MOOSE CALL GOES FORTH AND ROOSEVELT'S NEW PARTY GETS OFF TO A GOOD START

National Progressives Open in Convention at the Chicago Coliseum, With No Horrid Steam Roller to Mar the Harmony ot Things.

MAKE-UP OF THE NEW PARTY LIKE JEAN BAPTISTE'S POT FOR PEA SOUP

All Types Are There, From Greedy Millionaires and "Intellect-uals" Down to Strong-Armed Political Bosses—The "Colored Brother" and Suffragist Are in Force, and the Red Bandana Is the Battle Flag.

[Special Correspondence for The Advertiser by H. F. Gadsby.] Chicago, Aug. 5 .- Well, the moose-call has gone forth. What happens? The National Progressive convention-the usual American convention with the usual machinery, but in this case to be employed to noble purposes. There are a thousand delegates, and a thousand alternates, and an audience of ten thousand people in the big cavernous Coliseum Building. The crowd is a little thin around the edges-three thousand more people could be comfortably accommodated, but, on the whole, it is a fairly successful convention. At any rate it's big enough not to rattle. The colonel is off to a good start.

WHERE IT DIFFERS. Look this convention over. What do you see strange besides the bull moose's head over the main door?

The flags are the same, the brass band is the same, the people look the same as they did a month ago when the Taft steam roller was doing its horrid work. Where's the difference?

The difference is that this is a brand new party, the third party, the National Progressive party. The third party is taking its place in history. It is being born. Senator Albert J. Beveridge, of Indiana, in his keynote speech, gives it until sunset to do the trick. In five hours by the clock it will be fully born. In one respect it will come into the world like Richard III. It will have plenty of teeth. T. R. will see to that. It is a solemn occasion, and the third party shines with chastened joy because T. R. says that the two old parties have to die to give it life. Otherwise all is as merry as a ne temere

it. There are greedy millionaires like Perkins, and strong-arm political bosses like Bill Flinn in it-in it, mind you, but not pervading it. There are sorehead politicians in it who didn't get what they wanted, or didn't get it fast out parties. There are Lorimer heelers in it who hope to use It as a revenge on the regular Republican organization. There are aspiring young statesmen in it who expect to climb quicker by this ladder. There are rich men like Gifford and Amos Pinchot in it, honest Nicodemuses who would give up, not all, but a good-sized contribution to the campaign fund to follow Theodore Roosevelt. There are sullen malcontents in it who accept it as the least of three evils, and star-eyed optimists who think it is going to make the whole world better. There are high-brow professors in it, and low-brow Old Age Pensions, State Insurfixers. There are eager crusaders in it like Judge Ben Lindsey, and calculating axe-grinders like-well, like anybody whose name seems to fit. There are some bad men in it, and many good ones. There is selfishness in it, also the unselfishness which regards all men as brothers. In short, it's a political party that has not stiffened yet, and it looks like the nebular hypothesis. SIGNS OF MEMBERSHIP.

If you ask me what are the outward and visible signs of membership in the third party, I would mention, among the very first, eye-glasses and women. The Coliseum is filled with intellectual persons of both sexes wearing eyeglasses. They follow the example of their great leader, covering the windows into new ground, advocating measures of their souls with secondary panes lest the pure flames of their glance scorch, sear and blast the unrighteous. There are not as many short-haired women and long-haired men in the convention as one might expect.

WOMEN ARE PLENTIIFUL. are for the third party, because the third party is for them, and will say so look elsewhere for a nom-in its platform. A suffragist army with banners has invaded the hall. Its yellow pennants with the legend, "Votes For Women," may be seen everywhere. Most of the suffragists came in autos. They are rich women. BANDANNA BATTLE FLAG.

Another butward sign of the third party man is the bandanna handkerchief. This is the battle flag of freedom, and corresponds to the Garibaldi red shirt. It has crowded Teddy hats, Teddy bears, Teddy teeth out of the market, and is being sold everywhere as the latest emblem of the most recent uprising for liberty. T. R's picture, is, of course, in the centre. The bandanna may stitutions, especially with the view of be around the head like a nigger mammy's turban, and this may have some

But mostly it is worn around the hat as a band tied in a true lover's knot, with the horns sticking out like a moose's antlers. The color of it is red, signifying that the bandanna acts like a red flag to a bull moose. It may be worn around the neck in November to prevent a bull moose from being mistaken for a deer.

BADGES AND ANTHEMS. Still another sign is the badge the third party man sports-a handsome medallion with the heads of Washington, Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln Continued on Page Two.

$5 FOR USING A TICKLER

The first demonstration of the determination of the police to clamp on the lid during the Moose convention and carnival here was made in the police court this morning, when Alexander Cowan, a young man, was assessed $5 and costs for making use of a tickler on King street near the market shows.

It was announced a few days ago that Chief of Police Williams had issued strict orders to his men to permit no tickling, or talcum or confetti throwing, but while the great majority remembered the warning, Cowan strayed from the narrow path Monday night, and equipped with a fine bunch of blue feathers, proceeded to enliven matters. He was warned by P. C. Thomas Noonan, and put the tickler in his pocket, but a moment later again produced it and proceeded to make merry. As a result he spent the

Points of Program. These are the conspicuous points in the Roosevelt program:

Col. Roosevelt did not suggest the about, and there was much specula-tion as to whether he had in mind a fundamental change in the American system of government. In some quarters it was interpreted as in favor of extension of the recall to include legis lative, executive and judicial officers of the national government, from president down.

