This plan is possible, only to a limited extent, and that at the danger of weakening its usefulness in other directions, and making the institution unmanageable. The second plan would be to establish a proper agricultural college and model farm, as a separate institution; which would thus be single in its nature, specific in its object, and more easy in its management. This is, undoubtedly, the right step. Why should our Local Government pause in this matter? Is it the peruniary	up free & C If r a speci
