MONCTON SUFFERS FROM AN EPIDEMIC OF BURGLARIES

Wholesale Establishment Robbed Monday Night of Money and Goods to the Value of $50 - Many Other Robberies Reported.

MONCTON, April 22.—An epidemic of small burglaries has been prevalent in the city of late, a number of business establishments both in the city and suburbs having been broken into. While none of the burglaries have been very serious and have indications that they are the work of amateurs, the police have been unable to find the perpetrators of any. The most serious burglary took place Monday night when the F. E. Reid Company's wholesale establishment was broken into and goods and money stolen, aggregating fifty dollars. The burglars made a thorough search of the entire premises, including the warehouse which was gone through from basement to second story, and which was lit up by a candle which the thieves carried with them. In the private office the cash drawer was broken open and nineteen dollars and some cents were taken. Recently, Mack's carriage factory was broken into but nothing stolen. McDonald's Music Store was burglarized a short time ago. Conductor E. S. Vye who sustained a broken jaw and other injuries in a recent accident at Derby Junction, is now in a serious condition from complications which have set in as a result of the injuries sustained in the wreck. Yesterday for a time his life was despaired of and medical attention was summoned from Moncton and New Brunswick. He is reported somewhat better today. County Court Judge Wells returned home last night from Bermuda where he has been spending several weeks.

HIS INTERNAL ORGANS WERE ALL MISPLACED

Abnormal Conditions Found in the Body of a St. Louis Judge.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 22.—Surgeons in John Hopkins' Hospital during an autopsy of the body of Judge E. McKelghan, of St. Louis, were astonished to discover that instead of the usual setting of the organs, those in the body were scattered about in the most unbelievable way. His heart was turned in a position the reverse of its normal shape of a horse shoe and the liver, his kidneys were united by a ligament in the shape of a horse shoe and the gall bladder on top. Many of the smaller organs were in a state of congestion and fatty substance. How Judge McKelghan lived with such a strange transposition of his body organs for years is a mystery. He was 62 years old and was considered one of the ablest lawyers of St. Louis. His brain did not seem to suffer through the state of his organs and he was able to eat heartily until within a few weeks of March 1, when he was brought to John Hopkins' Hospital in a critical condition. He had become seriously ill in St. Louis in February and his physicians were quite unable to fashion his symptoms. He was finally brought to John Hopkins' Hospital where an operation was performed during which discoveries were made of such a startling nature that the family consented to the autopsy which was performed almost immediately after death.

SENATOR ROSS TALKS ON SENATE REFORM

TORONTO, April 22.—In a speech full of pertinent facts, Senator Hon. Geo. W. Ross contended in his address to the Canadian Club last night that the Senate of Canada might better be returned by making it a more initiative body than it is at present, rather than by the method of altering the appointment of its members. "There is not," he said, "as far as I can see, any urgency for Senate reform for it has not been proved that the Senate has violated any international principle. What we want in the Senate is men of the highest judicial and business qualifications that the country can offer."

PARIS, April 22.—Emil Gebhardt, noted professor of literature and Academician died here yesterday. He was born in 1833.

SIR HENRY CAMPBELL-BANNERMAN DIED IN LONDON THIS MORNING

Passed Away After a Lengthy Illness --- The End Was Not Unexpected---His Long Career in British Public Life.

LONDON, April 22.—Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, former British Premier, died at 8:15 o'clock this morning at his official residence in Downing street. The end was peaceful. The cause of Sir Henry's death is officially given as heart failure.

SIR HENRY CAMPBELL-BANNERMAN.

September 7, 1856. He was the youngest son of the late Sir James Campbell, of Stracathro, Forfarshire, once Lord Provost of Glasgow. He assumed the additional name under the will of his maternal uncle, the late Henry Bannerman of Hutton Court, Kent.

He attended Glasgow University and Trinity College, Cambridge. In 1880 he married Charlotte, daughter of Major General Sir Charles Druce. She died in 1888, and since then Sir Henry's decline in health may be dated. For nearly forty years he sat for the same seat—the stirring Burghs—and his record of office goes back to 1871, when he was financial secretary to the War Office, which post he held a second time, from 1880 to 1882. During the next two years he was secretary to the Admiralty, and in 1884 he succeeded Sir George Trevelyan as Irish Secretary, filling the office ably until the fall of the Gladstone ministry in 1888. In spite of the fact that the Irishman described him as "the Scotch Sand Bag," in the short government of 1888 he was Secretary for War, and to that post he returned under the last Liberal Government. The Unionists suggested him as a candidate for the speakership to which Mr. Galley was appointed. He was chosen leader of the Liberal opposition in succession to Sir William Harcourt in 1899. The Boer War proved a stumbling block to the administration, but notwithstanding the differences between Liberal Imperialists and other Liberals over this question, a unanimous vote of confidence in his leadership was carried at a meeting of the Liberal party held at the Reform Club in July, 1901. In 1902 a passage of words took place between him and Lord Rosberry over the doctrine of the "clean slate" in regard to the Irish question and other public questions, and the Liberal league was found. Sir Henry again received the solid support of the Liberal party in the house in 1902, 1904, and 1905 in opposing the education and licensing acts. Mr. Chamberlain's fiscal policy and the government's action with regard to licensing and to Chinese labor in South Africa. On the resignation of the Earl of Rosebery in December, 1905, Sir Henry was summoned by the King and formed a Liberal cabinet, himself becoming First Lord of the Treasury and Prime Minister. The general election followed and Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman entered the new parliament with the greatest majority ever given to a British premier. (Continued on page seven.)

ANOTHER WIFE BEATER WAS GIVEN HIS LIBERTY

Waiter Nairn Let go After Assaulting a Woman—Steamship Thief Gets Two Months—Stowaways Departed.

There was but one prisoner on the police court bench this morning. He was Walter Nairn who was charged by his wife with assault. Mrs. Nairn said her husband had been drinking for the past three weeks and had not been supporting her and their four children; that he had been frequenting his father's home North street where there were a number of men and women acting badly. She said that yesterday he arrived home, hit her with a flat iron and tried to strike her with a chair. The woman claimed that her body was a mass of black and blue marks received from her husband. The magistrate gave Nairn a severe reprimand and said he was like some of his chums, who were nothing more than "blubber-de-gillions" and that "if we could get some person from Halifax to patrol North street draw a plan of the street, and tell about the men and women in some of the houses that have been described by Mrs. Nairn. North street is not a very long street and such houses should be known better to the court." Nairn pleaded hard for a chance to escape two months in jail and was allowed to go on suspended sentence as he promised not to touch liquor for another twelve months. Dennis Boyken and Karl Mortelmans, the two stowaways who robbed passengers on the steamer Lake Michigan, were before the court. Boykens was sentenced to a term of two months in jail; and his companion who is the worst of the two, was remanded until this afternoon for sentence. The three Germans who were arrested as stowaways on the Lake Michigan, were taken from jail this morning by C. P. R. Detective Walsh and placed on ship leaves for Antwerp this afternoon.

LIQUOR LICENSES LIKELY TO BE REDUCED TO 64

Supreme Court Judges Seem to Favor Contention of the Temperance People in Favor of the Ward System—An Interesting Argument.

FREDERICTON, N. B., April 22.—The case of Jamieson vs. the liquor license commissioners of Saint John was heard this morning before the Supreme Court. The attorney general appeared on behalf of the plaintiff and Recorder Skinner and J. B. M. Baxter for the defendants. The case is a special one setting out the facts and asking for the court's decision. The points in brief are as follows: Information was laid by the plaintiff that the commissioners issued more tavern licenses in 1907 in Prince Ward, St. John, than are allowed under the act, fourteen licenses being issued. The act provides that a license may be granted to each 250 of the population up to 1,000 and after that a license for each 500. The question presented to the court is how many tavern licenses are the commissioners authorized to issue in Prince Ward, the population of said ward being 4700. The attorney general opened the case setting forth the facts. He contended that the commissioners must under the legislation be guided in issuing the licenses on the principle of the basis of population and that Prince ward on this basis could be entitled to no more than eleven licenses. Mr. Baxter and Mr. Skinner contended that the governing principle was that of the number of houses. This mode was not only directory, and the chief point involved and not the whole number of houses to be issued in St. John. The number must not exceed 75 and as long as this number was not exceeded the commissioners had the power to use their discretion as regards distribution. Mr. Skinner strongly urged this argument. Justice Hanington said: "If this is the interpretation of the act you might have all the licenses in Carleton and make liquor selling on the east side prohibitory, and" Justice Hanington added, "if a man wanted to take an early morning nip he would have to cross the ferry."

