"S. L." Demands Cool Million Of Geraldine For Mud-Smirched Name

STELLA LARRIMORE AND HER ACCUSER, GERALDINE FARRAR.

New York, June 6. — "Can one woman smear another's reputation with mud and then simply say 'I take it back'?" Stella Larrimore, accused of misconduct with Lou Tellegen by Geraldine Farrar in her suit for divorce, answers her own questions in the heated negative.

Miss Larrimore's denial of having indulged in protracted "getting parties" with the stage Adonis in apartment house doorways and along Riverside Drive were so vehement that Miss Farrar withdrew her charges.

"But that isn't enough," complained Miss Larrimore. "If she lied about me, as her action admits, she ought to be prosecuted and punished. She has besmirched my name without justification. A simple 'I retract' will not do."

Miss Farrar's attorneys have withdrawn all mention of "S. L." as one of the co-respondents in her suit, have suffered to pay her a full bill of costs and strike all evidence regarding her from the record. But, in spite of this peace move, Miss Larrimore has filed suit for $1,000,000 damages for defamation of character, and declares she has "only begun to fight."

"A damaged reputation is no asset in show business any more," said Miss Larrimore.

Her plight resembles that of Flo Leeds, whose connection with the Stillman case has been found poor bait for theatrical managers. "Mrs. Leeds would not be an attraction," said Lee Shubert, Miss Larrimore seeks complete vindication, lest her services be similarly discounted because of the opera singer's charges.

course to try the newest dance when it disappears is to have a respite from the whims of Peralphore. FINE DRAMA AT OPERA HOUSE "Man Who Came Back" Thrills Many With Highly Dramatic Scenes.
In a play this week that calls for a greater degree of histrionic talent than any the company has yet put before a St. John audience the F. James Carroll Players ably sustain the reputation which has earned for them almost capacity houses for nine performances a week. This week they present "The Man Who Came Back." It is a play in five episodes, carrying the audience from New York to San Francisco, on to Shanghai, then to Honolulu, and finally back to New York. Two years and six months are occupied from outset to close and every scene is replete with action and acting of an unusually high order of merit. The title role is capably handled by Leslie Adams as Henry Potter, the dissipated and spendthrift son of a father whose god is the dollar and whose word is the law. Turning his only son adrift, the father has him shadowed through all his vicissitudes and at the end confronts him with a complete record of his every action from the time he left his father's house.

The members of the cast in minor roles played up well and did their part towards giving to the play the finish which is characteristic of the Carroll productions. The cast included John Gordon, John Hagerly, Clement Taylor, William Worswick, R. C. Benjamin, and Sylvia Farness.
It was announced that the F. James Carroll Players will close this season's engagement here next week with "The Brat." The Opera House will then revert to its summer policy of pictures.

It is here that the scene between the drunkard on the one hand and the drug-addict on the other keeps at a high pitch the nerves of the audience as the two characters portray so realistically the insane desires and arbitrary demands made upon their victims by their two passions. It is doubtful if in any scene yet acted by the Carroll Players the demands of their parts have been so exacting and called for such a display of true ability as the "dope scene" in Shanghai. The fall of the curtain was the signal for prolonged applause, and the audience seemed united in the belief that the curtain had fallen upon one of the best bits of acting yet seen since the season opened.
Thomas Potter, the martinet father, was played by Malcolm Arthur in his inimitable style. His irascible remarks brought forth much laughter as he issued ultimatums with one breath and cancelled them with another. The only thing in which he remained adamant was his determination to make his son get out and shift for himself.
Bob Lynn added to his laurels in the part of Captain Trevelan, scion of an ancient English family. In reality he was a private detective in the employ of Thomas Potter engaged in shadowing the erring son. He handled his part in his usual cool manner.
Mrs. Gaynes, aunt of the wayward son, was played by Dorit Kelton. She was well suited to her part, and, as usual, immediately won her way into the hearts of the audience.

PHILLIPS' WOMEN'S INSTITUTE ANNUAL MEETING

Victor Victorias and His Master's Voice Records, Picture Framing, Developing and Printing, etc.
49 Germain Street
NEW SECTION FOR C. OF E. INSTITUTE
Extension Will Provide a Good Auditorium—Present Building to be Remodeled.

The proposed extension to the Church of England Institute, now under construction, will provide for a good sized auditorium. The present building will be remodelled and improved. The funds for the extension, $10,000, were the gift of Senator W. H. Thorne. The plans for the structure were prepared by Neil Brodie and B. Mooney & Sons were given the contract for the work. It is expected that the building will be ready for occupancy by the fall.

The whole of the available space in the rear of the present Institute building is being used for the extension and a large hall, seating between 200 and 300 is being erected. There will be many rooms in the present building when the work is completed.

The whole of the western side of the present structure will be used as a book store and the library will be moved across the hall, occupying both the present front room and the rear cloak room. The partition between these two rooms will be removed and in its new form the space on the eastern side will form a commodious and convenient library, where reading tables also will be arranged.

What is now the reading room at the rear of the building will be made into kitchen premises and there will be steps down giving a direct entrance to the new auditorium from the main corridor of the Institute. The new kitchen will have an entrance from the new hall and also an entrance to the rear, separate from the main building. The hall also will have a rear entrance so as to make it possible to use the hall as a separate unit from the Institute. The hall is to be of good height, free from pillars and provided with a movable platform so as to be readily adaptable to all uses.

The large western room on the upper floor, now used as a meeting room, will be used as a reading room and the present kitchen on the upper floor will be removed to make room for the office of the secretary of the diocese. A strong room will be built in to give proper place for storing the records of the diocese.

The new structure will be concrete and brick and will have a flat roof so as not to obstruct the light from the windows of the upper storey of the present structure.

In the enlarged building there will be accommodation for carrying on all of the business of the diocese in orderly fashion and under one roof.

GAMBLER CONJURES "JINK" AND DIES UNDER SPELL
Bets on Outsider, Yells for Favorite, Collapses when the Horse He Backed Wins.
Buena Ayres, June 6.—At a horse race here recently an excited man attracted attention by shouting frantically the name of the favorite horse and the present kitchen on the upper floor will be removed to make room for the office of the secretary of the diocese. A strong room will be built in to give proper place for storing the records of the diocese.

On his body were found sixty tickets on the horse which did win, and no one could understand his excited support of the favorite until an old racegoer explained that this reverse method of support was used by some superstitious bettors who hope they did not want to win.

Camden (N.J.) Woman Had Been Engaged for Ten Years.
Camden, N. J., June 6.—On the eve of her wedding, Miss Clara Deacon, 33 years old, died here. The Rev. Rudolph Brästel, who went to St. Paul's M. E. Church to perform the marriage ceremony of Miss Deacon to John Schwartz of Audubon, will officiate at her funeral instead.

