

$15,000,000 LONDON MONEY IN L. R. STEEL SHARES

STEEL STOCK SOLD HERE TO 1,100 SHAREHOLDERS

London People Vitrally Interested in Affairs of the L. R. Steel Enterprises Placed in Receivers' Hands by U. S. Federal Court Order.

LOCAL MANAGER SAYS LOSS, IF ANY, SMALL

Approximately 1,100 London people are stockholders in the L. R. Steel enterprises, and will be affected by the action of a federal judge at Buffalo in placing the corporation in the hands of a receiver. A branch of the L. R. Steel Service Corporation opened an office in the Royal Bank Building here some months ago for the purpose of selling stock. On the resignation of L. R. Steel, founder and president of the huge concern, the local office was ordered to quit selling shares, and Mr. Jackson, the manager, closed shop last Saturday. It is said, after all stock issues with which the firm was identified had been sold to Londoners. The Steel Realty Development Corporation Limited also opened an office in the city. This is a subsidiary concern, and according to the manager, H. E. Wheeler, will remain unaffected by the receivership ruling.

Does Not Expect Loss.

Mr. Wheeler, interviewed by The Advertiser today, thought the chances of local shareholders suffering losses were extremely remote. He could see no reason for the L. R. Steel enterprises discontinuing business, and believed the loss, if any, would be negligible.

A Month Ago Stock in the organization was still being sold.

As a chain store organization, the L. R. Steel Company has had a most spectacular career. It grew all at once. In 1920 it was an idea; in 1921 60 stores were in operation and 1922 were planned to be opened within twelve months. It was to be the greatest chain store business in the world. Shareholders were dazzled with the vision of quick returns on their money.

Spectacular Career.

How much Canadian money is invested is not known, but estimates of the savings of local citizens deposited with the firm reach roughly $15,000,000. Stock selling continued until after the resignation of the executive heads had difficulty in carrying on the business, it was deemed advisable to withdraw the stock salesmen.

The resignation of Mr. Steel evidently made the creditors uneasy.

Bills poured into the office. Yesterday the Canadian company went into voluntary liquidation.

Assets Ample, Says Manager.

Mr. Wheeler, local manager of the realty agency, believed there would be sufficient assets to pay the creditors, and leave a substantial surplus. He thought a reorganization upon some new basis would save the business.

No departmental store was opened in London by the company.

There are thirteen stores in the larger cities in Canada, and London was looked upon as a likely site, but no store was erected. In addition to the investment bureau, conducted by Mr. Jackson, the realty office took an active part in the development of the enterprise in London. The discontinuation of stock sales, Mr. Wheeler declared, was a result of a decision on the part of directors that the company should make good with its present shareholders before contemplating further expansion.

So far as the realty office is concerned, it is in a separate department altogether from the liquidated company. Half a million dollars' worth of local real estate is controlled from the office which Mr. Wheeler is manager. Only realty offices that could not produce a substantial revenue have been closed down. The local branch has been successful in its business, and there is not the slightest indication at present that it will in any way be affected by the condition of other branches.

Mr. Wheeler thought there was no reason for shareholders to be pessimistic regarding the outlook. He had not received notification from Buffalo as to action contemplated by receivers of the chain store business, but believed everything would be arranged to the satisfaction of investors.

GUELPH ALSO HIT.

Special to The Advertiser. Guelph, March 9.—Local bankers and financial men believe that many thousands of dollars were sunk by Guelph and district investors in the L. R. Steel enterprises. A representative of the defunct concern was stationed in Guelph for over a year, and at one time it had three salaried employees.

REORGANIZATION LIKELY.

Special to The Advertiser. Montreal, March 9.—The Canadian L. R. Steel Company will be able to pay creditors and still retain a substantial balance for working capital, according to advice received by the Hon. J. L. Perron, K.C., from Bain & Bigelow of Toronto. The state that outstanding obligations of the Canadian company were approximately $2,000,000, that the money was available to liquidate these and leave a substantial balance. Mr. Perron is the local legal representative of the company.

ADJUDGED BANKRUPT.

Special to The Advertiser. Toronto, March 9.—On the petition of the Thompson, Wheeler & Company of Toronto, a creditor of $729.49, and following an assignment of the company's assets, the L. R. Steel Company Limited, which has offices in Toronto, has been adjudged bankrupt, and a receiver order is made against the L. R. Steel Company, G. T. Clark and J. H. Young, directors, and the authorized assignment made yesterday is annulled.

The foregoing order has been signed by George S. Holmsted, registrar in bankruptcy.

