JOHN J. NOONAN DIES SUDDENLY

Hemorrhage From the Lungs
Seizes Him on His Way Home.
AGENT FOR W. S. LOGGIE
His Mother, Wife, and Three Small Children Survive.

It was a considerable shock to some people to hear Sunday morning that John J. Noonan, of Howard St., had died suddenly the night before. Mr. Noonan was around town on Saturday and appeared to be in his usual state of health. On his way home however he was seized with a hemorrhage from the lungs, in Wellington street, just as he was passing R. A. Lawlor's residence. He lost strength rapidly, but managed to drag himself to the door of Mr. Lawlor's house and made enough noise to attract attention. The ladies in the house were horrified to find Mr. Noonan on his knees against the door, bleeding profusely from the mouth and nose, and assisted by Chief Lawson they carried him into the house, Drs. Losier and Loggie were summoned but the suffering man was beyond all hope of life, and passed away in a short time.

Mr. Noonan was the son of the late Thomas Noonan of this town, who died when his son was only a year old. For some years Mr. Noonan occupied the position of traveller for the W. S. Loggie Co., Ltd., and was well known on the North Shore. He was a man of genial disposition and made friends wherever he went. Last winter he became subject to heavy colds and has not recovered his full strength, however, though he was doing some soliciting work, and made arrangements to canvass for the O. M. B. A. during the summer. His mother, wife and three small children survive. His funeral took place yesterday morning from his late residence under the auspices of the C. M. B. A., about one hundred members attending in a body to the pro-cathedral where Requiem High Mass was sung at 9 o'clock.

It is a daring wager—for that is what it really is—which the Texas Brewers' Association makes. This Association offers to donate $100,000 to charity if it cannot prove that more liquor is sold in the prohibition than in the 'wet' sections of the United States. The association will defray the entire expenses of a commission of twelve men to investigate, six to be chosen by the prohibition party.

CONFIRMATION AT ST MARY'S CHURCH

Large Number of Little Girls and Boys Receive The Sacrament.

BISHOP BARRY'S ADDRESS

Advises Boys to Take Pledge and Shun Evil Habit of Smoking Cigarettes

On Saturday morning his Lordship Bishop Barry administered the sacrament of Confirmation to fifty-one girls and thirty-three boys. The Chief Commissioner and Mrs. Morrissey were sponsors. Rev. Fr. Maguire celebrated 9 o'clock Mass after which the Bishop examined the children in their catechism. Then followed the Confirmation after which His Lordship addressed a few very timely words to the children on their duties to God and to their parents and to themselves. He asked the little boys to shun the habit of cigarette smoking and to take the pledge of total abstinence until they became of age. After finishing his remarks all the little boys came forward to the rail and took the pledge. Then followed the Confirmation. The little girls were dressed in white with white shoes and stockings and white veils and looked very pretty as they marched two by two to the altar to receive the sacrament.

WEDDING BELLS.

VYE-PRICE.

This morning at ten o'clock at the home of the bride here Rev. W. J. Dean will unite in marriage Lennel C. H. Vye, youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Vye and Miss Bernice A. Price, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Price. The wedding will be a quiet one, only the immediate relatives of the contracting parties will be present on account of his father's death.

The bride will be attired in white silk with allover lace and bridal veil, and be accompanied.

Her travelling suit is of blue chiffon broadcloth with hat to match.

The happy couple will leave by Ocean Limited for Halifax and New Glasgow, stopping at Amherst, Truro, and other places on the way.

The bride was the recipient of many useful and valuable presents, the grooms gift being a handsome gold watch with the bride's initials neatly engraved thereon and gold chain set with pearls. The choir of the Methodist church presented her with a handsome rocking chair. Miss Price was formerly chief operator for the New Brunswick Telephone Co. here and Mr. Vye is night operator at Bartibogue. The Advocate wishes them every success.

Greatest Britain will participate handsomely in the celebration of the centenary of steam navigation on the Hudson River in September and October next. Four armored cruisers of recent date—the Drake, Argyle, Duke of Edinburgh and Black Prince—will be sent over under the command of Admiral Hamilton.

COURT IN SESSION.

Judge McLatchey Opened July Session of County Court Yesterday.

THREE CRIMINAL CASES

Grand Jury Finds True Bill in The Indictment Cases.

The July session of the County Court opened here yesterday. His Honor, Judge McLatchey presiding. There were three criminal cases and one civil case entered in the docket as follows:

Rex v. McQuestion, alias Brown.
Rex v. Brown.
Rex v. Flemming.
English v. Lyon.

McQuestion had been indicted for breaking and entering the store of O'Leary and Montgomery in Chatham and stealing therefrom a quantity of clothes, jewelry and about $10.00 in money.

Brown was charged with stealing two bags of flour from the bakery of Mr. Brightman here. The preliminary hearing before R. L. Maltby, police magistrate, disclosed the fact, according to the witnesses, that Brown had attempted to sell the flour which was stolen, to Robert Beckwith. The flour was afterwards returned to Mr. Brightman by the alleged thief after it had been known that it was stolen goods.

Flemming was charged with highway robbery and a count added "stealing from the person." According to the depositions, it appeared that one Patrick Maher was walking along the street in Chatham with a bottle of liquor in his possession when the accused assaulted him knocking him down and relieving him of the liquor. Maher not wishing to part with his charge, laid complaint and the result was that on investigation, Flemming was committed for trial.

English v. Lyon was an action of Assumpsit on promissory note.

The cases were sent up before the Grand Jury and Court adjourned for dinner.

2 p. m. Court opened pursuant to adjournment. The grand jury returned true bills in each of the three criminal cases presented for their deliberation; and presented His Honor with the following address:

To His Honor Judge McLatchey
May it please your Honor
We the Grand Jury of the county Northumberland, wish to record our sincere sorrows at the death of Judge Hanington and to express our great regard for his high standing on the bench. By his death our country has lost a strong moral force for good. We wish to convey our condolence to his bereaved family. We also wish to express our deep regret at the continued illness of His Honor Mr. Justice Gregory which has caused his retirement from an honored position in the Judiciary of this province and hope that the quiet of his home will prolong his life for many years more. Signed on behalf of Grand Jury.
J. D. CREAGHAN
July 27, 1909 Foreman

The case of Rex v. Brown was taken up first and the following jury empanelled—James Davidson, George Bethune, William Bryanton, John Fennell, John Fitzpatrick, John Dunn, Wm. C. McKay, Wm. McMurray, Thos. Lynch, Reuben Robineau, Michael Young, James Stohart. The first witness called was Henry Brightman. He testified to having first missed the flour from his baking on Friday. On Monday Brown came and told him that some of the boys had played a trick on him and asked that the flour was over at Beckwith's, and later Brown went over and got the flour. Henry A. Copp testified to having seen Brown near the bakery at about twelve o'clock on Saturday night after theft.

The case is still going on as we go to press. The Crown will depend on Mrs. Robert Beckwith to prove that Brown came there on Sunday morning after the theft and tried to sell them the flour.

James Lord, a fisherman of St. John, has since the holidays began, saved seven school children from drowning.

History of Dalhousie.

The essay that took the first prize at the Dalhousie school, written by Alban Bate, son of Rev. Mr. Bate, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, Dalhousie, N. B.

Early History

At the extreme North Point of New Brunswick, situated near the mouth of the Restigouche or Big River, is to be found the town of Dalhousie, called after Lord Dalhousie who was out here prior to the year of 1830. He tried to found a small town at Mission Point, which afforded every advantage for such a purpose, and offered the Indians 2600, and twice as much land elsewhere, if they would resign their title, but they did not accept his offer. (See Cooney's History, page 217.) From this it is very probable that he might have founded the town of Dalhousie, which was surveyed of 1400 out in 1826 or 28, the surveyor being a Mr. Ullinett.

The earliest event of any historical occurrence which happened near Dalhousie, was in July, 1760, when a French fleet coming to aid Quebec was attacked by a British fleet in the Bay of Chaleur. The French vessels, driven up the Restigouche near where Campbellton now stands, were captured or destroyed. This was the last battle of the Seven Years War. (See G. N. Hay's Canadian History, Chapter IV, page 230.)

The first white resident of Dalhousie, of which we have any record, was a Peter Harquail, a cooper by trade, the grandfather of the present James Harquail the carpenter, who came from Jersey (one of the Channel Islands) in the year 1812. He built a house where Mr. Alexander LeBlanc's house at present stands. He sometime after exchanged farms with a Mr. Slegar of Tide Head.

The next resident was a Dan Rothery, who fought in the Battle of Waterloo, coming a few years later and building his house where Mr. McLeod's store now stands. The next man to come was Alexander Dean, who settled near where the new butcher's shop is being built, between Mr. Montgomery's yard and the site of the late woodworking factory.

When these men came here they found a large number of Micmac and Maliseets or Mellicets Indians encamped where the railway station now is, and along the water front.

Early Industries and Business

The place evidently grew quickly, for in 1832, Cooney in his history, on page 208, has this to say about Dalhousie: "On the south side of the Restigouche, two miles above the entrance, is the town of Dalhousie, consisting of a few houses, and two or three mercantile establishments, of which the most extensive is, that of Messrs. Hugh & John Montgomery. The site of this town is a level eminence, and between it and two small but elevated islands in front, a good broad channel of six or seven fathoms in depth, flowing towards the town, forms a fine safe harbor, where vessels may load within a quarter of a mile of the shore."

Besides the firm above mentioned, the other principal business houses were: the Hamiltons, P. & J. Stewart, H. & A. Ramsey and W. S. Smith. The prominent monument overlooking the mouth of the river was erected to the memory of Captain John Hamilton, one of the early residents of Dalhousie.

The principal business of these firms was the exporting of square timber and in those days the harbor presented a very lively appearance, for dozens of sailing vessels of all sizes were employed in the course of the season to ship it away. Besides this business, another of the first industries of the town was that of shipbuilding. The first vessel was the "Hamilton," a brig of 500 tons, built by William Hamilton. All the lumber for the building of the vessels being sawed by hand, whip saws being used.

There were two principal shipyards.

A Household Necessity.

Father Morrisey's Liniment Should be in Every Home

How seldom a week passes without some member of the family suffering from a sore throat, chest or back, a burn or a cut, a sprain, strain or ache!

Such troubles will come, but there is no need of suffering much from them. Keep a bottle of Father Morrisey's Liniment in the house, use it freely, and the pain has little chance.

During his lifetime Father Morrisey prescribed this Liniment regularly, and it proved very effective in relieving all sorts of pains and aches. In Rheumatism it is valuable as a "rub", when "Father Morrisey's No. 7" Tablets are taken internally. Similarly, applied freely to throat and chest it helps "Father Morrisey's No. 10" (Lung Tonic) to quickly break up and drive away a sore throat, cold in the chest, or cough.

