ENOUGH MEN HERE.

In yesterday's Nugget appeared a statement, well vouched for, to the effect that advertisements are being scattered broadcast in Seattle and other coast cities for several thousand men to be employed in railway construction in Dawson.

If the facts are as related—and there seems to be no reason for doubting their authenticity—warning should be sent to the outside calling the attention of men who might be seeking such employment to the conditions which they are certain to meet with in this country.

There is no reason to believe under any circumstances that they would be given work beyond the closing of navigation, the result being that the country would be filled with idle men at the approach of winter.

Past experience has proven that such a condition is most unfortunate, no matter from what standpoint it is regarded. Men who are compelled to spend a winter in Dawson without work are certain to be reduced to want before spring.

The country is not prepared to support 2,000 additional workmen, and unless the railroad company expects to transport them outside at the conclusion of construction work or give them employment during the entire winter it would be a palpable wrong to bring in so large a number of men.

As a matter of fact, there has never been any difficulty in securing all the men necessary for any purpose right in Dawson. It is not apparent, therefore, why the construction of a railroad from Dawson to the Forks should require the importation of so many laborers.

The United States congress has made an appropriation to cover the expense of transporting destitute Americans from Alaska to the States. Most of them were miners and prospectors who had sought in vain to make a stake from the ruby sands of Nome. The rush to that much-boomed camp resulted in more blasted hopes and disappointed expectations than the pens of the writers of a century will be able to describe.

Considering the fact that the population of this territory is only in the neighborhood of 20,000 the Yukon may easily lay claim to having one of the most elaborate—and incidentally most expensive—governments in the world.

A Washington city despatch states that President Roosevelt will shortly make two trips through the country. One trip will terminate at Springfield, Ill., and the other at San Antonio, Texas. If the president does not extend his itinerary somewhat he will not go through one-half the country. The average easterner's idea of the extent of the United States is decidedly vague.

If Dawson is to enjoy a celebration upon the Fourth of July, no time should be lost in organizing and preparing for the occasion. Committees should be at work by the first of next week and funds secured immediately to insure a successful celebration. Dawson has never as yet failed in observing the American national day and it is to be hoped that the same interest and enthusiasm will be manifested this year that has been observed in the past.

On Thursday, June 26, special services appropriate to coronation day will be held in the Churches of England throughout the world. The form of service will be the same for all, and in every particular will follow the ceremony which will take place at Westminster. St. Paul's church of Dawson will join with the other churches of the empire in observing the occasion which is fraught with such great significance to so many millions of people.

Seattle's new morning daily, the Washingtonian, is rapidly coming to the front in that centre of live, enterprising journalism. The Washingtonian has been making a successful fight upon certain dens of vice in Seattle with the result that the city council has taken action looking toward their suppression. The Washingtonian is one of the brightest, cleanest and newsiest papers that come to our desk.

Several mineral springs have been discovered in the vicinity of Dawson, the water from which possesses highly medicinal and invigorating qualities. Dawson may yet add to her laurels by becoming a popular resort for invalids. Should such prove to be the case, the old proverb that no one ever comes to the Klondike for their health will be smashed into smithereens.

F. C. Wade has certainly been accomplishing good work for the Yukon during his trip outside and abroad. Whatever else may be said of Wade his loyalty to the interests of the territory cannot be doubted.

Struck a Gusher. Oklahoma City, June 11.—An oil gusher has been struck at Red Fork which has been pronounced by experts as being one of the most promising discoveries in the Indian Territory oil fields. It was struck at a depth of 1,500 feet. Experts say the quality is first-class and the supply practically inexhaustible.

The Red Fork field has been under development for about a year, and this well is by far the best strike of oil yet made. The people of Red Fork are greatly excited and believe their field will eventually rival Beaumont. Many prospectors are arriving to look at the field.

GOLD STAR DISMANTLED

Machinery Will Be Used on the Thistle. It is expected that the La France will tow the Thistle down the river when her next trip down the river will receive her machinery and be completed. Manager Calderhead, of the Merchants' line, recently bought the Gold Star, a part of which will be used on the Thistle. The boiler of the Gold Star was taken out last fall, leaving in the way of machinery nothing but the engines, pumps and fittings. These will be put in the Thistle, but she will have a new boiler which will be purchased here. A portion of the house of the Gold Star will also be utilized on the new boat. When fully complete and fitted out the Thistle will in all respects be the equal of her sister ship, the La France. The engines of the Gold Star are powerful and with adequate boiler capacity she will hold her own with the speediest on the river and show a clean pair of heels to the Dawson-Whitehorse run.

Three Steamers Due to Arrive Tomorrow—The Nora Takes in Fortymile and Eagle.