Yesterday Mrs. Shaw appeared from Windsor, and demanded from Mr. Shaw's housekeeper that the children be returned to her. Mrs. Shaw was refused the children, and she enlisted the aid of a policeman.

"If you want the children, take them," Mr. Shaw is reported to have told Mrs. Shaw, according to a statement to The Advertiser today by the housekeeper.

"We do not want to go with mother. We want to stay here with daddy," they answered, and they

KINGSTON GIRL DIED OF SEPTIC POISONING

Verdict Is Returned at Inquest—Physician Denies Criminal Operation.

Special to The Advertiser.

Kingston, March 9.—A verdict that the late Miss Mary Dunnett came to her death through septic poisoning from the uterus was the verdict returned last night at the coroner's inquest. Dr. A. W. Richardson is under arrest charged with performing a criminal operation, but the evidence adduced last night was not very strong in that regard. Dr. Richardson testified that he had treated the girl for vomiting, diarrhoea, etc., and was unaware of the girl's condition.

Horace Wilson, mechanic, testified that he had resided with Mrs. Dunnett and her daughter in 1922.

He testified that he was present at the death of the girl, and that he saw the girl's condition. He testified that he was present at the death of the girl, and that he saw the girl's condition. He testified that he was present at the death of the girl, and that he saw the girl's condition.

Will Try Again.

"I will oppose this again at the last reading of the bill in the legislature," Dr. Stevenson assured. "I will move again that word 'without' be eliminated. It is my contention that this question should go to a vote of the people, and I will fight against this clause if I have to do it alone."

Unwise To Sell.

Colonel William Coles, popularly regarded as the "father of the federal square project," stated to The Advertiser today that he thought it would be unwise for the mayor and council to sell any part of this property at

DR. STEVENSON TO OPPOSE SALE OF FEDERAL SQUARE

"Will Fight It on Third Reading of Bill If I Have to Fight Alone," He Says—Col. Coles Hopes Dundas Street Frontage Will Not Be Sold.

Despite obstacles yet to be surmounted, prospects appear brighter for the early construction of a new municipal administration building on the McCormick site, according to Dr. Stevenson.

Nearly $200,000 is now believed available for this purpose, it is explained, and the general belief is that this, with such sums acquired by the sale of the Spencer block and the federal square, exclusive of the McCormick location, would be adequate for the purpose.

Dr. Hugh Stevenson, M.P.P., is one of those, however, who still opposes the sale without a vote of the people. Returning from the legislature last night, he announced to The Advertiser that he would continue the fight against the city of London bill, which proposes the sale of the so-called "federal square," exclusive of the McCormick site and without a vote of the people.

"I don't think it would be policy," he said, "to sell any of this property until the actual construction has begun. I am not an engineer, and I understand that the aldermen have already gone on record favoring the day labor scheme."

Mr. New drew attention to the municipal paving plant in St. Catharines, as in London, and explained that the local day labor garbage collection and disposal scheme was practically identical with that municipality. Viewing the situation generally, he sees many things in common between the two centers.

As Mr. Brazier desires to leave March 15, the new appointee will be in the city at that date. It is probable that he will attend tonight's informal session of the council when the board of works estimates will be considered.

Associated Press Despatch. Providence, R. I., March 9.—Fire, which swept two floors of the Sheppard Company department store, in the heart of the business section, started in a plot to foment strikes and mandating the attention of firemen early today, caused property damage estimated at between $1,600,000 and $2,000,000.

In addition to the considerable damage to the building, great stocks of goods and a large part of the fixtures on six floors were wrecked by fire and the fire origin had not been determined early today.

NO CLEAN SWEEP OF ENGINEERING FORCE, SAYS NEAR

Successor to Engineer Brazier Not Pledged to Disperse With Five Officers.

HIS HANDS NOT TIED

Would Not Accept Position If Fettered in Any Way, He Declares.

Sweeping out with a new broom is one fine way to cripple any administration, cautions W. P. Near, who succeeds H. A. Brazier on March 15 as London's city engineer.

In conversation with The Advertiser this morning, the new official explained that he could not help hearing about the charges during recent weeks that he would come into office pledged to "disperse with the five disputed offices in the local engineering department."

"Absolutely untrue," he stated, decisively. "There are no strings attached to me, and there never has been in any position. I would not accept the duties under such conditions."

Mr. Near made it quite clear that he was not anticipating any clean sweep in the department, nor was he contemplating drastic changes. He gives ample assurance that in any event, were any changes to be made now or at a future date, it would be only after the most careful consideration.