Taken all around it is one of the best family liniments in existence. Price 25c per bottle. At your dealer's, or from Father Morrisey Medicine Co., Ltd., Chatham, N.B.

one about a mile west of the town, the other where Wallace's blacksmith shop stands. The timber from Es River was shipped at the Port of Dalhousie. (See Cooney's History, page 203.)

First Steam Mill

In 1836 the first steam mill was erected by Arthur Ritchie on same site as present Lumber Co.'s mill, two gang saws being used, eight saws in one gang and six in the other. It gave employment to about 47 men.

George Moffat, senior, was Mr. Ritchie's foreman, and when about a year after he built Mr. Ritchie became bankrupt, and the property was advertised for sale, he bought it in. The mill continued in George Moffat's possession until his death in 1857 when it passed into the hands of his sons, George and Robert, the former having two thirds interest and the latter one third in the business. At Robert's death, George bought the widow's share of the mill and so acquired sole control, which he held until 1903, when he sold it to the Dalhousie Lumber Co. who ran it till it was burned down in June 1907. They quickly erected a temporary mill in order to carry on their business, and in the spring and summer of 1908 they built an up to date, modern pulp, saw and roasting mill on the same site.

Other Steam Mills and Factory

The next mill, built by Peter Nadeau, was a shingle mill. He sold the lease of it to George Montgomery (the Mayor's brother) who pulled it down and built the mill which at present stands. When George Montgomery died, William Montgomery (the present mayor) acquired it. He worked it for two years, then sold it to Chaplin and Beringer, who at present own it.

The third mill, built by George Moffat in 1901, was another shingle mill. It was sold to the Dalhousie Lumber Co. in 1902.

In 1906 a company was formed called the Restigouche Woodworking Co., which built a fine large factory here, but failure overtook it in the form of a fire, which burned it to the ground in the spring of 1907.

Early Communications with Outside Places

In early days communication was kept up with the outside world chiefly by means of water. The inhabitants had to lay in a supply of provisions capable of lasting the winter, but sometimes the vessels could not get here on account of the ice, then provisions had to be brought on sleighs from Quebec. This naturally would make the price of things very high. For instance flour was known to sell at $20 per barrel; corn meal at $15; brown sugar at 12 1/2 cts. per lb; white sugar at 20 cts. per lb. As there was not a great deal of money in circulation, the people generally bought their provisions with timber or farm produce.

Post Office and Mail Service

Before the existence of railways, mail was brought here twice a week from the Miramichi on horseback and by stage coach. The first post office was kept where the public school now is. The first postmaster being Mr. Wands. From thence it was moved to the lower end of the town, then to the place where Morrissey's store is now. Mr. LaBillette, father of the present C. H. LaBillette, M. P., being postmaster at this time, a position which he held for 20 years. Soon after this, owing to a disastrous fire, it was moved to where Mr. W. S. Smith's office now is. In 1889 it was moved to the present fine stone building. H. A. Johnson became postmaster after Mr. LaBillette, and was later succeeded by his son, who in turn was followed by the present postmaster, Mr. A. J. LeBlanc.

Custom House

As Dalhousie is a port we naturally find a Custom House here. The first Custom House was on the present vacant lot between Miss Cameron's house and the Post Office, a Mr. McCody being Custom House officer, who some time afterwards was succeeded by Perry Dumaresq. From there it was moved to the top of the hill with Douglas Stewart (the father of Jas. and Chas. Stewart) as Customs House Officer. In 1889 it was removed to its present place above the Post Office with Mr. William Montgomery (the father of the mayor) as Custom House Officer, a position which he held until 1903, when Mr. George Haddow took his place.

Telegraph Office

About 40 years ago Telegraphy was put in the town, the first telegraph office being where the sample room now is, behind Mr. Chisholm's store, a Mr. Hart being first telegraph operator. A number of years afterwards it was moved to the post office. About three or four years ago it was moved to its present place with Miss Eliza Jessop as operator.

In 1905 the telephone was put in with the telegraph office, as the central for the town.

Schools and Principals

In early days as the town continued to grow it felt the want of a school, so one was started in a vacant house then owned by Dugald Stewart and was built on the wharf the first family, with Sarah Good as first teacher. One of her pupils is still alive. After teaching for nine years she was succeeded by Mr. Lloyd, who taught in same building as did his successor Mr. Parrott.

The number of pupils continuing to grow the school was moved to a larger building, owned by Dugald Stewart, on same site as present school house, with a Mr. McKenzie as master. Again the school house getting too small the school was moved to a house where Mr. W. S. Smith's office now is. (The house is not there now.)

A few years after a Grammar school was built near where Mr. George Merrier's house now is. A Mr. Bennett being first Grammar School Principal. He was succeeded by Mr. Hutchinson, who in turn was succeeded by Mr. Miller, who was succeeded by Mr. Ross. While Mr. Ross was here a new Grammar School was built on same site (old school having been pulled down) as present school house. Mr. Ross was succeeded by Mr. Cowpertwaite during whose time the Grammar School went to Campbellton, as it had grown to be the largest town and we to be content with the Superior School. After this Mr. Ross again came back for a time, then was succeeded by a Mr. Dickson. Shortly after he came the school was burned down in 1896, and during the time the present one was being built, school was held in the Court House and Mechanic's Hall and also in the Masonic Hall. Mr. Dickson taught for a time in the new school house and was then succeeded by Mr. Masterson. The late Mr. McLean followed him, and then came in 1905 our present energetic and able principal, Mr. L. D. Jones.

Court House and Jail

As Dalhousie is the shiretown of the county of Restigouche, we find the county jail and courthouse here.

The first jail was built on the bank where the Presbyterian graveyard now is. When this was done away with, another jail was built alongside of the recording office. In 1892 when the present large brick jail was built, the old jail was bought by George Moffat for a mere song and moved by him down to the Flats and converted into a dwelling for some of his workmen. We have had two court houses. The first one was situated between what is at present Mr. McLeod's store, and Mr. James Harquail's office. Our second and present court house was built by George Moffat, senior, nearly eighty years ago.

Registry Office

We have had only two registrars in our registry office, the late Mr. Andrew Barberie and his son who succeeded him, the present Mr. John Barberie. The first deed to be put on record was that of the old Charlefour property on Oct. 10th 1838, at present belonging to Mr. John Barberie.

Hotels

The first two best hotels built here were owned by Mr. Delaney and Mr. Phillips. Besides these there were some rural ones called taverns in those days. There are at present three hotels in the town, besides a large summer hotel called the Inch Arran, about a mile from the town, built in 1884, which after running for several years, closed down and was not opened until two years ago, 1907.

Steamship Communication, Public Wharf, Harbor Masters and Light Houses

Steamship communication outside places began with the "S. S. Ladyhead" in 1849, running from Quebec to Dalhousie and Miramichi. The following two vessels the "S. S. Miramichi" and "S. S. Gaspé" running the same route, and when the "Gaspé" was wrecked and the "Miramichi" ceased running the "S. S. Beaver" took their places, running for two summers. Then followed in succession the "City of St. John" the "Rothesay Castle" the "Restigouche" the "Monticello" the "Admiral" the "Lady Eileen" and the "Lady Sybil" in 1908, running from Gaspé at first only to Dalhousie, then Campbellton. The "Admiral" was the first to run to Campbellton. During the time of Hon. Peter Mitchell, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and one of the Fathers of Confederation, a system of light, and more recently the channels have been well lighted by buoys.

Intercolonial Railway

The main line of the Intercolonial Railway was opened up in 1875, passing by Dalhousie. This was a bad blow for the town and Campbellton became headquarters for a large number of business, which would have belonged to Dalhousie had the I. C. R. passed through here. But the injury was somewhat alleviated by the building of the branch train from Dalhousie Junction, which opened up 26 years ago on June 20th 1883.

The public wharf was built in 1860 by John Jardine, before that the passengers had to embark and disembark in boats. The wharf was greatly added to in 1907 and 1908. The freight wharf was built on the wharf the first year in which the "Admiral" ran.

The harbor masters are as follows: Wm. Jamieson, Andrew McIntyre, Wm. Cullen, Jas. Moffat and W. S. Smith, the present one.

FIRES

Dalhousie has been several times visited by disastrous fires. The first of which was on July 23rd 1873, burning 21 or 22 buildings, the fire starting back of where Mr. McLeod's store now is and burning south by south-west.

The next fire was on Nov. 3rd 1886, starting where Mr. Alexander LeBlanc's house now is and burning up the front street.

Besides these the Presbyterian church was burnt in 1901, the wood-working factory in April 1907, and the Dalhousie Lumber Co.'s mill in June of the same year, facts which I have in private houses by travelling missionaries. On May 31st, 1836, the first of having the first church built in Dalhousie, before this, church was held sale of pews in the new church took place and a few days later the first trustees were chosen. Their names are as follows: Perry Dumaresq, John Hamilton, John Montgomery, Dugald Stewart, Peter Stewart, David McIntosh, John Ferguson, Jr. Arthur Ritchie, William McGregor, Robert McIntosh, Hamilton Flemming and William Hamilton. Perry Dumaresq being chosen chairman. Many calls were sent to different ministers to the Colonial committee of the church of Scotland, but they did not succeed in getting a resident minister until 1855. During this period from 1837 to 1855 the Rev. W. Stevens, then minister at Campbellton, came every third Sunday. In 1835 the Rev. A. Forbes accepted the call sent to him, and remained three years, resigning in 1838. He was succeeded by Rev. W. Murray who built the first manse. He resigned in 1865. The Rev. James Murray then accepted the call and remained until 1874.

For two years after this they were without a pastor, when in 1876, the Rev. A. Russell came at their call and after ministering to the spiritual wants of the congregation for twelve years, died here in 1888. Shortly before this the congregation had contemplated the building of a new church, but just then the manse burned down and the people had to put forth extra efforts to build a new manse also. The new church was opened in 1882, on same site as present one, with the Rev. George Fisher as pastor.

In 1901 the church was burned down having been struck with lightning. The next year the present large church was opened.

When Mr. Fisher resigned he was succeeded by Rev. George A. Leck, and at his resignation in 1906, the present pastor, the Rev. J. H. Kirk accepted the call.

BOYS AND GIRLS.

DO YOU SEE THAT

It is yours for one day's work.

The delight of every boy and girl is to own a watch. Realizing this, we have determined to place a golden opportunity at the door of every little boy and girl throughout the country.