Miss Deacon died in Cooper Hospital after a week's illness. She was taken sick while preparing for her nuptials. Instead of accompanying his bride on a honeymoon trip to Washington, as had been planned, Schwartz will be the chief mourner at the funeral.

Edmund Deacon, a brother said: "Clara and John have been engaged for ten years, but the wedding was put off so that my sister could remain with mother, who was growing old and feeble. When mother died last November in her ninety-fifth year, the wedding date was set for this June. She was very happy preparing for her marriage when she was stricken."

THE HARBOR PROBLEM

When any member of the City Council talks about what might have happened ere this if we had adopted harbor commission, he should be reminded that the Government at Ottawa must approve of all harbor commission expenditures.

The Council that the present congested conditions in construction generally throughout the United States could be prevented in the future if knowledge could be widely and constantly disseminated as to the demand and supply of building materials and labor, and other relevant matters affecting construction costs.

THE BUILDING INDUSTRY.

Can the building industry be stabilized by spreading it over the whole year, instead of having a period of material and labor, to be followed by a period of idleness?

The attempt to restore by reforestation the white pine timber stands of New Brunswick, in areas not suited to any other purpose, is a most desirable enterprise.

This is exactly what has happened in the last month. The American Construction Council hopes to remedy this condition by "spreading the building peak over the year through rearing of the most non-essential construction."

The visit of so many members of the New Brunswick Tourist Association to Boston and the arrangements made for their reception will have the effect of giving this province as a summer resort a good deal of valuable publicity.

THE EVENING TIMES AND STAR, ST. JOHN, N. B., WEDNESDAY, JUNE 6, 1924

A MESSAGE FROM BEYOND THE VEIL

Letter Written by Mrs. G. F. Matthew on Day Before She Died—Refers to Proposed Memorial For Husband.

Almost as a message from one beyond the veil has come a letter received in St. John yesterday from Mrs. George F. Matthew, who died on Sunday at the home of her son, Dr. William D. Matthew, at Hastings on Hudson. Two poems enclosed in the letter will be read with tenderness by the many friends of the late Dr. Matthew and his wife and much of the letter is of general interest.

The letter was dated June 1 and was posted on June 2, the day before Mrs. Matthew died. It was in part as follows:

"Your welcome letter arrived a few days ago, but I have not been able to read it until today. I have been, as the old women say, 'bed fast' for the past week. This is my first day of sitting up and trying to write.

"It was a great disappointment to me that I could not go on with Harrison, who left yesterday for Gondola Point with the casket containing the ashes of my dear husband. I have somewhat recovered an old fashioned prejudice against cremation. As things were, it was the only way of having the final interment at Gondola Point. Perhaps you may be able to attend the funeral service to be held there on June 6. I will be there in spirit though not there in body. I know some members of the Natural History Society will be there.

"I am sending you two poems, representing to me what my dear husband is doing in Paradise today.

"I cannot but hope that something will come of the long desired new building for the Natural History Society as a memorial to Dr. Matthew. We must have patience, however.

"I wish you could have been with us at the funeral service here at the house on April 16. It was a beautiful service. Four of the seven children and families were with us and near show love and respect. George sang 'Crossing the Bar' so beautifully and we had all the service possible and a wonderfully inspiring testimony from our good doctor. I never saw such a wealth of beautiful flowers, and every one a token of love and sympathy. So

I bade farewell to my beloved for a time. You will like to know that I have such a happy memory.

The two poems were as follows:

Dr. G. F. Matthew.
He has laid his honors down,
Looking to higher things
And wider fields.
His fine inquiring mind
Will "carry on"
To triumphs greater far
Than this earth yields.

A Voice From Paradise
What mean you by this weeping
To break my very heart?
We both are in Christ's keeping
And therefore cannot part.

Here—you there—though severed
We all in Him are one;
I only just in sunshine
The shadows scarcely gone.

What though the clouds surround you,
The brightness you can see,
The only but a little way
That leads from you to me.

I was so very weary,
Why should you longer mourn
That I a little sooner
Have laid the burden down?

Then weep not—weep not—dearling,
God wipes away all tears.
'Tis only but "a little while"
Though you may call it—years.

The Breaking Point

By Mary Roberts Rinehart

Wheeler nodded.
"I understand. But she wouldn't, I don't suppose she would."
He went away soon after that, back to the quiet house, and to David. Automatically he turned into his office, but Reynolds was writing there. He went slowly up the stairs.
David was satisfied. The great love of his life and been given to Dick, and now Dick was his again. He grieved for Lucy, but he knew that the parting was not for long, and that from whatever high place she looked down, she would know that he was satisfied. He looked on his work and found it good. There was no trace of weakness nor of vacillation in the man who sat across from him at the table, or slumped in and out of the house after his old fashion.
"But he was not content. For behind Dick's surface cheerfulness he knew that he was eating his heart out. For things were going very badly. The light was on."
It was a battle without action. Each side was dug in and entrenched, and waiting. It was an engagement where the principals met occasionally in the neutral ground of the streets, bowed to each other and passed on.
The town was sorry for David and still fond of him, but it resented his stiff-necked attitude. It said, in effect, that when he ceased to make Dick's enemies his, it was willing to be friends. But it said also, to each other and behind its hands, that Dick's absence was discreditable or it would be explained, and that he had behaved abominably to Elizabeth. It would be hanged if it would be friends with him. Yet on the surface things were much as they had been. David rose early and as he improved in health, read his morning paper in his office while he waited for breakfast.
The house was very quiet. Now and then the front door opened, and a patient came in, but there was no longer the crowded waiting room, the incessant jangle of the telephone, the odor of pungent drugs and antiseptics. Now and then Dick and Elizabeth met on the street, and she bowed to him and went on. At those times it seemed incredible that once he had held her in his arms, and that she looked up at him with loving, faithful eyes. He suffered so from those occasional meetings that he took to watching for her, so as to avoid her. Sometimes he wished she would marry Wallace quickly, so he would be obliged to accept what now he knew he had not accepted at all.
He had occasional spells of violent anger at her, and of resentment, but they died when he checked up, one after the other, the inevitable series of events that had led to the catastrophe. But it was all nonsense to say that love never died. She had loved him, and there was never anything so dead as that love of hers.
Late in November Elizabeth went away for a visit, and it gave him a breathing spell.
She came home shortly before Christmas, undeniably glad to be back and very gentle with them all. She set to work almost immediately on the gifts, wrapping them and tying them with methodical exactness, sticking a tiny sprig of holly through the ribbon bow, and writing cards with neatness and care. She hung up wreaths and decorated the house, and when she was through with her work she went to her room and sat with her hands folded, not thinking. She did not think any more.
Wallie had sent her a flexible diamond bracelet as a Christmas gift, and it lay on her table in its box. She was very grateful, but she had not tried it on.
On the morning before Christmas, Nina came in, her arms full of packages, and her eyes shining and a little frightened. She had some news for them. She hadn't been so keen about it at first, but Leslie was like a madman. He was so pleased that he was ordering her that sable cape she had

OXONIANS GO TO SHOPGIRLS' DANCES ON SLY

Noblemen and Pretty Floor Workers Glide Over Floor in Town Hall—Raids by Stern Proctors.

