An Indispensable Favorite OR Wealth and Beauty at Stake!

CHAPTER XXXVI.

This feeling is tingling through him as, with haughty humility and forced composure, he apologises for his "intrusion," and asks Mr. Sarjent if he will kindly give him Mr. Dormer's address.

And Wilmot, usually one of the kindest and friendliest of fellows to be met with in a day's walk, meets Captain Glynn's mood by one equally stiff and cold. He does not notice the apology for the "intrusion."

"How do you do, Captain Glynn?" he says, in his briefest business manner. "Want Mr. Dormer's address?"

"I thought that had gone abroad," Dallas remarks, a little staggered. "I suppose Miss Dormer and her brother are at home?"

"Yes, they're at home," Wilmot replies more curtly, looking at Dallas with eyes burning with displeasure. "You haven't seen them for a long time, I suppose?"

Dallas Glynn's gray-blue eyes begin to glitter dangerously. "He is going to bring me to book," he thinks, with pride and temper rising in flood tide.

"Oh, no—not for quite a long time!" Dallas replies, with studied indifference.

"Ah!" Wilmot Sarjent says, with all the vehement meaning he can convey by the elevation. "Well, they're there—if you've any business with them."

"Yes, a little business. I think I shall run down and see them if I can spare the time," Dallas says, in his coolest and most laconic tones.

At this moment his eyes fall on a freshly-written letter lying on the

TO EXPECTANT MOTHERS

A Letter from Mrs. Smith Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Trenton, Ont.—"I am writing to you in regard to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I would not be without it. I have taken it before each of my children was born and afterwards, and find it a great help. Before my first baby was born I had shortness of breath and ringing in my ears. I felt as if I would never pull through. One day a friend of mine told me what the Vegetable Compound had done for her wife and advised me to take a bottle home for me. After the fourth bottle I was a different woman. I have four children now, and I always find the Vegetable Compound a great help as it seems to make confinement easier. I recommend it to my friends."—Mrs. FRANK H. SMITH, John St., Trenton, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for expectant mothers, and should be taken during the entire period. It has a general effect to strengthen and tone up the entire system, so that it may work in every respect effectively as nature intended. Thousands of women testify to this fact.

writing table just beside Wilmot's head. The ink of the heavy broad businesslike writing is glistening yet the fourth page lies uppermost, and Dallas can read, nearly as plain as print from where he sits, the termination of the letter:

"And with love to aunt and uncle and to yourself, dear Yolande, I am yours most affectionately,

"WILMOT SARJENT."

Dallas Glynn's brain seems to be suddenly set on fire as he reads it. Yolande's faithful and "most affectionate" cousin is doing his best to console her for her faithless husband! This is the secret reason of a great many things—he cannot quite tell what—her cold avoidance of him since the date of that hurried visit, her neglect to write a line to ask him how he was—ill, alone, desolate, almost destitute as he has been, while she was living in luxury!

He grinds his teeth as he thinks of it. And to think that he has never once suspected this; that all other women—false, selfish, treacherous creatures—she, gentle and meek and modest as she looks, has been as selfish and false as any one of them! His sight grows dim, his pulses are beating violently, heart and brain are raging like a volcano in the fury of wrath and grief and jealousy that sweeps over him.

Forgetting everything, but impelled by a fierce longing to be gone out of Wilmot Sarjent's presence, with his fleshy well-fed countenance, his snub aspect of respectable prosperity, and his intolerable assumption of superiority, Dallas rises hastily, and is blindly groping for his hat—not seeing it though it is on the table before him—when Mrs. Sarjent sweeps into the room, with the usual noisy rustle of her voluminous skirts.

CHAPTER XXXVII.

"You didn't send off that letter of mine to Yolande, I hope?" Mrs. Sarjent begins, and pauses, astounded when she sees who is confronting her. "Law bless me, Captain Glynn! Is that you?" she exclaims, sharply, somewhat amazed, for haughty Captain Glynn, who has never been more than coldly civil to her, is looking at her now with almost a pleading smile struggling upon his pale face.

"Was he ill?" Dallas asks, putting his hand to his head in bewilderment.

"Was he ill?" Mrs. Sarjent repeats. "Don't you know? I'm sure I thought her ladyship would have thought it worth her while to tell you that! He had a fit the day the crash came in the city, and he was nearly twenty-four hours unconscious. It was enough to kill him, poor man! More than forty thousand went in a sweep in that blessed Pacific Salvage rubbish—I wouldn't have given 'em waste paper for their shares any day—and in other things."

"He was ruined, then?" Dallas queries, trembling and astonished, and, oh, so humbled and ashamed!

"If he wasn't then, he is now," Mrs. Sarjent replies, dryly. "The most of that can be saved or scraped up of everything will be only a few hundreds a year, Wilmot says, so far as he can see. Of course he has had to do everything for them—he and poor Yolande; and, of course, being a married woman, the poor child couldn't do anything without you in the way of signing or settling. You haven't behaved well to her nor any of us, Captain Glynn, and I tell you so to your face!" she adds, determinedly. "All you've been to that poor child is a misery and a heart-break, and I don't suppose you'll ever be much else unless she learns how to manage you!"

"I'll try, with Heaven's help, to be very different in the future," he says, humbly; and Mrs. Sarjent gives him another slip in an extremely hearty and unrefined fashion, nods her head, and wipes her eye.

long days that may lie between him and the sight of her face, a touch of her hands.

"Where is she? That's a pretty question for a man to ask about his own wife!" Mrs. Sarjent says, sharply. "She is at home with her people of course! Where else should she be?"

"At Fair View?"

"Fair View, of course," Mrs. Sarjent replies, beginning to stare. "Bless my soul, don't you know they've no place else now, and nothing else to live on, unless Uncle Silas's affairs are settled, but Yolande's money? And Aunt Keren won't spend a shilling of that without moaning about it, poor old soul! She does get tiresome, that's a fact. As soon as poor uncle was able to travel, they took him down there, you know."

"Was he ill?" Dallas asks, putting his hand to his head in bewilderment.

"Was he ill?" Mrs. Sarjent repeats. "Don't you know? I'm sure I thought her ladyship would have thought it worth her while to tell you that! He had a fit the day the crash came in the city, and he was nearly twenty-four hours unconscious. It was enough to kill him, poor man! The Wheel of Life.

PASTINES AND POLITICS.

