Operation not Necessary after Taking the Great Medicine for Women.

Miller's Falls, Mass.—"Doctors said I had displacement very badly and I had Compound would have to have an operation. I had a soreness in both sides and a pulling sensation in my right side. I could not do much work the pain was so bad. I was also troubled with irregularity and other weaknesses. My blood was poor. We had been married four years and had no children.

After using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I became well and strong and was saved from the operation. We are now the parents of a big baby girl and I praise your remedies to others and give you permission to publish my letter."—Mrs. JOSEPH GUILBAULT, Jr., Bridge Street, Miller's Falls, Mass.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is famous for restoring women to normal health and strength. When this is done wives no longer despair of having children.

A woman should be reluctant to submit to a surgical operation until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial. If you have a case that needs special advice, write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

CHAPTER XXVI

"Did you"—her voice falls her for a moment, but she struggles with it—"did you send these flowers for me?" He colors, but looks at her steadily.

"Yes, I did," he says, as if he were pleading guilty to a crime which he was not ashamed of, but which he might be punished for. "Yes, I did!" "Why" she says, almost piteously—"why did you do it? I mean—for she sees her danger—what makes you so kind to me? I wish you would believe that I am not worthy of it. I wish I could persuade you to regard me just as your aunt's servant! You wouldn't send flowers to her lady's-maid, you know!" and she tries to speak lightly.

"No," he says, "but I don't"—He is just about to say, "but I don't love her lady's-maid," but he stops in time and says instead, quite seriously, "It is only a fair exchange. Did you not place some flowers in my room when I came?"

"Now, that is not fair," she says, a crimson flush flaming her cheek; "I did not know that it was you who were coming, or—"

"You would not have done it," he says, sadly, almost bitterly, if he could be bitter. "I understand. Well, it is such a heinous offense to send a lady whom one likes—a bunch of flowers!"

She looks at him and then at the flowers.

"Yes," she says, "in my eyes. Do not do it again, please."

"Very well," he says. "I will not if it offends you. God knows I would not do anything to offend you, Dulcie—Miss Dorrimore. I had hoped that you would have known that."

"Yes," she says, "I do know it," and she puts her hand timidly on his arm, with an imploring look in her eyes.

"Do You Suffer with Night Sweats—and awake in the morning feeling all in?"

There are thousands of men, women and even children suffering from this dreaded symptom of consumption and don't trouble about checking it. Are you one of them? If so, ask your druggist for a bottle of the famous Zocic, a pure, quick and reliable tonic.

dark eyes. "Please forgive me! I did not mean to wound you—you who have been so kind, so gentle and good to me; but—" and she pauses.

His face grows very pale, and he looks at her steadily.

"Don't go on," he says, and his voice quivers. "I understand. No, don't run away; I am not going to say a word. But you shall see that I understand."

The dinner-bell rings as he speaks, and he goes to offer his arm to Lady Brookley, and Dulcie follows with that look of his—the mute look of despairing love—to haunt her.

But even at dinner he is thoughtful and considerate, and, instead of being dull and depressed, is remarkably cheerful, and so full of anecdote that Lady Brookley waits until the butler coughs three times, and puts the yellow-seeded claret right under her nose as a hint for her to retire.

Then, as she rises, and Dulcie, who has scarcely spoken a word, follows, Archie, with the door in his hand, says, with an affected matter-of-fact tone:

"I forgot to mention it, but I must take my departure to-morrow, aunt."

"What!" exclaims Lady Brookley, with surprise and something like indignation, "you said you were going to stay a fortnight," and she confronts him in the doorway.

"Oh, it's a particular engagement just cropped up. Had a letter from the trainer; must go down and see the horses, you know. I'll tell you about it directly!" and he shuts the door and goes back to his claret with a heavy heart.

He has quite understood her. That "but" meant "it is all of no use!" and he accepts his sentence. He has not learned the way to woo her, because she was not to be won.

"Won!" he murmurs, as he pushes the claret-glass from him. "She was lost to me from the first. It was Hugh who wooed and might have won her, but for some slip, which I cannot guess. Hugh! What a mad fool he must be! But so it is, one man drops from his hand the heart of great price which another man would risk his soul to obtain. Well, it is no use. My poor Dulcie! If she thinks that I will stay here and torment her she misjudges me. If ever eyes said 'Go, leave me alone,' her eyes said it. And where am I to go?" he mutters—where? I've tried Wales, and that was no use. No, wherever I go I shall carry her image with me. I have loved for the first and last time!"

Meanwhile Lady Brookley was fighting for him in the drawing-room.

"What nonsense is this about Archie's going?" she says, sinking into her chair by the tea-table. "For, of course, it is all nonsense. He meant to stop the fortnight, you know. Do you understand it, my dear?" she asks, pitilessly.

Dulcie leans forward with her hands clasped, her dark brows drawn into a straight line across her forehead.

"N—o," she says, faintly.

Lady Brookley sighs as she shifts the tea-cups.

"I am afraid there is something wrong," she says, avoiding the pale, beautiful face. "I am afraid that love-affair I was telling you about before he came is more serious than I thought."

No answer, but the dark brows knit closer over the shadowed eyes.

"He has altered so much—for the better, perhaps, but for the worse it seems to me. Of course, he was very funny to-night, but I detected an under-ashade of sadness behind his merriment—didn't you, my dear?"

"Yes," she faintly.

"I am very sorry," she goes on. "Archie is such a good boy, and—and it may do him so much harm. My dear, you can't tell how anxious we are that he should marry and settle—marry the right sort of person, I mean. It would be dreadful if he didn't; and how often a young man, when he is disappointed as Archie is, goes and does something desperate—I mean, rushes into an imprudent marriage."

Dulcie is silent, but a faint sigh escapes the half-parted lips.

in love with will have much to answer for.

Dulcie starts and looks up, but her eyes sink again, and her hands clasp each other more tightly.

"I must say," says the old lady, still intent on her tea-cups, "that she is a—well, a foolish young lady, whoever she is. What more can she want? Archie is—I don't think I ever saw a handsomer man, my dear. At one time he was too handsome almost, but he has grown out of that; and as to his position, why, it is one of the best in England. The girl who marries him will marry one of the oldest titles in the kingdom, and an estate big enough to uphold a dukedom."

At last Dulcie speaks.

"Perhaps," she says, faintly, "she does not care about that."

"Evidently not, my dear," responds the old lady; "and I think the better of her for it. Indeed, it is one of the reasons I have for conjecturing that she is worthy of him. But there is something—else beyond titles and wealth; there is goodness of heart and innate nobleness—see, I am growing quite eloquent," and she laughs, but sadly. "And all that Archie possesses. There isn't a truer-hearted boy in the world, and—and—with a sudden burst of feeling—"oh, Dulcie, don't let him go away!"

Dulcie looks up, pale and trembling. "You—you meant me!" she says. Lady Brookley nods; the tears are in her eyes.

"Yes, my dear; the poor boy told me. It is very unfair of me, I know, to tease you—"

Dulcie slips down from her low chair, and somehow finds her head resting against the bosom of the tender-hearted old lady.

"Oh, my dear, my dear," she whispers, "think well of what you are doing! Such a love from such a man is not to be thrown aside for a mere whim. Think well of it! There, don't cry!"

Dulcie lifts her eyes to the kindly old face, and then bends and kisses her hand.

"I am not crying, dear Lady Brookley," she breathes. "My heart is too heavy for tears."

"My dear, I didn't mean to hurt you; you know I have never attempted to pry into your past; but, Dulcie, dear, all your future may be bright if you are wise. Dulcie, dear, no girl could know him long, and not love him as she deserves!"

A faint, low cry escapes the pale lips.

"Ah, that is it—that is it! As he deserves! And if I should not? You don't know how hard my heart is!"

"Give it to him, my dear; hard though it may be, his love will soften it. Why, you foolish child, his love has told upon you already! You don't know it!" for Dulcie looks up startled, almost ashamed. "My dear, I have watched you two together, and I know that I am right! Come, dear, see if you cannot, at least, give him hope. See, he will be here directly. I will go upstairs."

"No, no!" Dulcie exclaims, but the old lady gathers her skirts together and rises.

"But I will," my dear. At any rate he deserves a hearing. Send him away if it must be so; but—stooping and kissing her—"don't, if you can help it, for my sake. Why, child—with a little tremulous laugh—you will be like my own then."

And then she goes out softly. Dulcie rests her head upon the empty chair; her heart beating wildly.

It is all so true, so true. She knows that the love offered her is beyond price, that this lover is all that she has been pronounced: handsome, noble-minded, and worthy the best woman's love, that the world would deem her one of its most fortunate maidens in having won his love, but—ah, Heaven!—the shadow of the old love comes before her; that grave,

Stomach Acts Fine! No Indigestion, Gas, Heartburn, Acidity

Pape's Diapepsin fixes sick, sour, upset stomachs in five minutes.

