Express Agents Amusing Themselves

An express parcel which attracted considerable attention in the American Express Co.'s office yesterday was a hard hat, somewhat the worse for travel, literally covered with express tags. It has been on a month's journey, and has visited many of the larg est cities in the States and in Canada and is now sojourning in this city after a trip which began from Daggett, California, and is likely to continue for another month. The hat is a black "beaner" of a 61-4 size, and has the initials E. K. D. cut in the inside leather band.

The hat left Daggett with the request on it that everybody register. It arrived at Cheyenne, Wyo., on Aug. 15, visited Salt Lake City, Chicago and added, "I wish you a happy voyage." D. J. Muir at Montreal parted from it with the following inscription, "Keep me on the move. I am a good thing.

M. Witte is exceedingly anxious to President Roosevelt and personally present the thanks of his emperor for the president's assistance. He is, therefore, doing what he can to hasten the drafting of the treaty, which he would probably be prepared to sign by Tuesday or Wednesday of next week at the latest, unless some obstacle should arise. Belmont, Nova Scotia Swept By Fire-Much Damage by Forest Fires in Various Sections.

HALIFAX, Aug. 29.—Belmont, a setlement eight miles from Truro, was early swept out of existence this afernoon by forest fires, six families are meless and the town is without a railway station. The flames entirely onsumed seventeen buildings all told, cluding small outbuildings.

The fire is supposed to have started in the woods from a spark from a train, which grew into a wild forest fire, sweeping through the whole surrounding country, fanned by a high

Fred Wilson's barn was the first to be burned, then the railway station caught, and in a few minutes the vilage was a mass of flames. Truro was otified and Superintendent Jarvis of the I. C. R. sent out trainmen with ekets, who fought all the afternoon. Hard work was required to save the bridge, but it is badly damaged. The bucket handlers carried water up from the river to the flames, a distance of s quarter of a mile, and kept up a diligent rotation of buckets. The engine of the relief train hauled cars away from the station and hitched on the station platform and hauled it away ntact to stop the spread of the fire. DASH FOR THE POLE FROM DAWSON CITY.

Expedition Will Start Out In June of Next Year—Experiments to be Made Next Winter.

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 29.-Dawson out to capture the North Pole on scientific and methodical lines based on experience and experiment in polar expeople of the Klondike capital have Polar Research and Experiment, with a membership of 200, including Governor W. W. B. McInnes. Dr. Alfred Thompson, M. P.; Judges Dugas, Craig and Macaulay, Major Zachary T. Wood, commandant of the Northwest mounted police, the several resident consuls and other leading citizens. Experiments will be made during the coming winter, and next June an exedition will be dispatched to dash for the pole. At the organization meeting, recently held, one thousand people attended, and a lecture was given by Clerk Charles Macdonald of the terri torial court, dealing with polar expe ditions of the past and their mistakes. Mr. Macdonald said the expeditions of all former polar explorers and pole seekers had been conducted on anything but lines that would be approved by northern travellers of experience Yukoners found many weak points in the Nansen expedition. In that expedition it is shown by Nansen's own book that he understood little of equipping and handling long distance expeditions. Yukoners handle such with much more simplicity, ease and skill. Nansen travelled with dogs weighing fifty pounds. Yukoners never use dogs weighing less than 100 to 150 pounds. Nansen drove his dogs with each hitched to a single strang, and they were always entangled and causing interminable trouble and delay. Yukoners drive their, dogs in tandem harness and have scarcely ever such trouble. Nansen had no handles to his sleighs. Handles are a great and indispensable essential to the Yukoners in helping them to right their sleighs. Nearly every expedition sent to the Arctic thus far has been composed of sailors, men who Those not military were largely semimilitary. All were headed and composed of men not acquainted with nor

He will have none but the most experienced northern mushs ers and travellers, and none but the nost experienced and best trained heavy Yukon dogs. The society has appropriated this idea, and it is to be thoroughly tested this winter.

KNEELING STOOLS FOR METHODISTS.

Rev. Dr. Crummy Wants More Devotion and Discusses Surpliced

(Toronto News.)