It has probably not been forgotten that Mr. Lloyd George always took his golf clubs with him when he went to an international conference, and that on one occasion he played a round with M. Briand. The French newspapers were much disturbed by the idea that treaties might be discussed on the fifth tee and economic problems solved in a bunker. And I remember that one writer—I think it was the doughty Parnell—replied when M. Poincaré succeeded M. Briand, because he did not play golf. The game had its political importance centuries ago. When James II. went to Edinburgh shortly before his accession, while the four Covenanters regarded him with dislike because he was a Roman Catholic, the more worldly citizens were prejudiced in his favor because of his excellent golf, and in summarizing the many attractive qualities of James's grandson, Bonnie Prince Charlie, Andrew Lang declares that he was "a mighty golfer." Perhaps but for that fact the Young Pretender would never have attracted the devoted affection that eventually enabled him to escape to France after Culloden.

LET US BE ROMANTIC.

In an article in that admirable monthly, the Adelphi, Mr. Middleton Murray declares that the people of Great Britain are essentially romantic. The "romantics," according to Mr. Murray, are the individualists and "individualism is in our British bones." I wonder, in many respects, the French are far more individualistic than the English. Trade Unionism, for example, is the negation of individualism. It predicates that for the wage-earning class nothing can be gained except by combined effort, and it compels the more gifted workman to subordinate his own selfish interests to the interests of his class. It may be argued that this is by no means a good thing for society, but the principle cannot be called individualism nor can it be denied that it is accepted even more wholeheartedly by the efficient workman than by the incompetent. Trade Unionism is a British product and it flourishes here far more than in France. This is, of course, only one example, but it is sufficient to show the danger of basing any argument on the postulate that the English are hardened individualists.

HYMNS AND OLD AGE.

The Morning Post has discovered that the secret of longevity is to write hymns. The Rev. W. St. Hill Bourne, the author of "A Sower Went Forth Sowing," has just celebrated his Golden Wedding, and Mr. Baring-Gould, author of "Onward, Christian Soldiers," is hale and hearty at the age of eighty-nine. Mrs. Alexander, who wrote "There is a Green Hill," lived to be seventy-two; Isaac Watts, John Keble, Bishop Ken, and Bishop Walsham How reached seventy-four; Bishop Bickersteth, author of "Peace, Perfect Peace," died at eighty-one; Charlotte Elliott at eighty-two; Cardinal Newman at eighty-nine; Fanny Crosby at ninety-two.

A FAMILY PROFESSION.

The late Miss Letty Lind was one of five sisters all of whom have been successful actresses, and her death has drawn fresh attention to the fact that the theatre is a family profession. So strong, indeed, is the hereditary pull that it sometimes overcomes natural predilection for other work. This happened in the case of Mr. H. B. Irving, who was a man of letters and was called to the Bar, and became an actor, as it were, almost against his better nature. It was one of Sir William Gilbert's favourite contentions that anybody could be taught to act sufficiently well. If this be true, it accounts for the fact that acting runs in families, for it is obviously easier for the children of a successful actor to obtain the necessary training and experience. Moreover, there is no profession in which influence plays a greater part. The young lady who acts in the provinces is very often quite as talented (or maybe quite as without talent) as the young lady who acts in London, and who often owes her luckier fate to family influence.

DEAD LANGUAGES.

A correspondent of a daily newspaper laments the fact that he has been unable to buy a primer of the Irish language. He adds, "On consulting various encyclopedias it appears that there is no recognized standard Irish language, hence one doubts if it is a live language." Of course native Irish has never been a dead language, although, until the Gaelic revival, it was spoken only by a comparatively small number of peasants in the West, a few of whom never spoke English. Nowadays there has been an artificial stimulation of the ancient tongue as part of the revival of Nationalism, and a considerable literature is now being produced in Irish. During the nineteenth century there was a similar revival of the Czech language in Bohemia, which was quite as dead as Irish. It was cultivated as part of the Nationalist campaign, and is once more the spoken and written language of the nation. The survival of Welsh is one of the most curious phenomena in the history of European tongues. I wonder, by the way, if any Englishman has ever learned to speak Welsh?

Splendid Result Co-Partnership.

LORD LEVERHURST RECOUNTS ACHIEVEMENT IN SHARING WITH EMPLOYEES.

LONDON.—(Can. Press).—Co-partnership schemes, which were strongly criticised recently by the Trades Union Congress as impeding trade union solidarity, have lamentably failed to fulfil the promoters' hopes of a few years ago. It is admitted, but by others have failed, Viscount Leverhulme claims to have brilliantly succeeded. In the course of a special night he gave shares which, it is said, were very impressive.

Viscount Leverhulme stated 15,000 employees of Lever Brothers works at Port Sunlight held £2,500,000 preferential partnership certificates, an average of 125 apiece. Details were being paid to hundreds of employees, according to His Lordship, of over 30 shillings a week, to mention free life insurance policies totalling £1,000,000.

From An Old Pocket Diary.

(By OBSERVATOR)

"Old events have modern meanings; only that survives Of past history which finds kindred in all hearts and lives."

The following notes are taken at random from an old pocket diary kept by me from the beginning of 1842 to the end of 1899.—

June 27, 1864.—At 7 o'clock p.m. yesterday the sea at St. Shotts receded for 250 yards beyond where the wreck of H.M.S. Comus lay submerged in five fathoms of water. In about ten or twelve minutes it returned with fearful velocity, bringing in large stones, gravel, etc., filling up the Gut at St. Shotts, overturning several boats and sinking one. The wreck of the Comus was distinctly discerned, the shot, bolts and guns being plainly visible. The Morning Chronicle, in referring to the startling occurrence, says:—"No doubt, a severe submarine volcanic eruption has taken place somewhere not very remote from our Southern Shore. On the 27th it was remarked by everyone that the sky had a very unusual appearance. It was very smoky, there was a dark leaden smoke, which seemed to envelope everything, and there were loud peals of thunder and vivid flashes of lightning at the same time. Nothing of the kind ever happened there before. Some masters of ships in port say that the sky looked like it did in places where they experienced earthquakes."

August 27, 1864.—The first yacht race sailed on fresh water here, of which I have any record, took place to-day at Windsor Lake, between the yachts of A. W. Harvey and Frederick Wyatt. Harvey won by a considerable margin. One of the local papers immortalized the event by quoting in connection therewith the annexed verses, which it dedicated to Messrs. Harvey & Co.:—

"We're champions of the noble sport of yachting.
We lead a life that's very, very tough;
We're fearless, brave, intrepid,
But we like our weather tepid
And we'd rather not go sailing when it's rough.
We're out to elevate a sport heroic

Queen's Wharf to Chain Rock and back, and then the boats to be changed and the course rowed over again. The contestants were James Fletcher, at St. J. W. Stewart's, and John Hayward, bookkeeper at the Commercial Bank and son of Judge Hayward of the Supreme Court. Both heats were won by Hayward.