Oxford, June 6.—The university police of Oxford, or "proctors," as they are more properly called, are still continuing their war on dancing. Public dancing has long been forbidden in Oxford, the only dances which are allowed being those of a private nature given by the express permission of the senior proctor. Subscription dances cannot be attended by undergraduates except on penalty of fine and confinement to their respective colleges after 9 o'clock at night if they are apprehended.
Dancing never has taken possession of England the way it has the United States, but there has been a marked increase in its popularity since the war, and the English undergraduate now is not only losing his former embarrassed dread of dancing, but is becoming quite enthusiastic.
Dances Lure Students.
Unfortunately, Oxford is built on a monastic order, and there is little social life in which the students can meet the young women of the town. Consequently a singular situation has arisen which baffles university authorities. For the last few years subscription dances have been given regularly at the Masonic Hall for the benefit of the townspeople. Dance enthusiasts in the undergraduate body soon discovered that by dropping in on these affairs they were able to meet the store girls of the town. They found that many of these girls were excellent dancers, and the latter, being highly flattered at dancing with "gentlemen," not to mention an occasional lord, encouraged a mixing of classes to be found nowhere else in English society.
The chief obstacle to undergraduate participation in the dances is that the hall is raided every night, some of several times, by the proctors of the university. Members of the university found dancing are politely requested to report to the proctor's office the next day for an interview which usually costs £2. The proctors, or "progues," as they are familiarly called, go about in their academic dress, consisting of cap and gown. Each has two assistants who follow him a few paces behind to pursue undergraduates who try to make their escape by darting down the nearest side street. The two assistants are known as "bulls" and they are always to be recognized by their derby hats. Needless to say, they are fleet of foot.
Danger of Raids.
When the warning is issued at a dance that "The progues are here!" there is a general scattering of the crowd on the floor. Unfortunately, there are only two exits to the hall, and these usually are guarded by the progues. Some few escape over the roofs to neighboring buildings, into nearby college gardens, but this method is difficult and dangerous and a bar to timid men. Others mix with the townspeople in hopes of escaping recognition.
In a recent raid on the Masonic Hall one of the students, on seeing the progues enter, picked up the drum and walked out as if he were a member of the orchestra going home. At the door he asked one of the "bulls" to call a taxi for him, and getting in he drove off to his college.
The university has become so severe in its determination to stamp out a practice which it considers bad for the undergraduates and shopgirls that the dances nowadays are but little attended. Few men can afford fines of £2 for each time they are apprehended at a dance, and a greater sum if the offense continues.
Penalties Discouraging.
The additional penalty of being "gated," or confined to college after 9 o'clock, also is a great discouragement to most dance enthusiasts, for all the colleges are well protected by high

YOU will find that your white shoes will stay new-looking if you always clean them with Bon Ami. Bon Ami doesn't paint over the dirt on white shoes and fill up the seams—it removes the grime and the stains, and uncovers the original whiteness so that the shoes look like new.
When the original whiteness finally does wear off, the regular white dressing will improve them. But even then they should always be cleaned first with Bon Ami.

wanted so. He was like a different man. And it would be July.
Elizabeth kissed her. It seemed very unreal, like everything else. She wondered why Leslie should be so excited, or her mother crying. She wondered if there was something strange about her, that it should seem so small and unimportant. But then, what was important? That one got up in the morning, and ate at intervals and went to bed at night? That children came, and had to be fed and washed and tended, and cried a great deal, and were sick now and then?
She wished she could feel something, could think it vital whether Nina should choose pink or blue for her lay-ette, and how far she should walk each day, and if Harry drove the car carefully. After a time she wished she cared whether it was going to rain tomorrow or not, or whether some one was coming, or not coming. And she wished terribly that she could care for Wallie, or get over the feeling that she had saved her pride at a cost to him she could not contemplate.

After a time she went upstairs and put on the bracelet. And late in the afternoon she went out and bought some wool, to make an afghan. She commenced it that evening while she waited for Wallie, and she wondered if some time she would be making an afghan for a cunning child of her own. Her's and Wallace Sayre's.
Suddenly she knew that she would never marry him. She faced the future with all that it implied, and she knew she could not do it. It was horrible that she had even contemplated it. It would be terrible to tell Wallie, but not as terrible as the other thing. She saw herself then with the same clearness with which she had judged Dick. She too, leaving her havoc of wrecked lives behind her; she too going along her headstrong way, raising hopes not to be fulfilled, and passing on.
That evening, Christmas eve, she told him she would not marry him. Told him very gently, but finally and immediately after he tried to take her in his arms. She would not let him do it.
"I don't know what's come over you," he said, morosely. "But I'll let you alone, if that's the way you feel."
"I'm sorry, Wallie. It—it makes me shiver."
In a way he was prepared for it, but nevertheless he took it very hard. He begged for time, for a less unequivocal rejection, but he found her, for the first time, impatient with his pleadings.
"I don't want to go over and over it, Wallie. I'll take the blame. I should have done it long ago."
She was gentle, almost tender with him, but when he said she had spoiled his life for him, she smiled faintly.

SPIES FIND PLENTY TO DO IN FRANCE AND GERMANY
Paris Appears to Have Attained High Degree in Espionage in Berlin
Paris, June 6.—The romance of secret foreign agents is a much alive in Europe today as in the story-book tales of European court life in ages past. Remnants of the German espionage system are supposed to be active in France and every now and then the French police run across traces of its workings.
The French government appears to have brought to a high degree of perfection its political intelligence service in Germany. This extends even to the inner governing group, and is looked upon as explaining the fact that Chancellor Cuno's recent note on reparations was known considerably in advance of its final approval in Berlin. These agents often are in a superior social position; at other times they are engaged in confidential work for the German government itself and frequently they operate much as did those strange characters described in old European court memo-walls and it is difficult to get in or out except by the porter's gate.