The little Nora arrived last night at 5 o'clock with a light cargo and the following passengers: P. Folino, J. Colosimo, J. Adoni, L. Cruci, A. C. Popejay, Mrs. M. Faulk, G. Dahl and wife, Mrs. Ed. P. Little, W. A. Usher, C. W. Usher, A. Wells, C. Peckham and wife, H. Peckman, Bessie Chandon, Mrs. Kate Green, F. Hicks, and Miss Haynes. Owing to the light arrival of freight at Whitehorse, the Nora is making a special trip to Fortymile and Eagle, having left this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Upon the removal of the house from the Gold Star the hull will probably be converted into a coal barge. The Selkirk arrived at midnight last night with 195 tons of freight, including 151 head of cattle for the Pacific Cold Storage Company. She brought quite a quantity of mail and the following on her passenger list: C. E. Newton, Mrs. Newton, Mrs. E. H. Fletcher, J. Drefee, T. Arm-enrout, Charles DeSucca, F. H. Donahue, J. E. Mansfield, N. Abbott, Charles Proctor, D. Fairburn, William M. Redaker, G. S. Lacoste, C. B. Lamont, W. S. Lytel and C. V. Anthony. The Selkirk leaves for Whitehorse tonight at 8 o'clock. The Wilbur Crimmin came in last evening with 56 tons of freight and two barges in tow loaded with oats, potatoes and a miscellaneous cargo. She returns up river this evening at 8 o'clock. The following were her passengers down: S. Lehman, J. Steimel, H. Gift, A. Horn, A. H. Snyder, I. Forbes, J. Spratt, E. Sinclair, H. D. Cloes, G. B. Curtis, C. Federblade, E. Lewellyn, F. Ayerist, F. Bjorklund, E. F. Bloom, William Hill, J. O'Nea, Mrs. Whitehead, Mrs. Botelho and two children, Miss N. Larsen, Mrs. Duquette, Mrs. Marsh, M. D'Cluth, A. Kowsky, T. Buckley, J. Lenhaur, J. Donovan, P. Larkin, A. Mercereau, J. Copping, D. Brown, L. Femeyer, G. McCrady, J. Leam.

The Prospector leaves for Stewart river tonight at 8. She is advertising a shooting excursion for next Monday, the 23rd, to Fraser Falls, where after her arrival she will remain over a day for the purpose of allowing her passengers to enjoy a hunt.

Too Poor to Marry. Asbury Park, N. J., June 11.—The general synod of the Reformed Church of America, at last night's session, discussed the question: "May students in the seminary being educated for the ministry, marry while pursuing their studies?" Some members of the synod contended that the call to the ministry sometimes comes to the rich young man who is able to support a wife, and those argued that prohibition of this kind would serve as a hardship on such students. It was concluded that the poor student who was being educated at the expense of the board was handicapped in the way of matrimony and that he must perforce keep his carnal inclinations under curb until prosperous days. The report of the committee on education showed a large decrease in the number of candidates for the ministry.

Colorado Forest Fires. Denver, June 11.—Considerable anxiety is felt by federal and state land officials over the danger of forest fires in the mountains. At present there are three fires raging in Colorado and should the dry weather continue it is probable that a vast amount of damage will be done. For four days a fierce fire has been devastating the heavy woods near Red Cliff, in Eagle county. Near Reudi, fifty miles west of Leadville, another fire is raging, while the third is reported southwest of Morrison. It is declared the fires were all maliciously started.

An Aeronaut Killed. Kingston, N. Y., May 30.—Harry Hicks, an aeronaut, was killed at Kingston Point, a summer resort, today. He had been engaged to make daily balloon ascensions, and this afternoon was booked for his first exhibition. When the balloon had reached an altitude of about 2,000 feet, Hicks commenced the descent by means of a parachute, coming down slowly to about 800 feet above the Hudson river. For some reason Hicks lost his hold, and fell, striking headfirst on a sandbar in the river. Hicks was a nephew of Charles Kabrick, well known as a balloonist.

Buillett has appeared before Judge Kirkpatrick in the United States court here with a view to making application for the removal of John M. Mack as one of the receivers of the National Asphalt Company and the Asphalt Company of America. Judge Kirkpatrick said counsel for the other side should be notified and intimated that when the matter finally comes before him he will deny the application.

Travelers at Portland. Portland, June 3.—The national convention of the Travelers' Protective Association of America met here this morning. Col. Sam P. No business of importance was transacted at this morning's session and adjournment was taken until afternoon.

Captains Exonerated. New York, June 11.—Capt. Henry Catermole of the Staten Island ferry boat Middletown, and Capt. Henry S. Caravan Massacred. London, June 11.—The Vienna correspondent of the Daily Express says that a report has reached there from Constantinople to the effect that Arab tribesmen have massacred a caravan of wealthy merchants in the desert at a point 100 miles from Koweit in Asiatic Turkey. According to the Constantinople correspondent only twenty persons out of the 500 who composed the caravan, escaped.

Died on the Lucania. New York, June 31.—The steamer Lucania of the Cunard line arrived today from Liverpool and Queens-town with a large number of passengers. On Wednesday, May 28, Mrs. J. A. McArthur, a cabin passenger,

The Unhappy Englishman

You were to wreck two Englishmen at one end of some long, out-lying island in the Pacific ocean, and two Scotchmen at the other end, and you happened to pass that way a few years afterward, you would discover that the Englishmen had spoken a word to each other, because they were not introduced, but you would find that the Scotchmen had started a Calcutta society.

Why does an Englishman always look generally look askance at you, and why does he look at you so steadily right and left when he enters the dining-room of a hotel? Why does he prefer travelling in a single compartment to entering one of the smoking cars now attached to all the English trains? Why, on a steamer, does he smoke, read, and go up and down the deck like a wild beast all day long? Simply because he does not know how to eat or travel in the company of people who have not been introduced to him. At any rate, he does not associate with you, this man who you know him well, is the charming, hospitable and considerate of men, wants to know who you are, what you are, what your father is and what your grandfather is. Well, by the time all these inquiries are satisfactorily settled, the steamer has arrived, you are gone and it is too late. And a journey which, otherwise, might have been a very pleasant one to him, has ended in death. "Just imagine the Englishman!" exclaimed the Englishman who rescued from drowning by an American patriot. "We had not been introduced!" In France at public resorts, seaside and health resorts, you want no introduction. They want one another to play together on the grounds, on the beach, in the rooms, etc. In England, if you are not introduced, the children are not allowed to play together. Fortunately for those poor English kids, English families, as a rule, are larger than French families, and they seldom run the risk of being to play by themselves or to meet some way of spending time. Go to a railway station. In France you will see a man alone on one end of the train to the other in search of a carriage containing some pleasant, cheerful-looking person likely to enjoy a chat with him on the way.

