"TALK is largely responsible for the dullness just now," says a rural dry goods merchant. "Conditions in the country are really better than normal. Farmers have never been so prosperous. In sections where calamity howlers do not penetrate, business is really ahead of any previous year."

A PERFECT town is that in which you see the farmer patronizing the home merchants, the laborers and other residents, not sending out of town for what they want, but spending the money they earn with their own tradesmen, and all animated by a spirit that will not purchase articles abroad if they can be bought at home.

SOME of the intimate acquaintances of the late urbane and talented vice clerk at the Roche House do not think quite so highly of his ability as they did some time ago. His talent for mixing cocktails cannot compare with his ability in soaking his trusting friends, some of whom mourn the loss of good-sized sums of money that he let them in for. Should his whereabouts be discovered the Summering will soon be brought to the boiling point.

They arrived only a short time before Mr. Matthews passed away. At the time of writing the cause of his sudden illness and death is not known. He leaves to mourn his loss a wife and one son, also his aged father. Mrs. F. K. Matthews and Mr. Matthews, Sr., left on Tuesday to attend the funeral. Lambton County Council Patriotic Fund

The Committee, consisting of Dr. Fairbank, warden of the county, Messrs. Woodhall, reeve of Theford, Anderson, reeve of Oil Springs and Stapleford, reeve of Watford, appointed by the Lambton County Council for the purpose of distributing the grant of $10,000.00, made by the Lambton County Council at its special session Sept. 7th, met at the office of Reeve Stapleford, and apportioned the amounts as follows:—Red-Cross, $2,000.00; Patriotic Fund, $2,000; Belgium Relief Fund, $2,000 together with their sessional allowance of $217.00; Imperial government $4,000.

The warden, Dr. Fairbanks, corresponded with the government regarding the balance of $4,000 set aside for the Imperial Gov., and received instructions to expend the amount in the purchase of oats. It was decided to purchase 1200 bus. at each of the following points:—Watford, Theford, Forest, Wyoming, Petrolia, Oil Springs, Brantford and Alvin, with the expectations of receiving from each of these districts sufficient in donations to make up a minimum carload.

The Reeves of the above named municipalities will act as the county's representative in receiving and paying for all purchases.

Hallowe'en Merrymaking

Saturday is Hallowe'en—a day set aside for public merrymaking. It is the eve of All Saints' Day, and the church has, in all past ages, countenanced merrymaking and pranks on the evening of Hallowe'en. When people were less civilized than we are to-day all kinds of boisterous proceedings, which often resulted in damage to property, were winked at. The day for such capers has passed. A self-respecting young man would indulge in the coarse horse play of former years. It is to be hoped that in Watford the sport will be of an innocent nature and that no young man will so far forget himself as to do damage to property, or play any prank that will in any way cause loss or annoyance to others. The day when moving gates, upsetting outhouses, etc., was considered smart has passed away, and no one but a rowdy would indulge in such pranks in this enlightened age. Have your fun, boys, but be gentlemanly over it. Remember, the chief characteristic of a gentleman is consideration for others.

Mr. Morgan was a native of Ireland, being born in Monaghan county Aug. 22nd, 1834. He came to this country with his parents, who first settled in Brantford. He came to Warwick about 60 years ago. About 46 years ago he was married to Miss Jennima Hopkins, of Warwick, who survives him. In religion he was a member of the Church of England, and in politics a staunch Conservative. He followed farming all his life and took considerable interest in any matters pertaining to the welfare of the district. As a father he had high ideals of home life and the training of his children in christian duty and citizenship. Besides his wife he leaves to mourn his loss one son, Robert, of Warwick, and two daughters, Mrs. John Saunders, of Emiskillen, and Mrs. Embrose Topping. WOMAN WOULD NOT GIVE UP

Though Sick and Suffering; At Last Found Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Richmond, Pa. — "When I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was in a dreadfully rundown state of health. I had internal troubles, and was so extremely nervous and prostrated that if I had given in to my feelings I would have been in bed. As it was I had hardly strength at times to be on my feet and what I did do was by a great effort. I could not sleep at night and of course felt very bad in the morning, and had a steady headache.

"After taking the second bottle I noticed that the headache was not so bad, I rested better, and my nerves were stronger. I continued its use until it made a new woman of me, and now I can hardly realize that I am able to do so much as I do. Whenever I know any woman in need of a good medicine I highly praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. FRANK CLARK, 3146 N. Tulip St., Richmond, Pa.

Women Have Been Telling Women for forty years how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored their health when suffering with female ills. This accounts for the enormous demand for it from coast to coast. If you are troubled with any ailment peculiar to women why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound? It will pay you to do so. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Each of the nations at war has more than a quarter of million of tons of powder on hand. No picnic is over while the refreshments last.

The Belgian capital has been moved so frequently within the past month or so, that it will have difficulty in settling down to the ordinary grind in one place after the war.

Loyalty to Canada and the Empire is shown in a practical way by purchasing only Canadian made or British goods. Tell your dealer frankly that you will not buy goods of foreign manufacture.

War has driven every other consideration out of the ordinary man's mind. But the country has to go on doing business, and the government has to be carried on and the things on which we all depend for comfort and often for existence have to be provided, war or no war.—Toronto World.

Jack Canuck says: "The limit of patriotism seems to have been reached when a military officer said he joined for social purposes, not having the slightest idea there ever would be any fighting, and that he was the loudest patriotic singer between here and Halifax. He also rises to remark that that spirit seems to pervade many of our 'parade' volunteers officers." The above may be true in some sections but the young officers who went overseas with the 27th were not only willing but anxious to go to the front to help Britain in her emergency.

The Work of the British Navy

Why does not the British navy do something? That is heard in Watford every day. Press dispatches indicate that there are like murmurings in the Old Land.

Think it over for a minute. Reverse the conditions. Suppose every war craft belonging to the Empire was bottled up in harbors and retreats. Suppose Great Britain was not able to send out a pound of freight or receive a pound by sea. Suppose the colonies because of the hostile fleet were not able to send a man to help in the war.

If those suppositions were actualities to-day, the men who are complaining "Why does not the British navy do something," would be proclaiming, and very rightly, the greatness of the German fleet. "Germany has the navy," we would say.

But the truth is that the whole German outfit is under the barn, her merchant marine, the second largest in the world, is lying useless in the harbors. She can get neither men nor food from overseas. Her factories stand idle for lack of raw material. The British fleet has done, and done admirably, the very work for which it was designed. Canadian products by the boatload are leaving this country for British ports, and a short time ago over thirty thousand of our best men landed on her shores to give their aid in the gigantic European struggle—and they went as safely as you might go from Sarnia to Courtright on a freight boat.

Not so, however, with our enemies. According to figures compiled at the Austro-Hungarian and German consulates in New York, 550,000 Austrian and German reservists are held in the United States, after having enrolled for military service since the outbreak of hostilities. Practically none of the vast army of men have been able to obtain transportation to join their respective colors in the European war, because of Britain's control of the seas.

All praise to the British navy. Instead of criticism this arm of the Empire's defence is deserving of the greatest appreciation.

