

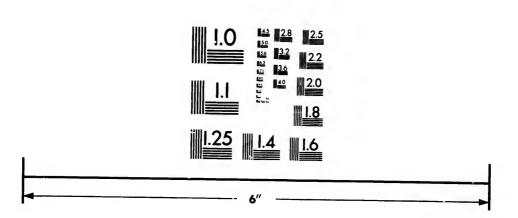

IMAGE EVALUATION TEST TARGET (MT-3)

Photographic Sciences Corporation

23 WEST MAIN STREET WEBSTER, N.Y. 14580 (716) 872-4503 STATE OF THE PROPERTY OF THE P

CIHM/ICMH Microfiche Series.

CIHM/ICMH Collection de microfiches.

Canadian Institute for Historical Microreproductions / Institut canadian de microreproductions historiques

(C) 1983

Technical and Bibliographic Notes/Notes techniques et bibliographiques

T p o fi

O both si of fire si of

The Institute has attempted to obtain the best original copy evallable for filming. Features of this copy which may be bibliographically unique, which may alter any of the Images in the reproduction, or which may significantly change the usual method of filming, are checked below.				L'Institut a microfilmé le meilleur exemplaire qu'il lui a été possible de se procurer. Les détails de cet exemplaire qui sont peut-être uniques du point de vue bibliographique, qui peuvent modifier une image reproduite, ou qui peuvent exiger une modification dans la méthode normale de filmage sont indiqués ci-dessous.
	Coloured covers/ Couverture de cou	leur				Coloured Pages de
	Covers damaged/ Couverture endom	magée				Pages dar Pages end		ies
	Covers restored an					Pages res
	Cover title missing Le titre de couvert				V	Pages disc Pages déc
	Coloured maps/ Cartes géographiq	ues en couleur	,			Pages det Pages dét Coloured ink (i.e. c Encre de couleur (V	Showthro Transpare Coloured plates an Planches et/ou illu					Quality of Qualité in			on Bound with other Relié avec d'autres					Includes s Comprend				re
	Tight binding may along interior mar La re liure serrée p distortion le long e	gin/ eut causer de	l'ombre o			Only editi Seule édit Pages wh	ion disp	onible	scured by	y errata
	Blank leaves added during restoration may appear within the text. Whenever possible, these have been omitted from filming/ Il se peut que certaines pages blanches ajoutées lors d'une restauration apparaissent dans le texte, mais, lorsque cela était possible, ces pages n'ont pas été filmées.					slips, tissues, etc., have been refilmed to ensure the best possible image/ Les pages totalement ou partiellement obscurcies par un feuillet d'errata, une pelure etc., ont été filmées à nouveau de façon à obtenir la meilleure image possible.
	Additional comme Commentaires sup _	item is filmed at th locument est filmé	au taux de réd					26X		30X
100	14X	TIT	T-/	TT			201		7
	12X	16X		20X		24X		28X		32X

The copy filmed here has been reproduced thanks to the generosity of:

Library of the Public Archives of Canada

The images appearing here are the best quality possible considering the condition and legibility of the original copy and in keeping with the filming contract specifications.

Original copies in printed paper covers are filmed beginning with the front cover end ending on the lest page with a printed or illustrated impression, or the back cover when appropriete. All other original copies are filmed beginning on the first page with a printed or illustrated impression, and ending on the last page with a printed or illustrated impression.

The last recorded frame on each microfiche shall contain the symbol → (meaning "CONTINUED"), or the symbol ▼ (meaning "END"), whichever applies.

Maps, plates, charts, etc., may be filmed at different reduction ratios. Those too large to be entirely included in one exposure are filmed beginning in the upper left hand corner, left to right and top to bottom, as many frames as required. The following diagrams illustrate the method:

L'exemplaire filmé fut reproduit grâce à la générosité de:

La bibliothèque des Archives publiques du Canada

Les images suivantes ont été reproduites avec le plus grand soin, compte tenu de la condition et de la netteté de l'exemplaire filmé, et en conformité avec les conditions du contrat de filmage.

Les exemplaires originaux dont la couverture en papier est imprimée sont filmés en commençant par le premier plat et en terminant soit par la dernière page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration, soit par le second plat, selon le ces. Tous les autres exemplaires originaux sont filmés en commençant par la première page qui comporte une empreinte d'impression ou d'illustration et en terminant par le dernière page qui comporte une telle empreinte.

Un des symboles suivants apparaîtra sur la dernière image de chaque microfiche, selon le cas: le symbole → signifie "A SUIVRE", le symbole ▼ signifie "FIN".

Les cartes, planches, tableaux, etc., peuvent être filmés à des taux de réduction différents.

Lorsque le document est trop grand pour être reproduit en un seul cliché, il est filmé à partir de l'angle supérieur gauche, de gauche à droite, et de haut en bas, en prenant le nombre d'images nécessaire. Les diegrammes suivants illustrent la méthode.

1	2	3
---	---	---

1
•
2 3

1	2	3
4	5	6

rrata c

tails

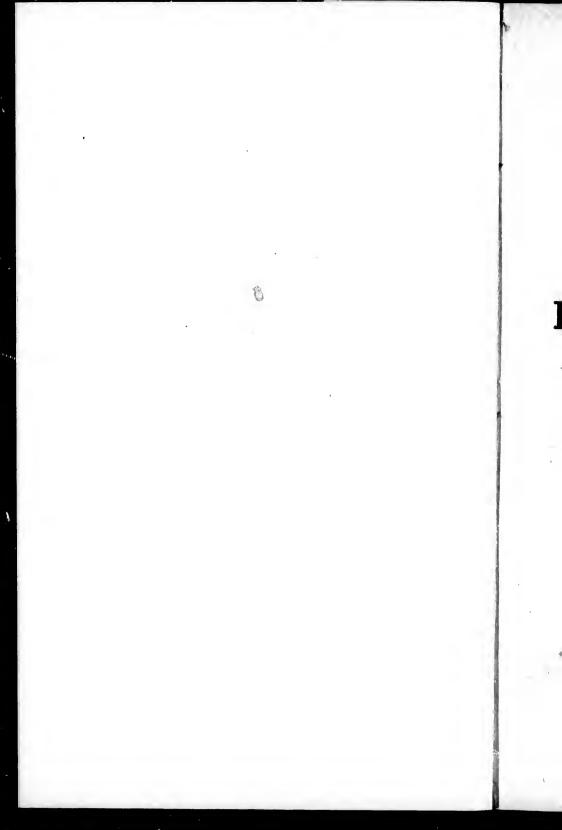

i du odifier une

mage oelure, ı à

32Y

32X

A SIXTH L E T T E R

TOTHE

People of England.

[Price Two Shillings.]

ERRATA.

P. 1. 1. 9. for Interest r. Interests. P. 8. 1. 7. for Empires r. Empire. 1. 15. for their r. the. P. 9. 1. 20. for Manufactures r. Manufacturers. P. 10. 1. 13. for Reputation r. Reparation. P. 12. after oppose her, a Comma. P. 28. 1. 7. after decay a full Stop. 1. 8. after Dwarf dele. 1. 21 for Russia's r. Russias. P. 29. 1. 19. for no r. not. P. 45. 1. 23. for no r. some. P. 49. 1. 14 for this means r. these. P. 53. 1. 4. for establish r. establishing .P. 60. 1. 9. for this means r. there. P. 62. last 1. for your Purchase was not therefore your Purchase. P. 95. 1. 6. for Bleswick r. Sleswick. P. 97 1. 2. for he was r. they were. P. 105. 1. 20. for they had r. had they. P. 109. 1. 18 for Farce r. Face.

It is

OW

And I

The

Printe

A SIXTH LETTER

TO THE

People of England,

ONTHE

Progress of National Ruin;

IN WHICH

It is shewn, that the present Grandeur of France, and Calamities of this Nation, are owing to the Influence of Hanover on the Councils of England.

And I looked, and behold a pale Horse: and his Name that sat on him was Death, and Hell followed with him.

Revelations Chap. vi. Ver. 8.

The SECOND EDITION.

LONDON:

Printed for J. Morgan in Pater-Noster-Row.

rior Sta tior and from nen and

Gov blish

LETTER

TOTHE

People of England.

LETTER VI.

HERE is nothing more firmly impressed by Providence on the Conduct of the World, amidst the various Transactions of Mankind, than that all States shall flourish and be happy, in proportion as they pursue the Dictates of Wisdom, and observe the Laws of Integrity; and that from these alone their genuine and permanent Interest, have originally been derived, and ultimately continued and sustained.

This Truth, the Principles on which all Governments can be advantageously established, will eternally support.

B
This

THIS Truth the Histories of all Ages uniformly and irrefragably demonstrate.

This Truth, the present Calamitous Situation of this ruined Country, too fatally evinces.

EVERY Nation has a certain Portion of Power, which confifts in the Number, Understanding, Unanimity, Application and Virtue of its Inhabitants; together with the Revenues which they can produce, without diminishing their original Stock of Treasure, and oppressing the Means by which it is obtained and preserved.

tl

P

h fe

to

to

th

m

a

cu ju

Over these, every Sovereign Power has an Authority, for the Good of itself and the Community.

EVERY Nation has a distinct Interest, which springs from its peculiar Situation, Occupations of the People in Trades, Manufactures, and Agriculture, and from the Commerce which it beneficially carries on.

It is therefore the Duty of the Sovereign Power, to derive every honorable Advantage tage from the Former, to sustain and encourage the Latter.

For the same Reason that every People has peculiar Interests, resulting from the above Circumstances, there will be some one or more Nations, which from their Situations, Produce, or Pursuits, will be more immediately the Rivals of one another.

It is therefore the indispensable Duty of the supreme Superintendancy, by every laudable Endeavour, to prevent the growing Power of their Rivals.

To perfect this Design, whenever a Nation has not sufficient Strength or Abilities, to preferve an Ascendant over its Livals, it becomes expedient, that Alliances should be formed to obtain that salutary End.

For this Reason, Sovereigns have a right to enter into Treaties with other States, for the sake of national Advantage: In like manner, no State ought to be considered as a Rival to another, but in the particular Circumstances, by which the Latter may be injured by it in its Welfare.

B 2

Nor

Iathe i.

age

ni-

tu-

lly

of Jn-

ind

the

out

ıre, ob-

has

the

est,

on,

Nor can any State be entitled to the Alliance and Affistance of another, unless the Advantage be reciprocal; much less can it lay claim to be supported, when the Success or Ruin of that State, must alike debilitate or undo that by which it is sustained. Interfering in fuch Conjunctures is not to be justified in Sovereigns, whose Authority originally arises from the good, which it is their Duty to obtain for their Subjects.—That the true Equipoife and full Exertion of all these Powers and Duties are attended with extreme Difficulty, is in no Sense to be contested; it is an arduous Task perfectly to preserve, by the Influence of Religion and Laws, a Commercial State, actuated by the prevailing Motive of the Love of Money, from deviating into illiberal Actions, Deceit and Dishonour; it is not less difficult to preserve the different Branches of Trade from clashing in their Motions; and the Persons engaged in them from perfifting in unjustifiable Designs, according to that Propenfity which is too natural to Money-loving Men, of procuring Advantages to themselves, though attended with Injury to their fellow Subjects. It is not a Task easily accomplished, to suppress the Parts of Commerce which are lucrative to the Individuals

O be K ca pl eit fro otl Su fio the qui G_0 anc cer All oth

con

to b

with

Part

n

0

it

s r ed ly

ty

ue

ers if-

t is

the

er-

tive

nto ; it

ent

heir

em

acitu-

Ad-

vith t a

the

the

uals

Individuals engaged in them, and detrimental to the whole Community. It is not an Undertaking of little Difficulty, to restrain Mankind from infringing the Public good, arifing from national Situation, by prefering the Interest of a Rival-State, when it coincides with their own. It is as little to be expected unless it be in Lord Bolingbroke's Vision of a Patriot King, to find a Sovereign or Minister who can discern all these Circumstances so perplexed, and even more difficult to discover either of them, who can be totally restrained from carrying their Ambition, Aversion for other States, Attachments to more favourite Subjects, private Views, or some sinister Pasfion into Execution, however pernicious to the People, they rule and superintend. It requires also a Degree of Understanding, which God has not bequeathed to every one of his anointed or his Ministers, perspicuously to discern the true Interest of the State, in all the Alliances which may be entered into with other Nations.

THE full Effect of national Advantage, considered in its ultimate Perfection, is not to be expected from human Powers; not-withstanding which, by much the greatest Part of those Evils, which subvert a State, is easily eafily prevented, by returning to the first Causes of its Prosperity: This every Government has the right and means of accomplishing, and therefore it never can be neglected, but through Insufficiency of Judgment, Inattention to Public Duty, or some more criminal Design.

THAT England has been remiss in all these Duties, misapplied her Native and acguired Powers, and funk within the last fifty Years into Sloth, Pufillanimity and Dishonor, more precipitately than the other Nations of Europe, is alas! too fatally verified, by the late Conduct of Affairs. That those flagitious Effects have not so enormously prevailed from encreasing Luxury is certain, because in France it has been carried to a much greater Excess than in this Kingdom, where such pernicious Consequences have not followed; fome other Cause must then be searched after, which has operated to beget this degenerate and ruinous State of Things in this Country more effectually than in all others. In Order then to trace the Origin from whence these Misfortunes have sprung, and affign some probable Means by which your absolute Perdition, if you yet dare to exert yourselves in the Preservation of your Rights and

oth
wh
ing
Defi
Eler
Barr
tains port ted H fuffic levice
Fleet

ferve

of the

of no

tı fu

by

ter

1-

d, ıt-

ni-

all

ac-

ifty nor,

is of

the

giti-

ailed

ise in eater

fuch

wed;

d af-

de-

h this thers.

from

, and your exert

Rights

and

and Privileges, may be prevented; it is necessary that I distinguish the natural Advantages peculiar to this Island, the better to explain the Ways by which such enormous Inroad and Havock have been made on your Commerce, Treasure, Liberties and Virtues; how the Constitution has been almost subverted, and your God neglected; in sine, by what Methods you are become a contemn'd and abject People.

BRITAN, furrounded by the Sea, is fecured from Attack in the Manner by which other Nations are to be invaded, and to which Nature has denied that peculiar Blessing; no Armies can march directly to its Destruction; the Winds and Waves, the Elements conspire to form one Part of the Barrier which defends this Island; it contains Inhabitants numerous enough to support itself and its Territories against the united Efforts of the World; it possesses Riches fufficient without Incumbrace, when honestly levied and honourably applied, to fustain its Fleets and Armies, and to supply all Things necessary to uphold its Commerce, and preferve its Felicity and Glory: In consequence of these particular Distinctions, the Interest of no Nation in Europe is so distinctly to be known, known, nor to be purfued with equal Facility and Success.

It enjoys those peculiar Advantages which Xenophon has remarked were wanting to render Athens impregnable; Athens, says that consummate Judge and true Patriot, possesses the Empires of the Seas; yet such is the Situation of that City, by being connected with the Continent, whilst she extends her Naval Expeditions to distant states, her Enemies ravage and lay Weste her Territories by Land Incursions; where as did the Athenians inhabit an Island, and with that possess the Dominion of the Seas, they would then unite their Power of invading other Realms, and preserving

ti

of

ef

re

th

Pe

pli

wl

you Tv

rife

fac

felv

dod

 T_{W}

you

and

me

was gag

These Advantages denied to the Athenians, Heaven has given to you, together with the Power of preserving them; by what Arts they have been rendered ineffectual, by what malignant Power they have been blasted, and you humbled to the present deplorable Condition in which you are, let me without Disguine fairly lay before you. To effectuate this as it ought to be, I must recur to those Times when James the second was exil'd themselves from hostile Inroad.

exil'd from these Realms; it will be necessary also to remind you, what were the honorable Dispositions of Englishmen, the happy State and Condition of your Commerce and Taxes at that Hour.

AT that time, the Love of Liberty and their Constitution, truly animated the Natives of England to oppose the Usurpation of unlawful Power in the Sovereign and his Ministers; then it was, the Zeal for the established Faith, inspired our Bishops resist every Attempt upon your Religion? then it was you were a brave and honourable People! then it was that two Millions supplied the Annual Expence in time of War, which is now rifen to twelve! then it was you paid only Four Shillings Taxes in every Twenty which you spent, which are now risen to Fourteen! then it was your Manufactures and Husbandmen laboured for themfelves and their Country only, which are now doom'd to toil Fourteen Hours out of every Twenty, for infatiate Germans! then it was you reapt the Fruits of your own Industry and Commerce unmolested, in the Enjoyments of them by H—n Harpies! then it was your Revenues and Selves were unmortgaged, and Laws established, which in Fact made

--

ch to iot; ich onex-

tant afte ere-

and the wer

ving

ians, the Arts by

olastt det me

To recur l was exil'd made you a free People! fuch was your blissful State when James was driven hence, and William and Mary mounted the Throne of their Father, and of those Realms; a Situation which no other State in Europe could posses, because not blessed with such natural Advantages.

By what fatal Influence have all those happy Circumstances proved abortive of the expected Blessings? From what Cause have the Sands of this Constitution run with accelerated Motion down to its Destruction? Why is the Reputation of your Injuries become now more necessary than at that Moment when the Glass was last turned? Wherefore has the Constitution of this Realm, which by more than Sysiphean Labor was then rolled to the Summit of national Felicity by your Fathers, returned with such Impetuosity and Weight, and crush'd you their Progeny?

