The socialist elements are so excited that they demand a rapidly becoming more than the bourgeoisie will stand, and in France, when unrest has become as general as it is now becoming, a far-reaching revolution is inevitable.

A well-known politician said the other day that of one kind or another must break out in France within the next five years. The meaning was, that if war with another nation did not turn out to be a people's thoughts away from their home troubles, a civil war, with or without bloodshed, a revolution, peaceable or otherwise, would be a necessity.

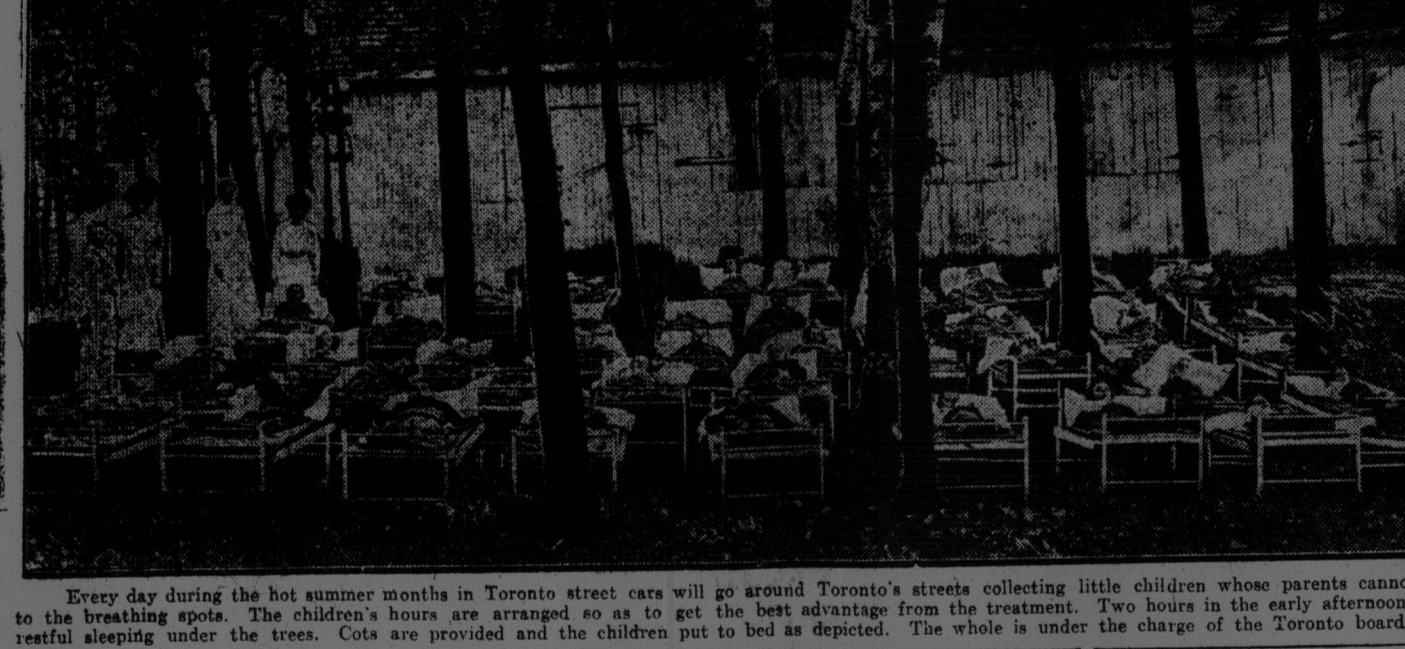

Passengers from London to Paris will be delighted at the news that the reason on French soil will be, in all probability, no longer displaced by the thousands of sidemen and sidewomen that at present line the railway. M. Klotz, the minister of finance, has recently proposed a law which a private railway company should be allowed to take over. The law is a very simple one. It is a law which will be doubled or tripled if the sign contains two or three announcements. More over, the tax upon the land on which the signs are erected is to be increased by the amount of profit which the landowner derives from allowing their erection, so that all possible inducement is left space for the purpose of removal.