Peace

Nothing is more untrue than the statement that in the light of this European war the peace movement has broken down. "The peace sentiment was never so strong as at this hour. This very outrage upon civilization has made men feel the need of peace and the brutality and savagery of war as never before. No one could have been quite sure that every war lord in the world and every nation had been converted to the idea of peace among men, but we did know that among the peoples of the various governments, with scarcely an exception, the desire for peace had mightily grown during recent years. The people have not changed. They have brought on no war. If they have become involved in a conflict which threatens the very life of their nation they must fight in self-preservation, but all this is consistent with a keener realization than ever that peace is as preferable to war as heaven to hell.

A Good Creed For a Canadian

I believe in Canada.
I love her as my home.
I honor her institutions.
I rejoice in the abundance of her resources.
I have unbounded confidence in the ability and enterprise of her people, and I cherish exalted ideas of her destiny among the nations of the world. Anything that is produced in Canada, from Canadian materials, by the application of Canadian brain and labor, will always have first call with me.

Some Basic Principles of Agricultural Chemistry

A pamphlet has been issued by the Central Experimental Farm entitled "The Farmer as a Manufacturer." It has been prepared by Mr. A. T. Stuart, B.A., Assistant Chemist, who has presented a number of simple illustrations of the chemical processes that take place in vegetable and animal life.

The processes are indicated by which the farmer, whose raw materials are but air, water and soil, is able to manufacture therefrom an apparently endless variety of products—both plant and animal. It is shown, however, that their composition is to be easily understood, consisting as they do of but four principal constituents. The nature of the raw materials, the process of manufacture and the products are discussed.

Under the heading "Maintaining Fertility" it is pointed out that "the farmer must exercise extreme care if he would keep his soil in the highest condition of productiveness. Soil is the real guardian of the farmer's capital, and the security is absolute. Try as he may he cannot 'Break the bank.' He may bring about temporary derangement and dividends may for awhile be suspended, but invariably under better management prosperity can be restored and perhaps even larger profits than ever secured."

The pamphlet, which is Bulletin No. 20, of the Second Series, is available to those to whom the information is of interest on application to the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa.

Men Well Satisfied

Dominion Department of Agriculture, Dairy Division.

Speaking of his experience with cow testing for three years, one farmer near St. Hyacinth, Quebec, recently expressed himself as very well satisfied. He had good reason to be, for in June this year his 9 cows averaged 1,203 pounds of milk each, a total of 10,830 pounds. Three years ago the average was only 823 pounds, the total over 7,411 pounds.

In other words, his income from the nine cows was thirty-four dollars greater in one month this year.

Instances very similar to this may be found in every county where cow testing has been taken up intelligently. Near Listowel, Ontario, is a herd of 16 cows that gave on the average of 2,700 pounds of milk per cow more than three years ago. The addition of four hundred and thirty-two dollars per year to one's income, without increasing the number of cows, is a substantial and tangible result of intelligent weighing and sampling.

Again, at Wooler, Ontario, is a herd now giving 3,307 pounds of milk per cow, an increase of almost 3,000 pounds per cow.

Record forms for milk and feed, and a herd record book, will be supplied free on application to the dairy commissioner, Ottawa.

Got Three Days' Holiday

London, Oct. 22.—These are the days when the Canadian contingent is becoming acquainted with the men who are to have them in charge during the coming months. Yesterday they were given an opportunity of seeing their commander, General Alderson; to-morrow they are to be reviewed by Lord Roberts and later on there will probably be inspections by Kitchener and King George.

Leave started to-day, and large numbers of the men are thus being given an opportunity of visiting relatives and friends in other parts of Great Britain and even in Ireland. As many as 20 per cent of some battalions are away for a three days' leave, those going to Ireland or Scotland being allowed an extra day.

General Alderson made a good impression among the men. He is a big bluff type of soldier, genial in manner and careful to return the salute of even the humblest private whom he meets. To-day he was about the camp and after an inspection mounted an ammunition wagon to address a few words to the men.

Population of Lambton	Cry For Retribution
Municipal Bulletin, No. 8, of the Bureau of Industries, just out, gives the population of the different municipalities in the county as follows:—	London Times.—The innumerable crimes committed by the German armies cry aloud for retribution. In our uncutscorned way, we and our Allies will in our own good time take heavy toll for them. There is no act of pillage, of vandalism, of outrage, and of murder committed by the Germans which will not in the end recoil upon its ruthless perpetrators. Already the good name of Germany is blackened forever, and her soldiers and statesmen, their hands stained with the deeds that will never be fully purged, look in vain throughout the world for a single sign of human sympathy. Their whimpering appeals are treated with scorn. The black and inaffable facts are their only answer. The Allies have clean hands, and when in turn they march through Germany they will keep them clean. Their disciplined armies will never lapse into the calculated demoralization of the German hosts.

A woman's organism is a very delicate thing—it very easily gets out of order—just like a delicate piece of machinery, it requires more than ordinary care and attention.

There are many signs which point to disorder, such as headaches, unaccountable pains in various parts of the body, listlessness, nervousness, irritability, dizziness, faintness, backache, loss of appetite, depression, and many others.

E. L. Teachers' Association

Annual Meeting Held at Petrolia Well Attended

Owing to the absence of Rev. Mr. Moyer, Inspector McDougall opened the meeting. President Corbett then introduced Miss Augustine, of Arkona, who dealt with supplementary reading in 4th and 5th classes. In this subject the pupils are introduced to great minds. Have all the pupils have a copy of the book being read. Find easy paragraphs for the poor reading pupils and encourage them to persevere. Have pupils proceed slowly so that they see that the main object is not to get through but to enjoy the work in hand. Irving's works, also those of Scott and Dickens, were recommended, especially in class work so that they will be companions through life.

Miss S. Mains, of Watford, wrote the next paper which was read by Inspector McDougall. This paper dealt with supplementary reading in junior classes. By contact with the thoughts of great minds through the books the pupils' minds are uplifted. During the first 12 years of life if the pupil has read good literature he will not stray away in after years. Reading stocks men's minds. We can in a short life learn as much from books as if we had lived for many years. Do not carry the reading lessons to the point of weariness which will make the pupils not like reading. A discussion followed these two papers which emphasized the good this extra work in supplementary reading does.

Mr. H. Walker explained how he taught writing. The first object to be considered is not only to improve the writing for the time being but that they will practice in future. Without constant practise no improvement can be made. Above part two all classes are treated alike. A writing course and blank book for each pupil is needed. Foolscap will also be found useful. See that the pupils have the correct position and movement. Teacher can illustrate this at his desk. Exercises to develop free and uncontrolled movement are necessary. Constant work in reminding the pupils of their faults is needed.

The Devotional exercises conducted by Rev. A. C. Bingham opened the afternoon program on Thursday.

Mr. A. Stevenson, of the London Normal School, addressed the teachers on Grammar. The resources for studying the subject were dealt with. Both old and new reasons were taken up. The best argument for the study is perhaps the discipline of the brain that it gives. Subdued hints to cover a multitude of words is not good practise. A great many rules of Latin are applied to English Grammar, which is not good practise. We have talking and repeating words in grammar but no thinking. By means of numerous sentences different statements used in definition did not explain accurately what was meant. Abbreviations should be used in writing out parsing.