ALAS! with all the Advantages of those Circumstances, which your Fathers then possessed, with all the Bleffings which were expected from the Revolution; there was blended one particular Mischief, which like a Particle of some contagious Disease, insected the Constitution, and which by insensible Degree

W C B C C F

Degrees has fo fatally prevailed, that there remains but the Exertion of the most sudden and vigorous Means, to prevent it from becoming totally irrecoverable.

With the Seeds of Liberty there were then fown the Tares of Destruction, which have fince fprang up, and choaked the Harvest of your Expectations; in fact, William brought with him a Love for the Dutch, whom he quited superior to that for the English to whom he came; he ungratefully neglected the Interest of that People, who had presented him with Three Kingdoms, in preference of Dutch Bogs and Marshes; and the pernicious Councils of the Stadtholder, directed the Defigns of the King of England; from that Fountain, the Stream of your Misfortunes has begun, from thence it has augmented in its Courfe, and continually flowed with still more troubled Waters; it was he that attached you to the Evils of the Continent, and first deprived you of the Bleffings which God has given you; to this Cause it will be proved, that your present Calamities and the present Grandeur of France, are wholly to be attributed.

 C_2

Nor

eexwaslike ected ifible egree nd

of 1a-

1ld

ral

ap-

ex-

ave cce-

Vhy

wo

hen

has

by

lled

your

and

those

pof-

Nor were the happy Circumstances of this Land, the only Blessing which attended it at the coming of William to the Throne; the Monarch of the French, your natural Rivals, was then engaged and occupied in Pursuits the most favourable to the Welfare of England; which had they not been interrupted by the predilection of that Dutch King of England, in Favour of the United Provinces, would in all human probability have terminated in the Ruin of France, with Respect to the only Point in which you ought to oppose her Commerce, and placed you in the Situation to which you ought only to as-

AT the time of William's coming to the Crown, Lewis the XIV intoxicated with lufcious Draughts of Glory and Conquest, had spread the same Propensity and Passions thro' the whole of the French Nation; universal Empire was the darling Object of his Wishes, Arms the sole Occupation in Honour and Esteem, and Commerce deemed a mechanic and base Employment had scarce obtained any Degree of national Consideration among them.

Now

En

Ho

Wo

ren

her

rest

Ho

this

but fam

ver

a W Fra

Pro

fron

ving

fure

pern

Dec.

are

Con

wou

in th

Now it was that England should have indulged this Propenfity, by not oppofing the Arms of France; but we had then exiled an English and received a Dutch King: Men of Honour, true Patriotism, and sound Policy, would have feized this Happy Opportunity to render France less formidable, by favouring her Designs, and not like Beasts of the Forrest, thought of humbling her by Dint of Horns, Fangs, Teeth and brute Force only; this was the Duty of an English Monarch, but the Title of Statholder being united in the fame Person, and Dutch Love prevailing over the King of England and English Welfare, a War was undertaken by England against France, with a View to preserve the United Provinces and Defend the House of Austria from the Arms of the grand Monarch. ving thus declared that this was a Dutch Meafure and destructive to England's Prosperity, permit me to affign my Inducements to fuch Declaration; after which, if the Reasons which were then offer'd as Motives to that War are proved to be entirely Groundless, and Confequences intirely propitious to England, would have flow'd from her being inactive in that War, certainly you will no longer hefitate one Moment, to conclude that Willow

of \mathbf{d}

;

aļ

iņ

re

ch

:cd

ity ith

ght

i in af-

the

luſ– had

hro'

erfal

hes,

and chained

ong

liam laid the first Foundation of your Ruin, and thence derived the Epithet of Immortal; for alas! the Advantages which accompanied his being crowned, are they not long fince vanished? Tho' the End of those Evils which he entailed upon you, the most penetrating Eye can not perceive.

THE Motives given to the World for this Confe 'racy with the Emperor and the United Provinces, were the supporting the Protestant Interest, the Liberties of Germany, and preferving the Ballance of Power in Europe, Names of feductive Influence on a thoughtless unenquiring Multitude, at that time apt to create a Reverence in their Minds, an ardent Zeal and Alacrity towards supporting those who were imagined to be oppressed in fuch important Articles, as Liberty and Religion; for what is there amongst Mankind which deserve to be considered more facred, than the bestowing Liberty amongst your fellow Creatures; the greatest Blessing of this World, and preserving their Religion, which is to obtain even greater, the Blessings of immortal Happiness; what more natural to uncorrupted human Kind, than to be seduced by them, to oppose the Designs of their Rivals, by a counter Ballance of Power, whofe

of

th

wa va im no Na at no

Ini

the

Shi

Mo the reig ceiv hav pref wor laft

But

the

Hel

Ruin, ortal; anied ce va-which cating or this Uni-E Promany, on Euon a t that Minds, pportpreffed y and Manmore nongst lefsing ligion, Bless-n to be gns of Cower, whose whose Conceptions go no farther than that of Force and military Opposition.

IT was no wonder then that the Falacy of those Motives remained undiscovered by the Herd of human Nature, cherished as they were also by the Sectaries of England, the invariable Foes of your Constitution; but it is impossible that William and his Ministers did not intimately know, that those respected Names had no Truth belonging to them at that Conjuncture; they knew they were no more than false Lights hung out by their Iniquities, like those on Sea Coasts, to draw the unsuspecting Mariner to be deceived and Ship wrecked.

If William confidered those as the real Motives to the War, must he not have been the dullest of all English Kings who had reign'd till that time? If his Ministers conceived them in that Light, must not those have been the most stupid of all who ever presided in a Nation's Council? the first unworthy of a Mayoralty at St Maw's, and the last unequal to the Conduct of a Vestry: But their Inducements were of another Kind, the Dutchman to be indulged in his Love to Holland and in his Aversion to France, and Careless Careless of England, gave his Ministers full Leave to plunder and undo you, by leading you into that War; and they in Return, indulged those Propensities in William, to enjoy an uninterrupted Power of Pillaging their Fellow Subjects; whether this mutual Acquiescence between King and Ministers ceased after his Death, will in the Sequel be discovered, and if it has yet come to an End; but let me examine each of them separately.

Could William in his Alliance against France, be said to have entered into that Confederacy, to sustain the protestant Interest, with a Potentate the most bigotted of all Catholic Princes, and who was at that time persecuting his Subjects in Hungary and other Parts of his Dominions, endeavouring to extirpate the protestant Religion from amongst them; if Religion operated in William towards this Treaty, must it not be to oppress rather than support the Protestant Cause?

In like Manner, let me shew you in what Way the Liberties of Germany were to be protected by this Alliance; what are the Ideas which accompany that sacred Term in the Hearts of German Princes;

and

21

th

al

to

Su

1110

an

the

Ai

fur dic W

all

En

Ele

wh

Ho

fca

Blc

all

avo

Ide

mai

and the boa

it is

and

try and what is truly to be understood by it in ters this Confederacy: The Liberty to embroil by all Europe four or five Times a Century, Reto shed the Blood of thousands of innocent am, Subjects to make one Man Emperor of Gerging many, who probably in the Eye of Truth tual and Heaven, may be more worthless than sters the meanest which is facrificed to his el be Ambition. The Liberty to devour the Treaand; fure of England profusely wasted on this riitely. diculous Event, fo uninteresting to your Welfare; to fustain the most complicate of ainst all Combinations, the Constitution of the that Empire; and to afford the Liberty to needy In-Electors and little despotic Princes, around ed of whose Sterile Territories an English Race that Horse may gallop in an Hour, a Sovereignty ngary scarce large enough for Pigmies, to sell the en-Blood of their enflaved fellow Creatures to Reall the Nations of the Earth, the venal and opeavowed Foes of human Nature. Such are the must Ideas which attend Liberty amongst the Gerrt the mans. Such Liberties you then confederated and squandered Millions to support. Are these the rational Pursuits of Englishmen, who ou in boast of Freedom? Is this the Liberty which it is becoming you to fustain by your Blood and Treasure? the infamous Liberty of paul-try Princes, to fell the Lives of their enflaved Subjects?

were at are facred nces;

and

Subjects? Yet in Defence of such Liberties alone, you have been slaughtered and exhausted, from that Time to this portentous Hour. Painful Reslection to all but German Souls, who cannot feel for the Distresses of their fellow Creatures.

LET me now lay before you, to what Purpose the Motives of supporting Protestantism operated in our Alliances with the United Provinces. With Respect to that particular, is it not notoriously remarkable, that the Dutch, however zealously Protestant they affected to be in Europe, were at that very Minute by Public Encouragement proftituting the Christian Faith, in Favor of pecuniary Acquisition, and disavowing that very God in Japan, whose pure Worship they pretended to be fustaining in their native Lands? that even in their own Dominions they tolerated every Religion, Pagan and Jewish, as well as every ridiculous Sect which hath fprung like poisonous Exhalations from the Corruption of the Christian Faith; that whilst they were pretending to shed their Blood, and waste their Wealth in the Cause of their Saviour, and the Protestant Religion, they were in their Lives and Commerce renouncing every Dictate which he inculcates, and felling every Instrument li fu te A te to all to

th

Lil have Eye ject of true to Por Re of I

Au

fide Min ates prev thef Instrument of Death, to enable Catholics to support their Cause, and slaughter those Protestants with whom these Dutchmen were in Alliance. Such was their Zeal for the Protestant Cause, such Christians you were duped to defend by that Confederacy; was it not rather a Protection to Men who protested against all Religion, than to those who endeavoured to support any.

Tell me then, do not those Sounds of Liberty and Religion at present appear to have been Incantations, used to fascinate the Eyes, mislead the Understandings, and subject the Interest of this Country to the Service of Dutch and Germans? such then being the true State of the above Motives, it remains to be examined, whether the Ballance of Power could have offered more coercive Reasons for actuating the King and Ministry of England, to unite with the Dutch and Austrians in Opposition to France.

This Ballance of Power then is to be confidered by an English King, by an English Minister, and by yourselves only, as it operates to effect some national Advantage, or prevent some national Evil. Unattended with these Considerations, the Ballance of Power

D 2

;0

exous nan s of Purtifin nited ular, the y afvery uting miary

God
ended that rated rell as g like ion of were were waste viour, ere in every every

W

ai M

th

ha

N

de

de

Co

ha

Fr

poi

of Fr

wo

lan

En

to a

to

fuc

Pre

to

to

ado

do

Wa

Cor

agai

is no more the Concern of this Island than of Japan; Proximity in this Instance, offering no Reason for Alliance: Nor of more Consequence, whether in Europe or in Asia; whether to have opposed the Tartars in Favor of the Chinese, or the French in Favor of Germans; what Claim can Austria or the Dutch have to your Assistance, if no Advantage is to be derived from it, and no Evil prevented? much less can it possess a Title to be supported, when by that Assistance you must be exhausted, and by neglecting it you would have become the most potentand most flourishing State of Europe.

Even at that very Time when William facrificed this Land, on the Alar of the United Provinces, Holland was as truly the Rival of England as France, by her extensive Commerce and Riches; and as justly the Object of English Jealousy: At least not many Years before in the Reign of Charles II. it manifestly appears to be so; but to comply with the present Way of Thinking, and the Consequences which have followed since that Time, let me allow that France was then as it is at present, the most formidable and immediate Rival of this Nation; the sole State whose Power, Policy and Arms, England has a just a just Cause to dread, and whose Influence it was then chiefly concerned to counteract and suppress; ought it then to have been one Moment's Debate, much less a Resolution, that Austria and the United Provinces should have been sustained, at the Expence of this Nation, when France must have been rendered less your Rival, and less formidable, by declining to oppose her Arms, and enter into Confederacy against her? whatever might have been the Fate of those two Powers, could France have been a reasonable Object of Opposition, otherwise than as it stood in the Way of English Welfare? And if the Success of the French Arms over Germany and Holland, would have conspired to the Interest of England; and the Success of Holland, and the Emperor would in no Sense have contributed to aggrandize this State; why was the First to be opposed, and the Latter sustained at fuch immense Expence? for to introduce the Prejudices of Kings born in other Lands, and to rule over flavish Subjects as Motives to the Conduct of a Free People, is to adopt the Maxims of Despotism, and undo yourselves; to involve this Nation in that War, squander Millions in supporting the Confederacy, indulge the Hate in William against Lewis; what was it but to permit *

Caprice

ng
feneof erthe anEvil
e to you

you

nost

an

the the nany II. it mply I the that en as im-

State d has just

Caprice or Passion to defeat the Essorts of Reason, Folly to misguide and hoodwink the Steps of Wisdom, and the Brute to preside over the Man.

But it is necessary to evince the Truth of what I have just delivered; that the Confederacy of England, with the Emperor and the Dutch, was at that Time void of every estential Principle on which an Alliance can justly be founded, and infinitely pernicious to this Kingdom, by opposing the Arms of Lewis the Fourteenth.

h

D

no

an

en

no

bec

ed

un

Ar

we be

Un

LET me then explain what would have been the Consequence of France prevailing over the Dutch and Austrians; and England not engaged in the Quarrel having indulged that prevailing Foible of Universal Empire in Lewis the Fourteenth.

THE first Advantage which would have been derived to this Nation, during such a War between the French and the Dutch, would have been, that whilst those two States were mutually distressing each others Trade by Captures, the English would have enjoyed without Interruption almost the whole Commerce of Europe: This Consideration as it offered

of

nk

·e-

of

the

ef-

can

eus

ave

ling land

lged

pire

nave

ch a

etch,

tates rade

oyed

om-

as it

fered

offered an invincible Argument for England's not uniting in the War with Holland, fo it proved a powerful Cause in William's Heart, for linking this Nation to all the Disadvantages of his more favourite Dutch; he could not bear that England should enjoy the Advantage of a Dutch Quarrel with France; he hated the People who had so generously made him their Sovereign; and therefore determined that it should enjoy no superior Advantage from that Conjuncture; but that the Dutch and English, fince the Former could not be exempt, should at least equally share the Calamities of an interrupted Commerce, and be robbed of the Bleffings of Peace, by entering into Alliance.

THE next Advantage arising from England's not engaging in that Confederacy would have been, it would have remained without encreasing Taxes, unmortgaged and unexhausted for Alien Interests, and its Manufactures unoppressed by new Imposts; thus far the Arguments for a Neutrality at that Time were strongly in our Favour.

In Opposition to these it will undoubtedly be urged, that without our Assistance, the United Provinces and Germany would have been been over run, that England would foon have felt the like Influence, and have been subdued by the Arms of France; that this as an Evil infinitely superior to any temporary Advantage, ought to have born down every Confideration of less Moment. Let me examine then if these Assertions are attended with more Truth than the Defence of the Protestant Cause and German Liberties; and whether if the Dutch and Austrians had been subdued, France would have been a more formidable Rival, and this Kingdom in greater Danger of a Conquest by the Arms of Lewis than before; and whether the Ballance of Power in Europe, would have been turned by fuch an Event more strongly against this Nation, the only Confideration worthy of an English King and English People.

HAD Lewis then been unchecked in his Career of Conquest, and England remained enjoying the Blessings of Peace, and uninterrupted Commerce; had the United Provinces sallen the Victims of his Arms, what would this Nation have lost, or Lewis gained by this Increase of Dominion? Or in what Manner would the Ballance of Power have been altered, respecting the People of England?

Would

fe

Would the Commerce of Holland have encreased under a despotic Power, and become more the Rival of England in that particular than before? Would a People infatuated with republican Principles, have tarried under the Dominion of an absolute Monarch as conquered Subjects? Would not the Rich have retired to this Kingdom with their Effects, and the others, as a Resolution was then formed, have drowned their Lands, and by their Ships have transfered themselves to Batavia and the Cape of Good Hope? in which Situation they might have become a more lucrative Object of Commerce to this Nation, than they could have been whilst established in Europe.

But let it be supposed that Nation would have remained and traded under the despotic Power of France, as a conquered People; what Branch of Commerce could we have lost by that Alteration? Did the Dutch ever in Preference to us, purchase a Commodity from England, which might be bought cheaper in France? And if the French had prohibited all Commerce with England, could Holland have been obliged to trade with France against its Interest? Would not the Manufactures of this Country then untaxed and to be rendered

 \mathbf{E}

fo

DULD

avć ub-

an

very xa-

ded

the

and had

n a dom

rms

Bal-

been

ainst

orthy

n his ained

nter-

inces

vould

d by what have

Eng-

fo cheap, have found their Way all over the World, even into the United Provinces, in Spite of all the Prohibition of France? And should not we have become the Carriers and Venders of our Commodities, to those Places and People where the Dutch had before transported them, and have added at least the Profit of Freight to that of manufacturing? By this would not our Sailors have been encreafed in Number, and the genuine Source of Power in England, become more formidable? And would not that drown'd and sterile Condition, from which the Dutch had emerged by freeing themselves from Spanish Despotism, have again returned, by becoming the conquered Provinces of France? Are not these Effects as natural, as it is for Waters to feek the lowest Ground in their Meanders? And lastly, was not Holland at that Time the Rival of England, in the most important View, our Trade? was it not our Interest then to fee it humbled?

of

CC

in

of

R

th

Such then being the most probable Confequences, what could France have obtained by this Conquest? Sea-Ports she had already more favourably situated on the Channel, to annoy our Trade by Privateers to extend her own, and to make Descents on this Island; besides

the

in

ind

and

ore

east 1g?

en-

irce

miind

nad iifb

ing

not to rs?

the

ant.

ien.

n-

ed

dy

to

ler l;

les

besides those in the Mediteranean, and at that Time not half employed; an Army also must have been maintained, to have held the Turbulence of Dutchmen in Subjection, and the Dykes preserved to keep the Land from drowning; the Expence of which being enormous, would have induced the French either to have neglected the Latter, and overwhelmed the Country, or exhausted her Finances, and employed her Troops in preserving what could not under a despotic Head have half supplied, that which was necessary on such Occasion and for such Designs.

