explained the junctions and the time London would be reached. Left to himself, Mason handed over the dogcart to the hostler at the inn, paid his bill, and again walked to the deserted farm.

There was little fear of comment or inquiry caused by a disappearance of the inhabitants of the Grange House. He and "Dr. Williams" were the only residents even slightly known to the distant village.

practicing Philip's voice between the puffs when Mason returned with the valet. The scene, carefully rehearsed by Grenier in all its details, passed off with gratifying success.

TEMPERANCE IN HALIFAX

How the Temperance Alliance of the City of Halifax has Appealed to the Citizens.

The Temperance Alliance of the city of Halifax, which has already done much effective work, has issued the following appeal to the citizens of Halifax: To the Ratepayers of Halifax: Ladies and Gentlemen—The Halifax Temperance Alliance respectfully appeals to you for your assistance in suppressing, as far as possible, the licensed liquor traffic in this city.

In the first place, we wish to disclaim any feeling of hostility towards the citizens who are engaged in this traffic. They are pursuing a calling made lawful by their fellow citizens.

The bar room as operated in this city is injurious to the health, the morals and the business interests of the citizens. The traffic in intoxicating drinks is the most serious of the evils of the city.

Without arguing the point, the fact remains that drunkards are made by the licensed saloon, and by withholding license the individual citizen relieves himself of the responsibility for the traffic, and lays the burden of the enforcement of the law upon the city officials.

1.—To the laboring men, many of whom would be practically total abstemious if the open saloon did not exist across their path.

2.—To the mechanics, whose efficiency and industry is lessened by the drink habit.

3.—To the business men, whose success is largely dependent on the sobriety of their fellow citizens.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS

MARRYING MARY AT THE OPERA HOUSE MONDAY

Marrying Mary is the title of the bright, breezy concoction which enthused the large audience so much last evening that they encored the various numbers over and over again.

Scene From Marrying Mary.

FAREWELL PERFORMANCE AT OPERA HOUSE TONIGHT

The Selman Stock Company will tonight give the farewell performance. "All the Comforts of Home" will be the play; this was presented Labor Day Matinee and was a success.

At present, the only knowledge the Turkish lady has of the outside world is what she has read in books, and what she has heard from her foreign sisters.

AT THE PRINCESS

There will be a special matinee at the Princess Theatre to-day. The programme of moving pictures is one of the best yet presented at this popular family amusement resort.

There was, however, one exception, Alfred Francaeur, a retired grocer, who testified that they supplied their goods to the government under competitive tender and had to cut rates to the bone to secure the commission of two per cent.

McGILL CRAMPED FOR FINANCES AT PRESENT

Principal Peterson Says the Institution Will Have to Restrict Operations if Money is Not Forthcoming.

Montreal, Sept. 11.—Unless McGill University receives greater financial support from the community almost immediately the university will have to restrict operations and cut down expenses.

FREDERICK CHIEF DENIES THE CHARGE

Chief of Police Winters Says He Received No Rush Money.

Fredrick, Sept. 11.—The adjourned session of the police commission to enquire into the charge against Chief of Police Winters was held this evening. Dr. Atherton was called and examined by Mr. Phinney.

MONCTON TO SPEND $50,000 ON STREETS

Moncton, Sept. 11.—At tonight's meeting of the city council, an elaborate report on permanent streets and sidewalks was submitted by the committee, which has been gathering information for some time.

FUTURE STATUS OF TURKISH WOMEN

They Will Enjoy Freedom Under the New Constitution of That Country.

Everyone knows the secluded life a Turkish lady has had to lead up to the present. With the new Constitution, however, and its reforms, life is going to be changed for those who have been kept in the background so long.

At present, the only knowledge the Turkish lady has of the outside world is what she has read in books, and what she has heard from her foreign sisters.

Up to this time the matter of education has been a hard question, and has been surrounded with all sorts of difficulties, but even so, the results are marvelous, especially in the way of languages.

The present dress will only undergo a slight modification. Instead of the shapeless out-of-door cloak, the Turkish lady can now wear well-fitting dresses, or jackets and skirts, and be as smart as any of her European sisters in public.

The joy shown on all sides is truly pathetic, and the cause for such rejoicing is very easily understood when one knows and can realize the lives they have had to live in the past.

The investigation has now temporarily adjourned until October 6, as both judge and counsel have a great deal of other work to attend to in the meantime.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS INSTALL NEW OFFICERS

Moncton, N. B., Sept. 11.—National Grand Deputy W. J. Mahoney, St. John, assisted by District Deputy Waddell, of Halifax, to-night installed the officers of the new lodge of Knights of Columbus, recently organized here, as follows: Grand Knight, F. J. Sweeney; Deputy Grand Knight, Dr. L. U. Bourque; Chancellor, H. F. Hamilton; Recorder, David Legre; Financial Secretary, Camille Boldrean; Treasurer, Robert Kelly; Warden, Joseph Graham; Advocate, Frank Murphy; Inside Guard, Dr. P. J. Gallagher; Outside Guard, C. J. Cassidy; Trustees, J. M. Lyons, J. A. Geary, H. H. Melanson; Chaplain, Father Savage.

WILSON'S FLY PADS One packet has actually killed a bushful of flies.

Broadstairs, England, Sept. 11.—The British steamer Lake Michigan, from Montreal, August 29, with passengers for London, which stranded yesterday, was floated today. Tugs will dock her at Mill street.

The Evening Times

ST. JOHN, N. B., SEPTEMBER 12, 1908

The St. John Evening Times is published at 27 and 29 Canterbury street, every evening (Sunday excepted) by the St. John Times Printing and Publishing Co., Ltd. A company incorporated under the Joint Stock Companies Act.

THE EVENING TIMES, THE DAILY TELEGRAPH. New Brunswick's Independent newspapers.

These newspapers advocate British connection. Honesty in public life. Measures for the material progress and moral advancement of our great Dominion.

No graft! No deals! "The Thistle, Shamrock, Rose entwined, The Maple Leaf forever."

GO TO THE FAIR

This evening the exhibition will be formally opened. The theory which lies behind such enterprises is that they benefit the community in which they are held and are profitable to the people generally.