Liquor inquiry in France. The French senate is at present discussing an interesting recommendation of a commission which has recently been conducting an inquiry into the sale of alcoholic liquor in France. The proposal amounts to the suppression of the sale of absinthe in France. At all events, though a substance called "absinthe" would still exist, it would be comparatively innocuous by the side of the liquor at present sold.

A midnight row at Argenteuil, a suburb of Paris, among about a dozen workmen, all more or less under influence of drink, has resulted in the death of one of their number, as well as the killing of one policeman and the mortal wounding of another. Revolvers were freely discharged, a sort of pitched battle took place, and one of the most violent of the workmen, Brownard, was badly wounded in the leg. The men had been imbibing rather freely, and got into a dispute near a station. Two policemen, one named Quilmas and the other Borne, intervened and tried to quiet the quarrelers. The workmen moved away, continuing their squabble, and the two policemen followed them at a short distance.

Suddenly the men fired their revolvers at each other. The two policemen ran up to the fight, and Quilmas was struck by a bullet, which cut his jugular vein, and he fell and died in a few minutes. The other policeman tried to seize the man who was supposed to have fired the shot, and he in turn was shot in the lungs. The workmen then dispersed, and the course of a search during the night

DAUGHTER OF THE DUCHESS BEVELY KICKER

Dainty Slippers Play havoc With Fine Works of Art

LONDON SOCIETY LETTER

Talk of Two Weddings in the Titled Circle—Caravan Trip of Lady Grosvenor as a Gipsy—Gossip of Canadians

(Times' Special Correspondence) London, June 25—There is an entertaining story concerning Lady Rosemary Grosvenor, only daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland, now going the rounds of Mayfair drawing-rooms. As you probably know, she is a baroness and young person, almost a tomboy, who carries not the least bit of society, and her parents find it hard work to keep her in rein.

One of her favorite diversions is skying her slippers about any room in which she happens to be, with disastrous consequences to many of the ornaments. This fact came to the ears of a well-known painter, and he has decided to paint a picture of her in the act of kicking a slipper. The picture is to be exhibited at the Bingham gallery, with whom she is a frequent visitor, with whom she is a frequent visitor. After considering all the facts the artist reported that he was sorry but so long as the Sutherland girl was welcomed as a guest he would not dare write the name of any figure.

A society wedding. London society looks forward with a good deal of pleasurable anticipation to the marriage of Major Sir George Leveson-Gower, only daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland, and the Duke of Westminister's new hunting chest in the south. Lady Arthur is of course, aunt to the Duke of Westminister, and falling in with the title, the duke's little son died two years ago—would one day be Duchess of Westminister, her husband, the Duke of Westminister, has recently returned from his tour in the East. When she goes on these caravan tours, a form of "retreat" that she initiated, she has been to "Seira Lecha" for the time being. To do this, however, she had to obtain permission from the Duke of Westminister, who is a family in England, whom she has known since she was a child, and who thought her that she knows of the Duke's many languages.

In former years, when caravanning was not so universal among the nobles, and she had many amusing adventures, and she has promised to write a book later on, telling all about the "van of society." She is now traveling in France, she left her van in charge of the driver, a Scotchman, and she has recently returned with her own, to get provisions, and returning about half an hour later, found the van had disappeared. She had been four miles she eventually came back, but she was standing before the "van" of a small village, and her driver, Scotsman, with a French dictionary in one hand, and his best to explain his presence, while French officials hopped all round him in gesticulating excitement.

Another match? Whenever pretty Countess Zia Torby appears, almost invariably beside her is seen the stalwart figure of the Hereditary Grand Duke Adolf Friedrich of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, and all the London world is asking itself if a match will be arranged. Countess Zia is the daughter of the Grand Duke Michael, cousin of the Czar of Russia. Following the grand duke's marriage to the Countess Torby, his uncle, Alexander III, deprived him of his rank in the army and his property, and banished him from Russia, and he was only comparatively lately, due to the strenuous efforts of the late King Edward on his behalf, that Nicholas II, graciously consented to forgive him. The grand duke is cousin of Queen Mary—his mother, and her mother, the late Duchess of Teck, having been sisters.