Miss Cameron, of Watford, favored the association with a solo.

Miss Reid read the report of the O. E. A. meeting in Toronto. She heard Prof. Chant talk about star maps and Mr. Reid speak about pictures in the schoolroom. Star maps were given to those present. Subdued hints to cover a multitude of words were shown. Picture supplements of newspapers it was shown could be used. Dr. Seath addressed the assembled teachers on the new course of study. The goal of all educational work is a good life. In the kindergarten she heard helpful talks on the close association between kindergarten work and that in the rest of the public school system. Religious instruction should be made fuller. A speaker brought forth the idea that all the lessons in the readers were put there with a purpose. Miss Davis, of Florence, the other delegate, told of her attendance. About 1200 teachers were there and about 20 rooms in the University were in use. Routine business filled in the first morning. The Deputy Minister stated that a measure of superannuation would be introduced and would no doubt be supported. The presbytery mentioned that the school boy of today knew more of nature than the educated man of a century ago. Examinations were discussed.

Mr. A. Stevenson B.A., spoke about the use of newspapers in the schools. Some parts of the papers are totally useless. Cut out pieces that appeal to you and paste them away. Geographies cannot be changed to keep up with the changes in countries, products, industries and these new changes must be taken from the papers. Only take up those things that are important. Keep school life as closely in contact with the outside life as possible. A number of useful books and pamphlets were mentioned. Do not believe everything that is said there.

Miss E. Moyer, of Petrolia, favored the association with an excellent vocal solo.

Miss MacDonald, one of the delegates to rural school association in Guelph, told of the work there. Prof. Deau's address was reviewed in which he told of the rural problems of today. The motto of the meeting seemed to be to bring before the people a view of the place and responsibilities of the rural school. An illustrated lecture on school grounds improvement. Let us all try to improve both the grounds and building. Prof. McCready emphasized the fact that the school should be made a social centre.

Mr. Matthews, the other delegate, spoke of the change in the trend of the school work which before this has been from the country to the town. There must be an increase in the amount produced. This can be done by careful selection of seed grain, cattle and horses. Denmark was held up as a country that had successfully carried out this increased growth in products. Some features in connection with their schools was pointed out. Government supervision and help was emphasized. Schools should be centres of which information on all agricultural subjects could be obtained. Co-operation was a good thing for the farmer.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Stevenson and those who helped in any way to make the meeting a success.

An Always Ready Pill.—To those of regular habit medicine is of little concern, but the great majority of men are not of regular habit. The worry and care of business prevent it, and out of the irregularity of life comes dyspepsia, indigestion, liver and kidney troubles as a protest. The run-down system demands a corrective and there is none better than Parlee's Vegetable Pills. They are simple in their composition and can be taken by the most delicately constituted.

Fritz De Mitz, strongly suspected of being a German spy, left Sarnia hurriedly at noon on Friday. De Mitz is a member of the twenty-seventh regiment, having enlisted at the outbreak of the war, after offering his services as an interpreter. Ever since the war began foreigners have been smuggled out of Sarnia in some mysterious manner. The finger of suspicion points at De Mitz. Previously to the outbreak of hostilities De Mitz went by the name of Janasky, and claimed Germany as his home. Following the declaration of war he changed his name to De Mitz and assumed Swiss nationality.

An Oil That is Famous.—Though Canada was not the birth-place of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, it is the home of that famous compound. From here its good name was spread to Central and South America, the West Indies, Australia and New Zealand. That is far afield enough to attest its excellence, for in all these countries it is on sale and in demand.

While securing data for a history of Amherstburg and old Fort Malden, Rev. A. B. Farney, rector of Christ church, ran across an old account book of a storekeeper, dated 1792, which gave the following prices:—Eggs, 96c dozen; butter, 96c pound; black tea, $5 a pound; green tea $4.50 a pound; coffee, $4.50 a pound; chickens, $2 a piece; silk stockings, $5 a pair; nails, 24c a pound; rum, 30c a gallon.

Indications point to no shortage of trained officers to take command of Canada's second overseas contingent. Training classes have been formed at various points, with gratifying attendances.

FRIDAY MORNING

Rev. Mr. Hill opened the Friday morning meeting with Devotional exercises after which the report of the nominating committee was adopted.

Hon. Pres.—Mr. N. McDougall.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. W. Clyde, Mr. C. Potter.
Pres.—Mr. J. J. Mathews.
Vice-Pres.—Miss E. Hume.
Sec.—Treas.—Mr. R. J. Campbell.

Standing Com. on Physical Training—Chairman—Mr. N. McDougall, Petrolia; Miss J. Ford, Petrolia; Mr. Henderson, Petrolia; Miss Shrapnell, Watford; Miss Robb, Florence.

Two delegates to the O. E. A. were nominated: Miss E. Hume, Watford,

Miss E. Buchanan, Petrolia. President Corbett spoke for a few minutes on education—its purpose. All should find a pleasure in education. Should strive to make the child what the great Architect of the Universe would like him or her to be. The child needs proper food, surroundings and care. Don't fill the child full of a lot of unconnected facts. The individuality of the pupils should be developed. The world demands a finished product, showing good moral character, developed physical powers, and intellectually developed mind.

Mr. McDougall spoke about the revised course of study. These new courses will be in the hands of the teachers by the middle of the present month. The essentials of a good teacher are personality, executive ability and methods. The purpose of this new course is efficient and character. The realities of life should be examined by the teacher. The purpose of education is not simply to fill up on facts for examinations. The work of the school is divided into three groups. All of the first is to be taken and then a selection made of the rest—the selection of group II by the inspector and of group III by the trustees. Reports from teachers re absent pupils must be made to the inspector.

Mr. A. Stevenson B.A., spoke about the use of newspapers in the schools. Some parts of the papers are totally useless. Cut out pieces that appeal to you and paste them away. Geographies cannot be changed to keep up with the changes in countries, products, industries and these new changes must be taken from the papers. Only take up those things that are important. Luckham—Lucas

A very pretty event was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Lucas, Sutorville, Wednesday, Oct. 21st, when their second daughter, Mary E., was united in marriage to Gordon W. Luckham, a prosperous young farmer of Enniskillen, at 3 o'clock, by the rector, Rev. S. P. Irwin, B.A.

The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a gown of ivory duchess satin, with lace and pearl trimmings, wearing a bridal veil of net beautifully embroidered in silk, held in place by a wreath of orange blossoms, and carrying a shower bouquet of bridal roses. The bride's only ornament was the groom's gift, a necklace of pearls.

Little Goldie Lucas, sister of the bride, made a pretty little ring bearer, carrying it in a basket of pink and white roses. Miss Gladys Lucas, sister of the groom, played Mendelssohn's wedding march, also accompanied her aunt, Miss Pearl Luckham, who sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

After the ceremony the guests, numbering about sixty, repaired to the dining room, which was tastefully decorated in pink and white, where a dainty wedding dinner was served. The usual toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. S. P. Irwin and responded to by the groom and Mr. Alex. McQueen, Petrolia. The presents, which were many and beautiful, showed the high esteem in which the young couple are held.