During the next two months until September 1st, we will give to every little boy and girl sending us seven new subscriptions to the ADVOCATE a handsome watch, chain and charm. This is not a toy premium, but a reliable time-keeper, GUARANTEED by the makers and by OURSELVES. Hundreds of these watches have been sold by our local jewelers, and have given abundant satisfaction. WE ARE DETERMINED TO DOUBLE OUR CIRCULATION DURING THE PRESENT YEAR REGARDLESS OF THE COST. We have purchased two hundred watches for distribution among the little ones; and they will be sent out to every little boy and girl sending in seven new subscriptions. Just think of it! A GUARANTEED WATCH for only seven new subscriptions: ONE SUBSCRIPTION FOR EACH DAY OF THE WEEK. Get busy during Vacation!! Tell this story to your friends, and they will help you earn one of these watches.

RULES. (1) As soon as you get a new subscriber, send his name in at once, together with $1.00 for a full year's subscription in advance to THE ADVOCATE. When you have sent in seven names and seven dollars the watch will be sent to you.

(2) OLD SUBSCRIBERS. An old subscriber paying up all arrearages will be credited as a new subscriber provided he pays one year in advance. Write all names plainly and give address.

(3) This golden opportunity closes September 1st. Any little boy or girl who has worked faithfully, and after sending in two or more subscribers, fails to get the remainder within the time limit, may write us of their troubles, and we will be pleased to forward special premium list, or grant liberal commission for money sent in.

tage of Bennett's absence and sneaked
up to the house." The story teler paused, and Necia, who was under the spell of his recital, urged him on:

"Yes, yes. What happened then?
Go on!" But Stark stared gloomily at his hands and held his silence for a full minute, the tale appearing to have awakened more than a fleeting interest in him.

"It was one of the worst killings
that ever happened in those parts," he continued. "Bennett came back to find his wife murdered and the kid gone."

"Oh!" said the girl in a shocked voice.

"Yes, there was a deuce of a time.
The town rose up in a body, and we—
you see, I happened to be there—we followed the man for weeks. We trailed him and the kid clear over into the Nevada desert, where we lost
them."

"He died of thirst in the desert maybe, he and the little one."

"That's what we thought at the time,
but I've crossed his trail since then.
No. Gaylord is alive today, and so is the girl. Some time we'll meet." His voice gave out, and he stared again at the floor.

"Couldn't the little girl be traced?"
said Necia. "What was her name?"

Stark made to speak, but the word was never uttered, for there came a deafening roar that caused Lee's candle to leap and flicker and the air inside the cabin to strike the occupants
like a blow. Instantly there was confusion, and each man sprang to his feet, crying out affrightedly, for the noise had come with utter unexpected-ness.

"My God, I've killed him!" cried Gale. And with one jump he cleared half the room and was beside Stark,
while his revolver lay on the floor
where he had been sitting.

"What is it?" exclaimed Burrell.
But there was no need to ask, for powder smoke was beginning to fill the room, and the trader's face gave answer. It was whiter than that of his daughter, who had crouched fearfully against the wall, and he shook like a man with ague. But Stark stood

"My God, I've killed him!" cried Gale.
unhurt and more composed than any of them. Following the first bound from his chair, he had relapsed into his customary quiet. There had blazed up one momentary flash of suspicion
and anger, but it died straightway, for
no man could have beheld the trader
and not felt contrition. His condition was pitiable, and the sight of a strong man overcome is not pleasant. When it was seen that no harm had been done the others strove to make light of the accident.

"Get together, all of you! It's nothing to be excited over!" said Stark.

"How did it happen?" Runkinn finally asked Gale, who had sunk limply
upon the edge of the bunk, but when the old man undertook to answer his words were unintelligible, and he shook his head helplessly.

Stark laid his finger on the hole that
the bullet had bored in the log close to where he was sitting and laughed.

"Never mind, old man; it missed me
by six inches. You know there never was a bullet that could kill me. I'm six shooter proof."

"What'd I tell you?" triumphantly
ejaculated Lee to the lieutenant.

Doret of all in the cabin had said
nothing. Seated apart from the others,
he had seen the affair from a distance,
as it were, and now stepped to the bed
to lay his hand on Gale's shoulder.

"Brace up, John. Scurry about! Your face look lak flour. Come outside an'
get it air."

Poleon led his friend down the trail
for half a mile without speaking till Gale had regained a grip of himself
and muttered finally:

"I never did such a thing before,
never in all my life."

"Why?" inquired the Frenchman.

"I—I—I— What do you mean?"

"Don't lie wit' me, John. I'm happen to be watch you underneat' my hat w'en you turn roun' for see if anybody lookin'."

"I thought you were asleep," said
Gale.

CHAPTER VIII. THE KNIFE.

IN every community, be it ever so small, there are undesirable citizens, and while the little party
was still at breakfast on the following morning three such members of society came around the cabin and
let fall their packs, greeting the occupants boisterously.

"Well, well!" said Lee, coming to the door. "You're travelin' kind of early,
ain't you?"

"Yes, early and late," one of them
laughed, while the other two sprawled
about as if to rest.

"How far are you goin'?"

"Not far," the spokesman answered.

"We want a piece of this creek."

"What are you goin' to do with it?"

"Cut that out, Lee. We're on."

"Who wised you up to this?" inquired the miner angrily.

"Never mind who put us Jerry.
We're here, ain't we?"

The harm was done, and there was no use in concealment, so Lee reluctantly told them of his discovery
and warned them of the stakes already placed.

"I'll step along with the boys and show them where our upper stakes
are," volunteered Stark, and Runkinn
offered to do the same, adding that it
were best to make sure of no conflict
so early in the game. The five disappeared into the woods, leaving the others at the cabin to make preparations for the homeward trip.

"I don't like the look of this," observed the lieutenant thoughtfully.

"I'm afraid there's some kind of a job
on foot."

"There's nothing they can do," Gale
answered. "We've got our ground staked out, and it's up to them to choose what's left."

They were nearly ready to set out
for Flambeau when the five men returned.

"Before you go," said Stark. "I think we'd better organize our mining district. There are enough present to do it."

"We can make the kind of laws we want before the gang comes along," Runkinn chimed in, "and elect a recorder who will give us a square deal."

"I'll agree if we give Lee the job,"
said Gale. "It's coming to him as the discoverer, and I reckon the money will be handy, seeing the hard luck
he's played in."

The group assembled in the cleared
space before the cabin to make rules
and regulations governing the district,
for it is a custom in all mining sections removed from authority for the property holders thus to make local laws governing the size of claims, the amount of assessment work, the size of the recorder's fees, the character of those who may hold mines and such other questions as arise.

It was of wondrous interest to Necia
to be an integral part of such important matters, and she took pride in voting on every question, but Burrell,
who observed the proceedings from neutral ground, could not shake off the notion that all was not right. Things moved too smoothly. It looked as if there had been a rehearsal. Lee, Po-leon and the trader, however, seemed
not to notice it.

The surprise came when they had completed the organization of the district and had nearly finished adopting bylaws.

Runkinn moved the adoption of a rule that no women be allowed to locate mining claims, and one of the others seconded it.

"What's that?" said Lee, raising his eyes from the notebook in which
as secretary he was transcribing the minutes.

"It isn't right to let women in on a man's game," said Runkinn.

"That's my idea," echoed the seconded.

"I s'pose this is aimed at my girl,"
said Gale, springing to his feet. "I might have known you bums were up to some crooked work."

Poleon likewise rose and ranged himself with the trader.

"Ba gar, I don't stan' for dat!" said
he excitedly. "You want for jump Necia's claims, eh?"

As long as I'm chairman I'll have no rough work," declared Stark, glaring at them. "If you want trouble,
you two, I reckon you can have it;
but, whether you do or not, the majority is going to rule, and we'll make what laws we want to."

He took no pains now to mask his dislike for Gale, who began to move toward him in his dogged, resolute
way. Necia, observing them, hastened to her father's side, for that which she sensed in the bearing of both men
quite overcame her indignation at this blow against herself.

"No, no; don't have any trouble!"
she pleaded as she clung to the trader.

"For my sake, daddy, sit down!" Then

she whispered fiercely into his ear:
"Can't you see he's trying to make
you fight? There's too many of them.
Wait! Wait!"

Burrell attempted to speak, but Stark, who was presiding, turned upon him fiercely.

A moment later he saw the futility
of interference when Stark continued,
addressing the trader:

"This isn't aimed at you in particular, Gale, nor at your girl, for a motion to disqualify her isn't necessary.
She isn't old enough to hold mining property."

"She's eighteen," declared the trader.
"Not according to her story."

"Well, I can keep her claims for her till she gets of age."

"We've just fixed it so you can't,"
grinned Runkinn cunningly. "No man can hold more than one claim on a creek. You voted for that yourself."

Too late Gale saw the trick by which Stark had used him to rob his own daughter.

"No Creek" Lee had the name of a man slow in speech and action and

"No, no; don't have any trouble!" she pleaded.

one who roused himself to anger deliberately, much as a serpent stings
itself into a painful fury, but now it was apparent that he was boiling over,
for he stammered and halted and
blustered explosively:

"You're a bunch of rascals, all of you, tryin' to down a pore girl and get her ground. But who put you wise to this thing, in the first place? Who found this gold? Just because there's enough of you to vote that motion
through that don't make it legal, not
by a d—d sight, and it won't hold,
because I won't write it in the book.
You—you!" He glared at them ma-levolently, searching his mind for an epithet sufficiently vile and, finding it,
spat it out—"dressmakers!"

So this was why both Stark and Runkinn had gone up the creek with
the three new men, thought Burrell.
No doubt they had deliberately arranged the whole thing so that the new arrivals could immediately relocate
each of Necia's claims—the pick of all the ground outside Lee's discovery and the surest to be valuable—and that Stark would share in the robbery.

Carefully slipping around the corner of the cabin and keeping the house behind him and the others, Burrell
broke into a swift run, making the utmost possible speed for fear they should miss him and guess his purpose, or, worse yet, finish their discussion and adjourn before he could complete his task. He was a light man on his feet, and he dodged through the forest, running more carelessly the farther he went, visiting first the upper claims; then, making a wide detour of the cabin, he came back to the initial stake of Necia's lower claim, staggering hursting from the strain. He had covered nearly a mile, but, even so, he laughed grimly as he walked back toward the cabin, for it was a game worth playing, and he was glad to take a hand on the side of the trader and the girl. Coming within earshot, he heard the meeting vote to adjourn. It could not have terminated
more opportunely had he held a stop watch on it.

Runkinn addressed the other conspirators loudly:

"Well, boys, there are three good
claims open for relocation. I'm sorry
I can't stake one of them."

"They won't lie open long," said one of the undesirable citizens, starting to turn downstream, while his two companions made for the opposite direction. But Burrell stopped them.

"Too late, boys. Your little game went wrong. Now, now, don't get excited! Where, I had quite a run."

Gale paused in his tracks and looked at the young man queerly.

"What do you mean?"

"I've jumped those claims myself."

"You jumped them?" cried Necia.

"Sure! I changed my mind about staking."