He is often called the Kaiser's "Missionary of Empire," for that monarch is fond of sending him off to little known corners of the earth on ostensibly scientific expeditions, but by the time the grand duke is getting back home, he is generally found to have firmly planted the German flag in the soil. Adolf Friedrich is a clever young chap, keenly interested in medical science, and has made some useful investigations into the causes of tropical diseases in the various "zoos" of his native land, and there are several lions that he has captured. He is a thirty years old and speaks English perfectly.

Travels as a Gipsy. After a tour extending over several months, Lady Arthur Grosvenor and her children finally arrived this week near Acat in their picturesque caravan or rather caravan, for there are two of them. They started in April from their place in Cheshire, and drove leisurely

BRITAIN'S WAR ON WHITE PLAGUE

(Halfpenny Recorder) Under the British National Insurance Act is being organized a campaign against tuberculosis as wide as the United Kingdom. Over 87,000,000 has been set apart for capital expenditure in this campaign, and an annual vote of 8,000,000 is contemplated. The preparations for this campaign are inevitably requiring much time and thought. A departmental committee has now made an interim report to what it proposes. They propose to conduct the field campaign on two lines, by both hospital and dispensary agencies. It is estimated that one dispensary will be necessary for each 150,000 of urban and for each 100,000 of rural population, while one bed for each 3,000 of population is regarded as a minimum. Between 225 and 250 dispensaries will be needed to do the plan, and the hospital part of the proposals requires the provision of over 8,000 beds. By utilizing existing buildings in most cases, it is hoped that the dispensaries may be achieved for about 800,000, or 81,250 for each dispensary. The capital cost per bed is placed at £750, which would mean an expenditure of about £600,000,000. These figures of expenditure may seem staggering, but they are anything but that. It is a fact that in a few years the white plague will be established in Canada alone from twelve to fifteen thousand people die every year from tuberculosis, and more over the majority of these deaths occur at the period of life when the victims should be most useful to their families a great problem.

on the charming way in which Mrs. Roy, who was Miss Helen Young of Edmonton, makes their journey in the French capital. Her receptions, which are held on Wednesdays, are usually meets some of the most delightful people in Paris. An English writer dealing with the merits of the Congress of the Chamber of Commerce at the Guildhall, expresses surprise that Colonel Mackay, who represents the Chamber of Commerce in Montreal, although bearing a Scotch name, spoke with a marked French accent. He is a member of the "Scotts in Canada," a great many Scotch officers purchased securities and a whole lot of Scotchmen who were in the province have first settled, and the Franco-Scotts have always exercised an important influence in the government.

The readiness with which the Highlanders who settled in Quebec were absorbed by the French-Canadian neighbors, he says, "is not so difficult to understand when one remembers that the French language is the language of the Normans. The absorption has had some curious results. Cases are not infrequently met on ceremonial occasions, French Canadian village has turned out in the kill, led by the bannocks, and the leading citizens are able to speak a smattering of English."

Canadian hosts and hostesses are now beginning to welcome the friendly invasion from Canada which promises to be of greater volume than ever before. Doctor P. Pelletier, agent general for the province of Quebec, who has recently returned to his charming office, after their honeymoon on the continent, has earned the reputation of being one of the most popular agents in London; and visitors from Canada frequently express themselves as surprised at the amount of trouble he takes to make their visit a success in a social way, and the whole-hearted manner in which he places himself at their disposal.

At their residence in Alexandra court, Doctor and Madame Pelletier entertain many distinguished British and Canadian folk. In Major Benson, the agent general has a very able assistant. Major Benson was educated at Harrow, and has had a distinguished military career. Prior to Doctor Pelletier's marriage, the duties of hostess for the province were discharged delightfully by Mrs. Benson, who continues to extend an ever ready welcome to her many friends from the province at her home in Ennisville Gardens, near Paris, and the closer connection he has with London, take the opportunity of making a trip to Paris. There, Canada is represented by Doctor Philippe Roy, who succeeded M. Hector Fabre.