May 28, 1889.—The Telegram last evening published the following as the speech with which his Excellency the Governor ought to have opened the present session of the Legislature:—

Mr. President and Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honorable House of Assembly.

On this my first appearance before you as Governor of this island, I had looked forward with anticipation of pleasure to meet you as a Legislature. The treat has been considerably marred by my discovery of the fact that, as a Government, you are all at sixes and sevens among yourselves. You are like the Kilkenny cats, of immortal memory, all fur and pure outside, all fight and faction within.

I was sent here to bolster up the Reid "deal" as far as I can, by giving a number of balls, parties, etc., to those who seem to kick the deal. I am sorry to say I find the average Newfoundland too intelligent to be convinced through his palate into a surrender of his native public rights, and therefore, fear that imperial bounty and imperial gaitery will bribe the non-political public.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honorable House of Assembly.

I will be looking to you for the necessary "supplies," as in this community all fishermen of necessity do. Don't forget my few extra thousand dollars. You have no idea how expensive dinner-parties are. It is much cheaper to entertain the sealers.

Mr. President and Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council:

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Honorable House of Assembly:

You won't find much money in the Chest, but I am thankful to say that the Chest itself has not yet been pawned to any contractor. The wood of which it is composed is worth something; so are the hinges. The lock is gone long ago; it was last seen just before the deadlock took place, about two months ago, between the rival sections of my harmonious Government. I believe Mr. W. has the lock and Mr. M. the key; my true and trusty leader of his Majesty's Opposition will probably bring them together.

You will now proceed to spend that liberal allowance on your "deliberations," which they are not worth, and the quicker you get to the bottom of the bag and close the Session, the sooner the public anxiety will be at rest. That may not be a compliment, but it is a solemn fact.

May 1, 1894.—At the close of the St. John's West Election Trial Case, on the petitioners' side, yesterday, Mr. E. P. Morris, in reply to Mr. Justice Winter, requested that the defence be given a week in which to prepare their case. He (Mr. Morris) being one of the three candidates against whom charges of bribery and corruption were preferred. His Lordship demurred, observing that he thought they should be able to resume on Saturday next, whereupon Mr. Morris replied: "I shall require at least a week, my Lord, in which to visit the outlying localities of the district, and there procure the necessary witnesses and evidence. I shall be obliged to visit Broad Cove and spend a day there selecting witnesses. For the same purpose, another day, will have to be spent at the Goulds. Petty Harbor will claim still another day's work; so also will Killbride's, Blackhead and Cape Spear, too, will demand a day's attention. Then there will still remain the city itself from which to draw its quota of witnesses and evidence." The Court will remember that it is not alone my colleagues and

I who are on trial here; the fair fame and honor of St. John's West are also at stake. It takes two to consummate an act of bribery—the acceptance by the bribed of the offer of the briber; and when I ask a week for the preparation and arrangement of testimony to rebut those infamous allegations, and vindicate the manhood of St. John's West from the aspersions sought to be cast upon its intelligence, I think, my Lord, that I am not asking too much. It is a "plausible piece of bluff"—as one of the daily papers calls it—this plea for time, and I presume Judge Winter saw through it, as did everybody else in Court. Anyway, his Lordship, without further demur, assented to Mr. Morris's motion, and the further consideration, therefore, stands adjourned till next Monday.

December 10, 1897.—At 10.30 o'clock this morning the Supreme Court resumed its hearing of the case against the defaulting Bank Directors, and spent the whole forenoon in the direct examination of Mr. Geo. Coan by Mr. D. J. Greene, Q.C. The testimony adduced was with regard to the condition of the customers who had overdrawn accounts in the bank. The questions of Counsel were designed to elicit the fact that the bulk of the accounts which went to make up the $2,000,000 of overdrafts were worthless and could never realize anything like their face value, while they were counted in as good assets and interest charged upon them and dividends declared out of these alleged profits, just as if the accounts had been bona fide ones in every respect. Mr. Greene had the witness give the names and amounts of the bank's principal debtors and showed that they failed the day the bank collapsed and that most of the accounts had been gradually increasing from year to year. He had the figures for all the directors' firms quoted year after year, the idea apparently being to prove from the condition of the Banks, and the steady growth of the overdrafts, that the directors could not but know that these institutions were insolvent when they published their reports, and, by so doing, deceived those interested as to their actual condition. As Mr. Coan's evidence necessitates frequent reference to the books of the banks, and calculations as to interest, and so forth, the examination is not proceeding over-speedily. Feeling against the defaulting directors runs high, shareholders and depositors are greatly excited, and intense indignation is everywhere expressed against the defaulting directors of both the Commercial and Union Banks. The Government, too, comes in for a small share of blame in the matter, and very properly so, as the Attorney General is solicitor for the Commercial Bank and must know that both of these banks have, for some years, been hanging on by their eye-brows, and made no effort to protect the shareholders and depositors.

May 1, 1894.—At the close of the St. John's West Election Trial Case, on the petitioners' side, yesterday, Mr. E. P. Morris, in reply to Mr. Justice Winter, requested that the defence be given a week in which to prepare their case. He (Mr. Morris) being one of the three candidates against whom charges of bribery and corruption were preferred. His Lordship demurred, observing that he thought they should be able to resume on Saturday next, whereupon Mr. Morris replied: "I shall require at least a week, my Lord, in which to visit the outlying localities of the district, and there procure the necessary witnesses and evidence. I shall be obliged to visit Broad Cove and spend a day there selecting witnesses. For the same purpose, another day, will have to be spent at the Goulds. Petty Harbor will claim still another day's work; so also will Killbride's, Blackhead and Cape Spear, too, will demand a day's attention. Then there will still remain the city itself from which to draw its quota of witnesses and evidence." The Court will remember that it is not alone my colleagues and

WHEN WE ROB THE CHILDREN

I have a friend who is a natural born child, and that's a bad thing. They've got to snap out of it and here's your chance to let them do their share. "I don't like the idea at all," protested the neighborhood auntie with a look of actual distress, "but of course she let the unfinished sentence carry the idea that she would. But I'll bet she doesn't. She is one of the many people who find it easier to give to children than to receive from them."

When Parents Are Blind.
A great many mothers and fathers are that way. They want their children to be happy and they think they can obtain happiness for them by giving far beyond what they ought to give. Second, they want their children to love them very much and they fear to jeopardize their affection by asking anything in return. They blind themselves to two truths. That you can't buy happiness with luxuries. And that we are just as much inclined to love the people for whom we do things as the people who do things for us.

Children are naturally selfish. They expect to receive and not to give. It is easier to get along with them if you follow the line of least resistance and do all the giving. But it isn't fair or kind to the children, and those who really love children will not shirk the obligation to be recipients now and then as well as benefactors.