"Our services of worship are defective in many respects," said Rev. Dr. Eber Crummy, in the course of his sermo at Bathurst street Methodist church vesterday morning "It seems to me that the congregation should take a greater part in the service. To this end I should like the congregation, led by the choir, to join in 'amen' after the singing of each hymn. The repeating of the Lord's prayer also should be more audibile, and the responsive reading of the morning psalm more generally taken part in." Dr. Crummy pleaded for more ra-tional methods of worship. He said he regretted that many Methodists in the past did certain things just because their fathers did them.

"Why do we turn round and kneel at our seats, with our backs to the person who is offering the prayer?" asked the doctor. "In the days of the fathers of Methodism this was necessary behere was very little danger of the fire caue they had no backs to their seats. Would it not be more noiseless, more the church yesterday relieved him of devotional, more comfortable if we knelt with our faces towards the altar? Let us have kneeling stools if necessary, but let us not maintain obsolete institutions because our grandfathers created them."

SURPLICED CHOIRS.

The preacher also had something to say about the wave of enthusiasm in Methodism over surpliced choirs. "The reason generally given for providing gowns to choirs," he said, "is that it provides uniformity and in-duces a more worshipful attitude in having threatened to withdraw. the congregation. Members of the congregation say, 'We cannot feel de-votional with a row of ladies' hats behind the preacher.' If the congrega-tion is bothered by the hats in the choir, the choir is surely annoyed with the many hats in the congregation On this principle, therefore, to secure must provide all the ladies in the congregation with some sort of uniform fashion, and I do not care to follow the mere fashions of religion." At the evening service, when the church was crowded, Dr. Crummy's suggestion regarding the repeating of "Amen" after the hymns, was tried, and some confusion resulted. Follow-

The sailor shook hands. Lord Ventnor smiled affably. Your enforced residence on the island seems to have agreed with you,"

"Admirably. Life here had its drawbacks, but we fought our enemies in the open. Didn't we, Iris?"

"Yes, dear. The poor Dyaks were not sufficiently modernized to attack us with false testimony." His lordship's sallow face wrinkled somewhat. So Iris knew of the court martial, nor was she afraid to proclaim to all the world that this man was her lover. As for Captain Fitzroy, his bushy eyebrows disappeared into his peaked cap when he heard the manner of their speech.

Nevertheless Ventnor smiled again.

His hatred of Anstruther now became a mania, an insensate resolve to mortally stab this meddler who always stood in his path.

Robert hoped that his present ordeal was over. It had only begun. He was called on to answer questions without number. Why had the tunnel been made? What was the mystery of the valley of death? How did he manage to guess the dimensions of the sundial? How came he to acquire such an amazing stock of out of the way knowledge of the edible properties of roots and trees? How? Why? Where? When? They never would be satisfied, for not even the British navy, poking its nose into the recesses, of the world, often comes across such an amazing story as the adventures of this couple on Antimony is one of the substances that covers a multitude of doubts. No one, not excepting the doctors who use it, knows much about it. and in Chinese medicine it might be a chief factor of exceeding nastiness.

Inside the cavern the existence of the partially completed shaft to the ledge accounted for recent disturbances on the face of the rock, and newcomers could not, of course, distinguish the bones of poor "J. S." as being the remains of a European.

Anstruther was satisfied that none of them hazarded the remotest guess as to the value of the gaunt rock they were staring at, and chance helped him to baffle further inquiry.

A trumpeter on board the Orient was blowing his lungs out to summon them to luncheon when Captain Fitzroy put

"I can quite understand," he said to Robert, "that you have an affection for this weird place, but I am curious to know why you lay claim to the island. You can hardly intend to return here." He pointed to Robert's placard stuck on the rock. Anstruther paused before he answered. He felt that Lord Ventnor's dark eyes were fixed on him. Everybody was more or less desirous to have this point cleared up. He looked the auestioner squarely in the face.

"In some parts of the world," he said, there are sunken reefs, unknown, uncharted, on which many a vessel has been lost without any contributory fault on the part of her officers."