Most Canadiana from the province considerably increased lately owing to the growing number of Canadians who visit Paris, and the closer connection he has with London, take the opportunity of making a trip to Paris. There, Canada is represented by Doctor Philippe Roy, who succeeded M. Hector Fabre.

LONDON IS SHELTER OF MANY POOR

More Than 100,000 Paupers There on First Day of June

TIMES' LONDON LETTER

Are People of Metropolis Becoming Less Musical?—A Discussion on Labor Disputes—American Women in England's Capital Form a Society

(Times' Special Correspondence) London, June 25—Pauperism is increasing in London, as the latest return of the number of persons receiving relief shows that on Saturday, June 1, there were 104,922 paupers or 23.2 per 1,000 of the population. The total was higher by 2004 than the number relieved on the corresponding day of last year, and was made up of 74,708 in the workhouses, and 30,194 on the outdoor lists, including 698 children boarded out beyond the unions, and 11,884 other children under sixteen years of age.

The increase took place in both classes. The rise in the number of indoor paupers was 1333, and outdoor pauperism was higher by 1699. Twenty-three unions contributed to the increase. In a very short time what is known as the silly season will be upon us, and the columns of the press will be filled with letters describing subjects which are of importance. A question raised today, which may lead to protracted correspondence, is however, interesting, as it concerns the decline of popularity in concerts, and it is now asked: Are we becoming less musical?

It is pointed out that favorite concerts of long-established character, which seemed firmly fixed in public esteem, and always sure of a large and crowded audience in the past, have been faced with dwindling numbers in attendance for some time. In London the change has been most marked. For example, the various popular Sunday concerts, always so crowded years ago, have attracted only moderate support lately, and such favorites as promenade concerts, Sunday symphony concerts, and "star attractions" recitals, have all suffered in like degree.

While so many of the churches are dropping a falling-off in membership, the Society of Friends in this country is steadily increasing for many years and now, for the first time in many generations, the increase is at a greater rate than in the past. The population advanced by 10 per cent, while the increase in membership of the Society of Friends was 19.9 per cent. There is a considerable excess of women over men in the membership of the proportion of women shows a tendency to increase. The figures relating to marriages indicate that there is a considerable excess of men in the marriage market, and so we felt in pride we wanted something of our own to bring you to, and we could not take on ourselves to do so, we established our club house in South Audley Street.

The society thinks seriously of education, and problems, and no lectures and "salons" have been arranged, mainly during the winter season. It was desired next winter to have a course on the philosophy of Herbert Spencer, but as Delia Burns, their chosen lecturer for this subject, was bound for the States this autumn, a series of three lectures was arranged for and the first was delivered this week at the Royal Society of Arts, Adelphi.

A desperate effort is now being made by a group of London firms, who are big employers of labor, to revive interest in an organization founded several months ago to protect capital from the demands of the labor. The organization is known as the London and District Employers' Industrial Federation. When it was started about six months back it was hoped that some 10,000 firms would join. But, although the promises were many, the actual number of firms that have joined is very small. Convancers are now out trying to induce the big firms to combine in this, a last attempt to ride labor.

No More Dangerous Parings

Nobody needs to suffer from corns since Blue-jay was invented. Millions apply this little plaster. The pain stops instantly. Then the B & B wax gently loosens the corn. In 48 hours the whole corn comes out—root, callous and all.

Blue-jay has done that for fifty million corns, without any soreness, any trouble, any delay or discomfort.

Common treatments mean just a brief relief. Blue-jay ends the corn. Paring a corn just removes the top layer. The main part is left to grow. And in myriads of cases paring causes infection.

All those methods are wrong. Soon or late the corn must be removed. Why trifle and delay? Blue-jay removes it in two days. In the meantime you forget it. Please provide this for your own sake. It is the only right way to treat corns.

A in the picture is the soft B & B wax. B protects the corn, stopping the pain at once. C wraps around the toe. It is narrowed to be comfortable. D is rubber adhesive to fasten the plaster on.

