HE'S SICK.

London, Oct. 7.—A Shanghai dispatch says: The Viceroy of Nanking has declined to receive Vice-Admiral Bullock, pleading illness. The British ships have left Nanking.

OLD LANDMARK BURNED.
London, Oct. 7.—Hensell's old store at Newcastle, occupying a 200-year mansion belonging to the corporation, and the timber yards were destroyed by fire today. The exact loss is not known, but it will amount to many thousands of pounds.

"COWARDS."

Paris, Oct. 7.—Advices from Antananarivo, the capital of Madagascar, under date of Sept. 22, are to the effect that Queen Ramavalona has issued a proclamation accusing her army of cowardice. Her Majesty declares that she will neither leave the capital nor yield to the French. Foreigners are unable to leave the city.

THE QUEEN'S HEALTH.
London, Oct. 7.—A doubtful rumor has found currency that the Queen will make a visit to Ireland next summer. Though her Majesty is enjoying fine health and is vigorous for her years, she has an increasing dislike for crowds or noise of any kind. During her railway journeys all the stations at which she desires to stop are cleared of people as far as possible.

TROUBLE IN CRETE.
London, Oct. 7.—The situation of affairs in the Island of Crete is very unsettled. Many murders have recently been committed, and robbery and other acts of lawlessness are reported of frequent occurrence. As a result, the Governor of Crete has offered to resign his position, and the matter is now understood to be under consideration. The Cretans have been deeply impressed with the Armenian troubles at Constantinople, and the inhabitants of the island have presented a long memorandum to the representatives of the powers against the Turkish administration of Crete.

PARNELL REMEMBERED.
London, Oct. 7.—The anniversary of the death of Charles Stewart Parnell, the Irish leader, was observed at Dublin yesterday in the customary manner. The Lord Mayor, most of the municipal authorities and Messrs. John and William Redmond, Harrington, Field, O'Kelly, John H. Parnell (brother of Charles Stewart Parnell), Hayden, Clancy, P. O'Brien, and Kenall, all members of the House of Commons, delegates from the National League, a large number of political bodies and others marched in procession to Glasnevin Cemetery where Mr. Parnell is buried, and placed wreaths upon his grave. The procession was two miles long.

PORTUGAL PERTURBED.
Madrid, Oct. 7.—The general opinion in well-informed quarters is that the critical political situation in Portugal is the real cause of the impending visit of the king of that country to London, Madrid, Rome and Berlin. The growing power of the Liberals and their ambition to overthrow the Government threaten to bring about a revolution. It is stated that the Liberal leaders have informed the king that unless he dismisses the Cabinet he cannot resign his position and risk a riot. The king fears the Liberals, but for the present he adheres to his Ministers. He desires to sound the courts of Great Britain, Spain, Italy, and Germany as to whether they are inclined to support his throne in the event of a Republican revolution.

THE SITUATION AT CONSTANTINOPLE.
Constantinople, Oct. 7.—Sir Philip Currie, the British ambassador, has visited Kiamli Pasha, and urged upon him the necessity of assuring the Armenians by stopping the arrests of persons suspected of complicity in the recent rioting. It is expected that Kiamli Pasha will advise the Sultan to grant amnesty to all the Armenians arrested since Sept. 30.

Six foreign diplomats met on Friday and resolved upon sending a collective note to the Porte, in which they requested their respective governments to take their winter moorings in the harbor in order to be in readiness to protect foreigners. Ambassador Currie has also the Porte for permission to instruct Secretary Sizer to visit the prisons where the Armenians are in custody.

Eighty persons were registered as having been killed on Monday and Tuesday last. None of the bodies of those killed in the Kasim quarter have been recovered. It is known that the bodies of many of those who lost their lives during the riots were thrown into the sea. So far as known only Major Seret Bey and two subalterns were killed on the Turkish side during the rioting on Sept. 30. A few casualties were wounded. The Musselman laborers in the Pera gas works killed 21 of their Armenian comrades on the night of Oct. 3. The refugees in the churches remained there, and the number is increasing. A hundred women and children took refuge today in the garden of the British embassy, which goes to prove that although quiet prevails in the city, the Armenians are apprehensive that further attacks will be made upon them.

A dispatch from Constantinople says that while the city is quiet, the streets are still patrolled by soldiers, and many arrests are being made. The Sultan, when he appeared in public, had an unusual number of body guards. All the Armenians hitherto employed about the Yildiz Palace have been dismissed.

THE BELGIAN RAILWAY HORROR.
The Killed Number Eighteen—Three Cars Telescoped.

Brussels, Oct. 7.—Dispatches received here this morning from Havre, 15 miles from this city, where the collision between a crowded passenger train and an engine occurred yesterday evening, show that 18 instead of 10 persons were killed and that 100 persons and not 40 were injured. Several of the wounded people are so seriously injured that their lives are despaired of. There are no Americans among the dead or injured. The passenger train was just passing the railroad station at Mousty when an engine, coming from Ottigies at full speed, collided with it and telescoped three of the carriages. Relief gangs and medical assistance were promptly sent to the scene of the accident from all neighboring points and everything possible was done to succor the wounded, at least 30 of whom were in need of prompt assistance.

Among those who were aboard the train were M. Bernaert, President of the Chamber of Deputies, and his family. None of them sustained serious injuries and the wife was unhurt. Mme. Mourlon, wife of the well-known engineer, was among the killed.

Two more gas wells were struck at Leamington on Friday. The Standard Company opened one and the Ontario Company the other. Both wells were struck within a few minutes of each other.

For some time a number of spiritualistic meetings have been held in Walkerville, creating considerable talk. Rev. Mr. Ghent is strongly opposed to them, and on Sunday night criticized them from the pulpit of St. Mary's Church.

Presbytery of Matland will meet in St. Helen's Presbyterian Church on Thursday, Oct. 10, at 1 p.m., to conduct the ordination trials of Mr. Sidney M. Whaley, and at 2:30 p.m., the ordination and induction services will commence.

James M. Oulette is dying at his home in Windsor from a pistol wound received at the hands of Frederick Putt at the Detroit Driving Park, on July 25. Frederick Putt, who fired the shot, was released on bail when Oulette seemed to be in a fair way of recovery.

The death is announced at Guelph of Mrs. Sarah Rout, aged 91, widow of the late John Rout, Berlin. The deceased and her husband were about the first settlers in Waterloo county, having lived there over 50 years. Her husband was the first harnessmaker in the county.

Charles Johnston was arrested in Chatham charged with obtaining goods from E. Deschamps, merchant of the Puce, under false pretences. Johnston worked at the Puce for John Coda, and after drawing his wages it is claimed he skipped. He was taken to Windsor.

F. A. Kraus, a Baden hotel man, was nearly asphyxiated with gas in a Woodstock hotel on Wednesday night. He and a driver retired to a room and turned the gas cock too far. An employee smelled the gas and had them carried out in time to save their lives.

Messrs. Palms and Paxton, who later acquired Des-Champs-Shos-Ka, have given Engineer Newman, of Windsor, instructions to prepare a plan for the reclaiming of certain parts of the island. The new owners say that a number of cottages will be erected next summer.

A lad about 15 years of age, named Burton Wood, charged with robbing the Aylmer postoffice, pleaded guilty on Friday, and was sentenced to five years in the Reformatory at Penetanguishene. The amount taken from the office at the various times amounted to about $625.

Mr. James McNally, a resident of Zone township, recently received the intelligence that his son James had been fatally stabbed at Houghton, Mich. The first reports received stated that he was seriously wounded. Later reports, however, stated that he would probably pull through. The injured man resided in the vicinity of Thamesville for a number of years.