The Frenchman cannot keep silent long hours. Whether he travels alone, he likes to talk, and that is why his digestion is better than that of any other inhabitant of the globe. In England you will see a man alone on one end of the train to the other, frowning at every carriage he passes it, until he finds an empty one and looks happy.

He smiles and enters it. He spreads his belongings on the seat, settles down and hopes to remain by himself the whole journey.

He knows of one exception only. In France, a man observes an English couple already settled by themselves in a compartment he enters them.

He is full of human consideration. He says to himself, "If I were myself suffering from the same indisposition as this man and had such a pleasant companion with me, I would like to be left alone. Dear me! I will respect their wishes."

And he keeps away. In England I have often noticed some lonely old man, male or female, choose a carriage and make a point to enter it there.

Through that constant fear of making the acquaintance of people he would not care to meet, at home and abroad, he misses his chance of a pleasant when he travels abroad or in his own country.

At seaside casinos, at health resorts, and watering places, the Englishman, perhaps not of the upper class, who, I am sorry to say, is often the sufferer from a mild attack of (neuritis) will associate with people whom they would not, perhaps, care to know and visit at home, but who are only acquaintances for the time being.

When they leave the place they forget them and are glad to have produced by associations which do not compel them to pay calls until they return home.

The dull places in the world are the seaside and health resorts. There are no casinos, because they would pay; there is no intercourse whatever among the visitors—always a terrible veto to all pleasures, which have not been introduced.

At a meal time, in hotels, the courteous, perfect waxwork, form funeral processions and slowly, sadly follow another into the dining-room, all silent and damned," like at the tea party described by the poet Shelley. Perhaps there are several hundred guests in the dining-room at a time, but you would hear a pin drop. They do not speak above a low whisper. Laughter seems as if it was forbidden by the statute book. They look like culprits.

"May I trouble you for the mustard?" is as much as you dare venture to say. If you were to make a remark about the weather to your neighbor he would say to his wife: "Who is he?" So you should not say such a thing if you have not been introduced.

A Frenchman and an Englishman were one day occupying a first-class smoking-carriage in an English train. The Frenchman was at one end, looking in the direction of his fellow-traveler; the Englishman was at the other, looking toward his own window and turning his back to the Frenchman.

The latter was wondering if his mute companion was not going, by and by, to give him a chance to open his mouth and say something. The Englishman dropped some ashes from his cigar on his trousers. The good Frenchman thought that at last his chance had come.

"Excuse me, sir," he said, "you have dropped some ashes on your—"

"Oh," coolly replied the Englishman, "for the last ten minutes I have seen a box of matches on fire in your back pocket and I did not interfere."—Max O'Rell.

Sault Ste. Marie Fish.

"The first time I fished in the Sault Ste. Marie rapids," said a well-known Lake Keuka sportsman, "I landed in an hour twenty-one brook trout that weighed forty-five pounds, so I was ready and willing to believe anything I heard or read about the possibilities of those waters or the astounding things that men who fished in them were able to do.

"Consequently I believed what they told me about the marvelous feats of the Indian fishermen of the Sault Ste. Marie could perform in the way of netting whitefish. Few who have fished the great lakes have not heard of these same feats, witnessed them and, of course, could do nothing but go away believing that they were all they seemed to be.

"Particularly will they marvel, as I did, at the Indian whitefish fisherman's magic eye with which he seems to look down through ten feet or more of foaming, rushing water and see whitefish that to the white man's eye would be invisible five inches beneath the surface. It would have been strange if I had not marveled at it, having witnessed more than once manifestations of its alleged power. That was before I talked with old Guide Garron.

"The astounding feats of the Indian whitefish netters of the Sault Ste. Marie that the guidebooks and the hotel keepers and steamboat men insist on telling tourists about are performed by two Indians in a canoe. One occupies the stern and manipulates the paddle to keep the canoe's head pointed up stream. The Indian in the bow, standing upright, uses a pole to aid in propelling the canoe or in keeping it steady.

"Lying ready to his hand is a dip net four feet in diameter, fastened to the end of a pole perhaps fifteen feet long. The fishing is done at the foot of the rapids, where the water boils and tumbles furiously. With his pole the Indian in the bow keeps the boat moving about in the rapids and gazes constantly into the water, which is often ten or more feet deep.

"Suddenly the Indian in the bow will seize the net handle with one hand, never ceasing to manipulate the canoe with his pole in the other nor for an instant removing his staring gaze from the water. The net is not more than in his hand before he has plunged it perhaps ten feet distant from the boat, thrusting it at the same instant to the bottom. Then he gives it a peculiar twist, draws it up and, surrendering the care of the canoe for the moment to the Indian with the paddle, he draws the net up, even without from three to half a dozen glistening whitefish in it, frequently weighing five pounds each.

"The wondering spectator, seeing nothing but the boiling water, the sudden start of the Indian and his quick and dexterous plunging and drawing up of the net with its invariable load of whitefish, can do nothing but acknowledge to himself the acromancy of the Indian's piscatorial art. I know that I did, and for two seasons gave myself away to the fascination of that mysterious fishing. Then one day I marveled at it greatly to Guide Garron, the shrewd and cunning old Frenchman who knows every rock and eddy and

SAD NEWS FOR WIGEN

Police Chief Ames, brother of the mayor, is now under indictment and will be placed on trial within a few days. The state's case rested on the testimony of men who asserted that money was regularly paid to Gardner and that he distributed it among members of the administration, the consideration being immunity from police interference not only of shark gaming, but other places of crime, including social evil resorts.