Considering Estimates.

In consultation today with Mr. Brazier, he is considering the 1923 estimates and becoming generally acquainted with local conditions, which are, he points out, quite similar to the situation in St. Catharines, where during the past ten years he has held the position as city engineer.

There is no reason why a saving cannot be accomplished by the employment of the day labor scheme in connection with the construction of pavements and the laying of sewers, he states, adding that there were other municipal undertakings that he would not advise under day labor methods, by reason of the fact that it would entail perhaps a sacrifice of valuable equipment that might not be required again for years.

How St. Catharines Does It.

"We have been doing work in St. Catharines," he related, "by both day labor and contract, but during the past two or three years we have been increasing steadily the quantity of day labor work. While the basic work of the paving undertakings was done by contract the surfacing was accomplished by day labor and at an appreciable saving. In any event, it would, of course, be a matter of policy to be determined by the council and not the engineer, and I understand that the aldermen have already gone on record favoring the day labor scheme."

Mr. Near drew attention to the municipal paving plant in St. Catharines, as in London, and explained that the local day labor garbage collection and disposal scheme was practically identical with that municipality. Viewing the situation generally, he sees many things in common between the two centers.

Worth More Later.

Colonel Coles pointed out that he was not conversant with what was in the minds of the mayor and council but did hope that the city would not sell any of the Dundas street frontage. "The party facing on Dundas street," he said, "should be retained as a place to build public buildings in the years to come. I hope Mayor Wenig will start construction of the new city hall as soon as he can, as the citizens of London certainly should get rid of the eyesore which serves that purpose at present."

"Let us build a city hall that will be a credit to the city and something which we shall be proud to show to our visitors. It is certainly a disgrace that the city of London began housing its officers in respectable buildings."

Col. Coles explained that the construction of a new city hall would be a benefit in more ways than one—in building it employment would be given to large numbers of men who are out of work, it would set at rest all the criticism being directed against the present city hall, and would show the people of other cities that Londoners have some civic pride.

PLANNING NO REVISION OF THE TARIFF IN U. S.

Proposed To Let Law Stand For Two Years at Least.

Associated Press Despatch.

Washington, March 8.—Republican leaders of the House of Representatives, it is learned, have decided not to attempt any general revision of the tariff in the new congress. Barzley, in considering the 1923 estimates, it is proposed to let the law stand for two years at least. Failure of the tariff commission to make use of the flexible tariff provision to moderate rates, is said to be causing apprehension among House leaders and other Republican chiefs. They fear it may arouse a powerful demand in Congress to revise the tariff rates.

It is also declared that some of the tariff men fear it may lead to a demand in the House for amendment to the flexible tariff law so as to make it workable.

HATS IN LEGISLATURE. STIR CHIEF MAGISTRATE

"Board of Works Has Nothing on This," Comments Wenig.

"The board of works has nothing on this," commented Mayor Wenig yesterday as he surveyed the private bills committee of the legislature in action. "Why there are members sitting with their hats on."

"Well just let anyone try and take these hats off," challenged Dr. Stevenson this morning. "That is right, they have handed down through the generations. That is the last word in democracy. One king in England reigned one time, and the commonsense would not stand for it. Since then they wear their right in the legislature if they choose."

BRITISH SAULERS PERISH AS TORPEDO EXPLODES

Two Dead, Four Hurt, Is Toll on Cruiser—Cause Is Unknown.

Gibraltar, March 9.—Two sailors were killed and four others injured, one of them probably mortally, as the result of a torpedo explosion on board the British cruiser Coventry during the night.

The cause of the explosion is unknown.

The Coventry is a light cruiser of 4,190 tons displacement and a normal complement of 327 men. She formerly was named the Corsair. While the cause of the explosion has not been determined, it is stated that one of the men was seen smoking near the torpedo, which was much below the recognized explosive strength.

ARCHIBALD McLEAN DIES AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Had Been Ill For Months in His Home on Waterloo Street.

HIGHLY ESTEEMED Prominent in Sports and Business Life and an Excellent Citizen.

Archibald D. McLean, former manager of the local branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, died at his late residence, 621 Waterloo street, at 11 o'clock a.m. yesterday, following an illness of several months. He was in his 64th year.

The late Mr. McLean was held in the highest esteem by Londoners in all walks of life, and was a keen advocate of clean sport, taking a special interest in bowling.

His father was the late T. A. McLean, registrar of Calgary. He was the grandson of the late Hon. Archibald McLean, chief justice of Upper Canada in 1862.