Control of Trusts. Control of the trusts through re-tention of the Sherman anti-trust law and establishment of an interstate industrial commission to regulate industrial corporations as the interstate commerce commission regulates railreads. Corporations which come voluntarily under this commission and okey its orders to be immune from prosecution under the Sherman law. Those which fall to do so to be subject to prosecution, and if the prosecution is successful through dimemberment the constituent parts not to be allowed to do business save under conditions laid down by the industrial commission. It was not until they went to a local bank to see about making arrangements for sending the money that questions followed. One thing led to another, and the men finally produced their letter. The manager at once recognized it as one of the old familiar "Prisoner" letters, a number of which have been received in the city. It is only because there are suckers everywhere that such a swindle as the 'Spanish Prisoner' variety can exist. It appears that the boys took the car, which is owned by the Empire Manufacturing Company, from the Bernard garage, where one of them is employed, and started for Woodstock with two friends. [Canadian Press.] Toronto, Aug. 8.-An effort will be made to have Liberal candidates in every one of the 106 ridings in Ontario by this time next year. The recent Temiskaming tour of N. W. Rowell and his followers was followed by an organization meeting, at which it is understood a plan was adopted to have a Liberal standard-bearer in every riding before the next provincial election takes place.

At the last election the Liberals let several ridings go by default, and Mr. Rowell is reported to have called upon his followers to allow no such condition of things to be repeated. The managers of the recent Temiskaming tour are so pleased at the success of their trip that they hope to organize one next summer through the clay belt along the Transcontinental Railway.

The medallions remind the third party man that all parties are like his in their beginnings. They have to be fusion parties before they became regular ones. Yet another third party sign is the anthem he sings. The refrain is: "We'll Hang the Grand Old Party on a Sour Apple Lord Montagu Writes on the before they became regular ones. Yet another third party sign is the anthem Tree," and the tune is "John Brown's Body." THIRD PARTY A RELIGION.

It is a religion. When BUT FORESEES DISASTER the convention passes a resolution to hear Theodore Roosevelt speak, it is more than mere parliamentary procedure—it is an act of worship.

SPIRITUAL SIGNS.

The inward and more spiritual signs of the third party man are many. There is faith on his brow, hope in his eyes, determination on his chin. Also there is a glad light in his face because he has what others have not. He believes the third party has been likened to a frog sitting by a pond. Consequently, the colored brother has been, as you in ght say, extracted. The credentials committee has pulled him out of the convention. He can sit there, but no can't vote. This corkserew compromise is the best the "square deal" can do for the colored brother. He suffers for the cause. Over 1,000 yards of Beautiful Cotton Voiles and Dress Muslins have been measured and are ready for sale on Wednesday morning. Our entire stock of present season, amongst which are many pretty colorings in French printed designs, the majority of which are priced at just half, in order to clear quickly and make room for new fall stocks.

At the end of the season it is our custom to clear all Summer Dress Muslins rather than carry any over to another season. This season we are giving you a little advantage by bringing this sale on a little earlier than usual, so that many, who, owing to the cool summer so far, have put off having a new muslin or voile dress, may take advantage of this sale and save the half and still have half the present summer to wear it. Many are in pretty styles for party dresses for winter wear, and scores of women wait for this sale annually for their muslin supply.

We cannot describe the different lines in this assortment; the prices are the main issue in a clearance of this kind. But we might say that the choicest styles and colorings for ladies' summer and evening dresses are all grouped in these prices, both light and dark grounds; some bordered pieces, as stated above, 5¢, 10¢ and 25¢, worth regular 10c to 50c vard.

Be on hand early for the choice, as many of the pretty colorings are in one or two dress lengths only. The 5c and 10c lots will go in a hurry, and are excellent qualities and colorings for sacques and dresses. Sale begins at 8 o'clock on Wednesday morning.

Sometimes we hear the statement that Silks of today do not stand like those of years ago You can buy just as good Silks now. But when you consider the vast amount of Silk used today, even for ordinary wear, and also the changing styles from season to season, it is only reasonable that customers demand a Silk that will at least outwear the style. But, again, there are many who want a good Silk where quality alone stands out pre-eminently, and these same good old-fashioned makes will be much in vogue the coming season. Afready we are showing a good variety for fall season, 1912. To know the real value of these, you should handle them in the piece.

STILL A MYSTERY

Nothing To Cause Death Found In Windsor Case.

[Special to The Advertiser.] Windsor, Aug. 5.—The police are still at sea regarding the real identity of the woman, Margaret Dennis, who was found dead in bed at the home of her employer, Frederick Jamison, in Sandwich, on Saturday night. A postmortem examination today performed by Dr. G. R. Cruickshank revealed nothing of a suspicious nature, and death appeared to have been due to purely natural causes.

The name the woman gave to Jamison is not believed to have been her correct one, and the authorities are anxious to find out who she really is, Meanwhile the body will be held at the morgue. ROTHSCHILD TO WED.

Canada shares these Ah, yes, the fever's in my blood, certain to make for effective organization. He has been close to the people, and their just claims are thoroughly understood by him.

The Liberal Opposition will force the Government to concern itself with yellow peril, the problems of Temiskaming in the next session. Mr. Rowell will be well satisfied if he is able to stir the powers at Queen's Park into giving the north the consideration it deserves. Rightfully the country should be in the Liberal ranks. The principles of Liberalism were cut to fit such a land, but the Government has a grip on it which has nothing to do with principle. In the first place the district is ridden with officials and employees of deep. the Government railway. Many of them are active politicians, and few hold positions who are not "right" with the organization. It is charged that the police and forest staffs are aides of the Conservative party during elections. All the money to be spent in the country comes through Conservative hands, and it is pretty well understood in Tei iskaming that the settler who votes the ticket gets roads built in his district first.

Those who argue that the "blind of the north country produce more drunkenness than the open bar would find their argument challenged by residents, many of whom claim that where license has been granted the drunkenness is greatly increased. This is not an argument for "blind pigs," but it shows that any sort of restriction-and the "blind pigs" operate under a very weak sort of restriction -makes for a more sober community. The north may give a surprise for those who think an "Abolish the Bar" platform is not adapted to a frontler

Mr. Rowell returns with a broader conception of the vastness of the north country, and an understanding When, with feelings of elation, of its abuses. He will hold the new country's brief at the next session.