In a recent raid an English car was caught by the progues, fined, and because it was not his first offense he was gated for a month, an embarrassing position to be in, as it necessitates scrambling in over high stone walls without being detected, if entry must be made after 9 o'clock. And stone walls at Oxford are fatal to the best gamblers.
IN HONOR OF BIRTHDAY.
Narrows, May 30.—At the home of George E. White a pleasant tea party was held in honor of his aunt, Mrs. Sarah Worden, who celebrated her seventy-eighth birthday. Before leaving all extended their best wishes for many more happy birthdays.

The last meeting for the season of the Daughters of Israel took place last night in the schoolroom in Carlton street with Mrs. L. N. Harris, the president in the chair. Reports were received of the philanthropic work which the society carries on and arrangements were made for the continuance of this work during the summer months while no meetings are held. The returns of the recent rummage sale were gratifying. A scarf which had been donated was raffled and was won by ticket No. 90, held by H. H. Richardson. A vote of thanks was extended to Charles Wasson for his assistance in giving accommodation for the rummage sale.

LONDON SUBWAY DIGGERS MAY EVICT GOD OF LOVE
Statue of Eros on Shaftesbury Fountain Threatened by Improvement Plans
London, June 6.—The long postponed rebuilding of Piccadilly Circus begins in a few weeks, and though the majority of Londoners would be glad to see some improvement in what has been called the most uninteresting thing in the town, they are perturbed by a suggestion that the fountain, with the graceful figure of Eros and his bow, may have to be moved.
Eros, the little God of Love, who crowns the Shaftesbury Memorial Fountain, is one of the best statues London has and is known over all the world. The idea that he should be moved in order to make way for subways has roused all the artists in the country, and protests have been pouring in to the London County Council, who own the statue. At present authorities are maintaining a dignified silence.

M. Leger, Linguist, Acclaimed Hero By Slavs, Dies at 80

Paris, June 6.—Louis Leger, honored recently by Slavic countries on his eightieth birthday, died the day after the celebration. Leger, known as friend of the Slavs, was born in Toulouse. Among the Slavs of the south, the Hungarians and the Czechs, he was regarded as a hero.
Sixty years ago, when the Slavic world was little known to France, Leger commenced to learn the languages of these people. His interest was first aroused in May, 1863, when he attended a service at Montmorency Cemetery conducted by the Poles in honor of some of their soldiers buried there. During the service a religious and patriotic Polish hymn was sung so fervently and with such stirring rhythm that it brought tears to the eyes of many in the audience.
Leger was deeply moved, and he asked what the song was. A copy was given to him, and that night he went to work with a dictionary, and next day made a fair translation. His interest in the Polish language grew, and in

THE PROBLEM OF THE BOY'S FUTURE

Vocational Guidance and Education are Essential—Notable Report Submitted to World's Conference, Y. M. C. A.

Portschlach, Austria, June 6.—Is your boy in or headed for that group, composing three quarters of the world's workers with hands and brain, who are misfits or ill-trained? What is being done and should be done to meet this and related problems is dealt with in a report presented yesterday at the Second World's Conference of Y. M. C. A. workers with boys by an international vocational commission.

A section of the report dealing with the vocational status of boyhood in the United States was prepared by C. C. Robinson of New York City, author of vocational books and secretary of the International Committee, Y. M. C. A., for work with employed boys. His report is based in part on a series of special hearings, the participants in which included college and university professors, school teachers, editors, business and industrial managers, labor leaders, specialists in mental hygiene, and representatives of the church, national societies and Government bureaus.

A hearing at Boston, Mr. Robinson reported, brought heated discussion over the influence of machine industry on the life of workers. At New York, discussion centered chiefly on the kind of preparation schools should give boys before entering work. At Chicago, differences between vocational guidance and education in the cities and rural regions were emphasized. The largest hearing, both in numbers and variety of representation, was at San Francisco, where the junior high school and the private school for teaching trades came in for strong commendation. Labor representatives favored continuation schools and spoke strongly against working boys trying to attend school at night.

Approximately 5,000,000 boys, 14 to 20 years of age, are gainfully employed in the United States, the report pointed out. In addition, at least half as many more attend school and work part time. This is particularly true of ambitious high school boys even from what are called good families, and many boys from poorer homes also work part time while they are in the grade schools. In most sections of the country, state laws prevent boys from working earlier than 14 years of age, and there is a tendency on the part of social workers to push this age to 16 years. In most states, boys who work between 14 and 16 do so upon work-certificate and are obliged to continue some educational work. Twenty-one states have formed continuation schools for this purpose.

Increasingly, the report states, effort is being made by educators, the more enlightened employers, and welfare agencies of all kinds to provide for all boys, rich and poor, vocational guidance and vocational education. The whole matter of vocational guidance, wisely done, is directed toward saving boys from disaster.

Rapid advance has been made by public schools in vocational help in the past decade. Private trade schools have made valuable contributions in pioneering in various types of education. The new plan of the junior division of the U. S. Employment Service is a hopeful step.

Studies conducted by Mr. Robinson among 183 boys as to their ambitions compared with their father's occupations show a definite tendency to move up in the social scale. None of the group chose to be day laborers, and few are seeking small commercial positions, most of the boys whose fathers are in such work expressing eagerness to enter the profession or higher commercial occupations. However, nearly as many boys as have fathers in skilled trades desire to take up similar work, the high pay being the attraction.

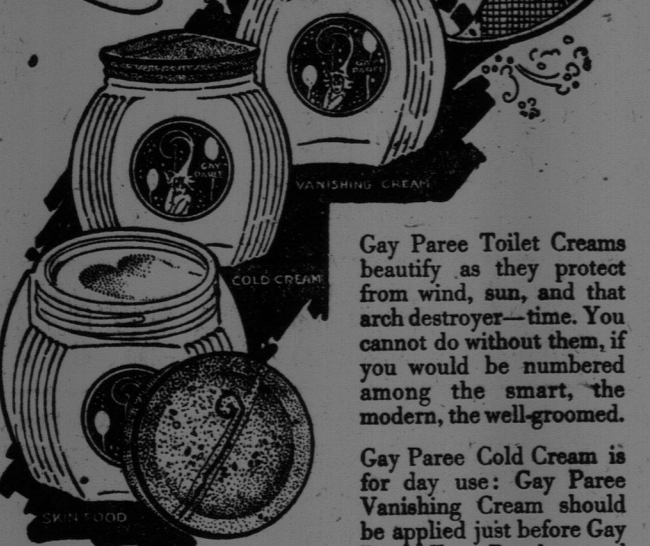

A five-year occupational study of hundreds of high school pupils, both boys and girls, revealed that the boys of comparatively low intelligence chose vocations far beyond their powers, only 9 per cent. being engaged, at the end of five years, in occupations as favorable as was their original preference. "Either the girls chose more wisely as to fitness," says the report, "or else they were more moderate in their ambitions. Even in cases of higher intelligence, the girls seem to have a much better percentage than the boys. Doubtless this situation will improve in time, some of the boys reaching positions more favorably comparable with their schoolboy ambitions."