Forty years ago, the late Mr. McLean entered the Toronto office of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. His recent term of office as manager of the local branch was not his first experience in banking. From 1892 to 1895 he was here as an accountant with David Dewar.

From 1895 until 1911 he managed the Sarnia branch of the bank, and during the succeeding three years was manager of the branch at Sault Ste. Marie. In 1914 he came to London as manager, and held that office until last autumn, when illness forced his retirement.

Besides his widow, three sons, A. Cedric, Basil M., and Ronald G., and two daughters, Mrs. Harold Williams and Mrs. J. H. Ferguson, both of London, and a daughter, Mrs. J. H. Ferguson, who was killed in action in the great war, Mrs. Ferguson is now on her way to London.

All his life the late Mr. McLean took a keen interest in sports. He was a member of the Sarnia Bowling Club, and has taken part in numerous tournaments in Western Ontario.

The funeral, which will be of a private nature, will be held Saturday afternoon. Services will be conducted by Rev. D. C. MacGregor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

NO "FARMERS' BANK" FOR CANADA, IS DECREE

Hon. W. S. Fielding Would Prevent Further Trafficking in Charters.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, March 9.—There will not be another "farmers' bank" in Canada, nor will there be any further trafficking in bank charters, if these things can be avoided by the present minister of finance, so Hon. W. S. Fielding told the commons committee on banking and commerce yesterday.

Mr. Fielding objected to a bill to incorporate "La Banque Des Cultivateurs" of Quebec, on account of its name, and insisted upon a change before the committee pass the bill.

"The name 'Farmers' Bank' is not in good odor in Canada," he declared, asking the promoters to find another name. George Parent, member for Quebec West, accepted the change to "La Banque Rurale" on behalf of the promoters. This did not appeal to Mr. Fielding, who, however, agreed to the bill passing the committee, with a request to the promoters that they find a better name before the bill went to the senate.

RAINEY NOT IN OFFICE, DOES NOT SEE WARNER

Conference Between Attorney-General and New Juvenile Court Judge Deferred.

Special to The Advertiser.
Toronto, March 9.—Owing to the absence of Attorney-General W. E. Raine, no conference will be held with Rev. Quintin Warner until later in the week.

Dr. Stevenson explained that Mr. Warner's appointment is assured. "I arranged for this conference," he said, "just in order that Mr. Warner would have a talk with Mr. Raine—more or less a matter of form."

Mr. Warner had a brief interview yesterday afternoon with the deputy attorney-general. Nothing definite transpired, however.

It is Mayor Weniger's contention that Rev. Mr. Warner has not been appointed juvenile court judge for London.

Disputing all claims to the contrary, Dr. Stevenson, M. P. for London, still adheres to a contrary view, however, when arriving here at noon, Mr. Warner stated that a final arrangement had yet to be reached.

It must be without remuneration," was Mayor Weniger's positive assertion, acknowledging, however, that Mr. Warner would be a capable judge. Aid. Albert Judd expressed undisguised pleasure relative to Mr. Warner's appointment.

RESCUE CREW OF SEVEN FROM CANADIAN SHIP

Coastguardsmen Find Men in Flooded Cabin, Where Water Was Freezing.

Associated Press Despatch.
Nantucket, Mass., March 8.—The crew of seven men of the Canadian schooner E. M. Roberts, after a night of suffering in a cabin flooded by water that was freezing slowly, while their vessel was wrecked by great seas, were rescued by the crew of the Cossack coastguard station today.

The schooner, laden with coal from New York for St. John, N.B., dragged her anchors in the storm off Great Point last night, was driven ashore and lay broadside on the beach. Capt. Adolph A. Bohdin and his men of the Cossack station tried unsuccessfully to launch their surf boat through the breakers. Then they set up the rigging for rescue by breeches buoy, but on each of two attempts the line fell short of the schooner. Through the night the coastguards stood by on the shore. A fire, which they had kindled as a sign of encouragement to the shipwrecked men, served also to keep them warm.

This morning Capt. Bohdin headed his men out again, and this time they pushed their dory through the surf and reached the stricken schooner. Clambering aboard was difficult, as the Roberts was led all over. Capt. Bohdin said that when he and his men had broken through the ice to get to the cabin door he found Capt. William Keiser of St. John and his six men inside, almost frozen.

The crew was talkative, and told Ward they would have no trouble in disposing of the whiskey, and further stated they got by prices selling the stuff. One man, who said he was Sovereign, stated they could get $20 a bottle.