SHOT DIVORCED WIFE, THEN KILLED HIMSELF

Boydton of Boston Was Free With a Pistol—He Also Tried to Shoot His Son.

NORWOOD, Mass., April 21.—Erasmus Munroe Boydton, of Boston, shot and seriously injured Sarah P. Boydton, his divorced wife, and then committed suicide at Mrs. Boydton's home here today. The woman is in a critical condition and will probably die. On April 9 of this month, Mrs. Boydton was granted a divorce on statutory grounds by the Norfolk County Superior Court. The couple were married on April 3, 1873. Two years ago differences arose and Boydton went to Boston to reside, his wife continuing to conduct a boarding house at 28 Guild St. in Norwood. The police say that Boydton had threatened to murder his wife if she obtained a divorce. The granting of a decree, with an order that Boydton pay $4 weekly in alimony, angered Boydton, and he had made so many threats against his wife and family, the police state, that Chief Herbert S. Sackett instructed his officers to arrest the man if he stepped within the town limits. This afternoon Boydton called at the boarding house of his former wife and attempted to secure the woman for obtaining the divorce. He became greatly excited, and at the conclusion of his tirade he drew a revolver and fired at his son Henry, a man of 25, who was present. The bullet went through young Boydton's clothing and passed near the abdomen, but did not injure him. The father then fired at Mrs. Boydton, the bullet passing through her right breast. The woman and her son fled from the house and screamed for assistance. Mrs. Boydton swooned on the lawn, but threw herself onto a sofa and fired a bullet through his chest and another through his heart. Boydton was 55 years of age, the same age as his wife. There are three children, two sons and a daughter.

FASHIONABLE WEDDING AND MYSTERIOUS DEATH

AMHERST, April 21.—A fashionable wedding took place at 12 o'clock in Christ church, when William Hillburn, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, at Innesfall, was united in marriage with Grace Clark, niece of Hon. A. B. Ector, of Amherst. The church was beautifully decorated. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Crosswell, rector of Christ church. Both bride and groom were unattended. The church was filled to overflowing. The bride is one of Amherst's most popular young ladies. The groom is a native of Berlin, Ont., and was accountant in the bank of Commerce here for several years before being appointed manager at Innesfall. The couple left by the C. P. R. for Toronto en route to their new home in the west. The coroner's jury investigating the mysterious death of Ellen Taylor, which occurred at Oxford a week ago, gave a verdict yesterday afternoon. The jury could not find the cause of death and recommended the attorney general to investigate the matter. Miss Taylor belonged to New Hampshire, visiting Oxford she was taken ill and died Sunday April 12th and died following Tuesday. The post mortem revealed no cause of death, her stomach and other organs were sent to Halifax for examination. Further developments are expected.

HUGH McCORMICK GETS THREE MILE HOUSE LICENSE

No Other Changes in the County Licenses which were Granted Today.

George Reed, William Golding and Edwin Lewis, the liquor license commissioners for the county, met this morning in G. K. Vincent's office, to consider the question of the granting of liquor licenses in the county. No objections to giving licenses to any of the applicants were filed. The only change from last year is that Hugh McCormick secures the license formerly held by Daniel Michaud at the three mile house. Licenses were granted as follows: Lancaster—Hettell, John, Bronman, John Sullivan, Daniel Dwyer, Frederick Duncanson, Geo. H. Tibbet, Wm. Flemming, Jas. Ready secured a license as manufacturer and brewer and McLeod and Co. got a wholesale license.

A FREIGHT WRECK ON THE INTERCOLONIAL

MONCTON, N. B., April 22.—While a west bound freight special in charge of Conductor Russell was approaching Jackpot River last night the train was parted and a number of cars were derailed. The cars were badly damaged and the road bed torn up. An auxiliary was sent out from Campbellton.

BRUTAL ASSAULT ON HUM WING
A desperate character assaulted Hum Wing, a Chinese laundry man, who has recently opened business on Union street, at a late hour last night, knocking out one of his teeth and cutting his face badly.
Hum Wing noticed the men tampering with the window and went out onto the street to stop them. One of the thugs became angered and stepping forward struck the Chinaman in the face and mouth, knocking a tooth out with the first blow and cutting his face badly with the second.
Officer Scott was called, but the men had escaped. Hum Wing says he would know the man again if he saw him.

ANTQUITY OF PETROLEUM.
Though it is only within recent times that petroleum has become an article of commerce, there is abundant proof that it was used in the arts forty centuries ago. The mortar used in constructing the walls of Ninevah and Babylon had petroleum mixed with it for the purpose of securing greater cohesion and excluding dampness. Traces of the bituminous matter are very distinct in the ruins, and the existence of petroleum springs at its source 125 miles from old Babylon. Indicates one source of the supply. In the ancient history of several eastern countries attention is made in unmistakable terms to the existence of petroleum centers.

ALD. MCGOLDRICK HONORED LAST NIGHT
Serenaded by City Cornet Band to Mark His 25th Jubilee

Last evening the City Cornet Band and a number of friends of Ald. McGoldrick aided the genial representative of Stanley ward in celebrating the twenty-fifth anniversary of his election as an alderman. At 7:45 the band assembled in front of the alderman's office on Mill street and some playing some selections, paraded to the residence of Ald. McGoldrick, 125 Rockland road. There the band played after which the band adjourned to the alderman's residence, where luncheon was served.
Charles Kennedy proposed a toast to the City Cornet Band, to which James Connelly replied.
After the luncheon the band returned to the lawn, where there was more music and some fireworks. Harold McGoldrick, the son of the alderman, made a speech, expressing thanks to the band.
The party then went back to Ald. McGoldrick's office, where there was more music and some singing. Hugh Campbell, the well-known baritone, sang several songs.

CHARLES PICKARD NOW MAYOR OF SACKVILLE
Defeated H. C. Ready in Live-ly Contest—Mayor Wood Entertains

SACKVILLE, N. B., April 21.—The only contest here today was that for mayor, and Charles Pickard was elected by a majority of 18 over H. C. Ready. The contest was a hot one, though the candidates had been in the field but a short time. In North ward, Alderman Ford and C. W. Pavest were elected by acclamation. In South ward, Alderman Johnson and H. M. Wood were elected by acclamation, as the retiring members of the council. The new members, Mr. Read and representatives of the press and others were entertained at a supper at the Sackville Restaurant by Senator Wood, who has been mayor since the town was incorporated.

SUCCESSFUL CONCERT
The entertainment held by the Hibernian Cadets last evening in St. Malachy's Hall was largely attended. A lengthy programme was carried out. Mike Kelly in his Irish character sketch made a big hit. Part 2.—Selection by Orchestra; solo, J. Kelly; reading, Mr. McClusky; solo, Miss J. Fitzpatrick; reading, Miss J. Walsh.
The entertainment was held for the purpose of supplying funds for uniforms for the new members of the corps and for Irish babies.

GAME NEAR TO WATERY GRAVES
Lynn Cobham's Boat Upset in Harbor Rescued by B. McKee—Little Daughter of B. McLaughlin Saved by Father

Two narrow escapes from drowning were reported yesterday.
Lynn Cobham, familiarly known as "Bonnie," was enjoying a sail on the harbor when a sudden squall upset his boat, throwing him into the water. For some time he struggled in the angry waves and made several attempts to crawl onto the boat, but each time it would turn over, and finally he was on the verge of exhaustion.
The accident occurred near the light-house and his plight was witnessed by B. McKee at Port Dufferin. McKee consequently went to assist the struggling man and managed to haul him safely into his boat.
The tug Mildred picked them up and brought them ashore. If a few minutes more had elapsed before the rescue was made "Bonnie" would have undoubtedly been drowned.
The eight-year-old daughter of Samuel McLaughlin of the I. C. R. was swept into Courtney Bay while playing on the rocks, but her father was at hand, and after a heroic attempt brought the child to safety. She had for a dog to follow, and was oblivious of the fast increasing tide. Fortunately Mr. McLaughlin, who had noticed his child's predicament, was able to reach her by extending himself on the rock from which she had slipped. The little one was none the worse for her adventure.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR QUARTERLY MEETING
Addresses Delivered by Rev. G. Swim and Rev. Mr. Anthony

The regular quarterly meeting of the St. John Local Union of Christian Endeavor was held last evening in the Waterloo street United Baptist church. President Chas. R. Wesson was in the chair. After prayer by Mr. Morrison the roll was called and the minutes of last meeting read by the secretary, Miss Hertha Barnes.
Rev. G. Swim then addressed the Endeavorers on his pledge, pointing out very strongly the necessity of daily Bible study and constant attendance at the prayer meetings, and closed his remarks with a plea for faithfulness on the part of members.
Rev. Mr. Anthony then spoke to the meeting on the text, "He ye strong in the Lord and the power of His might." The speaker emphasized that health, diet, exercise and judgment were essential for the successful soldier in the Christian fight. Mr. Anthony said that while C. E. stands for Christian Endeavor, it also stands for Christian education, senseless energy and consecrated enthusiasm.
The meeting closed with a testimony service led by the president. Mr. Sandford rendered a solo and the church choir an anthem during the meeting.