Thus then would not the Conquest of the United Provinces, have free'd you from your Commercial Rival, and weakened the Power of that which was such by Situation? and consequently would not the Ballance of Power as it respected this Land, have become more in your Favor.

THERE is not perhaps a more fallacious Opinion in political Affairs, than that Extent of Dominion creates an Extent of Power; a Review of the Fate of all past and present Empires of vast Territory, conquered from their Neighbours; evince the contrary of that Observation; ruit mole sua, is true of all large large Empires; as well as of the Roman; it is indeed true also, that there is a certain Extent of Dominion, below which a State cannot arrive at the full Effect of Power, which a Government may acquire: It is equally true also, that beyond this it again falls into Impotence and Decay like the Animal Body of a Dwarf: in the first Instance, the Limbs are not vigorous enough to answer to the animating Power which it contains; and in the fecond, like an enormous Body, where the Soul is not sufficient to actuate its Bulk; in Truth the Subjects are more happy, and more free under a State, between the two Extremes, than under either of the others, even though the Government in the original Plan of each, should be equally Despotic; and the Sovereign is more powerful than that of a vast Dominion; the Subjects of the venal Prince of Hesse-Cassel, and of the Empress of all the Russia's, are equally under the Dominion of despotic Princes, with those of France; and yet the Subjects of the Former from his contracted Territories, and of the Second from her extended, are beyond Comparison in a more arbitrary Condition. In a little State the Individuals are oppressed and harraffed to find Taxes and Revenues, for their needy Masters, or fold to other Sovereigns

in

W

tr

n

ft

P

fu

ry in wereigns as the Mercenary Bands of Property, ; it is to enrich their Tyrant's Coffers: In great xtent Empires it is necessary they must be held in innot ich a more abject Submission, lest Distance from true the Court, and the want of immediate Su-Impervifal, should create an Inclination to reody of fuse their Taxes, and excite an Occasion of Rebellion; which Latter must be levied with imbs great Gentleness through Fear, lest otherwise e anin the Oppression may not restrain them from taking Arms: One is too little to possess much vhere Bulk; Force, the Other too large to draw and exert those Powers which belong to the middle , and two State of Empire: Little Stateshowever free even in their Constitutions, like Animals in a thers, Cage, though not chained, are encircled and iginal continually running against their Confines, ootic; in the least Excursion of Liberty or Power; n that which for ever tell them they do no enjoy ie vetrue Liberty: Whilst the Sovereigns of large Em-Dominions, though despotic to excess, canunder those not put in Exertion their whole Force from Forthe Impossibility of attending to all Circumnd of stances and availing themselves of every Power: Like the Waters of a River too difeyond fused, it loses that Depth and Power of carlition. rying great Things, which it possessed by beressed ing circumscribed within more moderate Lienues, mits; this want of Power then that attends er Sor even

reignş

even a vast Empire, the Sovereign legally in. herits, is exceffively increased by an extended Dominion formed by Conquest. Let me now imagine that the Monarch of France, had overrun all Germany, and subdued it to his Arms; would not his Conquests have created him still new and more formidable Enemies, by the recent Extent of his Boundaries? instead of Germans, would not the Turk, Pole, Russian, Dane and Swede, have become the jealous Neighbours of his encreasing Empire? Would they have beheld his extended Domain with folded Arms and Inattention? nay had he conquered all these, even to the Shores of China; in what Sense would it have increased his Powers against England? Would not the Conquest of Germany, and the Support of it, have employed his Subjects, Riches, and Powers, and witheld his Views entirely from the Objects of emproving Commerce, in extending which alone he can be effectually the Rival of England. France then by stretching her Dominion over all Germany, would only have weakened her Power, as it respects this Island; Lands indeed may be subdued by a Conqueror, but will not his original Subjects be impoverished by the Conquest? Will the Minds of a warlike Nation tamely acquisce qui pec froi Ger for Fra to I her mies Nat Adv her

peop

the I Brute Subjection toward those Matie mies from tion contil his neighbor to the subject of t

in.

ided

me

ince,

it to have able

oun-

urk.

be-

real-

s ex-

lnathefe,

Senfe ainst

Ger-

oyed held

emhich

Eng-

bmi-

nave this

y a Sub-

Will

acifce quiesce in Obedience to their new Lord, especially where innate Aversion has descended from Father to Son, through all preceding Generations, as it hath through the Germans for the French; by what Means would France have held that Country in Subjection, to prevented the Insurrections and Revolt of her new Subjects, and Attacks of new Enemies? would she have entirely ruined the Nations which compose that Empire? What Advantage would she then have derived from her Conquest by the Acquisition of an unpeopled Country?

Would the French Monarch have quitted the Delights of France, and refided amongst Brutes in Germany, to hold that People in Subjection? And if he had chosen that Expedient, would the Natives of his hereditary Kingdoms remained stedfast in their Fidelity towards him, who tho' the best of Subjects to those Princes, whom they believe pursuing the Nation's Welfare, are still the declared Enemies of those who seek their Ruin? Learn then from them and their Parliaments what a Nation ought to pursue! Had the Conqueror continued the same Laws and Constitution to his new Subjects, and fent Viceroys to govern in his Stead, must he not have supported a vast

C

n

tł

R

ar

lie

cl

an

m

ha

of fer

on

an

wl ma

nea

M

ons

her

 E_n

W

vast Army of his own Subjects, to hold them in Duty to their new Sovereign? For furely he would not have trusted the Natives to bind themselves in Slavery to a foreign Power they detest; that fingular Proceeding se ms to be referved for the Inhabitants of this Island only. Would not then fuch a Conduct have depopulated his native Land, and exhausted his Treasure? and at no great Distance, Might not those Viceroys like the Bashaws and Nabobs of the East, supposing he could have defended his Conquest from his new Neighbours; become independant of their Sovereign? and in the Reign of a weak King, or Conduct of a weak Minister in France, have declared for themselves? and thus uniting all Germany under one Head, have generated a new Constitution and seperate Interest? the only Way by which that Empire can become a potent Enemy to France, or a fit Ally for England.

In like Manner during this Time of Conquest, and reigning over Germany, could the French occupied in the Affairs of that Possession, have effectually become the commercial Rivals of this Nation? would not all Attention to that Object have been neglected? Such must have been the Effect of indulging French

them

furely

o bind

Power

ms to

Island

t have

austed

tance,

1 shaws

could

s new

their King,

rances

ıs uni-

ve gee Inte-

impire

, or a f Con-

ıld the

Poffef-

nercial

Atten-

Such

ulging

French

French Thirst after Universal Empire, in that Monarch, with Respect to England: Conquest could have added no Fleet to invade your Coast, and even his Land Forces, by being more engaged, must have been virtually diminished also in their Insluence on this Island; the maritime States of Denmark, Sweden and Russia, would have been more easily affisted by you, than Germany can be; and Spain and Portugal, our natural and lucrative Allies, jealous of French Power, become more closely united with England, in Commerce and in Friendship.

In talking of the Balance of Power amongst Nations; that figurative Expression has ever been taken from the Idea of a Pair of Scales, where equal Weights in each, preferve the Beam upright; but that is not the only Image of ballancing Power, there is yet another as analogous and just the Steelyard; which by being extended to a great Length, may be made to counterbalance any Weight near the Center of its Motion; and in this Manner, France in stretching her Dominions by Conquest, would have countervailed her own natural Importance at Home, whilst England at Ease, and in Peace, increasing in Wealth, Empress of the Ocean, her Taxes eafy,

m

til

w

the

hi

fui

of

nu

fin

the

fhe hav

hay

Ele

fect

Sail

and

Lar

lect

you

vere

had

invi

rag

and

Nat

the

eafy, and her Subjects unmortgaged, must have become the Dread of French Ambition: and Arbitress of Europe. Such it appears to me would have been the natural Effects of Things from the justest Comparison I candraw, between Events which have happened: in fimilar Conjunctures. But a foreign Kingblasted all the blooming Expectation of that: favorable Occasion; Dutch Interest vanquished that of England, Aversion to Lewis drew us to oppose France in her Chimera of Universal Empire, and formed the first Links. of that Chain, which hath ance so fatally encreafed, and bound you to all the Curies of being united with the Continent, under the feductive Terms of Protestant Interest, 'German Liberty, and Balance of Power. There is yet another View of our Confederacy with the Dutch and the Emperor, which merits Confideration; it is what might have proved the probable Confequence of this Alliance in conquering France: but as during this Dutchman's Reign, your Lives and Money were ingloriously squandered without Victory, I purposely omit it till the Transactions in the Reign of Queen Ann are laid before you.

DURING the Reign of this Dutch King, died the lamented Duke of Gloucester, the most most afflicting Catastrophe with which Heaven till that Time, had visited this Isle; from what a Prospect of Felicity was this Kingdom then cut off; had the Almighty defigned him to rule this Land, what immense Treafures you would have possessed, what Deluges of English Blood had been unlavished, what numberless Subjects had been spared, who have fince fattened the Eagles of Germany with their Gore; what Floods of Tears already fined and still to be poured forth, would then have been prevented; Ministers could not have forificed you to the Interest of German Electors, and Party had been extinct in perfect Union; ye had laboured and spread your Sails, ye had fown and reapt for yourselves, and for an English King alone; the Voice of Lamentation and mourning for England negdected and undone, had been unheard in your Streets; the Interest of you and your Sovereign, the Object of your and his Wishes had been the same; your Honour had been inviolate, your Faith unbroken, your Courage unabated by Corruption, Effeminacy and Sloth; ye had been revered amongst the Nations, God and Religion had reigned over your Actions, and the Constitution of the Realm remained untainted and entire.

F 2

OF

ng, the

ust

ion:

of

canned:

ing

hat:

an-

wis:

inks

en-

Ter-

e is

with.

erits

ved

e in

vere

, I

the

1.

Or these Bleffings you were then deprived. Heaven in Wrath against Englishmen unmindful of the Blifs which it had bestowed them, by indulging a Dutch King with pursuing Dutch Interests, to the undoing of themselves and Country, just Punishment to their Sins, fnatched this precious Being to itself, and the illustrious House of Hanover was seated on the Throne of those Kingdoms. William conquered by the Man he hated, having chained you to continental Interests, lavished immense Sums of English Treasure, on German and Dutch Measures, mortgaged you for ten Millions of Money, and spread Corruption on all De, coes of Men, was now fummoned to Answer for his Sins, which as the Effect of them still continues vigoroully operating to your undoing, it may be prefumed that Heaven did not lightly punish the ungrateful Offender, Ann ascending the Throne without Issue, and in Consequence of the Act of Settlement, the Kingdom was divided into two Parties, during her whole Reign. One Side imagined that as no Precaution had been taken to procure from the House of Hanover, a Renunciation of its German Dominions, that in Consequence of that Neglect, every Quarrel

in

in

er

ar

W

 \boldsymbol{E}

th P

F

w. du ali

be

to

ſlа

ge

no

be

gli

an

ing

ing

M

an

ved.

unbe-

Ling

ıdo-

l in this

ious

rone by u to ums

utch

ns of

rees

rior

con-

ng, it

ghtly

Issue,

nent,

rties,

ined

pro-

nun-

it in arrel

in

in Germany would involve you in War, to the endless wasting of your Blood and Wealth, and the Neglect of English Welfare, till it would conclude in your Ruin; and notwithstanding a Provision was made by P-t, that England should never engage in a War on that Account, these Men knew that one P—t frequently abrogated the Acts of a Former, and particularly when the King who chuses his Ministers, has a Mind to produce fuch an Alteration; they were convinced also that German Rapaciousness was never to be fated, whilst any Thing remains for them to devour; that being bred Despotic, they are Enemies to Liberty, and love none but flavish Subjects; they believed also that the Danger of converting the Kingdom to the Catholic Religion, by the Return of the Stuarts, was not an Object to be dreaded equal with your being chained to German Interests.

On the other Hand the Hanoverian Englishmen trembled for the Protestant Cause, and all the Sectaries were eternally trumpeting the Blessings which must attend the coming of the House of Hanover, the Presbyterian Messiah; and that the Scarlet Whore, Popery and Slavery, Fire and Faggot, must most certainly

60

m

F

th

th

of

po

th

on

the

wh

Ste

Du

the

hav

on

the

ma

in

Co ter

mo tag

TIC

tainly be the inseperable Attendants of the return of the House of Stuart.

What Evils a Stuart on the Throne of England would have produced, can be but a speculative Consideration at present; however it may be perfectly discerned what are the Blessings which came with a North-East Wind from Germany, and the Effects of them were never more conspicuous than at this unparallel'd Moment.

As these two Parties were then violent in terms; Opposition to each other, rather than the Nations Welfare, actuated both of them; like a Ship between violent and opposing Winds, this State was equally distressed on all Sides; till at length the Hanoverian Party prevailing, this Kingdom was again linked to German Welfare, a War was begun, and that Ruin continued, which had been so fatally commenced in the preceding Dutch Reign.

Besides this a Similarity of Defigns cooperated to produce the Measures which were undertaken, the Interests of two Families which probably cared but little for each other at the Bottom; it was that of Marlborough, borough, and that of Brunswick; the Former made illustrious by its own Actions and Deferts in War, the Latter aggrandized by your Fathers presenting it with the Crowns of those Realms; however the Establishment of the Latter, the Ambition, Avarice and Glory of the Former, were equally concerned, and equally Active, in declaring and continuing this War against Lewis, which was carried on during the Reign of Queen Ann.

It was the Business of Hanover to support the Germans and Dutch against the French; who were supposed to be in the Interest of the Stuarts: In like Manner, it is probable the Duke and Duchess of Marthorough to enrich themselves, and encrease their Honors, would have thought it most advantageous to carry on the War, though it had been to oppose the coming of the Saviour of Mankind, as it may be presumed their Views of Exaltation in this World, operated as effectually as any Considerations of a Future, and with the Interests of this Pair, that of the Minister was most intimately united.

In Consequence of this Union of Advantages, so pernicious to England, the chimerrical Design of Universal Empire, was again opposed;

re-

e of ut a ever the East s of n at nt in ther h of ppo-

rian gain be-

had ling

gns nich miach

gh,

b

Ci

Si

W

te

th

ot

k

ar

ha

to

R

Con

th

ou

in

fit

 $\mathbf{E}_{\mathbf{i}}$

In

G

lai

pii

opposed; and the most, if not the only effectual Method of making War Advantagioufly to England was greatly neglected; had we then employed our Men, Money, and Maritime Force, in driving the French from their Settlements in Afia, Africa, and America, their Source of Commerce had been dried up, and their Sea-Ports rendered useless; and in such a Situation the Design of rivaling us in Trade, had been totally eradicated; neither that nor any Nation however advantageously situated their Sea-Ports may be, can extend a Commerce, whe the Means of Trading are cut off, and certainly France would never have thought of building a formidable Navy, to protect a Trade which could not exist, and which Fleet must have been uscless through Want of Sailors.

This only Method of procuring Grandeur to England, was grievously neglected, by Means of the Marlborough Interest, and through a Series of pernicious Conquest in Europe, we squandered immense Sums, and encreased the national Debt to sifty Millions, by affisting the Dutchand Germans, and opposing that Frenzy in Lewis XIV. so propitious to English Welfare. In Consequence of this, our Trade instead of being extended, was oppressed and rom 4mebeen useof riradivever may Ieans rance ı forvhich have ndeur by and st in and lions,

pppo-

itious

this,

was effed

efa

nta-

had

oppressed by Taxes, and the French at length cured of their romantic Folly, began to see that Commerce only can give Riches and Strength to a People already fo numerous; which Manner of thinking hath fince generated in them Opinions diametrically opposite to the Former; they are convinced that great Extent of Dominion, added to the present, would enfectle their Energy, as it hath all other States; hence Manufactures, Commerce, Agriculture, and encreasing Colonies, have taken Place of Universal Empire in their Minds, and their chief Attention fince that Time, hath been vigorously and propitiously applied to encrease those Objects, and to consider the Rhine even in many Parts, too distant a Boundary for Gallic Welfare; thus by the Conquests of Marlborough, Lewis was not only perniciously check'd in his Advances to the Conquest of Germany, but more pernicioully diverted from that Pursuit, and turned into others, which have fince proved exquifitely more fatal to this Kingdom, than the Efforts of his Arms could ever have proved. In this Manner the Foundation of their Grandeur and of your undoing, was firmly laid, by turning their Thoughts from Empire to Trade, and neglecting England, for Germany and Holland. There are I know many many People who still imagine the Duke of Marlborough, would have freed you from your Rival and your Fears in every Sense, if Peace had not been concluded by a Change of the Ministry; whether a better Peace could have been made by those who concluded that, it is not my Purpose to examine in this Place; but certainly it will be made evident, that a War continued on the Terms this was carried on, tho' the General had been annually crowned with Laurels, must have terminated more fatally in the Ruin of this People: at least I am certain this must appear to be the Opinion of those Ministers who succeeded in George's Reign, however repugnant they feemed to be to it, or that no Men were ever to perfidiously Enemies to their Country. For disadvantagiously as this Peace was concluded, and however favorable for the continuing the War those Times might be, Seasons infinitely more promising since that Time, for subduing France, have arrived and been totally diffegarded, to the absolute Neglect of English Interests, and in Pursuit of those of Hanover: And this even by those very Men, who contracting Alliances with France, when it was their Duty and your Interest to have united with Spain, and when it was the most practicable of all human things to have reduced her to any Terms, Terms still execrated the Ministers who concluded the Treaty of Utrecht.

ce of your, if

ange

ould

uded

this

dent.

was

nnu-

rmi-

ople:

o be eded

they ever

For'

ided,

g the itely

bdu-

tally

glish

ver :

con-

was

with

le of any

rms,

But let me indulge myself in attempting to discover what might have been the Effects of War, continued at the Time the Peace of Utrecht was concluded; we had then been ten Years in Victory, and not yet got out of Flanders; our Allies had never furnished their Quotas in Men and Money; we had oppressed our Trade and Subjects by Taxes; encreased the national Debt to Fifty Millions, and neglected to drive the French from their Colonies and Settlements. These were the Advantages which we had reaped from the Conquests of Marlborough. The Battle of Malplaquet proved a Victory indeed, but a very destructive Victory to the Army of the English General, as the Loss on the English Side, was much greater than that of France: This gave Reason to suggest that the Progress of Marlborough, though not absolutely opposed, might be greatly retarded by the Duke de Villars, besides as the Hopes of conquering France depended on the Life and Victory of Marlborough alone, except in the fanguine Expectations of Englishmen, how was it certain that he might not have been killed or that he would have continued to conquer, either of which G 2 which his Death or Defeat, would have put an Endto the Conquest of France, Marshal Villars having proved that he was superior to Prince Eugene in Generalship, second in military Knowledge to the Duke, the Campaign after Marlborough quitted the Command.