"It's a lie!" cried Runkinn, at which Burrell whirled on him.

"I've been waiting for this, Runkinn,
ever since you came back. Now!"

"I mean you haven't had time," the other temporized hurriedly.

"Oh, that sounds better. If you don't believe me take a look for yourself. You'll find my notice just beneath Miss Gale's." Then to "No Creek" Lee he continued, "Kindly record them for me so there will be no
question of priority."

"I'll be d—d if I do!" said the belligerent recorder. "You're worse'n

these crooks. That ground belongs to Necia Gale."

Up to this time Stark had remained silent, his impassive face betraying not a shadow of chagrin, for he was a good loser, but now he spoke at large.

"Anybody who thinks the American army is asleep is crazy." A then to Burrell, "You certainly are a nice young man to double cross your friends like that."

"You're no friend of mine," Meade
retorted.

"I? What do you mean?"

"I double crossed you, Stark; nobody else. There's no use mouthing words about it," said he. "These things are your tools, and you tried to steal that ground because it's sure to be rich."

Stark exclaimed angrily, but the other gave him no time to break in.

"Now, don't get rough, because that is my game, and I'd be pleased enough to take you back a prisoner." Then, turning to Lee, he said: "Don't make me force you to record my locations.
I staked those claims for Miss Gale,
and I'll deed them to her when she turns eighteen."

Poleon Doret called to Runkinn:
"M'sieu, you 'member w'at I tol' you yestiddy? I'm begin for tink it's goin' be you."

Seeing that the game had gone
against him, Stark got his feelings under control quickly and shrugged his shoulders as he turned away.

"You're in the wrong, lieutenant," he remarked, "but I don't want any trouble. You've got the law with you."

Then to Runkinn and the others he said, "Well, I'm ready to hit the trail."

When they had shouldered their packs and disappeared down the valley Gale held out his hand to the soldier. "Young man, I reckon you and I will be friends."

"Thank you," said Burrell, taking the offer of friendship, which he knew was genuine in that.

"I'm in on that," said "No Creek"
Lee. "You're all right."

Poleon had been watching Stark's party disappear, but now he turned and addressed the young soldier.

"You mak' some enemies today,
m'sieu."

"That's right," agreed Lee. "Ben Stark will never let up on you now."

"Very well. That is his privilege."

"You don't savvy what it means to get him down on you," insisted Lee.

"He'll frame things up to suit himself,
then pick a row with you. He's the quickest man on a trigger in the west,
but he won't never make no open play,
only just devil the life out of you with little things till you flare up; then he'll down you. That's how he killed the gold commissioner back in British Columbia."

Necia had said little so far, but the look in her eyes repaid the soldier for his undertaking in her behalf and for any mischief that might ensue from it.
She came forward and laid her hands
upon his.

"Don't worry, daughter," reassured Gale. "There's nothing Stark can do,
and whatever happens we're with the lieutenant. He's our kind of people."

"Oh, no! We beat him in," she said,
and fell to musing at the memory of
those hours passed alone with Meade,
while her eyes shone and her cheeks glowed. The corporal saw the look, and it bore out a theory he had formed during the past month, so as he lingered,
he set about a task that had lain in his mind for some time. As a rule, he was not a careful man in his speech, and the delicacy of this maneuver taxed his ingenuity to the utmost, for he loved
the girl and feared to say too much.

"The lieutenant is a smart young fellow," he began, "and it was slick, work jumpin' all those claims. It's just like him to befriend a girl like
you. I've seen him do it before."

"What?" exclaimed Necia. "Befriend-
other girls?"

"Or things just like it. He's always doin' favors that get him into trouble."

"This couldn't cause him trouble,
could it, outside of Stark's and Run-
kinn's grudge?"

"No, I reckon not," assented the corporal, groping blindly for some way of expressing what he wished to say.
"Except, of course, it might cause a lot of talk at headquarters when it's known what he's done for you and how he done it. I heard somethin' 'bout
it down the street this morn-
in', so I'm afraid it will get to St.
Michael's and then to his folks."

"I don't understand," said Necia.

"He hasn't done anything that any man wouldn't do under the same circumstances."

"No man's got a right to make folks
talk about a nice girl," said the corporal, "and the feller that told me about it said he reckoned you two
was in love." He hurried along now,
without offering her a chance to speak,
"Of course that had to be caught up quick; you're too fine a girl for that."

"Too fine?" laughed Necia.

"I mean you're too fine and good to let him put you in wrong, just as he's too fine a fellow and got too much
ahead of him to make what his people would call a messy alliance."

"Would his people object to—such a thing?" questioned the girl. They were alone in the store, and so they could talk freely. "I'm just supposing, you know."

"O Lord! Would they object?" Corporal Thomas laughed in a highly artificial manner that made Necia bridle
and draw herself up indignantly.

"Go ahead and tell me! I won't be offended," insisted the girl. "You must, I don't know much about such things, for I've lived all my life with men like father and Poleon and the priests at the mission, who treat me
just like one of themselves. But

THE BYE ELECTION.

Though aided by all the force and brains of the Conservative party throughout the Province; though championed by a multitude of platform orators, led on and cheered on, by Mr. Hazen and five of his cabinet; with all the advantages obtainable by government support, and with a strong man in the field, the Conservatives were unable to stem the tide of popular indignation against the Hazen regime, and Mr. Mosher, popular though he was, went down in defeat on Tuesday the 20th inst. before an almost unknown man, in one of the bitterest contests St. John County has ever witnessed. The result is a severe blow to the Hazen administration, since coming into power sixteen months ago three bye elections have been fought, and never were three elections more bitterly contested. But each time the voice of the people proclaimed through the ballot "Robinson forever". To Mr. Bently the victory must be considered a great triumph. He might almost be regarded as a stranger in this Province. But stranger though he may be he has the ability and moral courage and only awaits the opportunity to show the people that he is more than the "goody-goody man" Mr. Mosher had described him.

FIGHT THE EVIL.

Why is it that every train brings into Albert County parcels and boxes of goods from Upper Canadian mail order houses? Is it because the local merchant does not keep the goods that people want? Is it because the local merchant charges too much for his goods, or what is the trouble?

We think the local merchant should bear some of the blame. He is apt to get into a rut and stay there. He gets a false notion that advertising does not pay and proceeds at once to criticize people for sending their money out of town. The local merchants claim that he can give bargains equally as good as the mail order house but then he frequently makes the fatal mistake of telling no one about it. How does the mail order house tell of its bargains? By catalogues, circulars and by using the newspapers. Advertising brings results just as surely as the sun rises and sets. If a mail order house spends a thousand dollars in advertising results will assuredly follow. It cannot be otherwise. It is up to the local merchant to meet the mail order house on its own ground. The local man need not spend as much money as the mail order house, for the local man has many advantages over his far away competitor. The local man knows his constituency; he is right on the spot; he can supply goods at once; he comes in personal contact with his patrons. The local merchant should not become grouchy but should use his head. Let him tell the people what he has to offer; let him use plenty of space in the Journal; let him send out circulars; let him fight in every honorable way the growing tendency to buy out of town. No evil can be conquered in a day; it takes years of patient work. Let merchants wake up to their opportunities and act as men who believe what they say, when they claim that they give as good values as any mail order or outside concerns.—Albert Journal.

What is true of Albert County applies also to Northumberland. Every week sees large orders sent to Upper Canadian Departmental stores. Millerton a one sends hundreds of dollars to Upper Canadian houses each year. And why? They flood the country with catalogues, circulars, and newspaper ads. And it pays them. Their success is the result of advertising. It is not that the goods are any better or any cheaper. In many cases the opposite. Yet they cause the people to believe that they are better and cheaper by their enormous advertisements. Let our local merchants do the same and they will have no reason to fear outside competition.

Flying Machines in Canada.

Canadian Aviators are Making Ready for Tests—New Aerodrome to be Called Baddeck.

Petawawa, Ont., July 26—Messrs. McCurdy, Baldwin and Lieut. Perrin and William MacDonald are putting the aerodrome Silver Dart together and will rush the work on during the next three or four days. No ascent is likely to be made before the end of the week. The fifth and last aerodrome, the young inventors have made will be tried at Petawawa Camp, but it is not here yet. The intention is to experiment with the Silver Dart and later on with the new flying machine which has been christened the Baddeck. Later on some military officers from Ottawa will visit here but none have arrived yet and the time will be taken up in getting the machine together.—Times.

Minard's Liniment Cures Diphtheria.

Halifax N. S., July 19. In his address to the Canadian Freight Association in recent convention in this city Mr. John W. Loud Freight Traffic Manager of the Grand Trunk Railway System paid a neat compliment to the train service of the Intercolonial Railway, declaring that he had never travelled an equal mileage on any road with less discomfort from dust. He was simply astounded at the entire absence of dust and gratified at the complete measure of comfort. The objections to travelling in summer were all removed by the Intercolonial as shown by the train which carried the delegates from Montreal to Halifax.

A census bureau report from Washington contains the information that sixty one per cent. of all the wood pulp imported into the United States comes from Canada. This proportion is sure to increase, partly because the supply of native pulpwood is rapidly diminishing and partly because Canada is manufacturing wood pulp more extensively every year.

PALE, LAUGID GIRLS.

Weak Blood During Development
May Easily Cause a Life of Suffering.

A Tonic Such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Needed to Build up the Blood and Give New Strength.

At no time in her life does a girl stand in greater need of pure, red blood and the strength which it alone can give her, when she is developing into womanhood. It is then that any inherited tendency to anaemia or consumption needs only the slightest encouragement to rapidly develop. This danger is especially threatening to girls who are confined long hours indoors, in stores, offices and factories—girls depressed by worry and cares. All these conditions quickly impoverish the blood and are among the most common causes of sickness among growing girls and young women. If at any time a girl finds that her strength is failing and she is becoming pale and nervous, has no ambition and is languid, it is a certain sign that her blood is failing to meet the demands upon it, because it is impure and thin.

It is at a time like this that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are invaluable to young women and growing girls. They build up the blood, make it rich, red and pure, tone the nerves and give new health and strength to every part of the body. They have cured so many cases of this kind that they may truly be called a specific for the common diseases of girlhood. Miss Minnie Smith, (Brighton street, Halifax, says: "I have proved that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are all that is claimed for them in cases similar to mine. About three years ago I suddenly began to run down. I grew so weak that I could hardly attend to my school studies. I suffered from headaches, my heart would palpitate violently at the least exertion and my appetite was very fickle. I tried doctors medicine and emulsions, but the treatment did not help me. Then I started taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after taking seven or eight boxes I was stronger than ever before. I feel that I owe my present good health to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I gratefully recommend them to other ailing girls." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The recent unsavory Gould case disclosed the fact that Mrs. Gould had eighteen servants in the house, twelve about the estate; twenty gardeners and a crew of eighty for the yacht. When one remembers the different kinds of trouble that one hired girl can make explanation as to the cause of the Gould unhappiness would seem unnecessary.