"She's not a very brilliant conversationalist."

"No, we went to the theatre together, and would you believe it she never spoke a word while the play was going on."

A LONG PROCESSION.
If all the baby carriages and go-carts which have been sold during the past five years at the furniture warehouses of Amland Bros., Ltd., Waterloo street, were to be put in line two abreast it would make a very long procession. This firm sells every year a large number of baby push-carts of every description and the reason why they are so popular with the general public is their low prices. They are offering this season the best assortment of the above goods in the leading English and American styles and no mother need to go without one of these go-carts during the fine spring days, as they are marked down at very low prices.

MANY FRENCH PEOPLE IN NEW ENGLAND

Joseph Monette, president of the club, presided at the dinner.

Paul-Orléans told yez. Molle, what we want in politics is good men.
Mike—Yes, an' agorra so want 'em bad.
A young woman who happened to be out on the street in London early one morning noticed that the reflected light gave the sun the appearance of being in the west.
Not knowing with certainty the points of the compass she asked a policeman which direction was west. He pointed to the place from which the sunlight seemed to stream.
"Ah," said the young woman, "couldn't you see the sun rises in the west in London?"
"As to that," replied the officer with great dignity, "I really can't say."

WESTERN WHEAT CROP PROMISES TO BE AWAY AHEAD OF LAST YEAR

Acres Under Crop is Twenty Per Cent. Greater—Increase Due to Great Influx of Settlers—Great Rush from Western States Expected This Year

OTTAWA, Ont., April 22.—Official reports received by the immigration department from agents throughout Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta show that the total acreage under crop in the Canadian west this year will be about twenty per cent. greater than last year, with all the indications so far pointing to a record yield.

from the Western States this year will, it is expected, nearly make up for the anticipated falling off in immigration from Great Britain and other European countries consequent upon the restrictive regulations recently put into force by the department in respect to requiring each immigrant to have in his possession on landing a minimum sum of $25, failing friends to look after him or a definite promise of employment, and in respect to the limiting of the number of immigrants sent out by charitable organizations in Great Britain. As a result of these restrictive regulations immigration from Great Britain during March was fifty per cent. less than for the corresponding month of last year.

HULKES OF SHIPS UNDER WATER. (Mariners' Advocate). Memories of old whaling days, when Sag Harbor, Long Island, was a famous port and fortunes were being made by whaler owners were revived when, in clearing out recently the channel to make it possible for the yacht La Mascotte III, to dock, the timbers of two famous old whalers, Fair Helen and Thames, were uncovered. It was away back in 1838 that the ships were decided to have outlived their usefulness. They were wrecked on the beach here, and what was considered to be of value was carried off and the hulls left where they were. Gradually they worked down below the surface, and in time were entirely lost to sight as well as to memory. When the hulls of the old vessels were dug up, the timbers were found to be as sound as when first put into the ships, and the copper fastenings were not affected by a shilling at once. Babage replied by taking a shilling from his pocket and holding it to a mirror. This did not satisfy Sir John, who set the shilling spinning upon the dinner table, at the same time pointing out that if the ave

THE CIVIC ELECTION.

In the civic elections held yesterday all the present aldermen were re-elected. The vacancies on the board, created by the resignation of Mr. T. T. Lantian and the retirement of Ald. Bullock have been filled by the election of Mr. Wm. E. Scully and Capt. E. C. Elkin. Mayor Sears who has held the office of chief magistrate during two terms of two years each was defeated by Ald. Bullock. On nomination day Ald. Sprague of Lansdowne retired in favor of Mr. A. M. Rowan who was formerly a member of the board. The new council will thus have only three new members, one of whom is experienced in the work.

The four aldermen against whom the most energetic opposition appeared, Messrs. Vanwart, Sprout, Pickett and Willet, were returned in their respective wards by large majorities; the three whose success was considered certain, Messrs. Holder, Hamm and Baskin, won by very small majorities. Mayor Sears' defeat was due to a number of causes. He had no organization; he was energetically opposed by those who are regarded as the bosses of the council, and there has been a feeling that Mr. Sears is inclined to look upon the mayoralty as his peculiar property. Sentiment favored a change, not because of any personal feeling against Mr. Sears, but because it was felt that someone else should have an opportunity. Mr. Sears has no most generous treatment by St. John people. The new mayor, formerly chairman of the treasury board, will not hereafter be able to devote his ability to the detailed work of one department. In the finance department Ald. Bullock has instituted many reforms. It continued in his present position there is a possibility that in the not distant future he might have the accounts in fair shape and the expenditures within control. As mayor he may be able to oversee some of the work to which he has in the past given undivided attention, and the gradual process of reform may continue. At any rate the public will be prepared to give Mayor Bullock a fair trial, and his future success in civic life will depend on his efforts during the present year.

It can scarcely be hoped that the next council will as a body be an improvement over that elected last year. Several new members will occupy seats but their abilities are as yet unknown, and even if there men prove to be all that St. John can desire, their influence must necessarily be small. According to corrected returns the people have decided to revert to the electoral system in use until two years ago. Such frequent changing cannot be considered in the best interests of the city. Irrespective of this, however, the decision is a wise one, for the ward system is not a success.

CAMBELL-BANNERMAN.

Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, until a few days ago Prime Minister of Great Britain, died this morning after a lengthy illness. The end was not unexpected, for since the tragic death of his wife he has suffered so much from grief and depression that his constitution has been in no condition to combat disease.

The late Premier will not be known in history as one of Britain's great leaders. He was a man of some ability but he owed his success not so much to his own qualifications as leader, as to the fact that he was the only one in sight who could untie and hold together the various groups of the Liberal party. After his election to the office of Premier he displayed an initiative which won for him the confidence of the straggle Liberal party, but he obliged to concede to the demands of certain groups supporting him he created a feeling of hostility among the masses which is now finding expression in Liberal defeats in by-elections.

Campbell-Bannerman held office from Dec. 5th, 1903 until April 8th, 1905. The important legislative work done during this term may be summed up as follows: Territorial Army Act. Workmen's Compensation Act. Old Age Pensions Act. Income Tax reduced. Patent Laws Act. Chinese Labor Doomed. Self government given to Transvaal and Orange River Colonies. Anglo-Russian Convention. Deceased Wife's Sister Act. On the other hand several measures have been dropped or rejected owing in some cases to the action of the House of Lords. These are as follows: Mr. Birrell's Education Act. Irish Council Bill. Plural Voting Bill. Two Scottish Land Bills. Several measures foreshadowed in the King's Speech are now before the House or in contemplation. The principles are: Licensing Bill. Education Bill.

Children's Charter. Miners Eight-Hour Bill. Port of London Bill.

THE SILENT.

If the little sister or the little brother come crying through the darkness to our door: "Beloved, thou canst help me and no other. Ah, pity I implore!"

Would we not draw them close in tender fashion With never word of censure or surprise, And soothe and aid them there with all compassion, We, who are old and wise?

How is it, then, when we from one another Cry to those higher with despairing breath, Ourselves the little sister or the brother, To one most wise in death.

Praying: "Ah, comfort me, ah guide me truly, For thy white wisdom counsel or consent." Ah, would that these silent rises newly Our sound of discontent.

Can they forget so wholly, nor discover, The weak hands groping at their garment's hem— The little sister or the little brother, Would we not stoop to them?