MAKING THE COUNTRY MORE ATTRACTIVE.

One objection always made to life in the country is the want of social opportunities in comparison with conditions in the town. There are, of course, the intense moments, harvest home, threshing, barn-raising time, various "bees," teas and anniversaries, when the country has town sociability "beaten to a frazzle." Church on a Sunday morning is often more brotherly in the little brick building set amongst tombs, driving-sheds and tieposts than in the city, where churchgoers hardly look at each other from Filled with thoughts of exultation, under polished tiles or woman's eye culls fashion hints from the parade, But day in and day out the farm is apt to be comparatively sequestered.

In the daily humdrum is involved a scarcity of amusement, entertainment and sport. It is certain that the recreation features of city life have been a strong magnet in attracting boys and girls from the farms. Of course, nobody of any sense wants to be amused all the time, and at certain seasons the stress of work in the fields, just as in the city shops, is such as to make the toiler wish for nothing more than his bed, when night comes ca. But for a large part of the year it would not hurt most rural regions to put forth more energy into social cultivation, parties, games, musical entertainments, moving picture shows. There are opportunities nowadays, as never before, for such a development. Something is being accomplif, ed in this direction in parts of the United States. At the annual conference of There is death in his kick and he the Illinois Federation of Country Life Progress the other day several speakers told of good results from efforts to improve social life in certain counties of Illinois. Churches and public schools form natural centres for such work; granges and county organizations also are made use of. Entertainments of one kind and another were got up, including instructive which makes for genuine sociability and a good time. Sunburnt mirth is the best. Town people who go out to a harvest home know the capabilities of their country cousins and pay tribute to these events as the jolliest things of the year. A little more of this fun and frolic dispensed through the months will keep Jack from dullness and Jill from discontent, and life on the farm will come close to its,

ANDREW LANG'S MONK OF FIFE tBy Special Arrangement With

the Winnipez Telegram.]

The late Andrew Lang will be remembered by many grateful readers membered by many grateful readers for his two attempts in the realm of fiction, "The World's Desire," a story of Egypt, which he wrote in collaboration with Mr. Rider Haggard, and "A Monk of Fife," a romance of the days of Joan of Arc. Neither of these novels can be styled a great effort, although both are very pleasing stories. done in that racy style of which Mr. Lang was master. The second novel is specially interesting to students of history, for it overflows with Mr. Lang's curious antiquarian lore. He. was always very partial to the study of the Middle Ages and was particularly well posted in French history, being an expert in the old French verse of the fifteenth century. It may well have been that Mr. Lang, educated at St. Andrews and a leal and chivalrous Scot, took almost as much interest in the history of France, Scotland's traditional ally, as he did in the annals of his own land. At any rate we can easily see that he was an enthusiastic admirer of the French herolne and saint, Joan of Arc, and eager to do honor to French arms in their

"A Monk of Fife" is indeed a real comance. The hero, Norman Leslie, a young Scot of Pitcullo, near St. Andrews, quarrels with a companion on the links, hits him on the head with golf club, and escapes for his life in fishing boat to France, where he begins his career as a man-at-arms. The real romance, it seems to me, requires a hero of this stripe, a gay fighter as eager to engage in sword play as to sack a city. But he must not only have endless adventures, he must also know the joys and sorrows of the traordinary that anyone should be able grand passion. He must go through to say (as she can) that her father was serving in 1792. The Duke of Cambridge fair maid (the golden-haired variety preferred) and the oftenc. the romannew dangers just when he is about to reach the goal, why the better the Had Been Taken in Detroit cer disappoints him, involving him in story. And this is the plan that Mr with their aunt, and have taken a present to her from the Queen and the royal family, and another from her private friends here. The Queen, I am told, writes to and hears from her aunt told, writes to an aunt told and the plan that Mr. Lang has adopted in this romance. It is the good, old-fashioned kind with a hero, a villain, a golden-haired, petulant heroine, and any amount of fighting. Joan of Arc is the historical' figure in the story round whom everything revolves. It is because of her love to the Maid of France that the heroine urges on the hero to attend the warrior saint in one campaign after another, and the plot of the story is On my own world of poorer deed and built upon the young Scot's adventures. in these sieges and encounters.

forces under King Henry.

Many historians have attempted to interpret the character of Joan of Arc Mr. Lang has painted her as a simplehearted young girl, quite normal in her love for fine banners and war-gear and in her girlish friendships, but possessed by one idea, that she is to save France; throughout the story he describes her visions and hearing of the voices of the saints, prophesying to her what will come to pass. Her bray her what will come to pass. Her bray lery is a constant incitement to the Funeral of Belgrave Young Man soldiers; she leads them into battle against superior odds, and even carries her standard up scaling ladders in the many sieges in which they engage. In a very nice piece of description the author paints a full-length portrait for us: "She was clad very simply, like the varlet of some lord of no great estate, in a black cap with a little silver brooch, a grey doublet, and black and grey hose, trussed up As a result of the decision of Grand with many points; a sword of no greaf mother two years ago. In stature she survived by one brother and one sissurvived by one brother and one sissurv was something above the common height of woman, her face brown with sun and wind, her eyes, great, gray and beautiful, beneath black brows, her lips red and smiling. In figure she seemed strong and shapely, but so slim -she being but seventeen years of age—that were it not for her sweet girl's voice, and for the beauty of her through the severe winter they gray eyes, she might have passed for satisfied with the way everything is a page, her black hair being cut en ronde, as was the fashion and is the fashion among men-at-arms. Thus nicely, much have I written concerning her bodily aspect, because many have asked me what manner of woman was the blessed maid, and whether she was beautiful. I gazed at her like one moon-struck, then, remembering my ourtesy, I doffed my cap, and louted low; and she bowed, smiling graciousdr as if her mind was far away."

like a great lady, but with such an of his mention of supernatural por-ents, he succeeds in making Joan tents, he succeeds in very human, a feat which few historians have accomplished. To me this of Arc is the chief interest of the story. I was also greatly struck with the style in which the book is written. If: Day, p. Mr. Lang has followed the conventional method in interweaving words of archaic flavor to inveigle the reader into believing that the story was really written by Norman Leslie of the fifteenth century, written when the youth had become the old Monk of Fife. In the introduction of innumersolete, Mr. Lang has shown the effect he not discovered it it would have of patient study of the English of the proved a dangerous place, particularly scribing battles and sleges there is also displayed the fruit of no end of reading in mediaeval chronicles. To the students of English, then, as well as to the student of history and the lover of romance, this ably written story offers much of interest and value.