This Affair of Conquest then was exceedingly problematical taken in this Light, and though every Englishman was possessed with the Idea of marching to the Gates of Paris, there remained yet many Obstacles to be furmounted, and Cities to be taken, before that could have been accomplished; and then however exhausted of Money France might have been, the Circumstances of Despair, Attachment to their Menarch, and a Sense of Honour innate in them, would have created new Refources amongst that People, probably not to be overcome in less Time than had been employed to conquer Flanders; this then must according to the Proportion of encreafing Debts, have mortgaged the People of England for a Hundred Millions; and abfolutely ruined your Manufactures by enormous Taxes, and Death of your Fellow Subjects; though it had terminated in the absolute Conquest of all France.

LET me suppose then that France had been conquered, in what Manner would you have ha fiti hav wh Kir Kir fent the Fra the by t eftal not Bala any have cialI Adv tuati Tim Inte oblig him Part which dera her

have

ted

tan

r to

ili-

ign

ed-

ind

rith

35, ur-

hat

en

ght

ir,

of

oa-

an

hiş

n-

ole

b-

1-1

b-

ρ÷

id

u /e

have disposed of the Conquest? Any Acquifition of those Territories to England, would have been recuring to the same Mischief which she felt during that Time, when her Kings posses'd Territories in the gallic Kingdom, and an Aggravation of the prefent; would you have given that Realm to the Emperor of Germany? And then Spain France, and the Empire had been under the same Head; because the Bourbon Family by the Defeat of France, could not have been established in Spain. This certainly would not have been the Means of preserving the Balance of Power: if you had given France or any Part of it to the Dutch; would not you have encreased the Power of your commercial Rivals? And as it is eternally true, that the Advantages arifing from the Product and Situation of a Kingdom, will in a very little Time determine the Sovereign to pursue the Interest of himself and his People, however. obliged he may be to those who gave it him, if no unconnected and more favourite Part does not prevail over the good of that which is most worthy of Regard and Consideration. Unless then the Ports of France and her Situation on both Seas in Europe, could have been removed; her Produce annihilated or rendered useless; into whatever Hands thefe these had fallen, either Dutch or German, they must in one Generation a Minute in the Duration of a Kingdom, have induced the Sovereigns of it to follow the natural Interest of those Realms, and support the Advantages of their Possessions, and in this Case have become as effectually the immediate Rivals of England, as those who had been driven from them.

th

of

CV

th

R

ev

Pr W

Sti

Co

1ef

der

me

the

ject

mo tion

vail

Ha

En

Cau

cou

wer

Pro

Bala

as a

LET us suppose that France by a Peace had been obliged to have limited the Number, or even to have possessed no Men of War; would this Obligation have been observed when she emerged from her Decline? Supposing she had been circumscribed even in her Number of Merchant Ships; would not the Dutch have gladly become the Carriers f her Trade, fupplied her Colon.... Thus her and Manufactures would have found Encouragement, and a Vent by Means of that People, as they must have been rendered much cheaper than yours, incumbered with a Debt of a Hundred Millions, as it probably would have been at the End of a War, in which you had conquered France: Thus then had their Colonies remained to the French, whatever Conquest we might have made; no Advantage of long Duration could have been nan.

the

the

erest

van-

Cafe

Ri-

dri-

e had

er, or

vould

n she

e had

ber of

have

Trade,

s her

irage-

eople,

much

Debt

would

which

then

rench.

nade;

have

been

been drawn from it; let me suppose however that by the Articles of Peace, the Colonies of France were to have been yielded up to her Conquerors; would not the Dutch, and even the Germans, have laid their Claims to their Dividend, and thus have rifen to be your Rivals as effectually as the French? Thus in every View which I can fuggest, nopermanent Prosperity could have been derived from the War, unless by your own proper and natural Strength you had driven the French from their Colonies, kept the Possession to yourselves, or left them defert; this only could have rendered the French incapable of being a commerical State, and of drawing to England the Advantages which are alone the just Objectsofa War; and have not fuch Pursuits been most shamefully neglected from the Revolution to this Hour, by the pernicious and prevailing Influence of Austrian, Dutch and Hanoverian Interests, over the Welfare of England.

But in Fact there was at that Time no Cause of Quarrel against France on the Account of Commerce; the sole Motives which were assigned for it, were the Visions of the Protestant Interest, German Liberties, and the Balance of Power: And this may be received as an eternal Truth, that Trade will always

feek

feek the cheapest Market, as naturally and as necessarily as heavy Bodies tend to the Center; and that England equally taxed, or equally untaxed with France, can make and render her Manufactures at cheaper Prices than that Nation; and in Consequence there never could have existed a national Cause of War on that Account, fince Commerce could never have declined, but from the iniquitous Proceedings of Sovereigns and Ministers. War then at present springs from Resentment against the increasing Commerce of a People, forced into Trade by England's opposing their Arms in Favor of Dutch and Germans; and which it has fince cherished, by following the Dictates of H-r, and oppressing her own Manufactures and Merchandise by immense Taxes.

ol

ti

yd R

W.

R

 G_{i}

vii

to

ac.

to

un

a f

an

of

ne

cu

th

it

op

th

irr

fei

po

fti

France then though you have made her your Rival, is not naturally your Enemy, at least the must have been an ineffectual one, but for the prevailing Interests of alien Nations. It is not therefore her Interest that you lose your Liberty, it may be that you preserve it! turn your Eyes then towards Germany, there you will perceive the poisoned Source of all your Calamities; of which you have so largely drank; whose Interest, whose Wish, and whose Pursuit it is that ye become Slaves, the more effectually to support her Quarrels and Pursuits; and I sincerely wish the disgraceful Day

and

en-

and

rices here

se of

ould

itous

War

ainst

orced

Arms

hick

Dic-

[anu-

res. your

least

ut for

It is

your turn

you

your

rank;

Pur-

re ef-

Pur-

ceful

.Day

Day may never come, when ye shall be obliged to implore Protectior for your Liberties from those very Rivals, whom ye are now industriously taught to hate, to keep your Attention from the Objects of your Ruin.

Notwithstanding the fatal Absurdities which appear hitherto in our Conduct, with Respect to opposing France, and supporting Germany; there are yet many who are convinced that it is still the Interest of England to sustain the Germans; this however they acknowledge has never been rightly pursued to this Hour: it is to reduce the Empire under one Head: by this means to make it a formidable Rival to France, and an eligible and potent Ally to England. From that way of Proceeding, unhappily for you, your Connection with Hanover hath most effectually cut you off; for the Interest of France, and that Electorate in this View being the same; it will foon be perceived how fatally it has operated to oppose all such design. Is it not the Interest of France to keep the present irrational System of Germany alive, to preferve the Power of creating Discord and Opposition amongst the Electors; to prevent a Union of Strength, by purchasing one to destroy another, whenever she chuses to interfere fere in the affairs of the Empire! in like Manner is it not the interest of Hanover to preserve the same ridiculous System of the Empire? otherwise sinking into Oblivion and contempt, that Electorate must be abscorb'd by that power which would unite and reign over all Germany.

In this Manner the Interest of France and Hanover, being perfectly similar; and that of England diametrically opposite to them; has it not fatally followed, that this Kingdom has never engaged in the Design of uniting all the German Dominions under one Head, but corresponded with the Views of France in savor of the Brunswick Family, till it is I fear disabled from pursuing the opposite Design, if ever it should be happily detached from the destructive influence of Hanoverian Councils? thus in this View and in this Manner, France and Hanover have been, and still continue to be, equally the Enemies of you and your Welfare.

P

tr

INDEED much may be offered in favor of fuch a Pursuit, by you a Nation which by your Constitution still pretend to be Free; it would deliver the Lives of your fellow Creatures from the oppressive Tyranny of being Sold the inhuman Commerce of paultry German ike

r to

the

ion

ab-

nite

and

that

em;

ing-

nof

nder

iews

mily,

e op-

v de-

Hand in

been,

Ene-

or of

h by e; it

Crea-

being ultry

rman

Longs with the German Princes; as by such an Union the imperial Dominions would become sufficiently extensive for every Kind of Support, in Peace or War, and no longer necessitate their rapacious Sovereigns to live on the Sale of human Blood.

But as the ducal Crown must have thereby tumbled from the Head of the Elector of Hanover, though the royal Diadem of England, must have been strengthened and supported by that Measure, Britania like the Slaves around the Statue of Lewis the Fourteenth, has been ridiculously chained to the Base of Absurdity and Ruin, beneath the Feet of that Elector.

In this Way the most plausible Reasons for interfering in German Measures, and the most rational Pursuit of Lagland, in such Affairs have been rendered absolutely ineffectual, by your fatal Connections with Hanover.

Is this however, though the least culpable of all the Ways by which German transactions can become an Object of English Attention, a sufficient Motive for your engaging therein, and chaining yourselves to the H 2 Curses Curies of a Continent, to renounce the Bleflings which God hath fo remarkably bestowed on this Island, by separating it from the rest of Europe?

HENCE it evidently appears, that during the Conquests of Marlborough, as in the Defeats of the Dutchman, the true Interest of England was totally neglected for German Views and private Ambition; that at the Conclusion of the War, you were only more disabled from pursuing the Advantages of Peace; your Manufactures and Commerce being loaded with greater Taxes, and a Debt of Fifty Millions; and what was yet more pernicious by your ill judged Opposition to the delusive Dream of Universal Empire, the French were recovered from that Delirium, and converted by the powers which they perceived Commerce had given you, to difcover the invariable Objects of their Pursuit, the Support of Trade and Colonies. Thus by the Arms of Marlborough, being beaten into a true sense of their Situation, Duty and Interest, they have been rendered infinitely a more powerful Rival and more invincible Enemy against this Nation, than the Conquest of all the European Continent could have made them. In this manner the true and

and and hay

Per you had Th this The Mir quif Bro inat ditio give was Nan

Thir confi of na Engl the I fame equal there ceffi

B

and permanent Effect of wasting your Blood and Treasure, and of his success and Glory, have terminated only in advancing your Perdition and establish the Grandeur of your Enemies.

the

be-

om

1 1

ing

De-

t of man

the

nore

s of

erce

Debt

nore

n to

, the

ium,

they

dif-

rfuit.

Chus

eaten

and

itely

cible

Con-

true

and

During this Reign, an Interest which had been created to preserve William on the Throne, received great additional Strength: this was the increasing the national Debt. The money'd Men, Contracters with the Ministry for naval Stores and military Requisites, Jobers, Jews, and Change-Alley Brokers, had acquired immense Forrunes in the Funds, without bringing one additional Shilling to the general Riches. To give this the Sanction of Public Utility, it was splendidly baptised with the dazling Name of the Support of the Hanover Succession.

But as those of the opposite Party beheld Things in a different Light, it was by them considered as the infallible and fertile Source of national Perdition; and thus the Ruin of England in their Eyes, and the Support of the Hanover Succession appearing to be the same Thing, they conceived both to be equally pernicious to your Interest, and therefore to be opposed.

THAT these Men were under a most grievous Error in Judgment; do not the unspeakable Blessings which this Nation hath enjoyed; the present Honor and Esteem which it bears amongst all Nations; the flourishing Condition in which it now stands, sufficiently evince beneath the Reign of his most bleffed Majesty? a Sovereign in whom are to be found in equal Perfection, all the Excellences of the Head and Heart, like Children's Hands in a certain Play, alternately predominant; to whom Wisdom, Justice, Fortitude, Truth, Constancy, Valor, Piety, Prudence, and Victory have equally refigned their Serpents, Balance, Coat of Mail, Mirror, Column, Sword, Bible, Shield and Lawrel: Like Neptune does he not reign Paramount over all the Ocean? Like Mars does he not give Conquest wherever he appears? Like Minerva are not his Councils revered amongst the Nations of the Earth? Like Jupiter does he not weigh the Fate of Humankind in a Balance? Alike the support of Prusha, the Humbler of Austria, the scourge of France the Terror of Europe: Whose parental Care is so equably displayed, his most favorite Child feels not more Affection than the meanest of his Subjects; whose Veracity is so firmly established, that his Oath

۶

is

to fa

th

ad

Cr

fo

ne

be

wh

car

is r

un

wit

Fai

An

of !

hat

Sle

fuit:

the

pref

the

wer Effe is not deemed more facred than his royal Word; so steady to all his Allies that no Change of Circumstances hath given Cause to one more than another to doubt of his Stedfastness; of all Protestant Princes the most thorough Protestant; equally revered and adored by his own, and the Subjects of other Crowns; the Wonders of whose Reign are fo great, the most Patriot Englishman can never hope to fee them equalled; whose Liberality is equal to his Contempt of Money; whose Name can never die; whose Actions can never be forgotten; in his Time Religion is relieved from the Agonies she long groaned under, and Liberty no more heard rattling with a Chain round one Leg; as much the Father of all Mankind as of his own People: And in this enlightened Age the best Judge of the sublime Arts, to whom Doctor Hill hath dedicated his God and Nature, and his Sleep of Plants.

Notwithstanding such pernicious Pursuits during the Reign of William and Ann, the Debts which were incurr'd; and the Oppressions which were laid on your Trade; at the coming of George to the Throne, Affairs were in so favourable a Situation, that the Effect of every Misconduct might have been easily

most

e un-

hath fteem

flous, fuf-

most

are to

Excel-

Chil-

nately

uffice,

Piety,

figned

, Mir-

l Law-

Para-

ppears?

revered

? Like

of Hu-

port of

courge

Whole

ed, his Affecwhose is Oath eafily removed by a King who had no other Views then those of making you a prosperous and happy People.

To evince the Truth of this, and prove how fatally the Influence of Hanover fuper-feded all the fortunate Occasionswhich offered then, and immediately after, it is necessary to acquaint you with the Situation of the States of Europe, at the Death of Queen Ann.

Ar that Time this Kingdom was in perfect Tranquility with every Potentate of the Continent. Peace had been concluded with France; by this the Pretender was driven from the Territories of that Crown; the Protestant Succession in the Hanoverian Family acknowledged, and Gurantied by that Power to the Crowns of these Realms; Lewis the Fourteenth in old Age and Infirmities standing on the Threshold of the other World, looking back with Regret on his Actions and Behaviour in this; Peace and a Treaty of Commerce had been concluded with Spain, by which the Protestant Succession in the House of Havover was likewise acknowledged, and never to be opposed on any Confideration whatfoever; all Power of giving Licences to the French, or to any other Nation, in fan

T

K

al

Sp

ma gag was

chei but her tion, to introduce Negroes or other Merchandise into the Spanish Dominions in America was totally given up by Spain; the American Dominions were never to be alienated from the Spanish Crown on any Pretext; Gibralter and Minorca were yielded up for ever to the Crown of England; the South-Sea Company to enjoy the Privilege of selling Negroes in several Parts of America for Thirty Years. To the Duke of Savoy, now King of Sardinia, Sicily was yielded up also, with the Proviso of its returning to Spain, in Default of Male Issue in the House of Piedmont.

WITH the Emperor and Holland we were in perfect Peace and Alliance, each Guarantee of the Protestant-Succession.

In the North the Czar, Prussia and Denmark, were in Peace with England, and engaged in a War against Sweden, whose King was at that Time at Bender.

ENGLAND respected for her military Atcheivements through the whole World, had but two Objects which ought to have engaged her Attention; reducing the national Debt, and promoting her Trade and Commerce:

ner ous

ove perered y to eates

the with iven Pro-mily

orld, and and ty of pain, the

now-Coniving Nation,

merce: Such were the auspicious Circumstances which subsisted when George ascended the Throne of England; but alas! the malignant Star of Hanoverian Politics then becoming in the Ascendant, in all the Tranfactions of this Kingdom, blafted every blooming Promise of approaching Happiness; and tho' Events in Favor of your Felicity, came pouring in upon you, beyond the most sanguine Expectation of Patriot Enthusiasin; though George had it in his Power to have immortalized himfelf, by rendering you fupremely prosperous; it will be seen that ye were confidered only as the Gladiators of old Rome, doomed to fell and facrifice yourselves for the Entertainment and Advantage of the Elector of Hanover.