THE MAYOR'S DUTY

The Times would be very reluctant to say anything that would injure the prospects of any legitimate enterprise in the city of St. John, but the line must be drawn at the prize ring.

YOUTH AND PLAY

In her report as convener of the playground committee of the Woman's Council, which was published in the Times this week, Miss Mabel Peters referred to her efforts to arouse interest in the scheme to establish a great public playground on the stretch of marsh at the entrance to Rockwood Park.

In comparison with the previous one. The club intend in the early spring to make further improvements, and continue the policy of encouraging amateur athletic sports.

CROPS AND PROSPERITY

The New York Journal of Commerce states that the September crop report in the United States shows wheat mostly harvested and practically beyond further injury, with a crop of 608,706,000 bushels, which is 32,700,000 bushels more than last year's crop.

An indirect effect of considerable potency will appear in the exportation of the surplus of grain and cotton. Therein high prices will be of some advantage to the country in swelling credits abroad and increasing our command over foreign products and foreign capital.

POLITICAL CORRUPTION

Commenting on Mr. R. L. Borden's remark that he would prefer a defeat after an honest election to victory by dishonesty, the Montreal Witness says: "That is Mr. Borden's comment on the tomato election at Colchester."

AT THE STATE FAIR

You may prate about your theatres, your concerts if you like. You may go to see Salomy do the barefoot many like.

IN LIGHTER VEIN

TOO MANY OF THEM. The old soldier was in a talkative mood. "Did I ever see Wellington? Why, of course I did."

IN TRAINING

Walter—I see that Jones has entered in a walking match. Has he had much experience? Walter—Experience! What the man has owned a cheap motor car now for three years.

REVERSED HISTORY

It is now discovered that Cleopatra taught a system of shorthand. No doubt she Julius Caesar spoke Egyptian and a written category in his Gallic campaigns.

NO CHANCE!

Prison Keeper—"That convict is what we call a trusty. We can put him at anything and he will be with you in a week."

COMPANIONSHIP

"You ask, was I lonely when I was cast away in the Pacific?" repeated the weathered traveler with feeling. "Well, I tell you straight that I was so desolate that I killed up to a jellyfish, and before I got off that island I'd taught him to sit up and beg."

CANT CURE IT.

Parasols for use in the evening are the latest thing, but we do not anticipate any decrease in the number of "moon-struck" people.

TEACHING BY PICTURES

Cincinnati Woman Attacks Comic Supplements at Congress of Playgrounds Association of America.

(Brooklyn Eagle, September 9.) The second day's session of the second annual congress of the Playground Association of America was opened this morning with special conferences and committee meetings at the American Museum of Natural History, Seventy-seventh street and Central Park West, Manhattan.

Miss Maud Summers, of Cincinnati, who conducted a special conference on "Story-telling in the Playground," delivered an address in which she attacked the comic sections of the metropolitan Sunday newspapers. She said:—

"The comic supplement of the Sunday newspaper is lowering the standard of literary appreciation, and debasing the morals of the children in this country. Here evil is aggrandized and emphasis is placed upon deceit, cunning and disrespect for gray hairs. This sheet teaches children to laugh when boys throw water from an upper window upon an apple woman, or outwit an infirm old man."

Humor has its place in the literature of children, and it would be well if gifted writers for children could be found capable of substituting genuine fun for the coarse, vulgar type now so prominent."

Miss Summers then put the question: "Who shall tell these stories?" In her opinion this is a serious problem which calls for deep study. She urged the special preparation of librarians, kindergarten and social workers for the task, and pointed an inspiring picture of the mission which the teller of tales has in his or her power to fulfill.

"In the end," said Miss Summers, in conclusion, "the playground as a finished product should give beauty and perfection, not only to the body of the child, but also to the soul. It should include training in the 3 H's of head, heart and hand, as well as training in the 3 R's of reverence, respect and responsibility. No lesser ideal will satisfy those who see the possibilities of the playground in adding to the sum of child happiness and betterment. At present, in the playground the chief emphasis is placed upon the development of the body."

At another special conference Miss Josephine Beiderhase discussed "Athletics for Girls," and at a conference on "Equipment" Seth T. Stewart was the speaker.

SANITARY FLOORING.
 B. MOONEY & SONS believe they have one of the very best flooring materials yet produced. The originators of Bedford Flooring have made many improvements since its first introduction and have it as near perfect as any floor laid in plastic can be made.
 It can be laid on wood or iron, is superior to tile in that there are no joints, and it does not work loose or have any cracks to collect dirt.
 Not only the floor, but the base board and wainscoting may be made of it, adapting it especially for use where sanitary requirements call for watertight and dirt-proof floors.
 One of our claims is that Bedford Flooring does not crack or shrink, and never comes loose from wood or iron on which it is laid.

The Importance of Good Clothes

From the silex of Adam's time to the dress clothes of the present day is a pretty far cry, but that difference is not what is greater than that between the position which clothes occupy in social and business circles today and the comparatively ignominious part which they played in the days of long ago.

A Pretty Home-made Apron

A dainty little chafing dish or embroidery apron is shown in the accompanying cut, cross-barred fine white dimity being selected for the model. The edge of the apron is finished with a narrow green trim which was feather-stitched in pale green in a double row, with dots between, as pictured. The apron was edged with lace.

The band was a strip of embroidery binding, with wash ribbon in pale green for the trim. Pale pink or blue feather-stitching and dots, with ribbon to match, is also very attractive, the apron being of lawn, mull or sheer linen or dimity, as described. BEATRICE CAREY.