Let Them Do Their Share.
"Stuff and nonsense," said the other vigorously. "You are not fair to these children. You want to give all the time and not have them do anything for you, and they just get sel-

Germany's Second Dream of Victory Burst Like Bubble.

BETRAYED IN RUHR AS IN 1918, SAYS HARDEN, THE PEOPLE HAVE AWAKENED TO TRUTH.

In presenting the following article by the eminent publicist whose name is signed to it. The world does so because of the interest it possesses, without in any way assuming responsibility for the views it contains.
By MAXIMILIAN HARDEN.
(From The World.)
BERLIN—The situation of October 1918, is here again—too early by the calendar, but much too late for Germany.
The German dream of victory burst like a bubble five years ago, and the people realized tremblingly how they had been deceived. Von Molke had prophesied the catastrophe in the sixth month of the war, but the truth was concealed from the people until the end. The situation has been precisely the same since January of this year.

Until a few weeks ago anybody who ventured to doubt France's defeat in the Ruhr was regarded as a coward, a defeatist, a traitor or a ridiculous fool. Only a few days ago, any reference to the necessity of modifying or abandoning passive resistance was sharply rejected on every side. Then suddenly the heavens rent and the German people, betrayed again, saw the ugly, naked truth. In 1918 the alarm came from German Great Headquarters. This time it comes from the Ministries of Finance and Economics.

Business of Guns.
It can be readily understood that the German people would not view French invasion of their most important industrial district with the patience of a lamb. But it was the Government's duty to calculate what was necessary and what was possible and to say openly that invasion was a possibility to be reckoned with.

The Berlin Government sent to the press on May 9, 1921, a communication in which was the following sentence: "Occupation of the Ruhr, which is threatened in the London ultimatum, could be decided upon if Germany promises what is demanded and then for any reason does not keep her promise." This sentence was intended to demonstrate the unacceptability of the London ultimatum. But a different Government accepted it two days later, and since then every German Government has been compelled to reckon with invasion in case of voluntary default.

Instead of anticipating the danger, instead of offering—as the latest, in December, 1922—reparations which the memorandum of June 6, 1923, offered, when Germany was in a much worse financial situation, and thus preventing invasion, Chancellor Cuno in his blindness, believed he could turn disaster into triumph and victory. Thousands of curses are being rained on this man daily now, but he can declare truthfully that from first to last all parties, the Parliament and the press praised his frivolous policy as "the only possible one."

Politically unshrewdest men, however could not believe for a single day the effectiveness of passive resistance. Premier Mussolini of Italy called it "self-destruction," and even Lloyd George, who has now become the enemy of France, declared it could end only in Germany's collapse or capitulation.

The Result.
I, myself, tried everything I could think of to ward off this new misfortune, but in vain. Everybody told me that occupation of the Ruhr—which would bring instructive disappointments for the French and the Belgians—was unavoidable, because Germany could neither deliver the amount of coal demanded nor pay 2,000,000,000 marks in the near future. It also was told that no Government could negotiate with France after occupation had taken place.

What has happened now?
Germany has been separated from her richest source of raw materials for more than six months and compelled to import at world prices. Industry in the occupied territory has received immense credits from the national treasury, which often were employed for plant betterments, but often for the buying of foreign currency and gold, and then were repaid in depreciated German marks. Thus, an industrialist who received 20,000,000,000 marks in May, used 20,000,000,000 for buying dollars and has earned up to now on every dollar so purchased ninety-nine and two-fifths million marks. The treasury has also paid a multitude of workmen, officials, &c., for remaining idle or doing unproductive work, and has thus damaged discipline and morale. The railways in the occupied district have suffered incalculable damage. Passive resistance has cost Germany 40,000,000 gold marks daily in the last few months—a total of at least 8,000,000,000 gold marks, which would have been enough to satisfy the Reparation Commission until 1927. And now, when our currency is utterly destroyed, we must negotiate. We are facing the danger, too, that as in Russia, the peasant will to mor-

WILL NOT BE ABLE TO MOVE CROP IS CARRIERS' IDEA.
Conflicting opinions are current in Montreal as to the probable congestion in the movement of the western grain crop resulting from the final refusal of the American Great Lakes vessel owners to compete in the Canadian grain carrying trade while the tariff filing regulations of the Inland Water Rates Act are continued in existence by the Canadian Government. That the entire Canadian-owned fleet would only be able to move some 80,000,000 bushels, leaving an exportable surplus of approximately 100,000,000 bushels either at the head of the lakes or in western elevators, unless the Government relaxed the regulations, was the opinion expressed by operators of Canadian lake carriers. On the other hand, grain exporters tend to the opinion that the crop will be moved and that there is no need of undue anxiety. The latter is the view held by James Carruthers, of the grain exporting firm of James Carruthers & Co., Ltd., who stated that already American vessels have contracted to carry from 12,000,000 to 12,000,000 bushels during October and November.

Modern Science Helps England Catch Crooks.
London, Sept. 28. (A.P.)—Scotland Yard, England's famous organization for the detection of criminals, is equipping its patrol motor cars with wireless telephone apparatus with the idea of providing new aids in the capture of wrong-doers.
In many cases swift locomotion is the essence of success in this matter, and if rapidity of movement can be combined with the maintenance of communication with headquarters, the chance of the wrong-doer's escape may be considerably diminished. The experimental car can receive messages while creeping through the congested traffic of the City of London, or while dashing along the Great North Road. It can reply to the messages received, and thus keep Scotland Yard well informed of the progress of whatever business may be in hand.
It is hoped that when the system has advanced a little farther, the constabulary forces of the counties will participate in it. Then it may be possible to set up an effective hue and cry throughout the country if a dangerous criminal is at large, and keep all searching cars in constant touch with Scotland Yard and the headquarters of the police forces of the adjacent counties.

"FREEZONE"
CORNS lift right off
Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!
Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.
Cauliflower is delicious cooked until tender in scalded milk and water, dipped in butter and fried.
Pill pastry puffs with sweetened apple sauce which has been flavored with a little grated lemon rind and juice.

Rates Increased.
With regard to the effect of this situation upon the transportation rates Mr. Enderby was not prepared to comment, but from western sources it was learned that these have jumped to five cents a bushel from Fort William to Georgian Bay points and 14 cents a bushel to Montreal. Other increases, especially for November space were indicated.
World market conditions for the Canadian crop are not so favorable as in previous years, according to those in close touch with the situation. Mr. Carruthers discussing this phase said that the demand in Great Britain and France for Canadian wheat was much less owing to the fact that Great Britain, taking advantage of the depreciated currency of the Argentine, had purchased heavily in the South American republic. France, on the other hand, had grown a bumper crop and was in a position to supply her own needs. Mr. Carruthers, however, did not anticipate any great difficulty in securing the transportation of the Canadian crop from the head of the lakes to the seaboard.