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain, unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any drug store and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them, if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eructations of acid and undigested food—remember at once, as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.

handsome face, with its grim smile.

"If one could but forget!" she moans, burying her head in her hands "if one could but forget!"

Five minutes pass, and still she lies fighting with the past; then the door opens and Archie enters. She has scarcely time to take her old seat before he is beside her.

"Aunt's had the festive scene," he says, with forced lightness. "The announcement of my sudden departure overwhelmed her, no doubt," and he laughs a mirthless laugh. "Well, she is made up of entrances and exits. The world-of Grosvenor Square at least will go on just as well without me—"

Then he stops suddenly, struck by the downcast face, and, without looking up, she says, with an effort: "Must you go to-morrow?"

"Yes," he says, with the same forced carelessness. "Yes; business must be attended to. At present my business is horses. My trainer has a likely horse, which he wants me to run and ride in the Torchester Handicap, and I must go down and look at him or break my trainer's heart—"

Then he stops again, smitten by the pallor of her face, and he comes and takes the chair which Lady Brookley has just left, and leans forward to her.

"Dulcie," she doesn't look, but turns her head.

"Dulcie, it is no use looking like that. It—it is a mockery. You know why I am going. But as I am going, you need not look so sad."

Fads and Fashions.

Angora-knits have velvet brims. Peacock blue is a popular shade. The four-cornered hat is fashionable. Large black velvet bags have gold tops. Gray and brown shoes are in favor. Japanese embroidery is seen on blouses. Coats of plaid are among the new ones. Black satin covers some of the new hats. Belts on coats have double-breasted closings. Serge tunics are worn over black satin slips. Petticoats in changeable colors are favored. Almond green cloth is one of the pretty shades. Vests are a new feature of this winter's suits. All clothes for daytime wear are in sober tones. The three-tier skirt is one of the latest revivals. Economy cloth is something like a Panama weave. Slip-on waistcoats are popular with clubwomen. Some new hats have a tendency to the poke effect. Matelasse is being used for some of the new robes. Gieve silk is no substitute for knitted underwear. Beaver and nutria are great favorites among furs. Narrow lines are said to dominate in the spring models. Little girls' hats are more simple, if possible, than ever. All fashionable fur scarfs are lined with soft satin. Fish skin is expected to prove a substitute for leather.

Now on all Our Stock of LADIES' and MISSES' Winter COATS.

These Coats are all this season's styles and all British made. This means that they are made of woollen materials, which signifies more warmth, and that they will hold their colour better than American made Coats, which as a rule are made of at least 75 per cent. cotton, but which are now being introduced on this market owing to the difficulty of getting British made goods.

However, we have been fortunate in getting a big stock of British Coats, but owing to their late arrival and our being very much pressed for room, we have decided to offer them

Italy the Battle Ground

Everything points to the belief that the Allies have awakened not only the necessity of aiding Italy on a grand scale, but to the opportunity which the new situation offers them. What the Associated Press correspondent at Cadorna's headquarters means by his statement that "another wall will face the enemy," and that "all Europe and America are now doing their part," seems to be something more than the mere fact that Cadorna is preparing a stubborn resistance. So does the remark of the military correspondent of "The London Times," "The Germans beckon us to the Italian front" and with a very hearty good-will we shall oblige them."

It seems certain that the Allies at their Paris conference have decided on nothing less than the transference of the Winter's warfare from Flanders and the Aisne to Italy. They will hold their lines in the north, of course, and continue to pound the enemy there; but Germany has offered them the opportunity to face a German army in the open, before it can dig in, and without doubt great French and British armies will be sent to Italy with the idea of striking the smashing blow there. And it is to be borne in mind that if a German army is smashed in Italy, the smashing can be followed up as it cannot be on the Aisne or at Verdun. If the Germans can be driven back in Italy they can be followed; they can be followed to enemy territory. The German drive at Italy was a calamity, but it has in it the possibility of a blessing. If that German army can be defeated, it can be routed, it can be driven home; whereas, a German defeat in Flanders or France offers no such possibility.

Thus it seems probable that the whole aspect of the war may have been changed in the twinkling of an eye; that the Allies have the intention of making Italy the great battleground for the defeat of Germany; and it certainly seems that their opportunities on such a battleground are very much greater than they could become for a long time in the northern field. Germany may have issued the challenge that, being accepted, will end the war.

If this is really the intention, as it seems to be, then not even Cadorna's utter defeat before the French and British were fully on the spot would prevent the pushing of the contest to an issue. But there seems no reason to expect such a defeat. The Italians were not routed. There was no de-

Italy the Battle Ground

Everything points to the belief that the Allies have awakened not only to the necessity of aiding Italy on a grand scale, but to the opportunity which the new situation offers them. What the Associated Press correspondent at Cadorna's headquarters means by his statement that "another wall will face the enemy," and that "all Europe and America are now doing their part," seems to be something more than the mere fact that Cadorna is preparing a stubborn resistance. So does the remark of the military correspondent of The London Times, "The Germans beckon us to the Italian front" and with a very "hearty good-will we shall oblige them."

It seems certain that the Allies at their Paris conference have decided on nothing less than the transference of the winter's warfare from Flanders and the Alps to Italy. They will hold their lines in the north, of course, and continue to pound the enemy there; but Germany has offered them the opportunity to face a German army in the open, before it can dig in, and without doubt great French and British armies will be sent to Italy with the idea of striking the smashing blow there. And it is to be borne in mind that if a German army is smashed in Italy, the smashing can be followed up as it cannot be on the Alps or at Verdun. If the Germans can be driven back in Italy they can be followed; they can be followed to enemy territory. The German drive at Italy was a calamity, but it has in it the possibility of a blessing. If that German army can be defeated, it can be routed, it can be driven home; whereas, a German defeat in Flanders or France offers no such possibilities.

Thus it seems probable that the whole aspect of the war may have been changed in the twinkling of an eye; that the Allies have the intention of making Italy the great battleground for the defeat of Germany; and it certainly seems that their opportunities on such a battleground are very much greater than they could become for a long time in the northern field. Germany may have used the challenge that, being accepted, will end the war.
If this is really the intention, as it seems to be, then not even Cadorna's utter defeat before the French and British were fully on the spot would prevent the pushing of the contest to an issue. But there seems no reason to expect such a defeat. The Italians were not routed. There was no de-

In Milady's Boudoir.

It is evident that when he found he must retreat, Cadorna made as skilful a retreat as that of Joffe in 1914, in similar circumstances. The morale of his men must be good. And, as well as can be judged at this distance, the German invasion, instead of encouraging revolution, has suddenly unified Italy in a determination to redeem her soil from the foreigner. The tale of lost artillery, of great numbers of prisoners, has a profound effect on the imagination, but this war has already taught us, as in the case of the Turks on the Tigris, that such things do not affect the power of resistance when the army remains a fighting whole.
There is every reason to expect that, with unified Italy at his back, Cadorna will perform his task of holding the Germans either at his present line or at some other until Italy's allies can have their men and supplies on the spot in sufficient force to turn Northern Italy into the place where the issue of the war can be fought. Only a few days ago experts were saying that there was no chance of ending the war by a "military decision." Perhaps Germany, attacking Italy in a vain attempt to cause a revolution, has supplied the chance. —N. Y. Times

Preparing a Terrible Surprise.

A company of British Tommies were awaiting the signal to attack when a seasoned old sergeant happened to notice a young soldier fresh from home showing signs of being badly affected by the nerve-racking period of waiting for the coming fight. The lad's teeth were chattering, his face was pale, and his knees were knocking together. "Jinkinson," the sergeant whispered, "is it trembling ye are for your skin?" "No, no, sergeant," came the reply, as the lad made a brave effort to control his shaking limbs; "I'm trembling for the Germans; they don't know I'm here!"

A CLEAR SKIN.
Many women who desire to wear de-collette gowns, but alas, have damaged complexions, shallow throats, rough arms and hollow fore and aft on the shoulders and chests. The supposedly elusive secret of correcting such faults patiently repose within each woman. If she did but know it. Of course all women are not born queens, nor are all women possessors of the "fatal gift of beauty."
But each woman may cultivate her individual type and bring it to its perfection, where the requisite factors of intelligence and unflagging persistence have been the cornerstones. The need of careful daily grooming, deep breathing, sufficient exercise, sleep and a discreet winter dietary, all these individually and collectively contribute toward making a woman "divinely fair!"
The woman who does not possess a fairly good skin and a becoming amount of flesh (too much is almost as much of a sin as too little) certainly faces a perplexing problem. For go where she will, to the opera, dance, dinner, restaurant and theatre, gowns are de-collette and semi-de-collette, and the observer suspects tubercular tendencies when the throat is dressed high and the arms are screened with semi-transparencies.
The best foundation for a de-collette gown, whether the skin is red, too white, rough or otherwise blemished is a warm bath, followed by a cold dash. Then the complexion and exposed flesh is thoroughly massaged with a cleansing cream. The fingers should be warmed so that the flesh will absorb it more rapidly.