Isaac Deboo

Great Inventor.

His Numerous Inventions in Daily Use on I. C. R.

Since the earliest days of the I. C. R. Isaac Deboo, of Sussex, well-known, however, in Moncton and along the North Shore, has been connected with and in the service of the I. C. R. till his superannuation a few months ago.

Mr. Deboo's career as a railway man has not been void of success, rather the active part which he has taken and the success which attended his efforts, are proverbial. In addition to his general and well-executed work, he has, within the last twenty years, made some nine inventions all of which he has put into the use of the I. C. R., and these have all proved useful and beneficial to that railway.

The principal invention is "The Diamond Plow," or as it is better known "The Pig," introduced in 1892. It was put to its first real test and proved its efficiency, when it was in Halifax and that yard was ice-bound after a sleet and snow storm. A report sent to the late Mr. J. B. Price, then superintendent of the I. C. R., said that it was a decided success and it was spoken of in highly commendable terms. There was an immediate demand for the plow, which ran on till now Mr. Deboo has put into use some eighteen of them. His first invention was the Guard Rail Blocks and Lead Rail Blocks for stub-switches, which took the place of a Mr. Stuart's Guard Rail Fastenings—then fastenings having proved unsatisfactory—and have been used since 1889. Another invention was the Double-End Slide Plow, used for unloading cars, the only one ever used in the Maritime Provinces, and as far as is known the only one used in Canada. Mr. Deboo was instrumental in introducing the three-throw signal switch, and in making a change in men's station signal, substituting one which is still in use on the railroad. His last invention, "The Buttery," has attracted the attention of many, who recognize it as a clever piece of ingenuity. The inventor of this claims that the rotary plow, though excellent for cutting, did not accomplish its purpose and get the desired result, till worked with the buttery. Previous to its invention and subsequent use, hand labor was the

OBITUARY.

REBECCA CAMPBELL

At her home at Blackville on July 17th Miss Rebecca Campbell aged 83. She was a sufferer for years, but bore it all with patience and cheerfulness and always had a kind word and smile for her friends and acquaintances of whom she had many.

JOHN DONALD.

At McNamers, N. B., on July 2nd John Donald died aged 65, leaving wife and five children, four girls, May, Edith, Grace, Mildred and one son, Claire. After service at the home on the 3rd the remains were taken to Upper Blackville and interred the next day after service in the Baptist church, the Rev. F. T. Snell officiating and preaching from the text, "Behold I show you a Mystery" to a great congregation. The deceased was for many years postmaster at McNamers, was well-known and respected. The pallbearers were Robt. McLaggan, Wm. McLaggan, J. Duncan, C. Donald, J. Donald Gordon Donald. The widow was formerly Miss Barbara Arbeau of Upper Blackville.

Mrs. Thaw Visits

Campbellton.

Goes to Kedgewick to Join her Late Husband.

Evelyn Nesbitt Thaw, late wife of Harry K. Thaw, the woman who has been in the limelight for the past two years, arrived in Campbellton Wednesday morning on the Ocean Limited, together with a maid and a man servant, and registered at the "Minto". The day was quietly spent here, Mrs. Thaw appearing on the streets and was readily recognized by those who were familiar with her published pictures.

Yesterday she, with her attendants, left by the International for Richard's Siding, enroute to Restigouche Lodge on the Kedgewick, where her latest husband, Mr. Stillman, is enjoying the fishing with a party of friends.

Mrs. Thaw will have a hard road to travel. She will go about fifty miles by rail, and then about seven miles by team, over one of the roughest portage roads in this country. She was dressed for the journey, being attired in a short walking skirt of grey cloth, tan leggings and boots, a sweater with collar and a bright red tie. A felt hat of men's pattern completed a very serviceable woods costume.

 only means used to gather in the snow—which was too slow a process in connection with a rotary plow. Two other inventions were the Wing Plow and the Ballast Plow.

Mr. Deboo has been in this country since 1854, and although born in England, now Brunswick is his province by adoption. He has been connected with the railway in its construction or service since 1854.

Germany, while keen on building battleships, is very sulky about paying the money they will cost. That is one fact not to be overlooked.

compact little town, with good railway and steamboat connections, telegraph and telephone, three mills, many up to date and commodious stores, a modern system of water-works, three churches, public and convent schools, a branch of the Royal Bank, Mayor and Corporation, three doctors, two lawyers, police magistrate and policeman, and a population of about 1200.

camped here, but there were very few of that faith here when it was settled by white men. Roman Catholic missionaries did not come here again until about 1840 when Father Barron came once a month from the Mission, opposite Campbellton, Mass being held in private houses. He was succeeded in his work by Father Pelletier. A church was built in 1856 by Father Pelletier, who in turn was succeeded by Father Barry, now Bishop of Chatham, in 1871. Father Bannan succeeded him in 1875; then came Father McDonald in 1881, who built the present church on the hill in 1886. Father Smith succeeded him the same year, but Father McDonald came back again in 1890, remaining for two years and then gave way to Father Crumley, who was succeeded by the present Curé, Father Boucher, in 1894.

The convent was built in 1903, it contains eleven sisters, their order being Filles du Jesus. They teach 80 boarders and 125 day scholars.

Church of England

The first authentic record of the Church of England in Dalhousie is the entry in the Church registers of the Baptism of two children on Aug. 26th, 1842, by the Rev. R. King. From 1842 to 1852 the Rev. N. Disbrow, rector of Bathurst, made many frequent visits. Between 1853 and 1856 the names of the Rev. W. H. Shore, travelling missionary the Rev. N. Disbrow, rector of Bathurst, the Rev. James Hudson, Rector of Newcastle, and the Rev. Samuel Bacon, Rector of Chatham, are mentioned as officiating at the Church services. From Jan. 1858 to May 1861 the Rev. C. F. Street, Rector of Bathurst, made constant visits to the parish. From 1861 to 1868 the Rev. W. B. McKel, Rector of Bathurst, also visited the parish several times. In 1869 the Rev. J. H. Satterley, the first resident Church of England clergyman was appointed rector of the parish of Dalhousie and Campbellton combined. He resigned in 1871. The Rev. P. H. Brown came soon afterwards, building the church in 1873, and a year after resigned his charge. He was succeeded by the Rev. E. B. Crozier, who in turn was succeeded by the Rev. J. H. S. Sweet in 1877, who built the Rectory in the following year. In 1881 the Rev. J. H. S. Sweet resigned, but was immediately followed by the Rev. C. P. Flowering, who remained in charge until 1885, when the Rev. C. D. Brown quickly followed him and remained for six years, being succeeded by the Rev. J. Simonds. In 1892 Dalhousie and Campbellton were divided into two separate parishes, this bringing about the resignation of Mr. Simonds. In the following year the Rev. H. B. Morris came, building the Sunday School Hall in 1897, and resigning the next year. He was succeeded by Rev. E. H. Fullerton, who in turn was followed by the present rector, the Rev. W. J. Bate in 1905.

Government of the Town

The earliest form of systematized government seems to have been the formation of a Court of Session, which met twice a year, magistrates from each district of the country attending. These magistrates were appointed by the local government, and had power when in session to make bye-laws for town and county.

The next form of government was that of a County Warden and Councilors, each parish being represented by a councillor.

In 1904 the town was partly incorporated, and was governed for two years by three Commissioners, viz.—Dr. Ferguson, Hon. C. H. LaBillois and Capt. Powell.

In 1906 the town was fully incorporated and a Mayor and Aldermen were elected. Mr. William Montgomery being the first and present mayor.

Miss Manie Barriau of Moncton is spending her vacation with relatives in the village.

Mrs. Harry Miller of Campbellton is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McIntosh.

Miss Bessie Ingram, after a lengthy visit to her sister in River Herbert N. S., returned home on Friday.

Without prejudice, it may be said that a coal miners' strike in July is more popular than it would be in January.

IMMENSE CROWD ATTEND RACES.

Flagman's Error Causes Outsiders to run Over a Mile Past Turning Point.

OTHER RACES FAST.

Cribbs Technically Loses Official Prize but Will be Given Handsome Trophy.

The Y. M. B. A. long distance races on the M. A. E. A. track last evening proved the great success that was anticipated. There was only one drawback—that the flagman in the seven mile race was out of position and the outside runners did not stop at the seven mile mark but ran practically nine miles. Cribbs ran slightly more than the correct distance, making it in all 46.03 and finishing about a mile ahead of the other men. Of the latter men Cameron led by nearly a lap in 49.30, Stubbs made second and Bailes, of Campbellton, third. Smith, of St. John, retired in the last mile, on account of blistered feet.

The others events resulted as follows:

Five Mile Novice—Chester Jardine 1st; George Hersey 2nd; Martin Carrigan 3rd. Time, 32.25.
Three Mile Race—J. O. Wallace, Saxville, 1st; Jas. McGrath, 2nd; Alex. Moore, Douglasfield, 3rd; Phil. Mallet, 4th; Wilbur Mays, 5th; Ike Preston, 6th; Herbert McLatchey, Campbellton, 7th; Austin Murray, Campbellton, 8th; Leo Troy, 9th; Otto Mallet, 10th. Time 17.10.

Fully one thousand people were in attendance at the track and the grand stand was well filled. The enthusiasm was constantly at a high pitch and the runners were heartily cheered at every stage.

It was a little after 6.45 o'clock when the contestants in the five mile race took the mark. Mallet, Peacock, Pyne, and Jas. Dickson scratched and there were five starters. Jardine got the pole and early in the race he took the lead. Carrigan pressed him close, however, and led at two miles. At the end of the seventh lap these two runners thought they had finished and came in with a magnificent burst of speed, but had to get travelling again. Jasper Dickson ran in third place for four miles, but was so exhausted he was obliged to leave the race at this stage. Jenkins, of Loggieville, only ran one mile, but Hersey ran although the race at a steady, even pace and on the last lap passed Carrigan and won second place. Jardine came in first with a sprint looking fresh as a daisy.

Owing to the large number of entries, the three-mile race was unusually interesting. Out of the twenty-four entries Coward, Cromwell, Dickson, Peacock, Henry Cribbs and Jo. Handley were scratched, and the remaining eighteen put up a stiff race. Wallace, the winner, set a pace that the others found hard to follow, though McGrath was not far behind at any time. Alex. Moore a Douglasfield youth, ran well for third position, and the others were strung along in the order named. Mitchell Traer, the smallest of the bunch, though lapped by the leaders, ran gamely on, and was rewarded by a $5 bill from the hands of the Lieut-Governor at the finish.