"I have been grossly neglected!" he exclaimed, rushing into the office of his solicitor for the seventh time in three days.

"In what way?" asked the solicitor, somewhat wearily.

"My next-door neighbor has declared he will pull my nose next time he meets me. What shall I do about it?"

"Well," said the lawyer, "if he had given the case due deliberation, I should say it, then it will slip through his fingers. Good-bay! My bill will follow in due course."

WHAT IS THE FLAG TO FLY IN CANADA?

Here Are Two Pronouncements on Question Which Has Been Recently Raised

(Vancouver Sun.)

The secretary of state for the colonies has recently advised His Royal Highness the governor-general, that the "Union flag is the national flag of Canada as of all other parts of His Majesty's dominions and may be flown on land by all British subjects; and that the red ensign with the arms of the Dominion of Canada in the fly is intended to be used only by Canadian merchant vessels."

What led up to the issue of this letter by the secretary of state has not been made known to the public. A similar letter was sent Lord Grey, April 12, 1911. It would be interesting to know just what brought about such a deliverance from Downing street. Certainly it was not the result of any discussion which took place there.

We have at Ottawa in Sir Joseph Pope, the under-secretary for foreign affairs, an impetuous champion of the Canadian flag, who recently went so far as to deplore the fact that New Zealand has a flag of her own. Sir Joseph believes that empire means subordination rather than coordination, and regards every attempt by any portion of this empire to assert its individuality in the slightest degree as a proleptic separation. We will not be surprised to find that the letter from the secretary of state for the colonies has been elicited by some expert representations made by our good Sir Joseph.

The chief arms of Downing street in the palmy days of Canada's struggle for responsible government was at its height Downing street has been always been in the right. It was not in the right then. It was egregiously wrong in every more it made. In the end Lord Durham was sent to Canada to find out what was the matter with our eccentric people. Lord Durham found that Downing street was wrong at every point and we Canadians were eminently sane.

That Downing street is in the wrong once more is quite obvious. If by the statement that "the Union flag is the national flag of Canada as of all other parts of His Majesty's dominions" the secretary of state means that Australia and New Zealand are precluded from flying anything else but the Union flag, he certainly does not mean that Australia and New Zealand are precluded from flying their own flags. It is a dreadfully presumptuous statement to make about such a creature as a secretary of state. But truth is mightier than any official speck and must prevail.

What, then, are the facts? In 1902 the design for the commonwealth flag of Australia, selected from 30,000 competing designs, was submitted to the late king and received his personal approval. In 1901 a statute was passed by New Zealand providing for a national flag. The act was reserved for consideration by the imperial authorities, and was afterwards assented to by the king. It provides that the flag "shall be the recognized flag of the colony for general use on shore within the colony and on all vessels" etc. Either the secretary of state means that Australia and New Zealand had no national flag, or he did not. If he intended to negative the right of those dominions to the possession of flags of their own, he has demonstrated his ignorance on the whole subject. If he did not intend such a statement, what did he mean?

He proceeds to assert that "the red ensign with the arms of the Dominion of Canada in the fly is intended to be used only by Canadian merchant vessels." It is a very long since even this right was denied to the colonies and on all vessels" etc. In 1880 an imperial statute was passed to suppress the use of the Canadian flag at sea. The admiralty said we must not have a flag of our own. Downing street evidently took the same position. And no doubt there are those who advise us on land, but the action of the admiralty then met with the same protests that the letters of the secretary of state for the colonies will encounter now.

Sir Charles Tupper, on November 33, 1890, pointed out that "since about 1880 our ships have been encouraged to use the red ensign with the Canadian coat of arms in the fly," and were so known all over the world. In 1891 the governor-general—Lord Stanley—reported to the then colonial secretary that "the flag is one which has come to be considered as the recognized flag of the dominion both ashore and afloat." At the same time the British vice-admiral at Halifax supported the contention in favor of the Canadian flag. Next year the admiralty gave way and issued a warrant authorizing the use of the red ensign with the Canadian coat of arms on board vessels registered in the dominion. No doubt the Joseph Pops of those days were both opposed to granting over this slight concession to Canadian pride.