The happy couple left on the 9.22 train from Watford, for Detroit, and will visit Toronto and the Falls before returning home. The bride travelled in a suit of blue, trimmed with silk plush, and white feather hat.

Guests were present from Detroit, Windsor, Sarnia, Petrolia, Alvinston, Arkona, Forest and Watford.

Toronto, Oct. 27.—Receipts at the Union stockyards today were 87 cars, containing 1,030 cattle, 115 calves, 1,587 hogs and 2,392 sheep and lambs and eight horses.

The market was quiet and trade dull. There was only a light run of fresh cattle offering, most of yesterday's left-overs being carried off the slate, but prices are still weak and barely holding steady at the recent declines. Common stuff in particular has to be cleaned out at low prices or not at all. The distillery feeders are not so active, some buyers reporting that they are already filled up and others that they are nearly so. Lambs and sheep are about steady, with a big run offering. Hogs steady.

Address and Presentation
On the evening of Oct. 23rd, the friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lucas gathered at their home to bid them good-bye before they leave for their new home in Sarnia township. Early in the evening Mr. Richard Brock, of Watford, was called to the chair and presented a lengthy program of music and singing. Short addresses were given by Rev. S. P. Irwin, and many of the old neighbors, after which Mr. Lucas was presented with a handsome chair and Mrs. Lucas with a large plush couch. The following address was read by J. M. Kelly, the presentation made by Walter Thrower and W. J. Moffatt.

To Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lucas and family.
Dear Friends—We are assembled here this evening to express our regret at your departure from among us. You have always been a kind and obliging neighbor, ever ready to lend a helping hand. Your genial dispositions have endeared you to all. Your cheery greetings will be missed by even the children. In token of the many pleasant memories of the happy days spent with you in this neighborhood we ask you to accept this chair and couch. In a slight way they express our appreciation of your friendship. We all wish you every success in your new home.
Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbors,
W. J. MOFFATT,
WALTER THROWER.

Although taken by surprise Mr. Lucas made a neat reply, thanking his many friends and extending to them a hearty invitation to come and see him in his new home. God Save the King was sung and lunch served and all departed for their homes well pleased with the evening's enjoyment.

War Summary

London, Oct. 24.—The Germans have undertaken a general offensive movement along the line extending from the River Yser, on the North Sea, to the River Meuse, and while they have compelled the allies to give ground in some places they themselves have lost positions in others. This, in a few words is what is gathered from official reports coming this evening from the French and the German headquarters.

The French official communication issued tonight says: "On our left wing the action continues with great violence, notably around Arras, LaBassee and Armentieres."

"The allies have lost some ground at some points around LaBassee, but have won some at the east of Armentieres. Generally speaking, on this part of the front the situation remains the same."

"To the north of the Aisne our artillery has destroyed three German batteries. A heavy battle is raging in Belgium about 20 miles south of the Ghent-Bruges line and north of Roulers, according to The Telegraph's correspondent in Sluis, Holland, Roulers was again bombarded by the Germans on Thursday."

"Fugitives from Roulers declare," says the correspondent, "that forty inhabitants of that town were shot by the Germans during the invaders' occupation, and that all the prominent citizens were taken as hostages."

London, Oct. 25.—Official announcement is made that German submarine has been rammed and sunk by the British destroyer Badger, Commander Charles Freemantle, off the Dutch coast. The Badger's bow was somewhat damaged.

Amsterdam, Oct. 25.—A Berlin dispatch received here gives a report from the German general headquarters under date of Sunday morning. It says: "The Yser-Ypres canal between Nieuport and Dixmude was crossed Saturday by further strong German forces after heavy fighting. East northeast of Ypres the enemy has received reinforcements but in spite of this our troops have advanced at several points, capturing about 500 British, among them 28 officers, including a colonel."

Petrograd, Oct. 25.—The following communication was issued to-night from general headquarters: On October 23 and 24 the Russian troops inflicted several defeats on the German rear guards who were attempting to hold positions along the rivers Rukva, Skernevka and Rylka. Lovioz, Skiernevica and Rawa were taken by bayonet attacks.

Paris, Oct. 25.—The following official communication was issued by the French war office to-night: The action has continued under the same conditions as on preceding days. A battle of a very violent character is in progress between Nieuport and the River Yps. The German forces have succeeded in crossing the Yser between Nieuport and Dixmude. To the west and to the south of Lille spirited attacks by the enemy have been repulsed.

London, Oct. 26.—The official press bureau issued the following statement at 10.40 this evening:—The situation continues to be satisfactory. The fighting is severe and continuous but ground is being gained and many prisoners have been taken. One of our divisions has captured two guns.

Oct. 28.—The first of the invading German hordes have been driven across the border. This announcement was contained in the French official statement of yesterday afternoon in these words: "In the region to the east of Nancy, between the forest of Bezange and the forest of Parroy, we have assumed the offensive and driven the enemy across the frontier."

It is a plain statement of fact without frills, but these latter are furnished by former Premier Brian, who returned from the Verdun district. He declared that the battle now raging will result in a brilliant victory for the allies. The German are blind with fury at their reverses, while the allies are confident that victory will be theirs.

Of the north fighting a London summary says that on a miniature scale the status of the opposing armies in Upper Belgium now run parallel to the conditions which prevailed when the German rush towards Paris was checked. In other words, the German forward movement has been characterized by an even greater profligality of men than was shown in the march in the direction of Paris. The invaders succeeded for lays in battering their way on and then suddenly came to something which caused them to pause.

Oct. 29.—Ten days ago the French official statement said that General Joffre's plan was progressing. It has progressed since, slowly, perhaps, because the French leader is a humane man and refuses to sacrifice his men unnecessarily, but still the progress has been generally continuous. Tuesday night's dispatches said the allies captured Thourout. The importance of this on what can be with good reason called the crucial battle is tremendous. The allies have driven a wedge between Ypres and Dixmude.

Joffre is trying to force northeastward the north half of this wedge and compel the Germans who got across the Yser Canal north of Dixmude to retire. The south half he is trying to advance in a southeasterly direction, thus isolating the Germans on the north and outflanking the whole German battle line on the south. Yesterday's official statement indicates that his plans are making progress, while the Germans have made no gains elsewhere that would act as an offset. Altogether it is highly encouraging.

Address and Presentation

A very pleasing event took place on Wednesday evening, the 21st inst., when a large number of friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Wilson gathered at their home on the 4th line to show their regard for them and to bid them good-bye ere they leave their old home for a new one in Watford. Mr. John McCormick acted as chairman, and after allowing a short time for general chatting called on Rev. J. C. Forster to read the following address:—

To Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Wilson—
We your neighbors and friends cannot let you depart from our midst, without expressing to you the esteem and respect for you who, have lived among us for twenty-seven years. The interest you have taken in our community, and the many neighborly acts of kindness will never be forgotten. It is a great satisfaction to know that you will not be far removed from us and that we may have the pleasure of meeting you both from time to time and renewing old acquaintance. Please accept this chair and couch as a slight token of the esteem in which you are held by your many friends. That the autumn of your lives may be full of sunshine is our earnest wish, signed and behalf of your neighbors and friends,
MRS. ROBERT SUTTON,
MRS. SWANTON CHAMBERS.