"Undoubtedly." "Well, Captain Fitzroy, when I was etationed with my regiment in Hong-kong I encountered such a reef and wrecked my life on it. At least that is how it seemed to me then. Fortune threw me ashore here after a long and nce. You can hardly blame me if I cling to the tiny speck of land that gave me salvation." "No," admitted the sailor. He knew there was something more in the al-

Then every one laughed, Iris more than any, though Sir Arthur Deane's gayety was forced, and Lord Ventnor could taste the acidity of his own smile. Later in the day the first lieutenant told his chief of Anstruther's voluntary statement concerning the court martial. Captain Fitzroy was naturally pained by this unpleasant revelation, but he took exactly the same view as that expressed by the first lieutenant in Rob-

Nevertheless he pondered the matter and seized an early opportunity of mentioning it to Lord Ventnor. That distinguished nobleman was vastly surprised to learn how Anstruther had cut

Captain Fitzroy's tone was exceeding dry. Indeed, some people might deam it offensive. His lordship permitted himself the rare luxury of an angry scowl. "Rumor is a lying jade at the best." he said curtly. "You must remember. Captain Fitzroy, that I have uttered no word of scandal about Mr. Anstruther, and any doubts concerning his conduct can be set at rest by perusing the records of his case in the adjutant general's office at Hong-

"Hum!" said the sailor, turning on his heel to enter the chart room.

The girl and her father went back to the island with Robert. After taking thought the latter decided to ask Mir Jan to remain in possession until he returned. There was not much risk of another Dyak invasion. The fate of Taung S'Ali's expedition would not encourage a fresh set of marauders, and the Mohammedan would be well armed to meet unforeseen contingencies, while on his (Anstruther's) representations the Orient would land an abundance of stores. In any event it was better for the native to live in freedom on Rainbow island than to be handed over to the authorities as an escaped convict, which must be his immediate fate no matter what magnanimous view the government of India might afterward take of his services.

Mir Jan's answer was emphatic. He took off his turban and placed it on Anstruther's feet.
"Sahib," he said, "I am your dog. If some day I am found worthy to be your faithful servant, then shall I man was magnetic, a hero, an ideal gentleman. No wonder his daughter was infatuated with him. Yet the future was dark and storm tossed, full of sinister threats and complications. Iris did not know the wretched circumstances which had come to pass since they parted and which had changed the whole aspect of his life. How could he tell her? Why should it be his miserable lot to snatch the cup of happiness from her lips? In that mo of silent agony he wished he were dead, for death alone could remove the burden laid on him. Well, surely he might bask in the sunshine of her laughter for another day. No need to embitter her joyous heart until he was driven to it by dire necessity.

So he resolutely brushed aside the woebegone phantom of care and en-tered into the abandon of the hour with a zest that delighted her. The dear girl imagined that Robert, her Robert, had made another speedy con-quest, and Anstruther himself was much elated by the sudden change in Sir Arthur Deane's demeanor.

They behaved like school children on a picnic. They roared over Iris' trou-blos in the matter of divided skirts, too much divided to be at all pleasant. The shipowner tasted some of her sago bread and vowed it was excellent. They unearthed two bottles of champagne, the last of the case, and promsed each other a hearty toast at dinner. Nothing would content Iris but that they should draw a farewell bucketful of water from the well and drench the pitcher plant with a torrential shower.

"She was a splendid sea boat, sir.

Although disabled, she fought gallantly against the typhoon. Nothing short of a reef would break her up." "Ah, well," sighed the shipowner,

The Sirdar was lost on March 18, though I did not know it for certain until this morning. But on March 25 the Bahadur was sunk in the Mersey during a fog, and three days later the Jemadar turned turtle on the James and Mary shoal in the Hooghly. Happily there were no lives lost in either of these cases."

Iris was appalled by this list of casualties, yet she gave no thought to the serious financial effect of such a string of catastrophes. Robert, of course, appreciated this side of the business, especially in view of the shipowner's remark about the insurance. But Sir Arthur Deane's stiff upper lip deceived him. He failed to realize that the father was acting a part for his daughter's sake.

Oddly enough, the baronet did not seek to discuss with them the legal looking document affixed near the cave. It claimed all rights in the island in their joint names, and this was a topic to avoid. For the time therefore, the younger man had no opportunity of taking him into his conidence, and Iris held faithfully to her promise of silence.

