Laying of Dundas Street Pavement Is Postponed

the Work Will Not Be Commenced Till Spring.

The Dundas street pavement was given another hoist at the council meeting, and the construction of it will be delayed until next spring. Progress has been made, however, in that the contract was let to the Barber Company, and the bylaw given its third reading. There was quite a discussion on the question, the ratepayers being represented by Mr. C. H.

Ald. Stevely hoped that the pavement be not built this year. Many ratepayers were much opposed to it. City Engineer Graydon had pointed out the north side owing to the construction of the sewer. The street railway company was going to lay new rails, a fact that would be a decided advantage to everyone living on that street. He favored Ald. Garratt's mo-all would be well. Mr. H. C. Green.

Mr. H. C. Green stated that all the ratepayers on the street wanted the pavement, and wanted it badly. The roadbed could not be put in a good condition, and the work could not be completed before the winter. The contract should be let, and the work commenced in May, and finished in the best time of the year.

Ald. Garratt was informed that a representative of the Barber Asphalt Company was afraid that they could not get enough broken stone to complete the contract this year. The company could get all its material ready, if the time were extended. He would let the contract, give the bylaw its third reading, and let the company have plenty of time to get the material on the ground. Then the work would be done more satisfactorily. Ald. San Francisco, Aug. 7 .- In pursuance of its yearly custom to send representatives to visit foreign countries and the commercial and manufacturing centers of the world, the Japanese Government has sent to America this year seven prominent army engineers and managers to study the latest railway methods and improvements. The Nippon Maur on Monday brought three Japanese railroad engineers, two railroad managers, one harbor engineer from the financial department of the Japanese Government, and one steamship operating engineer. The Japanese Government, one of the engineers said, will shortly undertake the building of 6,000 miles of additional steam railways, making a total of more than 11,000 miles in operation in Japan.

Backed by her alliance with Great Britain, her first step on the conclusion on the struggle from which she emerged so victoriously was to seek agreements or treaties with European nations, having for their object the maintenance of peace and the further ance of the commercial interests of all Singularly enough, the first Power to conclude such an agreement with the Asiatic empire was France, the ally of her enemy in the late war, and now comes word that Russia herself has signed treaties with her relating to maxigation, commerce, and fisheries. Not only that, but the announcement is made that these treaties are to be followed by a general political treaty similar in nature to that between Japan and France.

By this commercial treaty, the signatories undertake reciprocally to apply the most-favoured nation clause, the subjects of each enjoying equal opportunities with natives in their respective territories, with the single exception of Kwantung Province. Very with her. liberal concessions are made by Russia to Jananese fishermen on the Russian coast and Amur River, they being permitted to erect sheds for drying fish and to repair vessels, and in view of the relatively low cost of Japanese coolie labor, it is not unreasonable to suppose that the Japanese will eventually acquire a monopoly of Northern Pacific fisheries. The forthcoming political treaty, it is understood, will guarantee to each Power the integrity of the possessions of the other. Moreover, outside of such possessions, Russia will be allowed to retain her railroads in Northern Manchuria, Russia, in return, acquiescing in Japan's claims to suzerainty in Corea. Ballplayers who aspire to lead the league in batting spend most their spare time in watching their own and the averages of the other swatting heroes, playing the great American game. And much comment do they make about the way the scorers mark up the averages.

The scorers in each city, where there is a hefty boy who can hit 'em where they ain't, are always accused of padding the averages of the popular afternoon that the final game of this Summary: idol. Just now there is a rumor among the American League ballplayers to the effect that the St. Louis scorers can see Niles, whether he makes a hit or not, and that they cannot see George Stone, when he does make a hit.