It was the claim of the prosecution that a complete system had been perfected whereby the victims of the protected criminals were persuaded to leave town, they having been victimized. It is alleged that Detective Lorbeck, who will go to trial tomorrow under indictments of receiving a bribe, was charged with the task of getting rid of these victims.

On His Way to Join His Brother

Mr. P. P. Wigen of Seattle arrived on the steamer Sifton on Sunday en route to Seventymile, on which river about 30 miles up from the mouth his brother Gus and Ed Kellogg, both formerly of Dawson, own and were working a mine, having taken a lot of machinery there in March.

The day following his arrival in Dawson Mr. Wigen was shocked by receiving word from another brother at Seventymile that his brother Gus had been drowned in that river a month ago and about the time the ice went out; also that the body has not yet been recovered.

The meagre news of the sad accident was that Wigen had taken a man across the river in a small boat and on returning his craft was upset, presumably by the swift current or running ice, and he was carried away in the icy water.

The Seattle Wigen left Dawson this morning in a small boat for Seventymile, where he had contracted to work for his unfortunate brother.

Word has been received here that the Kellogg-Wigen claim on Seventymile is proving a very valuable one, the pay being from 30 to 50 cents to the pan.

Will Make a Night of It

As everybody anticipates ascending the mountain on Saturday evening to see the midnight sun, the Dawson City Mining Company extends an invitation for them to make a little trip of a quarter of a mile from the flag staff and look over one of the company's quartz claims there, at which there will be a gang of men at work. The company has extended a special invitation to the Dawson Press Club to make a geological and mineralogical survey of the mountain under the guidance of Wilson Foster, the quartz king. The start will be made at seven o'clock Saturday evening, and Mr. Wilson undertakes to show a body of serpentine quartz carrying gold which extends for miles, and incidentally other mineral wonders. Several enterprising young men are planning to have refreshment stands on the summit, there is talk of there being a band of music, fireworks are suggested, and kite flying, and the observance of the longest day and shortest night promises to be one of the most noteworthy ever known.

Mysteriously Disappears

Winlock, Wash., June 11.—On Sunday, June 1, Henry Minckler, a farmer living one and a half miles east of Winlock, suddenly disappeared and though the neighboring country has been thoroughly searched for the past week, he has not been found, nor can anyone be found who has seen him since that time. On Sunday afternoon Mr. Minckler left his home to go to Snyder's mill near Cowlitz, where he wished to pay for a bill of lumber. On leaving he informed his wife that he would be back for supper. When at Mr. Snyder's he transacted his business, acting perfectly rational, but during the course of conversation he said that his head was troubling him, that he had had a spell about ten days ago, when his mind seemed unbalanced. Mr. Snyder, however, thought nothing of it, but noticed that when Mr. Minckler left he started in the wrong direction. A few hours later he was seen on Cowlitz prairie by two gentlemen whom he spoke to. This was the last seen of him. A posse of men has been searching constantly but without success. Many theories are advanced as to Mr. Minckler's whereabouts, but none can be proven. It is generally believed that his mind became suddenly deranged and that he lost his way. He leaves a wife and four children, and a brother. They are in good circumstances and no reason can be imagined for Mr. Minckler's disappearance or sudden insanity since he had no family troubles and was in good financial condition.

Algebraic.

A man owes 4 cents. He pays 2 cents one day, 1 cent the next, one-half cent the next, and so on, one-half cent each day of the debt. Now, although on the fourth day he only owes one-quarter of a cent, if he should be ended with the gift of immortality and he should continue to pay the debt at the same ratio, he could never pay all of it. There would always remain that half of the former day's payment, provided he had counters small enough to make the payments.

SAD NEWS FOR WIGEN

Police Chief Ames, brother of the mayor, is now under indictment and will be placed on trial within a few days. The state's case rested on the testimony of men who asserted that money was regularly paid to Gardner and that he distributed it among members of the administration, the consideration being immunity from police interference not only of shark gaming, but other places of crime, including social evil resorts.

It was the claim of the prosecution that a complete system had been perfected whereby the victims of the protected criminals were persuaded to leave town, they having been victimized. It is alleged that Detective Lorbeck, who will go to trial tomorrow under indictments of receiving a bribe, was charged with the task of getting rid of these victims.

He Learns of the Latter's Death by Drowning at Seventymile.

Mr. P. P. Wigen of Seattle arrived on the steamer Sifton on Sunday en route to Seventymile, on which river about 30 miles up from the mouth his brother Gus and Ed Kellogg, both formerly of Dawson, own and were working a mine, having taken a lot of machinery there in March.

The day following his arrival in Dawson Mr. Wigen was shocked by receiving word from another brother at Seventymile that his brother Gus had been drowned in that river a month ago and about the time the ice went out; also that the body has not yet been recovered.

The meagre news of the sad accident was that Wigen had taken a man across the river in a small boat and on returning his craft was upset, presumably by the swift current or running ice, and he was carried away in the icy water.

The Seattle Wigen left Dawson this morning in a small boat for Seventymile, where he had contracted to work for his unfortunate brother.

Word has been received here that the Kellogg-Wigen claim on Seventymile is proving a very valuable one, the pay being from 30 to 50 cents to the pan.

Consult the Whelps.

New York, June 11.—Archibald R. Colquhoun's paper, just read before the Colonial Institute, was an able and comprehensive survey of the future policy of the British empire, as essentially a colonial policy. It was not an alarmist paper, but a cool and well reasoned argument, pointing to the conclusion that the empire must be bound together by federation.

Mr. Colquhoun advocated, with the approval of a large and intelligent audience, a closer commercial union between the mother country and the colonies; the representation of the colonies in the imperial councils and measures of defense. He discussed the project of the British Zollverein and preferential duties within the empire, without committing himself to any definite scheme and contended that parliament was overwhelmed with routine business and that an imperial council was indispensable, since fresh impulses from the colonies were needed in order to invigorate the national policy.