When the boat left Toronto on Aug. 28, Officers Ward and Sharp had watched the loading for two days and a night, but Ward states he did not meet any Mr. Sovereign, although he had an interview with Captain Darrington.

Powerless to Stop It.
When the loading was going on, Ward stopped Capt. Darrington and his crew and reported the matter to Chief Dickson and government officials. Customs officials were sent for and ruled that Ward had no right to make an arrest or seizure, but they were loading, as the boat was of American register and showed her destination and disposition of cargo to the home port of the owner.

LAW PERMITS IT So Long as Customs Papers Are Regular, Police Are Power- less to Interfere.

Special to The Advertiser.
Toronto, March 9.—The arrest of four men in Detroit for chartering the yacht Alladin belonging to W. J. Sovereign, Bay City, Mich., under the pretext it was for lake cruising, and then using it for whiskey smuggling of costly cargoes from Toronto to Detroit, recalls the visit of the Alladin to Toronto on August 28, last year.

Disclosures shows Toronto is being used as a base for American bootleggers who come here and buy shipments of whiskey and carry it away in yachts, while the Toronto police look on helpless, as there is no law to prevent it so long as the shippers' clearance and customs papers are correct.

Loaded as Police Watched.
The yacht Alladin was in Toronto harbor on August 28, last year, and tied up at the docks of the Gooderham & Worts' distillery, where 450 cases of rye whiskey were shipped on board, while Plainclothesman Ward and Constable Sharp of Dundas street station looked on powerless to stop the departure of the yacht as its papers were found to be satisfactory by customs officers.

The yacht was in charge of Capt. J. J. Darrington, one of the men under arrest in Detroit. Darrington gave Ward the name of W. J. Sovereign, 80 Oaks street, River Rouge, Mich., as agent, and the whiskey according to the clearance and customs papers was booked to that address.

When the boat left Toronto on Aug. 28, Officers Ward and Sharp had watched the loading for two days and a night, but Ward states he did not meet any Mr. Sovereign, although he had an interview with Captain Darrington.

Powerless to Stop It.
When the loading was going on, Ward stopped Capt. Darrington and his crew and reported the matter to Chief Dickson and government officials. Customs officials were sent for and ruled that Ward had no right to make an arrest or seizure, but they were loading, as the boat was of American register and showed her destination and disposition of cargo to the home port of the owner.

The crew was talkative, and told Ward they would have no trouble in disposing of the whiskey, and further stated they got by prices selling the stuff. One man, who said he was Sovereign, stated they could get $20 a bottle.

"Toronto is a regular clearing-house for rum-runners," declared the chief of police to The Advertiser. "At the time I called the attention of the attorney-general's department to the visits of American boats to Toronto waters for loading whiskey shipments."

"We can do nothing on account of the law. Everything is regular here," said the chief of police. "The men with 600 cases of whiskey valued at $13,000 for Monte Beaver, Lockport, N. Y."

NAMES BODY TO PROBE THE CIVIL SERVICE ACT

Discussion Is Precipitated Over
Labor's Representative On Government Committee.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Ottawa, March 9.—The committee which is to conduct the inquiry into the civil service act was proposed by the premier in the House of Commons yesterday. There was some discussion as to the representation of the Labor party upon it, and the motion was allowed to stand until today.

The committee, as named by the premier, is to consist of Messrs. Brown, Carmichael, Copp, Drummond, Garland (McMetton), Hughes, McMurphy, McBride, McKillop, Malcolm, Martell, Parent, Rinfret, Simpson.

The question regarding the representation of Labor was raised by Captain J. J. Shaw, independent member (West Calgary). He said that some ten thousand of the members of the civil service owed, he thought, direct allegiance to organized labor, while no doubt other branches were also organized.

The premier said he would be quite willing to appoint one of the Labor members to the committee if Mr. Shaw would submit a list of names. Shaw, however, suggested that the matter stand over.

Preying On Germany.
This split is further complicated by the fact that Germany, the preeminent country of capitalist development, cannot succeed in getting on her feet.

All the capitalist powers of the west prey upon Germany and refuse to allow her to rise. On the other hand, the entire east, with hundreds of millions of exploited toilers, has been driven to the last stage of human endurance.

We are not interested in the question of the inevitability of victory for Socialism, but in the question of what tactics we should adopt to prevent the western European counter-revolutionary powers from crushing us. In order to ensure our existence and the next military clash between the counter-revolutionary imperialist west and the revolutionary nations east—between the most civilized states in the world and the back Oriental states—this majority must become civilized.

