A Midnight Visitor

"There are more terrors at sea than shipwreck and fire, more frights and horrors, maters than famine, blindness, and cholera."

"You sick-hearts, what do ye see to stare at?" Or seeing, why don't ye go for it?"

"The mate and the captain went forward and looked up."

"It is a man!" exclaimed the captain. "Alot there! What are you doing skylarking us in those cross-roads? Come down!"

"You sick-hearts, what do ye see to stare at?" Or seeing, why don't ye go for it?"

About the House

TABLE ETIQUETTE. Celery, olives, cheese, radishes, etc., are always eaten from the fingers.

It is not good form to serve bread in whole slices, but cut in two, or even smaller.

Glasses should be filled three-fourths full of fresh cold water just before the serving of the meal.

Open a boiled egg either with the knife or fork. The top should be neatly taken off at one stroke.

Cakes are eaten from the fingers, except in the case of sticky layers, cakes, when a fork should always be applied.

Bread should never be broken into soup, and the last drop of the latter should never be greedily taken up with the spoon.

In eating peaches, pears, etc., remove the skin, cut the fruit up with the dessert-knife, and convey the pieces to the mouth with the fork.

If a silver knife is not provided for the fish course, and the fish is spongy, two forks may be used.

For a high tea, savory dishes are introduced, such as ham, tongue, poultry, etc., also hot cakes, toast, biscuits, preserves, honey, etc.

Each mouthful of bread or biscuit should be served with a tepid water, and a small piece of butter put on.

An entire slice, or a whole biscuit should never be spread out on the table.

Out to dinner, at the end of the meal the napkin should not be folded, but placed unfolded, on the left side of the plate.

If a plate is sent up the second time, the knife and fork may either be left upon it, side by side, or they may be placed in a ring.

In passing loaf-sugar and olives, it is always more elegant to provide a small glass of water.

Some hostesses omit these, but it is almost impossible to help one's self without touching the water.

More than one takes, and this is objectionable, and salt should be placed upon the side of the plate.

Meat should be broken up by the fork and dipped into the condiment, or the point of the knife should be used to cut it.

Many people have wondered why the Empress Eugenie always carries a little wicker basket, and many speculations have been made as to its contents.

It was not long before white whistles, and then, and then, and then, what was it? The whistles, and then, and then, and then, what was it?

"No," said the captain, letting fall his binoculars. "I'm not a mas. either."

"By that, maybe, sir," exclaimed the second mate, pointing to some object in the distance.

WHAT FINLAND SUFFERED

BOBRIKOFF'S METHODS OF SUPPRESSION. Commissioned to Stamp Out Every Vestige of Nationality.

An interview published in the London Daily News gives the opinion of a young Finnish lady, an exile, on the assassination of Gen. Bobrikoff.

"General Bobrikoff," she said, "is the destroyer of Finland, deliberately commissioned to stamp out every vestige of nationality—the national institutions, and even the education of the people, which made Finland the one civilized part of the Russian Empire."

"Even at St. Petersburg he was hated by every one in authority. When it was determined to break down the spirit and destroy the institutions of the Finnish people, my uncle was Minister of State for Finland."

"The post of Governor-General was offered to officer after officer, but they all, knowing what was expected of them, recoiled from the task."

"At last Bobrikoff was suggested—a parvenu, son of a priest, given to intemperance, and a general aggressive and forcible, and as I said, hated by all his colleagues. He was the only one who would take the place."

"He had had some experience of the work of tyranny in the East Sea provinces, and he was appointed precisely on account of the worst things known about him."

"How has he set to work to destroy Finland, to break down the spirit of the only educated and civilized population in Russia?"

"The education of the people was the great thing aimed at. The Polytechnic in Helsinki—the only one in Finland—was suppressed, so that technical education is absolutely wanting in the country."

"All meetings of the students in their clubs and debating societies—the Svenska Abo-förening—were stopped, and it became treasonable to take the slightest interest in the education of the people."

"The best starch for lace is made by boiling one ounce of gum arabic in a cup of water. Strain the liquid through a cloth."

Some hostesses omit these, but it is almost impossible to help one's self without touching the water.

More than one takes, and this is objectionable, and salt should be placed upon the side of the plate.

SOUTH AMERICAN COMEDY

HOW CIVIL WAR IS CONDUCTED IN THAT REGION. Two Captains Arranged the Campaign and Refused the Fight.

They sent a joint note to the combatants, warning them that, however much fighting they chose to do, they (the two captains) forbade them to fight in the town.

The Government and the Opposition both fourteenth century, to say that their Excellencies should be obeyed; but as their Excellencies had forbidden fighting in the town, would they kindly say where the fighting might take place?

The two captains favored the country, and selected a position which would do for military operations, with rivers, and everything in its proper place.

They then carefully drew up the order of process, and the opinion of a young Finnish lady, an exile, on the assassination of Gen. Bobrikoff.

"General Bobrikoff," she said, "is the destroyer of Finland, deliberately commissioned to stamp out every vestige of nationality—the national institutions, and even the education of the people, which made Finland the one civilized part of the Russian Empire."
