ST. JOHN, N. B., SEPTEMBER 28, 1911.

The St. John Evening Times is printed at 27 and 28 Canterbury Street every evening (Sundays excepted) by the St. John Times Printing and Publishing Co., Ltd., a company incorporated under the Joint-Stock Companies Act.

THE EVENING TIMES THE DAILY TELEGRAPH

New Brunswick's Independent newspapers. These papers advocate: British connection Honesty in public life Measures for the material progress and moral advancement of our great Dominion. No graft! No deals! "The Shamrock, Thistle, Rose entwine The Maple Leaf forever."

EARL GREY Canada has been singularly fortunate in her Governors-General, and none of them has won a higher place in the estimation of the people than Earl Grey, whose term of office of nearly seven years is now drawing to a close.

Earl Grey, on his arrival in Canada, set himself to the task of learning as much as possible about the extent, the resources and the people of the country. He has travelled more widely over Canada than any of his predecessors.

Mr. Crockett's friends are making a vigorous effort to rally support for him as a candidate for a position in the Borden cabinet. But Mr. Fowler and Dr. Daniel also have friends. It is a pretty light.

THE HOODLUMS REBUKED Partisan rancor makes hoodlums of men. In some cases nature has left little to be done to effect the change.

At several places in Canada during the past week Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been burned in effigy by the hoodlums. How it must gall this type of Conservative to know that, when Earl Grey desired to say something complimentary to Mr. E. L. Borden, he could do no more than express his confidence that Mr. Borden would "continue the high traditions of Sir Wilfrid Laurier."

Thus, in the opinion of the Governor General, himself a British statesman of high rank, Mr. Borden, the "great leader" of the Conservatives, may very properly follow the example of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, a man "without selfish ambition," a man "of high character," and one who "fulfills all the highest ideals of the word gentleman."

How this must grate upon the feelings of the hoodlums.

PRISON FARMS Com. Donovan and others who are interested in the project of a prison farm for this city, or for the province, will be interested in the account in today's Times of the Ontario prison farm at Guelph.

It is evident that the institution is doing excellent work, and similar institutions are needed in other provinces. The Toronto World has this to say of the Guelph farm, of which Hon. Mr. Hanna told the story to the Canadian Club of St. John some months ago:—"Humanitarian work never got a greater boost than that which has been and is being accomplished by the Ontario government in the matter of prison reform. Less than two years ago the experiment of a prison farm at Guelph was put into operation. It has been an unqualified success, and yesterday Sir James Whitney laid the cornerstone of a splendid new administration building, but of stone cut from the quarries on the farm by the prisoners themselves. A great work has been done at the Central Prison Farm at Guelph, a great work is now being done, and a still greater work will be done there in future. Things are shaping that way now. The experiment stage has passed, and the worth of the institution which owes its existence in large part to the efforts of Hon. W. J. Hanna, the provincial secretary, has been proven."

CONVICT LABOR In the state of New Hampshire, the question of good roads is under discussion, and there is some talk of adopting the convict labor system in highway construction. It is held that by pursuing this course a great deal could be accomplished at comparatively small cost. A leading official, discussing the question, expressed the view that the jail prisoners should be employed building new roads, and points out that in the south, where convict labor is employed, some of the best roads in the country are to be found, while the cost of their construction was but a slight burden on the taxpayer. It is argued that employment of this nature would be good for the convicts themselves, for they would be engaged in healthy outdoor labor, would be well fed, and would get back so much of their strength and vigor that there would be less tendency for them to relapse into drunkenness and idleness. It is further pointed out that in a number of states the labor of convicts has been utilized in the construction of public buildings, and that in New Hampshire a new ward for tuberculosis patients at the county farm is being erected largely by prison labor. If money can be saved to the state by employing this labor upon public buildings, more could be saved by employing these men in the construction of new roads, and the effect upon the men themselves would be beneficial.

ST. JOHN PLAYGROUNDS It is stated that Mayor Frink will shortly take up seriously the question of playgrounds for the children of St. John. This is a matter concerning which the Times has had much to say, and it is also one concerning which there is an over-growing public interest. The work done for a number of years past by the playgrounds committee of the Women's Council and by the Every Day Club has shown the value of supervised playgrounds, and their importance as a part of the educational system. This work, however, has been as nothing compared with what should be done, and with what is done in very many cities. There are two problems to be solved. One is to provide neighborhood playgrounds of small size for the little children. The other is to provide a large general playground for the older boys and girls. It is safe to say that, if a petition were circulated tomorrow, a very large majority of the people of the city would declare themselves in favor of systematic public expenditure to provide playgrounds in all parts of the city. If such action were taken there would be far less complaint about the actions of bad boys and girls on the streets, and fewer boys would be summoned to the police court.