C. L. B. Anniversary.

The Church Lads Brigade celebrated the 25th Anniversary of its formation yesterday by attending a celebration of Holy Communion at 8 a.m. at St. Mary's Church, at which there was a record attendance, and at 2.15 in the afternoon the battalion, including the pupils of Bishop Field College, who in future will comprise K Co., together with a large number of past members, including a squad of returned soldiers and those connected with the Regiment, held a joint church parade. Numbering over 300 strong the battalion, headed by the band, left the Armoury and proceeded via LeMarchant Road, Springdale and Water Street to St. Mary's Church, where the Rev. H. Uphill, Battalion Chaplain, conducted the service and also delivered an eloquent and impressive sermon in which he briefly reviewed the work of the C. L. B. since its inception in 1892 and the part it has played in the present war. The music for the hymns was furnished by the band and they were heartily sung by the large congregation. Many people were not able to gain admittance.
At the close of the service the vast congregation stood at attention while the band rendered the Dead March in Sand, in memory of the members of the Brigade who have made the supreme sacrifice.
On returning to the Armoury the turn out was addressed by Lt.-Col. Rendell, who took occasion to refer to the memorial which, on arrival from England, will be put in a prominent position and will contain the names, inscribed on brass tablets, of the sixty-three lads who have laid down their lives for the cause of Empire.
The Outerbridge Medal and Bar was then presented to Sergt. R. Marshall, who had charge of No. 1 Section, A Co. in the Outerbridge Shield Competition, winning the trophy for the second time.
Good conduct stripes were awarded to Ptes. H. Bishop, H. W. Churchill and J. Johnson. The last named is now attached to the Regiment.

America's Hardest Workers.
Mr. Woodrow Wilson has, for many months past, worked on the average eighteen hours out of every twenty-four, without showing the least sign of exhaustion.
Such a glutton is he for work that, just as nothing is too great for his personal attention, nothing is too small. He will turn from settling the food control of 110,000,000 people, or placing an embargo on exports to neutrals, which means the starvation of Germany, to typing a pretty little note to a child in the Middle West who has asked him if he would advise her to invest her small savings in the war loan.
He never dictates a letter, a speech, or an international note. He types them all with his own hands on a small typewriter, which he bought some years ago, when he was Head of Princeton University, and which has been his constant and invaluable companion ever since.
It accompanies him on all his trips (it has travelled considerably over 100,000 miles); and on it he has written every one of his historic messages from his Note on the Lusitania tragedy to the more famous Address of April 2nd, 1917, when he threw down the gauntlet to Germany.—Pearson's Weekly.

Those Treble-Barrelled Names.

A friend of mine, a Canadian soldier, told me an amusing story the other day when referring, in the course of conversation, to Sir Genlle Cave-Brown-Cave, the "cowboy baronet," whose name has recently been somewhat prominently before the public.
It appears that there is a branch of the family living near my friend's house in Vancouver, and they are mightily proud of their treble-barrelled name.
One day a well-known resident of Vancouver named Home was in conversation with one of them, and casually dropped two-thirds of his name. Whereupon he was promptly called to order as follows:
"I say, old chap, don't call me Cave. I prefer to be called Cave-Brown-Cave."
Mr. Home apologized, but did not forget. And a little later, when Mr. Cave-Brown-Cave began a remark with, "I say, Home," the otheravened up.
"Don't call me Home, old chap," he said. "I prefer to be called Home-Sweet-Home."—Pearson's.

W. J. HERDER, Proprietor
H. A. WINTER, B.A., Editor

MONDAY, Nov. 12th, 1917.

The Truth About
Conscription.

We have already said that we welcomed the Herald's frank expression of opinion last week upon the recruiting question as it now faces the country; we welcome still more the reply which it made on Saturday to our own and the Advocate's views of the matter. We do so not only because it is clearly in substantial agreement with us, but because it puts the whole subject fairly and convincingly before its readers and gives it the healthy airing which it needs. For our own part we intend to go on airing it in the same way until something is done.

In one respect only the Herald seems to differ from us, that of the Government's responsibility. We should not have called some of them pro-Germans; the term is without foundation and will injure the reputation of the country. If it be a libel to call those pro-Germans who by act or omission consciously aid Germany, we plead guilty. Most people, we think, will make conduct and not sentiments the true criterion in the matter. But even a libel may have some justification if it compels the party injured to vindicate himself. We invite the Herald to compare any harm our remarks may do to the reputation of the country with that which would attend the event which they aimed to prevent, the disappearance of our Regiment.

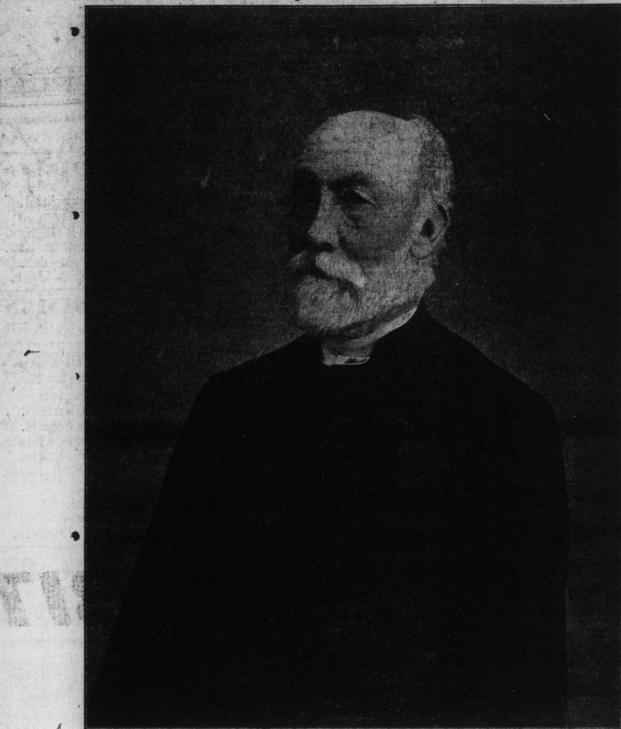

The Herald further says that for the present state of things the Government is no more responsible than the people. We emphatically dissent. Not only is the Government obviously responsible for the remedy of that state of things, but it is largely responsible also for the cause. It is not to be blamed if this man or that man will not come forward, but it is very much to be blamed for not using every effort and putting forth every inducement to make him, and for not having done so from the beginning. A member who does not see that those he represents in the Government of the country do their part in what is the duty of the citizen should resign his seat and the trust that belongs to it; he is not worthy of them. What single member of the Government has measured up to the standard of that standard, performed one tenth of the patriotic service of a dozen private citizens we could name?

We will not pursue the subject or waste time in looking backwards; the question of present action is too insistent. It is time, we think, that the country displayed some sense in its attitude towards the great necessity that confronts it, conscription. We say this because we do not believe that there are half-a-dozen persons in the country who have a correct idea of what conscription really means, what is required of it and what its effect would be. In the minds of the majority it is a sort of discredit (in spite of Britain's, Canada's and the States' example). It is also associated with a vague notion of a nation in arms, the manhood of the country abruptly summoned up from farm and schooner and factory, the trade and business of the country dislocated, everything turned upside down. Many hesitate before the prospect of the difficulties and details of enforcement. It is all a mistake. It is the fashion here to anticipate objections, to make mountains out of difficulties which dwindle to the merest molehills when they are courageously approached. Witness prohibition and daylight saving, so completely refuting those who predicted their failure. It would be the same with compulsory service. What is required to-day? A thousand men would meet our utmost needs for a long time to come. That number can be got with ease from among those men in the country who are of military age, physically fit, independent and absolutely without dependents. From among the slackers, the men who have no excuse, the men who ought on every ground to be made to go, the men who hold back and watch others take their place whose going means heaven knows what silent wren and self-sacrifice to the all-conquering call of duty. They can be enrolled in sufficient numbers without any trouble, at least with a fraction of the trouble at present expended fruitlessly. Their enrolment means no injustice and no hardship, rather the belated rectification of a great wrong. The country will not miss them, but will everywhere approve the act. If there should be need of more, there will be time, before the need arises to meet it easily and supply those next eligible. There is absolutely nothing to hesitate about, nothing to wait for. Yet the Government hesitates and waits. In the fourth year of war it has not even taken steps to ascertain the number and particulars of those eligible. It is time to wake up. It is time to act.

PATRIOTIC MEETING VOTES FOR
CONSCRIPTION.