The girl's ragged raiment, sou'wester and strong boots were already packed away on board. She now rescued the Bible, the battered tin cup, her revolver and the rifle which had "scared" the Dyaks when they nearly caught Anstruther and Mir Jan napping. Robert also gathered for her an assortment of Dyak hats, belts and arms, including Taung S'Ali's parang and a sumpitan. These were her trophies, the spoils of the campaign.

His concluding act was to pack two of the empty oil tins with all the valuable lumps of auriferous quartz he could find where he shot the rubbish from the cave beneath the trees. On top of these he placed some antimony ore, and Mir Jan, wondering why the sahib wanted the stuff, carried the consignment to the waiting boat. Lieutenant Playdon, in command of the last party of sailors to quit the island, evidently expected Mir Jan to accompany them, but Anstruther explained that the man would await his return some

Sir Arthur Deane found himself speculating on the cause of this extraordinary resolve, but, steadfast to his policy of avoiding controversial matters, said nothing. A few words to the captain procured enough stores to keep the Mohammedan for six months at least, and while these were being landed the question was raised how best to dispose of the Dyaks.

The commander wished to consult the convenience of his guests. "If we go a little out of our way and land them in Borneo," he said, "they will be hanged without troubling you further. If I take them to Singapore they will be tried on your evidence and sent to penal servitude. Which is

It was Iris who decided. "I cannot bear to think of more lives being sacrificed," she protested. "Perhaps if these men are treated mercifully and sent to their homes after some punishment their example may serve as a deterrent to others"

So it was settled that way. The anchor rattled up to its berth, and the Orient turned her head toward Singapore. As she steadily passed away into the deepening azure the girl and her lover watched the familiar outlines of Rainbow island growing dim in the evening light. For a long while they could see Mir Jan's tall, thin figure motionless on a rock at the extremity of Europa point. Their hut, the reef. the ledge, came into view as the cruiser swung round to a more northerly the lagoon with the foliage on the cliff. The wide cleft of Prospect park grew less distinct. Mir Jan's white clothed figure was lost in the dark background. The island was becoming vague, dreamlike, a blurred memory.

"Robert," said the girl devoutly, "God has been very good to us. Do you remember this hour yesterday?" she murmured. "How we suffered from thirst; how the Dyaks began their second attack from the ridge; how you climbed down the ladder and I followed you? Oh, father, darling," she went on impulsively, tightening her grasp, "you will never know how brave he was; how enduring; how he risked all for me and cheered me to the end." "I think I am beginning to understand now," answered the shipowner, averting his eyes lest Iris should see the tears in them. Their Calvary was ended, they thought. Was it for him to lead them again through the sorrow ful way? It was a heartrending task that lay before him, a task from which his soul revolted. He refused even to attempt it.

The explanation of the shipowners osition was painfully simple. Being a daring yet shrewd financier, he perceived in the troubled condition of the far east a magnificent opportunity to consolidate the trading influence of his company. He negotiated two big loans, one of a semiprivate nature to equip docks and railways in the chief maritime province of China, the other of a mere public character with the government of Japan. All his own resources together with those of his principal directors and shareholders, were devoted to these objects. Contemporaneously he determined to stop paying heavy insurance premiums on his fleet and make it self supporting on the well known mutual principle.

His vessels were well equipped, well manned, replete with every modern improvement and managed with great mmercial skill. In three or four years, given ordinary trading luck, he must have doubled his own fortune.

No sooner were all his arrangements completed than three of his best ships went down, saddling his company with an absolute loss of nearly £600,000 and seriously undermining his financial credit. A fellow director, wealthy and influential, resigned his seat on the board and headed a clique of disappointed stockholders. At once the fair sky became overcast.