Rev. R. Stevenson expressed for Mr. and Mrs. Wilson their thanks for the beautiful gifts and for the kindly feelings shown. Then followed short speeches by Rev. Mr. Forster, Dr. Kelly, Messrs. McCormick, Harper, J. W. Bryce and others, interspersed with musical selections. Mr. Stevenson and Mrs. Craig sang very acceptably "The Crooked Banister" and "Land of the Leal" and Mrs. (Dr.) Kelly rendered "Lock Lomond" in her usual pleasing way. Refreshments were then served, and finally the company broke up after having sung "God Save the King" and "God Be With You" all wishing Mr. and Mrs. Wilson a very happy time in their new home in Watford to which they will move shortly.

Distribution of Seed Grain and Potatoes From the Dominion Experimental Farms, 1914-1915

By instructions of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture, a distribution of superior sorts of grain and potatoes will be made during the coming winter and spring to Canadian farmers. The samples for general distribution will consist of spring wheat (about 5 lbs.), white oats (about 4 lbs.), barley (about 5 lbs.), and field peas (about 5 lbs.). These will be sent out from Ottawa. A distribution of potatoes (in 3 lb. samples) will be carried on from several of the experimental farms, the Central farm at Ottawa supplying only the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. All samples will be sent free, mail.

Applicants must give particulars in regard to the soil on their farms, and some account of their experience with such kinds of grain (or potatoes) as they have grown, so that a promising sort for their conditions may be selected.

Each application must be separate and must be signed by the name of the bearer. Only one sample of grain and one of potatoes can be sent to each farm. If both samples are asked for in the same letter only one will be sent. Applications on any kind of printed form cannot be accepted.

As the supply of seed is limited, farmers are requested to apply early; but the applications will not necessarily be filled in the exact order in which they are received. Preference will always be given to the most thoughtful and explicit requests. Applications received after the end of January will probably be too late.

All applications for grain (and applications from the provinces of Ontario and Quebec for potatoes) should be addressed to the Dominion Cerealist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Such applications require no postage. If otherwise addressed delay and disappointment may occur.

Applications for potatoes, from farmers in any other province should be addressed (postage prepaid) to the Superintendent of the nearest branch experimental farm in that province.

J. H. GRISDALE,
Director, Dominion
Experimental Farms.

A Home In America
A Story For Labor Day
By MARGARET C. DEVEREAUX

Jean Stahren and Elsa Vogin lived on adjoining farms on the western coast of Norway. Neither had any brothers or sisters, consequently they were constant playmates, for there were no other children within a couple of miles. Since the country was rocky and not very productive their parents were very poor. But neither Jean nor Elsa had ever known luxuries, and what we do not know of we do not covet. Besides, there is an unconsciousness of deprivation in childhood, and so long as children have enough to eat, though of the plainest food, and enough clothing to keep them warm they are content.

But there came a time with Jean when he began to think of his future. This was when he was seventeen years old. One day, standing with Elsa on a high ridge overlooking the Atlantic ocean, he said to her: "Elsa, it will not satisfy me to remain here with father and mother to work this little farm. There is barely enough for them to be made out of it, and I feel that I must go out into the world to make something for myself." A frightened look came to Elsa's face. This was the first intimation she had that she and Jean would not live near each other always as they had lived. "Where would you go, Jean?" she asked. "If one sails westward from here in a few days he will reach some islands called Britain. They have a king there, as we have here, and nobles, but I understand that the people are active, and there are opportunities for poor men to make a good living. But if one continues on southwestward he will come to a great continent called America. The people there have no king, no nobles. All are on the same level so far as the law is concerned. To that land people of small means from all nations are flocking. There is plenty of land there which is very rich, and great factories where people work, and those who are skilled receive wages that are unheard of here in Norway. I am thinking of going to America to join in the battle for fortune."

"But, Jean," cried the girl, "you are not skilled at any work, and in no country are farms given away. Having no trade and no money to buy a farm, what will you do to earn a living? And where will you get money to pay your way?" "I am now of a proper age to learn a trade, and as to the means for the journey I shall work my passage. I shall go on a ship to Hamburg, for which I have the money. There, I understand, there are great vessels sailing to America. They need many persons to wait on the passengers, and it will not be difficult for me to secure one of these places."

"How did you learn all this?" "Lars Olsen told me; he has been to Hamburg."

Elsa was looking out to the westward, and Jean saw tears gathering in her eyes. He put his arms about her and kissed her. The boundary between childhood and youth had been passed. From that moment they were lovers, though they were still unconscious of the change. "Don't cry, Elsa," said Jean. "When I have become a skilled workman I will send for you to come over the sea and be with me." "How could I go over there and be with you, Jean? That would not be right." "But I will then be a man and you a woman; we can be married." This ingenious proposal did not seem to give comfort to Elsa. She said that it would be a long while before Jean could send for her, and even then she could not leave her father and mother, who were every day becoming more dependent upon her. This made Jean feel ashamed, for he knew that he, too, was needed at home. But Jean looked further into the future than Elsa and had more resolution to break the barriers between him and success. Besides, he looked forward to the day when, having become a skilled laborer, he could earn more than he needed for himself and could send money to his parents.

It was a sad day for all when Jean departed. His mother begged him to stay, but his father approved of his going. "Goodby, my son," he said. "I have heard of that great country beyond the sea where the people are the government and where the workingman must be educated for what he does the same as the lawyer, the doctor and the priest. And they tell me that when he learns his trade he is protected by the trade unions against the competition of those who are unskilled. Go, and God grant that you may prosper."

Elsa went a part way on the road with Jean and when they parted surprised him by encouraging him instead of giving way to weeping. "It will not seem long, dear Jean, before you will be building houses or railroads or ships, and every day you will earn more than you need, so that you can send money to your father and mother to buy them comforts they sorely need in their old age."

"But I shall not be satisfied, sweetheart, till I have earned not only enough for that, but to send for you to come to me." Nevertheless they had no sooner passed away from each other than Jean's eyes became moist, and Elsa broke down and sobbed as though her heart would break.

An ocean liner came sailing down the coast and, entering the lower bay of New York, made its way up toward Ellis Island, where emigrants must prove that they come within the laws governing their admission to the United States of America. Among those who were transferred from the vessel to the island was a young woman, who gave her name as Elsa Vogin and her age as twenty-two. She stepped from the lighter that bore her to the dock and looked about her as if expecting some one to meet her; but, seeing no one she knew, her expression of expectancy changed to one of disappointment. Passing with the throng into the apartment where emigrants present their claims for admission, Elsa was brought before an official for examination.

"What means have you?" he asked. "Only a few silver coins left over after paying for my passage." "How do you expect to live here in America?" "I came over here to be married. I expected to meet at the dock when I landed the man who will marry me, but he did not appear."

The official asked the man's name and where he lived. Elsa told him that his name was Jean Stahren and that he was an ironworker in Pennsylvania, but what place in Pennsylvania she could not tell him. Elsa was told that she might remain on the island for a few days, but if at the end of that time her lover did not appear she must be sent back to Hamburg, whence she had sailed. This was a terrible blow to the poor girl, for she knew that there was some reason why Jean had not met her, which might not be corrected within so short a time.