GRAND FALLS, To-Day. A public meeting of men was held in the town hall last night under the auspices of the Patriotic Association to get their opinion as regards conscription. Magistrate Fitzgerald occupied the chair, and after explaining why the meeting was called, Mr. Wain proposed the resolution. It was seconded by Mr. N. Pike and supported by the Rev. Mr. Dunn, Rev. Mr. Whitehouse, Mr. Josiah Goodheart, Mr. Dyer and Pte. Rendell, who was the first to volunteer from Grand Falls. A secret ballot was taken with the following result: For Conscription 169, against 124. The meeting then closed by singing the National Anthem.

REV. DR. ALBERT CARMAN,
for over 30 years General Superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada and Newfoundland, who died at Toronto the past week, and to whom reference was made in the city churches yesterday.

At Cochrane St.
Centennial Church.

A number of members of the Nfld. Regiment attended Divine Services at Cochrane Street Methodist Centennial Church yesterday morning. The Rev. N. M. Guy, M.A., occupied the pulpit. The question of the Disciples, "Why could we not cast them out?" was dealt with. The duty of the church was outlined, as well as that of the responsibility of the individual, community life, physical as well as spiritual. More effective personal work ought to be done. Churches should be a great spiritual armoury, and by faith and prayer should go forth to endeavour to reclaim the man that is down. At the evening service the Rev. Dr. Bond took as his subject, "Christ's view of death in opposition to the view of men." During the service reference was made to the death of the Rev. Dr. Carman, late General Superintendent of the Methodist Church of Canada and Newfoundland which occurred at his home in Toronto last week. Dr. Carman in his 84th year, and during his tenure of office as General Superintendent served his church nobly. He was truly a prince of the Methodist church, full of years and honor. The choir rendered "Vital Spark of Heavenly Flame" and while the congregation remained standing the "Dead March in Saul" was played by Organist Mews. A meeting of men, both old and young was announced for Wednesday evening to take up matters in connection with the Thanksgiving Services to be held next Sunday.

Food Czar Rides in Hudson Super-Six
Limousine.

Herbert C. Hoover, food dictator of America, and the man who saved Belgium from starvation, has just purchased a Super-Six Limousine Landau from the Semmes Motor Car Co. of Washington, D.C. The same company also reports the sale of a Super-Six Limousine to Senator Y. Bonillas, New Mexican Minister. The cost of the machine did not have the slightest effect in determining the purchase of either of these two men. They are both in a position to select any make of car they might desire no matter how costly. They both occupy positions in which they are expected to use equipages of distinction. They are both men who know and demand serviceability. And they both bought Hudson Super-Six—advt. 11

CECIL MACGREGOR ILL.—It is with much regret that we learn of the serious illness of Mr. Cecil Macgregor. He has been invalided out of the army and his recovery is doubtful. His father, now resident in England, carried on a successful general's furnishing business for many years on Water St. This young soldier rendered good service owing to being an expert motor cycle rider.

Rev. Charles Lench

Preaches to a Very Large Congregation at Westey Methodist Church. Wesley Church was filled to almost overflowing last evening to hear the Rev. Charles Lench, an old-time pastor, deliver one of his very inspiring and helpful sermons. The rev. gentleman based his discourse on the text, "A Good Soldier of Jesus Christ," and has lost none of his old-time fire. In listening to him last night one would almost imagine that they were listening to the Rev. Lench of 20 years ago. The lessons he deduced from the text and from the titanic struggle now going on in Europe were very apt and helpful to the congregation. On the subject of the war those who heard him last night can have no doubt as to where the Rev. Lench stands; nor will they have any doubt as to his patriotism. He is a Briton through and through, and makes no attempt to disguise the fact, and his presence on a recruiting platform would certainly be a great help to the campaign now going on. As an old contributor to the Telegram we heartily welcome the rev. gentleman to the city even if only for a short stay.

Wedding Bells.

BAKER—CHURCHILL. On Nov. 7th, a very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Thomas's Church when the Rev. Mr. Moulton united in holy wedlock Mr. Loyal Baker, of the R.N.R., and Miss Eliza Churchill. The bride looked neat in cream silk voile and pale pink hat; the bridesmaid was Miss Jennie Benson, who was dressed in white muslin with hat to match. The bride was given away by her uncle Mr. Edward Bally, of the employ of the Empire Co. The groom was supported by a returned soldier, Mr. C. Benson. After the ceremony the party drove to the residence of the bride's uncle Colonial Street, where supper was served. Amongst the guests was the groom's mother who arrived in town to attend the wedding. The bride received some handsome presents. Both bride and groom are from Random South. We wish Mr. and Mrs. Baker many happy years of wedded life.

MUSICAL AND DANCE.—The Eccelleny the Administrator and His Grace the Archbishop will be present at the musical and dance to be held in the C. C. C. Hall to-morrow night in aid of the Presentation Convent fund.

No Shaky Nerves in POSTUM

Captain James
A. Ledingham.

"This was the happy warrior, this was he that every man in arms should wish to be."

Newfoundland's share in the Great War is to be chronicled by some of the ablest writers in the Colony, and the immortal deeds of Newfoundland's gallant Regiment are constantly portrayed by the Empire's foremost war correspondents, but only occasionally does one read a eulogy of an individual officer or man of Newfoundland's chief factor in the War who has assisted in raising the prestige of that factor to its pinnacle of fame. May I write a humble and unworthy tribute to the memory of a good man and a gallant soldier?

Captain James Allan Ledingham was one of a family whom "the roots of patriotism" run deep. His oldest brother is an Engineer Commander in the Royal Naval Reserve. Another brother is an officer in the Canadian Infantry. A third is engaged in important war work on the Clyde. When the offer of the Newfoundland Government to send five hundred picked men to the call of the Empire was accepted, "Jim" Ledingham was amongst the first to sign the roll of enlistment. He did yeoman service in the early days at Pleasantville and his appointment to commissioned rank before the First Contingent sailed for England was warmly approved on all sides. When the 1st Battalion proceeded overseas to the Dardanelles in August 1915, Captain Ledingham, who had obtained well-deserved promotion, remained to form the Depot at Ayr, assuming the post of Quartermaster. The loss to the 1st Battalion was an incalculable gain to the 2nd, as the Depot eventually became Ledingham's department called forth much labour and self-denial which he was only too ready to offer, and when he handed over his duties in February 1916, he had established a reputation for himself and his department which stands unrivalled.

The 1st Battalion had reached the "half-way house" on its way up the line when Ledingham and his draft arrived in France. He was accorded an enthusiastic welcome from all ranks and was posted to "A" Company. He was Captain O'Brien's right hand man all through and when "the well-beloved O'Brien" was detached for duty elsewhere, Ledingham took over command of the senior company and had the distinction of leading them to the attack on the memorable First of July. He was severely wounded in the advance and arrived in England about a week later. I saw him in hospital where he gave me a pathetic description of our men's heroic self-sacrifice, mourned for those who had fallen, and as might be expected of him, said naught of his own part in the action.

He returned to Ayr in September and was immediately placed in command of a recruit company but recently reported from Newfoundland. Of his work in this particular one can not speak too highly. After the men had completed their training under his watchful guidance they were fit for anything and I have never seen a finer lot of reinforcements leave the Depot for service overseas. In December he himself was again ordered abroad and got as far as No. 29 Infantry Base Depot. Here he was detained to fill the post of Adjutant, which office he held for several months. The Commanding Officer there allowed him to rejoin the 1st Battalion only after many urgent appeals from Ledingham, and the C. O.'s report was the finest tribute to the capabilities of an officer that I have yet seen.

On rejoining the 1st Battalion he once more assumed command of his old company, who worked with redoubled vigour in their anxiety to win his esteem. In September he was granted a few days leave, a portion of which he spent with us at Barry Camp. Words cannot express the joy it gave us to see him. His visit was like a ray of sunshine and his cheerfulness reminded one of the lines: "He is the happy man whose life e'en now Shows somewhat of the happier life to come."

But when we bade farewell to him that morning at Barry Station, I felt instinctively I was looking upon my friend for the last time. On October 9th he led his men once more to the grand assault and met his death-stroke. The fruits of his victory cannot now be measured in words, but we know that their gallantry was superb. Alas! that he does not live to share their glory.

What struck one most in the character of James Ledingham was its eminent purity. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." Clean living and clean-minded, he was every-thing a man. His immeasurable kindness and desire to make other happy, his passionate love of truth and scorn of all things mean and base were traits that set him far above us "weaker brethren." If ever a man were un-sullied "the white flower of a blameless life," that man was James Led- 16/10/17.