DOW JONES & CO. A REAL FISHERMAN

In the Catskill foothills a New York travelling man who was making a trip overland passed an old man who was fishing with hook and line in a small stream. As the drummer drove by in a buggy the old man never took his eyes off the bobber in the water. When the travelling man returned late in the afternoon he was greatly surprised to see the old man still in the same position with his eyes glued on the bobber. "Hello, uncle!" he shouted. "Any luck today?" Without taking his gaze off the cork which rested on the surface of the placid stream, the old man replied—"Had a nibble 'bout noon."

HOMEWARD BOUND

She was sitting at a window open Which looked out to the sea, And I wondered as I saw her waiting, Who the happy one could be? What a perfect look of patient longing, Of love which shone so clear, And I prayed the Lord for his safe coming, For I felt she knew no fear.

And I saw his children playing thither, The sea a sailor's life! Not the bravest heart the sea can muster, Is brave as a sailor's wife! And I asked the little children playing, Their sire who might he be, And when he sailed away they paused, And wondering looked at me.

"Oh! bring you word from our dear father!" Oh! tell us where he be? My mother says for us he's watching; But can't come o'er the sea!"

And now I know, not earthly union, She waits so patiently; But dreaming of her own home coming, On shores of eternity.

HE DIDN'T LIKE FLYING

W. A. Honck, the well-known aviator, in September Canada Monthly (formerly Canada-West), how it feels to us on an airship, and narrates some of his experiences in the early days of aerial navigation.

"I remember one old fellow who tried to ascend, his first, in a captive vessel and came half way over the side within the first hundred yards with a demand to be 'let down,' he says.

"Leave me down, darn ye," he called. "I don't like it. I'm skait."

"The operator at the drum gave no attention, and in another half minute he was hanging over the side again, this time half way, reaching underneath with a big jack-knife.

"Leave me down," he thundered, or I'll cut the string."

"They 'let him down' at once. It was his first go at flying, as I have said, and very likely it also was his last. But I never forgot the excited anticipation of that crowd over the prospect of seeing him sent away to sure disaster, untethered and untended—nor the disappointment, amounting to disgust, when he was revealed back to them and stepped out, sick but unharmed."

PROGRESS ON PRISON FARM IN ONTARIO

Laying of Corner Stone of New Building in Guelph

MUCH WORK IS DONE

Roads, Bridges and Lime Kilns Built and Quarries Worked—Plan Works Well in Keeping Men to Recover Standing

(Toronto Mail and Empire.)
Guelph, Ont., Sept. 25.—In the presence of a gathering of men representing the entire people of this province, including members of Parliament, members of the Legislature, judges and justices of the peace, Sir James Whitney this afternoon laid the corner-stone of the Administration Building of the new group which will form the new Central Prison. More than a year ago the province purchased 840 acres of land near this city for the purpose of establishing a model prison farm, the first of its kind.

Those who saw the property a year ago and saw it again today, could not help but be impressed with the tremendous work already accomplished, and that to be carried on in the future. Of remarkable interest also are the prisoners who are giving out their sentences here. No prison paler marks their faces, no slouching to and from prison cells. Instead, they bear their heads proudly, and on their faces is the clear complexion of those who live healthy, outdoor lives.

To Ameliorate Conditions

Before the corner-stone of the Administration Building was laid there was placed in it a box containing the Toronto and Guelph newspapers, coins, and the Canadian Almanac. Sir James Whitney, with a silver trowel, with which he laid the stone. In speaking briefly after the ceremony, Sir James stated that the Government proposed to put into operation a scheme or idea which was not new or startling, but which would have as its foundation the desire on the part of the government and the people of the province to ameliorate the conditions of the men who had broken the law and, according to the law, had to be punished.

So far as the men were concerned, those serving sentences at Guelph were sent down for minor offences, instead of the more serious crimes, which necessitated the infliction of just and necessary punishment, which was inflicted with due regard for the welfare and happiness of the criminals in the future, so that when it came time for them to go out from the institution they should have to carry as a handicap as possible. The scheme, he said, should not be confused with any idea in some countries, where the men, mostly women, sent bouquets of flowers to prisoners charged with as serious crimes as murder. It was a common sense plan, and called for ordinary consideration of the most elementary fair play, so that the men would have every assistance in their efforts to redeem themselves.