THE BRIDGE BUILDERS

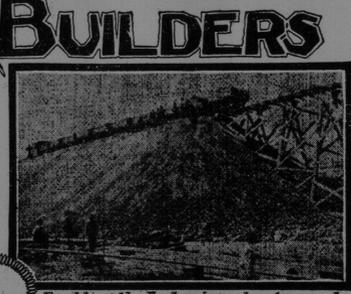

By Thomas Wilson

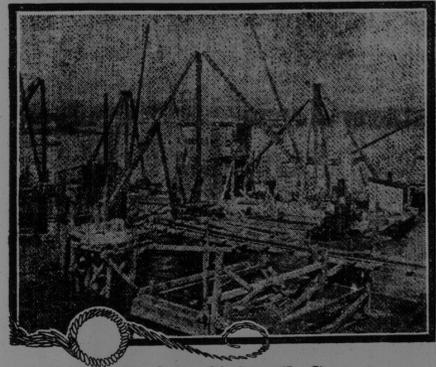

The Traveler

The Completed Structure

Building the Embankment or Approach

Direction of the Pier, Sinking the Caisson

IN the great advance made in mechanical arts and construction there is probably no thing that has reached such high degree of perfection as the bridge. When one speaks of a bridge it does not convey to the mind anything definite, as one knows that a bridge may mean any kind of structure from a pair of logs thrown across a gully to those masterpieces that span great rivers and across which thunder heavy trains.

Bridge building is probably one of the oldest of the arts of man. Even the primitive gentleman who wished to shorten his route either felled a tree or else constructed a crude but effective suspension bridge of wild vine. Perhaps the idea of a suspension bridge was gleaned from watching the monkeys as they held on to each other and swung from tree to tree, thus making the first living bridge which has, in the "human bridge," been adopted into modern melodrama.

To speak of the origin of the bridge is merely to speculate, but it is highly probable that the Japanese were the first to apply anything like scientific treatment to the structures by the adoption of the cantilever system, crude, though effective.

For spanning a stream of considerable width they laid two balks of timber, one in each side of the bank, and connected them with a third balk. A structure of this character still stands in Nikko and, though built more than 200 years ago, is in good condition.

ROMAN BRIDGE BUILDERS.

It was the Romans, however, who demonstrated to the world the art of building bridges that would not only answer the needs of the day, but would withstand the wear of centuries. They were the first people to utilize stone, and with the application of the arch, gave to the world the first instance of a structure of that character about 127 B. C., when the Pont de Rotto, or Senators' Bridge, was built.

Trajan built the most remarkable bridge of antiquity in the stone structure across the Danube, near Warkel, Hungary, it being 4,500 feet long and 60 feet wide. There were 20 arches having 175-foot spans, and the roadway was 150 feet high. This structure, however, was destroyed by Adrian on the pretext that it would afford a passageway for barbarians from the North.

For several centuries the Roman types of bridges were looked upon as being the only proper kind, hence most thoroughfares in Europe have stone bridges, though brick also plays an important part in construction.

Wrought and cast iron did not make its appearance in bridgework until toward the close of the eighteenth century, but since then there have been great strides in the use of this material, almost to the entire exclusion of stone, owing to the cost of the latter.

Stone, however, in the form of concrete, is once more claiming attention, and for short spans reinforced concrete will, no doubt, be the material of the future.

Throughout the world the advance agent of the bridge is the railroad, and what improvements have been made in bridge-work have been largely made by railroad engineers, and have been paid for by the railroad companies.

In the early days wood was largely used for constructing bridges, but with its increasing cost, its structural weakness and its cost of keeping up, iron and stone became the material. For culverts, stone and concrete are used, but for the great reaches across wide waters and gullies stone foundations are surrounded by steel lattice work.

These structures while light are strong. Kept well painted iron lasts for years and may be readily replaced without interfering with traffic, the worn parts being replaced with new in a very short time; indeed, these bridges are not infrequently entirely rebuilt from the first to the last bit of iron without making the slightest change in the regular schedule of the road.

INTERESTING CONSTRUCTION.

The building of one of these great highways of the air is most interesting. The approach is the first consideration, and is made to the bank on either side. Sometimes it is necessary to make a deep cut and sometimes a deep fill. In the latter case the earth is brought to the site in small cars and dumped until the embankment is completed.

In the meantime work on the piers between the banks is started, and it is laying the foundations for these piers that the greatest amount of labor is involved. In the beds of rivers quicksands are often encountered, necessitating the sinking of caissons to great depths. In such cases compressed air is used, and huge steel bottomless boxes are forced down from 50 to 75 feet to solid ground and filled with concrete.

Then begins the work of the iron-molders. The iron work, having been carefully set up and taken apart at the foundry and each part marked, is shipped to the site. Wherever possible, the engineers build from each toward the center, thus effecting a saving of time, but often it is impossible to do this and all has to be done from one end.

Beginning on the very edge of the spot to be bridged there is erected on rails a traveller, a curious framework on which are two or more derricks with long booms. With the derricks the long iron beams are swung into position and held until squads of men can bolt them together. Then follows a gang of riveters with portable furnaces and presently there is a portion of the bridge solidly put up.

The bits of iron are put together the traveller moves forward, stopping only when the last rod has been set and its portion of the work completed.

American engineers have erected some of the finest specimens of stone and iron bridges in the world; in fact, so high do our engineers stand in the estimation of foreigners that so rapidly do our mills turn out the necessary iron work that American firms have captured scores of contracts in South America, Africa, Russia, Asia and other countries where new railroads are being built.

Of suspension bridges the most notable examples in the world are to be found in New York across the East River and Hell Gate, but one of the most interesting suspension bridges is in a Colorado canyon. It became necessary to devise some sort of a structure to enable a railroad to skirt the edge of a cliff but above the flood mark of the stream.

After considering the location it was decided that the only kind of a bridge adaptable would be a hanging structure, and thus it was built, tied to the cliff at the platform but hung by rods by the outer edges.

MOVABLE BRIDGES.

Following the bridge as a means of crossing streams came the conversion of bridges into a means of defence for castles and even towns. These bridges were the first of the movable type and were used chiefly as bascules or drawbridges to span the moats surrounding the point of defence. Being of short span but little iron was used in their construction. They revolved or lifted about a single pivot, or trunion in a vertical direction, and were sometimes counterbalanced similar to a see-saw. They were very effective, but upon the introduction of gunpowder and cannon they became obsolete, as did the most and other forms of defence of the period.

With the advance of civilization and the spanning of wide and deep water courses it became necessary to provide for the interests of shipping which had advanced proportionately. Thus came the invention of the drawbridge at the channel.

The mediæval pivot or trunion bridge was early applied to the purpose, but it was not until the nineteenth century that there was much development in the movable bridge, when iron was largely substituted for wood.