We have enlarged all of our Departments, which gives us room to add to our stocks many new lines and greater varieties. We feel fully justified in making such preparations on account of the continued and rapid growth of our business

The goods now on exhibition in the various Departments of our stores, are typical of the accepted and authoritative fashions for the Fall and Winter Season. We desire to impress upon you the fact that our efforts in making this collection, were not combined solely to the higher priced kind, for we have gone to the extreme to procure a very extensive assortment of goods at popular prices.

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED TO ATTEND THIS STYLE EXHIBIT.

You'll find it instructive and of such ample scope that choosing apparel to suit your own individuality will be an easy task

Visit Our New Corset, Blouse and Underwear Department on the Second Floor.

Each season brings some notable improvement in Corsets. More especially is this true of the new lines we carry. You will find our Corset Department models conforming to the latest requirements, beautifully made and finished in every respect.

No woman, whatever her social position or the size of her purse, can allow this event to pass without carefully examining all the new Corset improvements which she will find displayed in this Department.

Crepe-de-chene & Georgette Crepe Blouses

Attention is called to the magnificent collection of Crepe-de-Chene and Georgette Crepe Blouses now on exhibition in this Department.

The lines shown embrace many kinds exclusive to this Store, which by their beauty and natty styles, cannot fail to arouse the favorable comment of the shopping public. They are mostly hand embroidered and are beautiful specimens of the blouse-makers art.

Prices range from $375 to $10.50

Warm and Serviceable
Coats for Children and Misses.

These Smart Coats were imported from a manufacturer who specialized in the production of clothes for children, and whose designs are credited with being the smartest and most serviceable cold weather coats produced.

These coats are very carefully tailored in every detail, and will be found to fit comfortably and correctly. Considerable attention has been paid to the selection of materials in which these coats are tailored, and only approved fabrics of superior quality, handsome appearance and directly suited to the Newfoundland climate are shown.

Desirable Fall Hosiery for Women.

Women can never overestimate the importance of suitable Hosiery for Fall and Winter wear. Reliable Hosiery means cold weather comfort and is a real preventative of chills. The Fall and Winter Hosiery sold at this Store is the product of the best manufacturers. The different grades shown are the very best obtainable under present conditions

Immense Showing of New Fall Hearth Rugs and Floor Coverings.

The Carpet Department is now showing, what is without doubt, a unique display of the most desirable Hearth Rugs, the products of the world's best manufacturers.

The immense variety of new and distinctive patterns constitutes, we believe a record display for any individual house in St. John's.

Our stock of Linoleums and Floor Canvas is particularly complete and affords a comprehensive collection of the most handsome designs.

A Remarkably Complete Display of House Furnishings.

It is a recognized fact that the best time to purchase Fancy Linens and House Furnishings is in the Fall. The Fall display of the most beautiful designs in Fancy Linens, which may be now seen at The Royal Stores, Limited, is decidedly worthy of a visit from women interested in the problem of beautifying the home.

The stocks of House Furnishings carried by this Store are unique, and afford purchasers a selection unequalled anywhere in St. John's.

NEW FALL MILLINERY.

This Department is showing an unequalled assortment of the very finest productions in Fall and Winter Headwear for Women and Misses, while large purchases effected at a considerable reduction on prevailing prices enables this Store to offer these high-grade hats at very special prices.

Smart and Useful Sweater Coats.

Every one should have a Sweater Coat. The kinds now shown at this store are distinctively dainty in design, made from the best obtainable materials in the most attractive colorings, and are beautifully finished in every detail. There are many styles to select from and each style possesses some distinctive feature.

An Instalment of New Tweeds and Serges.

Tweeds and Serges this year have assumed an even more prominent position than ever.

These durable fabrics are the backing of London Dressmakers, and are greatly used in New York, together with all kinds of fur trimmings in profusion.

Here we have them in a great variety of makes. They are shown in widths ranging from 48 to 56 inches, in bright and cherry color combinations.

Living for the Millionth Chance.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

I had a discussion the other day with a man about sending checks to people whom you do not know. This man held that it was not safe to do because the people might raise them and then you would be responsible. "I should worry," said I, "my checking account isn't big enough so that I would lose a great deal."

"Oh, well!" said he, "you are responsible to the whole extent of your property." This did not seem possible to me, so we discussed the matter further, and I found out that he based that statement on the fact that he had heard of a man whose check was raised and who had been suspected of collusion with the raiser, and had finally had to make restitution.

The Superior Attitude of the Ultra-Cautious.

"But you wouldn't be in collusion," I pointed out. He smiled that superior smile with which the ultra cautious view the ignorance of people who aren't forever hedging themselves in with fears. "How could I prove that?" he asked triumphantly.

I couldn't prove he couldn't prove it, so we adjourned the discussion.

Later I talked with the treasurer of a bank about the matter of checking raising, asking him what the chances were. "Never while I have been here," he said, "have I had a raised check. I should say about one chance in a million."

They Plan Always For The Worst. That statement interested me deeply.

ly, not only because I wanted to know about the check situation for my own information, but because it described so well the way that man and others like him—the check is only an example of his attitude toward life—order their existence. They live not for the nine hundred and ninety-nine thousand, nine hundred and ninety-nine chances in the million but for the one chance.

There are so many, many things that might happen, that do happen once in a million times or so. To look out for them all would take most of the joy out of life. And that's just what happens to the people who live for the millionth chance. (Add to those who have to live with them.)

Excessive Fear of Germs is Cowardice.

The extravagant fuss some people make about germs is a typical manifestation of this state of mind. It is good to be cleanly, good to be careful, splendid to keep yourself in such physical health that you can throw off germs, but it is terrible to think about germs all the time.

It's foolish to live for the millionth chance and it's cowardly. There's some element of chance in everything in life and to be so fearfully afraid of chances is to be afraid of life.

The man I described is a monstrosity because he has let his habit of exaggerating the millionth chance obsess him until he has lost all sense of proportion. But there are many who have a tendency that way. Check it while you can. Believe me, (and I have bitter reasons to know) it is a terrible thing—once it gets control of you.

sleepers and cause him to arise in a damp and agitated condition.

After an alarm clock has been used every morning for several weeks it seems to lose its punch and persuasive power, and has to be suspended just above the right ear of the sleeper, where it can deliver its appealing message at close range. When resorted to at infrequent intervals, however, it should be wrapped up in a quilt and buried in a telescope grip in the closet, as it has a loud and aggressive tick which sounds like driving a Shetland pony over a wooden bridge. In flat buildings and apartment houses the use of the alarm clock should be prohibited by law, except when deadened with comforter and limited to one shop, yell.

WINTER GRIEF.

WILLY MASCO

I hate the winter; then my aunts fill all the house with potted plants, which lately grow outdoors; there are begonias, palms and ferns which ever way a fellow turns, on windowsills and floors. It makes me sad to plant my feet in boxes of nasturtiums sweet, when hunting for a book; it makes a weary toiler hot to bump his head against a pot suspended for a hook. I have to pack big pots of flowers from place to place, at divers hours, so they will get the sun; I pack them all around the coop, and now I set them on the stoop—the work is never done. Oh, there are pots upon the shelf, where stood the works of Richard Realf, and pots upon the stairs; and there are pots of silly greens where I would keep my magazines, and pots upon the chairs. I have to drop my clanging lyre and go and tend the furnace fire, so some blamed plants won't freeze; I have to leave my downy cot to see that some old-swinging pot escapes the winter breeze. I have to water foolish plants and keep them free from bugs and ants and worms and grubs and bots; and till the long, long winter goes, I'll bump my brow and bust my nose against the hanging pots.

If you are arranging short-stemmed flowers, throw into the water a number of ordinary bottle corks. These will buoy up the flowers, keeping them in position.

In Paris imitation ostrich feathers are made of yarn.

CANADIAN HEROISM IN AN INFERNAL OF FIRE.

CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Nov. 10th.—After twelve hours of continuous and desperate fighting, Canada stands secure on Passchendaele Ridge, having consolidated all the positions gained in a splendid advance this morning, when our infantry stormed its way along the heights for another six hundred yards, taking Venture Farm, the vindictive Cross Roads and Exert. From dawn until dark the salient was reached to the roar of our guns in what has been the most tremendous artillery duel in the history of Canada in Flanders. Two minutes after our advance the enemy barrage fell. From then until five o'clock this afternoon every gun which could be employed along the whole front has been directed against our attack. Following the new defensive methods, the enemy offered little infantry opposition to our advance. His lines in the forward zone were thinly held, his troops being massed in a line some thousand yards to the rear. Our right attack went forward practically without opposition. On the left enemy parties holding fortified shell-holes offered stouter resistance, but by eight o'clock we had taken all our objectives. To the left British troops, facing an almost impassable country swept by the enemy machine guns from strong points at Vocation and Vox Farms, were unable to advance in conjunction with our forces. Our left flank was exposed. The defensive flank accordingly was formed by a veteran battalion. On the extreme left, our troops in a narrow salient on the top of Passchendaele spur were exposed to a concentrated enemy artillery fire from West Reppebeek, Ootshiewerke and Loodkris in the north and Waterdamseck Dazdele and Terhand in the south. The enemy employed every available battery, raining shells into our narrow front. He was literally endeavouring to blast us out of our positions. He failed. What our infantry had gained it held, but all day long the Canadian battalions, lying in water-soaked, half filled shell holes or belly down in shallow trenches, scooped out of the mud, endured the shelling, surpassing anything in Canadian history. Shells, shrapnel and high explosives rained around their positions. The ground was harrowed by enemy fire. The men were buried under mud and dug out by comrades and buried again and dug out, and digging out others between times. They held on doggedly until morning gave place to noon and noon to the evening. Behind them our guns roared incessantly raking the enemy's defensive line, engaging his batteries from north to south and fighting the whole weight of his artillery on long miles of the front. Neither resting nor eating our gunners fought the great battle in the salient flaming with fire at dawn and dusk and heavy with smoke by day. For 12 hours what was practically a splendid barrage was maintained by our artillery. Then quiet fell again upon the salient. The enemy had given up and from the forward areas wounded men stumbling in the dark over the now plowed country and staggering exhausted along the narrow board walks came to the advanced dressing stations with their story of how our new line had been held and consolidated.

FRENCH AND BELGIAN OFFICIALS

PARIS, To-day. An official communication issued by the War Office last night reads: There was no infantry action. The artillery was quite lively in Belgium, in the sector of Papegoed, southwest of Housthal Forest and on the right bank of the Meuse in the region of Hill 244 and Chaume Wood. The day was calm on the rest of the front. Belgian Communication: On the night of November 9-10, our artillery shelled the German communications near Essen. The enemy violently bombarded our trenches and our advanced works south of Dismude. Aerial bombs were launched against our cantonnements. On November 10 the Germans bombarded the region of Ramscapelle to which we energetically replied. On November 11th German artillery again made its actions felt against our advanced positions in the region of Ramscapelle and Peryse as well as our trenches south of Dismude. We silenced several enemy batteries and bombarded enemy works at Woumen and Dismude. Enemy airplanes dropped bombs on the environs of Fourman.

Eastern Theatre, Nov. 10.—There was moderate artillery activity and some skirmishes along the Struma near Dobropolis, and in the region of the Lakes.

SUCCESSFUL ITALIAN COUNTER-ATTACKS.

ROME, To-day. An announcement by the War Office to-day reads: At dawn yesterday, after artillery preparation which began the evening before, the enemy, having passed our line of observation in the neighborhood of Asiago, attacked our advanced posts on Gallio and on Mont Serrah, Hill 1116, behind that line.

GERMANY'S EXERCISES.

ZURICH, To-day. An official report issued by the German War Food Bureau says that more than ten thousand substitutes are now used in Germany. Seven thousand of these substitutes are for food.

The Germans as Others See Them.

Open Letter to Herr Harden. Sir Isidore Spielmann has addressed an open letter to Herr Harden, editor of the Zukunft, "one of the few sane men now in Germany," in the hope that the points which he puts forward may help "to wash from the eyes of his countrymen some of the dust which the Government has thrown into them."

and after a bitter struggle succeeded in taking them. The 15th morning unit and units of Egsia Pisa, the 29th and 20th regiments and of Tuscany, the 77th and 78th regiments, and of the fifth Bersagliers, by the result of a counter attack recaptured the positions, driving the enemy back and capturing a hundred prisoners. The enemy vanguard which had reached the village of Tozze in the Sugana Valley was promptly attacked and destroyed. On the Piave our covering troops, after having repulsed enemy parties which attacked them on the heights of Voldobbiadene, passed to the right bank of the river and destroyed the Vider Bridge. On the middle and lower reaches of the river there were reciprocal cannonades and machine gun firing.

LILY DEAD.

HONOLULU, To-day. Queen Liliuokalani of Hawaii is dead.

GREAT PROGRESS IN PALESTINE.

LONDON, To-day. A War Office announcement respecting the operations in Palestine follows: General Allenby reports that the advance of his forces continued yesterday and that the left wing was in the neighbourhood of Esdud, an ancient Ashdod, 14 miles north of the Cadishe. The enemy's rear guard had occupied a line along the northern branch of the Wallekered. The Royal Flying Corps the same day bombed the junction station at Wadissur. There was a large amount of rolling stock in the station and on this and one of the station buildings several direct hits were observed to cause considerable damage. Our mounted troops have reported the following captures for Friday, five 5.9 inch howitzers, 8 field guns, 10 oficers, 700 other ranks and much transport. As the extent of the battlefield is six hundred square miles it will be some time before a correct list of booty can be made. Details have now been received of the action of the Warwickshire Yeomanry and Worcestershire Yeomanry on Thursday. A reconnoitering party near Hefat of Gaza saw a considerable body of the enemy with guns marching about 2,500 yards away in a north-easterly direction. The Yeomanry were ordered to charge the enemy. The charge was at once carried out in face of heavy gun machine-gun and rifle fire with gallantry and dash worthy the best traditions of the British cavalry. Twelve guns were captured, the gunners being killed or wounded at the guns. Three machine guns and 100 prisoners were also captured. This completely broke the hostile resistance and enabled us to push on to Ha.

LOYAL MINERS.

LONDON, To-day. An important section of British labor has given a decision in favor of continuing the war until victory is attained. The South Wales mining area, sometimes called the storm center of British industry, has been halting for several days past upon the question whether to strike if the Government proceeds with its scheme for compelling out "more men for military age for service in the army." A big majority of three to one of the miners has decided against the strike.

THE RUSSIAN SITUATION.

LONDON, To-day. The formation of a committee on Public Safety in Petrograd, according to a message to the Daily Telegraph from Petrograd dated Saturday, was the outcome of an agreement between non-Bolshevik members of the City Council and Moscow Socialist Committees. The organization is purely moral and is not supported by any part of the garrison. The Council got into communication with Moscow, the message adds, and learned that the Bolshevik attempt to seize power there was defeated by the garrison which drove the Bolshevik into the Kremlin. The Telegraph correspondent says he hears that General Kaledines and Professor Paul Klunkef, a former Foreign Minister, are associated with Michael Bodulianke in forming a Government in Moscow. He confirms the report that General Kornilof is in Moscow and says he was rescued from prison by the Cosacks. The correspondent declares that it is impossible to predict future developments in Petrograd, but thinks it most probable that the outcome will be the steady dissolution of the Bolshevik garrison, the re-entry of Premier Kerensky and some resistance by the Bolsheviks, notwithstanding the common disinclination of the Premier to which the food conditions in Petrograd are serious, supplies for only two days being on hand.

QUITE PROPER.

MELBOURNE, To-day. Naturalized enemy born, also persons whose fathers are enemy born, are disqualified from voting in the referendum on conscription.

NOTHING MUCH DOING.

PARIS, To-day. On the front between Chaume Wood and Bezouvaux (Verdun) active artillery fighting continued during the night, says to-day's official statement. On the remainder of the front the night was calm.

GERMANY'S EXERCISES.

ZURICH, To-day. An official report issued by the German War Food Bureau says that more than ten thousand substitutes are now used in Germany. Seven thousand of these substitutes are for food.

The Germans as Others See Them.

Open Letter to Herr Harden. Sir Isidore Spielmann has addressed an open letter to Herr Harden, editor of the Zukunft, "one of the few sane men now in Germany," in the hope that the points which he puts forward may help "to wash from the eyes of his countrymen some of the dust which the Government has thrown into them."

After stating the well-known facts which disprove the fiction foisted upon the German people that the Allies are responsible for the war and forced it upon a peaceful Germany, he continues:—

It is far from my intention, Herr Harden, merely to abuse your people, but have they ever considered why they are so despised? They should try to see themselves, as others see them. They are generally hated because of their unbounded conceits, their unbounded deceit, and their brutal nature. Their cruelties in this war have seldom been surpassed by the most savage tribes, and have revived for the German people the ancient name of "Huns"—which the Kaiser once claimed himself—a name that will stick to them for all time. They have invented fighting with the assistance of poisoned gases and "flame throwing"—cruel and cowardly weapons.

They have poisoned wells, as did the savages of old. They have dropped high explosives on civilians—men, women and children—in open towns. They have declared open towns "fortresses," and treated them accordingly, merely because anti-aircraft guns have been set up for their protection.

They have deported men, women and girls from Belgium and France and enslaved them, forcing them by starvation to work for their enemies.

They have sunk non-combatant ships, and left their crews to drown. They have even sunk hospital ships under a variety of the most heinous pretexts, and drowned defenceless wounded soldiers, Red Cross nurses, and doctors.