In the seven mile race which was started in front of the grand stand after two laps of the three miles had been run, Thomas, Brehaut and Williston were scratched, and five starters took the mark—Cameron, Stubbs, Smith, Bailes and Cribbs. The men got away together and were soon out of sight. Cameron ran in the lead, with Stubbs second and Smith and Cribbs together, Bailes in the rear. Wood, the official flagman, was to mark the turning-point on the Douglasfield road, but unfortunately in the excitement and gathering dusk, he drove past the two mile mark, and the judges not coming up in time, Cameron and Stubbs followed Wood along the road at least a mile past the correct turning point. Cribbs recognized the place at once and called to the other runners, but the leaders were looking for the official flagman and kept pegging away. Smith turned with Cribbs, ran 100 yards, then decided to follow Cameron and Stubbs, Bailes also ran the additional distance. Cribbs, of course, had the road to himself on the way back and there was a perfect storm of cheers, when he appeared on the track alone. When he had run half a mile, however, little doubt existed that something had gone wrong and when he covered nearly one and a quarter miles on the track before Cameron appeared this doubt became a certainty. The Amherst man was fresh and making great time, though he had run around six miles and finished the three miles at a lively clip. Cribbs' time for the seven miles was 46.03 and Cameron covered his distance in 49.30. Stubbs dropped considerably behind the Amherst man, and the latter had a lap to the good at the finish. Smith had been training for a seven mile race and the longer stretch proved his undoing. His feet went to the bad and after running a mile on the track he was obliged to leave the race. Bailes ran strong to the finish and clinched third place.

When it became known that the other runners had covered two miles more road than Cribbs, there was some confusion, though the best of good feeling prevailed. Through no fault of Cribbs, technically he lost the chance of winning the race. From the standpoint of the visitors the mistake was most regrettable as there is every probability that Cameron would have smashed the maritime record for seven miles: He never ran better in his life and was feeling fine at the finish. No doubt, Cribbs will have an opportunity in the near future to meet the Amherst lad and the local man will then be given the chance which he lost last night of showing what class of runner he is.

At a dinner at McKay's Restaurant, later in the evening, speeches were made by the runners and representatives of the clubs, and all, while regretting the unsatisfactory result in the seven mile race, had good words to say for the enterprise of the Y. M. C. A. in promoting an event of so much importance and carrying it to a successful conclusion. Mention was made by President Pout of two handsome prizes to be presented Cribbs and Smith.—Commercial.

REMARKABLE FOSSIL

The Technical World calls attention to a remarkable petrification in Arizona. It is the trunk of a tree, with branch stubs still intact, which had fallen across the head of a large canyon and then turned to stone. The roots of the fallen monarch rise to a height of eight or ten feet at one end, while the upper extremity of the trunk is buried in the soft formation of the land in which it grew. The trunk is more than fifty feet long and spans a canyon at least forty feet wide. It forms a perfectly solid bridge of a diameter of from five to two feet at the smaller end.

Trees of considerable size have grown up around it from the bog of the canyon, some of them considerably higher now than the fallen tree is long. Over the trunk of the petrified monster they throw a welcome shade to the birds which gather for miles around to sit on the stony trunk during the heat of the day.

It is considered probable by its interior portions are practically solid agate, as are those of the other petrified trees of Arizona.

Wherever the car travels they make him feel at home by discovering a plot to blow him up.

Warm water is much lighter, bulk for bulk, than cold. Water is heaviest just before it freezes.

Ottawa mourns for a band. As a rule there is plenty of brass and a surplus of chin music at the capital.

Calgary, the other day, had an historical moment three miles long. Now where did Calgary get three miles of history?

OUR BASEBALL COLUMN

BITS OF BASEBALL WISDOM

BY FRANK CHANCE

Manager, Champion Chicago "Cub"

During the time that I have been playing the game, baseball has made rapid strides. In no department has such an advance been made as in team work. Some ten or eleven years ago, when I started out as professional, there was not an extra lot of attention paid to the most essential feature of success in baseball. Of course, we had the sacrifice, and the hit and run, and all the other tricks and plays that go to make up team work, but we did not begin to make the use of them that even the poorest teams of today do. In those days there was much left to the individual. To be sure, even now, a ball player has to depend on his own initiative, in many cases, but not near so frequent as was once the case. It seems to me that "the work together" idea has grown to be a sort of instinct with the modern ball-tosser, and the good man, who will not sacrifice his personal ends, say pass up a chance to increase his batting average, and do something which will, in the end, have a better effect on his team's welfare, cannot be found in big league baseball. Some of the old teams, like Boston or the Baltimore of the Nineties, may have had the inside game down to the same perfection that the league teams of today have it, but they were the exception and not the rule.

In these times, even the weakest teams are adepts at the inside game and are forced to suffer defeat only through the lack of real baseball-ability in their players. Even at that, it is no rare sight to see some tail-enders pull out a victory from one of the big fellows, by a quick display of judgment, when their over-confident opponents are, for the moment, sleeping.

It is the practice of managers today, even the minor league ones, to drill their men in any number of intricate plays, each one planned to meet some possible contingency, which may not spring up once in a hundred games, so that when it does crop up the men will know how to face it, and possibly win the game thereby.

In working his team into a mechanically perfect whole, the manager has all the chance in the world to study human nature, and if he be not a good student, he had better pack his grip and seek other fields for the exercise of his talents. For there must be harmony on a ball team, and harmony can only be preserved by a manager who knows how to judge men. To begin with, when a new man joins a team he must be sized up carefully. Some men will learn quickly, and seem to almost anticipate the instructions that are given him, while others are very slow to think and have to be handled with great care. One fellow will accept a gentle call-down in the spirit in which it is given, and forget all about it in a hurry, while another will take it to heart, nurse his resentment, and perhaps get in a grouchy that will render him useless, so far as playing under his would-be instructor is concerned. This is one of the reasons why some good players will, when he starts out, make a very poor impression, and finally be dropped. Then some other team will pick him up, and behold, in a very short time the erstwhile discard will be a star of the first order.

He is most likely a rather sensitive chap, who was "called" by his first manager, and the insult, as he considered it, so affected his nerves that he could not do himself justice on the playing field.

I always treat my players in the best possible way, making them to the best hotels, transporting them by the fastest trains, etc. No system of spying; to see that they are not looking after their physical condition, is practised, and if a member of a team is foolish enough to abuse himself, it is his own lookout. He will suffer more by it than we will.

Do not think, however, that I am inclined not to take things any too seriously. It has always been my purpose to look on baseball as a most serious business, which must be handled as carefully as any other, and I expect all my players to hold the same view that I do. And if you take the trouble to question them, you will find that they all day. I have always claimed that it is just as hard, if not harder, to get out on the field, and cut up, as it is to get out and play clean, earnest baseball. I will never stand for any fooling and I expect the men to be ready at all times to put forth their best efforts.

A manager ought to have full power when it comes to selecting the members of his team. Every man will have certain ideas, and to carry them out, will select certain men as the most suitable. If he has the power to go out and get these men, well and good, but if there is someone, higher up, who can offer something "just as good," the well-laid plans are likely to go to smash, and that quickly.

Ballplayers are like any other men, they wish to have their efforts appreciated, and the wise club owner will see to it that they get all the praise that is coming to them. Just as the owner of a large business will compliment his employees, and raise their salaries, so will the wise owner of a baseball club.

Since I have been managing, I have played in the greatest luck, for I have had in Mr. Murphy, the owner team, a man who is clever enough to know when not to bother with our affairs. I have always had full power so far as running the team is concerned, and when I wished for a player, I could get him, if he could be bought. Mr. Murphy leaves things to me for several reasons. He has confidence in me and knows from experience that I will work diligently. Then again, I suppose he thinks that if I were not capable of managing alone, I should not hold the job. I often go to him for suggestions, but I must say that he generally listens to what I have to say and lets it go at that.

Managing a ball team is no sinecure, and entails an almost endless amount of work and worry, but when you meet with success, the fruits of victory amply make up for all that has gone before. The manager of a champion team is looked on as a sort of a hero and popularity, while at times annoying, is generally rather enjoyable.

Wire Wounds

My mare, a very valuable one, was badly bruised and cut by being caught in a wire fence. Some of the wounds would not heal, although I tried many different medicines. Dr. Bell advised me to use MINARD'S LINIMENT, rubbed at first, then stronger as the sores began to look better, until after three weeks, the sores have healed and all of the hair is growing well, and is NOT WHITE as is most always the case in horse wounds.

I'll Explain Why I Always Drive a GENDRON

"You see the breaking of the springs causes us baby drivers more trouble than any other weakness in carriage cars. But there is no spring weakness in the GENDRON car. Note that double curve. It is exclusive with the GENDRON. It so distributes the strain that the spring never breaks. And then the wheels,—you see they are specially welded, and cannot warp or break. Note also that little rubber cap over the nut of the axle. Sometimes when I have a restless passenger, I want to drive the car around the house without scratching the furniture—it is a little point, but a good one. The materials for all the GENDRON cars are the very best in the bodies, tops and every other part. There is style and service in every GENDRON model—Canadian made, so that any unexpected accident can be easily remedied."

FAR FROM MARKET.

Soon after the Civil War, General Ingalls, U. S. A., visited a friend in the South. Taking a walk one morning he met a boy coming up from the river with a fine string of fish.

What will you take for your fish? asked the general.

Thirty cents, was the reply.

Thirty cents! repeated the general in astonishment. Why, if you were in New York you could get $3 for them.

The boy looked critically at the officer for a moment and then said scornfully:

Yes, sir; in I reckon if I had a bucket of water in hell I could get a million for it.—Ex.

TIME TO BURN.

Augustus Thomas, the political spellbinder and playwright, talking on the oddities of human beings, relates this incident:

"An old citizen of the middle West was well known to his town folk for his peculiarity of slowness. One morning while at breakfast he discovered the roof of his house on fire and while the flames were making considerable headway, he rose from the table and putting on his hat, went over to one of his neighbors to borrow a ladder. The neighbor answered his knock himself.

"Good-mo-o-o-o—rnin," said the neighbor.

"Good-morning."

"Pretty cold this mornin, hey?"

"Yes, 'tis rather frosty. Won't you take a chair?"

"Wa'l, I can't stop long. I cum to see if you would loan me your ladder a little while. My house is on fire and I hain't got no way of gettin' onto the roof.—Ex.

Congregation Present her With Handsome Morris Rocking
Chair.

On Thursday evening, July 22, a large company of members and friends of the Underhill church visited the residence of Rev. F. T. Snell at Blackville, when after music and singing, Mr. Millet Underhill, clerk of the church, who was supported by W. A. K. Underhill, John Underhill, John Corney and other prominent members, in an eloquent speech, thanked Mrs. Snell for her labors in the interest of the church Renovation and Alteration fund, which had succeeded in raising some $400 apart from salary and other expenses during the past two years, and asked her acceptance of a beautiful Morris Rocking Chair. Mrs. Snell thanked the friends and to this the Pastor added a few words. He regretted exceedingly the absence of Miss Lottie Underhill away on her vacation, and while thanking all the friends present and absent who had contributed to this gift, would especially mention Miss Ruby Underhill, who was collector for the above named object. After refreshments and singing the company separated at a late hour.