"The situation is an explanation of the justification of the blind-alley job, the vice of which consists in staying too long in that particular place. Many such jobs have a proper place in a socialized economic order; they are important cogs in the commercial and industrial machine, and if only used temporarily, serve a purpose in enabling boys to earn needed money while preparing themselves for something better."

A meeting of the executive of the Garrison Sergeants' Mess was held last night, and it was decided to close the mess during the time the camp in Sussex is open, from June 26 to July 4. It was also decided to hold a smoker for the members of the mess next Monday, immediately before the annual meeting.

At present, the chairman in such a case is appointed by the Minister of Labor.

TIMES MAN SEES MILK IN PROCESS OF PASTEURIZATION

Impossible to Tamper With It During That Time, is Conclusion.

Automatically Handled from the Time of Arrival Until Bottled—Cleaning Process—St. John and Kings Products Kept Separate.

As a result of repeated complaints about the pasteurized milk, complaints saying that the milk had been tampered with, that it had had some of the cream removed from it and that it was not the same as it was before pasteurization, a Times reporter yesterday paid a visit to the Purty and Pacific Dairy plants and watched the process. He also saw a series of test reports by an inspector of the Board of Health made on regular milk samples showing that the milk had not lost any of its cream.

It is apparent even to the least experienced that it would be practically impossible to tamper with the milk, for it is run through a continuous system of pipes and vats from the time it leaves the cans to the time it is bottled and capped by machinery and stored in a cold storage room to await delivery.

The reporter watched the cans being taken off the milk car in which they were brought to the city. The milk was then tested for any sign of acidity or sourness, and, if necessary, was given a chemical test. It was dumped into a tank where it was automatically weighed, each the producers being credited with the amount of milk poured out of his cans. This tank was coupled with a pipe through which the milk was pumped to a 2000-gallon storage tank, kept at a temperature of about forty-four degrees Fahrenheit by cooling coils running through it. This tank had enough capacity to commence on the milk was sent through the clarifier, a circular machine working on the principle of centrifugal force which not only removed any dirt which might possibly have escaped the gauze strainers but also forced out any fibrin or waste tissues which might be present. The bowl in this machine revolves at a speed of about 4,000 revolutions a minute, and the machine has a capacity of 12,000 pounds an hour.

Pasteurization Starts.

The pasteurizing proper then commenced. The milk was pumped through two heating coils which gradually brought it to a temperature of about 182 degrees to prepare it for the final process. From here it went along a pipe into the pasteurizing vats, where it was raised to a temperature of 144 degrees and kept there for thirty minutes. The heat of the milk in the vats was regulated by recording thermometers, set for a maximum of 144 degrees and kept there automatically. By means of the recording thermometers it was possible to see at a glance how long the fluid was at a certain heat and to know when to pass it to the cooling coils. The milk was kept at an even temperature throughout by a revolving coil, also used to cool the fluid if it should pass the exact 144-degree mark. The value of these automatic thermometers is especially great in view of the fact that milk heated to a few degrees above the 144 mark loses some of its component parts.

When the milk had remained at this temperature for thirty minutes it was pumped to the cooling coils, three in number, which gradually reduced the temperature of the milk to between forty and forty-four degrees. It was then carried to a storage tank kept at the same temperature until the tank held enough to allow the commencement of the bottling. At this time the milk had not left the continuous line of pipe and tanks and it still went along this to the bottling machine.

Automatic Bottler.

The bottling machine filled and capped the bottles absolutely without the need of the worker touched by hand. The empty bottles were started along a conveyor on which they were held under a number of spouts on the circumference of a revolving drum through which the milk was gradually poured into them until, at the end of the revolution, the bottle was filled to the top without foils. Immediately it left this circular drum it was brought under the capping machine, where tops were forced in, and it was ready to be crated and stored.

A trip into the storage room reminded the reporter of winter. The temperature was just above forty degrees and the room had just been partly filled with pasteurized milk, necessitating the opening of the doors. This kept the milk at a good cool temperature until it was ready for delivery the next morning.

Cleaning of Utensils.

Another very important part of the pasteurization process that was shown was the matter of the cleaning of the bottles and the cans in which the milk was brought to the plant. The bottles were placed neck down in cases or crates, and these were automatically fed through the bottle washer. This machine was made in three parts. In the first a stream of water at a temperature of about 120 degrees was forced into the bottles by means of an electrically-driven pump. From this compartment they passed to one in which a special alkaline solution at a temperature of about 170 degrees was forced through them and then they got their final wash with clean water at about 185 degrees.

The storage room is kept cool by a system of ammonia and brine cooling solutions, and there is a special elec-

Electrically-driven machine as compressor for this County Milk Separate.

A feature worthy of note is that the St. John County milk was pasteurized by itself and kept separate on account of requests from those buying milk from St. John County dealers that they should get the same milk. The Kings County milk is also kept separate.

The claim that cream is removed from the milk during the process is ridiculous on the face of it, as there is no practical opportunity for any removal of the milk from the system from the time it leaves the cans until it is packed in the storage coops for delivery. In contradiction to this claim, also, there is a report of tests made just recently by the inspector of the Board of Health personally, showing that the milk contained the same amount of butter fat when it was given to the dealers as it had when it arrived at the plant. This test covered samples of the product supplied by each of the milk producers, both from St. John and Kings Counties.

All the milk which is returned to the plant by the dealers is put through a cream separator and the cream is used to make butter in a large churn set up in the same plant.

FINE $200 ON LIQUOR CHARGE

Magistrate Gives Judgment in Case of Florence McCarthy—Charge of Wife-Beating Heard.

Florence McCarthy was fined $200 or six months in jail for being in her house in Sheriff street for unlawful purposes. The charge grew out of a raid by the liquor inspectors. McCarthy entered a plea of not guilty and added that he had the liquor for use of his family. William M. Ryan for the prosecution asked that a penalty be struck.

The magistrate said that he was compelled to strike a fine. The evidence was that two men were found sitting at a table on which were two bottles of whiskey and a glass.

"If they were sitting there talking about the two main topics of the day—hydro and my resignation, then why don't they come forward and say so," added the magistrate. In view of the fact that the presence of the liquor was not sufficiently explained he would impose the penalty of $200.