—Theodosia Garrison in the May Appleton's.

FOR ST. GEORGE AND MERRIE ENGLAND

Tomorrow a Day to be Widely Observed

The Patron Saint and His Life—What the Celebration Stand for—Plans of Local Societies

Tomorrow will be St. George's Day, dear to all Englishmen as the Feast of the Patron Saint of Old England, and now being regarded more than ever as England's Day, and St. George's Society will mark the day this year by grand charity ball to be held tomorrow evening at the assembly room, for which a large number of invitations have been issued, the proceeds are for the Charity Fund of St. George's Society, on which there has been a severe drain on account of the number of immigrants arriving here who have to be assisted when in need. The history of St. George is closely identified with English history, and in the old days of England's glory many of her successes were held to be due to St. George, not personally, but at the influence his name aroused among the soldiers, whether they looked on the King of Castile as a heathen or a Christian. St. George was born at Lydda in Palestine, 23 April, A. D. 270, that city being in the vale of Sharon, celebrated for its roses, was the cause. After St. George was made the patron saint of England of the rose being the flower of England, and so ever since the Wars of the Roses has the red and white rose been emblematical of an Englishman. St. George was of Christian parentage and early in life adopted the military profession, under the Emperor Diocletian; but when that monarch began to persecute the Christians St. George took their part and did all he could for their cause, leading down the edicts published against them and assisting those persecuted by protection and with money. He was put to death, however, as a martyr on 23 April, 303, but his name has lived ever since as one of the foremost Christian martyrs. The story of his fight with the dragon is well known, how near he was to being killed and a fiery dragon saved the life of a princess who had by lot been chosen by the people to appease the fury of the beast. St. George was adopted by the early Church as a saint whose name should be revered and St. George's Day appears in the calendar of the nation of England among its black letter saints, and as was also venerated by military men and the armies of England who joined the Crusades were placed under his special protection, it was at this time, about 1194, that St. George's cross was adopted as the national flag of England and has ever since remained so, the cross of St. Andrew was added on the union with Scotland and St. Patrick's cross when Ireland came in, making the present Great Union or Union Jack. St. George having under Richard I, been adopted as the patron saint of England, his name became more and more in evidence. Churches and places were named after him and so when Edward III founded the Order of the Garter, one of the noblest Orders, and also one of the oldest, it was under the name and flag of St. George, whose badge is still worn by those knights. St. George's Day was, for a number of years, a national holiday in England and solemnly kept also by the Church when special services were held.

St. George's Society stands today by year by year the memory of St. George and to promote and encourage patriotism and English customs and principles, but at the same time they are very active in charity, always helping brother Englishmen whether strangers or not, and many a family have cause to remember the help meted out to them by St. John Englishmen. Next Sunday the Society men attend Trinity Church at 7 p. m. for their annual service when the Rev. E. B. Hopper, the chaplain, will preach. Other officers of the Society are: President, G. A. B. Addy, M.D.; 1st Vice-President, Alfred Porter; 2nd Vice-President, J. C. Anderson; Treasurer, P. E. Hamilton; Secretary, E. E. Church; Asst. Sec. F. Noel Sheraton. The Society request all citizens to fly their flags tomorrow and also ask members and others to "wear the Rose," and the colors of St. George, red and white. "His honor is stainless, deny it, who can. "The flag of a true born Englishman."

WELSH CRIMINALS GIVEN THE LASH

Effect of Its Adoption Has Been Most Effectual.

Cringing Terror With Which Convicted Garrotter Hears Sentence Proof of Its Efficacy.

LONDON, April 21.—There was an epidemic of crimes of violence in Wales during the late winter, with the result that, at the recent assizes, twenty-five blows with the cat, this deterrent weapon of the law is seldom resorted to by English judges except where a community has been terrorized by a series of outrageous robberies with violence, and it has never failed to put an effectual stop to the operation of such gangs of ruffians. This class of criminals dread a dozen strokes of the cat-of-nine-tails far more than five years of penal servitude. The cringing terror with which the convicted garrotter always hears such a sentence is always proof of its complete efficacy. The soft-hearted humanitarians who stand in this country are shocked by the use of such brutal methods and the newspapers during the last fortnight have been flooded with letter of protest. Their arguments had no effect upon the judges, and the sentences were to the cat continue to be pronounced by the judges of the King's Bench, who, at least, base their judgment on a better practical knowledge than the protestants possess. It is perhaps sufficient comment to say that violent crimes in Wales have entirely ceased.

OUT OF JAIL TWO DAYS; BACK AGAIN FOR THEFT

Prisoner, After Serving Thirteen Years, Stole Again From People Who Betried Him.

BOSTON, Mass., April 21.—After only two days' liberty, following thirteen years' imprisonment, for bank robbery, Max Shihorn is again in jail on a charge of larceny of $200 from Daniel Ketchum, of Andrian, Mich., a lodger at 124 Chandler street, where the released prisoner engaged a room for himself. Before his discharge from the New Hampshire state prison on Easter Sunday, this man, known in Boston as "the King of Bank Burglars," continues to claim as his own the name of Henry E. Moebus. He protests his innocence of the latest charge against him, and when heard in municipal court today he had some bitter things to say about police persecution. He declared: "I would have taken it from anyone at this time." The "old man"—he is 73 years old—told to the court a complete story of his movements since his arrival in Boston, St. George was of Christian parentage and early in life adopted the military profession, under the Emperor Diocletian; but when that monarch began to persecute the Christians St. George took their part and did all he could for their cause, leading down the edicts published against them and assisting those persecuted by protection and with money. IMPORTANT PROMISES TO MANCHESTER VOTERS

Churchill Talks Home Rule—Lloyd-George Promises Old Age Pensions.

MANCHESTER, April 21.—The furious election fight that is being waged here has brought forth two weighty pledges from the Liberal ministers. The first of these was Winston Churchill's home rule pronouncement yesterday and tonight David Lloyd-George offered to bet his opponents that the old age pension scheme would be established within a year. When it is remembered that Mr. Lloyd-George, now chancellor of the exchequer, is in the position of having to find the money for the pensions, his prediction is of the greatest interest. With the approach of polling day the struggle is growing even keener. Mr. Lloyd-George today offered to bet his opponents that the old age pension scheme would be established within a year. SEQUEL TO A MOCK MARRIAGE.

The climax to an extraordinary royal scandal has been reached by the disgrace of Prince Joachim Albrecht, cousin of the Kaiser and of the Duchess of Connaught, who has been compelled to leave the German army because of his infatuation for an actress. To add to his humiliation, by the Emperor's order he will not be allowed to wear uniform. The prince, who is thirty-five, and a son of the late King of Brunswick, lost his heart some years ago to an actress who had gained some repute in adaptations of French farces of a certain type. She was a lovely woman, some years senior to the prince, and named Marie Sulzer. But there was one difficulty in the way of their marriage. She was of the people. Her royal lover made strenuous efforts to remove this objection by getting her ennobled. But the Kaiser sternly refused to allow this. Like all the Prince's relatives he was averse to the match. The aged Regent, by his will, directed that his son's inheritance should be divided into two equal shares, one to be given to the prince, and the other to the actress. But loss of rank or money was little regarded by the enamored prince. Still, groom met for the first and only time at the registry office in the Brixton Road.

Marie Sulzer returned to Berlin and three Prince Albrecht again became her most intimate companion. Still the Kaiser was resolute in his opposition. For a time His Majesty was baffled and perplexed when he learned that the woman was known as the Baroness von Liebenberg. But measures were taken to render the course of love far from pleasant for the two.

PRICE OF HONOR.

But the anxieties and worries of Prince Albrecht and his inamorata were as nothing compared to the trials of Baron von Liebenberg. After the wedding the marriage broker refused point blank to pay over the balance due to the baron as the price of his honor. It was not until his landlord threatened to evict the nobleman that the broker under protest, unwillingly, paid over £250. But it was not long before the baron again became involved in financial troubles. It was on June 2 that the baron, left London, England, and travelled via Cologne and Frankfurt to Mayence, where he carried out his degrading duties. It was that, having obtained his object, the marriage broker deserted the baron, leaving him penniless. The poor nobleman made his way back to Vienna, where he discovered that misfortunes had accumulated during his absence. He found that he had been discharged from a minor post as assistant to the magistracy, for which he received $100 a year, and that a civil list pension of $150 had been withdrawn.

