

of the church. Peter's faith will not cannot fail, and is commissioned to confirm his brethren in matters of faith. This claim or assertion of infallibility is regarded by non-Catholics as arrogance, an assumption which cannot be for a moment tolerated. Why infallibility is considered? It is so viewed either because its true nature is misapprehended, or because we do not sufficiently reflect on the mercy and goodness of the Saviour God in giving us an infallible guide to which we can appeal, an infallible guide who will lead us aright and prevent us from moving in deviations to one under whose guidance we can live securely.

The Bishop of Rome, (Peter and his successors) are infallible interpreters of God's holy law, not because of themselves, not because of any superior parts which they possess, not because of any extraordinary personal merit, but simply for us, for the creatures whom God has placed in this world, and redeemed by the shedding of His Blood. Instead of regarding this infallibility as an arrogant pretension, it seems to me we should be in terms of gratitude, deep and heartfelt, thank the good God who thus deigns to consider us in his providential dealings.

That one occupying such an exalted position should lead a holy life, and to thereby a model pattern of virtue, is all acknowledged, most desirable. Every well informed student of history will tell us that of the 300 Popes, all with, at most three or four exceptions, practiced virtue in its most perfect form. That holiness of life is essential to infallibility is a most grievous mistake. Infallibility does not require the concurrence of holiness; nor is holiness necessary to its evolution. Holiness is the result of supernatural charity; infallibility rests on faith. Holiness is a communication of the love of God and the spirit of God; but infallibility has nothing to do with this, and may exist, as faith exists without charity.

My letter is already too long and must come for the present to an end. I will, Sir, continue this subject next week.

PEACE PATRIOT!

Editor Union Advocate.
DEAR SIR—While I do not wish to intrude unduly in the discussion of the Jesuit question, the recent quotation, I wish to reply very briefly to Patrick's very personal allusions in your issue of the 13th inst. Thanks, Mr. Patriot, very much for your good wishes, but I really think the cap and the compliment of an "ignoramus" would fit yourself, much better. But to the subject, and then I have done.

Of course, Macaulay, being himself a Protestant, would naturally prefer Protestantism to "Romanism," nevertheless he has a high eulogy on the Roman Catholic Church.

But, let us hear William Cobbett, as good an authority and as sincere a Protestant as Macaulay. He writes—
"Away then, my friends, with this foul abuse of the Catholic religion. . . . Away with this shameful calumny of the religion of nine-tenths of the Christians of the world" (at that time). When we open our eyes and look into the matter, we are astonished at and ashamed of our credulity. We have been duped by a set of low-minded, greedy creatures, who never lost sight of the gold, until, from mere habit, the monstrous lie got sucked in for gospel truth. Had the lie been attended with no consequences, it might have been laughed at. But there have been consequences, and those most dreadful. By the means of the great Protestant lie the Catholics and Protestants have been kept in a constant state of hostile feeling towards each other; and both, but particularly the former, (the Catholics) have been in one shape or another, oppressed and plundered for ages. But there exists among Protestants in general an opinion that the Catholic Religion is unfavorable to civil liberty, and also to the producing and extending of genius and talent. As to the former, I shall prove, by the melancholy experience of this country, that a total want of civil liberty was unknown in England as long as its religion was Catholic and that the moment it lost the protection of the Pope, its kings and nobles became horrid tyrants, and its people the most abject and ill-treated of slaves. And I beg, my friends, to remember that I pledge myself to this proof. As to the latter charge, I shall prove that it is ridiculously and most stupidly false.

For further information on the subject, for the particular of the proof, I would refer your readers, Mr. Editor, and Patriot, to Cobbett's History of the Reformation. As to Patriot's vindication of the Orangemen, I have only to quote Mr. Gladstone's recent remarks on that Association, as follows:—"There was an admirable union amongst the people of Ireland, but unfortunately the enemies of Ireland determined to infuse into the country the poison of religious bigotry, and for that purpose, they fanned those Orange lodges which will hand down to posterity the memory of intolerance and narrowness for many generations." Fortunately, their character is now much mitigated; but at the time of their foundation they were founded for the purpose of dividing the land from England. Now Mr. Editor, I do not write these quotations to gratify any prejudices, but, as Mr. Cobbett said, "from a bare love of justice."

Everybody rejoices with Mr. Gladstone that "fortunately the character of the Orangemen is now much mitigated," but nobody can deny that this Society has been as he says "the cause of religious dissension in Ireland," and I may add in Canada too. But, Mr. Editor, it is not by reopening old sores, so to speak, nor by "nursing our wrath to keep it warm" that we shall ever be able to "agree to differ," and to live in peace and harmony in the land. As John Boyle O'Reilly advises, let us.

"Steer straight as the wind will allow, but I'm ready
To veer just a point to let travellers pass;
Each see his own star, a stiff course is too steady
When this one to Meeting goes, that one to Mass."
Our stream's not so wide, but two arches may span it.
Good Neighbor and Citizen—these for a coil.
And this truth is right—"Every man on the Planet
Has just as much right as yourself to the road."

So say I, Mr. Editor, and so say we all.
In the words of the great Father Burke, "if we cannot have the Messings of religious unity, so as to be all of one mind, we shall have the next dearest blessing that Heaven can give, the peace that springs from perfect religious liberty and equality."

Thanking you, very sincerely, Mr. Editor, I am,
Faithfully yours,
MICHAEL WHELAN.