Not so many years ago the fact Chicago held simultaneously in two major league pennant races called for considerable exploitation and felicitation whenever it happened. Those were the dark days before Chicago was renamed Pennantville. This year both of Chicago's ball teams have been out in front for so long it was the occasion of extensive comment when the White Sox finally let go their tenuous grip last Friday, and left only one of Chicago's champion teams in the lead. So much discussion has arisen and so Rochester0000000-tle history interesting. The White Sox held the lead continuously from May 2 to Aug. 2, a period of three months to a day. The Cubs have held their lead unbroken since May 30, and seem almost certain to retain it continuously to Oct. 7, which will give them a record of over four months straight. Since the opening week of the season, when changes were so rapid as to be meaningless, the Sox have been in the lead three different times and have been as low as fourth. On April 18 they took the lead for the first time this year, but on April 21 were in a triple tie with New York and Cleveland. Then for two days the Sox were second to New York. On April 24 and 25 they were fourth, with Philadelphia leading. Next day they were third, and on April 27 they tied Philadelphia and Detroit. On the following day they went into the lead for the second time, but for only one day, being second to Philadelphia until May 2, when the Sox regained the lead and held it until displaced by Detroit last Friday. The Cubs were tied for the lead until April 16, when they went ahead alone. Two days later Cincinnati tied them, but they resumed the lead on April 19 and retained it until tied by New York on May 2. For the two following days the Cubs were second to the Giants, then the two rivals were tied on May 5 and 6. From May 7 to 21 the Giants led, with the Cubs second all the time. But on the 21st the Cubs tied them and for a week there was a neck and neck battle, first Chicago and then New York being in the lead, until on Decoration Day the Cubs took a firm grasp on first place. Every day since they have been strengthening that grip, until now it practically is unbreakable. One year ago today the Cubs were leading New York by a margin of only five games. On the same date a year ago the Sox were in fourth place, eight games behind Philadelphia.

States market Bradstreet's says: "The No buils offered. wool-growing districts , have been cleaned up of the new clip at an unusually early date this year, and interest is now centered in the east, where new wools, especially Oregon and Montana grades, are arriving very slowly. Manufacturers are taking new wools almost as fast as they are opened, and since the dealers were able to secure similar grades at lower prices than the heavy purchases of the manufacturers were made at, there is a very much stronger and better feeling in the market, with greatly increased activity. Demand is still largely for fine staple fleece and territory wools grading three-eighths blood or above, practically wools suitable for making worsteds. There is also a good demand for high-grade fine clothing territory wool. The tendency of prices is strongly upward, and many of the grades most in demand have been advanced during the past few

THRILLING FEAT

Leaps From Fire Truck Upon Runaway Horse and Saves Two Lives.

New York, Aug. 6 .- The New York fire department's brilliant record for when John Nickolus, many times a hero, saved a woman and her fourmonths-old baby boy from death, although he and his comrades knew the man himself had only one chance in a hundred of saving his own life in his gallant attempt.

Nickolus leaped from the runningboard of the truck, which was going at high speed, flung his arms around the neck of a runaway horse, and, after being dragged a block, halted the

With Nickolus hanging on to the stanchions on the sides, the big apparatus lurched to One Hundred and Forty-first street.

Bell Frightens Horse. Until the truck had been rushed to Brook avenue, the path had been clear. and the driver had nothing to worry about, excepting to keep a tense grip

As the great truck, with its wildly clanging bell, whizzed up to the spot, the carriage horse took fright, and with a burst of speed that jolted Mrs. Leonard and the child against the cushions, started in the same direction as that in which the firemen were go-

Fate was with Nickolus. While Mrs. Leonard was hugging her child to her breast with one hand and clinging to the carriage side with the other the horse veered, and the fireman was within two feet of the animal.

In sight of the score of persons who had been attracted by the runaway. Nickolus, after bracing one leg against the running board, made a flying lean. As his sturdy arms swung about the horse's neck the other firemen recovered from their amazement, and, seeing that Nickolus had a firm grip, they all the way down the street. But those who voiced their admiration did not know that Nickolus was suffering agony. The horse's forefeet battered him, he was swung and twisted bruises. But he clung-clung like mer." grim death, with the voice of the wo-Toronto, Aug. 7.-Crushed to death by having a 1,200-pound core fall on him was the fate of a Macedonian named Tony Chris at the Canada Foundry, at Berkeley and Front streets, about 10 o'clock this morning. " In company with several other men, Chris was working in the pipe shop. They had been casting some big pipes, and were lifting the core out of the mold. The end of the core was attached to a chain from a derrick, and had been lifted up about four feet clear of the ground. The core was twelve feet long and weighed in the neighborhood of 1,200 pounds. Chris had his back turned to it, and was in the act of walking away, when the head of the core suddenly gave way and the huge mass toppled over. Chris was struck on the head and back and knocked down, the heavy mass falling on him, crushing him terribly. When he was extricated he was dying.