Fortunately it was summer, the end of August, and Ellis Island, surrounded as it is by water, was not a disagreeable place to wait. Elsa gazed out over the bay, wondering at the gigantic statue of Liberty, at the skyscrapers of lower New York, at the Brooklyn suspension bridge and at Castle Williams on Governors Island. A day, passed, and Jean did not appear. Another day went by and still there were no tidings of him. The third day was Sunday, the 1st of September. Elsa was called before one of the immigration officials and informed that a steamer would sail for Hamburg the next day and if she could not satisfy the authorities that she would not be a burden on the United States before that time she would be sent back to Germany, whence she came.

Elsa was in agony. Jean had sent her the money for her passage, at the same time telling her to write him the name of the steamer on which she would sail, promising to meet her on the dock when the ship arrived. She had written him the name of the steamer, but not being versed in the ways of the world, had not mentioned the date of its arrival, though she had said that she expected to sail about the last of August. And now, after having waited seven years to be united to Jean and having come all the way across the Atlantic ocean for the purpose, she must go back to Hamburg.

That Sunday was a sultry afternoon, and Elsa in order to get cool sat on the dock gloomily looking out over the waters of the bay. She saw a little steamer leave New York and make for the island. Boats were coming often, and she had looked when each had arrived for Jean. But now she had given up hope. When the boat reached the dock she scarcely noticed those who came ashore. But a man passed near her, stopped and looked at her scrutinizingly. "Elsa!" he exclaimed. She arose and for a moment did not recognize Jean, for he wore a full beard. "Oh, Jean!" she cried. "Why have you not come before?" "How long have you been here?" "Three days."

"I supposed you would come on the steamer that is telegraphed to be here presently." Elsa had little education, and she had written the name of the ship on which she would sail so badly that Jean could not read it. He had therefore judged of the time of her arrival from the date she gave and consequently fell between two steamers. But he wasted few words in explanation. "Come, Elsa," he said. "We must be married at once, go to New York and leave for my home in Pennsylvania on a night train. Tomorrow will be Labor day, and I am at the head of the committee of arrangements for my union and have much to do." So Jean and Elsa were married on the island and left there at once. It was past midnight when they reached their home, a cottage near a steel works where Jean was employed. Though it was late, Elsa found time to admire the cozy home that Jean had prepared for her.

The first day Elsa spent in America was Labor day, and though she saw little of her husband she saw one of the most important celebrations of the new world.

Jean Stahren became a master mechanic, and, having a wife who was a good manager, they sent monthly remittances to the old folks in Norway, and after awhile made them a visit. But by this time they took with them several children to introduce to their grandparents.

THE EARNINGS OF FARMERS.
Many Do Not Correctly Estimate Their Incomes.
The money that a farmer takes in each year above his cash expenses in an income from two distinct sources—first, interest on money invested in the farm business; second, wages for the labor and managing ability of the farmer and his family.

Many people who think that they are financially successful as farmers are, actually living on the interest from the money invested in the farm business and on the labor of their sons and daughters. For his own work the farmer frequently receives only a fraction of a hired man's wages. The reason is that when one has his farm clear of debt he often forgets that interest on the investment is a receipt, similar to the interest that one receives on a deposit in a savings bank, for the farm could be sold and the money invested so as to secure 4 to 6 per cent interest with no work on the part of the farmer. A farmer whose farm is mortgaged for a good portion of its value is not at all likely to forget that interest on the investment is a part of the year's expense. If he does the owner of the mortgage will remind him of it upon each interest day.

A farmer who has a farm and equipment worth $10,000 could secure an income of $800 per year by selling his farm and putting the money at interest, assuming that he could invest the proceeds so as to secure 5 per cent interest—W. L. Carver, Assistant Agriculturist, University Farm, St. Paul.

Woman's Milk Stool.
When women must milk it is hard to hold the pail as men do. The stool shown here will serve as a pail holder. It is oblong and the front end made concave. An iron hoop completes the circle, so the pail rests in the opening.

NO DANGER OF UPSIDING.
A hoop from a cask has about the right level to it to fit the flare of the pail. If the seat is made long there is little danger of having the pail tilt up when full, but if the handle of the pail is grasped when the milking is over no danger of upsetting need be feared in any event—Orange Judd Farmer.

New Cotton In America.
Arizona cotton growers must be feeling jubilant. They have produced about 2,000 bales of Egyptian long staple cotton—a new product in America. They have succeeded in selling at a price which nets the growers in the Salt River valley 2 1/2 cents a pound. The farmers there expect to grow only the one variety, henceforth—Farm and Fireside.

The Bank of Montreal has refused to loan Wallaceburg $36,000 to carry out its hydro plans. In a letter to the town, the bank officials advised the curtailment of all municipal work.

Ernest F. Inch, Jr., of Strathroy, is suing William H. Brock, late of the township of Metcalfe, but now of Port Arthur, for $15,000, alleging that in April, 1913, Brock falsely represented a farm in London township to him, declaring that it was a good farm, and all but one acre free from couch grass. Inch alleges that after renting the place he found that the farm was covered with couch grass, and that on this account he was unable to till the soil properly, and lost nearly all his crop. Mr. Brock alleges that he did not make fraudulent representations about the farm to Inch, and that, if the latter had cultivated his land properly, the crops would have been good. He alleges that the poor crops Inch had in 1913 were due to indolence, neglect and poor farming of the plaintiff, and that the farm was not covered with couch grass. Brock has entered a counterclaim for $1,500, alleging that this much damage has been done to the place through neglect.

KAISER'S WILL

Amusing Document Circulated in France, Executioner as Executor

Paris, Friday.—Anything anti-German, or anything that ridicules or condemns Germany or the Kaiser goes in Paris. An enterprising printer made a pretty penny from the sale of "Kaiser Wilhelm's Will," which read as follows:—

"My fortune to all the widows, orphans, and others of whose bereavement I have been the cause.

"To Belgium, as a souvenir of her heroic defense of Liege, the Cross of Honor in diamonds, my sword, and the right to jeer at me.

"To France I restore by force Alsace-Lorraine, her clocks and her billions of francs.

"To England I give back her title, which I usurped, viz., "King of the Seas."

"To Austria I give back her title, which I usurped, viz., "King of the Seas."

"To Russia, all my cannon, as a surety of universal peace.

"To Austria I leave my last cartridge, in order that she may end the business in honorable fashion.

"To all the other countries that I have forced into mobilization and war I give the wealth that remains of my empire.

"To my family I give the nothing I have left.

"As executor of this will I choose William Diebler, to whom I regret I cannot give my head, which is claimed by all the world." (Diebler in the Paris executioner.)

Women's Miscellany

Nearly half the stock in the Pennsylvania railroad is controlled by women.

If your cellar is damp and bad smelling, put several lumps of fresh lime in boxes or pans and set about in the damp places; this will dry and sweeten, and is very cheap.

An excellent tonic for the hair is made of one quart of bay rum, one ounce of castor oil, and one ounce of tincture of cantharides. Apply this once a day to the scalp, using the finger tips to massage, or apply with a little swab of cloth, parting the hair to make the application. This may be applied night and morning, if the case is very bad.