D. 1884, and made between the said Matthew Russell and Sarah A. Russell, of the one part, and the undersigned, DONALD B. FREEMAN, formerly of Newcastle aforesaid, and presently of Bridgetown, in the County of Annapolis, in the Province of Nova Scotia, Doctor of Medicine, of the other part, duly registered in volume 62 of the records of the County of Northumberland pages 342, 343 and 344, and numbered 213 in said volume, There will, for the purpose of satisfying the mortgage, be sold at Public Auction, in front of the Fire Engine House in the said town of Newcastle, on SATURDAY, the 28th day of DECEMBER next, at Eleven o'clock in the forenoon, the Lands and Premises described and mentioned in said Indenture of Mortgage, as follows:—
"All that certain piece or parcel of land situate lying and being in the said Town of Newcastle, being part of lot number one originally granted to the late William Davidson, Esquire, and abutting and bounded as follows, to wit:—Commencing on the Southern side of the line of the said Railway to the River at the North-east angle of that part of the same land heretofore conveyed to the Honorable Peter Mitchell, Esquire, bearing the place of beginning, being the said Railway to the Eastern side line of the said lot, being the Western side line of the land formerly owned and occupied by the late Alexander McCallum, deceased, thence Southerly along the said side line to the Gulf or shore of the River, and thence Westerly following the said shore to the Eastern side line of the said Peter Mitchell's land, and thence Northerly along the said Peter Mitchell's said Eastern side line, being the place of beginning, being the said piece of land conveyed to the said Matthew Russell by Deed of Gift, dated the 6th day of August, A. D. 1881, as by reference thereto will more fully and at large appear; Together, with all mills, buildings, erections, and improvements, standing or being on or upon the said land, or any part thereof, with all engines, boilers, machinery, of every kind and description, movable or immovable, in the said buildings, or any of them, in use or intended to be used therein, and together with all others the rights, manors, easements, privileges, hereditaments and appurtenances to the same or any part thereof belonging or in any wise appertaining."

Dated the 26th day of November, A. D. 1889.
D. B. FREEMAN, Mortgagee.

For Coughs and Colds, Catarrh, Influenza, Bronchitis, Asthma, Consumption, Scrophulous and all wasting Diseases use Pittman's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda.

For all diseases of the nervous system as mental Anxiety, General Debility and Impoverished Blood, etc., etc., it is highly recommended by the medical profession.
St. Andrews, N. B., 4th Oct., '89.
Messrs. Brown Bros. & Co.

Being very much reduced by sickness and almost given up for a dead man I commenced taking your Pittman's Emulsion. After taking it a very short time my health began to improve and the longer I used it the better my health became. After being laid aside for nearly a year, I last summer performed the hardest man's work I ever did, having often to go with one meat a day. I attribute the saving of my life to Pittman's Emulsion.

ST. NICHOLAS.

The Century Co's Magazine for Young Folks. Enlarged and Printed in New Type.

Since 1873, when, under the editorial management of Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, the publication of St. Nicholas for Young Folks was begun, it has had all magazines for boys and girls. Nothing like it was known before, and to-day, as the Chicago Inter-Ocean recently said, "it is the model and ideal juvenile magazine of the world." Through five pages the greatest writers of our time are speaking to the youth of America and England, and the best artists and engravers are training the eyes of the boys and girls to appreciate the highest in art. Nobody knows how many readers St. Nicholas has. In the third largest public library in America—that in Indianapolis—more than 3000 people read each month's number. Since the first issue Mrs. Dodge has remained as editor. Early in its history other young people's magazines, "Our Young Folks," "The Little Corporal," "Riverdale," etc., were consolidated with it, and the history has been one of growth from the first. Tennyson, Bryant, Longfellow, Whittier, Miss Alcott, Mrs. Burdett, Charles Dudley Warner, W. D. Howells, and almost every well-known writer of our time have contributed to its pages. There is only one way in which its conclusions can make it better, and that is by making more of it, and so they have begun the beginning of the seventeenth volume (November, 1889). St. Nicholas will be enlarged by the addition of eight new stories and numerous new illustrations, and the new volume will be published in each number. This enlargement is absolutely required to make room for the rich new material which has been sent in for the benefit of St. Nicholas readers. The use of new and clearer type will be begun with the November number.

During the coming year there are to be four important serial stories by four well-known American authors. Athletes and outdoor sports will be a special feature (contributed by Walter Cady, of Yale, and others), and there will be the stories of Charles and the adventure, sketches of information and travel, outdoor papers, articles of special interest, interesting tales on natural history, other scientific subjects, and the march of events. Both the December and January numbers are to be holiday issues.

The price will be the same as heretofore, $3.00 a year, 25 cents a number, and all orders and the publishers (The Century Co., New York) take subscriptions. New subscribers should begin with November.

JOSEPH JEFFERSON.

"The Century Magazine" in 1890—Joseph Jefferson's Autobiography—Novels by Frank R. Stockton, Amelia E. Barr, and others—A Capital Programme.

DURING 1890 The Century Magazine (whose recent successes have included the famous "War Papers," the "Lionel Lincoln," and George Kemman's series on "Siberia and the Reile system") will publish the long-looked-for Autobiography of Joseph Jefferson, whose "Rip Van Winkle" has made him a household word. No more interesting record of a life upon the stage could be laid before the public than Mr. Jefferson's, who, as a boy, had been in his father's company, they would settle down to a Western tour, playing in their own improvised theater, the particulars of the creation of his famous "Rip Van Winkle," how he acted "Tichel of Leary Mag" before an audience of that class in Australia, etc.—all this, enriched with illustrations and portraits of contemporary actors and actresses, anecdotes, will form one of the most delightful series of The Century has ever printed.

Amelia E. Barr, Frank R. Stockton, Mark Twain, H. H. Boyesen, and many other well-known writers will furnish the fiction for the new volumes, which is to be a brilliant series of illustrated papers. The important discoveries made with the great Lick Telescope at San Francisco (the largest telescope in the world) and the latest explorations relating to prehistoric America (including the famous Serpents of Montezuma) will be the chosen material for the greatest artists and engravers on the press.