O

P

ac

ar Ir

W

th

by

ri

fu

la

George at his Accession to this Crown was naturally agitated by the Suspicion of being dethroned, in Preference to the House of Scuart; it was therefore as natural for him to attempt encreasing his German Dominions at your Expence, that at least his coming to this Kingdom might prove of some Advantage to him. Which Maxim being adopted by his Ministers to procure themselves Stability, and conciliate Favor, it so fell out that by the Time the Apprehension of Instability on this

ım-

ded

ma-

bc-

an-

ery

iess;

city,

nost

fin;

nave

ye

old

lves

the

was

be-

e of

n to is at

to

an-

l by

ity,

by

on

this

this Throne from the Interest of the Stuarts, was almost vanished, so many Transactions had been completed to the Advancement of Hanover, and the Ruin of England, that these had created a secondary and new Dread of being displaced by a People so egregiously injured on the Account of German Predilection; this then still kept alive the same Fear of being dethroned on that Account, fo strong in the illustrious Family, and therefore the same Propensity of subjecting England to the Views of Hanover, that it has been faid with some Authority, the late Queen conscious of fuch Proceedings to the Injury of a People tenacious of their Rights and Liberties, imagining the Nation would one Day be acquainted with all the Wickedness she knew, and that the Hour must come when national Infolvency would purge the Film from all Eyes, died stedfastly believing the Family was not firmly established on the Throne of those Realms.

George in leaving his Hanoverian State, by taking off the Excise on Provisions, behaved like a Sovereign who loved and cherished his People; scarce had his Head been furrounded with the regal Diadem of England, than his Minister dip'd his Hand into the

I 2

the Purse of this Nation, and thence took two Hundred and Fifty Thousand Pounds to purchase Bremen and Verden for the Elector of Brunswick, as if he conceived him come the determine Pillager of this People; the Parliament at that Time not openly audacious, granted this Sum under the deceitful Terms of Subsidies and Arrears to Land Forces.

By this Means the Evils which all honest and fenfible Men forefaw, would fooner or later be the Effect of your Connection with German Interests, those Evils which it was most immediately the Duty of an English Parliament to prevent, speedily began to fpread their malignant Influence on a new Cause, which George had purchased, Bremen and Verden; and it was perceived that those Acquisitions would certainly involve us in the Quarrel of the Czar and Denmark, with Sweden, from whom these Duchies been taken by the Danes, and fold to George, who by fuch Proceeding, had as effectually entangled England in the Transactions of those Potentates, as the German Possessions must with those of Germany. Now with Respect to this Kingdom and her true Interest, no Change of Circumstances from the War between Sweden, the Czar or Denmark could have

u

C

 \mathbf{f}_0

h

tic

R

tu

tw

A

he

th

tag

pa

Cı

WQ

of

the

lia-

an-

nest

r or vith

was

glish

to new men hofe

the

vith had

rge,

enhofe

hust

bect

no

beuld

ave

have been a reasonable Cause of your intermedling in their Affairs; for whether Sweden had conquered them or they Sweden, England could have rifqued but little inconveniency by being inactive, as your Trade with each of these States is lucrative to them alone. It is therefore their Interest to be in Peace with England, tho' united under one Head, and if a Misunderstanding had ever risen, of what Import would it have been to you? who exerting your native Strength, have no Reason to dread that combin'd Force, and who could have fuffered no Loss by a Prohibition of Commerce; and lastly as those Powers so united, would have acquired great Strength as a maritimeForce; would they not have become as natural an Ally against France, as for it, against you in any Wars which might have happened between this and that Nation? had Sweden been divided between Russia and Denmark, a Jealousy must naturally have been generated between those two Powers; with one of which your being in Alliance, the other must have been withheld from affifting your Enemies; and thus those Enemies could have gained no Advantage which this Kingdom would not participate by the encreased Powers of those two Crowns; your Purchase was not therefore of new new Territories to Hanover one of the most pernicious Acts which England could have been engaged in? as it will be foon too fatally evident to admit of Contradiction. George's Accession to the Throne, the deluded Favorers of the Stuarts fancying that Things were precipitately advancing to your Ruin; and that Hanover by its powerful Sympathy with this State must necessarily produce your Destruction, being by its Situation on every little Disagreement with the Czar, Sweden, Denmark, Prussia, or the Austrians, constantly open to attack from each of their Armies, conceived it must therefore hold this Nation in Submission to the Views of those Princes, or oblige England to defend Hanover at an immense Expense of Fleets and Subfidies to the mercenary Princes of Germany; whose Interest they saw it became to create Disturbances on the Account of that Part, in which like Achilles in his Heel, this Kingdom was only mortal; and who being sharpened by Want, would not fail of drawing Advantage from this portentous Connexion of England with that Electorate.

of

th

pe

Re

to qu fill

trei

Tur que

had

 \mathbf{D} ul

Duc

On this Account a Rebellion was naturally begun by the Subjects of Great Britain, and which as it terminated in the Defeat and Execution Execution of many a Gentleman, whose Honesty and Expectations were superior to their Undertakings, proved that as Affairs then turned out, it was a very ill concerted Meafure.

re

ly

er

ed

gs n;

hy

our

ery

en

onneir

old

end

eets

709-

e to

that this

ing

aw-on-ally

and

and

tion

This Event however fatal to those engaged in it, was still the most propitious which could have happened to a foreign Family newly placed on the Throne, as it thereby became more effectually fix'd, than a Length of Years could have established it without that Incident.

CHARLES XII. of Sweden, being unexpectedly returned from Bender, foon after George's Accession to the Throne of those Realms; the enterprising Spirit, Disposition to revenge, military Capacity, and unconquerable Perseverance of that Monarch, fill'd the Bosom of your new King with extreme Palpitation and Dread.

During the Absence of Charles in the Turkish Dominions, the Czar having conquered the Swedish Possessions, in Pomerania, had determined to marry his Niece to the Duke of Mecklemberg, and had filled that Duchy with his Troops; these from their Neighbourhood

Neighbourhood to the Hanoverian Territories, created in George no less Jealousy and Fear of the Czar, than he entertained of the King of Sweden; accordingly the Prussians, Hanoverians and Danes, having taken Wijmar before the Arrival of the Russian Troops, Prusia and Denmark, were prevailed on by the Elector to reject those Troops from forming Part of the Garrison of Wilmar, on a Sufpicion that the Czar intended to posses himfelf of that City for the Duke of Mecklenberg; thus a Misunderstanding began between Peter the Great, and the Elector of Hanover. George therefore being intimidated by Charles, and a Tealoufy and Coldness arising on the Account of the Czar's Proximity between him and the Russian, to secure himself in his new Possesfions, proposes an Alliance with the Emperor of Germany, in Order to obtain the Investiture of Bremen and Verden, and get rid of his new Neighbour the Czar, by the Auftrian Intervention, or at least to be more enabled to oppose his Designs against Hanover: the Russian refenting this Behaviour of George, relating to the Treatment which the Former had received at Wismar, refused to withdraw his Troops from Mecktenberg at the Sollicitation of the Emperor of Germa: y, and George would not guaranty the

th

to

th of obvo

th Sa of At of co

of

inifector of

to wh ped

lan

the Conquests of Russia over Sweden; at this Time a Treaty was concluded between the Emperor and George.

0., od.

he

1/-

by

mul-

ın-

rg ;

ter

rge

id a rant

. thė

fel-

pe-

vef-

lof

Auf-

ma-

er:

nich

re-

eck-

r of

inty

of

THAT this Alliance might want uo Requisite tomakeit succeed, George's Minister determined to break the Treaty of Utrecht, in favor of the Emperor, to the Prejudice of the Duke of Savey, and of the King of Spain, and oblige the Former to renounce Sicilly, in Favor of Austria, for Sardinia in Exchange; and thereby cut off the Spanish King from his Right of Succession to Sicily in Case of the Failure of Male Issue in the House of Savoy, as it had been stipulated in the Treaty of Utrecht. To this, however prejudicial, as Affairs were then circumstanced, the Court of Turin not being well able to oppose, accordingly acceded. Spain was plundered of her Right, and the Welfare of England, whose Interest it ever is to be in Amity with that Court, was facrificed to the fecuring the new Acquisitions of the House of Hanover. This Treaty was figned in the Year 1716, between the Emperor and England, by which it was stipulated reciprocally to defend the Dominions of each other wherefoever fituated. But as George still sufpected that the Emperor might be engaged in a War with France, and thereby rendered incapable of supporting his Hanoverian Dominions; he concluded another Treaty about Six Months after with the Duke of Orleans, then Regent of France, to the same Purpose of mutually guarantying each others Possessions in Case of either being attack'd; thus the most ridiculous Contradiction was begot which can be well imagined; on a Rupture between France and the Emperor, England must have divided her Troops, and destroyed her own Subjects by the Hands of one another, in Consequence of those Treaties made for the sole Advantage of Hancverian Dominions.

George's Minister after having concluded those Treaties, so destructive to England; not thinking the Elector secure, and resolving to oblige the Czar to withdraw his Troops from the Neighbourhood of his German Territories, conceived the Design of deserting the Alliance of Russia, though it had been stipulated never to make Peace without the Knowledge and Consent of each other; and according to the Practice of Hanoverian Faith, proposed a Peace and Alliance with the King of Sweden, to oppose the Czar.

THIS

n

a fe

 \mathbf{w}

to

wi tal

dif

tui

kn

tar

and

Ac

du le&

the

W

ing

ed

0-ut

25,

ose

ef-

ius

got

ire

ınd

yeď

no-

ade

)o-

ded

not

g to

oni

ies,

nce

ne-

dge

the

l. a

den,

HIS

THIS Proposition, Charles whose Actions were directed by Motives entirely distinct from those of George, rejected with Contempt; he replied that the Elector of Hanover, basely seizeing the Opportunity of his Abfence and Distress, had purchased at a vile Price his Duchies of Bremen and Verden from the Danes, and united with his Enemies to undo him; that during his Residence at Bender, he had likewise prevailed on the Ottoman Porte, and prevented his obtaining a Turkish Army, with which to have defeated his most inveterate Enemy the Czar, and returned with Victory to his Capital; for which Reasons he was determined never to fign a Peace, nor enter into Alliance with the Elector of Hanover till he had taken ample Vengeance for his mean and dishonourable Proceedings. This Overture of a separate Peace with Sweden, being known to the Czar, he conceived it as a daftardly Tergiversation on the Part of George, and was little less irritated than Charles, on Account of his treacherous Duplicity of Conduct, he considered the Hanoverian Elector as a pufillanimous Being, deferting the Shores of England, and floating on the Waves of hisgermanic Interest, like a drowning Wretch catching at every Object which K 2 occasionally occasionally offered, quiting one to seize another; faithlessly renouncing the Alliance of Sweden to purchase Bremen and Verden; uniting with him to undo the unhappy Swede in his Absence and Distress; then on the Return of Charles, and Proximity of Russian Troops to his German Territories, as dishonourably rejecting him to form an Alliance with the Former, renouncing your Interests by his Treaty with France, facrificing them by his injuring Spain, and all to purchase the Emperor to support his electoral Possessions; the Cause of all which was even more distant from the good of this Realm, than it is from this Globe to that of Saturn, and as little worthy your Concern, as to oppose the next Eclipse of one of the Satellites of that Planet.

On those illiberal Proceedings of George's Minister it was, that Baron Goertz planed his Defign of reconciling the Courts of Petersburgh and Stockholm, and as dethroning Kings and puting others in their Place, made not the least Part of the ruling Disposition of the Swedish Monarch, he entered with much Spirit into the Proposition of dethroning George; animated thereto by his Thirst of Vengeance on him, and not by his Desire of re-establishing the

fi

ai

38 ce

72;

рy

en

of

es,

rm

ing

iaall

lec-

was

this

ern,

the

Mi-

De-

and

putleaft

dish

into ani-

e on hing

the

the Family of Stuart. This Designbeing discovered, it was prevented at that Time, and a Fleet of Twenty-one Ships of the Line, with Frigates and Fire Ships, was sent into the Baltic to defend the Hanoverian Dominions, disguised under a Pretext of preventing the Czar and Swede, from uniting in the Design of placing the Stuarts on the Throne of England, and War was declared against Sweden.

This Intention the Czar absolutely denied in a long Memorial, and upbraided George's Administration with Persidy in secretly renouncing their Alliance with him, and attempting to make a separate Peace with Sweden, which being answered both on the Part of Hanover, and of this Court, it was by each confess'd, that they did not believe him concerned in the Design to restore the Family of Stuart; which Answer offers an incontestible Proof that Hanoverian Interests were the sole Cause of the Equipment and Destination of this Fleet.

ABOUT this Time the King of Sweden finished a Life in every Instance unexampled and romantic, by a Death almost as singular. In Consequence of which, the Czar was disappointed in his Views on Germany, and his Alliance

Alliance with the Swede, and George was eased of his Apprehensions from that Quarter: by which Millions of your Money, and Thousands of your Lives were happily prevented from being wasted on the Account of German Possessions, and a German Elector.

HENCE it is evident, had this Defign of invading England taken Place, a civil War enfued, your Blood been wasted, and fellow Subjects brought to the Block, they must have risen from the perfidious Behaviour of Hanover with the northern Powers, and not from any Attachment of those Princes to the Stuarts; that all this Expence which had been incurred during this Time, and every Alliance which had been concluded by George's Ministry, was absolutely for the Preservation of the electoral Dominions, and to the utter Neglect and Prejudice of this Nation.

Nor was it as a Nation only that you were during this Time fold and facrificed to the Interest of Hanoverians; as Individuals in private Instances you were reduced to the same ignominious State; for according to the Words of Mr. Walpole, fince Earl of Orford, at that Time out of Place, the Offices under the Crown were become the vendible Property

120

 \boldsymbol{E}

yc

th

A

to

to

du

fpe

Fr

the

cór

1:

d

1-

r-

ar

W

ve

20-m

tu-

een

11ire's

ion

tter

you

to

in

the

the

rd, der

ro-

rty

perty of German Followers. In the House of Commons he openly declared, that one of the chief Reasons for resigning his Place, was because he refused to connive at the Schemes of mercenary Germans, and that one of those mean Fellows who had audacioully taken upon him to dispose of Employments, had faucily demanded Two Thoufand Five Hundred Pounds for a Place which Mr. Walpole had given his own Son, under the infolent Pretext that he could have fold it for fo much Money; to fuch an enormous Height of Impudence, were those venal Hanoverians arrived who followed George into England, and to so abject a Condition were you fallen in Public and private Capacity in the Space of Three Years, after the happy Accession of the illustrious House of Hanover to the Crowns of those Realms.

PERMIT me now to turn your Eyes back to a more intimate Examination of the Conduct of George's Administration, with Respect to Affairs between the Emperor, Spain, France, and Turin.

Lewis the Fourteenth being dead, and the Duke of Orleans declared fole Regent, contrary to the Will of that Monarch, a Mifunderstanding understanding had arisen between the Duke of Orleans and the King of Spain, and the French Nation was divided into two Factions: besides this there was Reason to believe there would be a long Minority, as the young King was like to live: France had not yet recovered the Calamities of the last War: her Commerce was not re-established, and her Fleet totally reduced to Impotency.

In England there still remained the same conquering General with those who had served under him in the late War; your Fleet was extremely powerful; and the Veteran Troops still willing to finish their Days in the Field of Victory.

th

m

W

th

pli

 G_{ℓ}

Er

of

Or

Spi

110 ten

nea

froi

By this auspicious Death of Lewis, a Power was offered of your joining Spain against France, and by making up a Peace between the Emperor and the Spanish Court, to which the Latter must be naturally induced by her Missunderstanding with the Regent; of remedying all the Evils of the last Peace; and whilst those Powers on the Continent were attacking the Kingdom of France, divided by Faction, might you not have driven the French by your Fleet from all their Colonies, and thus have established the Commerce and Happiness

he ns:

ere

ng

re-1er

ner

mae had

leet

ran the s, a

bain

eace

ourt,

idu-

ent;

ace;

nent divi-

the

andiness

Happiness of England for ever? by this Difference of Spain with France, was not an Opportunity of accomplishing all that had been purfued in the late War, relative to fettling the Crown of Spain in the House of Austria, as it respected you, to be obtained easily? And a Power of humbling France in one Year more effectually, than it could have been done in Ten, during the Life of Lewis XIV? and yet this was totally neglected by the very Men who held Oxford in Prison, and having banished Bolinbroke were eternally pouring forth Execrations on them for concluding the Peace of Utrecht. It lead then of joining with Spain, and establishing an Alliance between that Power and the Emperor, to promote the Prosperity of England, and unite with the Spaniard against France, to which the Articles of the Treaty of Utrecht uncomplied with, offered a very justifiable Reason: George's Minister concluded the Treaty with the Emperor already mentioned, to deprive Spain of her Right to Sicily, and with the Duke of Orleans to defend him against the Attacks of Spain, for the fole Cause of preserving the Hanover Dominions, under the specious Pretence of Dread from the Pretender's being fo near as Avignon, and to have him removed from thence; as if that could have leffened his L his Interest in this Country, and to the absolute Neglect even the Sacrifice of Hecatombs of English Welfare; such were the ungrateful Transactions of George's Ministry relating to a People who had so recently presented their Master with those Kingdoms.