BARON DESTITUTE.

As he relied on these trivial sums for livelihood, he was thus absolutely destitute. To add to these misfortunes he was arrested by the military authorities for failing to attend to some manoeuvres to which he had been summoned. For a time he received $1 a week from the military authorities. How long this allowance continued is uncertain. But at any rate the baron was much disheartened by the way in which he had been treated.

When the second part of the plot was put into operation and his wife was taken to a divorce court, the Kaiser's relations with the woman would have been constructed, according to German law, a criminal offence. The Kaiser is an ill man to provoke. When he found that Prince Albrecht still remained devoted to the actress, he promptly ordered his cousin to be attached to the troops in German Southwest Africa. The Prince obeyed, but there was disquietude in his mind. He lived inconspicuously in the army. The Kaiser, shocked by his cousin's conduct, and angered by his wife's infatuation, ordered the drastic punishment of expelling him from the army.

MILITARISM AND THE WORKINGMEN.

The following facts are from a sermon preached by Rev. Gilbert T. Sadler, B.A., L.L.B., of Wimbledon, Cornwall, in the Wesleyan church, St. John, N. B., on April 19.

True, Europe is "an academy for the study of murder as a fine art," but other nations are not so studiously cultivating the art of killing. Militarism is being struck again and again, and though it still stands, its fibres are being loosened and ere long it will fall to pieces.

The Lord Roberts' propaganda is being openly denounced. We do not want the grunnamian Swedish drill for boys. Let them go to the fields of fresh air, or if they must be indoctrinated, let them be indoctrinated by the Bible. We want religion—strong and free religion. That will make us gradually disinterested in the arm and which will make us to all men. It makes for all being one, not being enemies. The religion of God and love to one another is a spirit which can share the world wide over. There is only one religion, the religion of love and love and Jesus has interpreted it best of all. The one universal religion of the Spirit is becoming more and more, but make wars impossible.

Arbitration and Religion are leading the nations away from war. The folly of war is being exposed. The world is becoming more and more united. We are having a grand vision of a United States of Europe. Why not? War would then be impossible.

Works published by Bowles of London, in 1725. We see war is unnecessary as well as folly and sin. War is becoming rarer and less desired. We are having a grand vision of a United States of Europe. Why not? War would then be impossible.

At the conclusion of the president's remarks the new song was rendered by Sidney Beckley in an excellent manner. The words were very poetical and the air quite catchy. Prof. D. Arnold Fox accompanied Mr. Beckley.

On rising Mr. Ames was greeted with a chorus of applause for his pleasure in having the opportunity of speaking on a subject that all Canadians were so deeply interested in.

He began by declaring that there were marvelous opportunities for the development of "the last best West on the American continent." The people of Canada's West had an opportunity of studying the development that had taken place across the border and of profiting by the mistakes made in that territory.

The speaker went on to say that some thought of Canada's West only as a vast level plain on which to grow wheat. That was a mistake. There were many other products of the farm there as well as vast timber areas and coal fields.

Mr. Ames referred to the vast amount of money the West had cost the people of Canada. He thought all told it had cost Canada about $100,000,000. The amount had been paid cheerfully, for it was realized that the amount would in time be returned.

The speaker dwelt at length on the timber areas in the north. Prince Albert and Edmonton was fast becoming a centre for the same industry. Both the Grand Trunk Pacific and McKenna & Mann roads would pass through the heart of the timber country. The speaker declared that there was no necessity for the west to import timber from Ontario when it had more than sufficient itself for its needs. There were about 6,000 miles under development and last year 1,200 miles were sufficient to meet the needs of the west. There was no fear of a scarcity of timber.

"The Last Great West" Inspiring Theme of Eloquent Speaker—Fertile Homestead Lands Nearly All Gobbled Up

Herbert B. Ames, member of the House of Commons for St. Antonio division, Montreal, interested and instructed the Canadian Club of this city last evening as few speakers have succeeded in doing. Mr. Ames' subject, Canada's Northwest, was one which could not fail to interest the two hundred or more club members who listened to the address, and when dealt with by a man as thoroughly familiar with his subject as Mr. Ames. The speaker, who is a fluent and pleasing speaker, spoke for about an hour, it hardly seems possible for a man to justify to such a vast subject as "the last great west" in that time, but Mr. Ames has the faculty of covering a lot of ground, so to speak, in a very short time.

Mr. Ames next took up the subject of wheat growing in the west, and this brought Winnipeg into the limelight. He spoke of the marvelous growth of the prairie city and humorously observed that when a Winnipeg man went away from home and wanted to know the population of his city he had to telegraph back to find out.

The speaker with the aid of some splendid views explained the objects of the Brandon experimental farm. All sorts of tests were being made there to obtain the best results in the growing of wheat. He saw sixty-four different kinds of wheat growing there side by side.

In places from twenty-five to thirty bushels were being raised to the acre. People wondered if this could be continued. The speaker declared that it could. The Canadians had profited by the mistakes made by their American neighbors in Minnesota and other States. It had been proven that if the land were given a rest about once in every four years its fertility would remain. In short, scientific farming would give the Canadians immense wheat crops from their 45,000,000 acres. Mr. Ames advised his auditors to go out and see the golden wheat crops in August, assuring them that the sight would make hazier Canadians of them.

The speaker went on to say that wheat was not the only crop of value in the west. There was almost as great a crop of oats, but the consumption was principally local. Flax was also produced in considerable quantities. Mr. Ames stated that the wheat growing lands had been divided into two sections. The even section had been available for homesteads under existing law. Of the 45,000,000 acres only 5,000,000 remained. Of the odd section there was about 10,000,000 remaining which had not been required to satisfy railway grants. These ten million acres, however, were not available for homestead purposes until special legislation was passed. Mr. Ames expected that the necessary legislation would be passed at this session of the House. Then the government would have 15,000,000 acres still to give away, but as homesteaders were coming in at the rate of 30,000 a year, and each obtained 160 acres, the land would probably all be given away by 1931.

"In three years," the speaker said, "I fear we will have to declare to the world that we have no more free land in the fertile west left."

Mr. Ames added that this was sufficient reason why the government should give a rest to the land. He pointed out that the government had a large class of settlers during the next three years.

The speaker dwelt at length on the opportunities for the rancher in the west and some splendid views of the grazing country were shown. He noted that the subject of irrigation and showed what development in this direction had meant to the rancher of his own province. Last year 5,000,000 bushels of Alberta "red" wheat had been produced largely as the result of irrigation.

Mr. Ames paid a high tribute to the Northwest mounted police. They had given our west a respect and love for justice which was the envy of our southern neighbors and wherever this force was stationed, law and order prevailed.

Mr. Ames spoke a few words on the coal fields of southern Alberta, after which he closed his address by expressing the hope that he had given his audience a comprehensive idea of the great wealth of the west.

Following Mr. Ames' address a number of additional views of the western country were thrown on the canvas and the majority remained to see them.

Mr. Ames will visit Sand Point today and examine the shipping facilities at this port.

PRINCE OF ORANGE

In 1888 it was constantly stated with some evidence of authority that the King and Queen of Holland were urgently pressing on Queen Victoria the suit for her daughter's hand of the eldest son, the Prince of Orange, popularly known as "Citron." The heir-apparent to the Dutch throne was a tall, slender, and amiable Prince, whose Protestant faith moreover rendered a marriage with an English princess politically impossible. His volatile character, and rather irresponsible mode of life did not, however, quite appeal to British tastes, while the latter rumor of his alarm, and the assistance of a bar-maid enables him to escape the hot chase across the border, in which he is wounded, and with difficulty the man gets to the boundary, where he collapses. The pursuing officers endeavor to drag him back, but a guard of the enemy calls a halt and rescues the deserter.

Interesting Babies at the Nickel

One of the largest and best conducted public nurseries in the world will be visited by Nickel patrons today and tomorrow, when the picture "A Day in a Public Nursery" is shown. The institution is in Paris, and the scenes of most absorbing interest. The babies in their rooms, at table, at play, being taught to walk, to talk and under scientific medical treatment will be great entertainment for all lovers of children, and who isn't a lover?

The "Baby" is a delicious American fantasy; Peggy's Portrait, a domestic comedy and a pleasant ending, and the Obsequies of King Carlos of Portugal will be some rare sight-seeing. All Christendom was horrified at the assassination of this monarch and his son. The theatrical value will be shown again, and Mr. Maxwell is to sing "Ed, Ed, or I Would Die For You" for the last time. Miss Davis is to conclude the rendering of "Mousette" in costume. Theatricals as usual.