Can we avoid a clash with the imperialist states? Will the difference between the imperialist states shape themselves so as to give us a pause for breath like we once received as a result of American-Japanese differences?

Will Be Forced to Fight.
A solution of the problem depends upon many questions. An overwhelming majority of the human race will be forced to fight by capitalism itself. The outcome of that fight depends upon the fact that India, China and other eastern nations represent the majority of the world's population. This majority is all ready to be drawn into the fight. Therefore, the final victory for Socialism is unquestionable.

Meanwhile, we are faced with the question: Can we stand fast until the western European states complete their development toward Socialism?

The development won't come by a simultaneous ripening, but as a result of the exploitation of one country by another. Such exploitation influences the entire Orient, where the revolutionary movement cannot be halted any longer.

Sarnia Court On Liquor Charge.

Special to The Advertiser.
Sarnia, March 9.—Three hours in the county police court was devoted Thursday afternoon to the hearing of the "lemon extract case," in which Samuel Jacks and Mrs. Reva Jacks, Chippewa street, are charged with exposing, or keeping liquor for sale, and failing to keep a record of sales.

The case is the result of the seizure of 1,000 bottles of extract from the small store owned by the defendants and an allegation that the extract was sold as liquor and consumed on the premises. Judgment was reserved until the first charge and the second were put on by the magistrate C. S. Woodrow until Sunday.

Sam Whitebird, an Indian, testified that he had bought the extract from the store, and had consumed it. The police denied this. The defence claims that it had the right to sell extract under the act and denies any sale of the extract on the premises. One batch of extract tested 14.46 per cent overproof spirits and another batch 11.16 per cent underproof spirits.

EUROPE'S NOBLES SELL

Wealthy American Secures
Masterpieces At An Out-

Washington, March 9.—Millions of dollars' worth of old and valuable art objects are being bought up in Europe by wealthy Americans, and these purchases are rapidly making this country one of the foremost art centers of the world. Confirmation that European nobility, sadly in need of money, is parting reluctantly with these rare old treasures has been given by government officials here.

The public was given an insight into the traffic in art treasures by the recent announcement that John D. Rockefeller, jun., had bought the six famous La Rochefoucauld tapestries. He is reported to have paid $1,500,000 for the six, a deal on which a Parisian art dealer is reported to have reaped a profit of more than half a million dollars.

SAYS DOMINIONS PREFER
CONFERENCE IN LONDON
Associated Press Despatch.
London, March 9.—A question was asked in the House of Commons yesterday as to whether the Dominion government would be invited to say whether it would facilitate matters for them if the imperial conference this year were held at some halfway house such as Ottawa. Premier Borden replied that the British government assumed that it was the general desire of the dominions that any conference which might be arranged should be held in London. The government had not made any inquiries on the matter, he said.

Lenine Declares Socialism Will Triumph Over World

Russian Soviet Premier Declares That All the Capitalistic Powers of the West Are Preying Upon Germany.

Moscow, March 9.—Under the present system of international relations in Europe, one state placed under the heel of others—victors, who are able to grant a few concessions to the oppressed classes, concessions which retard the revolutionary movement and create a semblance of social peace.

At the same time there are a number of Oriental countries, notably India and China, who as a result of the imperialist war, find themselves completely beaten out of their track. Their development has finally come to be directed on a general European capitalist scale. General European fermentation has begun in those countries, and the whole world can now see clearly that they have been dragged into the process which inevitably will lead toward a crisis in the entire world of capitalism.

What tactics must we adopt as a result of this world trend? We must carefully build up our state and maintain the workers' leadership over the peasants, but increase the latter's confidence and exercise maximum economy. Our advantage is that the whole world is in a state of evolution. Our disadvantage is that capitalists have succeeded in splitting the world.

OFFER BIG REWARD AL. Spencer Sought, Dead or Alive—Capturer to Get $30,000.

Special to The Advertiser.
Bartlesville, Okla., March 8.—A new Jesse James has appeared in the west. Unmasked he is leading his gang of desperadoes in a series of bank robberies that keeps the border counties of Kansas and Oklahoma terrorized.

A jewelry store and eight banks have been rifled by bandits under his direction in the past week. Rewards totalling $30,000 have been offered for him, dead or alive.

He is Al Spencer, who forsook the peaceful pursuit of farming in Nowata county to enter upon a career of banditry that promises to approach, if not eclipse the record of his notorious predecessor. Cool, clear headed, and hard as steel, Spencer is recognized as a real "bad man," and the scores of officers who are scouring the border counties for him are convinced that the only way they can bring him in is in a coffin.