Sir Arthur Deane's energy and financial skill might have enabled him to weather this unexpected gale were it not for the apparent loss of his beloved daughter with the crack ship of his line. Half frenzied with grief, he bade his enemies do their worst and allowed his affairs to get into hopeless confusion while he devoted himself wholly to the search for Iris and her companions. At this critical juncture Lord Ventnor again reached his side. His lordship possessed a large private fortune and extensive estates. He was prudent withal and knew how admirably the shipowner's plans would develop if given the necessary time. He offered the use of his name and money. He more than filled the gap created by the hostile ex-director. People argued that such a clever man, just returning from the far east after accomplishing join the board restored confidence and credit. But there was a bargain. If Iris lived she must become the Countess of Ventnor. His lordship was weary of peripatetic lovemaking. It was high time he settled down in life, took an interest in the legislature and achieved a position in the world of affairs. He ad a chance now. The certain success of his friend's project, the fortunate completion of his own diplomatic undertaking, marriage with a beautiful and charming woman-these items would consolidate his career. His heart was set on Iris. He seized the first opportunity that presented itself to make Sir Arthur Deane acquainted with a decision already dreaded by the unfortunate shipowner. Iris must either abandon her infatuation for Anstruther or bring about the ruin of her father. There was no mean. "If she declines to become Countess of Ventnor she can marry whom she likes, as you will all be paupers together," was the earl's caustic sum-

This brutal argument rather overshot the mark. The shipowner's face flushed with anger, and Lord Ventuor hastened to retrieve a false step. (To be continued.)

Poem by Mary Maples Dodge. The death of Mrs. Mary Mapes Dodge, editor, writer of stories, and poet, which occurred on Monday, gives touching appropriateness to this very human poem by her on Death, which, by the way, has been widely attributed to Walt Whitman:

THE TWO MYSTERIES

"In the middle of the room, near the ffin, sat Walt Whitman, holding a peautiful little girl on his lap. She looked wonderingly at the spectacle of death, and then inquiringly into the face of the aged poet. 'You don't know, what it is, do you, my dear?' said he, and added, 'We don't, either.'"

WHAT THE PEOPLE PAY FOR.

It is stated that the 300 miles of Grand Trunk Pacific railway now located west of Winnipeg is at no point more than six miles from an existing railway. This proposed line does not strike north through unoccupied and undereveloped territory, as was promised, but follows the Canadian Pacific running for long stretches within a mile of that line. We have said that this is not what the people were asked to pay for. The preamble to the Grand Trunk Pacific act said the road was to be constructed "with the view of opening up new territory available for settlement. Samuel Miller, of Bayswater, is horse and rig short and has little chance of reimbursment or of receiving his lost property as it is at the bottom of the Kennebeccasis river. His son Charles was in charge of the outfit and was coming to the city on the Maggie Miller when the nag got an idea that a bath was the proper thing and before anybody could prevent it backed off the ferryboat. The wagon was heavily loaded at the time and quickly carried the horse down in about fifty feet of water.

A drowning accident occurred in the Annapolis River early Saturday morning. Two men named Wallace and Vidito went in a boat to cross the river to Granville Ferry. The boat was upset by the current and Wallace sank and was drowned. The other man managed to catch the bottom of the upturned boat and shouted loudly for help. Brnest Mills, who lives at Granville Ferry, got a small boat and rescued him from his perilous situation. Wallace was about 19 years of age and lived at Clementsport.