Horace J. Coles was before the court for assaulting his wife. Mrs. Coles gave evidence as did Detective Biddiscombe. The magistrate bound Coles over to keep the peace. Scott E. Morrell appeared for the accused.

Three men for drunkenness were fined the usual amount and sent below.

Defendant Away; Magistrate Will Not Take Up Case

Louis McC. Ritchie on behalf of Charles B. Rand, charged with practicing optometry without a license, made application to the magistrate this morning in the police court to have the case against his client gone ahead with. Mr. Ritchie said that by consent of Mr. Gilbert, who was appearing for the Optometrical Society, a stated case would be argued.

The magistrate refused as Mr. Rand was out of town and he would not go ahead with the case until he was personally before him.

Mr. Ritchie informed the court that he was willing to put up an amount to cover a fine, if such was struck. The magistrate said that he would not commit himself as to whether he would strike a fine or not. He intimated on suggestion of Mr. Rand's lawyer that if the argument in the case was to be that the matter of ultra vires of the Provincial Government then a way out of the difficulty was to take the case before a judge of the Supreme Court. This will likely be done as all parties concerned are said to be anxious to have the matter settled one way or the other.

Criqui Says He Saw The End After The First Round

The following statements were made by Eugene Criqui and Johnny Kilbane after Saturday's bout at the Polo Grounds: CRIQUI—I'm the happiest man in the world. Yes, the trip was worth while, but after the first round I knew it would be a question of how long it would take to get him. He caught me with a right to the jaw and it didn't hurt. Then I decided to go after him. The two punches that knocked him out were a left to the body and a right to the jaw. I dropped my guard in the sixth round and Kilbane came in. When he did, I surprised him with a short right to the ribs, and when his guard dropped I shot over my right. That's all. Kilbane is a clean boxer, a real sportsman. But I guess I showed the Americans that France has a champion who can meet Jojoey Dundee within sixty days.

SPREAD RAIL; 4 KILLED, 27 HURT

Investigation of Wreck of Knight Templar Special to be Asked—Coroner's Inquest Also. (By Canadian Press.) Durant, Mich., June 6.—An investigation into the wreck of the Knight Templar special on the Grand Trunk Railway near here yesterday, in which four were killed and twenty-seven others injured, will be asked by county authorities, it was learned last night.

A spreading rail is believed to have caused the derailment of the special, bound from Grand Rapids to Flint, and carrying two hundred delegates to the state convention.

The train is said to have been traveling forty miles an hour at the time of the accident. The engine went over its side and ploughed into the ground.

The steel baggage car snapped its couplings, one end of the car burying itself into the ground. The other end, a new motor and Weldon, a passenger coach behind it, passing, were in the passenger car, as were most of the injured.

A coroner's jury was empaneled late yesterday to investigate the wreck.

This is the story behind the suicide of Ruth Hornbaker, fourteen-year-old girl of Berwyn, Ill., who died in the home of her father, Albert R. Hornbaker, after two days in a comatose condition. Her parents found her on her bed in her room with the gas hose in her mouth and unconscious.

WATERLOO STREET WILL BE PAVED

Decision Reached at Meeting of Council Yesterday Afternoon—Estimated Cost, $19,175—Other Matters Dealt With.

Paving of Waterloo street was authorized at a meeting of the Common Council yesterday afternoon. The estimated cost is placed at $19,175. Other matters dealt with referred to tenders for line materials for the Civic Power Commission and a protest from the firm of T. McAvity & Sons against an award of a main piping contract to the General Supply Company of Montreal.

Applications to erect electric signs at their places of business from the Padlock drug store, corner Coburg and Union, and from B. Cohen, 28 Dock street, were referred to Commissioner Frink for report.

A communication was read from T. McAvity & Sons, Ltd., contending that the prices quoted by the General Supply Co., Ltd., Montreal, for cast iron pipe were higher than those quoted by McAvity's in view of the fact that the Montreal company did not mention any sales tax payment, top wharfage and trucking from the city to the west end, where the pipe will be used. Considerable discussion ensued. No action, however, was taken to change the award of the contract, after a hearing had been given in committee to R. A. McAvity.

Mr. McAvity desired to know if the Montreal people had mentioned payment of the sales tax in their tender and Commissioner Wigmore replied that they had not mentioned it but that they would be protected on that point. He said his specification called for delivery on the west side with all charges paid. Mr. McAvity said that if no sales tax was mentioned, the general custom was that the purchaser must pay this tax. He contended it was not fair that this company should expect to be reimbursed the tax after all tenders had been opened.

Commissioner Wigmore expressed his regret because of his inability to recommend the McAvity tender for acceptance but in view of the circumstances and because there was a difference of some $1,100 between both tenders, he declared he could not change the recommendation.

There is hardly a neighborhood in the United States where women cannot be found who have derived benefit from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For nearly fifty years this botanical medicine has been overcoming some of the worst forms of female ills. As one woman has been benefited by its use she has told others who have used it with the same good results; so the use of this great medicine has spread from shore to shore by the recommendation of those who have found it good. Therefore, ask your neighbor; let her tell you from experience the benefit which ailing women derive from its use.

FLOCK HUNTING FOR GOLD WHERE PASTOR GOT SHOCK

Doyest Clergyman Known as "Water Diviner" Feels Mysterious Treasure Near.

Shaftesbury, June 6.—Inhabitants of this Old World town in Dorset, the Wessex of Thomas Hardy, have joined in a search for gold at the foot of a hill near the old Abbey walls. A short time ago a clergyman was taking a walk through the town, when, as he rounded the hill, he "felt" the presence of something in the earth. The minister is a water diviner, and this feeling, he said, was quite different from that which he experiences when walking over a hidden stream. Several prominent townsfolk are convinced that the "something" is treasure, and excavations have been started. Opposite the place where the clergyman received "shocks," which he felt for a couple of days, is an old cottage which at one time was a mine. In a chimney not far away a number of buttons were found recently which were discovered to be gold coins, so that it is possible more of the old coins will be discovered.

GOOD REPORTS AT ANNUAL SESSIONS

Methodist Churches in City Flourishing—Centenary to Ask Members if Pastor Should Wear Pulpit Gown

The annual meetings of many of the quarterly official boards of the Methodist churches of the city were held last evening and the reports presented were of a very satisfactory nature.