The Inference Was Obvious.
I wonder whether Sir Herbert Samuel, when he motored down into Oxfordshire the other day, recalled to memory a certain amusing incident that occurred what time he contested one of the parliamentary divisions of the country against Mr. H. Hodge. In order to meet the cry for a "local man" raised by Mr. Hodge's supporters, the Liberal nominee issued a naming poster, which declared that "Mr. Samuel, if elected, will live here."

A travelling manager happened to be visiting one of the towns in the constituency at the time, and, owing to the indiscreet zeal of a bill-sticker, one of these bills was posted on the outside of the monkey house.
The news of the incident quickly spread far and wide, and none laughed more heartily than Sir Herbert himself at the inference that was to be drawn from a literal rendering of his promise.

Two Mysteries of the Sea

(H. F. SHORTIS.)
There are many mysteries of the sea which have acted as food for the writers of novels and romances for many years back, but the account of the mystery of the Marie Celeste takes precedence to all of them. Yet there is an episode in Newfoundland history which equals that of the above-mentioned vessel in its interest to us. I remember the circumstance quite clearly, and in fact was well acquainted with the three passengers who mysteriously disappeared with the entire crew of the "Resolven," a narrative of which appeared in the "Standard" shortly after the strange occurrence. But first let me describe this "mystery" of the Marie Celeste, as I have read it in one of the foreign newspapers, written by Capt. Leslie Cobb, R.N.R., 1007 W. Hardly any strange occurrence ever takes place at sea without some reference being made in accounts to the mystery of the Marie Celeste. The story of the Marie Celeste forms most fascinating reading, and taken as a "strange story," is one of the finest of its kind in existence. There is, however, an "it" to be explained in connection with it; what this "it" is will be seen hereafter. First let us recount the weird tale of the brig and her adventures popularly believed in.

According to the log of Capt. Boyce the barge "Del Gratia" on December 5th, 1872, he found himself without halting distance of a brig "Adolph" which there seemed to be approaching very peculiar. Not stopping to signal, the Marie Celeste was approached and boarded, and there a very strange state of affairs was seen. She was absolutely deserted. Not a sign of life could be found aboard her, and no possible explanation of the disappearance of the crew could be discovered. In the Captain's cabin were the "resolven's" maps, in which there seemed to be something that breaking for the hands had been in course of preparation when the brig was abandoned; but why she had been abandoned could not be discovered. There had been no recent storms, as was shown by the orderly state of the vessel. In the Captain's cabin stood a sewing machine, and in his wife's, in his still under the table, was a half-finished dress for a child. A thimble still stood upon the edge of the machine, and near by was an open bottle of medicine, still standing upright, conclusively proving that the Marie Celeste had not been deserted as the result of panic during

On the 14th of July, 1884, the brig "Resolven," Capt. James, came to Mr. Grace from Cadix, with a cargo of salt for Messrs. John Munn & Co., under charter to proceed to Labrador to load fish for the Mediterranean. She was a soft-wood vessel, built in Nova Scotland, brig-rigged, 143 tons, and had six men of a crew. She was owned by a firm in Port Madoc Carnarvon, and hailed from Aberystwith, Wales.

She lay in Harbor Grace until the 27th day of August, when she left for Snag Harbor, Labrador, to load with fish, and took as passengers Mr. Douglas Taylor, super-cargo, Mr. Thomas Colford, Carboner and Edward J. Keeffe, Harbor Grace, coopers, who were sent down to trim herring, in which fish the firm at that time did considerable trade.

Two days after (29th August) it was learned at Harbor Grace that she had been picked up by H.M.S. "Mallard," and towed to Catalina. Afterwards full particulars were had—that the vessel had been picked up derelict in the mouth of Trinity Bay, with no sign of any of the crew or passengers; the sails were set, a fire was alight in the galley, and no wreckage or disorder was to be seen except that the yard-cams were broken, and some of the running tackle was dangling from the yards. The boat, however, was gone, and the ship's general condition showed that the crew had left her hurriedly, to escape some impending danger. The steamer "Lady Glover" was dispatched from Harbor Grace to tow the vessel from "Catalina" to St. John's. Subsequently she was sold by auction under orders of the Admiralty or underwriters, and was purchased by Messrs. John Munn & Co. That firm had her for four years, the late Capt. Fred Cole being in charge of her for that time.

What happened to the crew? The story of the disappearance of the men has been written up and published in an English magazine; the writer giving the happening in the same description of the state of the Marie Celeste, it would have to be a very ingenious explanation indeed that could clean up so baffling a mystery. Popular interest in the case never seems to die, and it is almost a matter of impossibility for any writer of sensational stories not to have at some time or other a try at the affair of the Marie Celeste.

I shall now come to the mystery of the brig "Resolven," which happened in our own waters, and in some respects is exactly similar to that of the Marie Celeste. As I said before, I remember distinctly, and was well acquainted with the three passengers, but, of course, the crew were strangers, and here is the story of

WEEK-END NOTES.

(I. C. MORRIS.)
THE EMPIRE EXHIBITION.
The Empire Exhibition, which is to be held at London next year, will undoubtedly be one of the greatest enterprises ever undertaken by the British people, and it should be the means of consolidating the Empire in a manner hitherto unknown. The extent of the British Empire may be computed in miles, but it is only by such an Exhibition as is about to be held that her productions and wealth may be realized. It may be said that the Exhibition will represent the Empire in miniature, because every dependency and every nationality which is a part of the Empire will be represented. And so among the number will be her oldest colonial child—Newfoundland. The Exhibition is meant to establish the Empire and to consolidate its interests as a unit, and it is also meant to strengthen the ties between its dependencies and to assist as far as possible the development of their various resources. The Exhibition, therefore, will mean much, both from an Imperial as well as from a Colonial aspect; and every colony and dependency will certainly benefit by it. Thus it will be seen that Newfoundland should be a beneficiary, and should stand to gain much as a result of the Exhibition. With this in view it is gratifying to know that the Government has voted the sum of fifty thousand dollars to meet the expenses of being represented at the Exhibition. Whether this sum will be sufficient or not remains to be seen, but considering that the Government has co-operated with the Board of Trade, it may be expected that economy will be exercised, and that the money will be well spent. Much, of course, will depend upon the men in charge, and especially upon the advertising, and more especially upon the correspondence department, for never has Newfoundland had such a chance to advertise her interests and to assert her rights as she will have at this Exhibition; that is, if the opportunity be availed of and the chance be not allowed to pass unheeded. It would pay the Press of Newfoundland to form a syndicate for the purpose of having the Exhibition properly written up for publication in their columns. It may be that a portion of the vote for advertising will be allocated towards correspondence, but whatever financial aid may or may not be given, the opportunity to write up Newfoundland, and the Empire from the standpoint of the Exhibition is worth being availed of. It is probable that some of our editors or correspondents or literary men will be visiting the Exhibition, and that they will be writing it up; at the same time the

There are moments of terror and dread which rob us of reason and sense; into every man's scheme, into every man's dream, comes the time when the struggle grows tense, and the thing you would do with a grin.