HORSE STOLEN OVER YEAR AGO RECOVERED IN WESTMINSTER

Work, It Is Said, of a Gang.

The extent of the operations of horse thieves in Western Ontario and in the portions of Michigan close to the Canadian border is just beginning to be appreciated by the police of Detroit and that vicinity, two of whom today located an animal stolen a year ago in North Detroit, on the farm of Mr. Archie Blaikie, reeve of Westminster

The horse was taken about a year ago by an organized gang who are credited with having taken about 30 animals from the other side into Kent and Essex. Usually on their return trips they took other equines back with them from the farms of unoffend.

MAYBELLE MORTIMER FINDS THE KEYNOTE OF COMING FASHIONS.

[BY MAYBELLE MORTIMER.]

Paris, August 5.—After a careful survey of most of the big houses I have come to the conclusion that we will see in the United States a number of freak importations this year. The styles are "in the making" and most of the houses are just at present sending out a number of very startling ideas which will settle down probably into a crystallized fashion before the end of the season.

Madame Paquin is the most conservative of any of the big designers, and the costume I am sending you is one of the most conservative that I have seen. Even she, however, has discarded the straight narrow skirt.

This street costume of black broadcloth is trimmed with black braid put on flat. By the way, both braid and embroidery will be used much this season. I have seen sealskin decorated with braiding and lace with embroid-

The skirt of this dress is gathered up in front, the shirring covered by a straight short panel, and while it is not much wider about the bottom than those of last season. This gathering gives it the appearance of being more so. The back panel is made of a flat graduated box plait, the bottom being braided to match the coat.

The coat shows a number of new wrinkles, both actually and metaphorically speaking. It is cut with an armhole that reaches to the waist line. Just above the waist line in the back the coat is shirred into a rounding garniture of the braid. To make a coat set well after the shirring is completed, it must be cut very long waisted. The sleeve is very large and flowing, gathered in at the shoulders. There is more fullness at the shoulder of the bodice than we have seen in a long while, although some of the new gowns are cut with a kimona droop and the sleeve set in about half way to the elbow, thus giving the designer a chance to keep the becoming droop of the shoulder line and combine it with a long tight sleeve. This black costume is one of Madame Paquin's best models, and she insisted that she was doing me a great favor to allow the artist to sketch it before she had shown it to her best custom-

The hat worn with this costume is the new turbans, is turned sharply up at the back and one side, and dropped on the other. Hats this

Much has been said in the press of late of the latest revision of "Society Lists," and of the decision of the censor that a certain number of people (something like 469 1/2), are eligible to "Good Society." Without doubt this matter has caused many a heart-

Keep Baby at Home

Babies and children frequently get sick when taken visiting. There is a good reason for this. Children under 5, and particularly babies under 2, are very susceptible to changes in water

After-SupperTalks

With Cynthia Grey

Every wife ought to feel it her duty to take the best possible care of the The money? Oh, yes, that is the family capital in one sense, of course.

But, in a broader, bigger sense, isn't the true capital of the average family the health of the earner of the income?

There are few houses, comparatively speaking, where the daily needs are bought from the proceeds of invested money. They are the outcome of invested labor-labor that, to bring in the money regularly, must be reinvested steadily

Few American wives seem to understand this fact quite as fully as they ought. They are apt to use their capital a bit recklessly, making it work for cash returns all day down town, and then forcing it in extra use for social display

Very little capital of any kind will stand a double strain. Money used for flowers and gowns and taxis is not apt to bring in interest for the purchase of

The wage earner of a family is of necessity that family's greatest cash asset. It beehoves the women of the house to see that he is able to do his best work, with his strength unencumbered by mortgages to lack of sleep, unneces-earner, the most important person in it. It is the duty of his home partner to keep his machinery, both mental and physical, up to its very best mark, or everyone concerned may suffer in that most tender spot of modern anatomy-the pocketbook,

Blue crossed with white or black stripes, or even with yellow, red or purple, is to be seen, while in every case the handles are very long, and something of the directoire persuasion, and the shades very much arched and rather small. Blue is high in favor in parasols, all shades, from periwinkle to navy or royal to corbeau blue, being pressed into

The plain parasol with velvet hem has a wooden handle, but the more luxurious designs have handles of cloudy amber, tortolse shell or jade, and less expensive than these are others with porcelain or enamel tops. Sometimes the shade is edged all around with feather trimming, a more usual decoration, however, consisting of little ruches, pinked out like those which appeared on the quaint early Victorian sunshades of miniature size, with their thin folding of ivory handles.

The prettiest parasols to wear with linen gowns are those which are carried out in embroidered linen to match, with plain crook handles of maple, or with white handles of immense length which have the appearance of polished

Old world chine silks, powdered with little detached bunches of violets or moss rosebuds are likewise used for the new schemes, as well as spotted and flowered muslins in delicate tones. A trimming of rosebud ribbon forms the accompaniment to these, several rows of ribbon being introduced on the shade.