The pastor, Rev. R. G. Fulton, presided at the Centenary church meeting, and the reports showed the church in a good condition. The total membership amounted to 385, showing a substantial increase over the total of the previous year. The total number of families was 420. The financial statement showed the following receipts: Ladies' Aid, $1,041; W. M. S., $1,846.42; general missions, $600; Sunday school, $981; incidental, $200; plate collections, $9,738.50; other sources, $8,228. The total receipts amounted to $21,155.42. With these accounts paid there remained a balance of $10 in the hands of the treasurer. The work of the different departments was reviewed by the pastor and the call of a resolution of regret was passed concerning the resignation of James E. Arthur as superintendent of the Sunday school and hearty appreciation of his work was expressed.

There was considerable discussion regarding the proposal to have the minister wear a Geneva gown and it was decided to have a questionnaire sent out to each member of the congregation concerning the matter. With few exceptions the former board members were re-elected. C. F. Sanford was re-elected as pastor. It was decided to revise the membership list and arrangements were made for a roll call of members early in July. The district visitors are: Mrs. Seymour, Mrs. Calhoun, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. V. V. V. Mrs. Bernard, Mrs. Fox, Miss Piers, Jacob Martin and Frederick Morrissey.

The reports of the year, presented at the Exmouth street church meeting showed the church in a flourishing condition. Seventeen new members had been added to the church roll which totaled 520. The pastor, Rev. H. E. Thomas, presided. Each department presented a good report. The Sunday school showed an average increase of thirteen attending each Sunday. The total amount raised by the Sunday school was $1,085, by the official boards, $6,894.56; by the Women's Missionary Society, $602.40 and for general missions, $2,338.75. C. G. Cosman was appointed to attend the annual district meeting.

The elections resulted as follows: Fred Myles, W. A. Adams, W. J. Mages, H. W. Jones, A. D. Hopkins and R. E. Thomas; recording steward, J. A. Adams; financial secretary, Fred Thomas, and social secretary, Fred Thomas, C. G. Cosman, W. L. Beville and Robert Kennedy; representatives to be sent from the church in a flourishing condition. A. hall, Mr. Clarke presented reports on the work of the church and the societies in connection with the church. During the year $14,094 was raised for general purposes, which was the best in the history of the church. There are at present 541 members in the church showing an increase of twelve during the year. Besides the amount collected for general purposes there was also raised $14,074.42 for renovating the church building. The edifice was repaired and dedicated during the year. It was decided to unit services with Main Street Baptist Church during July and August. During July Rev. H. A. Goodwin, who is to be the new minister in Portland Methodist church, will be in charge with morning service in the church building. The edifice was repaired and dedicated during the year.

David White was elected chairman of ushers, R. C. Thomas is recording steward and Walter K. Brown, treasurer of the benevolent fund for which $128.88 was voted. H. P. The annual meeting of the official board of the Carmarthen street Methodist church was held last evening when the financial report showed that $2,668 had been collected toward the current expenses of the church while the indebtedness had been slightly reduced during the year. A committee was appointed to revise the membership list and arrangements were made for a roll call of members early in July.

It was decided to grant the pastor, Rev. E. S. Ellis, a vacation of one month. On conference Sunday Walter Brindle, who is a licensed preacher, will conduct the services. The stewards elected last evening were as follows: George Calhoun, Alfred Brown, Isaac Merwin, Walter Brindle, Jacob Martin, William Tyler and Frank Hill. Walter Brindle was made recording steward.

the high cost of operation. He can fly at a speed of ten miles an hour, or at seventy miles an hour. He is able to land his ship at ten miles an hour, and in an unusually small field, eliminating at one stroke the dangers of landing fast ships and of the scarcity of landing fields. Present-day American planes usually land at speeds ranging from forty-five miles an hour up, and require 500 yards of landing space. The ship was designed by Emile Dewoitine, and is called the "Dewoitine motoraviette." It is being studied by army and navy experts with a view to adopting it for military use.

GOOD PROGRESS IN HYDRO WORK

Final papers in connection with the contract with the Stephen Construction Co., Ltd., for the erection of the civic distribution system were signed yesterday. Good progress is being made by Mr. Stephen with the work in Clanton avenue. Rapid progress in the digging of post holes for the ornamental street lighting system also is being made by the contractor, W. I. Snook. Men are engaged now in Dock and Mill streets. The bases for the poles are being manufactured here by a local company while a portion of the poles will be shipped some time this week from Upper Canada. The foundation work in connection with the steel superstructure at the civic station practically has been completed.

Two automobiles, one driven by George R. Irvine and the other by Alexander Davis, were in collision at the corner of Paradise row and Wall street at 10.40 last evening, and badly damaged. One of the cars was turning into Wall street from Paradise row and the other was coming into Paradise row when they got too close together and crashed. The windshields were broken and the pieces scattered about the street. No person was injured.

But he can by thought, and by concerted action on accurate conclusions, do much to add growth and give rejuvenation to his business, particularly in these times. On the high seas of business, with a fair wind aft and the barometer steady, progression is an easy matter. In heavy seas and against a headwind, the consumption of fuel must be greater. England Swept By 'Epidemic' of Hail, But It's 'Not Bad'

London, May 20 (by mail)—Not for many years has England been swept by so many hailstorms as recently, declares a "London Daily Express" correspondent. Day after day hardly an hour has gone by without a sudden chill blast and a spattering of little pellets of ice from the leaden heavens.

RECOVER POSES AS A MUTE.

Recovers Voice When Arraigned and Gets 20 Days for Drunkenness. New York, June 6.—Earl Walker, 30 years old was arraigned before Magistrate Kochendorfer in City Court Jamaica, on a charge of intoxication and sentenced to twenty days in the Queens County Jail in Long Island City.

Walker, who is alleged to have made a living posing as a mute, found his voice when arraigned in court. He was arrested Friday at Fulton and Washington Street, Jamaica, by Traffic Officer Hertwig, who found him lying in the street "helplessly drunk."

Postal cards signifying that Walker had lost his sense of hearing and speech were found in his pocket. Walker told the court that he came to New York several weeks ago from Washington, D. C. The postal cards he sold for 10 cents each, he said.

THE SITUATION SHOULD INSPIRE CONFIDENCE

(Bank of Commerce Circular.)

Domestic trade and industry have experienced little change during the past month. There is undoubtedly a feeling that the business situation calls for caution, although it is difficult to determine the exact reason why business should at this juncture show any contraction.