THE Spaniard however having detected the Ministry of George in this illiberal Breach of Public Faith and solemn Treaties, by their having undertaken to dispose of his Right to Sicily without his Knowledge and Consent, determined to do Justice to himself; fitted out a considerable Fleet; and as no Peace had been concluded between him and the Austrians, attacked and took the Island of Sardinia in Order to prevent its being exchanged for Sicily.

On this Event the Emperor laid claim to the Assistance of England in Consequence of his late Alliance though not a Syllable of that Requisition transpired in the Message which was fent to the House of Commons by George, to request the Means of equiping a naval Armament, and sending it where it should be thought necessary: All which was disguised under the specious Term of England's Welfare, to which the polite and parsimonious

T

te

blo-

mbs

ate-

ting

nted

the

of

ha-

Si-

eter-

ut a

ocen

ans

ia in

for

m to e of that

nich

by ng a

c' it

was nd's

rfious

monious Commons most readily answered, with a Promise of granting all that was defired, notwithstanding they had already granted more than was provided for, and without once requiring to know the Cause of it: In Consequence of this the Mediation which was offered by England and France to accommodate the Differences between Spain and the Emperor, were contemptuously rejected by the Spanish Court; they were convinced that your Hanoverian King's Minister who had broken the Treaty of Utrecht, agreed to defraud them of their conditional Inheritance of Sicily, to purchase the Emperor to second his electoral Views, and combined with the Regent to the utter Neglect of English Welfare, would not hefitate at any ignominious Action which might be agreeable to the Emperor or Regent of France; in Consequence of this vast Preparations by Sea and Land, were carried on with the utmost Vigor in the Ports of Spain.

As the natural Effect of all this Hanoverian Faith, the most unexampled, and perhaps the most audacious Treaty that Sovereigns had ever the hardiness to form, was entered upon, conc' ided and named the Quadruple Alliance, between the Emperor,

France, L 2

France, England, and Holland, in which it was most arbitrarily combined to compel the Kings of Spain and Sardinia to accept the Conditions which should be offered them: These were couched under the specious Pretext of preferving the Public Tranquillity, and removing the Jealousies that were encreafing amongst the Sovereigns of Europe. Amongst the Articles of which it was declared that the King of Spain should be obliged to renounce his Right to the Reversion of icily, and the Duke of Savoy exchange that Island for Sardinia. Thus in the most arbitrary Manner the above Powers forced themselves upon those two Crowns as the Disposers of their Rights, and the Dominions of Italy were distributed about, as if they had been the Sovereigns of the Creation, endowed with the Right of disposing it according to their Inclination, in Breach of Treaties and Inattention to English Welfare.

b

bo

CI

do

an

 H_{ℓ}

M

 \mathbf{fo}

Tr

fur

ha

hor

It must be observed however, though this Treaty was stilled the Quadruple Alliance, the States General clearly perceiving it contradictory to their Welfare, delayed to sign it, all Faction and some other finister Motives prevailed over the true Interest of that that Government, as it had already over that of England.

it he

he

n:

us

ty,

:11-

pe.

cd

to ily,

ind

an-

on ieir

ere the

the cli-

ion

his

ce,

it

to

of

nat

In Confequence of this, Admiral Byng failed from the Mediterranean, and defeated the Spanish Fleet in Defence of Siciy; an Action which brought infinite Mischiet and Dishonor on this Nation, in the Opinion of Men who are not Spaniards; particularly as War had not been declared between us and Spain, and as no Treaty obliged us to defend the Territories of Savoy, to which Sicily then belonged, in Favor of an Exchange with Aufiria: But as the Faith of George's Ministry had been already broken with Spain, this perfidious Action in Favor of Austria was added to the Former. Thus this unjustifiable Defeat created much ill Blood between this Kingdom and Spain; your Trade was facrificed, and your Treasure squandered, only to gratify the Emperor, and induce him to defend the Hanoverian Dominions; and the same polite Majority of a House of Commons, which had fo bare facedly voted that his Majesty by his Treaty with the Regent, had in a great Meafure recovered those Advantages which might have been expected from a successful War, and were given up by a treacherous and difhonorable Peace approved it.

NOT WITH-

And notwithstanding in that Treaty with the Regent, not the least Attention had been either given to fettling the Bounds of Nova Scotia, fixing your Right to St. Lucia more explicitly, or causing the Island of Hispaniola to be quited by the French, to the accertaining and accomplishing all which, you were entitled by the Peace of Utrecht; these honorable Men however, encouraged by Numbers, and bribed by Place and Pension, dared to applaud that flagitious Treaty, and clamoroully declared that it was high Time the haughty House of Spain should be humbled. Such was the Complexion of those Guardians of your Privileges at that Time, who had it in their Power to have reduced France to any Degree of Humiliation by joining Spain and the Emperor, and yet rejecting that, and curfing the Concluders of the Peace of Utrecht, enflaved the good of this Nation to the Views of Hanover.

Si

720 en; Su

thr

gea

Ge

re-

Spa

Geo

ons,

THE ill Treatment which Spain had received from this Ministry naturally turned the Views of Cardinal Alberoni towards Vengeance; it was not to be wondered then that the Spaniards in Consequence of such Measures, had taken our Merchant Ships, under the Pretence of being engaged in illicit Trade, and

h en

ja

re

la

n-

ere

10-

rs,

to 10-

the

ed.

ans l it

any

and

hat

e of

tion

re-

the

ge-

hat

ea-

der

ide,

and

and that Spain thought it but strict Justice to attempt dethroning him, whose Minister by an unprecedented Alliance had despotically disposed of her Inheritance of Sicily without even asking her Consent; on this Account an Attempt to place the Stuarts on the Throne of England was undertaken, and a considerable Fleet sent from Cadiz towards Scotland, which Heaven at that Time thought sit to disperse by Winds and Tempests, so that sew landing in the North of this Island, the Affair was soon put to an End.

Thus a fecond Attempt to reinstate the Stuarts miscarried; and a Deluge of British Blood that otherwise would have drenched its native Soil, was faved from being shed on a Cause which the pernicious Effects of Hanoverian Influence over English Councils had engendered; Spain at this Time, no more than Sweden heretofore, engaging in this Defign through Love of the abdicated Family; Vengeance on the Tergiversation and Perfidy of George's Administration, being the sole Motive in each of these Princes, towards the Design of re-establishing them; the Apprehension of the Spanish Invasion being thus blown George resolved to revisit his German Dominions, his Delight and your Perdition. And as his

Ter-

Terror on the Account of B men and Verden; was greatly distipated by the Death of Charles XII. and Affairs greatly changed in Sweden, he resolved to conclude a Peace with that State now in an exhausted Condition. At the same Time to be eased of his Fears of the Czar also, George undertook to bring about a Peace amongst all the northern Powers.

IT was begun between Sweden and England, and a provisional Treaty figned in July 1719. In Consequence of which Bremen and Verden were conceded to the Elector of Hanover; to accomplish which, Seventy Tv. o Thoufand Pounds of your Money were granted by your Guardians for this fecond Purchase of the fame Thing, under the delusive Terms of enabling his Majesty to make good his Engagements lately entered into with the Court of Steckholm, notwithstanding the Guaranty of the Emperor and of Denmark, from the Latter of which it had been before purchased. This then was a new Sacrifice of your Money to purchase the Swede from that Alliance which it had been apprehended was forming with the Czar; to pave the Way to get difembarraffed of the disagreeable Neighbourhood of Russian Forces; and fix Bromen and Verden in the Elector of Hansver.

 B_{λ}

d

'n

th

ar

pu

th

ha

ab

pe:

ſtil

Pe

Sp

rat

the

Bu

stoo

bee

aga

to t

lens

ten,

hat

the

the

out

17.00-

fulv

and oul by

the

En-

ourt nty

the

fed.

ney

nce ing

dif-

urind

BX

By Degrees the Kings of Poland, Russia. and Denmark, were drawn into this Peace, and as the London and Royal Exchange Infurance Offices, had just before given Six Hundred Thousand Pounds for the Establishment of their Companies, to the use of his Majesty, in Order to discharge the Debts and Expences of his Civil Government; and as no Lists of those Debts had ever been laid before the House of Commons; it is scarce conceivable but that George disposed of this Money amongst the venal Powers of the North, to purchase an Agreement amongst them: Thus this bleffed Acquisition of Bremen and Veraen, had in Five Years Time cost this Nation above a Million of Money, besides vast Expences in Fleets and Subfidies; the Czar who still held out, was to be domineer'd into a Peace by the Threats of treating him as the Spaniards had been treated in the Mediterranean; and Admiral Norris was fent into the Baltic with a large Fleet, to put that Business in Execution. In this Manner Things stood in the North.

WITH Respect to Spain, War having been declared, two Fleets were sitted out against that Power, one under Lord Cobbam to take Corunna, which terminated in taking M the the defenceless Port of Vigo, another was sent under Hosier to attack Peru, which performed nothing.

Ease from her Dread of losing Bremen and Verain, and of the Russians which had been in her Neighbourhood, and a Source of Discontent starting up between the Emperor and that Electorate, George's Minister determined to make a separate Peace with Spain, tho' by the Treaty of 1716, it was stipulated, that neither Austria nor England should recall their Succours till each was satisfied, the Cause of this Hanoverian Tergiversation must be explained to you.

ig

ni

an

W

ch

for

be no

Fa

It seems the Emperor of Germany had refused the Investiture of Bremen and Verden to that Elector, on Account of a Claim which had been entered against it by the Duke of Holstein, this the Hanoverian greatly resented on the Part of the Austrian, expecting that as his Minister had broken all Faith, and sacrificed England towards the obtaining Sicily for the Emperor, that the Latter would be equally regardless of Justice, and sacrifice the Duke of Holstein's Right to him; but as this was refused by the Court of Vienna, George had concluded

fent

med

gat

and

been

Dif-

and

ined

o' by

that

ecall

, the

must

d re-

en to vhich

ke of

ented

hat as crifi-

ly for ually

Duke

was

had

uded

concluded the above mentioned Treaty with Spain; thus it is evident that as Flanoverian Views had folely actuated to cause the destructive and unjust Rupture with Spain, in Favor of the Emperor, to in like Manner this Conclusion of Peace with the Court of Maaria, had proceeded from a Refentment that George had conceived against the Court of Vienna, on Account of refusing him the Investiture of his new Duchies; and that Engli/h Motives had effected nothing on either Occasion of Peace or War. For it can scarce be credited, that had the Emperor been as iniquitously complaisant to George as the Minister of the Latter had been to him, but that War against Spain had been still continued.

Nothing can give a more convincing Proof of the avowed Iniquity of Admiral Byng's being ordered to attack the Spaniards, and that it was not intended for English Welfare, than the Articles which were concluded on in this Treaty with Spain.

IT was agreed that England should repay for all the Ships of the Spaniards, which had been taken by Mr. Byng; thus you were not only obliged at an immense Expence in Favor of Hanoverian Views, to fit out a vast

M 2

Fleet to defeat the Spaniards, but even on the fame Account to pay for the very Ships which Mr. Byng had taken and destroyed in that Action.

By a Treaty figned at Madrid, June 13, 1721, the fame Day the above had been figned at London; it was stipulated that Spain and England should mutually defend each others Dominions wherever fituated, against all Enemies whatsoever; and yet though Spain and this Nation were both at War with the Moors at that Time the Ministry of George no later than the succeeding Twelfth of Augult, figned a separate Peace with the Moors, foregardless were they of the public Faith, and the Preservation of Treaties. So many Breaches of national Engagements had never difgraced this Kingdom during fo fhort Space; and the Honor of England then first began to be suspected amongst all Nations, and to this Ignominy you were reduced by the fatal Influence of Hanoverian Councils, over the Conduct of those Realms. That this Peace with Spain, was the Child of Hanoverian Refentment against the Emperor, and not that of English Welfare, is still more evident, because George had promised to procure Gibralter to be given up to that Crown, and and no Provision nor Care had been taken to prevent the Outrages committed against your Trade by Spanish Guarda Costas; and that those Proceedings were generally considered in that Light, a very coercive Evidence may be drawn from the Memorial delivered by Peter the Great, to the English Factory at Petersburgh, which I shall transcribe.

on

ips

in 133

een

ain ach iinst

ugh

with

orge

Au-

oors,

, and iches

dif-

rt a first

ions,

d by

ncils,

this

20ve-

and evi-

pro-

wn, and Petersburgh, Jan. 29, 1721,

' It is notorious in what an unjust and in-• jurious Manner our Resident was sent away from the Court of England; which having done us 2 great and sensible Wrong, ought f naturally to have engaged us to use Reprifals, according to what is practifed every where else; but as we perceive that all this ' is done without any Regard to the Interest of England, and only in Favour of the Hanoverian Interest, for which the Minis-' ters of Great-Britain, not only neglect the · Friendship of foreign Powers, but do not even spare their own Country, which more nearly and more fenfibly concerns them; we were unwilling that the English Nation, which has no Share in that Piece of Injuftice should suffer for it, and therefore we grant to them all Manner of Security and free Liberty to trade in all our Dominions.

THIS was the Opinion that every Court in Europe, as well as that of Russia entertained at that Time concerning the Conduct of George's Administration; and each of them considered the diffreshing Hanover, as the most certain Means by which to subject England to their Defigns. The Emperor being not a little irritated at this Hanoverian Breach of Honorin not keeping Treaties, determined to shew the English that their Attachment to electoral Interests, might be attended with Difadvantage to their own Country, and thereupon he entered into the Defign of creeting an East-India Company at Oftend: at the same Time the Misunderstanding between the Austrian Hanoverian was farther encreased, on the Account of an Affair between the Courts of Hanover and Mecklemberg.

AND as that Transaction has contributed not a little towards accelerating and encreasing the Calamities of this Country; permit me to lay before you as much of it as will be sufficient to elucidate in what Manner it proved so destructive to this Kingdom.

IT feems fometime before the illustrious House of Hanover had ascended the Throne of those Realms, there had arisen great Misunderstanding

Cit

of

pe

 \mathbf{n}

at p-

fb ts,

eir

ito

m-Iif-

ind the

s of

ited eaf-

mit

be

ous

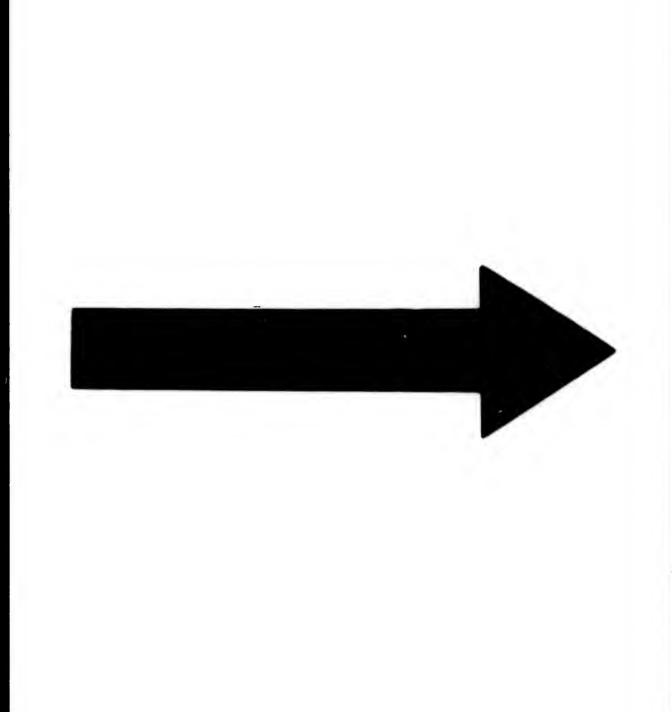

one Mif-

ing

understanding between the Duke of Mecklemberg and his Subjects, which Difagreement was encreased into violent Contentions, between the fucceeding Duke Charles Leopold and his Subjects. Soon after the Death of his Predecessor. The Subjects complained that he treated them with Injustice, Oppression and Tyranny, and their Sovereign aver'd that they behaving like Mutineers and Rebels, had disavowed all Allegiance to him. The Truth of which latter Affertion, there appeared the greater Reason to believe, because the Eloctor of Hanover, had not only afforded an Afylum to those who having committed great Crimes against their Sovereign, had fled to his Country, but rewarded them also according to the atrociousness of their Actions; all · which Protection and Encouragement were confidered by the Duke as proceeding from an Intent in George to create a Sedition, by which he was to be deposed by his own Subjects.