Results are Good

Hon. W. J. Hanna stated to the gathering that what they saw on the grounds was an indication of how the government was trying to carry out the new system of dealing with minor offenders. The expectations of those in charge of the work had been met over and over again, and the results were better than they had dreamed of, and there was a sense of security as to the future which could not have been possible had it not been for the success of the past. The merit and classification of the work done must be recognized, he said, as well as the fact that there was grown on the farm as fine a crop of vegetables as could be raised anywhere.

He referred especially to the excellent work done by the parole board. He was anxious to avoid claiming too much for what had been done, or what the Government was trying to do. He didn't want people to think that because the institution was succeeding that it was to be thrown into a state institution, like some of the Canadian prisons, like the penitentiary at Kingston. The men serving sentences there were minor offenders, serving terms averaging eight months and a class quite distinct from those in the state and dominion prisons.

He again praised the parole board, and expressed his thanks to Sir Allen Aylesworth, who as Minister of Justice, fell in with the idea and gave the Provincial Government and the parole board every assistance.

Mr. Justice Tiesler, chairman of the parole board, expressed the opinion that the wisdom of the Provincial Government never had been better exercised than in selecting, not himself, but his colleagues, on the parole board. It was a delightful work, he said. The men who were in the institutions were sent there for minor offences, and were largely first offenders. It was lamentable, however, how many of the men were between the ages of 18 and 30. The movement was one of the most commendable steps that any provincial government in the dominion ever had undertaken.

One difficult problem in connection with the work, he said, was not just to punish the men and turn them out unclaimed, but to do curative as well as punitive work. That was one of the salient features of the establishment of the farm, where, by acts of kindness, the men were turned out with some ray of hope, so that they might redeem themselves and become respectable citizens, instead of being sent back with no encouragement.

Look After the Men

While they were doing good work with the parole board, some hundred cases having been dealt with, the institution first was started, it needed only one element to make it complete. There should be some provision made by which the men, after their discharge, could be looked after. One association in the province which did excellent work along that line was the Salvation Army; but he thought that some official of the government should be appointed to carry out the work, to see that the men secured employment, and to exercise watchful care over them. In that way it would be a greater success.

In closing the ceremony, Sir James Whitney, on behalf of the people of the province, expressed the sense of obligation which the Government had for the parole board, mentioning the names of the members.

Those who composed the board, he said, were well adapted and equipped for the work, both in information and ideals. They did their work with a sense of public service, and not for fee or reward. He thanked them for the help of the government and the people of the province, to thank the members of the board for having taken up the duty, and for the remarkably successful manner in which it had been carried out.

The visitors then adjourned to the work shop now under construction, where luncheon was served. At one end of the building there was arranged an exhibit of fine vegetables, butter and other farm products as could be seen at any exhibition, all grown by the prisoners on the prison farm. In addition there were samples of the stone quarried on the property, lime burned by the prisoners in the kilns and fertilizer produced as a by-product.

During the afternoon the members of the party walked or were driven over the grounds. Everyone was most enthusiastic in his praise of the work already accomplished. The bridge over the Speed River, built entirely by the men, is a three-span stone and concrete structure, the equal of which cannot be found in any county in Ontario. The roads are models. It is the intention of the government to have all prison roads, as well as those surrounding the prison property, model in every way. The place has been fenced and 20 acres of land on a high hill has been planted in a young orchard. There also is a nursery, where the young trees are cared for.

Excellent progress has been made on the quarries and the gravel pits, from which building material is hauled. Enough lime is made there already to supply all the public institutions of the province, and the supply of building stone is inexhaustible. A narrow gauge railway has been built on the grounds in order to facilitate the carriage of building material, and everywhere there is great activity.

Far more interesting than the great change already made on the grounds, however, are the prisoners themselves—"the boys" as they are called. They are all happy and contented, satisfied that after serving three or four or six months, or even two years, they will be discharged with a chance to become better citizens, healthy, strong and happy determined to lead better lives and to show the world that the trust placed in them while serving their sentences has not been misplaced.

REMARKABLE RAILWAY BLOCKADE.