He declared England is ill-equipped for the desperate struggle for existence now going on among the nations, and asserted that the colonials must come forward to contribute to the expense of the imperial household. Mr. Colquhoun's paper was closely followed and his warnings against one-sided free trade in a protection world and against the annexation of British shipping lines by American capitalists when Germany was in a position to command the maritime alliance, were warmly applauded.

Colonel Dennison presented the argument for levying a war tax on all imports in all British ports with force and lucidity, and replied to both James Bryce and John Morley's arguments against the broad tax.

Agent General Tesor, from Queensland, dissented from the proposals for a British Zollverein and emphatically declared that Australians will bind themselves to supply a permanent force of 100,000 soldiers for the imperial defense and contribute liberally to the naval armament, but will not ask England to introduce a Zollverein which would be unfair to her own people.

The discussion was continued by many colonial advocates, and was very animated.

Minneapolis Scandal

Minneapolis, June 10.—Irwin A. Gardner was found guilty tonight of having accepted a bribe as special officer to procure police protection for shark gambling games. The specific charge was that Gardner had accepted $25 from Billy Edwards, who has since been convicted of swindling. Gardner, however, is lost sight of in the scandal that his conviction unfolds. He was the assistant of Mayor Ames, and the prosecution sought to show that such bribes as he accepted were taken with at least the connivance of executive members of the city administration.

Doctor—On a tray probably.—Chicago News.

"Then why don't you try to get rid of it?" asked the youth who hadn't inherited any wealth.

"I am doing the best I can," rejoined the other. "I keep a yacht, run an automobile, belong to a swell golf club and lend you money."—Chicago Tribune.

Is Flirting Unpardonable?

"Why shouldn't I flirt if I want to?" demanded Alison, with a superior air. "It is good for one. It sharpens one's intellect. It makes for the equality of the sexes. It breaks numerous hearts." I murmured.

"Hearts!" Alison brought her hands together with a movement of contempt, as though she were crushing a heart between them. "What about that?"

"Oh, nothing," I replied quietly. She seemed to be annoyed because I was not annoyed.

"Why shouldn't I flirt if I want to?" she inquired again.

"Oh, why not, indeed, my dear lady," I returned, and then, bowing low, I added, "I am everlastingly at your service."

"You?" Oh, I couldn't flirt with you.

"Why not? If I am deficient in intellectual capacity—I accept your dictum that the pursuit sharpens the intellect—you see, it might benefit me if you were to make use of me."

She looked at me with a frank smile so charming that—well, it made me angry to think that she should flirt with any one else.

"It isn't that," she remarked brightly. "The fact is I don't like the heart breaking part of the business. To enjoy flirting thoroughly the person one flirts with must be devoid of heart."

"Well?" I asked.

She shrugged her shoulders.

"I'm afraid I shouldn't enjoy it with you."

"Because I have a heart?"

"That, I should imagine, is the inference," she remarked superciliously. I nodded.

"And is there the further inference that you have—er—no heart?" I asked.

"Oh, not necessarily, because"—She paused and then went on: "It's like this, you see: In a flirtation the woman, as a rule, is the initiator, and that being so she is prepared to place exactly the correct amount of importance on anything that is said."

"In other words, she says things which she doesn't mean and listens to things which are also not meant, eh?"

"That, I fancy, is flirting," she said.

I shook my head in disapproval.

"It's a bad thing morally," I remarked. "It tends to pervert one's sense of"—

"Sense of fiddlesticks!" she cried. "Really, Hector, I am surprised to hear you. A good flirtation is"—

"Like imitation diamonds," I interrupted.

"But"—she fixed her eyes on me—"but if one doesn't want to run the risk of losing the real"—

"Oh, now you are carrying the simile too far," I said. "In love-making"

Her face assumed an expression of utter disinterestedness.

"You are beyond me now, Hector."

"In the interests of the public, flirting ought to be sternly suppressed," I said.

She laughed slyly.

"That's because you love one woman, my dear boy." She waited to see whether I would contradict her and then went on: "One cannot expect a man who is in love to tolerate the flirting propensity in the woman he loved."

I stared hard at her. Her words just allowed of an interpretation other than the one that I loved her; but I was not at all certain that in a dual interpretation was in her mind.

"You mean?" I asked.

"Oh, Hector, how blind you are! I mean that you never did see any one you cared for so much as you care for me. And I?"

She paused, and a flood of tenderness swept over her face.

"Yes—and you?" I asked eagerly.

"Surely you know," she murmured. "Surely you have seen"—

"I haven't seen anything," I interrupted hotly, "except that you have kept me hanging around you for months, and—and you know so well that I love you more dearly than life."

A smile flashed across her face and the tenderness vanished.

"There now?" she cried. "What did I say? There isn't any fun in flirting with a man of heart. You say what you mean and you mean what you say. You can't call that fun. Besides, it's very embarrassing."

I controlled myself with an effort.

"I beg your pardon Alison," I said with dignity. "I quite agree with you—there's no fun in it, and it's very embarrassing—for me."

We stood staring at each other for some moments, she with a smile on her face and I with a scowl on mine. I had been fooled, once more.

I bore the silence until it threatened to turn my brain.

"If you were a man, I would demand an apology," I said stiffly.

"If I were a man—but men don't flirt with each other, do they?" I ignored the question.

"But seeing that you are a woman"—

"Only a woman," she murmured. "I shall accept my dismissal and go away."

I could have kicked myself for having said that.

"But, Hector"—she began; but I would not allow her to go on.