For more than half a century the most distinguished engineers of Great Britain wrestled with the problem of erecting a bridge across the Thames River in the vicinity of the Tower of London. Owing to narrowness of the banks it was not feasible to build a subway on account of the great grades necessitated nor was it feable to build a high level bridge for the same reason. The desire to have the channel as wide as possible precluded the use of the swing bridge with its central pier, so there was but one type left—the bascule—and it was adopted.

This structure ranks as the finest of its kind in the world. It required eight years to build and represents an outlay of $4,000,000, of which $500,000 was expended for the artistic embellishment of the towers. In view of the bridge having a span of waterway 200 feet in width it stands for the highest development of that type. At the same time, owing to its slowness of operation and expense of maintenance, it also marks the culmination of the bascule, for since it was completed, in 1894, no large bridge of that character has been built.

In this country, however, the bascule received but little attention, every effort being directed toward the swing, suspension and high level types, and there are many remarkable structures that will stand as monuments to their builders.

In water-front cities where navigable waters thread their way into the very heart of the business district, the problem of bridges is all the greater. This swing bridge is highly objectionable on account of its central pier; indeed, the conditions confronting the engineers were identical with those that perplexed the Britishers at the drawbridge at the channel.

About 1893 William Scherzer, now deceased, invented a new type of bridge which bears his name, and which is known as a "rolling lift," a modern adaptation of the bascule, with the advantages of cheaper construction and higher efficiency. It is capable of a greater span than a swing bridge and when open it forms a positive barrier on either side.

This bridge has opened a new era in the spanning of narrow waterways and not only is it coming into general use in this country but a structure of the type has been erected across the great Neva River leading to the Winter Palace of the Czar of Russia at St. Petersburg.

WHERE BIRD MEETS MAN UNAFRAID

By Wm. A. Du Puy

Bird Life is Beautiful on the Reservations of the Bull at Nazco

A Sooty Tern New to the World

THE Game Preservation Bureau of the national government has created a common ground where the hunter and the bird may meet in fellowship with no threat for one or the other nor fear of death on the part of the other. Moreover, the hunter is taking advantage of the opportunity offered, and the wild things of the air are seen to partake in the hand of man in the open or to brazenly parade their young for his inspection.

BIRDS KNOW SAFE SPOTS.

This condition of affairs comes about through the establishment of bird preserves of small areas in various parts of the country, the number of these having now increased to 15, ranging from Florida to Alaska. The work has gone forth in kind of the nature, location and extent of these preserves and naturalists are assigned at the evidence that is given by the birds of their understanding of their rights when within the prescribed limits.

In the District of Columbia, for instance, there is a regulation to the effect that quail may be shot in that section which lies below a given railroad bridge. Hunters complain that no sooner is a gun discharged in the fields outside of the preserve than every bird soars away beyond the bridge and that in the protected section they are as careless of the presence of a man with a gun as of a cow grazing in the meadows.

COVERED WITH BIRDS.

Pelican Island, on the east coast of Florida, is the nesting place of thousands of the birds from which it takes its name, and these are practically the pets of hundreds of tourists that visit this congested bird metropolis every year. The preserve is but a sandbank of four acres, but is the seat of the only colony of pelicans where a preserve in 1931 there seemed almost the complete extermination of these birds. Collectors of quails for hat adornment would often visit the island and kill the pelicans by the score. Egg collectors would bear down upon it and carry away hundreds of specimens in a single day. Finally the state passed laws protecting the non-game birds and, in conjunction with the Audubon Society, the island was given protection. In 1903 the president, by executive order, set aside the island as a bird preserve, and a warden was appointed as a federal officer, as well as a representative of the Audubon Society.

In the past few years the pelicans have increased prodigiously upon the island. Its surface is a mass of them and the birds have come to realize their safety, and man creates less stir among them than he would in a sarayard. When persecuted at other points along the coast the pelicans are known to take up a residence upon the island and immediately assume the air of landed proprietors.

WILD BIRDS EAT OUT OF THE HAND.

Dr. A. K. Fisher, of the Game Preservation Bureau, reports that he recently personally witnessed Canadian geese and various specimens of ducks feeding from the hands of the keepers of Golden Gate Park, in San Francisco. These were not birds that were regularly kept in the park, but untamed ones that had stopped for a few days in the course of their migrations.

Similar conditions have been reported from the various preserves, the demonstration of the development of friendship being the more marked the longer the preserve has been guarded from the sportsman, thereby giving the birds an opportunity to develop confidence in man. The evident tendency is to return to the conditions of Robinson Crusoe's island, where the animals and birds were reputed to be so unacquainted with man that they had not learned to fear him. Such conditions are further reported to the bureau to now exist in the Sandwick Islands by scientists who have visited them in recent years. The peculiar incident cited in this connection is the amusing dancing albatross, which indulges in quadrille-like festivities, embracing much balancing to partners, hewing and swinging on the corner. These birds are not afraid of man, and if when he approaches he bows the bird will respond to his salute in kind.

To the preserves that had been previously established had been added during the past year Tern Island reservation, the home of laughing gulls, at the mouth of the Mississippi; the Shell Key reservation and the East Timbalier Island reservation, the latter formerly a military post, both off the coast of Louisiana, and frequented by pelicans, ducks and man-of-war birds; the recently beautiful Three Arch Rocks reservation, on the Oregon coast, frequented by California murres, the tufted puffin or sea parrot, cormorants, petrels and many other varieties, and finally the three reservations on the coast of Washington, inhabited by various birds and colonies of seals.

100,000 DUCKS A YEAR.

Breston Island reservation, at the mouth of the Mississippi, when taken in connection with the Audubon reservation, which adjoins it, is the greatest hatchery for ducks in the world. These islands were set aside as a game preserve by the president in October, 1904. The action was taken upon receipt of reliable information showing that there was a definite plan on the part of certain hunters to devastate the island of its game. Plans had been made for the slaughter of 100,000 ducks during the winter that was beginning when the executive order was issued. On these islands it is now estimated that 100,000 terns are bred each year in addition to many other kinds of ducks and other birds. All of these, including swarms of mallard ducks that come down from the north, seem to recognize their safety on the islands and instinctively take refuge there.