With nothing at stake on the shot, is not apt to do when the prize that's in view. Hangs on whether you make it or not.

The test of the game isn't skill, But how do you stand to the strain? When your sides are all fair you have courage to spare.

But how do you battle the rain? And what of that moment of doubt, When to falter means failure for you?

With your nerves in control, can you go for your goal And prove what you're able to do?

It's the crisis which makes you or breaks. It's that difficult time of suspense When the end is in doubt and you're fighting it out.

With nerves that are tingling and tense; Then if your hand trembles you lose, And you fail if your eye be not true. For all cunning is vain, when you come to the strain.

If you're not the master of you.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—(A.P.)—The parcel post in the first ten years of its existence has brought into the Post Office Department revenues totalling about $1,100,000,000.

In 1921 alone, department records show 1,071,000,000 packages weighing from a few ounces to 70 pounds were carried in the mails as parcel post. In the first year, 1913, the total was 417,000,000. In 1913 parcel post revenues amounted to $40,038,183, and in 1921 had climbed to $189,605,717. Figures for the fiscal year of 1922, are not yet complete, but it is estimated the revenue will approximate $180,000,000.

Second Assistant Postmaster General Henderson has been engaged for six months in an investigation to determine the full scope of the parcel service, but the task is so great that conclusive figures are not yet available.

Explodes Ancient Theory That Red Enrages Bulls.

(San Francisco, Sept. 29. (A. P.)—Having a red flag before a bull has no more significance than waving a pink, green, purple, or white flag because bulls, in keeping with other animals, are color blind, according to Dr. G. M. Stratton, head of the department of psychology, University of California, Berkeley, Calif., who has just completed a six months' investigation of the subject.

Dr. Stratton and his assistants waved red flags in the faces of bulls and other animals, and the reaction was one of curiosity and not anger, he says. Black, white, green, and yellow colors were tried, with the same effect. After trying cows, calves, steers and bulls, Dr. Stratton says he is sure that the entire bovine family is devoid of color sight.

His conclusions, Dr. Stratton says, lead him to believe that:

1. Bulls show no strong excitement over any color.

2. Interest, hesitation and mild mistrust were shown in a banner or any strange thing.

3. There was no reaction that could be discerned toward any particular color, but the brightness of the color and the flutter of the banner were more effective than the color.

4. There was no special reaction toward red as against green, or toward red and green as against black and white.

5. There was greater reaction and interest toward white than any other color, but the reaction in the wild animals was no greater than in the tame.

The investigators, Dr. Stratton said, interviewed 66 persons familiar with cattle, and 53 denied the popular theory that red enrages bulls.

Enfranchisement of Chinese Women.

WELLESLEY, Mass.—A tradition of ancient China was broken when a smiling little girl slipped quietly into Wellesley and rented a hall bedroom in a small boarding house on a side street. The girl was Miss Grace H. daughter of Li Yun-Hsun, President of the Great Eastern Republic. In contravention of the custom of insulating the daughters of the rulers of China with troops of attendants, Miss Li arrived with but one companion, Miss Harriet Chou, herself only 21 years old. The girls are entering Wellesley college to take two-year courses in political economy. Miss Li says she believes in women's suffrage, although she admits that Chinese femininity was hardly advanced enough to use the ballot yet.

One notes that hats are only slightly trimmed, with perhaps one shaving brush badge ornament, a cocarde or some ribbon fancy.

MUTT AND JEFF

Our Dumb Animals.

REPORT OF CHIEF AGENT FOR WEEK ENDING 28th.

I attended to the landing of 22 head of cattle from the Babie L, also inspected 170 head of cattle, 7 horses, 100 pigs, 50 sheep and a lot of poultry from the Canadian Sapper; also 3 carloads of cattle at the Railway Station. I am very thankful to General Manager Russell and his staff for having the hose and shutters arranged for watering the cattle upon arrival. I was also called to humanely put to death a horse owned by Mr. Groves as the animal had broken a side bone in its leg and the Veterinary Surgeon advised him to have it put to death. This is the horse which was reported a week ago in the lammy field. I also humanely put to death an old horse owned by Mr. Peter Neville, Blackmarsh Road, as the animal was past its labor. Also a valuable mare owned by Mr. Gordon Ash. This animal foundered after drinking too much water. It was attended by Doctors Bisher and Smith who also approved of humanely putting the horse to death. The loss to Mr. Ash is a severe one as the mare cost $320.00. I destroyed a dog for Lady Reid on Circular Road. This dog has given quite a lot of trouble, having bitten several people. Another dog in the vicinity of St. Clair's Hospital was a great annoyance at night. I could not find the owner of it, so I humanely put it to death. I also sent two lame horses off the street and two with sore backs were sent in for treatment. Several complaints have been received of a horse jobber, who exchanges old horses after dark. Many innocent people have been taken in by making swaps. In the case of a man on Blackhead Road, the horse he has changed is in a very poor condition, and I am unable to allow him to work the animal. I have not taken any case to court for some time as I am doing my best to settle them out of court. A number of calls have been attended to.

"Towards are cruel, but the brave Love mercy and delight to save."

A WORD TO BOYS.

Every boy should read the story of "Black Beauty"; it will help him to understand that a horse has feelings just as a boy has and likes to be treated kindly.

Please remember to feed your cat a dish of fresh water where they can reach it. Cats and dogs feel hunger and thirst just as boys and girls do.

Horses and cows have better health and do better work if they are kept clean. All animals need plenty of sunshine, clean water and good food. Treat all living creatures kindly. Remember the Golden Rule. Every cruel act hardens the heart and blunts the sensibilities. All animals suffer as much from a harsh, loud tone of voice as from a blow.

No man who owns a cow can afford to have her afraid of him. It is a loss to the owner every time she is frightened. Make pets of the cows and they will make money for the owner.

A cow should always have plenty of water to drink. In the winter the chain should be taken from the water, and when the weather is pleasant, the cows should be turned out in the sunshine for an hour or two.

Fish should be killed as soon as taken out of the water by a sharp blow on the back of the head, that they may not suffer before dying. Such fish keep better, and are better to eat.