"Oh, no doubt you would like me to remain to be made a fool of again," I said sarcastically; "but unfortunately I can't. As you say, I have a heart, and"—

"We all have," she murmured, and her tone was the same as the one she had before deceived me with.

"You needn't begin with that again," I said coldly; "not that you could take me in with a remark so obviously untrue."

Her face stiffened slightly.

"Why not call a spade a spade?" she said. "I am a liar—that is what you mean?"

"Something of the kind," I said, for I was deeply hurt. "One who says things which she doesn't mean is, I take it, a— You will excuse me if I leave the word unsaid."

"Oh, yes; but you are quite wrong, you know. All flirts are not liars."

"They say things which they don't"—

"You don't understand," she interrupted. "They say things which they don't mean perhaps, but they may mean them all the same."

I shrugged my shoulders.

"Please excuse me for being so dense, Alison; but really I don't quite follow you."

"No? Well, let us be more personal. Supposing I were to say, 'Dear Hector, I love you.'"

"I should immediately tell you that you were saying what was not true."

"But, don't you see, you might be wrong?"

"Possibly, but"—And then I looked straight at her, and her eyes told me that I was making a bigger fool of myself than she had made of me. "Alison!" I cried, and before I knew what I was doing my arms were round her.

She freed herself after a time and surveyed me thoughtfully.

"Will you really marry a flirt?" she asked.

I laughed joyously, for my views regarding such things had changed.

"Of course. I must, in the interests of the public. It isn't safe to leave any one so bewitching as you are free to play with men's hearts."

"So you will sacrifice yourself? How noble of you! But"—She paused. "What difference will marriage make? Once a flirt always a flirt, you know."

"I shall take jolly good care that you don't flirt," I said.

"And I'd defy you to prevent me. Why should a woman not flirt?"

"Because the habit is degrading to her sex," I said.

"It is very unlike a gentleman to interrupt, Hector. I was going to say—why should a woman not flirt with the man she loves—the only man she has ever flirted with?"

"Oh, if I had to have the exclusive rights," I said.

"You have had them all along," she returned.

It was, of course, necessary that I should calm down, but I saw no reason why I should not do so in a dignified manner.

"But flirting consists in saying things which one doesn't mean, Alison."

"But one may mean them all the same," she said softly. "Dear Hector, I love you."

And, after all, dignity in my descent was out of the question.—King.

The Blow Landed

She doesn't go to her clubs and euchres half as much as she did. People used to say this charming woman spent most of her time at these gatherings. One day she called on a dear friend to reproach her for her slackening interest in the club. I believe it was a club for reforming the gas meter or something—anyhow it was a reform affair.

"Look here, Lizzie," said the enthusiast, "why on earth don't you come to the meetings? Here you are paying your dues and never showing up. You owe it to the club to take an interest in the work."

"But I can't come," explained her friend. "There's the baby, and Henry doesn't come home sometimes till late, and supper must wait, and if he wants to go out I can't go away and leave the children. I would worry myself to death."

"Well, I must say Henry is inconsiderate," said the caller. "Why, there's my husband and children too. They give me no trouble. Every time I want to go to the club Charlie says he will be glad to stay at home with Bridget and keep an eye on things till I come back. He never objects."

"Maybe," retorted the amiable hostess, "if I had a housegirl as handsome and young as Bridget Henry would be glad to stay at home, too, but mine is black and goes home at night."

The slow landed, and Charlie hasn't been asked to look after Bridget and the house since.—Louisville Times.

Length of Dreams

Three physicians were discussing the matter of the length of dreams a day or two ago, when one of them related a strange experience.

"Yesterday afternoon," he said, "I called to see a patient, and much to my satisfaction, I found him sleeping soundly. I sat by his bed, felt his pulse without disturbing him and waited for him to awaken. After a few minutes a junk dealer's cart with discordant ringing bells turned into the street, and as their first tones reached us my patient opened his eyes.

"'Doctor,' he said, 'I'm glad to see you and awfully glad that you woke me, for I have been tortured by a most distressing dream that must have lasted for several hours. I dreamed that I was sick, as I am, and that my boy came into the room with a string of most horribly sounding sleighbells and rang them in my ears, while I hadn't power to move or speak to him. I suffered tortures for what appeared to be an interminable time. I'm so glad you woke me.'

"The ringing of those bells for one second had caused all of that dream and just at the waking moment."—New York Herald.

Three Ways

An Englishman, an Irishman and a Scotchman, making a tour around the city a short time since, were observed looking through a confectioner's window at a beautiful young woman serving in the shop.

"Oh," exclaimed Mr. Patrick, "do let us be after spending half a crown with the dear craytur, that we may look at her conveniently and have a bit of chat wid her."

"You extravagant dog," said Mr. Bull. "I'm sure one-half of the money will be sufficient. But let us go in, by all means. She's a charming girl."

"Ah, wait a wee," interposed Mr. McAndrew. "Dinna ye ken it'll serve our purpose equally well just to ask the bonnie lassie to gie us twa sixpences for a shilling and inquire where's Mr. Toompson's house and sic like. We're no hungry and may as well save the siller."—Birmingham Mercury.

Two Are Asphyxiated

San Francisco, June 7.—Blanche Warren, a well-known soubrette, and her mother, Mrs. G. W. Brown, were asphyxiated in bed last night, at 425 Golden Gate avenue, a boarding house kept by M. Schwartz and wife. The dead bodies of the unfortunate women were found this morning in bed with the room full of the fumes of illuminating gas. One of the gas keys nearest to the side of the bed on which Miss Warren lay was turned partly on. The fixtures were in bad order, the keys turning at the slightest touch.

Blanche Warren, as she was known on the stage, was the wife of W. M. Chapman, of Los Angeles. She had just completed an engagement which closed its season in Pittsburg on May 17, and she came to this state on May 27, engaging rooms at 425 Golden Gate avenue on May 31.