DUCKS GETTING WISE.

Another example of the conduct of feathered things upon a preserve where they are safe from hunters was recently observed at one of the tourists' hotels on the Indian River in Florida. For a mile around the hotel the shooting of game is prohibited. The wild ducks coming from the South seem to soon become aware of the fact that while it is the part of wisdom to take flight at the remotest approach of man outside of the protected area, they may swim freely all about the hotel. One enthusiastic hunter even induced a wild canvasback to swim up to the dock and eat bread from his hands.

In Central Park, New York, similar action has been observed on the part of the usually shy duck. A number of these are kept in the lake at the park, being prevented from flying away by having their wings clipped. Flocks that are passing overhead often light in the lake after seeing these decoys. They never stay longer than three or four days, but during that time become remarkably unafraid of man. A flock of them one day alighted on the pavement at the Fifty-ninth street entrance of the park in the midst of hurrying crowds of people and many of them were forced to take care that they did not step upon the ducks. Henry Oddy, of the Game Preservation Bureau, who is an eminent bird authority, witnessed this happening.

The Stump Lake reservation, in North Dakota, four islands containing 23 acres, were set aside in 1905, and it has been already observed that it furnishes a haven of refuge for the birds of the whole section during the season of open shooting. Whenever the hunters become too numerous the birds resort to the islands, evidently appreciating their safety there, and remaining until the danger is passed.

GRIZZLIES GET FRIENDLY.

The birds are also protected in such large game preserves as Yellowstone Park and the Wichita game preserve, in Oklahoma, which has been recently created with more than 2,000,000 acres of protected area. In the Yellowstone Park the proprietors of hotels are often forced to chase the grizzly bears away from their antelope barrels with dubs, and deer and antelope graze in broad daylight on the parade grounds of the government fort, and are not frightened away by the firing of the sunset gun. It is even asserted that a great grizzly once entered the lobby of a tourist hotel and insisted upon registering, but this occurrence is not vouched for by the government bureau.

Vital, however, it is asserted that there is going to be a common ground where man and the so-called lower creatures may meet in friendship and harmony, with no danger of the spilling of blood and smoke the peace pipe as they get better acquainted.

UNKNOWN MARVEL IN DUTCH NEW GUINEA

It was reported years ago that a snow-crowned mountain, more than 20,000 feet high, had been seen in the far interior of New Guinea. As the description of the mountain was vague and corroborated by the report was lacking the story came to be regarded as mythical.

Perhaps, however, it was founded on fact. The fine snow mountain just discovered in the eastern part of Dutch New Guinea may be the summit that was reported, though the peak which H. A. Lorents has seen is not so high by a mile as that which was said to be, for its culminating point is only 14,700 feet above sea level. Its estimated elevation, however, is subject to correction because its height was only computed at a long distance. Mr. Lorents has named the mountain Wilhelm Peak in honor of the Queen of the Netherlands.

A picture of it, taken at a distance of 50 miles, shows a grand summit, the upper part of which, or all that could be seen of it above the ridges intervening between the explorer and the mountain, was entirely covered with snow. This is the latest discovery of the Dutch in the vast eastern part of their colony, which, except along the coast, has until recently been a blank on the maps.

For two years, however, while exploration has been at a standstill in British and German New Guinea, the Dutch have been busily studying the eastern part of their domain. The region is so vast that they have made only a good beginning in the work of revealing it, but they have found the Digoel, Noord and other large rivers and have proved that the Charles Louis range of lofty mountains extends far to the east.

Lorents had hardly begun the ascent of the Noord River, when Wilhelm Peak came in view. For weeks the dazzling white picture that seemed to hang in the clouds was always before him. His progress was slow, for new tribes never seen before were encountered, and the advance had to be cautiously made. He could buy no supplies from them, they deserted their little villages when his vessel came in sight, and shot arrows at his party from the high grass.

The Dutch explorers are all instructed to shed blood if self-defense does not require it. Though Lorents scarcely saw the natives, he found abundant evidence that they had not emerged from the stone age. They have no weapons or vessels made of bronze or other metals, though numerous arrow heads and utensils of stone were found. If Lorents had been able to make those natives helpful it is likely that he would have climbed the mountain. But his progress was so slow that he reached only the lower mountains between him and the peak when the impending exhaustion of his supplies compelled him to go back.

He returned to Holland with the story of his journey and his pictures of the mountain. He will go back to New Guinea as soon as possible, equipped to reach the mountain and to push still further into the unknown interior. He wishes to be shown whether there are glaciers as well as snow on the peak and whether it is perpetually covered with the crown of white.

The highest point in British New Guinea, Mount Victoria, is only about 1380 feet lower than Wilhelm Peak and is covered with grass to its top. German New Guinea has mountains as high or higher than the Dutch summit, but as yet we have no reason to believe that any of them has a perpetual snow cap.

WHERE THE PEACOCK REIGNS

The little native State of Mourhans, known as the "Peacock Kingdom," is the most northerly of the tributary states of Orissa, and native chronicles relate that the principality was founded more than 2,000 years ago. The chief emblem of signature is a peacock, which is held sacred, and hence the killing of this heraldic bird is strictly forbidden throughout the state. The state has an area of 4,242 square miles, and the country is varied in soil and scenery. It abounds in rich valleys, but a vast extent is clothed in primeval forest. The Maharajah of Mourhans is an enlightened prince and administers his state on modern British lines. The government is divided into separate departments, as in British territory, and each department is under an officer, who is responsible for its administration.

Sericulture is being encouraged and mulberry groves have been planted. The culture of Tassar silkworms is an important industry, and visitors to the recent industrial exhibition at Calcutta, India, had a good opportunity of seeing the "Tassar" manufacturers of the state. The country is very rich in minerals and forests, but while the latter are being exploited, the former still awaits the attention of the mining experts.

SPORTS OF THE DAY

BASE-BALL ATHLETICS THE RING THE TURF AQUATICS WRESTLING

MANY ATTRACTIONS IN THE LINE OF SPORTS FOR THIS AFTERNOON

Baseball, Football and Clifton Road Race Should Furnish Lots of Fun.