INDIANS AND RED SOX EACH WIN A GAME BY ONE-SIDED SCORES

London Won the Morning Game by Score of 11 to 1, While Brantford Took the Afternoon Affair by 10 to 0 Score-Big Crowd at Both Games.

Well, the Tecumsehs never could grab off a double header, and Civic Holiday was no day to try the experiment. As a result, they graciously divided the double bill yesterday with Mr. Ambrose Kane's gentlemanly throng from Brantford, the home brews taking the daylight pastime by a score of 11 to 1, while the Kananites stood our beloved athletes on their heads in the sunset session, winning by 10 to 0. The office boy declares that the morning game was a beaut, or words to that effect, but that the afternoon affair was about as pleasant as waiting for a cigarette but from a hop fiend. One would gather from his remarks that he did not enjoy himself during the afternoon. Calsomine is not his favorite color. There was a lively throng of bugs and buggesses at each pastime, and the league will surely last yet another week. MR. FITZPATRICK SHOWS CLASS.

The morning game served to introduce Mr. James Fitzpatrick, a Spanish gentleman, whose folks came from Tipperary. He has pitched some good ball for the club here, but he has never showed at his best. Yesterday he was there from Alpha to Armageddon, and the visitors had not a chance to beat him at all. He had great steam a fine here on his fast hell and a decentive there from Alpha to Armageddon, and the visitors had not a chance to beat him at all. He had great steam, a fine hop on his fast ball, and a deceptive curve. So hard to handle were they that no less than twelve Red Sox whacked their young lives away trying to connect with the slants during the time. Among those who fell victims to his shoots, which is slang for curves, was Mr. Ambrose Kane himself, who dislocated his dorsal fin trying to slam some of them. Fitz gave them fits, to use a colloquialism, and there was nothing else to it. BILL BAKER BUMPED.

It was too bad the Tecumsehs had to maltreat a fellow-townsman, but baseball knows no boundary lines. Mr. William Baker, of South London, endeavored to show his playmates that he could Christy Mathewson somewhat himself, but the experiment was not a decided success. He was slammed here, there and into the suburbs, with the result that South London is in mourning for its favorite son. Bill had control yesterday, but lost everything else that used to be some good to him. LINNY AGAIN STARS.

There were some stellar features, Linneburn's hitting and base running, Fox's terrific clouting, and some brilliant short stopping by James Gilhooley. Boyle caught a right smart game too. Powell was there also. Coose and Novak did some, while Lamond showed that he was some nice catcher.

TECUMSERS' REVERSAL OF FORM. In the afternoon the Tecumsehs showed a great reversal of form. Had it In the afternoon the Tecumsehs showed a great reversal of form. Had it happened at the race tracks, somebody would have been sent down for a few days. Mr. Reardon was calsominer in chief, and how he got by was a mystery to the fans. However, the bugs were not hitting him, so they could not judge the Salome wiggles Mr. Reardon put on the ball. Mr. Reitzman began to oblige for the home folks, but he was chased to the dug-out after he received a most artistic lacing from the Kananites. There was not much to this pasamost artistic lacing from the Kananites. There was not much to this pastime except the good pitching of Reardon, the fine defensive work of Kane's Krew, and the terrific batting of Lamond and Courtney. However, another Krew, and the terrific batting of Lamond and Courtney. However, another

MORNING GAME.

The Indians started right off in the first inning of the morning pastime to accumulate a lead, Linneburn leading off with a nice double to right. The off with a nice double to right. The hit looked like a single, but by a great piece of base running, Linny stretched it into a two-base affair. Bierbauer sacrificed and Linneburn scored on Gilhoolev's infield out Gilhooley's infield out.

In the second inning two more runs were added to the string. After Cocash had flied to Ivers, Fox tripled to deep right and came in when Coose threw the ball wide to Novak. Neale was safe an Country or or and Poyle's single followed with an incided bit to Poyle's single followed with an infield bit to Poyle's single followed with a nice double to left and Catterson to poyle followed with a the ball wide to Novak. Neale was safe on Courtney's error, and Boyle's single to left brought him in.

In the third inning another pair left brought him in another pair walking and scoring on the throw in. The other were added, Bierbauer walking and scoring on the throw in. Gilhooley singling to left. Both runners scored on Courtney's error of Powell's fast grounder.

Fitz Going Neat.

Street thick batters were easy outs.

In the seventh the locals went out in order, it being the only inning in the game when they did not score a run.

Fitzpatrick was holding the Red Sox However, they made up for it in the nicely, and they could do little with his assortment. In the third Courtney with another three-ply poke to right singled to right after two men were and after Neale had died on an indown, but he got no farther than first field out, he scored on Boyle's sacrifice. Fitzpatrick walked and advanced

The Indians kept up the run-getting the fourth. Fox beat out an infield that and was sacrificed to second by Neale. Boyle flied out, but Fitzpatrick Bierbauer then singled to centre, and hit for two bases to right and Fox came.

SAMMY SMITH ARRIVED IN LONDON AT NOON TODAY

Fine and Appears To Be in Good Shape—Ottawa Tomorrow.

Sammy Smith, the demon slabman, blew into this fair burg at 11:30 o'clock this morning. The coming of Sammy this morning. The coming of Sammy was hailed with much joy and jubilation on the part of the local management, and those of the fans who were there to give him the glad hand when he stepped from the train. The big Hebrew is looking fine, and he declares he can go right in and beat the head off those pesky Kanenites this afternoon. However, Manager Barrett will have a look at him in a uniform first, and will try and hold him for one of the Ottawa games tomorrow.

Big Hebrew Pitcher Is Looking was one of the first questions he put to Manager Barrett and a couple of the directors as soon as he had landed. "You bet we are," was the reply. "Well, I am prepared to pitch the game of n.y life," he said, "and am in splendid shape."

Catcher Wilson has not yet reported, but he is expected any time. Wilson is not needed very badly, as Boyle has returned to shape, and both he and Speer are working good just now.