A very anomolous situation exists as to the impression created by the conclusion of peace. While the outside world applauds in Japan there is evidently great disappointment in the terms, and in Russia, where it would seem that there should be universal rejoicing over the great diplomatic victory M. Witte has won the government, seems to have received it coldly. With the people it will make M. Witte a great and popular figure and add to his laurels, but at court evidently the very victory M. Witte has achieved makes it all the more bitterly resented. It is an open secret that the "military party" hates and fears Witte, and that when the emperor appointed him chief plenipoter tiary they expected him to fail. They did not want peace, and it was freely predicted in St. Petersburg when M Witte left that he had been given an impossible mission and sent to America to "break his neck." They expected tion at Grand Lake, is making ar-rangement for the construction of a make a "bad peace," and either would large number of cabins for tourists on have spelled political ruin. Since Japan was in a conciliatory mood they now say he made a mis take in surrendering half of Sakhalin. Yet he did so by the Tsar's orders and would have stuck to the end to his orithe best attention of all its members. The actual work of drafting the ginal declaration not to cede territory or give indemnity. In Japan the situation is reversed. The government recognized the advisability of concluding peace even if all demand for indemnity had to be withdrawn. But the people were incensed even at the suggestion of the division of Sakhalin. That was evident from the expressions out in the elaboration of the articles of in the Japanese press yesterday. And that was before there was even a suggestion of waiving demand for any indemnity whatever. Today Tokio is silent. Not a word or line about the receipt of the news comes out of Japan. The government has its hand upon every wire. And among those who best know Japan here it is ominous of the popular wrath the receipt of the terms has raised, and they recall with a shudder past tragedies when ministers have been unpopular. The Associated Press is able to give one additional and interesting as well as important detail in regard to the conditions of peace. Most important of all is the fact that the formal recognition of Japan's possession of the Chinese Eastern Railway below Kuenchengtse, the junction of the branch to Kirin, involves payment by Russia to China of a sum estimated at $75,-000,000. This is the Chinese interest in the road and for it China must be re munerated. The question of the ultimate possession of the road is a mat-ter to be settled between Japan and China. Japan can keep the road or srrender it to China, demanding in return the money paid by Russia to China. If she elects the latter course, Japan will therefore obtain as an in-direct "spoil of war" from Russia the above mentioned sum, in addition to reimbursement for the cost of maintaining the Russian prisoners of war, for which Japan will present an item-ized bill. Japan is known to have given her word to China not to retain the railroad, which was really built for strategic purposes. But if China pre-fers the money to the railroad, Japan could not be accused of had faith. Another important provision is that Japan's succession to the Port Arthur and Liao Tung leases which Russia surrenders is conditional upon China's assent. The armistice was not arranged today. The war departments both at St. Petersburg and Tokio are consulting Linevitch and Oyama respectively, and it is not improbable that the armistics will be concluded directly by the generals upon the field of battle.

E. Lawrence Hunt, pastor of that church, startled some of his congregation yesterday, particu larly the elders. It was Mr. Hunt's farewell service, as his resignation sion of his sermon he walked toward Miss Smith and said:

"Two years ago you won a Bible for earning the catechism, and that ir the short space of one month. I told pleased some-that as you had beer baptized in the Roman you would in due time be confirmed in that church. I am glad to know that you have been and that you are faith-

Yet I cannot startle them as much as Jesus angered some elders in His day.

"I saw Cardinal Gibbons last week and told him all the facts in this matter, and His Eminence graciously promised that if I would send him the cross he would bless it. I did so. This will have an added sacredness and value to you as a faithful child of the church because it has a cardinal's blessing. In my judgment, too, as a Protestant minister, his blessing means much to you personally. From my point of view it means that a great, good man is interested in you and he

Healthy Woman Cannot Be Overestimated.

Seven-eighths of the men in this world marry a woman because she is beautiful in their eyes because she has the quali-ties which inspire admiration, respect and love. There is a beauty in health which is more attractive to men than mere regularity of feature. The influence of women glorious in the possession of perfect physical health upon men and upon the civilization of the world could never be measured. Because of them men have attained the very heights of ambition; because of them even thrones have been established and destroyed. The influence of women

What a disappointment, then, to see the fair young wife's beauty fading away before a year passes over her head! A sickly, half-dead-and-alive woman, especially when she is the mother of a family, is a damper to all joyousness in the home, and a drag upon her husband.

The cost of a wife's constant illness is a serious drain upon the funds of a household, and too often all the doctoring does no good.

If a woman finds her special states a serious can be a serious drain upon the funds of a household, and too often all the doctoring does no good.

drain upon the funds of a household, and too often all the dootoring does no good.

If a woman finds her energies are flagging, and that everything tires her, dark shadows appear under her eyes, her sleep is disturbed by horrible dreams; if she has backache, head-aches, bearing-down paims, nervousness, whites, irregularities, or despondency, she should take means to build her system up at once by a tonic with specific powers, such as Lydia E. Pink, and surely makes sick women well and robust.

This great remedy for women has done more in the way of restoring health to the women of America than all other medicines put together. It is the safeguard of woman's health.