Particulars of a remarkable railway blockade of which perhaps few in the present generation have ever heard are given in the September Railway Magazine. It occurred in March, 1849 at Clifton Junction, about five miles from Manchester, Eng., where the East Lancashire Railway united with the Manchester and Liverpool lines of the Lancashire and Yorkshire system.

The East Lancashire Company's trains passed over the Lancashire and Yorkshire line between Clifton and Manchester, and a misunderstanding had arisen as to the means adopted in ascertaining the amount of toll to be paid by the former in respect of such traffic. It was maintained on the one hand that the trains were entitled to run through to Manchester, but the Lancashire and Yorkshire directors, on the other hand, ordered them to be stopped at Clifton Junction, so that their officials might check the number of passengers for whom they were to take toll. There was undoubtedly a good deal of delay between the two railways in regard to destinations beyond Manchester, and it culminated in a veritable "blockade" on the part of the Lancashire and Yorkshire, "carrying out a threat, of which due notice had been given, a huge bulk of timber was placed across its own down line close to the rails forming the junction with the East Lancashire. Two heavy iron cross-bars were driven into the permanent way to secure the obstruction, and to complete the same a train of six coaches were drawn up in the rear. The East Lancashire "through" train was signalled to stop to enable the Lancashire and Yorkshire collectors to examine tickets; but, with a view to checkmate this manoeuvre, the passengers had been deprived of their tickets at an intermediate station.

During their own course the East Lancashire proceeded to remove the barrier, and then attempted to force the blockading train forward on the main line. The Lancashire and Yorkshire retaliated by planting a second engine in front of the train, and matters were further complicated by the arrival of a heavy East Lancashire mineral train, which eventually stopped traffic on the Lancashire and Yorkshire up to Manchester. Meantime, passenger trains were arriving by noon there were eight in all at a standstill upon up and down lines. Eventually the "blockade" was "raised," the question dispute having apparently been amicably settled.

Restraint and liberty go hand in hand in the development of character—indeed without the former the latter is impossible.

OUTRAGE IN HAMPTON

To the Editor of The Times: Sir—On the occasion of the "reception" at Hampton last week, tendered G. W. Fowler, member-elect, the merry-makers assembled at the Wayside Inn, the abode of their guest, and there gave vent to their feelings by the burning (in effigy) of Sir Wilfrid Laurier by the hands of old when shorn of his noble power, had become a pander to Philistine revelry.

From the party's point of view the scene was a very imposing one, and reflected great credit on the master minds that conceived it. It certainly had an edifying effect on the youthful spectators of the pyre, and a source of reward to all who contributed to the display. As the smoldering flames with their roasting and ascending, their resplendent illuminated the viages of the administering holders. Happiness, ecstacy, mirth, mirth, ecstacy, and unfeigned pleasure dispersed the gloom that haunted their faces the day previous.

The melodrama was suggestive of the feelings of the element, who in frantic delight evoked their pleasure as the "smile" toppled into the flames. The master of ceremonies, from whose fertile brain the idea emanated, stood resplendent in that glory which is the reward of all noble achievements.

How his actions will be accepted in general will be judged by the degree of success he will attain in his canvass for the coveted vote necessary from Longfellow. Allowance may be made for the dancing devils who expressed their (natural) delight at the scene, but what one would understand is how any man with even a partial sense of decorum, or last-voiced chivalry which is a part of his education, could endorse or applaud such a disgusting farce. (It might be G. W. F. could explain it.)

A fitting question from Longfellow's headquarters might express it: "Hidago said—Behold the fagots I have brought, And now let my statement be as naught; Grant me one more request, one last desire, With my own hands to light the funeral fire."

Alas, poor deposed knight, more exalted in the eyes of god than ever. It were well that your trustees instructed their children to emulate your character instead of your smile in effigy. Fate has denied you victory, but will bless you with a glorious immortality.

RECO. MISFORTUNES. Elizabeth, the poet-queen of Roumania—"Do not be proud of having borne your misfortune. Can you have done otherwise? A very pertinent question. Inasmuch as we can in no way evade our misfortunes there is, no cause for pride in meeting them. But the spirit in which we meet them is in our own control. In that there may be cause for pride or for shame."

By taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound... The following letter from Mrs. Orville Rock will prove how untrue it is for women to submit to the dangers of a surgical operation when it may be avoided by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She was four weeks in hospital and came home suffering worse than before.