Harry Furssedonn is out of the game for some time as a result of straining his arm yesterday when he was warming up to go into the box. Fuzzy has a lump on his arm as big as a cocoanut, and he will be of little use to the club for the remainder of the season.

Ottawa will be here tomorrow for a double-header. It will be the most

BRANTFORD PAPER BLAMES BAKER FOR LOSING YESTERDAY'S GAME

The Brantford Expositor in their lowed Baker to pitch his own game issue of last evening has an account of yesterday morning's game in London. The story is, no doubt, written by guess the Brantford scribe sizing by guess, the Brantford scribe sizing Some pitcher. Mr. Baker? Again up the box score and then concluding the Brantford club tried the experithe rest. It is too bad that he had not waited until he read the real story of green Mr. Baker, and the disastrous waited until he read the real story of the game. Baker was touched up freely, it is true, but a good many runs would have been saved had the men behind him played any kind of ball. Their work was pretty loose, and London scored a good many times owledge. Just where Manager Kane can see anything in what looks like a real rine fully. ing to some dumb work on the part of a real ripe juicy pitching lemon is Mr. Courtney, who is about the biggest bonehead seen in this section for some time. Local fans got their first peep of Baker in action, and the general opinion was that he pitched good ball. The park here to see Baker pitch, as the has as much stuff as any pitcher any game in which he works is scarcein the league, and he was anything but by worth watching. Now that Boker in the league, and he was anything but ly worth watching. Now that Baker wild. Kane would not let him use any speed on the ball, and it was this alone that prevented him from making a real game of it. Had Amby al-flicted by the wildness of "Wild Bill."

London, Aug. 6.—The Duke of West-minster's Otto polo team beat the Comte de Madre's Tigers by 8 goals to 5 in the first round of the challenge 5 in the first round of the challenge cup competition, which commenced at Rugby yesterday. The duke was assisted by Mr. W. S. Buckmaster and Captain L. St. C. Chope at No. 3 and back, and Lord Stalbridge at No. 1. The inclusion of Mr. Buckmaster and Captain Cheape in the back position confirms a recent dispatch that the duke has selected these players for the 1913 England team, which is going to the United States in quest of the American cup. It is understood that Mr. Buckmaster will captain the team.

LONDONERS AT HOME FOR CIVIC HOLIDAY

Home Attractions Proved Strong —Day Was Quiet—No Accidents Reported.

Home attractions proved very strong to the citizens of London on Civic Holiday, and as a result there was not the usual exodus to other places. There were many visitors to the city.

Pottersburg celebrated their Civic Holiday also, and a large crowd went there to the big picnic. The baseball games drew well, the ball jark being jammed for both contests. The city parks were crowded, thousands going to Springbank during the afternoon, In the evening the majority of people came down town, taking in shows on the market in connection with the street carnival. They were orderly, no rowdyism whatever being noticed. A large force of police was on hand. Port Stanley attracted many. The day was bright and gave evidence of being warmer than for some time. As a result the frost-bitten citizens in large numbers seized the opportunity to visit the lakeside. The Pere Marquette and the traction company had a busy day handling the crowds. Naccidents of any kind were reported. Motorists welcomed the day with unadulterated joy. For more than three weeks motoring has not been pleasant owing to the cool weather, However, on the holiday it warmed up and every available automobile was pressed into service. Long runs were generally undertaken and were thoroughly enjoyed.

Others went driving. Many visited friends in the country for the day. Altogether it was a pleasant holiday.

Walter Hirsh, the Cotton States League pitcher, bought by Cincinnati, is said to have quit the game rather than face a major league trial. He is somewhat different from the other Red recruit, Davis, who wrote his friends back home that Rucker looked like a dub, that George Suggs had nothing and that he hadn't seen anybody in the National League so far When Pitcher Frank Allen of Dodgers shut out Chicago on July 23 it was the first full game he had been allowed to twirl this year. "Haven't I made myself perfectly clear?" He put his hand upon her arm and compelled her to meet his gaze. She did so with a look of alarm. Evidently there was something about the man that she could not quite understand, but instinctively feared. "Must I warn you again?"

Luck was on his side. Miss Ellicott appeared almost at once, and there was no sign of interruption from the party in the drawing-room. She seemed very much surprised to see him; her face, however, showed pleasure as well. He greeted her querkly, and, coming up to her, began to speak in a rapid voice. "I think I should be willing to trust you, Mr. Duvail, with anything."
Duvail took her hand in his and pressed it, looking at her earnestly. "I may take you up on that some day," he said; then, hearing voices in the hall, he said; then, hearing voices in the hall, he led her quickly toward the door. "You led her quickly toward the door. "The men are posted in the garden, of course?" inquired the Prefect.

"Yes. Every point is guarded." Duvall turned to the Count. "You have the money in readiness, I hope."

D'Este scowled, then, reaching into an inner pocket, drew out a long, heavy linen envelope; fastened with a rubber band. "Here it is," he said, holding the package in his hand. "One million iranes, in bank-notes. I had a hard time getting it, I can tell you. A large sum, Monsteur," he said, turning to Lefevre, "to raise in cash upon a few hours' notice."

"Not for a millionaire like you, "Not for a millionaire like you, close to the time. We had better get everything in readiness."

"You feel sure, then, that he will close to the time. We had better get everything in readiness."

"You feel sure, then, that he will come?" The Count aparently had very grave doubts of Girard's reappearance. From the way in which he held on to the envelope containing the money, it was evident that he would not seriously disappointed should the blackmailer fail to arrive on the scene at all.

"Haven't a doubt of it," said Duvall, going over to the desk and pushing to one side some of the books and papers which lay upon it.

"Send for her? What for?"
"It will be safer. I want her right here under my eye. Then I'll know she isn't up to any mischief."
The Count rang the bell, although with evident hesitation. The idea of having Gabrielle in the room did not appeal to him at all. "She may cry out—warn him," he objected.