Interest in Fredericton Act Contest is Dying Out—River Solid

FREDERICTON, N. B., April 21.—The Scott Act people held a meeting at the Opera House this evening. There was a fair attendance. Lewis H. Bliss presided and the speakers included Sub-dean Street, Rev. Jos. McLeod and W. L. McFarlane. All spoke in favor of the Scott Act in preference to the liquor license system. It is understood that the license advocates have engaged a speaker from Ontario to address audiences here next week. There seems so far very little interest shown in the coming contest, and as the day of election approaches, enthusiasm instead of increasing appears to be dying out. It will not be surprising if but a small vote is cast.

The judges of the Supreme Court arrived this evening, as well as a number of barristers. The hearing of cases will be continued before the full bench in the morning.

ENERGETIC ENGLISH PRINCESS.

It is often remarked that women of the Anglo-Saxon race retain the opinion of the Governor-General's term of office.

While the Duke of Argyll has been absorbed in politics, literature, and our great East African territory, the Duchess—apart from her social duties—has devoted herself almost exclusively to the study of art.

In the studio attached to the beautiful apartment in Kensington Palace, London—which was granted to her on the death of the Duchess of Inverness—Princess Louise has worked diligently and successfully as a sculptress, and the result of the instruction given to her by the late Sir Edgar Boehm can be seen in many examples of her work, which have attracted public notice and expert approval.

Chief among these, perhaps, are the busts of Queen Victoria which occupy pride of place in Kensington, and the beautiful memorial in St. Paul's Cathedral, London, to the 6,000 Colonials who laid down their lives for the Empire.

The Deserter at Princess

The Princess have secured another fine batch of subjects for today's show. Two fine dramatic subjects are "The Deserter," a tale of the French Army and the African Legend, a drama of the forests of Africa. The following is a synopsis of the Deserter: A young man drawn for military service arrives at his home for a visit. Scarcely had he been seated when a squad of officers appear and he is summoned to do army service. A few days later he is in uniform, and is off to his post. On this trip he encounters his sergeant, who is an angry disposition, but friendly about girls. A conflict is narrowly averted as the sergeant endeavors to pay attention to the ladies of the escorting party. The young man deserts and is off for home. At a street shop he narrowly escapes detection. The hatred of the bartender causes the alarm, and only the assistance of a bar-maid enables him to escape the hot chase across the border, in which he is wounded, and with difficulty the man gets to the boundary, where he collapses. The pursuing officers endeavor to drag him back, but a guard of the enemy calls a halt and rescues the deserter.

FOUND YUKON BOOKS WELL KEPT

OTTAWA, April 21.—A return brought down in the commons today shows that since 1898 the Dominion treasury has received in cash and scrip from crown lands in mines, minerals, timbers, etc., in the western provinces the following amounts: Manitoba, cash, $1,673,451; scrip, $209,475; Alberta, cash, $1,456,716; scrip, $27,086; Saskatchewan, cash, $1,748,755; scrip, $158,209; total, cash, $4,272,229; scrip, $694,864.

A return tabled in the commons today gives a report of C. H. Beddoe, accountant of the interior department, who was deputed last fall to investigate the books and accounts connected with the financial administration of the Yukon. Mr. Beddoe, after examining all the offices in the Yukon, including all the books and accounts have all been well and correctly kept.

Queen Alexander, when Princess of Wales, says Good Words, came one day upon a tiny mite of a boy crying piteously. He was in charge of a fat and comfortable old lady who seemed quite uninvolved by his grief.

"What is the matter?" inquired the Princess who is very fond of children. "He's ill!"

"I'll call, ma'am," said the comfortable old lady. "He's not sick, but his stomach can't stand nine buns."

The Fair Lady.

(Copyright, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.)

"It is the portrait of my ancestress, Mistress Elizabeth Mowbray," remarked Dickson to his assembled guests. With one accord the four persons seated at the table in the great dining room turned and looked at the picture.

Framed in gold, it hung over the chimney piece, reaching almost to the lofty ceiling. It depicted the life-size figure of a beautiful young woman in a pale gray gown in the fashion of a century past.

A large gray-plumed hat rested on her dark hair, and about her shoulders was a loose rose-pink cloak, caught and gathered by one slender hand, while the other held a plump spray of white lilac.

"Dickson arose, glass in hand. 'To Mistress Mowbray, always young, always beautiful and—' he paused and added with a mischievous glance at his wife, 'ever silent!'

"There is an unfair advantage to take of Mistress Mowbray," objected Mark Randolph, with a glance toward the portrait.

"I am sure that Harry's insinuation is quite unjust," said Mrs. Dickson, with spirit. "Finally, history relates that Elizabeth Mowbray possessed a very pretty wit!"

"I suppose there is a story connected with the fair lady?" inquired Seares, with a smile at his host.

"There is," admitted Dickson, cheerfully. "There is some tale about the ghost of Mistress Mowbray, who is said to step down from her portrait and walk about this room, leaving a fragrance of white lilac in her wake."

"Have you witnessed this apparition?" asked Randolph, with interest.

"Never," replied Dickson, helping himself to walnuts. "but I will not be continued, with a quizzical glance at his pretty wife, 'that I have detected the odor of white lilac in this room!'

"When does the ghost walk?" asked Randolph.

"Invariably on the 13th of March," replied Dickson, leaning back in his chair, and looking fixedly at the portrait. "We have never seen the apparition, but some of the servants claim to have seen it. It has so happened once on the morning of the 13th of March and detected a strong odor of white lilac. As the conservatory was empty of plants, and as there were no flowers of any sort in the house, it was rather—"

"A shock!" interpolated Mrs. Dickson with decision. "It was a positive shock to smell the odor of white lilac that morning—especially as old Hannah had ragged us with the story the night before."

"And so you have never waited up to see the ghost walk?" queried Randolph as he opened the door for his hostess.

"No; to tell the truth we always run away!" she laughed. "Suppose you come down on the 13th of March and watch for Mistress Mowbray. Hannah will take care of you, and then you can report to us the result of your investigations."

"Agreed," he said, readily; and as she left the room he returned to the table and remarked to the others: "Any volunteers to keep me company?"

"Not I," returned Seares, quickly. "I shall be south about that time."

"And we," said Dickson, lightly, "will be in Egypt."

"I had forgotten that," said Randolph. "Nevertheless, I shall accept Mrs. Dickson's invitation to run down here and make the acquaintance of fair Mistress Mowbray."

He was looking at the picture with dreamy abstraction in his eyes.

"You admire my beautiful ancestress, then, Mark?" Dickson shot a keen glance at his friend.

"Yes," was the low response. "She reminds me of—another whom I once knew."

land village where the Dickson household spread its comfortable wings behind sheltering elms, now leafless and sighing mournfully in the east wind. Within doors all was cheeriness and comfort, with soft lamp-lights and blazing fires.

When Hannah had cleared the dinner table and departed, Randolph threw himself into a huge easy chair before the fire in the dining room and looked at the picture of the ancestress Mowbray. He compared her face with that of another Elizabeth Mowbray—a descendant of the lady in the picture. It was an old story now—ten years old. He and Beth had quarreled and she had returned his ring and come back to her home in the south. They had never met afterwards, but he had never forgotten her.

Randolph placed not the slightest credence on the story of the apparition of the ghost of Mistress Mowbray, but the idea of spending an unintermitted evening before the portrait appealed to him. Unable to longer withstand the pressure of the tender eyes, he buried his face in the upturned palms of his hands and gave himself up to unhappy musings.

Hour after hour was told by the tall clock in the hall, and when the bell chimed 12, Randolph roused himself with a slight start from the half-doze in which he had indulged.

Involuntarily he gazed at the portrait and a great wonder came into his eyes. He wheeled his chair away from the fireplace and stared. He rubbed his eyes, looked about the softly lighted room and stared again.

There was the same youthful figure, with its gray-plumed hat, gray gown and rose-pink cloak caught together by one slender white hand. It was all as it had been before save that now there was life in it. Life in the soft, brown eyes and in a certain tremulous movement of the pink-bowed lips.

With white face and unbelieving eyes he watched the figure step slowly down from the frame, and he saw the movement of the purple velvet draperies that formed the background.