GEORGE being now feated on the Throne of England, the Subjects of Mecklemberg, excited to it by his Means, applied for Redress of Grievances, real or pretended to the Emperor of Germany, and in which they were vigorously sustained by the Elector of Hano-

ver,

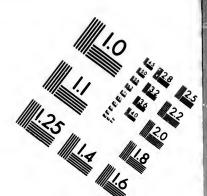

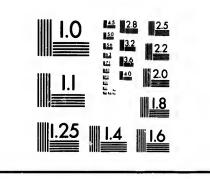

IMAGE EVALUATION TEST TARGET (MT-3)

Photographic Sciences Corporation

23 WEST MAIN STREET WEBSTER, N.Y. 14580 (V)6) 872-4503

STATE OF THE STATE

ver, and in Consequence of this Application; that Affair was laid before the Aulic Council; it is to be remarked also that at this Time, the Interest of George was extremely prevalent at Vienna, occasioned by that recent Breach of ministerial Faith with Spain, in the Treaty concluded with the Emperor, May 25, 1716. This being the Case, a Commission called a Conservatorium Imperiale, was speedily issued out August 21, of the same Year, impowering the Elector of Hanover, and Duke of Wolfenbuttel, as Directors of the Circle of lower Saxony, to superintend the Affairs of Mecklenberg, and to prevent the Subjects from the Oppression of their Prince; in Consequence of which Authority of the Conservatorium Imperiale, each of the before mentioned Princes of Hanover and Wolfenbuttel, were to march what Troops they thought necessary into the Duchy of Mecklemberg; these were to be maintained at the Expence of that Territory, and the Government thereof, which was renewed in 1717, was invested in these Princes. This without Doubt was a reciprocal Strain of Politeness on the Part of Austria towards Hanover in Return for George's having agreed to take Sicily from the Spaniard and Piedmontese, and give it to the Emperor, and no great

in

no

W

ch th oni

un≟ this

rely

reuin;

ror, omiale,

ame

ver;

s of

tend vent

their

ority f the

and

coops

y of

ained

the d in

This n of

vards

reed Pied-

d no

great

great Mark of Equity towards Duke Charles Leofold, whose Affairs were to be conducted by a Prince, who had not only given Protection to his Subjects that had fled from Justice, but even encouraged them in their rebellious Dispositions.

In this Manner Things being situated with Respect to Micklemberg, it was generally believed that a general Revolt would have been the Consequence of it, by Means of the Machinations of the House of Hanover, when Duke Charles Leopold being once deposed, he might be induced to sell his Right to the Elector at a small Price; and thus English Money might have been again perniciously squandered in that Purchase, as it had before been for Bremen and Verden. But as the Duke of Mecklemberg had espoused the Neice of the Czar, the Russian prevented in a great Measure the Design which George intended towards that Duchy.

IT seems however well disposed the Emperor had formerly been towards Hanover's acquiring Mecklemberg, the Peace which George's Ministry had lately concluded with Spain, by which according to the Tenor of Hanoverian Faith, the Emperor for thought himself dishonourably deserted, had created no small Resentment in the Austrian; and that Court begun Things with Eyes very different from those with which they had beheld them, when George had been their fast Ally: at which Time the Affair of Mecklemberg being again laid before the Emperor for his Decision, the immense Sum of Millions of Rix Dollars was reduced to that of Six Hundred Sixty Seven Thousand Three Hundred Ninety-nine, about a Hundred and Twenty Thousand Pounds Sterling. Now as the Electors of Hanover have ever been most exemplarily distinguished by the Love of Justice in detesting the Ideas of Avarice; complying with the Legacies and Donations of their Fathers Wills; and discharging the Debts which they had incurred by the Purchase of acquired Territories; ought it not to be concluded that the Emperor behaved like an unjust Chancellor, and the Elector as a righteous Claimant? and therefore that George had Reason to refent that Usage of reducing so egregiously his Demand, and of not taking the Money. In this Manner stood the Affairs of Europe, at that Time respecting this Kingdom.

DURING this Time the execrable Scheme of the South-Sea took Place, in which it will

C

th

tie

be seen that German Influence might not alittle contribute to institute that nefarious Bubble. It appeared to the Parliament that before the passing the Act for that Project, a fictitious Stock had been disposed of to several Persons, by the Directors, amongst which are to be found the venerable Names of the Duchess of Kendal, the Countess of Platen and her Two Nieces, to each of which Ten Thousand Pounds had been given; and as their Ascendant over George was then publickly believed, it cannot be conceived but that it was bestowed with a View to obtain his Influence over his Ministers, to facilitate the passing that iniquitous Act; fuch was the meretricious Power of German Harlotry over the Welfare of England supposed to be at that Time: and probably the late Queen, could she find a Method of discovering what she knows, might reveal many Instances of German Influence, operating to your Undoing; and in all likelihood there have been Bishops, Archbishops and others in high Office, who could have affured you, that the Prevalence of German Concubinage over the Interest of England, did not cease with the Death of Thus as a Nathe aboved named Harlots. tion, were you not facrificed to the Interests N_2

neme t will be

erted,

ı the

o fee

those

when

vhich

again

n, the

rs was

Seven

-nine,

uland

ors of

plarily

in de-

g with athers

h they quired

d that ancel-

mant?

to rely his

y. In

e, at

of Hanover by Ministers, and as Individuals imagined to be fold for the Profit of Concubines.

Notwitstanding this when the City of London waited on George to congratulate him on the Birth of the Duke of Cumberland, he took Occasion in his Answer to tell them he was concerned at the Calamity brought upon them by the wicked Management of the South-Sea Company; that the Cause of any Part of this Misfortune could not be imputed to him with the least Justice; and that he wished nothing so much as to encourage and revive their Commerce. From all which it must be concluded, that the German Queans had never requested him to promote the Scheme, though they had taken the Money, or that he had absolutely disregarded their Application; that he was Ignorant in what Manner his Alliances with France and Germany, against Spain, had been ruinous to your Trade; or that he valued the Preservation of Truth in that Answer, as little as his Minister did his Faith in Public Treaties.

THIS Answer relating to the South-Sea Scheme, which brought Ruin on so many Thousands, was not implicitly received by the whole Nation; and the manifest Proofs duals Conity of e him d, he m he upon f the f any puted iat he e and ich it ueans e the oney, their what Gern-Sea many d by roofs of us to ervaas his

of Hanoverian Interests presiding over the Welfare of England, as well as the Apprehenfion that future Times might yet be more Fertile in Mischief to this Country, operated fo strongly on the Minds of many People, who wished well to their native Land, that they conceived the mistaken Design of dethroning George. This being timely discovered, you were once more providentially faved from a civil War, which would not have been fo much undertaken in Favor of the Stuarts, as to be free'd from that Influence, which feemed to pernicious in the Eyes of those deluded Men. Thus your Blood was spared, and the illustrious House of Hanover still preserved to Reign over you, not having then completed the Intent, for which Providence thought fit to place it on the Throne of those Realms.

THE next Affair of a private Nature was the Harburgh Lottery, another Kind of Bubble which took its Name from a Town in the Electoral Dominions of Hanover; the Pretext given out to countenance it, was the fettling a Trade for your Woollen Manufactures between England and Germany.

This Scheme proposed the raising One Million Five Hundred Thousand Pounds on the

the above Account, and the Projectors made use of his Majesty's sacred Name to promote the Subscription. But as the Majority of a House of Commons exactly resembling in Integrity and Defign, that which thanked his Majesty for his Treaty with the Regent of France, and granted him Supplies unenquiring the Motives, had refolved that this Rumour was spread abroad without the Authority of George; would it not be Infolence in Extreme, to believe he had in any Degree given Encouragement to this Lottery, particularly when from the whole Series of his Conduct, it is feen in what Manner the Interests of England were so strictly pursued by him.

SUCH having been the Proceedings of George's Ministers in England, and such the Transactions of public Affairs amongst the different Powers of Europe; I come now to lay before you, even more conspicuous and flagrant Proofs of the satal Effects of Hanoverian Influence over English Councils.

THE Congress of Brunswick and that of Cambray, having proved ineffectual to adjust the Differences of the Princes whose Interests

de

ote

a

111 ed int

n-

iat

he

n-

in his

ole

nat

 \mathbf{fo}

of

ch

a-

re

al-

n=

F

terests were agitated at those Places, they entered into separate Negociations whereby to accommodate their Affairs.

THE Czar and the King of Sweden were upon a Treaty of Alliance to support the Pretentions of the Duke of Holftein to Blefwhich George had guarrantied to Denmark; the Apprehension of this Union between the Czar and the Swede, created no little Trepidation also on the Account of Bremen and Verden; the Regent of France and King of Sprin had been reconciled when Peace was made between the last named Court and this of England; and the Infanta of Spain had been espoused to the young King of France; these two Crowns being again thus firmly united, exerted their Power to induce the Czar to join the Alliance; at the fame time, more advantageous Treaties were offered to tempt England to give up not only Gibralter, in Consequence of a Promise, which George in a Letter under his own Hand had made to the Spanish Court, and in which were the following Words. 'I do no longer bal-· lance to assure your Majesty of my Rea-5 diness to satisfy you with Regard to your Demand, touching the Restitution of Gibraltar, e ralter', but even Minorca also. Besides these, he was to oppose the Osten Company, which proceeded from its vifibly interfering with the French, and defift from intermedling in the Affairs of Italy, on which Part of Europe, Spain had formed fome Designs for her Family against the Emperor. These Treaties, in Favour Commerce, were undoubtedly devised by France and Spain, as Motives to induce the English to be filent under the Injuries which they must suffer by the Loss of Minorca and Gibraltar, and might or might not be complied with thereafter, as Spain should chuse; but the Surrender of the above named Places being once compleated, there could be no Revocation on your Side of the Question, and they must in all Probability be gone for ever; but the Argument which it was conceived would operate most effectually on George, was the Protection of Hanover from the Czar and Swede, of which he was in continual Dread, from the Treaty in Agitation between the two latter Powers.

In this perplexing Intricacy of Circumstances, George's Administration was not yet hardy enough to comply with the Demands of France and Spain respecting Minorca and Gibes

n-

n-

m

on

ed

he

of

by

he

ich

ind

mse:

la-

be

on,

for

on-

on

om

in gi-

n-

ar-

nd.

6-

Gibraltar, to part of which his Letter confirms he was not difinclined, he was afraid the advantageous Offers of an increased Commerce, might not appear in English Eyes a sufficient Compensation for the real loss of two Ports, so essentially necessary for sustaining your Mediterranean Trade; particularly as at that Time the Clamours against Spanish Depredations, offered strong Reason to believe that the Court of Madrid would observe no new Treaty of Commerce, with more good Faith than it had the Former.

AT this Time however that the Hanoverian Dominions might be as safe from Injury as he could well place them, he entered into a more intimate Alliance with Denmark and Prussia, to oppose the Storms which seemed gathering to blow upon them from the Ruf-Jian and Swede; but as the King of Sardinia, the Dukes of Tuscany, Parma and Modena, had in their Memorials protested against the Treaty of London; and as France and Spain feemed well inclined to unite in their Support, and Hostilities were ready to break out; George's Minister was lost in a Labyrinth of Treaties, without a Clue which might conduct him into Safety. HE

He found himself on the Eve of sustaining a War against France and Spain, if he determined to support the Treaty of London, and against the Russian and Swede, if they should attack Hanover or her Dominions, without all Aid but that of Denmark and Prussia: the Emperor bing resolved on as a Person not to be affished or considered as an Ally on the Account of his Decision of the Mecklemberg Affair, and Resusal of the Investure of Bremen and Verden, to this perplexing Dilemma was this Nation reduced by a Train of Treaties made to the Ruin of England, and for the aggrandizing Hanover.

The Union of the French and Spanish Courts, being now so strengthened by the Espousal of the Infanta, together with the preceding Circumstances already mentioned, formed a Situation of great Embarassment; and every Thing appeared dark and threatening all around the Horison of George's Politics; the Emperor France, Spain, Russia and Sweden, ready to unite, if not in Alliance, at least in operation to distress him as Elector of Hanover, by attacking his German Dominions and as King of England, by obliging his Minister to diplease the People of that State, by their insisting on his Master's complying with

ning

de-

adon,

they

and

on as

as an

f the

e Inper-

ed by

in of

anish e Es-

pre-

pned,

ent;

aten-

Poli-

and

e, at

or of

nini-

his

tate, ving

vith

ver.

with his Promise of procuring the Surrender of Gibralter. In this Manner the Thunder of divine Wrath feem'd to be breaking on his Head, for his Ministers having sacrificed the Welfare of great and grateful Kingdoms to the Advantages of a paultry German Electorate, the Rights of Freemen on the Altar of Slaves. During this Moment of Intricacy and Distress, one unforeseen Event, like the Sun diffipated the prevailing Darkness, relieved George from his Abyss of Difficulty, and offered him a fresh and yet more favorable Occasion of rendering this Nation the most flourishing and happy, which Heaven seemed originally to have intended it should be, by dividing it from the Continent. It was the fudden Death of the Regent of France.

But alas! the same baneful Planet of Hanover, still reigned in the Ascendant, and darted its malignant Rays with full Power upon the Councils of this unhappy Nation. No Favor from Heaven could cure the reigning Sin of completing your undoing by adhering to German Measures; the Death of the Duke of Orleans, and an Apprehension of the young French King's dying from an Indisposition which he then felt; together with the Dread of a civil War breaking out, in O2 Consequence

Consequence of such an Incident, created a Resolution in the French, to send back the Insanta, who must be yet many Years older, before she could consumate her Nuptials; and marry their young Monarch to a Princess, immediately capable of bearing Children; and this Design was accordingly put in Execution. The Insanta was sent back to Spain, and Madamoischle Bearjolois, the Regent's Daughter, who had been espoused to Don Carlos, was returned on the Part of Spain.

As the Defigns of Providence are utterly unsearchable, it is impossible to decide where ther Heaven had graciously offered this favorable Conjuncture of making England happy, as a fresh Tryal to prove whether George's Ministers at length touched by Gratitude, would pursue the Welfare of two Kingdoms, which had been generously given by a great People; or as a Proof effectually to convince you, that no Confiderations of your Advantages could ever influence the Heart of those that directed the Councils of that ungrateful Hanoverian, when the Interests of England came in Competition, with the Views of ferving his Electorate. Whatever might be the Design of Heaven at that Time, certain it is that never fince the first Sun blest the Surface Surface of the Earth, hath there risen so auspicious an Opportunity of reducing France and establishing the Felicity of this Nation.

IMMEDIATELY upon this Indignity offer'd to the Crown of Spain, the Affairs between the Emperor and that Crown, which had been fruitleffly treated at Cambray, were proposed to the Mediation of George. What an unexpected, ample and honorable Opportunity was here offered, of repairing all the Misconduct of the former Part of his Reign; Spain and the Emperor united in the fame Views, completed the Possession of that great Object of the War against France, during the Reign of Queen Ann; the Neglect of which in the Treaty of Utrecht, at that Time remained the constant Cause of Execration in the very Ministers of George, tho' they were then more criminally opposing your Union with those two Powers. Now it was that the Fleet and Troops of England, might have driven France from all her Colonies on the Globe, and fixed this Nation the Empress of Commerce, in permanent Superiority, whilst Spain and the Empire were attacking it by Land. But alas! Hanoverian Refentment against the Emperor on Account of the Affairs of Mecklemberg, Bremen and Verden, lder,; and neefs,; and ntion, and nugh-

ed a

the

atterly. whefavornappy, eorge's ititude, gdoms, by a o conf. your leart of ngratef Engews of ght be certain. est the

Surface

Verden, like Milton's Sin and Death, who by a Bridge have joined this World to Hell, still linked this Land to the Electoral Dominions, by a broad Way which led to your Perdition.

George refused the Mediation which was offered him by the above named Potentates, notwithstanding which, the Courts of Vienna and Madrid, without the Intervention of a third Power, concluded an Alliance April 30, 1725, and George became the more ftrict Ally of France, by a Treaty concluded at Hanover the same Year. By the Treaty of Vienna, Philip was acknowledged King of Spain and of the Indies by the Emperor; with Promifes never to oppose his Possession of the Territories granted him by the Treaty of Utrecht; he granted also the Investiture of Tuscany, Parma and Placentia, to the Queen of Spain's eldest Son, provided these Dukedoms should have no natural Heirs; and Philip agreed to guaranty the pragmatic Sanction, that is to preferve the Dominions of Austria to the Emperor's Successors of either Sex; the Austrian Subjects were to enjoy peculiar Advantages in Commerce with Spain, and Spain guarantied the Trade of Oftend, to the East-Indies, and to pay Austria an annual

ho

ell,

niur

as

es,

20

a

·il re d

of \mathbf{f}

n

y

f

n

hual Subfidy of four Millions of Pieces of Eight.

In this Manner did the Ministers of George conduct themselves, to the Ruin of your Trade, and preventing the Advantage which might have been derived from that Union of Austria and Spain, towards which so many Millions had ineffectually been squandered, during the Reign of Queen Ann.

AT this Time however by a Speech from the Throne, which is ever to be conceived, as the Expressions of the Minister, and which George, not perfectly understanding your Language, might not comprehend, this Alliance with France, was declared to be in Favor of the Protestant Interest, and Balance of Power, with equal Truth, indeed as in the preceding Reign; it was now become a Protestant View to support France, which it had before been a Protestant View to depress, and the Balance of Power demanded the Weight of England, in the Scale of France, against Austria and Spain, which in the Wars of Marlborough, required England with Vienna and Spain, to equipoise the Powers of the French Monarchy; fuch were the palpable Contradictions composed by Ministers, and delivered by the Lips Lips of George, to the Parliament of England, and by such fallacious Arguments, ye were ministerially duped to Hanoverian Views, and your own Destruction.

Besides this, terrible Discoveries were said also to be made concerning the Engagements entered into by the Emperor and Philip, at the Conclusion of the Treaty at Vienna, against the Welfare of this Nation.

THE Emperor in Conjunction with Spain, was to attack Minorca and Gibralter, and restore them to the Court of Madrid; they were to destroy our East-India Trade, by that established at Ostend; the Subjects of the Emperor were to be indulged with such commercial Favors by Spain, that your Trade must thereby be ruined with that Kingdom: all which tho' Reasons against joining France, renouncing Spain, and giving up that beneficial Alliance were promulged as Arguments, for having deserted Philip, and united with the French.