The fall exhibition of the Blanshard Agricultural Society was held in the pretty village of Kirkton on Thursday and Friday, and was an encouraging success. Receipts this year about $275.

Messrs. Johnson and O'Leary, Petrolia, who bonded 25 acres of the farm of John Woolley, lot 7, con. 14, Ennis-killen, succeeded in striking oil at a depth of 510 feet. It is estimated that the well will be good for about five barrels per day at a low estimate. The contract has been let for the drilling of three more wells in the same territory.

It appears that Mr. Geo. Sleeman, proprietor of the Guelph street railway, was the recipient of a handsomely framed picture of the first conductors and motormen of the new line a few days ago. Mr. Sleeman, in expressing his thanks, told the men if ever they had any grievance he desired them to inform him at once. He was much pleased with his staff.

There have been several upheavals in the stone quarry owned by James Elliott, St. Marys, and the men engaged in working the place are puzzled to know what is the cause of the disturbances. In some cases stones have been blown many feet into the air, and large cracks in them indicate that some powerful agent beneath the surface promises to cause trouble in the future. James Elliott thinks gas is there in large quantities, and is awaiting an answer from several companies interested in sinking wells.

At Camlachie last week the I.O.O.F. and K.O.T.M. met jointly in their hall. Mr. Crouch, agent of the Grand Trunk for the last eight years, and who is now removed to Springfield, was invited to be present. The day for the address Chairman A. Lunan and S. W. Trusler, on behalf of the Oddfellows, presented Mr. Crouch with an address, a purse and gold-headed cane. Then A. J. Schran, Alfred Irwin and S. W. Trusler, on behalf of the Macabees, presented him with an address and gold ring. Mr. Crouch made a happy response.

In the Court of Appeal at Toronto on Friday, in the suit of Fairbanks vs. Township of Yarmouth and Michigan Central Railway Company, counsel for defendant company, appeared from the part order of local judge at St. Thomas, permitting defendant corporation to serve a third party notice upon co-defendant company, claiming indemnity against them in action for damages for not keeping roadway in repair. The corporation claimed that the approach to a bridge where the accident happened should be kept in repair by the co-defendants. Appeal dismissed.

It is probable that there will next year be a fall agricultural exhibition in Windsor, and that it will become a permanent institution. The day for the fair in Canada is near its end. Those who are agitating the exhibition scheme in Windsor say that not only could the attendance from this country be large, but there would be a good patronage from Detroit. The exhibition would not be an agricultural one altogether, but would consist of many other attractions that are necessary to the success of all fairs. The chief thing needed now is a suitable building.

Archibald McDonald, better known as "Lord McDonald of the Isles," died on Wednesday at Lucknow. Although an old man, he had been out on Sunday to attend the communion services at South Kintess. He was also in Godrich on Monday. He was a regular attendant at the Gaelic services of the Presbyterian Church, and a native of one of the islands on the west coast of Scotland. Some years ago he sold his farm in Ashfield and came to Lucknow to live. Deceased was a man of most kindly nature. He leaves a widow and two daughters. A son was killed in the American war.

DISCIPLES OF CHRIST.

Closing Session of the Convention of the Western Ontario District.

The first annual convention of the Disciples in Western Ontario came to a close on Friday night in the Church of Christ, St. Thomas. At the morning session interesting papers were read on "System in Transferring Church Membership," Arch. Sinclair, Lobo; "Special Evangelistic Meetings," R. W. Ballah, Aylmer; "Holding New Converts," C. J. Lister, Glencoe. R. M. Ainsworth, Ridgeway, opened a discussion on "The Funeral Service."

In the afternoon reports were received from the various Endeavor Societies, Junior Societies and Mission Bands of the district. An excellent paper on "What Junior Endeavorers Can Do" was read by Miss Jennie Miller, St. Thomas. Miss Tena McVicar, Glencoe, read a paper on "The Thriving System of Giving."

In the evening there was a large attendance. After a short song service Mr. E. R. Black, of Aylmer, gave a thoughtful address on "Weak Churches and How to Strengthen Them." Brief reports of the Brantford Endeavor Convention were given by Messrs. W. W. Coulter, Geo. Fowler, N. W. Sinclair and Miss Miller. An address on "Christian Endeavor and Evangelization" was delivered by W. G. Charlton, of Mapleton.

The music for the evening was furnished by Mrs. Johnson, of London, a band of 40 juniors and the male chorus. Officers for next year were elected as follows: President, W. D. Cunningham, St. Thomas; vice-presidents, H. McCully, Harwich; Dr. McKillop, London; secretary, Mrs. McClure, Ivan.

The next meeting will be held in Ridgeway on October 19th. The pastors of the district organized for evangelistic work by electing T. L. Fowler, St. Thomas, president, and W. G. Charlton, Mapleton, district evangelist. The pastors will hold their next meeting in London the first week in January.

At the Court of Appeal at Toronto on Friday, in the suit of Fairbanks vs. Township of Yarmouth and Michigan Central Railway Company, counsel for defendant company, appeared from the part order of local judge at St. Thomas, permitting defendant corporation to serve a third party notice upon co-defendant company, claiming indemnity against them in action for damages for not keeping roadway in repair. The corporation claimed that the approach to a bridge where the accident happened should be kept in repair by the co-defendants. Appeal dismissed.

It is probable that there will next year be a fall agricultural exhibition in Windsor, and that it will become a permanent institution. The day for the fair in Canada is near its end. Those who are agitating the exhibition scheme in Windsor say that not only could the attendance from this country be large, but there would be a good patronage from Detroit. The exhibition would not be an agricultural one altogether, but would consist of many other attractions that are necessary to the success of all fairs. The chief thing needed now is a suitable building.

Archibald McDonald, better known as "Lord McDonald of the Isles," died on Wednesday at Lucknow. Although an old man, he had been out on Sunday to attend the communion services at South Kintess. He was also in Godrich on Monday. He was a regular attendant at the Gaelic services of the Presbyterian Church, and a native of one of the islands on the west coast of Scotland. Some years ago he sold his farm in Ashfield and came to Lucknow to live. Deceased was a man of most kindly nature. He leaves a widow and two daughters. A son was killed in the American war.

The Scrap Bag

Oh, do hurry up! Doesn't it seem as if you had blocked up the corner of Dundas and Richmond about long enough now, you asphalt people? No, woman likes having to cross the Andes to get a bit of velvet skirt binding. But that's just what it is. It takes the spirit of a Francis Pizarro to attempt those Sierra passes, which must be scaled to reach that hallowed spot where the bargain counters grow! And the new fall goods coming in, and all!

You say you love me? We shall see! When I behold you rise, And in convention work for me, I'll read it in your eyes.
—New York Recorder.

People utterly lacking in perception of beauty or symmetry should not be permitted to spoil the uniformity of our pretty streets by dotting squat little bushes and ugly shrubs over the boulevards, which are really the city's property. Avenues of tall, graceful trees arching overhead is the style of beauty this town always means to adopt. Something tall and elegant and stately, don't you know. And then, along comes some idiot from way-back and sets out his little scrubby oaks and dwarf pines, and scraggy firs, all over the city's property, till at last he has succeeded in making the street look like the contents of a toy Noah's ark spread out on a nursery table, and then and not till then does he rest content.

Intuition.—Mrs. Latechurch—John, is— Mr. Latechurch—Yes. No. Yes. Mrs. Latechurch—Merey! What do you mean? Mr. Latechurch (rapidly)—That your dress looks all right, that it don't nip in the back, and that your hat is on straight. Come on.—Judge.