Gabrielle in the room did not appear to him; at all. "She may cry out—warn him," he objected.
"It makes no difference if she does," remarked Duvall carelessly. "There are half a dozen men in the garden and about the house. He cannot possibly escape, once he has entered the gate."

Before the world is much older, France will have 100,000 men engaged in emphasizing her occupation of the territory of the Moors. Very soon the French are to send ar expedition into the Tazza region, which may very easily prove an unknown quantity. The best information is to the effect that there are 50,000 tribesmen to oppose their path, all armed and ex-rerienced in handling modern rifles. But apart from what damage the rifles may do, the French force is being liter-ally decimated by disease. After the initial engagements great hopes were placed on the black troops from tropical Senegal. But directly they came under the cold atmosphere of the higher Moroccan altitudes they sickened pneumonia and died like flies.

Of the white troops engaged startling figures are given. Of 27,000 at Casablanca over 4,000 were invalided, acording to the last report. The Colonial Infantry were down to the extent of 45 per cent and the Chasseurs d'Afrique to 40 per cent. Of 674 dead and 4.000 invalided in January, only 80 were killed

"I am rejecting them," she for the first time, declared that she had said, smiling, "more in sorrow than in anger. I have no feeling against any of these men; they merely won't do." Among the widow's rejected suitors are: Harvard graduates, 66; Yale men, 30; Oxford graduates, 13; scions of "nobility" 150; men with fortunes between £2,000 and £10,000, 200; clergymen or students for the ministry, 18; men separated, but not divorced, 29; widowers, 208.

Perhaps the real reason for Mrs. Brown's rejection of all her suitors was he receipt of the following letter from W. J. Gaynor, mayor of New York City:

Glace Bay, N. S., Aug. 5.—Many citizens turned out to greet the Duke of Connaught and his party today, and his party today, and gave a most enthusiastic demon-stration. So dense was the crush in the enormous crowds that several women and children fainted and had to be borne away through lanes mo-mentarily opened up in the throngs. At one time prior to the arrival of the royal party excitement reigned when a horse became unmanageable, and, breaking away, plunged through the crowd. One lady was badly injured. That the duke, duchess and princess are beginning to feel the strain of strenuous sight-seeing there can be no doubt. The duchess especially loked more tired than she has on former occasions, and those who realize her state of health were surprised that she should elect to take such a long railway trip.

SHAMROCKS NEEDED MARRIED MEN BEAT BACHELORS

Baseball Game Was One of the Features of Pottersburg Picnic.

OLDEST PEOPLE PRESENT Honor Went to Mrs. Parkin and Mr.

J. Helme, Both Residents of London Junction. All roads in Pottersburg and East

London led to the Athletic Parke, Hale street, on Civic Holiday, the occasion being the annual picuic held under the auspices of the Athletic Association. Like everything else the people of this progressive suburb undertake, the picnic was a decided success. In the first place the weather was ideal. Then the committee had organized a program of sport which proved most entertaining, and things were kept going all the while.

Special features of the day were the usical part of the program furnished by the First Hussars Band, and the slever dancing by Miss Gladys Com-Miss Comber, who is a winner of many medals, won great applause by the excellent manner in which she danced the highland fling and sword dance.

The Baby Show. The bay show as usual, was one o the most entertaining features of the outing, and to the bewildered judges It proved a veritable puzzle to select the best all-round baby. Finally the honor fell to the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. James Gower, 15 Miles street, itersburg. The first three winners were recipients of silver cups, while nine others who entered the competition received souvenir pins. The prizes to the oldest lady gentleman on the grounds were won by Mrs. Parkin, aged 83, and Mr. J. Helme, aged 80, both residents of London Junction.

Married Men Won. In the evening a baseball match, to decide the championship of the village, was played between the bachelors Benedicts—B. Austin, E. Girvin, M. Garrett, W. Mulligan, J. Whittaker, M. McFee, R. Bedggood, T. Westcott, T. H. Lashbrook.

DIED SUDDENLY

Teeswater Man Was Stricken With Heart Failure. [Special to The Advertiser.]

Teeswater, Aug. 6.-William Scott, eldest son of his widowed mother, and her support, and chief steward on one of the upper lake steamers died very unexpectedly. It seems that though of strong muscular trouble, and though having the care of the ship doctor he finally succumbed on Thursday morning. The body will be brought home to Teeswater for burial.

The very heavy rain recently stopped harvesting operations for the present, but a fine lot of wheat has been harvested. Some fields of barley have been cut, and oats are beginning to ripen. Salem garden party was a complete success. A large contingent of Tees-water people attended, and had a pleasant outing. The authorities are having the water tank repaired, and the street sprink-ling will be resumed.

|S ||SSOUVED Compensation Less, Service Better

The compensation of a trust company, such as the Canada Trust Company, is generally less than that required by an individual in handling matters of trust, and the service in practically every instance

The service which the Canada Trust Company renders is the result of experience gained from handling a large number of transactions, and furthermore it is especially equipped for handling estates and investing funds.

The wisdom of appointing this Company as Executor, Trustee or Administrator is evidenced by the increasing number of people in London and vicinity, who are availing themselves of its facilities.

The men at the head of this institution make the handling of trust matters their life work, and understand every feature that may hinder or further the best interests of our patrons.

Consultations are always invited.

ENGLISH BOY LABOR IN HEAVY DEMAND

An Increase of Over 80 Per Cent. in Work Offered for Juveniles.

London, Aug. 5 .- In his report for description of the culprit. the year 1911-12 the superintendent of the Westminster Labor Bureau points out that the offers of work for men had decreased 18 per cent during the year. Work offered for boys or sessions will be held in the hall, while upon the dissolution of the cabinet on juvenile labor, on the other hand, had tion that had thus arisen presented a problem of considerable seriousness for the future: Again, the demand for female labor showed an increase of 60 per cent over the previous year, and it was found impossible to satisfy the demand for domestic labor to "live in."