She stepped upon the wide mantelpiece, which was devoid of ornaments, and made an imperious gesture with her hand, and as she did so he was conscious of the heavy sent of white lilac from the branch she carried.

"My good sir, pray assist me to the floor," she said in a low, vibrant voice. As in a dream, Randolph hastily reached a chair and supplemented its height with a hassock. With grave courtesy he extended a hand to the lady on the mantel, and as she gave him the tip of her fingers he felt the warm hand of the ghost.

Lightly she stepped down, gathering her skirts gracefully about her dainty, gray-shod feet, and presently she stood beside him, looking timidly at him from beneath the shadow of her long lashes.

"My God!" he muttered, staring from the vision before him to the empty frame above the chimney piece. With a quick movement she slipped the pink cloak from her shoulders and removed the gray-plumed hat from her crown of dusty hair. "It is only—"

"Mark," she said wistfully. "I do not understand—yet," he passed a hand over his dazed eyes, and she stepped forward and pressed up on a carved portion of the mantel, and the painted canvases swung into place with a little click. There was Mistress Mowbray in her accustomed place above the hearth and beside him was—Beth.

"It is one of Harry's jokes," she explained in a low, breathless tone. "He wrote me a month ago and asked me to come here and enact the apparition of Mistress Mowbray; it was a cruel joke, when we were children, for there is a secret stair behind the chimney and the portrait is really a door which opens upon it. Harry said that a 'skeptical friend' would spend the night of the 13th here, and asked me to play the part. I was reluctant to do such a thing, but Harry has been very kind to me—and I consented. They did not tell me of the 'skeptical friend' would be and it was a surprise to me—when I looked down upon your upturned face."

And you could have gone back—and away from me again—and I would never have known," she said, a vague waver in her eyes.

She did not reply.

"But you stayed—you made yourself known to me! What do you mean, Beth?"

She lifted her head slowly and looked at him through misty, joyous eyes, and he understood.

Hannah's voice broke crisply upon the blissful silence. "A cabman, Mr. Randolph!"

Mark tore open the yellow envelope. "It is from Harry," he said, gathering his love into his arms, "and he says: 'Bless you, my children!'"

The motion of adjustment was lost. Ralph Smith introduced a bill to limit the hours of the employment for railway telegraphers and dispatchers. He explained that the matter had been put in his hands too late to hope to get legislation this session. The legislation proposed followed an American act and limited employment to eight hours a day. He regretted he had not received the bill earlier, as he favored it.

Mr. Borden asked about Engineer Hodgins's letter to the press that there was improper classification of material on the National Transcontinental which would increase the cost of work unduly.

Mr. Borden said he had asked the commissioners for a statement on Hodgins's letter and had been informed that an answer would be given when Chairman Parent returned.

SCHOOL QUESTION GHOST RESURRECTED AGAIN IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

Laverge and Bergeron Tried to Make Trouble Over Saskatchewan Schools. They are More Catholic Than the Pope, Said Premier—Mr. Borden Was Silent

OTTAWA, April 21.—An effort to revive the school question was made in the commons today by the third party leader. The opposition lieutenant, Mr. Bergeron, criticized the government for not having disallowed and annulled the act for establishing high schools, claiming that no provision was made to allow Catholics to demand their contributions to their own schools.

R. L. Borden was in the house, but was dumb as an oyster. His silence was taken as an endorsement of Mr. Aylesworth's opinion that the Saskatchewan act did not violate the minority rights and of Mr. Wilfrid Laurier's statement that if the minority rights of Saskatchewan were being interfered with the government should have heard of it from the minority of the province rather than Laverge.

Mr. Laverge moved the adjournment of the house for the purpose of discussing a Saskatchewan provincial statute providing for secondary education, and the clauses he objected to were numbers 2 and 25 of the Saskatchewan act of last session. Mr. Laverge declared that they gave the provincial secretary authority to levy tax for secondary educational institutions such as academies and high schools and gave the provincial authorities power to appoint the teachers and trustees, to select the books and prescribe the curriculum, but did not give the Roman Catholic minority the right of separation so they might devote their contributions to the establishment of schools for themselves as they could do in the case of primary educational institutions. "I shall say that these statutes are unconstitutional, but I may say they strongly favor the Roman Catholic minority," Mr. Aylesworth announced.

Mr. Laverge declared that they gave the provincial secretary authority to levy tax for secondary educational institutions such as academies and high schools and gave the provincial authorities power to appoint the teachers and trustees, to select the books and prescribe the curriculum, but did not give the Roman Catholic minority the right of separation so they might devote their contributions to the establishment of schools for themselves as they could do in the case of primary educational institutions. "I shall say that these statutes are unconstitutional, but I may say they strongly favor the Roman Catholic minority," Mr. Aylesworth announced.

Mr. Borden moved the adjournment of the house for the purpose of discussing a Saskatchewan provincial statute providing for secondary education, and the clauses he objected to were numbers 2 and 25 of the Saskatchewan act of last session. MANY SUFFERERS HAVE HAD IT FILLED. No Sufferer of Kidney Trouble or Rheumatism Should Leave It Untried, as Only Good Results Can Follow.

That the readers of this paper appreciate advice when given in good faith is plainly demonstrated by the fact that one well known local pharmacy filled the "vegetable prescription" many times within the past two weeks. Most of these folks naturally bought the ingredients only and mixed them at home. The announcement of this simple, harmless mixture has certainly accomplished much in reducing the great many cases of kidney complaint and rheumatism here, relieving pain and misery, especially among the older population, who are always suffering more or less with bladder and urinary troubles, backache and particularly rheumatism.

Another well known druggist asks us to continue the announcement of the prescription. It is doing so much for him, he continues, that it cannot be a crime not to do so. It can not be repeated too often, and further states many cases of remarkable cures wrought.

The following is the prescription, of simple ingredients, making a harmless, inexpensive compound, which any person can prepare by shaking well in a bottle: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce; Compound Kaffee, one ounce; Compound Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Any first-class drug store will sell this small amount of each ingredient, and the dose for adults is one teaspoonful to be taken after each meal and again at bedtime. There is enough here to last for one week, if taken according to directions. Good results will be apparent from the first few doses.

B., was married to Hilda Staud, daughter of John MacFarlane of this city. After the ceremony the couple left on their wedding trip for New York and Boston, whence they will proceed to their homes in St. John.

STRONG ROOM PERILS. Before now people have been shut in strong rooms and have had narrow escapes. On one occasion a booksmith was repairing an interior safe in the strong room of a New York bank when the cashier closed the vault door. As it was worked by a time lock it meant that the door would remain closed until the following morning. Fortunately the man knew the secrets of his stronghold and by opening a manhole was able to obtain a sufficient supply of air. He then made a pillow of a bag of dollar bills and composed himself to sleep until the door was opened next morning.—Strand Magazine.

She is 135 1/2 long, 35 wide and 12 1/2 deep and is 414 tons register, is classed for twelve years in American record, is iron keel throughout and is in every way a superior vessel, and is owned by the builder, George E. Bentley, and R. C. Elkin of St. John. The wrecked schooner Pansy was sold at Diligent River yesterday. The hull and outfit realized two hundred dollars and seventy-five cents. The hull will be broken up for junk.

CHATHAM, N. B., April 21.—Great interest was taken in today's election, which was by far the hottest contest in Chatham's history, and out of a total qualified list of 617, 428 voters cast their ballots. Dean, 108; Charles Dickson, 89; J. Cunningham, 68; M. Moss, 50.

Only Ald. Snowball of the old board survived the storm. Mervestau of Scot Act prominence, Bell, Burke and Adams went under. Excitement was very high when it was found that the election of the eighth alderman hung on a few votes and the official statement of the returns has not yet been made, but it will probably show but little difference from the above figures. The general opinion around town was that an extremely good council had been secured, and much satisfaction was expressed with the result.

SIR HENRY CAMPBELL-

BANNERMAN DIED IN LONDON THIS MORNING

The death of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman after a lingering illness of more than two years, was not come as a surprise. Although the doctor's bulletin had not declared his condition critical, that fact was perfectly understood and the public had been expecting the announcement of his end at any hour during the early fortnight. The news came in the form of the following bulletin at 10.30 o'clock this morning:
"Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman passed away at 9.15 o'clock this morning. The cause of death was heart failure."
(Signed) R. W. Burnett.