Spencer was not resorted to killing, but officers believe he would not hesitate if necessary.

LEWIS POINTS DEFECTS IN THE ALLOWANCE ACT

Toronto Conservative Member
Declares Many Women Not Receiving Consideration.

BOWMAN REPORTS

Minister Declares New Road
Will Be Built From North Bay To Pembroke.

Canadian Press Despatch.
Toronto, March 9.—Characterizing the government's power settlement at the head of the Great Lakes as an improvident move, D. M. Hogarth, Conservative member for Port Arthur in the Legislature, yesterday declared that in its consideration of the intricate question of Nipigon power the Gregory commission had been animated by a desire to pull government political chestnuts out of the fire.

Besides Mr. Hogarth, Messrs. Sandy, Lewis, Bowman and Mageau spoke, the last-mentioned moving the adjournment of the debate until Tuesday next.

At the evening session, Alex. Lewis (Conservative, Toronto) criticized the workings of the mothers' allowance act, pointing out that as at present women are by no means a woman with $700 cash from becoming a beneficiary. He illustrated his case against the act with the recital of facts concerning a woman with two children, who had been left $1,000 life insurance. The only method by which she could benefit for herself and children was by spending some of her money, or, as she was advised by the chairman of the board, to invest a portion of her money in a house.

When Mr. Lewis also expressed a desire to see widows with one child become beneficiaries, he was asked by K. H. Honneth, Labor member for Waterloo, if he would support a bill to that end. Mr. Lewis said he would, but that he could not speak for the Conservative group.

Bowman Gives Report.
Proceeding, the member for North-east Toronto said that the University of Toronto should be strictly under provincial control and financed wholly out of provincial finances.

Hon. Beniah Bowman, Minister of lands and forests, gave a brief survey of Northern Ontario conditions. Touching on the Northern Ontario roads problem, Hon. Mr. Bowman announced amidst some applause that there would be an improved trunk road next year from North Bay to Pembroke. The department was also endeavoring to connect up Cochrane with Cobalt, and in a few years' time Hearst would be connected up with Cochrane.

Mr. Bowman outlined the activities of his department in connection with the protection of forests from fire. Each year Ontario's fire rangers, he said, patrolled an area of some 100,000,000 acres.

Z. Mageau (Liberal, Sturgeon Falls) urged upon the government the desirability of taking steps to see that established pulp and paper companies with large amounts of capital invested should secure adequate reserves of timber. If necessary, he felt that the government should waive sale by tender in order to achieve this object.

W. H. Casselman, Dundas, who sits on the government side, had another encounter with Premier Drury. He attacked the premier for his remarks to a deputation the day before concerning a bill introduced to give the adolescent school attendance act a five-year hiatus.

Mind Is Unchanged.
The premier told the deputation that the bill would be sent to one of the lethal chambers provided in Legislature procedure for the killing of such bills. "I thought this chamber was a forum for the discussion of public questions," said Mr. Casselman. "I think that out of common decency the premier might have had the grace to have waited until he heard my argument before he made such a statement regarding the bill. He apparently does not know that there is a great weight of public opinion behind my bill."

The prime minister declared that he had stated his position openly and had not changed his mind. There was no demand for such legislation and he thought he was in close touch with rural and urban opinion. He told Mr. Casselman that he should cultivate a sense of humor. His words about the bill, he said, were a prophecy.

Scores Business Methods.
D. M. Hogarth (Conservative, Port Arthur) continued the debate on the budget, saying that the Nipigon power trouble was more of a quarrel between Premier Drury and Sir Adam Beck than a quarrel between Port William and Port Arthur. "If the premier can't agree with Sir Adam, then the logical thing for him to do is to dismiss him," said Mr. Hogarth.

No remedy can cure all ailments of the human body, but an immense number of people suffer from aches, pains and diseases when their real trouble is lack of iron in the blood. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food. Without iron your food merely passes through you without doing you any good; you don't get the strength out of it. There is one universally known tonic that has helped thousands because it contains iron like the iron in fresh vegetables and like the iron in your blood.

The government, however, chose to create an atmosphere of uncertainty in hydro affairs. In the treatment of the Nipigon the government had broken the first principle upon which the hydro system was based. Mr. Hogarth announced that he was through with politics, and said that this session was his swan song.