Here is her own statement. "I suffered very severely with a displacement of the uterus, and at last sent me to a long time. My physician treated me for seven months without much relief, and at last sent me to Ann Arbor for an operation. I was there four weeks and came home suffering worse than before. My mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. Today I am well and strong and do all my own housework. I owe my health to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and advise my friends who are afflicted with any female complaint to try it."—Mrs. ORVILLE ROCK, R. R. No. 5, Paw Paw, Michigan.

If you are ill do not drag along until an operation is necessary, but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For thirty years it has been the standard remedy for women's ills, and has positively restored the health of thousands of women. Why don't you try it?

SEEKING CAUSE OF FRENCH BATTLESHIP EXPLOSION

The French battleship Liberté which blew up and sank at Toulon the other day with a loss of nearly 800 French men.

Toulon, Sept. 27.—(Canadian Press)—The French battleship Liberté, which blew up and sank at Toulon the other day with a loss of nearly 800 French men, was a victim of a "B" powder that was responsible for the explosion. The cause, he said, was to be sought elsewhere. He warmly congratulated the captain of the battleship Republic for his presence of mind in fleeing his magnificent ship as he heard the first explosion on the Liberté, saying that he was quite at a loss to understand why the commander of the battleship, Brennus had once been exposed for similar inactivity.

FRANCE AND GERMANY BOTH PUT GREAT ARMIES IN THE FIELD

Berlin, Sept. 28.—The numerical strength of the German army is fixed by a law which is reconsidered every seven years. It bears a fixed ratio to the civil population. Germany is divided into twenty-two army corps districts, besides the corps of guards, but the troops available with their immense reserves number in all more than 2,000,000 men. The French army is divided into 150 divisions, each with 150 guns and a brigade of cavalry, say 45,000 combatants, besides their immense reserves number in all more than 2,000,000 men. The French army is divided into 150 divisions, each with 150 guns and a brigade of cavalry, say 45,000 combatants, besides their immense reserves number in all more than 2,000,000 men.

It is also distributed locally in "military regions" in France and one in Africa. The regions which lie on the eastern frontier have troops maintained at a higher strength and ready to march out at six hours' notice. The French army can place twenty army corps of the same strength as the German in the field. France, however, must also watch the forces of Austria and Italy, especially the former, since the unlikely dispute about the Austrian title to the Balkan provinces threw the Austrian army into the greatest alliance with Berlin.

MUSICAL STARS START JOURNEY ACROSS OCEAN

Opera and Concert Folk to New York for the Season's Opening—News of the Musical World (Times' Special Correspondence) New York, Sept. 28.—The annual trip from Europe to America has been started by the musical stars who are to provide the sensations of the coming season. First among the celebrities to reach this country after a foreign sojourn were Jose Ovejuna and the Metropolitan Opera Company's leading sopranos, but recently arrived on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie.

William J. Guard, press representative, and F. G. Coppin, secretary to General Manager Giulio Gatti-Casazza of the Metropolitan, were others included in the sailing list of this liner. And from now on one or more of those famed in the realm of music.

The Paris Friedrich Wilhelm, who left Cherbourg on the 17th, has among other distinguished passengers, Ricardo Martin of the Metropolitan opera force, Mrs. Martin and little Miss Martin, who though but eleven years old, is a remarkable linguist and musician.

The Kaiser Wilhelm II has Geraldine Farrar, said to have recovered her trim figure; Antonio Scotti, the baritone; Pasquale Amato, now leading baritone at the Metropolitan Opera House, and Gilda Longoni, soprano. Alice Nial is another singer who must have been in the United States before the month's close to begin her concert tour, opening at the Metropolitan on October 1.

Andreas Dippel, who is the directing force of the Philadelphia-Chicago Opera Company, will be here next Wednesday, and he will bring several contracts recently made abroad for the American appearance of several singers never before heard here.

An English mezzo-soprano, Theodora Orledge, who is said to have the first operatic roles with success in many leading houses on the other side, has been added to the list of the Metropolitan. She will be among the arrivals scheduled for early October.

Caruso and one or two other stars will be slow to depart from Europe, but the majority of singers, pianists, violinists and other instrumentalists who are to have fairly long seasons here must be on hand at latest, soon after October 1.

Otto Weil, business representative of the Metropolitan Opera House, says he heard the great tenor sing a few weeks ago, just before he sailed, according to Mr. Weil, Caruso's voice is as beautiful in quality as ever, and he declares he is now able to sing an entire role without fatigue.