HOME HINTS

It is said that a man cannot possess anything that is better than a good woman nor anything worse than a bad one.

If children heard only pleasant tones, commendable words, good grammar, fine music, true harmony, in their early childhood, they would acquire habits, not only of speech, but of feeling and conduct that would be prophesies of right action in maturity.

Whether you make money or lose it, never sell your divine heritage, your good name, for a mess of pottage. Whatever you do, be larger than your vocation; never let it be said of you that you succeeded in your vocation but failed as a man.

There are some people who apparently live more for the admiration of others than for those of their own homes, and have a smile for all except the ones that should be nearest and dearest to them, and indeed they could take no surer plan to wreck their own happiness or the happiness of the home.

No parent, however rich, can be certain that his children will never come to poverty. There is absolutely no guarantee against the vanishing of riches. The best insurance any parent can give his children is to teach them to work. The ability to work is the best asset any youth can have. It makes him a self-sustaining, dependable citizen, and such citizens are the most permanent asset of any country. When boys and girls are taught to work there is no need for anxiety regarding their usefulness as adult citizens.

Farm and Garden

WHEN TO CUT ALFALFA.

Best Hay Obtained When First Blooms Appear.

It has for years been considered that alfalfa for hay should be cut when about one-half of the plants are in bloom, says the Kansas Farmer. During recent years the best alfalfa growers have been cutting when they could so soon as the first blooms appear. Such growers are strongly inclined to the belief that the best hay is at this time obtained and also that cutting at such time is best for the succeeding crop. There are two considerations in the harvesting of alfalfa for hay. The first is that of obtaining hay of the highest feeding quality and the other that of cutting at such times as will result in the largest annual yield.

If the crop is allowed to stand until it is in full bloom the stems become woody and a considerable proportion of the leaves are lost in the harvest. It would seem, therefore, that from the standpoint of hay quality the cutting reached as near maturity as possible, but before such time as will result in woody stems and leaf loss.

Every alfalfa grower has observed that just in advance of blooming the crown of the alfalfa plant starts new shoots for the succeeding crop, and the editor is inclined to the belief that the appearance of these shoots is a better guide as to the time of cutting than is the bloom. If the crop is allowed to stand until a considerable proportion of the plants are in bloom the grower will note that the sprouts which are to produce the succeeding crop become dwarfed and will not produce as much hay as if the crop had been removed and the crown shoots been allowed to grow without interruption. It is our belief, therefore, that the largest yield of best quality hay will result from the cutting of alfalfa just as soon as these new shoots from the crown appear, provided, of course, this be permitted by conditions of weather and other farm work. To be sure, if alfalfa hay is to be used largely for horse feed the hay should be ripe and so cut later than if it is to be eaten by other stock.

A Bumper Apple Crop.

Apples this year promise a heavy yield in Maryland and North Carolina, the finest crop in the history of Colorado, an unusual crop in Michigan, good crops in Virginia, Georgia and South Carolina and prospects in other states generally good or above average, according to reports to the department of agriculture.

BEES ON THE FARM.

The hum of the busy little honeybee should be heard on every farm. A moderate amount of care given to these industrious workers will help out considerably in these days of the high cost of living by providing a supply of the most delicious and healthful of all sweets for the table. It is especially good for cooking purposes and is far superior to any other sweet for the little folks.

It is not necessary to go into extensive beekeeping in order to have honey for the home. A half a dozen colonies when properly cared for will give the average family all that it can use and possibly some to sell.

Of course if the farmer cared to do so he could easily keep a larger number of colonies and add to his income by their work. Quite often the women of the farm attend to the bees and buy relief from the drudgery of farm life through the aid of these little insects.

In days gone by most of the bees in on farms were to be found in hollow logs, commonly known as "bee gums," or else in tight boxes with a few sticks nailed across on the inside, to which the bees attached their combs.

The favorite method of removing the honey or "robbing the bees," as it was called, was to smother them by placing the hive over a pit in which brimstone was burning. Then the honey could be taken out, but it would be necessary to get more bees next year. However, this cruel method has passed away, and now almost every beekeeper uses hives with movable frames, and the honey can be removed without killing a single bee.

FARMING AND HEALTH.

Health is worth much to people of any occupation, but no occupation is more dependent upon it than farming. Farming requires physical labor of considerable endurance, notwithstanding the extensive use of improved implements and machines. Successful farming also requires mental activity. Good health means physical and mental vigor, without which farming cannot succeed. With these facts before us let us conserve our strength and take every known precaution to prevent disease.—Farm and Ranch.

HINTS ON JAM MAKING.

Use only fruit which has been gathered dry. Wet fruit prevents the jam from keeping and is often the cause of mold.

Fruit should be boiled as soon as possible after being gathered.

Always use the best sugar and in the right proportions. Cheap sugar is unsatisfactory and is no economy, resulting in no saving.

As a general rule one pound of fruit requires one pound of sugar, but this varies slightly with the amount and kind of fruit.

Always use a copper or china lined pan and stir with a wooden spoon.

The fruit must be boiled quickly and stirred frequently if the color and flavor are to be of the best.

Overboiling destroys both color and flavor. Half an hour to forty minutes is long enough to boil most jams.

Store, if possible, in glass jars, so that any sign of fermentation or mold may be detected.

Jams must be stored in a cool, dry cupboard.

If the fruit is preferred whole boil a sirup before adding the fruit.

Color Hints.

The tendency at present is very largely in favor of dark colors, says the Dry Goods Economist, navy blue and brown being particularly desirable. There has also been more interest shown in black than for a number of years. Dark shades of green are being used to a considerable extent, but even for opening pieces there have been fewer light colors shown than for a number of seasons. When light shades are employed sand and putty colors are being taken.

GRACE IN COLLAR LINES.

Striking and graceful in line are many of the new autumn collars. Note the specimen illustrated. It is an eccentrically shaped neck collar of handkerchief linen trimmed with two lines of hemstitching designed to wear with autumn coats or trotter frocks of serge or mohair.

WAR SQUIBS

The cards are stacked against the Kaiser. He only holds two kings to the enemy's four.

A Chicago paper gives thanks to the Atlantic and Pacific oceans for saving it from the armed turmoil of Europe.

Should the Kaiser decide to invade Holland it will be a fight to the death between the German square and the Dutch "square-face."

The British navy has a prompt and effective process for converting any type of German war vessel into a permanent submarine on sight.

The feeling against the Kaiser's domain is so strong in some of the rural communities that Berlin wool work is being struck off the county fair prize lists.

The Kaiser and the Austrian emperor are conferring iron crosses of honor upon each other. Before the war is over their crosses may be more than they can bear.

Andrew Carnegie is not so sure that the Kaiser is responsible and a considerable portion of the public entertain the same opinion about Mr. Carnegie.

Wherever a German warship has shown its nose it has either been sunk or crippled. Whenever it showed its heels in time it got away. Speed and a long start may save ships, but they will not be of much service in saving the country.

The allies are making elaborate preparations to relieve Germany of the responsibility of looking after her colonial possessions. After the war she is likely to be the most compact and suppressed nation in Europe.