King Alexander of Servia is in the matrimonial market, girls. Don't all speak at once! The King is a youth who has inherited a vicious nature from his deplorably bad father; he is tall and ungainly in his appearance, a boor in his manners, and he wants a large, a very large, fortune with his bride. Don't all speak at once! Even the splinter princesses of Europe look askance at such a bridegroom, though the crown that is dangled before their eyes may prove too tempting a bait to be resisted. But, now American millionaires are allying themselves with the nobility of Europe at such a rate, perhaps some Chicago belle may deem it worth her while to try the kingdom of Servia, just to see how it feels to be crowned a queen in reality. Nothing will surprise anybody, as the world seems to be going at the present rate. However, don't all speak at once for the King of Servia.

A poverty party is the newest money raising device in place of church fairs and other pious highwayman operations to swell charitable funds. It is certainly very amusing and entertaining to "hold up" a crowd on a system of open-handed taxation, but this is the way it is done, and the results are always perfectly satisfactory to the church exchequer. No sooner has a newcomer paid his 5 cents admission than the young ladies rush at him and begin to take a complete inventory of him. He is taxed 5 cents to wear a scarf pin, 5 cents to wear a linen collar, while women are taxed 5 cents for earrings, 10 cents for silk dresses, and so on through a long list. Before a gayly caparisoned youth knows it he and his pocket money have parted company, and the well-gowned women find out that a "poverty party" is almost equal to meeting Uncle Sam's custom officers on a return from Zion. Money fritters away like dew in the sun when the ingenuity of a lot of tax committing girls bears down with a system that would put the strongest tariff to rout. The upshot of it is the victim finds it is 5 or 10, or even 20 cents, for the privilege of being clothed or drawing breath, and in the end that he is penniless. There is so much fun in this sort of taxation, it is believed the "poverty party," lately given in New York, will be imitated elsewhere, with equal monetary success.

The following incident is told of the new Canon of Westminster: Having been terribly interrupted by the incessant coughing of his congregation, he suddenly paused in his sermon and interjected the remark, "Last night I was dining with the Prince of Wales." The effect was miraculous, and a solemn silence reigned as the preacher continued: "As a matter of fact, dear brethren, I was not dining with the Prince of Wales last night, but with my own family. I am glad, however, to find that I have at last secured your attention."—Examiner.

DAILY HINTS TO HOUSE-KEEPERS.

Through love to light! Through light, O God, to thee, Who are the love of love, the eternal light of light.
—Richard Watson Gilder.

BREAKFAST—Grapes. Oatmeal. Ham Omelet. Potatoes in Cream. Split Biscuit. Apple Sauce. Ginger Snaps. Coffee.

DINNER—Bouillon. Scalloped Oysters. Creamed Potatoes. Celery. White and Green Beans. Apple and Pumpkin Pie. Cheese.

LUNCH—Bread and Butter. Roll. Jelly Cake. Stewed Pears. Tea.

SCALLOPED OYSTERS.

Crush several handfuls of Potatoes, or other friable crackers. Put layer in bottom of buttered pudding dish. Wet with a mixture of oyster liquor and milk, slightly warmed. Then a layer of oysters, season with pepper, salt and bits of butter. Repeat in layers of crackers and oysters according to quantity. Let last layer be crackers, over which pour milk with beaten egg, season: ing as before. Bake half an hour, then brown.

Early in the season gorgeous colorings established themselves on our gowns and bonnets. Now we find they have taken firm hold of our coats, also, which are made of brilliant hunter's pinks, hallo-trope, bright blues and vivid greens, but even that is not enough, but as an additional bit of color we must needs put some plaid on our coat—the material itself, the lining, or even the hood—it matters little what, so long as somewhere the plaid appears.

The gaudy or rippled back still holds its own, although that plait will probably appear before the season is ended. Broadcloth makes the handsome coats for women with pleasing figures, and will continue to be the favorite with them, in spite of the number of rough materials put upon the market. These, however, are cordially welcomed by the slight women, and make very stylish jackets.

A DRESSY GARMENT.

early autumn is worn by the maiden pictured. It is of a reddish-brown broadcloth, rather light in weight. The front is tight-fitting, while at the back the godets finish under strap over the shoulders. A fetching hood, lined with plaid, falls almost to the belt. Needless to say, the coat is fastened with large pearl buttons, which, by the way, are ridiculously cheap this season when one considers their great popularity.

EARLY AUTUMN GOWNS.

Mohair or Alpaca in Strongly Contrasting Colors the Vogue.

The material counted the newest among those intended for the early autumn costumes is the mohair or alpaca. It is shown in all the dark shades and in a number of the light ones, while there is also displayed the plain ground with a figure in contrasting color printed upon it. A special vogue is given to this pattern by the French dressmakers, as it permits contrasting trimmings and allows a bit of color that is most artistic. Dark blue with a scarlet figure upon it, golden brown with dark blue, white with black, black with emerald green, and bottle green with golden brown are some of the contrasts shown in the printed mohairs.

Crepons will be worn all during the season, but have not the very heavy curve fancied in the past. Light-weight cloths with a smooth surface bid fair to be popular, and as they drape easily the extreme tailor effect is not dedicated to them as it was a few seasons ago. The silk and wool mixtures in two colors are liked for street wear, but can scarcely be cited as new. Soft woolen suitings in the blue and green plaids obtain, and really make very smart looking street dresses, provided, of course, that the wearer has a tall, slender figure.

REVIVAL OF ANTOINETTE STYLES.

Round Waists, Full Sleeves and Flaring Skirts Still Hold Sway.

The popular round waists, full sleeves and flaring skirts will continue with us this autumn save for little differences that make styles now vary slightly from those worn last spring. The revival in Paris of Marie Antoinette's styles in midsummer, writes Edward M. Hooper in the October Ladies' Home Journal, has affected the latest designs in silken goods; the millinery and the gowns as well. One thing is settled, and that is that we are not going to carry around skirts of immense weight, as we have been doing. The most fashionable skirts are now only interlined to the knees, and in consequence are much less of a burden to the wearer. In width they remain from five to six yards. The sleeves are also softer in effect, though quite as large and pronounced in appearance as ever. It is in the little things, instead, that the styles have changed. Belts, collars and cuffs have all proved themselves capable of an infinite variety of form and arrangement, and by their effects change the old gown into the new, and make the new ones so attractive.

Will Sleeves Be Large or Small?

As for sleeves, there is a speck as large as a man's hand that appeared in March that persists inquietingly if it does not grow. It is the Louis XVI. sleeve, which is to say, the small sleeve dubbed historically by courtesy for introduction only. Its hesitating persistence troubles everybody concerned. Will it be assimilated or not? That it is to be seen here and there on a daring gown is not an answer, but an aggravation. And all the cloakmakers, because of it, are late in their autumn models. Shall they make sleeved jackets or shall they not? If the gown sleeves fall, they may, if not, they must make capes. And the manufacturers of dress materials, who are accustomed to furnish the retailers with colored plates of gowns made to illustrate the stuffs, have hit in despair upon the expedient of making two pictures where they usually make one; a picture with big sleeves and one with small. The chances appear something like even.

Many amusing devices are nowadays used at fairs to replace or, rather, displace the old-fashioned grab-bag. One used not long ago represented an immense English wedding cake, made in three tiers, and trimmed with artificial orange blossoms. After a slice had been paid for, the prize was drawn through a small opening in the top of the cake. Another device is a pump, out of which gush bonbons or toys.

SERIOUSLY CHARGED.

Henry Bush Says His Son Tied Him Down

For Several Hours—They Differ in Religious Belief—The Son is an Israelite.

Henry Bush and his son Charles, of London township, do not agree very well. The former advertises himself in several books as "a forerunner of Christ." The latter is an Israelite, and the differences existing between them on spiritual matters has been the cause of considerable trouble in the family.