A bout between Billy Papke and Jack (Twin) Sullivan for the middleweight championship of the world is the ambitious programme for the next boxing exhibition in St. John. It was announced yesterday that John T. Power has signified his willingness to put up a purse of $3,000, winner to take sixty per cent, and Mike (Twin) Sullivan, who is in the city, is willing to post a $500 guarantee on behalf of his brother at any time. The match would be for twenty rounds at 155 pounds at the ring-side. When Jack went down to defeat before Stanley Ketchell he weighed in at 155 pounds, too light for a man of his build, and his supporters believe he can best Papke at his favorite weight. The bout, if held here in the Victoria rink would, it is believed, draw hundreds from Boston, New York and Philadelphia and would be by far the biggest thing in the pugilistic line ever seen in St. John. The Mayor will be asked soon relative to a license and negotiations with Manager Jones for Papke and Mike (Twin) Sullivan for his brother, will be carried on. Jack is now on the coast and would like very much to get a chance at the new middle-weight champion.

Tartars and Marathons

The game today on the Victoria grounds between the Fredericton Tartars and the Marathons should prove a good one. It is some years since a Fredericton nine has been seen in this city, and everyone knows the brand of ball furnished by the Celestials has always been first-class. The teams will be as follows:

Table with 2 columns: Tartars and Marathons. Lists players for both teams including positions like Catcher, Infielders, Outfielders, and Pitchers.

National League

At New York-New York, 4; Brooklyn, 1. At St. Louis-St. Louis, 2; Chicago, 8. At Pittsburgh-Pittsburgh, 2; Cincinnati, 1. At Philadelphia-Philadelphia, 7; Boston, 2. American League. At Washington-Washington, 2; Philadelphia, 1. Second game-Washington, 2; Philadelphia, 4. At Boston-New York, 4; Boston, 2. Second game-Boston, 6; New York, 1.

Baseball, Football and Clifton Road Race Should Furnish Lots of Fun.

At Detroit-Chicago, 4; Detroit, 2. At Cleveland-St. Louis, 1; Cleveland, 4. Eastern League. At Baltimore-Baltimore, 5; Providence, 2. At Buffalo-Buffalo, 6; Rochester, 2. At Toronto-Toronto, 0; Montreal, 6. A few more entries are expected this morning.

Rugby Football

The first Rugby football game of the season will be played on the Shamrock grounds this afternoon between the Algonquins and Carleton. If the baseball match between St. Peter's and D. J. Britt's team does not materialize, the game will commence at 4 o'clock and if the baseball game is played, the football game will be called immediately afterwards.

A "Soccer" Match

A football match will be played after the baseball match on the Victoria grounds this afternoon. The match will be between the McAvity and Cornwall & York teams. The line-up will be:

Table with 2 columns: McAvity and Cornwall & York. Lists players for both teams including positions like Goal, Forward, and Back.

Clifton Road Race

The Clifton A. C. road race is to be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from Brookville to the Clifton house, a distance of five miles. It promises to be a good race. A sackboard will leave the Clifton house at 1.15, to take the runners to the starting point. The Clifton house has placed a room at their disposal.

CHARLOTTETOWN BEATS MONCTON IN GOLF MATCH

Moncton, N. B., Sept. 11.—(Special)—The Charlottetown golfers on their way home from St. John, stopped over here and played the Moncton club this morning a twenty-seven hole match. The visitors won by seven points, the score being:

MIKE TWIN AND FOLEY TO MEET IN CHATHAM

On Tuesday night next Mike (Twin) Sullivan and Tom Foley, of Halifax, will give a five-round exhibition of boxing in Chatham, and it is expected a large gathering will attend. The match will be one of the strong drawing cards of the exhibition time then as the boxes can be depended upon to give a clean, scientific exposition.

NEW INDUSTRY.

The property belonging to J. Mayer & Son's, Coldbrook, will be taken over shortly by the "Coldbrook Excelsior Company" for the manufacture of excelsior flocks, etc.

HARRY VAIL HERE FOR A FEW HOURS

Noted Oarsman Arrived on the Calvin Austin Yesterday and Left This Morning To Visit His Home in Gagetown.

Harry Vail the noted rowing coach arrived on the Calvin Austin yesterday and departed this morning for his old home at Gagetown. For the greater portion of this season he officiated as coach at Georgetown University in Washington. In Virginia, District of Columbia and Maryland, the Georgetown senior and junior crews defeated all opposing crews. As his duties with the university terminated with the inauguration of the annual vacation period he again returned to the supervision of the Harvard World Rowing club's crews at Boston to which he had given his undivided attention for sixteen years. Prior to returning to the Hub, Harry acted as head coach at the Aerial Rowing clubs in Baltimore for several weeks and the effects of his master hand were perceived when the Ariel crews developed into contenders for the initial positions. Under his tutelage the World crews have improved remarkably and likewise the Georgetown oarsmen. He expects to be signed again by the university and informed a Times representative that it is probable he will winter here before resuming his duties. Harry attributes his success to his abstemious mode of living. He says he feels in excellent health and his appearance certainly attests to his statement. He weighs in the neighborhood of 180 lbs. He saw the championship regatta in Springfield and in speaking of John O'Neil the Halifax oarsman he commented the Halifax highly as an excellent sculler but is of the opinion that he is not properly rigged. He was gratified to learn that Frank Greer was a St. John man. The champion he said is a finished single sculler and the superior of Harry Bennett at any time or place. To ascertain if the strenuous life militates against longevity or causes enlargement of the heart the veteran oarsman consulted a physician who pronounced his heart and other organs to be in the normal state and he was in otherwise perfect condition. To demonstrate to his friends that he had not lost all of his prowess with the oar Harry jumped into a shell at Baltimore one afternoon and outwaded an aspiring sculler. Harry's home is in Cambridge, and his wife is a former Gagetown girl. He anticipates remaining in Gagetown for several weeks. The Dunlap, Cooke Co., Ltd., Furriers to H. R. H. The Princess of Wales, were awarded the Gold Medal at the Halifax Exposition closed on Thursday last. They are just completing a magnificent display case of some of the best fur ever shown and one indeed of the most valuable. The branch of this firm are St. John, N. B., 54 King street; Halifax, N. S., 78-80 Barrington street; Amherst, N. S., corner Victoria and Havelock streets; Winnipeg, Man., 469 Main street; Boston, Mass., 167 Tremont street. See advt. on exhibition page.