The same reasons which prevailed with the admiralty to authorize the use of the Canadian arms at sea are equally effective when applied to its use ashore. The flag as we have it today was constructed under the government of Sir John Macdonald about the year 1869. It floated as the official flag of Canada over the Parliament buildings at Ottawa and on all our public buildings, while Sir John Macdonald was in power (1871-4 and 1878-91), during Mr. Mackenzie's premiership (1874-8), throughout the other Conservative regimes (1891-96), and under Sir Wilfrid Laurier (1896-1904).

For a quarter of a century it remained the flag officially recognized by the people of Canada. In 1891 Lord Stanley declared that it had come to be recognized as the flag of the dominion ashore as well as afloat. If that were true in 1891, how much more obviously true it is now after thirteen years more of continuous official usage?

There can be no doubt that if the question of the flag is properly put before the secretary of state for the colonies, an answer will be elicited very different from the one recently given. He would be reminded, for instance, of the fact that at the imperial conference of 1911 the British government agreed that Canadian warships should fly at their jackboats the distinctive flag of the dominion instead of the Union Jack, just as Scotland, under the flag which created the Union Jack retained the right to fly St. Andrew's cross, and England, St. George's cross, and Ireland, St. Patrick's cross, as sea flags, but as distinctive flags of the country from which the ships in each instance came.

The Canadian in no way seeks to supplant or detract from the British flag. It would add a new feature, a fresh expression of loyalty, at the same time asserting the advent of another member to the Empire group. The English flag was originally merely the banner of St. George. The addition of Scotland was signified by the addition of the flag of St. Andrew, and that of Ireland by the flag of St. Patrick. As Australia has signified the spread of empire to her shores by the seven-pointed star, and New Zealand has similarly marked her entry into the family, so Canada has added her own dominion badge. And it is there to stay.

Another Story
(Canadian Defence)

It is gratifying to notice in the columns of the daily press that the Colonial Secretary has issued an official statement regarding the use of the flag. The people of Canada have, by usage, acquired the idea that the red ensign with the Canadian coat-of-arms in the fly is the particular property of our people. This is a mistake. The Union Jack is the one and only flag that a British subject is entitled to use on land. It is the flag of the British Empire. It is the flag that represents the strength and unity of that empire.

It is the flag that embodies in its composition the best traditions and history of our race. It is the flag of equal rights before the law of justice, of civilization and of humanity. It represents the highest ideals of modern civilization, the noblest aspirations of the Anglo-Saxon race and the strength of purity and truth. It is an honor for us to be privileged to wear such a flag. No higher honor can be bestowed on any citizen in the whole world.

The red ensign which is most frequently seen in Canada is the special flag of the Canadian merchant marine, and it is out of place when used on land, except for decorative purposes. It may be used by a number of other British flags, such as the blue ensign, white ensign or flag of the merchant marine of other dominions in decorating interiors for some special occasions; but it should never be flown from a Jack-staff on land.

FROM CANADIAN DEFENCE.

RACING FOR A WIFE

Among some of the ruder tribes of men, where physical excellence counts for the chief merit, the custom of running races for a bride has always been a favorite one.

Among the Huzarrah, a people of Asia, the suitors of a maiden, usually nine in number, appear in a field all unarmed, but mounted on the best horses available for the purpose. The bride herself, on a beautiful Turkoman horse, surrounded by her relatives, anxiously surveys the group of lovers.

The girl has the advantage of a certain start, which she avails herself of to gain a sufficient distance from the crowd to enable her to manage her steed with freedom, so as to assist her pursuer, her lover whom she prefers.

When satisfied with her position she turns round to the impatient suitors and stretches out her arm to them. Each of the eager lovers darts like the unhooded hawk in pursuit of the fugitive dove. The savannah is generally twelve miles long and three in width, and as the horsemen speed across the plain the favored lover becomes apparent by the efforts of the maiden to avoid all others who approach her.