MOUNT ALLISON.

In today's paper there appears the advertisements of the Mount Allison Ladies' College and the Mount Allison Academy and Commercial College respectively. These advertisements should be read and considered by all parents who have children to be educated.

These institutions have exceptionally strong staffs, provide homelike residential accommodation and are in every way excellently equipped for the work which they are doing. The merit of their work is attested by the yearly growth. The Ladies' College had a larger enrollment last year than any other Ladies' College in the whole Dominion.

The Ladies' College includes the Massey-Treble school of Household Science, the Conservatory of Music, the Art Department directed by an R. C. A. and including a $75,000 collection of Paintings, Casts, etc., and the Literary Department. The staff numbers about twenty-five educational specialists with a number of occasional lecturers. The expenses are moderate. A calendar will be sent free on application to Dr. B. C. Borden, Sackville, N. B.

The Academy prepares boys and young men for matriculation into colleges of Arts, Law, Medicine, Dentistry, etc. Particular attention is given to preparing students for taking up university courses in the various branches of Engineering. The Academy also gives a thorough well-balanced general

NEWSPAPERS AND MAGAZINES.
At the annual sessions of the American Library association, one of the most prominent librarians in the United States, Mr. John Cotton Dana, declared that out of a population of 84 millions only something like 200,000 read even magazines like Harper's, and of these 200,000 nearly all looked only at the pictures and perhaps glanced at an article or two to see what the illustrations were about, or the unillustrated periodicals of the better class, the readers were set down as low as 10,000 to 25,000, and that too, out of a population of 84 millions. The newspapers, said Mr. Dana, were what the people read.

There are two lessons to be learned from the statements of this authority. One is for the newspaper to take to heart and act upon. The responsibility that rests upon an influential newspaper nowadays is such that only by the utmost care in the handling of news and the treatment of editorial subjects can it hope to avoid complications disastrous alike to its prestige and to those interests which make for the public good. The other lesson concerns the commercial aspect of the newspaper. Every year hundreds of thousands of dollars are spent in magazine advertising. Ninety per cent. of this expenditure, it would appear from Mr. Dana's statement, is practically thrown away. The percentage of 200,000 readers, even supposing there were none who merely glanced at the pictures, in 84 millions of people is too infinitesimal in proportion to the outlay to arrive at any other conclusion. To get results advertisements must be placed where the people will see them.—Ex.

SCRAPING THE STOMACH

Dangerous and Painful Operation Avoided by Taking "Fruit-a-tives."

Geoffrey, Ont., Aug. 6, 1908.
I suffered for many months with dreadful Stomach Trouble, with vomiting and constant pain, and I could retain practically nothing.
My doctor stated that I must go to the hospital and undergo an operation of scraping the stomach and be fed by the bowels for weeks. All the medicine the doctor gave me I vomited at once. I was dreadfully alarmed, but I dreaded an operation and had refused.

I had heard of "Fruit-a-tives" and the great success they were having in all Stomach Troubles, and I decided to try them. To my surprise, the "Fruit-a-tives" not only remained on the stomach, but they also checked the vomiting. I immediately began to improve, and in three days the pain was easier and I was decidedly better. I continued to take "Fruit-a-tives" and they completely cured me.

WHAT THE BOY WROTE.

A young man once wrote to his father, saying, "I am well, only I don't feel like making any sort of physical exertion." Thousands of people feel exactly like that young man—and they are not lazy people, either. They are, generally, dyspeptics, with a first touch of indigestion; they need a short course of Mother Seigel's Syrup, to put their stomach, liver and bowels into healthy activity, so that their food will nourish and strengthen them. Mr. George J. Henry, of Shippagan, P.O., Gloucester Co., N.B., who suffered for years from Dyspepsia, writes: "I became weak and almost unable to work. After trying many medicines without success I took several bottles of Mother Seigel's Syrup and it gave me relief at once. I recommend it as much superior to all other medicines for stomach troubles."—Price 60 cts. per bottle. Sold everywhere. A. J. White & Co., Ltd., Montreal.

TECHNICAL EDUCATION

King Edward a few days ago, in a public address, intimated that the progress of Britain depends to a very considerable degree on the development of technical education. His Majesty expressed his gratification with the advancement already made along this line, but intimated that in view of all the possibilities, the achievements so far have been merely in the way of preliminary preparation. Britain is by no means backward in this respect, but she is still in the primary stage in comparison with Germany. The King's suggestion comes at an opportune time, for the force of his remark is fully appreciated by Britons, and will no doubt tend to still greater effort in the way of practical instruction for the people.

A few days ago a great educational congress was held at Denver. The president of the National Association, Lorenzo D. Harvey, selected industrial education as the subject of his annual address. He spoke of the steadily growing demand from all parts of the country for technical training and for specialization in education such as will best equip students for whatever work they contemplate, and with the smallest waste of effort. President Harvey fully realized that every man who interests himself in this form of education develops his own idea, of what technical training should be, but he adopted as a generally acceptable definition "whatever gives definite instruction and training for at least the beginnings of industrial efficiency."

Certainly nothing approaching this broad interpretation is found in our public schools of New Brunswick. Practically nothing has been done outside of the colleges for the benefit of those who purpose devoting themselves to other than the so-called learned professions.

Recently a new man, one who is generally regarded as aggressive in his ideas, has been placed at the head of our educational system. Supt. Carter has before him an opportunity such as is rarely afforded, of winning honor for himself and conferring incalculable benefit on the people by the introduction and development of a modern system of industrial training. That instruction which will fit the farmer's boy to become a more successful farmer and will present to him stronger inducements to remain at home; which will provide the manufacturer with skilled workmen and qualified foremen or superintendents; which will lead to the expansion of those mental powers by which individual research is directed, and which provides for the prospective professional man a broadened field of educational opportunities—this is the form of education so necessary and now so entirely lacking in our present system. If Supt. Carter can create some plan whereby those who now leave school at an early age with only a confused realization of what knowledge means could be graduated with at least a fair start along the particular lines of industrial activity to which their lives are to be devoted, he will accomplish something really worth while. Our educationists know full well that the majority of students must earn their living by their hands; why not undertake to give that training which is so necessary for at least the beginning of industrial efficiency?—Ex.

WOMEN'S WOES.

Newcastle Women Are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity. They must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing down pains; they must stoop over when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. J. T. McDonald of Mitchell St., Newcastle, N. B., says: "Severe twinging pains would catch me across the small of my back and extend around my sides. Often these would come on me while stooping and I would be unable to straighten myself up for many seconds and the suffering was almost unbearable. Stooping would also make me so dizzy that I would have to support myself with my hands to keep from falling. I was weak and run down and I suffered with nervousness. I could not find relief and had thought nothing would cure me when on advice of a friend I began treatment with Booth's Kidney Pills which I obtained at the drug store of T. J. Durick. I found so much good from the first box of Booth's Kidney Pills that I continued the treatment and gradually built up until I had been cured of each and every symptom of kidney trouble that had effected me for years and which all else had failed to cure."

S. S. PICNIC AT NEW MILLS.

The annual union Sunday school picnic was held at New Mills on Wednesday and a very large number went to that beautiful picnic place for the day.

Wednesday dawned fine and clear and the spirits of young and old rejoiced that nature had been kind and was about to favor them with a fine day among many rainy ones. But about 8 o'clock their spirits fell to zero on beholding the heavy rain which fell in torrents for a short time. About 8.15 the sun struggled through the clouds and the more courageous ventured forth, and later more put in their appearance, until at 10 to nine o'clock seven cars were well filled. The weather looked unpromising, but young and old were determined to have a good time.

The beautiful picnic grounds at New Mills, owned by Mr. B. Windsor, and so kindly placed at the disposal of the committee in charge of the picnic, were reached about ten o'clock, and soon all were comfortably settled in the beautiful grove. The weather conditions improved rapidly until by noon it was a perfect picnic day, hardly a cloud in the sky and just enough breeze to cool the air.

After refreshments were served a game of ball was played, at which some of the old timers showed their skill. Ingram with his latest American bat was too much for the batsmen and many were struck out. Bruce and Wan were slow at getting to bases, while Mowat proved himself an expert, even to the extent of crowding a man on third. LeGallais showed his training and made a record sprint. Myles for the other team seemed to be an easy mark, and his curves were knocked all over the field. Only a few innings were played as the sports for the younger generation were called on.

The program was lengthy and all events were keenly contested.

For those who wished to spend a quiet time there was the lovely grove and plenty of fine scenery, pleasant rambles and boating on the bay. The little ones were provided with bathing suits and large numbers were in the water all afternoon.

Altogether it was a most pleasant day and those who stayed at home because of the weather certainly missed enjoying a day at that pretty spot.

To Mr. Windsor the Sunday schools are indeed indebted for the use of his grounds, and many kindnesses shown by himself and Mrs. Windsor. The I. C. R. authorities also handled the large crowd in a very satisfactory manner, there being no delays. The special train followed the Limited in, reaching here about 8 o'clock.

WEAK KIDNEYS MAKE WEAK BODIES.

Kidney Diseases Cause Half The Common Aches and Ills of Newcastle People.

As one weak link weakens a chain, so weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking down.

Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers from the excess of uric poison circulated in the blood.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills come, and there is an ever-increasing tendency towards diabetes and fatal Bright's Disease. There is no real help for the sufferer except kidney help.

Booth's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys and cure every kidney ill. Newcastle cares are the proof.

Mrs. John Gallah of Regent St., Newcastle, N. B., says: "My daughter Gertrude, of 11 years had, since infancy, suffered with weak kidneys. She was sick most of the time and we had on many occasions thought she would die from Bright's disease as the doctors had failed to help her in the least. She began to suffer with a weakness of the bladder and had no control over the secretions and the result was she would wet the bed regularly. This caused a great deal of extra work and worry and the child became more weak and sallow as she grew up. She was in a very poor condition when we began treating her with Booth's Kidney Pills procured at Mr. Durick's Pharmacy and, we had little hope of anything doing her good. Booth's Kidney Pills soon proved their worth however, and in less than a month's time she had been entirely cured. She has gained several pounds and she is stronger and better than ever before. Every mother should know of Booth's Kidney Pills and you can use my name whenever you like."