Winters from Water at Nahant Beach.

BOSTON, Aug. 80.-Willie Winters of Newbury went to Lynn yesterday tirely inadequate protection for this to have a good time. Down on the industry, as the cost of manufacture farm where Willie worked he had heard of the new state bath house, and was curious to see it. He made Major Edwards when they come to the the mistake of indulging too heavily in an internal bath before he got to Nahant beach, and now Willie is in a cell at police headquarters in Lynn, charged with being disorderly.

Willie evidently labored under the impression that the bath house was used as a receptacle for clothing, and that a bathing suit was only a matter of taste. So he disrobed, threw his clothing on the bath house steps and ran into the water.

He created a sensation, and soon had two or three life guards and the park police after him. They stood on the shore and invited him out, but Willie would not budge. Manager Anderson and Life Guard Moore went after him, but he ducked every time they reached for him. Finally they got a rope, lassoed him and brought Willie ashore. They wrapped him in a blanket; then they made him dress, and sent him to police headquarters in Lynn, where Willie wept.

No indemnity under any guise but an agreement to divide Sakhalin and reimburse Japan for the maintenance of the Russian prisoners were his last words, which had been repeatedly reiterated in M. Witte's instructions and in the form of a written reply to the Japanese compromise proposal of last Wednesday they were delivered to Baron Komura this morning. M. Baron DeRosen returned to the hotel for luncheon. The Japanese had remained at the conference hall to lunch with Mr. Peirce. The Russians declared that diplomatically the Japanese made their colossal blunder when they agreed to consider the conditions seriatim. The Japanese correspondents, though they said little, plainly showed their dissatisfaction in the jubilation. The big curfew bell in the green the plainly showed their dissatisfaction on Market square pealed forth the with the terms during the afternoon. They stood aloof silent in the midst of the general jubilation, for as the afternoon advanced the air was filled with the sounds of rejoicing. Bells were rung in Portsmouth and Newcastle and the fleet in the harbor was adding to the din with their sirens and bells. On a smaller scale it recailed the finish of an exciting international yacht race at Sandy Hook. One of the Japanese, however, gave the true note when he remarked: "Tell me that the Mikado has approved of it and I shall be satisfied."

In that sentence was compressed the Spartan heroism of the Japanese nation, and when later Mr. Sato issued the official explanation of the reasons that moved the Japanese plenipotentiaries, and it showed that the Mikado had approved, there was a perceptible change in the feeling of the Japanese. Considerable disappointment, however, continued to be manifested. Baron Komura, following the rule he has set for himself, declined to make any statement, and Mr. Takahira, quiet, reserved as usual, would only say when asked by the Associated Press to make a statement: "For the sake of humanity and civilization, and, as we believe, in the interest of both scenaries and the world, we have made peace."

Mr. Peters says it has been clearly demonstrated by experiments made at the Central Farm that crops grown upon land which has been previously sown with clover are from five to twenty per cent. heavier than in cases where other crops have been grown be-fore. To conquer daily temptation, which asks you to be mean and small or dishonest or revengeful, to walk daily among men as a Christian with garunspotted, that requires divine strength, and the largest portion of it. And this is the strength which God gives to them that wait upon Him. It is the supreme reward to them that wait. It is the climax.

NO NEW LINE INTO MAINE.

MONTREAL, Aug. 30-When ques ioned today regarding surveys which the C. P. R. is making in Maine and New Brunswick, general manager Mc-Nicoll denied they were for the purpose of building a line between Mat tawamkeag and Debec Junction.

Mr. McNicoll said that the rumor was utterly groundless, and that the C. P. R. had no intention of breaking away from the Maine Central, whose line they use from Mattawamkeag to Vanceboro. The Canadian Pacific, however, has some surveying parties out in that part of the country, the sole end of their work is the im provement of the grades, on the present line of the road, and there is no HALIEAX BOARD thought of building such a branch as reported.

HALIFAX, Aug. 30 .- John McManus, brother of Reid McManus, who has Intercolonial from Windsor Junction, was shot this morning as he was passing Princes Lodge. The work of double tracking is kept up day and night, and a large number of men are employed at the work.