Property Loss Heavy

Chicago, June 7.—Hundreds of acres of flooded lands in the southwestern part of the city, streams swollen to the tops of the banks, two city bridges and several railroad bridges disabled and heavy property loss from flooded basements are among the results of the extremely heavy rainfall of the last two days. A full inch of water fell in one hour and a half this afternoon. The day before almost an inch fell, and thus far this month the total precipitation has been so heavy that it is almost record-breaking for a week during the last twenty-five years.

At One Hundred and Sixty and One Hundred and Twentieth streets the bridges of the Calumet river are disabled. One other bridge is also badly damaged and it will be out of service for thirty days.

He is Dying Game

Port of Spain, Trinidad, June 4.—Gen. Matos has personally taken command of the Venezuelan revolution and was on June 1 at Urica, twenty leagues distant from Carupano, marching toward Caracas, with an army which some persons estimate at 5,200 and others at 7,500 men.

To believe, however, that he will reach the capital and take possession of the presidency without a deadly struggle would be an illusion. Gen. Castro is preparing to offer resistance and hopes to bar the invasion either in the plains of Carabobo or in the valley of the Tuy.

This is not the only direction in which the president's political horizon is menaced. Coro, Valencia and Barquisimeto are all more or less in the hands of the revolutionists. At Coro, Gens. Riera and Solagni have effected a junction and are absolute masters of the environs. Revolutionary troops enter the city of Valencia every night and as the town is no longer lighted, give themselves up to all sorts of reprisals. Even La Guayra, the port of Caracas, is attacked nightly by armed bands, who on the night of May 27 killed the military chief of Maiquetia before his own door.

President Castro's political conduct leads to the belief that before his departure he will indulge in all sorts of extra arbitrary acts. He has lately suppressed the newspapers El Tiempo and La Linterna, arrested the manager of the Bank of Caracas, Mr. Castillo, imposed on the widow of the late Guzman Blanco a forced war contribution of one million and has arrested the president of congress Gen. Tosta Garcia, and the president of the Societe Francaise, M. de Ridgelo, a highly respected man, on a slight supposition. He also caused his faithful officer Gen. Davila, the vanquisher of El Mocho, to be arrested after a very violent scene at the palace of Mira Flores, during which Davila reproached him with his ingratitude.

Business is paralyzed and the banks are without specie. The Bank of Caracas, the capital of which is six million bolivars (a bolivar is equivalent to about 20 cents), has only 126,000 bolivars in its coffers, that is to say, about $25,000.

Whatever may be the result of the revolution, Gen. Castro said to one of his intimate friends a few days ago:

"I shall show them that I am neither Andueza nor Andrade, whom they sent to La Guayra in a basket. If I leave my palace at Mira Flores it will be feet foremost."

Boycotts Meat

Chicago, May 25.—Mayor Harrison announced his intention of trying a vegetarian diet. A desire to reduce his weight induces him to boycott the Meat Trust. Meat, according to Mr. Harrison, has enlarged his girth until his tailor makes him blush.

He decided on a change of diet after he had held a conference with Herr Van Chapman, of the Royal Vegetarian college of Amsterdam. Mr. Chapman came with a note of introduction from the Netherlands consul.

"And you have never eaten meat?" inquired the mayor as he admired his caller's lithe build.

"Never, sir; not even when a child," came the response.

"And you find nourishment in the beet, the bean and the apple?"

"I am so fond of beets that I frequently eat naught else for a week."

"Then I shall give your theories a good trial. Oh, I want to get thin."

Boggs—I hear you have fallen out with your sweetheart.

Joggs—Yes. She got an idea into her head that I was angry with her, and it made me angry to have her think I was unreasonable enough to get angry at her.—Chicago News,

She is Granted Bail

Seattle, June 11. - Mrs. Nellie Underwood, charged jointly with her husband with the murder of their baby at Ballard, was taken before Justice Cann yesterday afternoon and on the application of her attorney it was decided by the court to release her on bail until the preliminary hearing, June 21. At the suggestion of Prosecuting Attorney Fulton, who advised the court to accept bail, the sum was fixed at $10,000.

The attorneys consumed some time in arguing as to the amount of bail that should be required, and meanwhile Mrs. Underwood sat quietly facing the justice, glancing from one attorney to the other as they spoke, but seeming not to fully realize what they were saying.

The only question on which the attorneys differed was the amount of the bail. Prosecuting Attorney Fulton stated after Attorney Ronald had made a strong appeal for the admittance of the defendant to bail, that while Mrs. Underwood was charged with murder in the first degree, and while the evidence then in the hands of the state was strong against her, the state had no desire to keep her in jail if it could be assured that she would appear to answer the charge when the case was called; hence, he suggested that the court fix her bond at $10,000.

Attorney Ronald thought the sum too high and begged for a reduction, but the court decided that the sum named was not too high. Mr. Ronald then stated that the signers of the bond would necessarily be moneyed men of Aberdeen, where the defendant and her family are known. Justice Cann stated that this would be acceptable on the bond being approved by the prosecuting attorney and superior court of Chehalis county and then approved by Prosecuting Attorney Fulton and himself of this county.

Before Mr. Justice Craig in the territorial court today is being heard the case of Mohr & Wilkens vs. The Anglo-Klondike Company. The action is to recover the sum of $454.65 alleged to be due for supplies furnished one J. E. Easy Victims.

Seattle, June 12. - James E. Johnson reported to the police yesterday that he had been robbed of $26 at Madison Park while attempting to board a cable car for the city. There was a great rush for the car and he was jostled about in the crowd. He thought nothing of it then, but later when he put his hand in his pocket to get his money he found the coin gone. He then remembered the occurrence at the park and came to the conclusion that in the crowd a pickpocket had secured his cash.