WHERE MR. MORRISSEY FAILED

Speaking of Gloucester county at Melford Tuesday evening Hon. Mr. Morrissey said "Robinson had been supported by three Conservatives from Gloucester at last election and still talked about party lines. They were ready to hammer the life out of Morrissey because he was a Liberal." In the general election there were three sets of candidates in the field, one supporting the government, another the opposition, and the third independent, but all of them Liberals. The Liberal candidates were elected, the Hazen candidates losing their deposits. At the first session of the legislature the three Liberals refused the overtures of government supporters and threw in their lot with the opposition. During the recess it was known that there were serious discussions among the members of the Hazen executive and a determined effort was being made to oust Mr. Morrissey from the government. About this time the chief commissioner met Dr. Sormany and offered the patronage of Gloucester to the independent members provided they would support the government. The offer was not accepted. This statement was made on the floor of the house by Dr. Sormany. Mr. Morrissey denied it at first, but when Dr. Sormany repeated it and gave as a reason why Mr. Morrissey should want support, that the whole executive was at his (Mr. Morrissey's) throat that gentleman subsided into silence. It is quite evident that the government does not want Mr. Morrissey in the cabinet, but he refuses to go out and they lack the courage to expel him because of his following in the province. Gloucester is a tender spot with the chief commissioner, and the wonder is that he dared to do it at all.—Telegraph.

FARMER'S COLUMN.

The following article from the semi-weekly World Editorial columns is well worth of reproduction.

While hundreds of Miramichi men have been condemning the land as no good, and the season of growth as too short, and declaring it to be impossible to make a good living here by farming, Mr. George Traer has been demonstrating the falsity of their assertions by creating one of the most productive farms in Canada within a mile and a half of town. He began five years ago, on the Richbucto Road, on land that was so run out that buckwheat wouldn't grow on it, and has purchased several fields, pastures and wooded lots since, so that he has about seventy acres now in all. He put life into the rundown land, and cleared twenty acres of woodland, and proudly claims today that he has as fine a farm as there is in the country.

A look over the farm shows that the claim rests on a good foundation. Our representative found the owner and his staff, yesterday evening, preparing for today's marketing. They had 270 bunches of vegetables and 200 quarts of peas ready for delivery to customers. And this is early in the season. The team will go out three times a week for the rest of the season, with 300 bunches each trip.

Everything seems to grow abundantly on this farm—everything but weeds. There are fifteen acres in roots, fifteen in hay, eight in oats and two in wheat. Thirteen nine bushels of potatoes, some of them having cost $2.50 a barrel, were planted last spring and are growing with almost tropical vigor. No less than five thousand celery plants were translated from the hotbeds to the fields, and five thousand seed onions were planted. Tomato plants were set out to the number of five thousand, and fifteen thousand cabbages are growing—early cabbages and late cabbages. Cabbages and potatoes will be ready for sale next week. There are acres of beets, parsnips, turnips, carrots and other things, are all growing vigorously and promise to yield abundantly. And no weeds in sight anywhere! The average town farmer, with a garden patch of three or four square rods, has more weeds to show than can be found on all George Traer's forty acres of cultivated land.

And how does he do it? How can one man do so much? Well, one man doesn't do it at all. Mr. Traer has three industrious sons and two hired men to help him, and there is work enough for all of them.

Brains and industry have to work together to secure such good results. Mr. Traer uses his land well, and it uses him well. "There's our stuff for the land," said Mr. Traer, pointing to huge compost heaps. "We haul about 200 loads of manure from town and dig up muck. That pile over their has twenty loads of ashes on top, and the recent rains have washed the fertilizing properties of the ashes into the pile. When I am looking over a man's farm I always look for his stuff. When we have nothing else to do with our teams we go after stuff for the land."

"How do you keep your roots crops so free from weeds?" was asked. "Oh, it's easy enough to do it, with the cultivator and hoe, but when one has to get down on his knees to weed out carrots, it's pretty hard and pretty slow work."

And this is the manner of Mr. Traer's farming. When machinery will not do the work he bends his back or his knees and uses his fingers. That is the farming that produces good crops and pays good dividends.

And what Mr. Traer has done, hundreds of others, who are living from hand to mouth on wages, or have gone abroad looking for land that will produce crops without labor, might have done in the vicinity of this town. We beg of every man who thinks that this country is played out, that the land is no good, and that it is necessary to hire out for a living or go abroad to find land that can be tilled profitably, to drive out, or

MOTHERS WHO HAVE DAUGHTERS

Find Help in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winchester, Ind.—"Four doctors told me that they could never make me regular, and that I would eventually have dropsy. I would bloat, and suffer from bearing down pains, cramps and chills, and I could not sleep nights. My mother wrote to Mrs. Pinkham for advice, and I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking one and one-half bottles of the Compound, I am all right again, and I recommend it to every suffering woman."—Mrs. MAY DEAL, Winchester, Ind.

Hundreds of such letters from girls and mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished for them have been received by The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences and be restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands have been restored to health by its use.

If you would like special advice about your case write a confidential letter to Mrs. Pinkham, 35 Lynn, Mass. Her advice is free, and always helpful.

wait out, to Mr. Traer's, and see what a productive farm he has made in five years of forty acres of worn-out fields and woodland. There's not a square rod of crop on the whole farm that is not vigorous with life and giving promise of a good yield. Few men can visit the place without feeling that this country is a much better one to live in than they had thought it to be.

INDIGESTION CAN'T STAY where Dr. Von Stan's Pineapple Tablets are arrayed against it. Thomas Smith of Dover, Ont., says "I am delighted with them—from almost the first using I have been entirely relieved of the pains of indigestion—I have the greatest confidence in the Tablets and heartily recommend them to any and every sufferer from stomach troubles."—S. WHEN YOU WANT A MOWING MACHINE

Call on F. H. Gough, he sells the celebrated Massey-Harris machine, and as he employs no agent to canvass the country, saves a large percentage, and as a consequence can sell these mowers for at least $5.00 cheaper than any of his competitors. Those who are intending to purchase a mower will do well to buy direct from him. He also carries a full line of sections for all makers. Price 50 each.

POINTS ON SWIMMING

Why are amateur swimmers, even when they have good examples before them, so generally unsuccessful in their endeavors? It is true that there are also people in plenty who walk, run, or stand badly, but these things are learned in early childhood, and are not, as is the case with swimming, the result of mature effort, and they are not so likely to be a matter of life and death to the exploiter, since they do not like swimming and open-air bathing, carry him into immediate danger.

Physical disability is not the cause, since the best teachers of swimming seldom fail to carry the pupil at least considerably beyond the point which he would reach without such help. It is easily possible that a large number of drowning cases may be rather due to inefficient instruction than to total lack of instruction, but, nevertheless, the prospective swimmer would do well to place himself under the care of a competent instructor, rather than attempt to acquire the accomplishment unassisted.—From July Physical Culture.

The Elgound picnic has been postponed until next month. The date is not yet decided.

CONVINCED BY PRINTED TESTIMONY of the hundreds of the cured, Mrs. Benz, of 418 E. 8th street, New York, who was for years a great sufferer from Catarrh, procured two bottles of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder and it effected an absolute cure in a very short while. One puff through the blowers will clear the head and stop headache. 24 cents. Sold by A. E. SHAW'S Pharmacy.—16

Four Employees

Died in Month.

Report of I. R. C. Employees Relief and Insurance Association Shows Four Claims Paid.

Moncton, July 26—There were four deaths in the ranks of the Intercolonial Railway Employees Relief and Insurance Association in the month ended July twenty-fifth according to the statement of Secretary W. C. Paver. Two of these were retired employees, John R. Sherwood and Irvine Torrie, of Moncton, each with $250 insurance. One met accidental death, Daniel Ryan, of New Glasgow, being drowned; he also had $250. The fourth was George Bowser, of Halifax, with the same amount. During the month, H. Pettigrew, of River du Loup, received a total disability claim of $250. Fees and levies for the month are, Class A, $1.20; Class B, 80 cents; Class C, 60 cents.—Evening Times.

THE DEMON OF ALL DISEASE.—Kidney diseases are rightly so-called—they're inextinguishable, unaccountable and insidious. It is the function of kidneys to filter out all impurities. If they're clogged, South American Kidney Cure will put them to rights and defy the ravages of so grim a visitor as diabetes or other kidney complications. It relieves in six hours. Sold by A. E. CURREY DIVORCE

CASE AGAIN.

Currey divorce case is again before the courts. This case has already had a rather checkered history. In the former trial the Judge before whom the case was being tried, took sick and eventually resigned office. The Court Reporter who had taken down the evidence in the case, committed suicide and his notes (in shorthand) could not be read by anybody else. The result was the case had to be tried over again. It is now being here for the second time.

Social Personal.

Mrs. Harry Howe of Southbridge, Mass., is visiting friends in town. Mr. Wm. Ryan, of the I. R. C. offices Moncton, spent Sunday at his home here.

Misses Mollie Robinson and Jean Morrison are spending a few weeks at Burnt Church.

Miss Rhoda Stewart of the N. B. Telephone Co., left this morning to spend her vacation in Summerside and Moncton.

Rev. T. J. McArthur left on the Ocean Limited Saturday for P. E. I. to spend a well earned vacation.

Mr. John Stothart, of Boston, who has been visiting his uncle Mr. Geo. S. Stothart, returned home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Skinner of Chicago, Ill., are visiting at the home of the latter's sister Mr. and Mrs. Frank Masson.

Mrs. Brown and little daughter who have been visiting the former's aunt, Mrs. Jas. O. Fish, returned to Montreal on Friday.

Mrs. Alexander Robinson and little son Frederick, of Boston, are spending some weeks with the Misses Robinson at "The Pines."

Miss Pinkie Ingram, who has been spending the past two weeks in Moncton the guest of Conductor Alex, and Mrs. Dickie, returned home yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Danville and little daughter Nina, of Gloversville, N. Y., were in town last week attending the marriage of their niece, Miss Minnie Sweetey.

Mr. Harry B. McCormack, who has been spending his vacation with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McCormack, returned to Boston Saturday to resume his studies at the Boston School of Pharmacy.

The services at the Baptist church on Sunday were largely attended. The new pastor Rev. Dr. Cousins, preached eloquent sermons. The singing was of a high order. Miss Jean Robinson presided very acceptably at the organ.

Wolves At Williamstown

Pack of Seven Seen Wednesday.

While driving along the Williamstown road on Wednesday afternoon last, James Niven, accompanied by Laurent McLean and his mother, encountered a pack of seven vicious looking wolves. As the carriage approached, the wolves dashed from the woods and rushed fiercely at the horses' heads. The horses were greatly frightened but Mr. Niven managed to control them and got safely away.

It is generally understood that wolves follow the deer and as the latter are becoming very plentiful here the wolves are following them from across the border in Maine.

One of the interesting remains found after the Cobalt fire was the ruin of a whiskey still used in the manufacture of a liquor which is described as a particularly wicked brand of fire water.