There have been so many conflicting reports as to the exact vocal condition of that great tenor that it is difficult to be fully satisfied as to his present ability until he has been heard in a complete performance of the part that he is to sing. He is to appear at the Metropolitan in "The Girl of the Golden West" on the season's opening night, November 18, would indicate that he and his management feel he is fit to undergo the demands of the twenty-two evening work.

Having left his conductor, Henry E. Hadley, to the new orchestra being formed in San Francisco, the directors of the Seattle Symphony are casting about for a suitable successor. Arnold Volpe, of New York is one of several already spoken to as Henry P. Schmitt, first violin of the New York Philharmonic society.

The Mendelssohn Choir, of Toronto, whose admirable choral singing astonished New Yorkers three years ago, is to give another concert in the big city this winter and may be heard in several other cities en route.

Perfect Porridge in 15 Minutes

SOME housewives don't believe it. That's because they have not tried Tillson's Rolled Oats.

True, you can't do it with some rolled oats, which are so unevenly rolled that they must be cooked all night to become digestible.

But you can do it with Tillson's. Tillson's Oats consist of perfect flakes rolled to a filmy thinness. Every flake is whole, unbroken and of uniform size. The meal or flour is retained in the flake instead of being spilled out. 15 minutes on the stove cooks them through and through.

And the aroma and appetizing appearance of the porridge made from Tillson's far surpasses those of any other porridge you ever ate.

Try Tillson's tomorrow.

MEETING OF WATER BOARD WAS LIVELY

Criticism of Some Matters and Methods—Contractors' Deposits to Be Returned—Mount Pleasant Water Service

There were some lively passages between Aldermen Scully and Ald. C. T. Jones at the regular session of the water and sewerage board yesterday afternoon over the matter of work to be done in Carleton place, and the contractors' deposits to be returned.

The engineer said that he would make no change in his recommendation of the contractors to risk their lives in a fresh-dug, unbraced ditch. It was one of the objections to the contractors' work that the contractors would not fulfill the conditions required, but were always coming in to torment the board, always for extra work and so on.

Ald. Wignone presided at the meeting and there were present Aldermen Hayes, Scully, C. T. Jones, Wilson and Elkin. Mayor Fink, the engineer and common clerk.

The common clerk reported that no tenders had been sent in for excavation, cartage and backfill for water mains in Sydney, Mecklenburg and Princess streets and for a sewer in St. John street.

Ald. C. T. Jones said it would be better to hold up the work over and over, than to let the contractor do it so badly. He moved that the job stand over after the first of the year.

The engineer said there was no rush for the work and he had to have his men start at once on the new pipe in Union street, west side, to give more fire protection to the sheds.

Ald. Scully had just come in and on learning of the motion he objected strenuously to the St. John street work being held up. Houses were left untenanted for a sewer and the city was threatened with a suit if the nuisance was not relieved.

BROAD STREET SITE AGREED ON

Safety Board Committee Favor Application of Company in States to Establish a Canning Industry Here

If the suggestions and recommendations in the report of a sub-committee of the safety board appointed to deal with the request of the Franklin Baker Co., of Philadelphia for definite information in the way of providing a site for the plant which they propose erecting in this city, are looked upon with favor at the meeting of the common council it is expected that the new industry will be established here, in Broad street.

The sub-committee visited the site and report favorably. They decided that it would be suitable for the establishment of the industry, and they favor the granting of the application of the American company under certain restrictions and conditions.

The chairman of the sub-committee, Ald. J. B. Jones, was asked this morning by a Times reporter in reference to the matter. He replied that while there seemed a disposition on the part of some of the members of the council not to grant lots for building purposes along the harbor front, the members of this sub-committee felt that, as the board of trade for some time had been making efforts to induce manufacturers to establish here, no danger was apprehended in establishing industries in the zone referred to.

Into first long pants is a ticklish jump for the young man. If he is required to go into a suit of men's clothing it is embarrassing.

Just as much so as if you were required to grow a mustache over-night.

In the Oak Hall Clothing Store no such transmutation is required. The next thing after knickerbockers is Oak Hall Young Men's Clothing. It is long-trouser clothing, it is manly clothing — but YOUNG MANLY clothing.

Not so severe as the clothing that the mature business man wears; on the same general lines, of course, but YOUTHFUL.

We make a specialty of that kind of clothing and have it in very large variety for fall and winter.