NELSON'S CAREER

Something About the Man Who Defeated Joe Gans on Wednesday.

Battling Nelson, who defended his right to the lightweight championship so forcibly against Joe Gans, at San Francisco Wednesday night, has a long and enviable record. Nelson is a Dane, being born on June 5th, 1882, at Copenhagen, Denmark. In 1900, when he first commenced to appear in public, he won quite a few bouts and also lost several. He landed some six knockout blows, won about six decisions, drew three or four, and lost one or two bouts. The following year, 1901, he appeared in the ring against well known boxers of that time in such cities as Chicago, Milwaukee, Cairo, Rhineland, Fondulac, and several others. He drew with several boxers that year, but then landed a couple of knockout blows, and lost but one fight, and that went to Eddie Slantry in six rounds, boxed at Chicago. Some 11 fights marked the next year of Nelson's career as a boxer. About 5 were fought in Chicago, a couple at Hot Springs, and the others in several smaller cities. Frank Collins, Kid Ryan, Billy Rosser, Puddin Burns, Elmer Mansfield, and Christie Williams, all received knockout blows from the Dane. His record does not show a single defeat for the year 1902. 1903 was an exceptionally busy year for Nelson's career as a boxer. About 5 years, 1904, '05, '06 and '07, were much the reverse, only a few fights being participated in by Nelson during those four years. In 1903 he fought some seven bouts in Milwaukee alone, and others in Hot Springs, Kansas City, and other cities. Again in this year, Nelson went through with all of his engagements without a single defeat scoring several knockouts. Nelson commenced to meet boxers of some prominence the following year, 1904. He participated in but seven engagements this year, but among his opponents were Young Corbett, whom he defeated, and Jimmy Britt, to whom he lost in 20 rounds at San Francisco. He fought five bouts in 1905, his five opponents being Young Corbett, Abe Attell, Kid Sullivan, Jack O'Neill and Jimmy Britt. With Corbett he won, with Attell and O'Neill no decisions were given, while with Sullivan he drew, and Britt he knocked out. But two fights marked the year 1906 of his career. No decision was given for the fight with Terry McGoovern, seen in the bout with Joe Gans he lost on a foul. In 1907, Nelson lost to Jimmy Britt, in the 20th round of their fight at San Francisco.

EFFICACIOUS PRAYER

Pittsburg Sept. 12.—Prayer for rain was seemingly answered with great despatch here, and many church-going gowns were ruined in consequence. There had been no rain here for weeks, and the laying of the corner stone of the Mount Washington Baptist Church the entire congregation knelt in the open air while a lengthy petition was made for rain. As the prayer the corner stone laying was continued but could not be finished before rain came in torrents.

ENTRIES FOR THE HORSE RACES AT SUSSEX

There Will be a Two Day's Meet on Sept. 22 and 23 For Which Good Cards Have Been Secured.

The horse races to be held in connection with the Sussex Exhibition promise to be among the best yet seen on that track. Jesse T. Prescott, chairman of the race committee, was not discouraged by the failure of horsemen to enter on the original dates and took a trip to Halifax, where he interviewed leading horse owners, and so great was the success that the management will offer races on Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 22 and 23. The entries are:

AUSTRALIA'S UNDERGROUND RIVER.

There are comparatively few rivers of any size or importance in Australia, and a local learned professor of science has been explaining the reason. In consequence of the geological formation of the commonwealth, most of its rivers are at present imprisoned subterranean streams. He declares that one of these underground rivers is the largest in the world, being no less than 200 miles wide and running right through the centre of the continent. If these vast supplies of subterranean water were brought to the surface and properly utilized "Australia would become the richest country in the world."

THE OVERDUE VESSEL LIST

The long overdue British bark Carondek Llewellyn, from Calista Buena to Falmouth, and insured at 90 per cent, is said to have reached port. The captain of the British ship Kildallon, now at San Francisco, is reported to have been advised of the arrival of the vessel at Falmouth. The news is not confirmed, but if the report is true, those who speculated on the safety of the vessel will earn a very large return upon their investment. The Carondek Llewellyn left the South American port 157 days ago. From 40 per cent, the rate for insurance on the British steamer Aeon of the Australian Mail Line, which is now fifty-seven days out from San Francisco for Sydney, has jumped to 50 per cent, and the prospect is becoming more serious. As a strange coincidence two steamers due at Auckland about the same time as the Aeon are placed on the overdue list at 10 per cent. They are the steamers Britia Monarch and Baron Minto. Both sailed from St. Lucia on June 26th and 25th respectively, and have not since been heard from.

LORD KITCHENER'S BROTHER.

Few people here are aware that Lord Kitchener has a brother who is also a British General. He is Lieutenant-General V. Kitchener, who has been appointed Governor of Bermuda. His military record includes a good deal of war service, beginning with the Afghan campaign of 1807-1880, and ending with the relief of Ladysmith. During the Dongala expedition of 1896 he was director of transports, and when Khartoum fell he was made military governor of the Mahdi's former capital.

STOCK SELLING RAPIDLY.

Yesterday an order was received by the Dixie Asbestos Company for TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS' worth of stock from a Montreal financier, who recently inspected the property. The general demand for the stock has been large, and the outlook is very promising for investors.

LATE LOCALS

St. John Exhibition, September 12th to September 19th.

James McRae, remanded to jail for wife-beating, has been liberated for the second time.

The Norwegian bark Anitra arrived Tuesday at Weymouth to load pulp for England shipped by the Campbell Lumber Co.

Registrar Jones reports fourteen marriages during the present week. Also twenty-two births, sixteen of which are males.

Rev. J. W. Kierstead will be the speaker at the Every Day Club temperance meeting to-morrow evening at 8.30 o'clock.

A meeting of the South African veterans will be held in the board of trade rooms on Wednesday night to discuss the Western land grants.

James Walsh, an old man arrested on Cliff street yesterday afternoon, suddenly collapsed this morning and was with extreme difficulty resuscitated by Dr. Bertram.