A TRIP TO THE NORTH-WEST

By Mr. Peter Anderson

Dunvegan, Alberta, Aug. 28, 1914. Mr. Editor:—A number of my friends desired me to have an account of our journey printed in the Guide-Advocate. With your permission I shall now undertake to fulfil that promise.

Our train left Strathroy shortly after three o'clock, June 24th, for Sarnia wharf. Our steamer, the Harmonic, was on hand taking on freight. The first impression on rounding the end of the freight shed was the enormous height of the vessel, towering above all other craft in sight. Some idea of the size may be gained from a record posted up several places, "six and a half times around this deck makes one mile."

We steamed out of Sarnia a few minutes after five. Saw them dredging the channel at the entrance to Lake Huron as we passed. The evening was ideal. Old and young were on deck till dark. The band played, the deck was cleared, and the young tripped the light fantastic to the sweet strains. One old lady wished to see the tango. Her desire was gratified.

During the evening and throughout the night we met and passed a number of freighters and the next morning as we neared the Soo, where the channel was narrow, we had to go slow, as there was not room to pass. We reached the Soo about eleven and left about noon. We were so anxious to see our boat going up the canal that we did not answer the bugle call to dinner until assured we would have ample time to refresh ourselves before they would enter the locks. There are a great many points of interest. The deepening of the channel up the river, the canal, the swing bridge, the lift bridge, the railways across the canal and the river, the pulp works, the smelting works and the labor-saving devices in connection with them. We continued out into Lake Superior. The weather was fine throughout the trip. All seemed anxious to be agreeable and the crew did everything possible for the comfort of the passengers, and the vessel itself was a veritable floating palace, comfortable berths and good meals. We reached Port Arthur on the morning of the 27th. During the day we saw a lot of out-of-works around the employment offices.

We started for Winnipeg shortly after six in the evening. There are a few settlers for a short distance west of Fort William, but you soon come to land that is broken and rocky and unfit for farming purposes. It had been covered with a dense growth of tamarack, spruce and poplar but a great deal of it is destroyed by fires. As we proceeded the country became more broken. In some places there was a dense growth of corn but there did not seem to be soil enough on the rocks to bring them to perfection.

The porter came through and arranged our berths and we retired, hoping to see better land in the morning, but it was worse, rocks and lakes. It certainly was beautiful scenery. But after a while the land was level and there were houses and open spaces and clumps of willow and poplar. We were on the prairie.

We reached Winnipeg about eight in the morning and spent the day doing the city the guest of Walter Leslie, the genial postmaster of Norwood, Winnipeg. It certainly has been properly named "The City of the Plains." Things are laid out on a large scale. Wide streets and huge buildings. The shade trees have just attained their growth and add very materially to the appearance of the city.

We left for Saskatoon at eight in the evening and were soon out in the farming district. The crops looked well. The settlers have evidently learned that it pays to till the soil properly. Our preconceived ideas of the prairie got a rude jolt. Before dark we reached a very broken piece of country, and we passed through several such places on our journey.

We reached Saskatoon about eight next morning. The city does not yet extend out to the G. T. P. station but Bert was there with his car and we were soon folting through mud and water towards the city. On our way in we got our first sight of toppers. The country had been a little too bountifully supplied with rain but the crops looked well. Saskatoon is a young city. It looks naked

A WOMAN'S RIGHT TO HEALTH

No Reason Why They Should Suffer From Backaches and Headaches

To every woman belongs the right to enjoy a healthy, active, happy life, yet nine out of ten suffer, often in silence, from splitting headaches, torturing backaches, violent heart palpitation or some other of the many evils that follow anaemia, or bloodlessness.

That is why one sees so many women with pale, thin cheeks, dull eyes and drooping figures—sure signs that the blood is out of order. All suffering women should try the right to be well by refreshing their weary bodies with the new, rich blood of health that promptly transforms them into healthy, attractive women. There is no other medicine can supply this new, rich blood so speedily and so surely as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Through this medicine thousands of tired, suffering women have found new health and strength.

Mrs. James Drost, Chipman, N. B., says: "For years I did not know what it was to be entirely free from headache or backache. My hands were cold and clammy all the time. It was difficult for me to get my work done, and to walk even a short distance would leave me completely worn out. My life was one of constant worry and I thought I would never be better. I was doctoring all the time but without a bit of benefit, and finally the doctor stopped giving me medicine as he said he could not help me. Do you wonder that I was in despair. My mother urged me to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, but I said 'what's the use, medicine can't help me.' However, my husband got six boxes of the pills, and to please him I began to take them. By the time I had finished them I undoubtedly had improved and there was the signs of returning health in my cheeks and hands. My husband thought the improvement so great that he got another half dozen boxes, and before these were completed I was enjoying such good health as I had not in years, in fact, I was a well woman, and have since enjoyed the best of health. I sincerely feel that I owe my life to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and shall always recommend them to all sick people."

You can get these pills at any medicine dealer, or they will be sent by mail, postpaid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Rendle—Vance

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Vance, 8 Sideroad, Warwick, was the scene of a happy event Wednesday afternoon, 21st inst., when their youngest daughter, Luella Mary, was joined in holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Francis Geo. Rendle, of Rosanquet, and ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock, the Rev. H. J. Fair, of Arkona, officiating. The bride, who was given away by her father, had her place beneath an arch of flowers and foliage, while the wedding march was played by Miss Adelia Mellor, of Arkona. She wore a very pretty dress of white crepe and lace, with pearl and shadow lace trimming, also wearing a veil, and carried a bouquet of white carnations and lily of the valley. She was attended by Miss Lottie Sullivan, of Hamilton, who wore a becoming gown of cream lace over satin. Mr. Norman Vance, brother of the bride, performed the duties of groomsmen. After the ceremony the bride and groom to a daintily prepared dinner, served in the dining room, which had been nicely decorated in red, this color also dominating in the table decorations.

Mr. and Mrs. Rendle motored to Forest, and left on the 6:20 p.m. train for Detroit, the bride travelling in a suit of toque grey whipcord with plush hat and plume. Upon their return they will reside on the 10th concession of Rosanquet and will be "at home" to their friends after December 1st.

The bride was the recipient of a large number of beautiful presents, among which was a cheque for $25.00 from Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Thomas, of Edmonton.

Forest Agricultural Society

The Fair Board met last Thursday evening to sum up the business of this year's exhibition. They were pleased to find that after paying all expenses there still remained a surplus of $300 to pay on the building debt.

There was $664.75 paid out in prizes by the Society. The fair was a decided success from every standpoint.

The following lady directors were appointed: Miss Alma Beatty, Miss Birdie Bailey, Miss Pearl Elliott, Mrs. J. D. Livingston, Mrs. J. H. Pickering, Mrs. C. Anderson, Mrs. H. B. Stoddard, Mrs. H. Fraleigh, Mrs. D. White, Mrs. John Rawlings and Mrs. Wm. Jones.

Miss Gough, of Napier, who was prevented through illness from taking up her duties as teacher in the Glencoe public school at the beginning of the fall term, is fully recovered and has now taken up her work again.