Mr. Bush, sen., owns lot 23, on con. 9 of London township. He is over 70 years of age, and though somewhat feeble, works his 50 acres of land. In his spare days he travels through the country selling books which he has written. On a recent date he claims that the son took two flags which he carried with him in his travels, and put them in the fire. While regretting the loss of his flags, the father feels still more over the treatment he says was accorded him by his son on Monday last. According to his story, he told to Squire Jarvis, Mr. Bush has a great grievance. He says that he was preparing to hitch up to go to the post-office, when the son (a big, powerful fellow) interfered, and took the nuts and bolts of the buggy. Rather than be defeated in his objects, the father decided to walk, and was about to start when Charles rushed at him, took him to the barn, and, tying his hands behind his back, threw him on the floor. The old man was helpless, and laid there for six hours. During his imprisonment he says his wife came to the barn, but took no notice of his cries for help. The suffering he endured was great, and when the son finally came and released him he was almost unable to stand up. He was then taken to the house and shut in a room with his legs tied and his hands bound in front of him. In this way he was compelled to remain many hours, and was only freed by signing a document not to pursue any further action.

Mr. Bush considered himself too badly abused, however, and laid an information against his son. The accused was arraigned on Saturday, but he was not prepared for trial. Compelled to come up on Wednesday at the court house. The father also says that his wife and son want to get full possession of his farm, which is in Mrs. Bush's name.

MONUMENT TO GOURLEY.

A Martyr to Family Compactism Should Be Recognized.

The Woodstock Sentinel-Review is starting a movement for the erection on the heights of Mount Elgin, in Oxford county, of a monument to the memory of Robert Gourley, one of the heroes in the fight against the Family Compact. The whole life of Robert Gourley in Canada was a martyrdom. He came to Canada in 1817. Finding all the lands and offices even so early in the history of the Family Compact, he at once commenced a vigorous agitation against them. He was prosecuted for libel and sedition, but he beat the Government. By the perjury of the Family Compact, he was kept in the country, and that he was sedition, he was ordered to leave the country. This he refused to do, when he was put in prison at Niagara and kept there a year, when he was tried, found guilty of sedition and sent out of the country. His hardships and sufferings had been so great that at his trial he was insane and never little of what was going on. He succeeded in breaking up the land monopoly, and his scheme to tax wild lands was afterwards adopted. The practical law by which he was driven away was afterwards repealed, and he returned to Canada in 1854. He lived at Mount Elgin in poverty and obscurity for many years. The Parliament of Upper Canada voted him $3,000 a year, which he refused, but during his life he refused to receive it. No wonder that Oxford county, the garden of Canada, is unalterably wedded to freedom. The traveler who takes away from Mount Elgin, in the township of Durham, could always see Gourley's Canadian flag flying from a tall flagpole.

Did You Ever Think

That you cannot be well unless you have pure blood? If you are weak, tired, languid and run down, it is because your blood is impure. It is the great blood purifier, Hood's Pills, which make pure, rich blood. It is, in truth, the great blood purifier.

But One Way.

All Precedent and All History Demonstrates It To Be Correct.

A Practical Suggestion, Which, if Carried Out, Would Prove a Blessing to Thousands of People.

The question often arises, "Why are women such sufferers from all sorts of ailments and apparently indefinable ills?" It is easily explained. Find a woman whose bowels are regular, and who gives proper attention to herself in this particular, and you will find a perfectly well woman in nine cases out of ten.

The careful woman in this respect always has a clear, healthy look, a bright eye and a good complexion, while the one who neglects these things has a sallow, yellowish, sunken looking face, with a blotchy skin and sunken eyes.

The bowels are the natural drains of the system, and when clogged lead to disease and general ill-health.

Finally, many of the famous doctors on this line led to the production of Karl's Clover Root Tea, which is nature's grandest remedy for constipation and all kindred ills.

This eminent practitioner concluded that to treat this trouble successfully a natural remedy would be most efficient, and this celebrated medicine was compounded directly from roots and herbs to meet his views. Its success has been marvelous.

Mrs. W. P. Varden, of Otho, Mass., says of Karl's Clover Root Tea: "I have tried many different kinds of medicine without receiving any benefit, and had given up all hopes of any cure or even relief. I was troubled with constipation for years, until I was a total wreck. Finally ran into rheumatism and other trouble, and I have been confined to the house (was in bed for eight months) for two years. I have been using Karl's Clover Root Tea, and find that it has done me more good than anything I have ever tried. You are at perfect liberty to use my name as a testimonial, as I am glad to know that it has been the means of relieving others."

Facial blemishes, pains in the back and groin, lassitude, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, bearing down, irregularities and nervousness are all produced and aggravated by this curse of the nineteenth century, Constipation.

Karl's Clover Root Tea is a positive and absolute cure for it and many other kindred ills. Remarkable cures of Insomnia, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Rheumatism, Catarrh of the Bowels, and Chronic Headaches have been effected by it.

Pleasant to take; easily prepared.

TOO HOT FOR AN AFRICAN.

London, Oct. 7.—During the early part of last week the weather here and throughout Great Britain generally was so hot that King Khama, the visiting African potentate who has taken the place of Nazrulla Khan as the foreign attraction of the moment, was completely prostrated. It is true that the dusky king was handicapped by a frock coat, tall hat, high collar, and other such trappings of European fashion, and it is believed that had he been on his native heath it would have taken many more degrees of heat to knock him out. But the fact remains that his African majesty succumbed for a period to the heat of old London. Of course, there are unkind people who hint that possibly the festive nature of the king's visit may have had something to do with his weakness, but it should in charity be remembered that unkind people like to say unpleasant things.

The warm weather, however, suddenly subsided during Tuesday night, and the climatic conditions changed from pretty near African to nearly Arctic weather, heavy snow falling in some parts of Scotland and a terrible gale sweeping the sea, catching hundreds of small craft, driving many on the rock-lined shore, and sinking many others. In all it is estimated that nearly 60 vessels, large and small, steamers and sailing craft, went to the bottom, or left their frames upon the storm-lashed shores during the progress of the gale. The vessels caught by the storm in the British Channel seem to have fared the worst, and it is reported that quite a number of unknown merchant vessels went to the bottom in these waters. The lifeboat men, as usual, did noble service, but all their efforts did not prevent the loss of life from tallying up towards a hundred, according to the conservative estimates. Not for twenty years has such a hot September been experienced here, and no such cold weather has been experienced in England during the month of October for five years past. Two degrees of frost were registered in London, and it was very much colder in the Fens. The sudden change of weather—it all occurred within a few hours—had a very bad effect on invalids and old people, the death rate taking a jump upward in almost all parts of the country.

TURF FAVORITES.

The Newmarket trainers who have candidates for the Czarwitsch stakes hailed the change of weather with delight. The race promises to be most interesting, and will be witnessed by the Prince of Wales and all the prominent sportsmen of the United Kingdom. The Prince will occupy his rooms at the Jockey Club, which are still adorned with photographs of Mrs. Langtry and Lady Cornwallis West, presented when these two beauties were at the height of their fame. They will doubtless recall to the Prince's mind moments of his earlier career, although the originals have long ago passed away into the mists of those who have been. Mrs. Langtry's chestnut filly, Pride of the Sea, is thought by the storm in the British Channel to have a good chance of capturing the stakes, while Banquet II, formerly the property of Mr. F. Dwyer and now owned by Capt. Aiken, finds some favor.

SALA'S SALE.

Some years ago Henry Irving was dining with George Augustus Sala, when the latter showed an invaluable scrap book, extending over the whole period of his journalistic career, to his visitor. Irving remarked that such a treasure should be carefully preserved, and on the following day sent as a present to Mr. Sala a handsome iron safe, with the motto "Safe bind, safe find" upon its doors. At the recent sale of Sala's effects this safe, after spirited bidding, was sold for 22 guineas. Among the pictures sold at the same sale was a water color drawing which was presented to Mr. Sala by the Bohemian Club of San Francisco. This fetched 11 6s.