ADDED to these the never-sailing Pretender, Popery and Slavery were to be established, Fire and Faggot, and Smithsheld in a Blaze; Don Carlos was to espouse the elected.

dest Archduches, in Consequence of which after the Emperor's Death, he would be chosen Emperor; it was assured also his Father and elder Brother would die, and then he would be King of Spdin; in like Manner it was affirmed the King of France could not live, and then Carlos would enjoy that Crown also; and thus uniting the Empire, France and Spain under one Head, become universal Monarch, and towards the perfecting all these Events the Czarina was to subdue Sweden and Denmark.

THE Absurdity of those Rumours, is almost too ridiculous to need an Explanation. By what Means could the Emperor affist Spain, in subduing Minorca and Gibralter, who had no Fleet, and that of Spain, in no Condition to oppose yours; had they contrived Wings like Dædalus, like his Son also they had not perished in the Waters?

In like Manner by what Means could the Ostend Company have destroyed that of England? The Dutch whose India Trade, would have suffered much more than yours by that Company, were under no such terrible Apprehensions.

P

Ат

ten = efta=
d in el= deft

nds

rere

faid ents

, at nas

ain:

and

they

that

Em-

om-

rade

om:

ince; ene=

ents,

with.

AT that Instant your Union with Spain and the Emperor, would have put an End to that Commerce which George declined; and uniting with the Views of France, to preserve her in Peace; encouraged the East-India Trade of that Nation which hath been fince, as it was then foreseen it would be, the Source of immense Wealth, travelling from England into France, by smugled Teas and other Indian Commodities; and much more pernicious than the Ostend Company in all probability ever could have been. Besides Ostend is fo fituated, that scarce a Ship in going in, or coming out, can escape without being seen and taken by your Men of War; and therefore no Trade can be supported from thence to the Indies without your Consent; by a Power which did not possess a single Ship of Force to protect it; in like Manner what Benefit could the Emperor's Subjects draw by their Commerce with Spain, without your Connivance; when you could at all Times have been Masters of the Channel and Mediterranean, and lastly, had Don Carlos married the Archduchers, would the Prince of Austrias, who is now King of Spain, and the present King of France, notwithstanding the politeness of his Nation have died on purpose purpose to compliment him with their Crowns, and make him universal Monarch.

As to the Emperor's bringing in the Pretender, by what Way would he have effected it without a Fleet, or even joined with the Spaniard? Could the feeble Navy of Spain have failed to Austrian Ports, taken on Board the Emperor's Forces, and landed them in England without Opposition?

Besides would the Austrians so absolutely have forgotten their Interest on a Union with Spain, which might be but temporary, and have renounced the vast Advantage of having a German Elector on the Throne of England, which must be eternal: by whose Interest the Austrians had before been supported with Thousands of Men, and Millions of Money; and place a Family on the Throne, which having no Connections with Germany, however grateful they might be to those who placed them there, would in one Generation at most forget the Obligation; and having no Territories pernicious to this Realm, nor Object to pursue, but the Welfare of England, must absolutely renounce all German Alliances.

P 2

AND

Spain and to and eferve India fince, ource perniprobalend is in, or feen there-other

hence by a nip of what draw ithout at all dand

Carlos rince , and tandd on rpose

And lastly, the Court of Russia positively proved the Falshood of what has been said, with Respect to her joining with the Emperor in Favor of the Stuarts, by a most solemn Affeveration, that no fuch Defign had ever been entered into with the House of Austria. Indeed the Thing speaks its own Improbability, would Germans ever exclude a Hanoverian Elector from this Throne of England for whose fole Interests you have been labouring fo many Years, at the Neglect of your own, and thereby deprive themfelves of the Advantages of all that Money, which obtained in Trade, Commerce and Agriculture, by the Labor of your Hands, and Exertion of your Genius in those Articles, has for fixty Years continued to travel into that voracious Realm of Germany to your almost irremediable Ruin.

Notwithstanding all this appeared so extremely improbable and ridiculous to the Eyes of all Men of common Sense; a notorious Prelate was then employed in a most elaborately nonsensical Pamphlet, to prove the Probability of all those Events being completed to the Ruin of this Constitution; as he had been before to the Destruction of all Religion; for which iniquitous Service, he was foon after fplendidly rewarded; fo meretorious was the Writing in favour of Irreligion and national Ruin confidered in the Reign of George the first. Down with the haughty House of Austria, the Balance of Power is lost, no Popery, no Slavery, no Pretender, the Protestant Cause for ever, and the Bleffings of the Hanover Succeffion. were trumpeted from the Pulpits of the Sectaries, at that very Moment when England was undoing by Hanoverian Influence over the Ministers of this Nation; and all this Clamour was excited in Favor of an Alliance with France against which in Favor of Germany the like Clamor had been formerly cherished with equal Industry; and propagated by the same insidious Throats. To fuch Power of Farce the Minister and his Banditti were then arrived.

However, to avert the malignant Defigns of this approaching Danger which was purposely expressed to be so threatening, George was granted by the Parliament, all that he desired; and upon a Message, tat more Money would be wanted to fulfill his Engagements and Designs, a Promise of supplying his suture Expences was returned.

How-

rely faid, npefohad e of own clude ne of have Neghemoney, e and lands, Artitravel my, to red for the noto-most prove being ution; ion of rvice, he

However, as none but the most glaring Ignorance, could be dup'd by fuch conspicuous Absurdities, nor the most abandoned, give them Countenance, it was whisper'd to the chofen Ministerial Profligates and their Followers; that tho' Vienna could not affift Spain to take Minorca and Gibralter, Spain might affift the Emperor with Money to conquer the Electoral Dominions; and that the Fear of fuch a Proceeding had been the true Cause of concluding the Alliance at Hanover with France and Prussia; than which a more execrable Treaty hath never been ratified fince the Almighty pronounced let there be Light: for by this Means, France, your most formidable Rival was supported, which might have been absolutely undone; your Trade facrificed with Spain your most natural Ally, which it was your Duty to cherish; and England and yourselves duped to the contemptible Views of the Elector of Hanover by George's Minister.

George having completed the Treaty of Hanover, in returning from his Electoral Dominions was near being shipwrecked: the very Element which surrounds this Island, resenting the Sacrifice his Minister had made of this Queen of Oceans, to a barren Electorate torate, determined to take Vengeance of the Violence which had been committed: fuch feemed to be the Inclination of Things inanimate on your Account, whilst you remain'd unmoved and unresenting it; yet alas! had he been buried in the Waves, what Happiness could have accrued from it to this afflicted Nation.

In Confequence of this Hanoverian Treaty, which on the Face of it appeared to be defensive only, the Nation was aftonished to see three formidable Fleets equip'd, one of which was fent to the Baltic, under the Command of Sir Charles Wager, in aid of Electoral Measures, a Second on the Shores of Spain, to intimidate that Nation, and prevent its fending Money to the Emperor, to put his Armies in Motion to attack the Electoral State; a Third to the West-Indies under Hosier, to prevent Spain also from complying with the Terms of her Alliance, by hindering the Plate Fleet, to return with their Treasure, this last of all Actions the most nefarious and inhuman.

et

e, d,

; oft

to \mathbf{d}

of

 bf

al

THESE three Fleets like the late Expedition, returned without attempting to effect any any Thing, and probably occasioned by Causes similar to the present.

To fuch prepofterous Measures you were driven by the Influence of Hanoverian Councils over English Conduct; your fellow Subjects perished by Disease, your Ships by Rottenness, your Honor by Perfidy, and your Nation by Lofs of Trade and immenfe Expence, only to revenge the Elector of Hanover, on the Emperor of Germany, who would not violate the Right of the Duke of Holstein, to Bremen and Verden, by an Inveftiture in Favor of George's Territories, which your Money had bought for him; nor condemn the State of Mecklemberg to pay what he demanded, and which the Emperor in his Conscience was convinced was four Times as much as was justly due to the Elector; and which was afterwards settled in that Manner. Instead of Millions demanded Seven Hundred Eighty-nine Thousand Eight Hundred Fifty-fix Rix Dollars were accepted, being in English Money not quite One Hundred and Forty-five Thousand Pounds.

Notwithstanding the Treaty of Hanover, concluded between Prussia, this Kingdom and France, the Emperor of Germany re

1/2

W

by ur

X-

10-ho

of

ref-

ich

on-

hat

his

es as

and

ner.

un-

red

eing

dred

Ha-

this

any

many, foon found Means to work upon the King of Prussia, and withdraw him from that Alliance, in hopes of sharing in the Conquest of Hanover, the Consequence of true German Integrity, which no Ties of Blood nor Affinity can bind: this imparting fresh Dread to the Soul of George, a Treaty was purchased with your Money, to oppose their Defigns, by an Annual Subfidy, to Sweden of Fifty Thousand Pounds, and by another with Denmark with the Money of France, whose Interest it was for the Regentto keep all quiet at that Time in the North, and indulge George's Minister in exhausting England by Subfidies, and preserve his Master entirely his Ally, should the Emperor and Spain attack the Gallican Dominions: besides this another Purchase of his fellow Creatures in Support of Hanover was made with your Money, by his Minister at Hesse-Cassel, the common Market for supplying the Slaughter-Houses of human Nature; thus again your Interest was neglected, and your Money squandered on the former unequal and ignominious Occasions. Soon after this the Siege of Gibralter was begun, under the Command of Condé de las Torres, an Undertaking so ridiculous and Lopeless, that it never could have been thought of, but for some secret Motives which induced the the Spaniard to the Attempt. George's Minister who before by the Treaty of Madrid, and by the Letter of his Master, had promised to deliver up Gibralter to the Spaniard, was intimidated from complying with it, through Fear of what might be the Event of such a Proceeding in England.

This Want of Compliance it was which operated in the Spaniards, chiefly to continue the Depredations of their Gurda Costas: that Minister at this Time however defiring above all Things to detach the Spanish Court, from that of Vienna, lest the Money of Madrid might enable the Emperor and Prusia, to conquer Hanover; without which he knew they could not well accomplish it, is justly supposed to have designed to acquiesce in doing fecretly, what he trembled to perform in open Day; and to have taken this Opportunity of a Spanish Siege, to let Gibralter fall into their Hands, and gratify Spain; the intended Purchase of a Separation between the Emperor and the Spanish Prince. This however was to be conducted as if the Place had been taken by Siege, that England might not be openly offended at so great a Sacrifice of her Interests, to those of Hanover.

AT this Time the Earl of Portmore, Governor of that Fortress, and then in England, in whom old Age had not effaced, nor Corruption alienated the Love of his Country, fuspecting that to be the Design, determined to take Charge of that important Fortress. Accordingly hedemanded all Things necessary for its Desence, which the Minister, though the most prosligate of all, who had till then superintended the national Assairs, was assaid to refuse, and probably believing that it must have been given up before his Arrival.

1-

h

nt

ch

n-

as:

ing. art,

Ia-

sia,

iftly

don in rtu-

fall

e in-

the

ow-

had ight

ifice

ind,

However at the landing of that Nobleman at Gibraltar, though that Fortress was found unprovided in all military Requisites, and almost ready to surrender on that Account, this his Patriot Design effectually prevented. An Action of more Consequence to this Nation than all the Victories of Marlborough, and of more true Defert: to which no Motive animated him but the Love of his Country. Thus Gibraltar was faved, and George's Minister disappointed in his Views of facrificing this Nation to Hanoverian Welfare; and an illustrious Proof afforded that one Nobleman yet remained, who prefer'd the good of his Country to all other Considerations. During these Transactions, an English Fleet had been sent into the Baltic, to join with that of Denmark, to oppose the Russian, and defend the German Territories in Case of an Attack by the German Powers.

At this Time the Czarina dying, George was freed from his Fears from that Quarter: and the Emperor not receiving the Spanish Money, and being deprived of the Russian Affistance, grew inclined to a Reconciliation with George, for Reasons which will be seen in the Sequel; an Accommodation of the Differences of Austria and Spain with England, was undertaken by the Court of Versailles, which was concluded with the Emperor; but some Difficulties arising between Spain and this Court, Hostilities were recommenced on the Part of Spain.

CEORGE at this Time intending to visit his darling Territories, was suddenly seized with a paralytic Stroke on his Journey, and left this World in great Agonies; at that Heart searching Moment. Whose Actions, tho they were generally allowed to be animated by Motives of Virtue, such was the Influence of his English and German Ministry, and such the Missortune attending the Ascendancy they had gained over his Affairs, which it was impossible for him to see through through or relist, that the following Portrait of those Times seems but too just.

er-

2012 ter: Io−

Af-

ion

een

the

ng-

er-

men

re-

his

ith

nd

art

Jos

ted

ury,

}∫-

rs, lee

gh

As Liberality was not the Virtue, nor Learning the Favorite of that Court, Arts, Sciences, and Literature languished under that Reign; the Wisdom of which confisted in purchasing your Representatives to your undoing, and Crman Princes to the Support of H——n Territories; both which the Ministery accomplished by Money levied on yourselves; the Politics of it in their Breach of Public Faith, and felecting the most profligate Associates for effectuating the most nefarious Purposes.

OF England's Revenues which could not be amassed, they were lavish in Extreme to fustain German Interests, of the Hanoverian, of which the Elector was absolute Master; they were equally parfimonious, though neces. fary for the Preservation and Advantage of his subjects. Thus whilst your Ministers were ruining this Nation by a Profusion of Supplies fquandered in G-n Measures, the Hanoverians were oppressed by a criminal Parsimony, scarce possessing without the electoral Coffers, Money sufficient for the common Necessaries of Life; and each Action, the

the Extravagance and Avarice, manifested an utter Insensibility to the Miseries of human Kind; Proofs incontestable that this rapacious Appetite after English Treasure, sprung not from the palliating Motive of rendering the Hanorians more free and happy, but from the ministerial Thirst, which like that of German Princes, after encreasing Dominions, and the Number of slavish Subjects, was for ever craving and insatiate.

THE Truth of the prevailing Veneration for the English Constitution, the Acts which were passed during that Reign, irrefragably contradict; that Report was engendered, fostered and sustained, by the fallacious Tongues of insiduous Placemen, Pensioners and Sectaries, who joyfully beholding themfelves cherished, the established Worship in Disgrace, and their Country running precipitately down to Ruin, to conceal the ministerial Designs from your Enquiry, and promote their own Interests, ascribed to those in Power every Virtue which God had denied them, and which were almost as many as can exist.

In the Speeches from the Throne, the Diminution of the Public Debt was greatly recommended, in Messages to the House, German Nature prevailed, and Money was asked to support the Views of the Electorate, ministerially disguised, under the Terms of promoting your Welfare, so that the national Mortgage, which was Fifty Millions at the Beginning of that Reign, and which by a righteous Administration might have been reduced to Twelve, during its Continuance in almost universal Peace, was encreased at the Conclusion of it, by foreign Subsidies and German Purchases.

18

ot

ne

he

an

he

jer

ion

ich

bly

ed,

ous

ners

min

ipi-

lte-

10-

e in

ied as

the

tly

re-

Asin Public Transactions you were by your Ministers basely bartered for the Encrease and Support of Electoral States, so in your private Concerns you were profligately truck'd away, as the genuine Merchandize of German Prostitutes and Pandars.

In Youth Libertinism, in Age Avaritiousness, to be Tyrants over Wives, imperious to Successors, and cajol'd by Concubines, characterized many great Personages of that Reign.

Anxiety in Excess possessed the ministerial Band, when Evil seemed but to threaten Hanover, unfeeling in the same Degree when Calamities actually befel this Kingdom;

dom; you were pillaged without Remorfe, and probably the affected Admiration of private Life in particular Persons of high Rank, prevailed through Avarice and the conscious Insufficiency of Qualities which are requisite to support true Dignity.

LIKE the Foxes in Lapland, which change Colour to accommodate themselves to the Seasons, Men changed Religions to adapt themselves to obtain Power, Honour and Advantage. As Lutherans they profesfed to believe Consubstantiation on the Continent; asof the Church of England to renounce it in London; Presbyterians whose Principles disavow all Heads of Churches; by the Oaths of Allegiance, fwore the King poffessed that Title and Authority; and whilst their Lips were pressing the Sacrament of your God, in Conformity to the established Worship and the Constitution, their Hearts rebelled against both, and their Actions immediately gave the Lie to that holy Test of Truth; which Behaviour created in many Minds a rational Opinion, that they would have renounced all Protestantism and subscribed to Transubstantiation to have obtained greater Advantage, and enjoyed more extensive Power; and this Sentiment was strongly supported ed by the Manner in which they trifled with Conscience, and vindicated those Ministers who preserved no public Faith, where the Electoral Insterests came in Competition with the Honour and Advantage of your Country.

THE fingular and prevailing Sentiments in which it was inviolably persevered, during that Period, were that few German Electors were the Fathers of their Wive's Chi'dren, which made them careless who were Heirs of their Dominions. That all Sovereigns ought to be despotic, as the Effect of which, it was Pain to behold the liberal Countenance of a free People, which constantly reminds Men they are not absolute, and for which Reason it was frequently the Custom to indulge the Lust of Despotism in the Company of Slaves. And lastly, that Englishmen ought to labor for Wealth to wanton away on German Purpofes; in Confequence of which, your Minister had no Mercy on your Liberties and Properties. So confummately Hinoverian was the Temper of the Times, it does not appear the august Donation of these Realms, created one Moment's Gratitude in the Hearts of your King's Ministry.

FINIS,

norfe, ration high the which

which afelves ons to onour orofef Contiounce

nciples by the g pofwhilst ent of blished

Hearts mme-Truth;

Minds have cribed reater

Powported