Volcanic Ash Brings Death to Reindeer.

ANCHORAGE, ALASKA, SEPT. 28. (A.P.)—The government reindeer herd at Port Heiden, on Bristol Bay, has suffered recently because of volcanic ash from a peak to the westward which covered the feed range to a depth of about an inch and a half, according to advices received here.

The ash, stirred by the hooves of the reindeer, caused acute throat and lung trouble, and wore away the hair and skin from the lips, causing suffering and often death. All the herders suffered, and Fred R. Tait, government teacher, had a narrow escape from death. An attempt to move the herd across the Alaskan Peninsula finally was abandoned.

The reindeer herd placed by the government in the Broad Pass region last year has prospered remarkably. Eskimo and Indian herders have recently been engaged in ear-marking the late crop of fawns and in erecting corrals preparatory to the fall roundup and count.

According to the herders, caribou will soon be entering the herd as the rutting season approaches. The caribou and deer cross freely and there are a number of cross breeds in the Broad Pass herd. When the deer were being driven from the Good News Bay district, along the tundra lands of the Alaska Range, thousands of caribou migrating in an opposite direction were met. There was no alternative but to strike into the mass and some of the herd were lost, although the reindeer dogs reclaimed many.

The government herd at Alltak, on the south end of Kodiak Island, is reported to be thriving. The original herd was driven from Port Heiden to Chignik Bay, placed aboard the United States Coast Guard cutter Unalaga and landed at Alltak in 1921. Range conditions there are said to be almost ideal.

Strange Spiders Enter Denver.

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 27.—(A.P.)—A new species of spiders, with bodies shaped like footballs and eight long legs, pink and striped with black, have made their appearance in Denver, according to A. E. Craig, who has captured many of them. The insects have wide nostrils, slit eyes, small mouths and ears, and were discovered in a shed owned by Craig.

The spiders are believed to have been brought here in a tropical fruit and escaped to make their home in the shed. The web formed by the insects is thick and in the shape of a maple leaf. The spiders have sharp jaws and long feelers. When in danger, it is said, they emit a poisonous, steam-like substance, which forms a moisture on glass or any hard, smooth surface.

Noted Jew

DENOUNCES RUSSIA FOR CHRISTIAN PERSECUTIONS.

VIENNA.—The treatment of orthodox Jews in Russia drew forth a strong denunciation from Dr. Nathan Birnbaum of Hamburg at the recent congress here of Ajudas Jisroel.

"In Russia," the speaker said, "it has become a principle to suppress anything breathing a religious spirit. All believing men are persecuted. The synagogues are being closed and converted into workmen's clubs. We do not desire to apportion political blame to anyone, nor to examine into how far the Soviet government is responsible for all these things. But Russia will not succeed in suppressing the living faith in God's presence, not even if they lock up all the Christians, all the Mohammedans and all the Jews."

National League Cannot Prevent War Says Ford.

AUTOMOBILE KING, HERE FOR HOUR, DISCUSSES MANY SUBJECTS.

The League of Nations as an instrument for the prevention of war is useless.

This is the conviction of Henry Ford, automobile king, who arrived at the Windsor station and stayed for an hour while en route to Steel Harbor, Maize.

Mr. Ford would single out and get together the fifty leading Jewish financiers of the world and in some methodical way render them powerless by depriving them of their funds. "That is the only way we will ever have peace. It is the financiers that cause war. They operate for profit and gain for themselves. Let us hope for action soon."

Speaking of prohibition, he said: "It is on the statute books, it is the law of the land and it should be enforced—it must be enforced. If the government cannot enforce it under present regulations and existing conditions let it call out the army and navy. People cannot work and the country wants progress instead of 'runkenness.'"

At this point Mr. Ford took occasion to refer to the League of Nations, and expressed his belief that it was useless. Wall Street he characterized as a Jewish mecca, and dismissed the subject with a "you know what that means."

Turning to the domestic politics of the United States he laughed.

In answer to a question as to whether he would seek nomination for President at the next election, he said, "I know nothing of my intentions. No one does," he added. "It is not good to look too far ahead and I do not know anything of my intentions. And I am not running for anything."

As to party politics he was puzzled. "I am neither a Republican nor a Democrat," he said. "At any rate there is no difference between them. They are all the same. They are all tarred with the same brush. But I suppose for the same reason that I have ears I should be a Republican. My father was a Republican and I suppose I should be. But I am not. There is no difference between them."

Mr. Ford was met by Grant Hall, vice-president and general manager of the Canadian Pacific, and shook hands with everyone around as he boarded his private car, the "Fair Lane."

Mr. Ford and his secretary left on the Boston-Portland train at ten o'clock.

Irish Leaders Now Able to Move About Freely.

DUBLIN, SEPT. 28. (A.P.)—The Dublin horse show of the Royal Dublin Society, recently concluded, rivalled in success its pre-war record. It was the first show held under peace conditions for ten years.

The governor general visited it in state on two of the days, and was cordially received. More remarkable was the presence of President Cosgrave, General Mulcahy, Kevin O'Higgins, Desmond Fitzgerald and other ministers.

Four or five months ago their lives, if they were seen in public, were considered to be in immediate danger, and their movements were always kept secret.

POOL IN DISFAVOR. John Craig Refers to Alberta Plan as Emasculated—Says Allen Demagogues Imported.

"In the world's market for food staples, the balance between supply and demand justly controls the price, and no sort of legislation can change this law," is the view expressed by John E. Craig, who has been dubbed the fighting president of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. He reviewed the whole grain marketing situation on the occasion of the annual meeting when he retired from the presidency. He went on to say that, while grain prices cannot be controlled, much may be done to control and reduce production costs. He added that control and reduction of transportation cost must also be carefully considered.

Mr. Craig reviewed the efforts that have been marketing through government-controlled wheat boards, remarking that the post-war renewal of these efforts was during a wave of sentiment and was fostered by unrest and financial difficulty. He said: "The provincial governments of Alberta and Saskatchewan, unable to resist the popular clamor, passed the necessary enabling legislation, but de Janeiro.—(A.P.)—Frontier lines that bring to mind the stirrings of Daniel Boone are being held in the local press from the man regions which border on the Amazon and the Guianas. According to these stories, and to reports that have been made from the frontiers to the government, contraband, clandestine gold mining and various kinds of desperadoes have been crossing the frontiers into Brazil in increasing numbers and have been leaving trails of blood and smuggling gangs, for instance, are said to be large and powerful, with headquarters in coast towns. As a means of taming the frontier zones, the Brazilian Ministry of Agriculture, Commerce and Industry is planning to fill up a considerable strip of land along the boundary lines with Indian reservations and agricultural colonies. The Brazilian Indians are hardy and warlike, and it is believed that they would soon rid these regions of foreign invaders if they were given "property" to defend. Both the Indian Service and Interior Settlement Departments of the Ministry of Agriculture are engaged in the enactment of these pacification plans.