The gang of crooks who seem to have infested the city at this work, as evidenced by reports at police headquarters. E. J. Latrem, who was in the city en route to Portland, is reported to have been bunked out of $20 Monday by the

MINERAL WATER

Has Been Discovered in Great Abundance

Spring on Hunker Road Yields Big Supply - Valuable Medical Qualities.

Nearly everyone who has occasion to pass along the Hunker road steps at the mineral spring lemonade stand for a drink. The water, which gives the name to the place, occurs in great abundance and is said to possess very valuable medicinal qualities.

The owner of the spring is M. Johnson, who has acquired title by securing a mineral grant to the ground upon which the spring is located. Johnson is a hard working man and spent a large portion of the winter sinking a well over the spring. The well is about 8 feet in diameter and 15 feet in depth. The sides are boarded up and the surface is protected by a curbing.

The water now stands in the well at a depth of 12 feet and no matter how great a quantity is removed the flow is in no way diminished. A small force pump is used to draw the water from the well and it is seldom that one or two customers are not quenching their thirst.

The water has the same general qualities as the Bonanza mineral water but seems to be more heavily charged with gas.

time-worn lock trick. It is known that numerous other thefts have occurred.

The victims are frequently passengers on Alaska boats, who cannot afford to stay in the city and prosecute the cases. Few arrests have been made, none where the crooks could be prosecuted for a more serious crime than vagrancy.

Unclaimed Gold.

It is shown by official returns to parliament that in the English chancery there is about $26,000,000 or, say, $280,000,000, of which all but about $8,000,000 is kept subject to the orders of the court in cases now before it. This sum is $8,000,000, known officially as "dormant funds in chancery," is the only amount of chancery for which owners are not absolutely visible, and for a large part of these dormant funds owners are pretty certainly known.

The statement ought to have some effect on the well established business of finding "heirs" for vast estates. Dozens of astute persons, disinclined for ordinary labor, have made comfortable livings out of credulous people who have contributed to funds to secure these estates, to which they believe themselves entitled as heirs. The claim agents have not restricted their operations to any one country—Canada, the United States, the continent of Europe, the British colonies, have provided a living for them.

Prepare for War

Washington, D. C., June 11. - After several years of almost entirely theoretical work, the general board of the navy is now prepared to demonstrate by practical test the soundness of its theories. Rear Admiral Phillip H. Cooper has been placed in charge of the preparation for war of the district extending from Chatham Light, Cape Cod, to Barnegat Light, New Jersey.

Rear Admiral Louis Kempf has been given duty of a similar character on the Pacific Coast. These two officers will follow out the plans of the board by placing the defenses of the coast which come under the control of the navy in condition best to withstand a mimic attack of a foreign fleet, mutilated by the North Atlantic fleet on one side and the North Pacific squadron on the other.

extra hours to study, it was thought that he might be able to graduate with the 1902 class.

The lad pored over his books day and night, giving little or no time to recreation or amusement. As time wore on the tremendous mental strain began to tell upon him, and he was advised to take a rest. He would not listen to his advisors and three weeks ago he collapsed.

One week ago last Tuesday he was brought to Portland from Pendleton, where friends had been caring for him, hoping that a relaxation from work and a change of environment would prove beneficial. But it was too late. He grew worse instead of better.

Two days after coming here signs of insanity developed, and for several days past the world was a blank to him.

He died this morning in the Portland Sanitarium Annex.

As to Which One Produces Street Sleepers—Harry Woolrich Dismissed.

F. W. Mather, miner, of Bonanza, went to sleep on the First avenue sidewalk at the early hour of ten o'clock last night, yet he did not seem to be fully awake when he stood in the dock of the police court this morning.

The adjourned case of Wm. Inkster against Harry Woolrich on the grave charge of assault with intent to do grievous, bodily harm, was unexpectedly dismissed this morning.

Inspector Starnes thereupon dismissed the charge just to teach Mr. Inkster to get a lawyer next time who would attend to his business.

Harry Woolrich told how he met the defendant on the street after the raid and said to him: "I believe you were a spy last night in the Monte Carlo Club."

In his own behalf defendant corroborated this statement, and detailed the injuries he received. But he was certain it was Woolrich who struck first.

Makes Escape Good

Seattle, June 11.—An effort will be made to catch Lila Young, the proprietor of a sporting house in the lower end of the city, for whom a complaint was sworn out yesterday charging her with grand larceny in the theft of $3,200 from the person of John Degneau a month ago.

Degneau claims now to have secured evidence that implicated her in the case and yesterday had the warrant issued for her arrest.

The warrant was placed in the hands of Police Officer Bevan yesterday afternoon. He went to the house conducted by Lila Young but could not find the woman.

SWEDE CREEK DISCOVERY

Has Been Located and Recorded

J. H. Currie and Philip Carr Think the Prospects Very Flattering.

There is to be another stampede to Swede creek. J. H. Currie and Philip Carr, who have been prospecting there for three weeks, came in this afternoon and recorded discovery and J. above. They have not gone to a depth of over six or seven feet, but they think the gravel looks good and at that depth it will average four cents to the pan.

In the winter of 1897-8, it will be remembered, there was a big stampede to Swede creek, and much work was done there during the following six months. The pay found was not good enough for those days and it was given up and has for some time been open to relocation.

Wagon Road Needed

Since Orcutt put on his pack train to Miller and Glacier creeks the current ferry has been doing a good business. But Mr. Orcutt, who has 24 animals on the road, says there is nothing to be made in packing at 15c and he desires to put on wagons. He desires the merchants to agitate for a government road under the cliff to West Dawson.