A CLEVER CANADIAN.

Miss Florence Carlyle, who will show several paintings at the forthcoming exhibition in Paris, is styled "An American artist." Though a grandniece of Thomas Carlyle, she was born in Canada, and has passed most of her life in Woodstock, Ont. Long before she had any artistic training, some of her paintings, then only flowers, had attracted the attention of the Princess Louise. This led to her being sent to Paris, where she has since prosecuted her studies under Daubigny, Lefebvre, and Fleury.

THE PILGRIM'S CHURCH.

Very few pedestrians who have passed by the Pilgrim's Church in the new Kent road, are aware that it is the oldest non-conformist building in London. It was built as a memorial of the Pilgrim Fathers who sailed in the Mayflower, and as thorough restoration is shortly contemplated, it is the intention of the vestry to solicit aid for the purpose among some of the descendants of the Pilgrim Fathers in America.

DICKENS RECALLED.

Another of the most interesting relics connected with the writings of the late Chas. Dickens will be torn down in a short time. All admirers of that great novelist will remember that when Miss Flite, in "Bleak House," met the Jarndyce heirs in Lincoln's Inn, she invited them to her lodgings. "Slipping us out at a little side gate," says the story, "the old lady stopped most unexpectedly in the narrow back street, part of some courts and lanes immediately outside the walls of the Inn." This gate is immediately opposite the old "ship tavern," which, as "The Sol's Arm," figures in the same novel, is now to be demolished. It was in the long run that the inquest of "Nemil" was held, and "Little Swells," the vocalist, was wont to enliven the company. Directly across the way is the house in whose attic Miss Flite lived, while on the ground floor of the same edifice was the marine shop of "Krook," in which such terrible events afterwards happened.

THE PRINCE'S DOINGS.

The Prince of Wales, after attending the Leeds musical festival, which the United States ambassador, Thomas F. Bayard, and Mrs. Bayard also visited, went to Kempton Park races Thursday and Friday, and today, after the races, he starts for Deerpden, where great preparations have been made by Lord and Lady Wm. Beresford to entertain him.

CORNERING SUGAR.

It is learned that France is now practically out of the sugar market, exporting little or no sugar. This is due, it is said, to a "corner" in beet sugar. The advance of a French product has had a sympathetic action in the market and has been a factor in raising the price to 11 shillings per cwt., an advance of 1s. 6d. within a few weeks. A larger "corner" than that of the French syndicate was, it is supposed, recently attempted. A great insurance company of London was approached with a proposition that it insure sugar in different parts of the world to the value of £1,000,000. This company canvassed other companies with a view of getting them to cover part of risk. Inquiries, however, returned doubtful. What quantities of sugar had been actually purchased, and a question arose as to whether special rates were meant to apply on this insurance. The proposal, therefore, fell through, but it caused much talk in the sugar market.

NOTE TO RUSSIA FROM THE KAISER.

Emperor William being away from Berlin, political dullness reigned during the past week. The Bundesrath, however, meets this week and the agrarian depression will be one of the first subjects discussed by that body. The agrarians have been active throughout the summer. They have made alliances and have understandings with the whole of the Right and part of the center party, and they think they will have a majority this time. The chief subject of speculation recently has been the contents of Emperor William's letter to the Czar and the whole of the political and not Count von Moltke, the Emperor's aide-de-camp, who took the message to the Emperor of Russia, has started on his return to Berlin with an autograph letter from the Czar. The Count was everywhere received in the kindest manner. In an audience which he had with the Czar, the latter spoke in a flattering manner of the Emperor of Germany.

According to one account the Emperor's letter to the Czar was nothing more than an invitation for him to be present at a shooting party to be held at Trakonen, near Eydkuhnen, on the Russian frontier, and Emperor Nicholas is said to have replied that his decision would depend upon the health of the Empress.

GOVERNMENT SECRETS BOUGHT WITH FRENCH GOLD.

The Cologne espionage affair is developing widely, important information having been obtained since arrest of the men presumed to be French officers or agents of the Government of France. Maj. Von Kalk, of the War Ministry, and Capt. Von Thuenel, of the general staff, have arrived at Cologne in order to investigate the matter. A number of further arrests have been made. In addition a woman named Richter has been arrested at Magdeburg on the charge of having acted as the paid medium of communication between a French army officer and an employee of the Gruesson steel works, who furnished the French officer, through her, with drawings and models of the iron-clad forts, guns and their carriages, etc., to be used inside these forts, and with valuable plans of German defenses. The arrest of this couple is said to have been brought about by the fact that the woman and the employee of the Gruesson works had been noticed spending a large amount of French gold. This aroused suspicion and their arrest followed. The preliminary inquiry into the case is now said to be nearly complete and the whole matter will soon be submitted to the central military authorities in Berlin. Some new arrests have also been made in Berlin, including that of Mme. Suverine, the widow of a major in the Russian army. The evidence thus far obtained seems to show, beyond any doubt, that the models and parts of guns and rifles of the Krupp works at Essen as well as the Gruesson works, at Magdeburg, besides the frontier cities have passed through the hands of the accused the past year. The case will be tried in the Imperial courts at Leipzig within a week.

THE ELBE-CRATHIE DISASTER.

A dispatch received at Berlin from Rotterdam says that the action of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company against the owners of the British steamship Crathie, which sank in collision early during the present year, has been commenced. The plaintiffs contended that no watch was kept on board the Crathie, and that had the latter altered her course the collision would have been averted. Counsel for the owners of the Crathie claim that there was no proof that she collided with the Elbe and that, moreover, the watch kept on board the last-named steamship was inadequate. Finally the representatives of the owners of the Crathie claimed counter-damages against the North German Lloyd Steamship Company for the delay and damage to the British steamship at Rotterdam, after she had put in some time after the collision. Judgment will be delivered on Nov. 6.

BRITISH TRADE BOOMING.

British trade returns show increases in the customs and excise receipts, which offer assurance of a large surplus for the next budget. Trade is improving in every direction, especially with America, Australia, Argentina and South Africa. Treasury reports, Board of Trade returns, railway traffic, stock exchange operations, all tell of an unbroken story of restored confidence and unbroken business activity. The shipbuilding trade on the Clyde and at Newcastle has improved greatly during the last month, with orders from several lines for new steamships and contracts for foreign naval work. The shipments of coal from Scotland and Wales are also increasing largely. The cotton and woolen trades were seldom in better condition, with the demand exceeding the supply, and the price rising. The consumption of cotton is growing steadily, with improved trade. Mr. Thomas Ellison, the chief expert at Liverpool, writes that the mill stocks of Great Britain are only slightly larger than they were a year ago, but that continental spinners are well supplied. His annual report, to be issued in the middle of the month, will be unusually important.

THIS IS DIFFERENT.