Fre Swimming Lessons.
The Y. M. C. A. opened its swimming campaign yesterday afternoon and evening, when 183 boys were given instruction. A corps of twenty instructors was on duty and the teachers went into the tank with the boys and gave each individual instruction. Classes will be held on Thursday and Friday and all need were yesterday. The enrollment this year is more than 200, about half as many as last year, when 400 received instruction. As the class is smaller it is expected that more effective work

LEONARD MAY DEFEND TITLE IN MONTANA
Great Falls, Mont., June 6.—A world's lightweight championship title will be defended here Saturday by Leonard May, who is the latest prospect with which Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Kearns, will concern himself. Kearns announced that he is under consideration an offer from Dan Tracey for a bout between Benny Leonard, holder of the world's championship, and May.
A few years ago was considered one of the most promising championship prospects in the country. According to Kearns, Tracey is prepared to offer a purse of $200,000 for this battle.
Tracey is the man who, according to Kearns, is prepared to arrange a heavyweight championship bout here between Dempsey and Harry Wills on Labor Day. This proposition, however, is not being regarded seriously. The Dempsey-Wills battle, if ever materializes, is a natural attraction for New York or New Jersey, where there are great inducements for financial success.
Boxing interest here, too, is confined to the approaching Dempsey-Gibbons battle, so that little consideration is accorded talk of a Dempsey-Wills clash.

old boxer named Humbek won the

NEW CANNON FIRES 120 SHOTS A MINUTE.
Utah Inventor Claims Weapon Can Be Used in Airplanes and on Land or Sea.
Ogden, Utah, June 6.—Invention of a rapid-firing automatic cannon capable of firing one and one-quarter pound shells at the rate of 120 a minute, was presented by John M. Browning of Ogden, inventor of firearms, it is announced by his brother, J. Edward Browning.
The cannon, designed for use in airplanes, as well as on land or sea, according to Edward Browning, has a barrel which measures in diameter only one and one-half inches. It weighs 150 pounds when mounted on a tripod, and can be fired from any position without interference with the accuracy of the aim, he said. The range is seven miles.
The inventor is in Hartford conferring with manufacturers of the Brown- ing guns.

GIVES PROGRAMME OF LEGISLATION FOR REST OF SESSION

Premier King Says There Will be Bills Introduced to Amend Several Existing Acts—Meighen Suggests Another Speech From Throne.

Ottawa, June 5—In the House this afternoon the Prime Minister outlined the legislative programme for the remainder of the session.

Arising out of the report of the commission on grain rates there would be a bill to amend the Shipping Act giving the Government power by order-in-council to suspend the coasting laws, a bill concerning a closed season for halibut fishing in Pacific waters; a bill to reduce salmon cannery license fees; a bill for further advances to the Montreal Harbor Commissioners and a bill to amend the Biological Board Act.

In connection with the Finance Department there would be amendments to the Income Tax Act, the Finance Act, and the Audit Office Act. There would also be a bill respecting guarantee of railway bonds already authorized.

The Department of Railways had a bill providing for the three-year branch line construction programme. There would also be amendments to the Drydock Act, the Postoffice Act, the Dairy and Cold Storage and a bill to amend the Public Archives Act by changing the name to the Department of Historical and Public Records.

Right Hon. Arthur Meighen suggested the Prime Minister might go back and get another speech from the throne. Mr. King said most of the measures proposed were single section amendments.

Plans were made for holding the annual tea and sale as usual in November and members undertook to work for the sale during the summer. It was decided that the chapter would establish a circulating library by buying the books advised by the National Chapter of the I. O. D. E. The sewing which had been done for the Red Cross Society was handed in at the meeting and material to be made into garments for the Victorian Order Nurses to distribute was given out the members.

Preliminary Hearing Of Malcolm Bruce Completed At Sydney

Sydney, June 6—Before Magistrate A. B. MacSillivray yesterday the preliminary hearing of Malcolm Bruce, Toronto, charged with seditious utterances at a labor meeting at Glace Bay, May 6, was completed and court was adjourned until Wednesday afternoon. Bruce was alleged to have said he hoped to see the day when the Union Jack would be dragged in the mud. Sergeant A. D. Rolfe, of the Provincial Police, testified that a number of persons had spoken to him and credited Bruce with making the statements alleged. These, however, had denied under oath that they had done so. Colonel Gordon Harrington, for the defence, objected to Rolfe's testimony. H. B. Jefferson, news editor of the Sydney Record, said the story about Bruce had been given to him by D. L. Dolan, a member of the Record staff. He was not the Record's Glace Bay correspondent, but happened to be in Glace Bay on May 6.

BURIED TREASURE SOUGHT IN FIELDS NEAR NAMUR

German Deserter Said to Have Stolen Million Francs and Buried Cash.

Brussels, June 6—Under the auspices of the Belgian Ministry of Finance, a search for hidden treasure, worth a million francs, began recently at Enghien, about five miles from Namur.

Two years ago a German woman told the Belgian Consul at Treves that her husband had stolen a million francs and buried the money in the neighborhood of Namur, intending to return after the armistice. Her husband, she said, was then in prison in Germany as a deserter from the German army.

The Belgian Consul did not take much notice of this information, but a German put in an appearance in Brussels a short time ago, asking permission of the Ministry of Finance to seek for the treasure, and as he seemed to know all about it, it was granted.

Large advertisement for ROMAN MEAL, featuring a central logo and text: 'TELLING WHY ROMAN MEAL is a "cooling" summer cereal... Why? Because it is the only alkaline cereal. "Alkaline" means opposite of acid. The blood must be alkaline, or we are hot and miserable. It is alkaline when our foods are rich in alkali. Unrefined whole-grain cereals, beans, nuts, milk, vegetables, fruits are rich in alkali. Grains carry their alkali in their dark parts. These are refined out of white flour and modern dainty cereals, leaving white flour, modern corn and wheat cereals, from 150 to 200 parts in every 1,000, and modern oat cereals about 50 parts in every 1,000 parts "Excess Acid." Acid cereals cause acid blood. Acid blood is called "heated" blood. Alkaline, whole-grain cereals keep the blood as nature intended it, alkaline or "cool." Acid blood is no hotter than alkaline but it causes that "all in" feeling so common on a hot day to civilized people, who live largely upon "Excess-Acid" foods. Roman Meal is 400 parts in each 1,000 parts "Excess Alkali" because it is one-quarter Flaxin, the richest in alkaline salts of anything that grows. It "Cools" the blood, energizes and electrifies the mind and body on the hottest day. It corrects the "excess acid" of white flour, other cereals, meats, fats and sweets. Eat it in some form every day served with milk, or with milk as drink. Use plenty of vegetables and fruits and note the high pressure sense of fitness and well-being that is yours on the hottest day. The hottest tasting Roman Meal Product will keep you feeling cooler than the coldest tasting refined cereal, because it is alkaline. But you can now eat Roman Meal icy-cold and more deliciously tempting to the palate on a hot morning than is any other food. In all forms it aids digestion, positively relieves constipation. At grocers from coast to coast.'