Every effort, says the superintendent, was made to assist boy and girl applicants by placing them in positions where they might gain some knowledge of a trade, though modern tendencies in the labor world tended to make it impossible to be other than half skilled workmen and workwomen.

PERU RESTORES ORDER TO RUBBER REGION

Blame for Ill Treatment of the Natives Not Placed to the Colombian Marauders.

[Canadian Press.] Lima, Peru, Aug. 6 .- Complete order is reported to prevall today in the Peruvian zone of jurisdiction of the Putumayo rubber district, where terrible atrosities committed on native workers were recently reported to have occurred by Sir Roger Casement, who carried out an investigation on behalf of the British Government. A dispatch today from the city of Iquitos on the Upper Amazon, say ooth the press and authorities of that district express their conviction that the authors of the recent crimes in the Putumayo region were Colombian marauders entirely unconnected with the firm of Arana, former owners of the rubber region. It is also asserted in the news papers that the reports of outrages were spread in order to discredit the Arana family, whose influence in the Peruvian Amazon camp was unralatable to some of the British share-

LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEERS IN ANNUAL MEETING

Several Thousand Delegates From Canada and the U.S. Gathered at Toronto.

[Canadian Press.]
Toronto, Aug. 6. — The annual union meeting of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and Grand International Ladies' Auxiliary commenced oday in Toronto, with headquarters at the Walker House, and the delegates distributed all over the city. From 800 to 1,000 delegates are estimated to be in town from all parts of Canada and the United States, and before the day is out the local committee expect over 2,500 persons to be on hand. The meeting is not a business conention; it is the annual social reunion of the two big organizations, and four days of pleasureable recreation. The headquarters of the grand lodge of the brotherhood is at Cleveland. The grand chief, W. S. Stone, with the first grand engineer, W. B. Prenter, may be on hand before the gathering adjourns. George Mills, of Toronto, is chairman of the present meeting, and W. B. Carruthers, of Toronto, is secretary-reasurer. Mrs. W. A. Murdock, grand president of the Ladies' Auxiliary, from Chicago, and Mrs. J. M. Mains, grand rice-president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Toronto, are conspicuous and popuar ladies at the gathering. Two secret sessions of the organizaion were held in the Oddfellows' Hall at 9 o'clock and 2 o'clock today, but the business is only routine. A public reception will be held this evening at come by Acting Mayor Church will be given, followed by an address by the Minister of Labor, Hon. W. T. TRAPPED BY INDIANS

Mexican Federal Soldiers Subjected to Terrible Torture. [Canadian Press.]

Mexico City, Aug. 6.—Revolting Sierra Juarez Indians in Northern Oaxaca, have surrounded a federal etachment near Ixtlan, according to eports reaching here this morning. Unless the troops can cut their way out of the trap they probably face earful torture.

Two soldiers, who were captured near Istapec were stretched on a rack, Then Indians with sharp knives pared off the bottoms of their feet. After this, the soldiers were forced to walk long distances. One died under the torture. The other reached the re-bels, but immediately he was lynched. The Indians have been in revolt several weeks. They claim they were not properly treated while negotiating with the Government for settlement of a land dispute.

HAMILTON MERCHANTS SORE

Object to Next Monday Being Declared Civic Holiday. [Canadian Press.]

Hamilton, Aug. 6.-Local chants are sore at the action of the ocard of control in fixing Monday next as Civic Holiday. They say it will cost them thousands of dollars, local people will go to Toronto on the holiday and spend their money there, while if Hamilton had held its holiday on the first Monday of the month as has been the case formerly they would not have suffered. The Toronto crowds who came here yesterday found nothing special doing and went to Dundas or the parks.

today, based on the impending retirement of Lord Morley from the lord presidency of the council, and the return of Lord Gladstone from South Africa.

Lord Morley has been able to give very little time to the House of Lords lately, and has been in attendance only when his presence has been required in some particular debate. Mr. Augustine Birrell is another minister who is overworked, and his transition from the Irish chief secretaryship to the India office would be a relief to him, and a promotion that would be appreciated by ministerialists generally.

Such a change at the same time would be a certain barrassmen' to the prime minister, as it would undoubtedly be ominous of the fate of the home rule bill, even if it were accompanied by an explanation. Mr. Birrell, however, would still be available to take part in the debates on the bill and, would retain charge of it. If Mr. Birrell finds a less onerous post there is reason to think that Mr. Herbert L. Samuel will succeed him at the Irish office. It is understood that he is next on the list for promotion in the cabinet.

Her advent in the rebel camp was not questioned.

She stayed around the outer circles for a few days, making friends of the women, and finally had herself attached to Orozco's retinue of servants. She lightened the burdens of the other servants, and as she seemed to expect no pay for her work, she was a welcome addition to the band of women and men who administered to the wants of Oroz-

A TRIBUTE TO HIS MOTHER. [Thomas R. Marshall, Democratic candidate for Vice-President.] "I think back through the years, the lean and the fat, the good and the bad ones, to my earliest recollection, I see a woman with an eye that flashes swift as an archangel's wing and a mouth that breaks with laughter and hardens at sight of wrong; singing luliables; a woman who, with hand grasping the Unseen Hand, walks the briar-bordered paths of life unashamed, unafraid, unbarmed. She is clad in garments of beauty for more conditions. beauty for men, and age does not soil them nor years make them cheap and tawdry. Her tongue is without guilt, having never been the messenger of a lie. It is seventeen years since her soul went home to God, and her fingers became for me the fingers of an angel, but I have not forgotten all she said. She told me there was a Santa Claus, and I believe her. He brings me no longer drums and fifes. But he still brings to me the vision of my mother and the music of that angelic chorus which sang at creation's dawn and at the hour of man's redemption."