Though the Foreign Office professes to be satisfied with the full and prompt acceptance by the Peking Government of the ultimatum forwarded to it by the British Government demanding the degradation of Liu Ping Cheng, Viceroy of Szechuen, for his connection with the Szechuen riots, the trouble growing out of the overt hostility of the Chinese to the British is that the Peking Government is not prepared to accept the demands of the British Government. The movements of the British squadron in the Yang Tse Kiang show that the tension in relations between Great Britain and China has hardly been relaxed by the acceptance of the ultimatum. Vice-Admiral Buller, instead of ceasing to demonstrate the pressure that is being brought to bear on the Peking Government, keeps under orders the British warships at every point where they were stationed before the Tsung Li Yamen apparently conceded the British demands. The warship Aeolus has gone to Wu Chang, where Vice-Admiral Buller is charged to present to Cheng Cheh, the Viceroy, the demands relative to the inquiry into the Ku Cheng massacre. Chang Cheh Tung is a notorious hater of foreigners, and Wu Chang is the center of the production of the pamphlets and placards inciting the populace to the murder of Europeans. No overt act of hostility that would justify Great Britain in demanding his removal from office can be traced to him despite his known antipathy to foreigners. The exact nature of the demands that will be presented to him has not transpired. A strong feature of Vice-Admiral Buller's mission is that he is directed to deliver the British dispatches directly to Chang Cheh, instead of negotiating through Peking. It is expected by the Foreign Office that the Viceroy will concede the demands.

CHINA TAUGHT A LESSON.

Englishmen have derived great satisfaction from China's immediate submission to the Foreign Office's ultimatum, and from the impression produced in Europe by this peremptory demand supported as it was by a naval demonstration. The offending Viceroy was degraded by an imperial edict without an hour's delay. What is called the long arm of England, the navy, was raised menacingly, and that was enough without the delivery of a blow. The degrading of Liu Ping Cheng may be nothing more than a temporary suspension, although it is decided for life, and the mandarins of other provinces have been punished; but China has received a moral lesson, and England's power in the East has been shown in the sight of Russia. While France and Russia have been intriguing for the control of the Chinese policy, and Germany has been cautiously holding aloof from a dread of injuring her foreign trade, England has shown that she is not afraid of the influence throughout the world. Nothing gratifies the average Englishman more than a stroke of this kind, with proof of the utility of a costly fleet.

THE SCHOOL QUESTION IN ENGLAND.

Great momentum has been imparted to the discussion of the question of state aid for voluntary or sectarian schools by the appearance of Cardinal Vaughan's letter in the Times. He has proposed a basis of compromise on the part of the churchmen, Roman Catholics and Wesleyans interested in preserving these schools. He holds that any school offering facilities for religious instruction should be maintained at the expense of the state. His proposal is not definite, but apparently he favors some sort of a compromise, for every pupil trained in religious schools.

The Archbishop of Canterbury has called a private conference of churchmen identified with voluntary schools. Scores of letters have appeared in the Times on this question from all sources. One of the most curious facts brought out is by Mr. Aubrey, who shows that Mr. Gladstone, 25 years ago, forecast the present controversy and favored education entirely secular in public hours, with the largest facilities for religious teaching outside these hours, but was compelled by Nonconformist agitation after his policy. Rev. Jos. Parker has replied to the cardinal's letter, asserting that the only way out of the difficulty in rate-supported schools is to withdraw religion from the control of the state. If we cannot agree upon a common religion, he asks, how can we agree to levy a common rate in the support of any and every kind of religious teaching? The Congregational Union at Brighton has taken a similar view, and recommends the formation of a national committee to resist any further endowment of sectarian schools. London Nonconformists and other religious bodies have declared their hostility to state aid for voluntary schools, and have demanded the extension of board schools.

This controversy has grown out of the dual system created by Mr. Forster's Education Act. Board schools were organized with ample sources of financial supply in local taxation; voluntary schools were allowed to draw an adequate degree of support from the state if subjected to the inspection of a local board and operated under the conscience clause. The board schools, with increasing rates, have flourished, while the voluntary schools have cost 10 shillings less per pupil, and have barely held their own. In fact, they have often declined, and sometimes been closed altogether. Some local boards have gone out of their way to harass these schools, and Mr. Ackland, while Minister of Education, enforced the sanitary rules against them most rigorously, and appeared anxious to compel many of them to close their doors, so that the board schools could be opened in their place. In the last election the Friends of Church, Wesleyan and Roman Catholic schools strongly opposed the Liberal candidates, and are now demanding that the Unionist Government shall come to their rescue with a new act of Parliament. Lord Salisbury and Mr. Balfour have apparently warned the leaders of the movement that they cannot expect the Ministry to act unless they can agree in advance among themselves on what they want. Probably the Ministry would prefer to have these rival schools continue to disagree, for that would justify the Government's inaction. The largest majority in Parliament would be unsafe if this question of paying for the support of sectarian schools outright from the State Treasury or by local rates were brought forward, especially when neither Roman Catholics nor Churchmen are willing to surrender control of them to the district boards.

TIRED OF THE MADAGASCAR WAR.

The French are becoming irritable over the long delay in conquering a peace in Madagascar. News of the capture of Antananarivo by Gen. Duchesne is anxiously awaited and will probably come speedily, for he is near the town, and the Hovas have not as yet any capacity for fighting. It hardly seems possible that the French, after their toilsome march, can be defeated; but the occupation of the Malagasy capital will hardly compensate for the loss of 6,000 men by fever and exposure and the great expense of the expedition, which already exceeds $20,000,000. M. de Lan-esson, formerly governor of Indochina, has declared that when the town is taken the French will not be better off than they were ten years ago in the island. The Madagascar question threatens to upset the Ministry when the Chambers settle down for the season of lively politics.

A PROSPECTIVE DELGOA COUP.

The King of Portugal will arrive in London on Oct. 31. He will be received by the Prince of Wales. Later he will visit the Queen at Balmoral. On his return to London a banquet in his honor will be given, and afterwards he will visit Manchester and Glasgow, where reception committees will be tendered him. Besides public, he has serious private business that calls him to London. He wants to negotiate a large loan, and it is understood he will discuss with the Minister Salisbury and the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, the purchase by Great Britain of Delagoa Bay, on the east coast of Africa. It is known that Mr. Chamberlain specially desires to mark his regime in the Colonial Office by a Delagoa coup.

"SOMETHING BROKE" IN HER HEAD.

A notable loss of memory, involving a confusion of personality, is engaging the attention of scientists. A lady who was sitting on the promenade at Brighton found herself unable to tell her name, address or anything of her life. The authorities, not being able to find anything about her, had her sent to the workhouse. There was nothing on her person that would lead to her identification. She conversed as an educated woman on all things around her, but her mind was a blank as far as the past was concerned. Her husband, who is a civil engineer in London, turned up last night, and was recognized by the woman. She had no idea of how she got to Brighton. The doctors say that while she was struggling to remember her name she often said it was Tribby.

CABLE NOTES.

Sir Charles and Lady Tupper returned recently to the Canadian office from a long visit to Scotland, from which Sir Charles Tupper, who has been really well since the death of Sir John Thompson, has derived much benefit.

M. Carvelho, the manager of the Paris Opera Comique, has engaged a young English singer, named Marie Lloyd, who will make her first appearance on the stage in David's romantic opera Lalla Rookh. Miss Lloyd has received her musical studies at the Paris Conservatoire, and was awarded the principal prize at the annual examination.

Prince Bismarck is well and hearty, except that he has been suffering slightly from neuralgia of the face. Dr. Eisonoch, however, had forbidden the ex-Chancellor's intended visit to his wife's grave at Varzin.

A mill owner at Zarnitz, near Oppeln, has invented a new military rifle which is now being tested by the War Department. It fires twenty shots a minute, without reloading. It has other advantages, and the rifle expert commission of Spandau has pronounced in favor of the invention.

The concession granted to the New York Life Insurance Company in 1872, to do business in Prussia, has been extended in order, revoking the concession goes into effect on Nov. 1. The New York Life Insurance Company is the third company to be treated in this manner, and all the steps taken by the companies to have the orders rescinded have been futile. The coming post laureate will be either Sir Edwin Arnold or Alfred Austin.

The project to erect an opera house in the Haymarket on the old site of Her Majesty's Theater has been dropped.

CHAPTER I.