They have fired on crews struggling in the water. They have needlessly ruined lands in their retreats.

They have treated prisoners of war with cowardly brutality. Your Kaiser and your Government now frequently refer to your having a "world of enemies," but have you people ever asked themselves why this is so? Why, in addition to England, France, Russia, Belgium, and Serbia—the first to face you—should you now have arrayed against you the United States of America, Italy, Japan, Montenegro, Albania, Portugal, Roumania, Cuba, Panama, Greece, and Brazil, Bolivia, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, Liberia, Haiti, and San Domingo—several diplomatic relations with you?

And why does the whole world distrust you and suspect you? Why will no country trust your word again? Because you do not respect your solemn engagements when it suits your purpose to break them, and because you have brought your diplomacy to the lowest level of trickery and deceit as inculcated by Bismark and his disciples. Your endeavour to Prussianize the world has failed because your world-war has failed, thanks to the all-wise and all-merciful God, and the world is not to be set back by him. If your people think that all will be forgotten and forgiven as far as they are concerned when the war is over, tell them they are grievously mistaken. . . . Until the German people—especially the Prussians—show themselves to be a chastened people, understanding the difference between right and wrong and living up to it; until they understand that honour and truth, mercy and justice are virtues to be practised by Germans as well as by other nations of the world, they will have to live henceforth as the most despised people on God's earth.—London Times.

WINARD'S LINIMENT CURES GADGETS

WHENEVER A NAVAL ENGAGEMENT SURVIVES OF MORE THAN USUAL MERIT, WE ARE BECOMING ACCUSTOMED TO EXPECT TO HEAR THAT A NEWFOUNDLANDER HAS BEEN MIXED UP IN IT IN SOME WAY. THE RECENT ACTION IN THE NORTH SEA, WHEN TWO BRITISH DESTROYERS WERE SUNK AND THE HUNGARIAN COVERED THEMSELVES WITH GLORY BY SINKING THE DEFENCELESS NORWEGIAN MERCHANTMEN THAT THEY WERE CONVOYING, IS NO DISAPPOINTMENT IN THAT RESPECT. IAN THOMPSON, SON OF THE LATE W. H. THOMPSON OF HARBOUR GRACE, WHO HAD A BRILLIANT CAREER AT EDINBURGH UNIVERSITY AS A MEDICAL STUDENT, WAS ACTING AS SURGEON-PROBATIONER ON THE DESTROYER STROUNGBOW, A LADY, WRITING TO THE WIFE OF A GENTLEMAN NOW IN ST. JOHN'S, THUS DESCRIBES HIS GALLANTRY: "IAN THOMPSON HAS PROVIDED HIMSELF A HERO INDEED. HE WAS A SURGEON-PROBATIONER IN THE DESTROYER STROUNGBOW, AND WAS AT THAT TIME ON CONVOY TO SOME NEUTRAL MERCHANT SHIPS (UNARMED), THE STROUNGBOW WAS ATTACKED, BUT PUT UP A GALLANT FIGHT. UNFORTUNATELY IT WAS SUNK. IAN HAD A SHATTERED LIMB BUT INSISTED ON ATTENDING TO THE WOUNDED IN THE FIGHT AND SAVED THE LIVES OF SIXTEEN."

Another Newfoundland Hero.

Ian Thompson, Harbour Gracian, Saved Many Lives When "Stroungbow" Was Sunk.

Whenever a naval engagement survives of more than usual merit, we are becoming accustomed to expect to hear that a Newfoundland has been mixed up in it in some way. The recent action in the North Sea, when two British destroyers were sunk and the Hungarians covered themselves with glory by sinking the defenceless Norwegian merchantmen that they were convoying, is no disappointment in that respect. Ian Thompson, son of the late W. H. Thompson of Harbour Grace, who had a brilliant career at Edinburgh University as a medical student, was acting as surgeon-probationer on the destroyer Stroungbow, a lady, writing to the wife of a gentleman now in St. John's, thus describes his gallantry: "Ian Thompson has provided himself a hero indeed. He was a surgeon-probationer in the destroyer Stroungbow, and was at that time on convoy to some neutral merchant ships (unarmed), the Stroungbow was attacked, but put up a gallant fight. Unfortunately it was sunk. Ian had a shattered limb but insisted on attending to the wounded in the fight and saved the lives of sixteen."

Hospital Report.

Dear Sir—I beg to forward you herewith copy of cablegram from Henry Reeva, Esq., C.M.G., Honorary Secretary of the Nfld. War Convalescent Association, London, reporting on the condition of the members of the Newfoundland Regiment who have been visited in Hospital by the Visiting Committee of the Association.

Yours truly, R. A. SQUIRES, Colonial Secretary. Progressing favourably, 3393 Goodie, 2826 Nottal, 2824 Strowbridge. Improving, 1929 Hiscoc, 552 Kearley, 2885 Murphy, 3277 Parsons, 2802 Whelan. Slight improvement, 1940 Shortall.

Capt. Llewellyn Ryland.

The following item appears in the Birmingham Gazette, October 19th: "Lieutenant Llewellyn Ryland, who is in charge of the Birmingham Munition Area Recruiting Office, has been gazetted as captain. Before the war he was an officer in the Warwickshire Yeomanry. Previous to taking up his present duties he was adjutant of the Curzon Hall Recruiting Depot, and was mentioned in the honours list in connection with recruiting under the Derby scheme."

Captain Ryland is well known in St. John's. He was a soldier until the death of the Hon. M. G. Winter. When the war broke out, Lieut. Ryland was immediately given responsible recruiting duties, which he performed so well that although he has always been ready to go to the front, he has been retained at home to help in raising and training soldiers. Under the voluntary system his district created a record for its percentage of recruits. His promotion will be learned with pleasure by his many friends here.

WAR REVIEW.

Apparently the Bolshevik uprising in Petrograd is near its end and Premier Kerensky may soon again be in power. Late advices from Petrograd are to the effect that the revolutionists have been defeated in Moscow and Tsarskoe Selo, and from the latter town, which is fifteen miles from Petrograd, are marching on the capital. In Petrograd street fighting has taken place with Cossacks and other loyalists, who are reported to have had the better of the Bolsheviks, while Kerensky with 200,000 men is on his way from Gatchina to reinforce the loyalists. To stay his progress the rails of the Petrograd-Gatchina railway have been torn up. A large number of Bolsheviks are said to have gone out to give battle. To add to the troubles of the Kerensky government a state of war has been proclaimed in Finland, and the Governor-General dismissed. His place has been taken by a sailor. The Diet has voted to elect a state directorate which will have supreme power in the province.

On the Italian front the Italian line in the north has stiffened under the reinforcements it has received from the British and French. Even the German official statement does not mention any further retirement by the Italians, but on the contrary admits the east of Asiago, where the Austro-Germans made gains late last week, the Italians in strong force attacked the invaders and recaptured the lost positions. The Italians took about 100 prisoners in Lugana Valley, and an enemy advance was captured. Along the middle and southern reaches of the Piave the Italians are holding their line tenaciously, although they have been forced to give up Victor Bridgehead northeast of Tevisio after having fought a delaying battle, in which they had time to blow up the bridge crossing the stream.

The Germans on Sunday made no attempt to recapture the ground taken from them by the British on Saturday in the region of Passchendaele. Contenting themselves with consolidation of the newly-won line, a heavy rain prevented the British from extending their gain. Bombardments and minor attacks have predominated on the remainder of the western front, except near Hartmannswillerkopf, in Vosges mountain where in a violent battle the French completely repulsed the Germans. At one point the Germans succeeded in entering a French observation line, but in a hand-to-hand fight they were driven out. The German official statement says that thirty-seven French Chasseurs were captured by them during the fighting.

In Palestine the British forces under General Allenby continue to make progress against the Turks, which are being aided by German and Austrian gunners. During the latter part of last week several additional towns and villages were captured on a 600 square mile battlefield, in addition to numerous guns and prisoners. East of Gaza a large enemy force was defeated after a violent fight, and twelve guns, three machine guns and 100 prisoners were captured. The Austrian gunners serving the guns were killed or wounded.

MARCHING ON PETROGRAD.

LONDON, Nov. 11. Premier Kerensky arrived at Lugana, eighty-five miles southwest of Petrograd last Wednesday, and the garrison there attested its loyalty to him, according to a Petrograd despatch of Saturday to the Weekly Despatch. Saturday morning he reached Gatchina, thirty-five miles southwest of Petrograd, where the same thing happened. The newspapers add that troops loyal to the Provisional Government are known to be near Petrograd, and a division of Cossacks is on the way from Finland. This news was given out at the Smolny Institute, the headquarters of the Workmen's and Soldiers' Congress. The garrison at Petrograd, which two days ago was solid for the extremists, now is said again to be wavering in its attitude.