In the death chamber where the ex-premier breathed his last, were his niece, Mrs. Campbell, who had acted as Sir Henry's hostess since the death of Lady Campbell-Bannerman, a little more than a year ago, Dr. Burnett who was Mr. Campbell-Bannerman's personal physician and who had been in constant attendance during his long illness and Sir Henry's butler.
The ex-premier had been unconscious most of the time during the last two or three days and his sinking was gradual. A few hours before his death telegrams were despatched to King Edward who with Queen Alexandra is visiting the Danish Royal family at Copenhagen, the Prince of Wales and the Cabinet Ministers. Immediately newspaper reporters were keeping vigil before the house of the dying statesman, but the only news handed to them was in the form of a bulletin more than an hour after his death. A few minutes thereafter a crowd assembled in Downing street, but all persons were barred from approaching the house by a cordon of police from Scotland Yard nearby.
Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman's final illness dates from February 17, when he last appeared in the House of Commons and moved the closure of the Scottish Land Bill, although he had been ailing since November 13, 1931, when he participated at an entertainment in honor of Emperor William at the Guild Hall. On November 14, after addressing a political meeting at Bristol, he was seriously stricken with heart weakness, and later influenza was added to his heart trouble, bringing on his fatal ailment. The ex-premier fully appreciated his condition and realized that his recovery was improbable. He offered to give up office some time before he formally resigned early this month. Few invalids have been the object of so much solicitude and attention as was bestowed upon Sir Henry, there having been a constant stream of callers at his Downing street residence, including King Edward, who visited him on two occasions, Queen Alexandra, the Dowager Empress of Russia, the Prince and Princess of Wales, and many prominent men in public life.
It is known that the ex-premier was opposed to a public funeral and it is believed that he will be buried without ostentation beside the body of John Robert, who at the September term of court at his second trial on the charge of the murder of Sir John Bull, Sir John Bull, the Smyrna Mills farmer. Dickson was shot through the head early on the morning of October 18, 1906, while standing alone in his kitchen. The first trial resulted in a acquittal, but at the second trial the state was successful in its prosecution. Counsel for Robens appealed on exceptions to a ruling of the presiding judge, but the appeal was dismissed from the law court for want of prosecution, the respondent having declined to take his case.

ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

Strong Resolution Adopted Against the Methods of the Paper Combine.
LONDON, April 22.—The annual meeting of the Associated Press was held at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel today, with an exceptionally large attendance of members from every section of the country. Aside from the transaction of purely routine business affecting the organization, the most important action taken was the presentation and adoption of an address asking the President and the Congress to "grant immediate relief from the exactions of combinations of paper-makers."
The address presented was as follows:
Representatives of 774 daily newspapers gathered at the annual meeting of the Associated Press, respectfully ask the President and Congress to grant immediate relief from the exactions of combinations of paper makers. In Sept., 1927, and again in November, 1927, the attention of the authorities was directed to the excessive prices then demanded by the paper combination. Immediately upon the assembling of Congress 29 or more bills aiming to correct these conditions and to give paper and pulp on the free list were introduced and referred to the ways and means committee. Parliament has since that time been engaged in the discussion of these bills, but no bill has yet been passed. The exactions of the paper combine are a constant source of grievance to the public and to the Government. KING EDWARD WILL

TRY TO WEAKEN THE GERMAN INFLUENCE

His Majesty Leaves on a Visit to the Northern Kingdoms.
LONDON, April 22.—King Edward, Queen Alexandra and Princess Victoria left London yesterday in a snow-storm to pay a two weeks visit to the courts of Denmark, Sweden and Norway. When the royal carriage emerged from Buckingham Palace an icy gale was blowing and the air was full of softly driving snow. Their Majesty's coachman urged the horses to a fast trot, which was not slackened until reign was drawn at the Victoria station. The royal party travelled to Dover by special train intending to brave rough channel trip and reach Copenhagen early tomorrow morning.
The visit includes the three Scandinavian capitals, because the King's purpose in going abroad is to strengthen his Majesty's relations with the northern kingdoms. For some months the King and Queen have had no personal contact with the monarchs of the north, and the King's visit is considered a most important step towards the strengthening of the ties between the British and the northern kingdoms. The death occurred in the General Public Hospital this morning of Mrs. Esther Green, wife of James Green. The late Mrs. Green was formerly Miss Esther Gooley and is a daughter of the late John Gooley, of North End. NEW YORK, April 22.—Willie Fitzgerald, of Brooklyn, had the better of the argument in a six round bout with the National Athletic Club here last night. Quill started off well, the two men going his way. In the third, the men mixed it up with the Brockton fighter still holding his end to the stomach and heart that Quill was forced to clinch and hang on.
NEW YORK, April 22.—Baron Albert De Rothschild, of Vienna, referee in the Anglo-American chess match between the New York trophy, has called to the Brooklyn Chess Club as follows: "Consider both games drawn." The message had reference to the two games left unfinished on March 14th and upheld the contention of the American committee that the games could not be won by the Englishmen despite the fact that each of the latter had the advantage of a pawn. Not a single defeat is charged against the American team, and the victory is the most pronounced yet recorded in the annals of the series.

Pidgeon's North End Prices Make Down-town Shopping an Extravagance.

Quite a strong assertion, but what is more simple to prove its truth than goods and figures like these:

Pidgeon's $12.75 Raincoats, the limit of $15.00 overcoat value.
Pidgeon's $2.98 Boys' Suits, which are well worth $3.50.
Pidgeon's $1.98 Men's Trousers, known as the best $2.50 Trousers all over the town.
Pidgeon's 68c Shirts, which are bargains at 75c, and well worth $1.00.
Pidgeon's Famous $2.00 Hats, the king of quality for the price.
Many other grand leaders, which for want of space, we cannot mention.

Eight years ago she came to America and associated herself with Maude Balfour Booth.
She raised funds and established the Welcome House and became its superintendent. Two years ago a branch house was opened in Dorchester known as the Girls' Industrial Home.

HE KNEW NOTHING OF THE MULLINS MURDER

ARLINGTON, Mass., April 21.—Benedict Shanahan, the member of the crew of the fishing schooner Mary and Ellen, who was taken into custody for the Arlington police upon the arrival of the vessel in Boston yesterday, under suspicion of knowing something about the death of Annie Mullins a month ago, was released after examination by the police today.
Shanahan's alibi was examined by the police and his movements on the night of the alleged murder were accounted for.
The investigation and release of Shanahan marks the removal of some half a dozen similar cases which the Arlington police have concerned themselves with since the body of Annie Mullins, victim of the murder, was found in Marshon Field on March 27. The police are apparently no nearer a solution of the mystery.

ALD. WANWART FEELS THAT HE HAS FINALLY WON OUT

Pleased With the Vote Against the Ward System—He Opposed it Last Year.

Ald. Vanwart is greatly pleased with the result of the vote on electoral systems and contends now, as he has always felt, that he voiced the weight of opinion of St. John people when he so strongly opposed the bill before the legislature last spring introducing the ward system. It will be remembered that the bill was pushed through the council by a very small majority. Ald. Vanwart went to Fredericton having persuaded Ald. Kelley to accompany him and in committee fought the measure until he was assured that it would be held up until a plebiscite was taken. He was not so opposed to the ward system in itself as he was to its being introduced without the people first having a chance to vote on it. The legislature, however, in spite of the assurances given Ald. Vanwart by some members, amended the bill somewhat and put it through. Under the amendment the plebiscite taken yesterday was ordered. The legislature also provided for two additional aldermen at large. Under the old system which becomes effective next year, two of those aldermen will be dropped and the council will hereafter consist of fifteen members with the mayor, instead of seventeen as at present. Ald. Vanwart considers that yesterday's vote on this question is a distinct triumph in view of the fact that many aldermen who favor the ward system worked energetically to have it continued.

Ald. Vanwart also believes that his own personal success is due in a considerable measure to the record of his department, that of safety, during the last two years the expenditure have been well within the estimates and it is the only department which has been able to show large surpluses. This has been done and the different branches kept up to the mark.

TEETH TRUTHS.

It is not universally known how necessary perfect teeth are to health. The process of mastication must be performed properly, or indigestion and kindred ills follow. Your teeth need the care of a good dentist. That is what we will give them. We do every kind of dental work—our work and our prices are right.