AN UNWELCOME VISITOR.
We come upon them strolling hand in hand along a mountain pathway.
The sun of the world is setting, but to them the gorgeous colors of the cloud-streaked western sky are emblematic of a fairer dawn than ever earth had known before, for the sun of love has risen upon them, and for them, and it was but now that the mists of uncertainty were dissipated when his heart found utterance in words, and hers gave a response whose faltering accents belied her trust and happiness.
We all know substantially what must have been said; the precise form matters little, and when it comes to that, I think most men make poor enough display of language on this momentous question. The prearranged speech somehow won't speak itself, the prepared gestures, or caresses, or whatnot, have a way of failing to work, and that man who, forgetting his ordinary, desperately stammers, "I love
you," and waits with powerless arms,
trembling and choking, for the answer,
is as eloquent and, when he deserves success, as effective as the situation demands.

The important thing in this case was that the young man and the young woman had made themselves and that man who, forgetting his ordinary, desperately stammers, "I love
you," and waits with powerless arms,
trembling and choking, for the answer,
is as eloquent and, when he deserves
success, as effective as the situation
demands.

"What is it, Wanga?"
The boy made no reply, and the man giving vent to an impatient grunt as
he saw the peaceful couple in the path,
lay down again.

"It's nothing but a couple of tramps," remarked Will, in a low voice, "what
made you so frightened?"
"Oh, I don't know, nothing, I suppose, but they seemed dreadful. He was looking straight at me."

"That was natural. Funny name he has, isn't it?"
Elsie did not respond. They walked along in silence for a few minutes. Will wondering why she should have been disturbed, and gradually working himself into some perturbation over the simple occurrence. He hoped it had passed from her mind when she said:
"I don't remember that I ever saw a negro in the woods before, did you?"

"Yes, servants of the rich people passing through granite on their way to the hotels at the lakes."
"That isn't what I mean. I never saw one alone, before."
"Wanga isn't alone."

"Will you know—never mind. I suppose they're only tramps or hunters.
I wish they hadn't frightened me so.
I won't think of it any more. What are you going to say to papa?"
Will answered rather sulkily:
"You wait and see."

Elsie laughed, a little uneasily, it seemed, and they went on again in silence.

They had not strayed more than a mile up the mountain path, and it was but a few minutes, therefore, before they arrived at Elsie's home. It was a rambling old building with low studded rooms and great fireplaces.
In front was a rustic garden of flowers that impressed more by its taste in selection and cultivation. Holy-hocks, like fat and contented old ladies gathered at the minister's tea party, were much in evidence, and sunflowers nodded to the departed sun and the approaching lovers as they went in through the gate.

Nicholas Warren's house was commonly regarded as within the village limits, although to those who knew it it would have seemed to be considerably removed from the center of population.
The meeting house and the cross-roads store were fully a quarter of a mile distant, and but two or three doors intervened, nevertheless they were all in the same block, so to speak, and one felt quite in touch with life if he could but see his nearest neighbor's house through the foliage.

As he walked to the house between hollyhocks, Will felt a wild hope that Mrs. Springer was making one of her intermittent calls upon the Warrens, and then he blushed at the recognition of his own weakness.

shy glance upward.
"No, you didn't. Say it please."
"Well, I do. There!" and she looked him in the eyes with roughish bravery.
She knew she was dodging.
"Aren't you a humbug, though?" exclaimed Will, laughing outright, as he felt a sense of mastery growing upon him in the face of her evident embarrassment. "See here, and hold up her face in his hands and held it up,
"say it after me. I love you."

"I'm awful glad," said Elsie, trying to suppress a smile with a pouting her, but the result was as gentle a caress as if his brawny hands had been a woman's.
"Say I,"
"Love," obediently responded Elsie.

"Oh, I love you, Will," she cried, yielding all at once, "I love you and you know it."
"Yes," he said, passing his arm around her waist and starting down the path again, "I know it, and I am very happy."

Elsie uttered a little exclamation of fright and shrank close against him.
"Whose afraid now?" he asked jocously, did you see a snake?"
"No," she whispered, all of a tremble,
"look there!"

Will looked in the direction she indicated and saw, indeed, an unusual sight, but not one to inspire terror.
They were passing through what had once been a dense wood, now the trees were scattered, the lumbermen having made many an incursion there for the best spruce, hemlock and pines. Under a tree whose gnarled trunk had saved it from the axe were two men.

One was stretched at full length, asleep, his face turned toward them, showing in its deep brown the effects of long exposure to all kinds of weathers. The other was sitting up, his legs crossed under him, leaning against the tree and staring at the lovers.
He was a black man, or boy rather,
for it did not seem as if he had passed his teens. His arms hung loose and motionless at his side. Not even his lustrous eyes stirred.

I have said that he was black, but his skin had not the rich deep hue of the full-blooded African. It was but noticeably darker than that of his companion, who was unmistakably a Caucasian, and his lips were not overthick, or his nose flat; but he was clearly of a different race.

As Will took them in with a single glance, he almost wished that they would offer to molest him that he might show the side of his side that he never might quail at confessions of what lay deepest in his heart, he had no element of physical fear in his make-up. His heart bounded and his nerves became tense as he thought he noticed a disposition on the part of the men to accost him; for aroused apparently by a touch from the black boy's foot, the white man half raised himself and said:

"What is it, Wanga?"
The boy made no reply, and the man
giving vent to an impatient grunt as
he saw the peaceful couple in the path,
lay down again.

"It's nothing but a couple of tramps,"
remarked Will, in a low voice, "what
made you so frightened?"
"Oh, I don't know, nothing, I suppose, but they seemed dreadful. He ly, for though no log burned there now, it glowed during at least nine months of the year, and even in midsummer it was not unusual to resort to a light fire of an evening.

Granpa Kirk was crouched in a similar chair, fast asleep, on the other side of the fireplace. It was all just as usual in the hour or two after supper, save that Elsie herself was not in her usual place or at her usual occupation.

When she entered the room she left Will's side, and went to her mother, kneeling down and burying her face in the good lady's lap. The mother knew, and stroked her daughter's head gently. Mr. Warren looked up with idle interest.

"Nick," began Will, in a confident tone, then he stopped short, confused at having fallen into this familiar address by which everybody in Granite greeted Elsie's father. "Excuse me," stammered the young man, feeling worse than he had expected to, "I mean Mr. Warren."

"EH?" remarked Mr. Warren, without suspecting the situation at all.
"What's the matter?"
"Elsie and I want to get married."

That wasn't what Will had meant to say at all. He had supposed that he would have said, "I love you," and he

Our New Story.

An Award of $100 to Be Made to Readers in Connection With Its Publication.

Read the Conditions Given Below.

1. The London ADVERTISER Printing Company will pay $100 in prizes to the readers from whom it receives by mail at the publication office, Richmond street, London, Ont., the most nearly complete and absolute solution of "When the War Was Over," as it shall be disclosed in the final chapter of the story to be published Friday, Nov. 15, in the London ADVERTISER.
The following list of prizes is offered to those readers who send us a correct solution of the story on the conditions mentioned below:

1st. Trip to New York and return... $25
2nd. Trip to Chicago and return... 15
3rd. Lady's lambkin collar... 12
4th. Lady's silver watch... 10
5th. Set of Thackeray's works, complete... 8
6th. Six cash prizes, $5 each... 30

Total $100

2. The first prize awarded will be for the explanation which comes nearest to the true solution; the second prize to the person sending the explanation next nearest, and so on for the third and fourth prizes. The remaining six prizes of $5 each will be awarded to the persons sending the explanations next nearest to the fifth prize, as the judges may determine their merit.