REBELS DEFEATED.

LONDON, Nov. 11. Pro-Kerensky troops have occupied Tsarskoe Selo, 15 miles south of Petrograd, and have taken over the wireless station, according to a wireless despatch sent from Petrograd by the committee for the saving of the country and revolution. The rebels are said to be retreating in disorderly mobs on Petrograd. Premier Kerensky is said to be approaching Petrograd and to have established communication with loyal forces which already are engaged in attacks on the Bolsheviks in the capital.

A wireless despatch from Russia says the collapse of the Bolshevik movement is only a matter of days or hours. The revolt against the Bolsheviks in Petrograd is increasing. In Moscow the Red Guard has been defeated. Premier Kerensky will approach Petrograd towards evening today.

GERMAN ATTACKS REPULSED.

PARIS, Nov. 11. A German attack in the Vosges, near Hartmannswillerkopf, resulted in a violent engagement last night. The war office announces that the Germans were repulsed completely. Another attack at Reichenkroopf also was without success.

TEUTONIC FORCES ATTACKED.

BERLIN, Nov. 11. (British Admiralty, per Wireless Press.)—The Teutonic forces which are carrying out a new offensive on the Trentino front were attacked yesterday by strong Italian detachments which pressed them back at one point, the war office announces. The Italians have made a stand on the Lower Piave River. The City of Belluno, on Upper Piave, has been captured by Austro-German troops.

DESPERATE FIGHTING.

BERLIN, Nov. 11. Desperate fighting occurred yesterday on the Flanders front in the Passchendaele region. To-day's communication from army headquarters says the British attacked repeatedly and were repulsed.

STREET FIGHTING IN PETROGRAD.

PARIS, Nov. 11. Premier Kerensky, who escaped from Petrograd on the night of Nov. 6th in an automobile ambulance, arrived safely at general headquarters and now has 200,000 men devoted to him, according to a wireless message from Haparanda, Sweden, which escaped the Leninist censorship. The wireless despatch says the latest from Petrograd is that Cossacks, aided by Minimalists, are making the Bolsheviks in a street battle.

NO COUNTER ATTACK.

LONDON, Nov. 11. The Germans have made no attempt to recapture the ground gained yesterday by the British on the Flanders front, says the statement issued this morning. It follows: A heavy rain has fallen during the night. The enemy's artillery has been active against our positions at Passchendaele and the ground captured yesterday north of the village, but no further infantry action has taken place. We carried out a successful raid last night northwest of Warneton.

BRITISH LINE ADVANCED.

CANADIAN HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, via London, Nov. 11. (By Wilson, Special Correspondent of the Canadian Press.)—Smashing forward on a front of less than 300 yards this morning, the British line was advanced for 500 yards along the Passchendaele spur and northward. Following close under an intense grid-iron barrage, which swept the enemy lines of support, the victorious infantry broke through the enemy's first and second line of resistance, the troops clambering over the temporary trenches just after 7 o'clock when the salient awoke again to a tremendous bombardment. Our guns struggled along the muddy roads under a drizzle which made being desperately severe. Only meagre details of the fighting have come through as I write. On our extreme right the infantry have encountered only a feeble resistance and have taken a fortified farm and thrown out outposts well beyond our objective. To our right, where our advance was directed against enemy strongholds and vindictive cross roads and Venture

WAR DECLARED IN FINLAND.

HELSINKI, Finland, Nov. 11. A state of war has been declared in Finland. The Provisional Soldiers' Committee has appointed a sailor named Schicks, Commissary of Finland in place of Governor General Nekrasoff. The Diet is in session and the Russian representation in it has been completely ignored. It has voted to elect a state directorate with supreme power.

PAINLEVE RETURNS TO PARIS.

PARIS, Nov. 11. Premier Painleve returned at noon yesterday from his visit with the French and British officials to the Italian front. He expressed unwavering confidence in victory of the forces for freedom. The Italian principle of liberty means that they can't impose upon themselves the brutal discipline of the Central Powers, said the Premier. There is an entirely different discipline forged by trials as metal under the hammer. A meeting of the War Council was held at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon and the Cabinet was in session from 5.30 until 8. After the Cabinet meeting an official note was issued confirming the news of the establishing of a permanent inter-allied staff under General Wilson and Cadorna, to sit at Versailles. The note adds that nothing has impressed the Italian Government and the Pope more than the extraordinary celerity with which the Allies arrived at this decision. It is the first time that an united front has been truly realized, says the note, nothing will do so much to heighten the prestige of France. The Matin says it was decided at the conference in Italy that France and Britain would increase the armed support already given Italy, the effort to be shared equally by the two Powers. The United States also has been considered, the paper says, in planning for future co-operation.

BLOCKING KERENSKY'S ADVANCE.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 11. Raids on the Petrograd-Gatchina railway have been torn up to prevent any advance on the capital by supporters of Premier Kerensky. All Ministers except Tcherenkoff, Knovalf and Kishkin are reported to have been released from St. Peter and St. Paul fortress.

GERMANS OCCUPY ALAND.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 11. German troops landed Thursday on the Island of Aland in the Baltic Sea and occupied the greater part of the Island group, according to a despatch from Uleaborg.

GERMAN POLITICS.

BERLIN, Nov. 11. Karl Helfferich, Vice-Chancellor, has capitulated and political peace has once more been restored. The Cabinet means a virtually coalition liberal government. The clerical, national, liberal and progressive parties are represented actively in the Cabinet. The Socialists accept the appointment of Von Payer as evidence that Count Von Hertling is willing to work with the present group of Reichstag majority parties but they are reserving to themselves complete liberty of action.

BELIEVES WAR WILL BE LONG.

LONDON, Nov. 11. Admiral C. Beresford, speaking here last night said he believed the war would be a long one. While the position was serious in regard to Russia and Italy, there was no need of pessimism, he declared, because the position was not serious in the west where we are going to win the war.

FRENCH OFFICIAL.

PARIS, Nov. 11. German troops undertook a series of advances last night against the French positions northwest of Rheims, says to-day's official report. They were repulsed by the French. German aviators last night dropped bombs on a French hospital at Zuydecote in the Department Du Nord, killing seven persons and wounding nine. Dunkirk was again bombarded, six casualties resulting.

BRITISH JOIN ITALIANS.

Italian Headquarters, Nov. 11.—British batteries have taken up positions along the front line, prepared to give support to the Italians, who heretofore have chiefly borne the stay of the Austro-German advance. The reformation of the Italian army along established positions is progressing in good order.

RUSSIAN OFFICIAL.

PETROGRAD, Nov. 11. On the northern front in the direction of Friedrichstadt a small detachment of Germans attacked our advanced posts; they were repulsed. On the Rumanian front there were fusillades. Our aviators brought down two enemy machines. On the Caucasian front nothing of importance occurred. On the Baltic Sea the situation is unchanged.

GRAND TRUNK STEAMER ASHORE.

A PACIFIC PORT, Nov. 11. The Grand Trunk Pacific steamer Prince John is ashore, according to reports received here to-day.

The New Altar, St. Joseph's.

The altar just placed in St. Joseph's Chapel, Hoytestown, is most artistic, both in design and finish. Its style is in keeping with the church, Tudor Gothic. The table which is flanked by receding pedestals, contains a beautiful centre panel in high bass relief, of the Last Supper; the pedestal panels are enriched by relief carvings of the Passion flower. The canopy and spire above the tabernacle, which rises to the height of seventeen feet, is supported by cluster columns, in scena marble, which gives a strength to the whole structure without detracting anything from its gracefulness. The reredos panelling is made up of two miniature Tudor windows containing a rose, of the flamboyant or bubble pattern. The finish is carried out to represent cararra and scena marble. In fact it is a most ornate piece of local workmanship and reflects the greatest credit on all concerned. This altar is the gift of Mr. James Boggan (cooper) of this city, and is but one of many similar presents made to churches of the island by this generous catholic citizen. It is the design and construction of Callahan, Glass & Co. St. John's.

Deserts Ship to Visit Cousin.

A Chinese sailor who deserted from his steamer at Lewisporte, reached the city by train early yesterday morning, and was taken in charge by the police, who detained him at the request of the captain of his ship, who wired particulars to the police. The celestial, who speaks good English, informed the police that he had no intention of deserting but had come to the city to visit a cousin and offered to return to his ship without trouble. His long lost cousin was hunted up by the police and they were given all opportunity to exchange greetings. Last night he was given in charge of Constable P. Kelly and left by a freight train to rejoin his ship.

ARE MORE BECOMING THAN FLAT LENSES.

The edges of Toric Lenses do not show as prominently as those of flat lenses. They fit in close to your eyes. You will find Torics much more becoming and useful. They give you a wider, clearer field vision. You should know about Toric Lenses. Let us explain them.