Convulsions of Nature.

RAISE BOTTOM OF OCEAN.
LONDON, Sept. 29.—Discovery by a cable repair ship that the bed of the ocean in the vicinity of St. Helena had risen two miles during the last 20 years has led to a belief among scientists that the whole southern Atlantic ocean bed is undergoing a vast submarine convulsion.

What Causes Earthquakes.

What is the cause of the terrible earthquakes which, like the recent one in Japan, often take so heavy a toll in human lives? There are three main theories.

One theory is that the earthquake is caused, in the first place, by an atmospheric disturbance, such as a typhoon. The wind-storm, it is argued, lessens the pressure of air on the surface of the earth over which it has passed, and allows it to expand. It is this expansion which constitutes the earthquake.

The second theory is that the whole world alters its position slightly and spins at a different angle. As a result, additional pressure is brought to bear on the crust of the earth in certain places. When this pressure falls on some part of the crust that is relatively thin, an earthquake—or movement of the earth—ensues.

The third theory is that the centre of the earth, generally accepted as consisting of molten metal or gases, is slowly cooling. Thus the outer crust of the earth contracts, naturally to the greatest extent in those regions where the crust is thinnest.

Japan is very unfortunately placed with regard to her position on the earth's crust, and over one period of seven years more than 5,000 shocks were recorded there of various degrees of severity. Tokio in particular has a sad history, for this is the third time that town has been practically wiped off the map.

Big Heart Throb in "Who Are My Parents?"

If there is anything to be told by titles, "Who Are My Parents?" should be filled with heart interest. This William Fox Corporation feature picture comes to the Majestic Theatre next Monday.

Here is a monster screen drama which presents a problem of the ages. It is a splendid photoplay that should appeal to those who care for good clean dramatic material. The author of the story, "Mr. X," has worked with the single idea of holding the interest of the spectator from start to finish. To accomplish this he has diversified the action by the introduction of a number of appealing kiddie characters.

J. Searle Dawley, who directed the picture, has brought in an amusing episode in which the kidnapping of the mother of a litter of puppies by the dog-catcher figures in a pathetically humorous way. The picture also contains a pointed rebuke to the class of society women who refuse to present their husbands with a family of little ones, but have plenty of time to devote to a pet dog.

Peggy Shaw has one of the leading roles. She appears as the true hearted daughter of a stern father who attempts to stop her when she accepts the love of a fine young chap who is long on good looks and short on cash.

Florence Billings plays the elder sister who is devoted to her pet poodle and Roger Lytton is the Colonel Lewis, the selfish, hard hearted parent. Other important parts were entrusted to Ernest Hilliard, Robert Agnew, Adelaide Prince, Niles Welch and Marie Reichardt. A pair of clever youngsters, Florence Haas and Jimmy Lapsley, have appealing scenes which they act with remarkable skill.

Find Death Mask of Napoleon.

London, Sept. 29. (A. P.)—A wax mask of Napoleon, made a few hours after the Emperor's death by an English surgeon of the 20th Regiment of Infantry, has just been found hidden away in a house in a small French town.

Several years after Napoleon's death the mask was sent to England where it was purchased by a Russian diplomat and presented by him to the Czar Alexander I. Later it was taken to Holland and Bavaria, but for the past 20 years it has been lost. An eye lash can still be seen attached to the mould.

Indianapolis.

FINDS NEW WAY TO CHECK SPEEDERS.
INDIANAPOLIS.—Jail sentences, heavy fines and loss of their automobiles are proving effective in reducing the number of speeders in Indianapolis. The plan, introduced a short time ago by Judge Delbert O. Wilmett, has resulted in a general let down in speeding throughout the city, according to police officers.

Judge Wilmett works on a scale. First offenders are fined a set amount for whatever speed they are convicted of having made, but do not have to pay if they relinquish their machines for a certain number of days. For example, a person convicted of driving 35 miles an hour is fined $5 and costs. On payment of the costs and turning in his license plates and driver's certificate, the fine is suspended. In five days the offender again may drive his car.

The faster a person drives, the heavier the fine and the longer he must be without his car. There is only one recurrence from a state farm sentence upon conviction for a second offense. That is—through the higher courts, to which a number of appeals already have been made.

English Theological Schools

REPORT DEARTH OF STUDENTS.
LONDON.—According to the London newspapers, there is a grave shortage of clergy in the Church of England. Official figures disclose that there are fewer than 13,000 incumbents this year, which is 8,000 less than the number required to carry on the work of the church. The theological colleges, the newspapers say, are nearly empty.

"Our roll sheet should number 21,000," said Canon Partridge, Secretary of the Church of England Central Board of Finance. "Taking a generation as 30 years, it follows that 700 men should be ordained every year. We have not reached that figure for 11 years. In 1918 there were only 114 ordinations."

"One of the causes of this shortage is the financial position of the professional classes from whose ranks the priesthood is usually recruited. They cannot now afford to give their sons the long and expensive training required. Another cause is the unattractiveness of the clerical profession as a career. Stipends are rarely more than $1,500 a year."

"I don't think they ought to let that girl go in for our swimming races," said an unsuccessful entrant in the school sports. "It isn't fair; her father keeps a fish-shop."

What's in a Name?
Mrs. James had just moved into the neighborhood and it was her first meeting with the local sewing circle. As the conversation turned on the absent men, one of the ladies said to Mrs. James, "What does your husband do?" "Oh!" said Mrs. James, "he is manager of a pall factory." "What's in a name?" said the other.

"Why, I didn't know we had such a factory in town. Where is it located?" "Well," replied Mrs. James, "husband calls it a bucket shop, but I think pall factory sounds much better." —Forbes Magazine, (N.Y.)

The meteor fell about 10 o'clock at night and was seen by many Great Falls citizens. It lit up the surrounding country for about 20 minutes. The fire on Pendragon mountain was reported the next day.

WHO PAYS?

Many men's salaries still continue if they become ill, but extra expenses are immediately created in special diet, doctors, hospital, nurse, etc. Those whose incomes discontinue must find it a very great strain indeed.
Under our plan you can shift the entire responsibility from the day you get ill until the day of your death if you want to.

A dime a day deposited with us semi-annually guarantees you $20.00 per week while you're ill or injured, whether it be a week, a month or a lifetime.

We have many members getting life benefits who have paid only very few dollars premium.
Let us tell YOU all about it.