3. The ADVERTISER is pre-eminently a family newspaper, and its daily installment of a high-grade serial story is a feature intended to specially commend it to the home circle. To emphasize and advertise the fact that the ADVERTISER is a newspaper peculiarly suitable for women's reading, the further condition is made that the prizes shall be only awarded for explanations sent in by women and girls. All may read; but only women and girls may guess—and win the prizes.

"When the War Was Over" will continue in daily installments, from Monday, Oct. 7, until Friday, Nov. 8, on which date all but the final chapter will have been published. The interval between Friday, Nov. 8, and Tuesday, Nov. 12, 6 o'clock p.m., inclusive, will be allowed for forwarding of guesses, and the final chapter will be published in the ADVERTISER on Friday, Nov. 15. Under no consideration whatever will guesses be received from any source and be considered prior to Friday, Nov. 8, or from city readers after 6 o'clock p.m. of Saturday, Nov. 9. Out-of-town readers have a time allowance for mailing, and their guesses must reach the office not later than 6 o'clock p.m., Nov. 12. For no reason whatever will guesses from any source be received or considered after 6 o'clock p.m., Nov. 12.

READ THE RULES OF THE COM-PETITION.

1. But one solution can be entered by a reader.
2. All guesses must be sent by mail and in no other way, plainly addressed to "Prize Story Editor," the London ADVERTISER, Richmond street, London, Ont.

3. Inquiries not considered fully answered here will receive proper attention if addressed to "Prize Story Editor," the London ADVERTISER, Richmond street, London, Ont.

4. The prizes will be awarded under the foregoing general conditions, according to the best judgment of the judges appointed by the ADVERTIS-ER, and they will have complete control and final decision in all matters relating to the contest.

5. "A complete and correct solution" can be made in the reader's own language, and in the number of words necessary for an absolute statement of the mystery and such material facts of the plot revealed in the development of the story as may be deemed necessary by the judges to a clear and full explanation of the mystery.

The names and addresses of the winner or winners of the cash prizes will be published in the ADVERTISER at the earliest date possible after publication of the final chapter.

No condition of subscription to the ADVERTISER is imposed. Guessers must be women and girls, and necessarily they must be readers of the ADVERTISER, but they may read the story in the ADVERTISER taken by any member of the family, and need not be regular subscribers themselves in order to enter the competition. While only women and girls may guess and win the prizes, they can receive help as to their guesses from any member of their family, or from all the family.

brother, H. N. Gustin, 67 Wellington street, Woodstock.

—Mrs. G. E. Leach has returned to Tilsonburg from a three weeks' visit in London and Woodstock.

—Miss Edith Hartson, of Queen's Avenue choir, sings in the Methodist Church at Melbourne tonight.

—Organizer H. Gibbins, of this city, has organized a second council of the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends in St. Thomas.

—The congregation of Bond Street Congregational Church, Toronto, denies that it has recalled Rev. Dr. Wild to be pastor.

—Miss Lorena Hartson, of Queen's Avenue choir, leaves today for Warwick to take part in the harvest home concert there.

—The Bishop of Huron preached earnest sermons at the Memorial and St. John's churches yesterday, morning and evening respectively.

—Among the London guests at the Gymkhana assembly of the Hamilton Jockey Club on Friday night were Adam Beck, J. R. Kilgour and A. B. Patterson.

—G. R. Armitage died at Woodstock the other day. He learned his trade as a machinist in London, his earlier life having been spent on his father's farm near Lucan.

—Mrs. Withers, of St. John's Wood, London, Eng., arrived by the Aurania, and is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Rothwell, Colborne street. Mrs. Withers will remain in Canada for two months.

—Rev. James Fritchard, of Forest, exchanged pulpits with Rev. J. G. Stuart, B.
A., of Knox Church, London South, yesterday, and preached two very interesting and instructive sermons.

—Bro. John A. Geddes, the popular chief ranger of Court Macdonald, A. O. U.
F., is visiting Detroit, Port Huron and other western cities. Sub-Chief Ranger Bro. Chas. Hawkins will look after the interests of the court during the absence of the chief ranger.

—Mrs. T. Cullen and Miss Cullen, London; Mrs. J. Scatcherd, Newbury; Mrs.
Harris, London; Mrs. Richards, Melbourne;
Rev. and Mrs. G. H. Henderson, Sarnia;
Mrs. Bond, Sarnia, were guests of friends at Alma College while in attendance at the Missionary Convention.

—The London West Council was called to meet on Saturday night, but a postponement was made until tonight, as some of the members were unable to attend. Councilor Moore has received a letter from the London Electric Company stating that if the electric light bills for the past ten months are not soon paid the village would be left in darkness. The total amount due the company is $677.

—Toronto Globe: Mr. and Mrs. Dig-nam, formerly of 250 Rushmore road, have now got settled in their new home, 255 St. George street. Mrs. Dig-nam is as earnest and energetic as ever in her efforts for the advancement of art, especially in connection with the work of the Women's Art Association of Canada. Councilor Moore has presidency, has spread out strong and vigorous branches to Montreal, London, Winnipeg and other cities.

—The death is announced of Mrs. Thos.
Parkinson, of this city, after an illness extending over five years. Deceased was one of a family of triplets, and had resided in London for the past 21 years. She leaves a husband and six children—Thomas, Fred, George and Benjamin, one daughter, Lizzie, living at home, and a married daughter residing in the Northwest. Her age was 59.
The bereaved family will have the hearty sympathy of a large circle of friends.

—Rev. Thos. S. Johnson, who has accepted the pastorate of Adelaide Street Baptist Church, preached his inaugural sermons yesterday to good sized congregations. The reverend gentleman's text in the morning was taken from II. Corinthians, ii, 15-17, his subject being the obligation of the preacher of the Gospel to confine himself to that work, proclaiming God's truth whether it pleased his hearers or not,
and the grave responsibility resting on those who hear the message. In the evening Mr. Johnson preached from Job xix, 25-27, his subject being "The Living Redeemer." Both discourses were impressive and practical, and were listened to with close attention.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Dr. Beemer, of the London Asylum for the Insane, returned from Kalso, B. C., a few days ago. He spent a brief holiday with Mr. M. Buck, a former Londoner, now a successful mining engineer in the Rockies.
Mr. Buck has entirely recovered from a severe attack of typhoid fever. While Dr.
Beemer was en route west on the Northern Pacific, he had a miraculous escape from death. The express on which he traveled collided with another train, one car climbing on the top of another. Dr. Beemer happened to be in the uppermost carriage, where only one passenger was killed, but in the lower cars a number of persons lost their lives. In the shock, Dr. Beemer received injuries that rendered him insensible for some time, but he pluckily proceeded on his journey, and is now all right.

IN THEIR NEW BUILDING.

The brickwork of the new Dundas Street Center Methodist Church, is fast nearing completion. Within the last few days, the energies of the contractors have been devoted chiefly to the tower, which will soon be finished. Some hard work has been done in putting the framework which will support the roof and the galleries in position, and that portion of the structure is now in a forward condition also. The lecture hall and Sunday school rooms will be ready for occupation within the next two weeks, and one week from next Sunday, the congregation, which, through the courtesy of the Board of Education, has been worshipping in the Collegiate Institute, will occupy the structure, and continue to hold all its services therein till the main auditorium is completed, which is expected to be some time in February. The trustees say that the entire building will cost $45,000, and an earnest attempt will be made by the congregation to start with the structure pretty nearly free from debt. The opening services promise to be most interesting.

THERE IS NOT a more dangerous class of disorders than those which affect the breathing organs. Nullify this danger with Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil—a purveyor of acknowledged efficacy. It cures soreness and lameness when applied externally, as well as swollen neck and crick in the back; and, as an inward specific, possesses most substantial claims to public confidence.