On a certain occasion, after two hours' racing, the number of pursuers was reduced to four, who were all together and gradually gaining on the pursued. With them was the favorite, but the horse suddenly fell, and the girl turned anxiously to perceive with dismay the hapless position of her lover.

Each of the more fortunate leaders, eager and anticipatory, bending his head on his horse's mane about at the top of his neck, then the pursued, a sudden turn and lashing her horse made a fury, darted across their path and made the other lovers. The three others immediately checked their careers, but in their hurry to turn back two of the horses were dashed furiously against each other, so that both steeds and riders rolled over on the plain.

The maiden laughed, for she thought she could easily elude the single horseman, and flew to the point where her lover was. But her only pursuer, who rarely mounted and so not easily shaken off, making a last desperate effort dashed forward against the maiden and, stretching out his arm, almost secured the unwilling prize; but she, bending her head to her horse's neck, eluded his grasp and wheeled off again. Ere the dismounted horse man could again approach her her lover's arm was around her waist, and amid the shouts of the spectators they turned toward the starting point.

The Gillette is the ONLY Adjustable Razor

For a Close Shave
For a Light Shave

No two men have beards and faces just alike—and the same man wants sometimes a light, sometimes a close shave. The adjustable Gillette is the ONLY Razor which meets these varied needs.

The lower sketch shows the position of the blade when the handle of the Gillette is screwed up tight, gripping the blade close against the guard. This gives a light shave, and suits a soft beard or a tender skin perfectly.

In the upper sketch the screw handle has been loosened about a quarter turn. This, as you can see, allows the blade edge to spring away a little from the guard, and "take hold" more. In this position the wonderfully keen Gillette blade will shave the stiffest beard closer than the barber dare shave it.

Probably an adjustment between these two will suit you best. But whatever kind of shave you want, the adjustable Gillette will give it.

At your Druggist's, Hardware Dealer's or Jeweler's, buy a Gillette—you'll enjoy it. Standard Sets $5.00. Pocket Editions $5.00 to $6.00. Combination Sets $6.50.

GREEKS LOSE CONTEST OF TEN INNINGS

Notes of the Game. Those were regrettable errors that Fraser and Williams had, and they lost the game. Some pitcher that Winkler. Better luck the next time, Wink. The blonde can certainly bat, too. That was a nice two batters in the ninth. Connolly is not playing steady ball like the Greeks need to win. Some think Riley better at short than Fraser. Fraser's return, but then the St. John boy cannot be equalled in right. It is reported that Happy Lott, the captain and first baseman of the Houston team, has resigned his position and will not play any more this season. Happy was the brains of the Reds and was certainly a good ball player. He will be greatly missed in league circles. Houston Attraction Again Today. Houston will meet the Greeks again this afternoon on the Marathon grounds, the game to start at 3 o'clock. All Sweet will pitch. It was announced yesterday that Sweet had been ordered to report to the Des Moines team, but the Marathon management said that there is as yet no definite word about the matter and Sweet himself says he is not sure that he will leave the Marathons at present. "McGovern is to stay here," was another announcement made by the manager of the local team. The fans will be glad to learn that there will be no change in the staff as far as that is far as the battery staff is concerned. THOSE CHILDHOOD SCENES. He had asked an unsuspecting friend to take a cross-country walk, and had picked a route that ran through the meadow, visited scenes of his childhood. His fond recollection presented every last one of them to view—the orchard, the meadow, the deep-tangled wildwood, and every loved spot which his infancy knew. Gladly he pointed to a very small mud-pool. "Would you believe it, when I was a boy I used to bathe in that mud-hole?" "Yes," answered his friend, wearily, "and it doesn't look as though they had changed the water since."