Rev. J. S. Smith, L. L. D., will preach morning and evening tomorrow in the Ludlow street, West Side, Unitarian Baptist Church. Evening subject "Grounds for our belief in the Gospel."

John O'Brien, a teamster, while driving into a barn on the famous old yard off Richmond street, struck the top of the doorway with his head, knocking him from the load and severely injuring his back. He was taken to the hospital.

Portland Methodist Church, Pastor Rev. N. McLaughlan, B. A. Morning service at 11 o'clock. Wednesday evening service, at 7 o'clock. Miss Beattie M. Scott, superintendent of Deaconess Home and Training school, Tuesday day school 2.15, Bible study union 2.30.

The case of Sayre & Holly vs. Rhodes Curry Co. of Amherst, was continued in the circuit court yesterday afternoon and adjourned until Monday. The case is brought for $1,000 for lumber, but the defendants resist the claim on the ground that the timber was unfit for car building.

Capt. Fred A. Robinson is getting his power boat Moto in readiness at Digby to take a party of friends to the St. John exhibition. The trip across the bay and return, if the weather is favorable, will prove a pleasant outing and we know the whole affair will prove an enjoyable event. (Digby Courier.)

Zion Methodist church, Rev. James O'Leary, pastor—Service at 11 a. m., subject, "Christ's Remedy for Heart Trouble." Sunday school and Bible class at 2.30. Evening service at 7.55 subject, "Christ Seeking the Lost." Class meeting, Thursday at 8. Prayer meeting on Friday evenings at 8. Strangers invited.

Alexander Crawford, until recently driver of No. 2 Hove, was sworn in a policeman this morning to fill the position on the force vacated by the late William Howell, who is compelled by ill health to resign and seek health in a less rigorous climate, and has been extended a lengthy leave of absence. He will depart for the West in the near future.

The Halifax exhibition commission has decided that next year there shall be no vaudeville and no fireworks, thus cutting out the night show. There may be a few minor acts to enliven the grandstand between races in the afternoon. The commission reasons that the receipts at night do not pay the cost of expensive special attractions.

On Tuesday the captain of the Norwegian bark Madura, which has been here for some days in search of a charter, received orders from his owners to proceed to Mobile and seek a charter there. The Madura came here from Rio Janeiro on the 11th. The incident is a most unusual one and shows the dullness in shipping. The Yarmouth bark Brookside, now lying here, has not yet been chartered at Yarmouth Light.

POLICE COURT

Frank Lavigne, aged 16, arrested on King Square last night charged with stealing hat pins from girls and sticking them in persons, admitted taking the hats from the hats of his female acquaintances with their consent.

It transpired that the youthful prisoner was unable to read or write, a fact which the magistrate commented on very strongly.

The family arrived here from Windsor three months ago. In speaking of immense throughs His Honor told of being in Quebec at the Dufferin Terrace, where it is estimated 14,000 people had congregated. They were absolutely no acts of disorder. St. John people are all right remarked the magistrate but a few black sheep cause all the trouble. Finally the prisoner when asked to plead directly to the charges of theft and assault pleaded not guilty.

James Walsh was remanded and William Monahan of Prince Edward Island fined $4 or ten days for drunkenness. Sarah Lobb reported for lifting the gates in front of the depot said she was unaware that she was committing an offence and was reprimanded.

AURORAL DISPLAY

The most brilliant auroral display that has been witnessed here for a long time illuminated the heavens last evening. The crowds on the squares and streets paused again and again to gaze upward at the wonderful dancing columns of light as they waxed and waned in the clear sky. Cries of admiration were heard on every side. The electric telegraph service was somewhat affected during the height of the display. Before midnight the last pale thread of light had passed and the moon in meridian splendor reigned supreme.

PERSONALS

Sir Charles Tupper leaves Winnipeg on September 15th for England. The announcement is remarkable owing to the extreme age of the statesman who is now in his 88th year.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Hanington, of Dorchester, are at the Royal.

W. D. Gould, of New York, arrived in the city last night.

Mrs. G. W. Hamilton and daughter, Daisy, have returned from a very pleasant trip to Montreal and Toronto, where they had taken in the exhibition, Miss Daisy being very much improved in health.

DR. L. A. CURREY TO SUE FOR DIVORCE

Mrs. Currey Files a Counter Suit and Has Employed A. H. Hanington as Counsel.

Dr. L. A. Currey has filed a bill for divorce against his wife and asks for the custody of his children. His wife will bring a counter suit against him. In his bill he alleges unmanageable temper and violence and striking the plaintive, kicking him, and throwing things at his head, and also neglecting her household, publishing untruthful accounts, neglecting in the Christian faith, devoting her time to fads and crazes, neglecting her children, keeping improper company herself and bad company for the children, teaching them bad habits, etc.

Mrs. Currey publishes a general denial of the allegations and states her intention of at once bringing counter suit. A. H. Hanington, K.C., is her counsel.

LECTURE ON MARRYING

The Rev. C. W. Townsend will lecture on marrying and giving in marriage on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the Victoria street United Baptist church, endorsed by Mayor Bullock. The lecture by this reverend gentleman on the above subject is likely to become one of the institutions of the country, as he will soon have given it 40 times. It never fails to interest and amuse an audience. Some people have heard it repeatedly and ever with new delight. It has been delivered in St. John Co. in Albert Co., Queens Co., Kings Co., Westmorland Co., Charlotte Co., in Great Britain, twice crossing the Atlantic and among the islands of the sea. Its humor is ever fresh, and never fails to elicit laughter from the most apathetic of audiences. Its fine peroration always sends a thrill through those privileged to hear it. While it is a serious purpose underlying its amusing and amusing and a powerful and eloquent plea for the sanctity of the marriage tie and the purity and happiness of home. Prices: Adults, 15c.; children, 10c. 1919-9-10.

A MISSION-BANQUET

The banquet in connection with the Layman's Missionary movement will be held in St. Andrew's Church on Thursday evening next when J. Campbell White will be present. Friday night's meeting will be held in St. Andrew's Church. The afternoon and evening meetings of Wednesday, Thursday and Friday will be held in the school room of St. John Stone Church.