MAN OVERBOARD

Sailor Rescued From Death And Fined For Drunkenness

To have been rescued from the waters of the harbor, half drowned and then to be arrested and fined for drunkenness, was the record of Benjamin Smith, a sailor off the S. S. Ocano which arrived here yesterday. The steamer arrived from Halifax on her way to the south and docked at the Pettigall wharf. Smith came ashore last night. At an early hour this morning Policeman Alexander heard cries for help coming from Moran's slip. He rushed to the cap of the wharf and saw a man struggling in the water. Robert Wood, a watchman in Haley Bros. factory also heard the cries and ran to the assistance of the policeman. The two men rescued the sailor, who was exhausted. They brought him to the top of the wharf with the assistance of a rope. Smith was arraigned in the police court this morning and was fined $5 or thirty days in jail for drunkenness. His clothes were soaking wet and he presented a sorrowful spectacle. His Honor told him that if he could make arrangements to get on board the ship, which sails this afternoon, he would let him go.

NIECE OF MAJOR ASHBURNHAM OF FREDERICTON BECOMES NUN

The New York Herald of Wednesday had the following cable:

"The Earl of Ashburnham announced tonight that his only child, Lady Katherine, who was presented at court two years ago and is one of the finest horsewomen in England, has entered the Sacred Heart Convent at Reichenheim to become a nun. She is heiress to great estates in Northampton, Sussex and Wales."

The Earl of Ashburnham is a brother of Major the Hon. Thomas Ashburnham, of Fredericton, who is well known in military circles throughout the province. He is now in Sussex with the 26th N. B. Dragoons.

CAMP SUSSEX NOW DESERTED

Stillness Reigns Where All Was Activity—Commandant Well Pleased With Men—Some Observations

(Special to Times)

Sussex, July 6.—A deserted appearance is presented today by the big military camping grounds which, during the last fortnight, have sheltered the citizen soldiers of New Brunswick. There are only about 200 men on the grounds, and many of these will have left by tonight. Each train east and west since yesterday afternoon has borne its quota of redcoats returning to their homes, happy in the thought that they have participated in making the camp of 1912 one of the most gratifying successes of two years, and pleased in the knowledge that their two weeks' training have been most profitable and interesting.

It was the largest camp in many years. The big grounds were constantly alive with boisterous animation, and the quiet of today is in marked contrast to the activity and brightness which prevailed since the opening of the camp two weeks ago. No more are seen, the hundreds of uniformed men marching, wheeling, and drilling about the lower field, trotting, marching, and faithfully following the guidance of their riders. The villa of tents has once more passed from view. The long straight tented streets of the three thousand and more soldiers are known only by the narrow faded spot in the grassward on which, during the last fortnight, have stood the canvas dwelling of several thousand men, and this is practically all that is left to remind one that these big grounds have been the home of such a vast host engaged in the annual drill.

Well Pleased

That Colonel W. H. Humphrey, camp commandant, was well pleased with the camp of 1912, is quite apparent from the following valetudinary issued in yesterday's general orders:

"The camp commandant desires to express his appreciation of the manner in which all duties have been performed during the annual training this year, the excellent spirit which has prevailed, and the exemplary behavior of the troops, both in and out of camp."

"This reflects credit on all concerned, and he begs to convey to the officers of the camp his best wishes for the officers commanding all units, his hearty thanks for the zeal which has been displayed in carrying out the orders and instructions which have been promulgated in connection with the same."

The announcement of the camp opening is awaited with interest by the townspeople of Sussex. It is an important event in their lives, and the streets with the noise of wagons to and from the camp grounds; uniformed men free from the restrictions of the progress of the camp are decidedly attractive and worth while scenes.

Some of the more enterprising of the townspeople plan to make an honest dollar through the camp, and succeed for the most part. Their purpose is evidenced in the construction of temporary shops, or restaurants near the entrance to the camp, in addition to the others which are conducted under special privilege in the confines. Knowing the weakness of the soldier boys for ice cream, fruit, candies, cakes, etc., and other delicacies which are not on the menu at the mess table, the owners of these stands stood heavily in these lines and there is a constant crowd about them making purchases.

Two of the men in camp, both from St. John, Troopers Fred. Rodgers and Winn O'Brien, of 26th N. B. Dragoons, will not come home with the rest of the boys. They were taken to the militia hospital at Halifax for being kicked in the face by a horse and came nearly losing an eye, while O'Brien has blood poisoning in his hand.

With the exception of a rear party from the Service Corps, the rest of the St. John boys have returned to their homes.