F. G. Sandy (U.F.O., South Victoria) declared that constant criticism of the attorney-general was injurious to the proper enforcement of the O. T. A. He spoke of the necessity of improved agricultural conditions, and ventured that the prediction the next parliament with a farmers' government still in power would take the necessary steps to remedy the wrongs in the farming world. Alex. Lewis (Conservative, Northeast Toronto) attacked the government for its conduct of business in the House. He said it was not prepared, and that business lagged, and the House was held up as a result.

Herbert Hoover Declares Relief For Soviet Children Will Continue.

Special to The Advertiser.
New York, March 9.—Starvation stalks no more in Russia, Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover declares.

In a statement Thursday Hoover said the American relief administration will continue its present feeding of Soviet children, and the Moscow government has pledged to care for its adults. This assistance will be sufficient to prevent hunger at least until the fall harvests.

So far the A. R. A. has given food and clothing to 15,000,000 Russians.

It will provide for 3,000,000 additional children before fall, Hoover said.

Hoover's statement was significant in view of reports that American aid was to be withdrawn from Russia.

HER THREE CHILDREN HAD WHOOPIING COUGH

Many mothers make the mistake of thinking that whooping cough is not of serious importance, but it is one of the most dangerous diseases of infancy, and yearly causes more deaths than scarlet fever, typhoid or diphtheria, and is more common in female than male children.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP.

is highly recommended by mothers everywhere for the relief of this trouble as it helps to clear the clogged-up air passages of the mucous and phlegm that has collected, and in this way brings on the "whoop" which brings the so-much-sought-for relief and heals and soothes the lungs.

Mrs. H. W. Mahar, Kentville, N. S., writes: "My three children had whooping cough. I tried every medicine I could think of until an old gentleman told me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Before they had better, and after two bottles they were about well. It loosened the cough and relieved them of that hard, distressing and strangling feeling that goes with it."

"Dr. Wood's" is 35c and 60c a bottle. Put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.—Adv.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Weyth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you have used your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.—Adv.

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief For Acid Indigestion.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, sourness, stomach-ache and inability to retain food are in probability due cases of ten, simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach, which is full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of Bismarck Magnesia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating or whenever gas, sourness or acidity is felt. This sweetens the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy to use.

An antacid, such as Bismarck Magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet form, enables the stomach to do its work properly without the acid. Magnesia comes in several forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bismarck Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purpose.—Adv.

KEEPS BOY'S HAIR COMBED

Mother! Boy's Hair Stays Combed, Well-Groomed

Few Cents Buys Jar any Druggist Not Sticky, Greasy or Smelly

"Hair-Groom keeps any boy's unruly or stubborn hair combed, either pompadour, straight-back or parted. As the boy's hair is combed in the morning, so it stays all day. If applied after a shampoo, the hair can be combed as neatly and as easily as before. "Cow-licks" stay down. Greaseless—Does not stain pillow! Hair-Groom is a dignified combing cream which is quickly absorbed, therefore does not show on the hair. It leaves the hair glossy and lustrous, but not sticky. Fine for hair!"

Nothing else gives a boy or man more dignity than neatly-combed, well-groomed hair. Millions of women buy "Hair-Groom" for their boys—also for their husbands.—Adv.

TAKES AUDIENCE TRIP THROUGH PYRENEES

Professor Meras Delivers Instructive Address At the Public Library.

NATIVES FRIENDLY

Lecturer Depicts Life and Habits of Once Powerful Basque Race.

E. A. Meras, professor of romance languages at Western University, delivered at the public library Thursday night one of the most interesting of the several extension lectures given by the staff of the university this year.

His subject was "A Trip Through the Pyrenees" and in a manner which bespoke his wide knowledge of that area and its peoples he took his listeners on an imaginary but realistic trip through that romantic and picturesque region of blue, sparkling lakes, aeon-old, snow-capped mountains and verdant valleys that forms the boundary line between France and Spain.

Ancient Fortified City. Mr. Meras first treated of the ancient fortified city of Carcasson, built long before the beginning of Christianity and still in a marvellous state of preservation.

"Carcasson," he said, "is one of the oldest and finest examples of military architecture in the world. It is a city entirely surrounded by walls, the inner one having been built about 100 years before the time of Christ. It was conquered and controlled in turn by the Romans, Phoenicians, Visigoths, Saracens, and finally by Simon de Montfort, the latter turning it over to the French king.

"In 1793 the patriots of France, in the throes of their revolution, seized Carcasson and destroyed all its archives. This city is inclosed by two walls. The narrowest part of these is one yard and the broadest part 12 feet." Mr. Meras amplified his lecture by a series of lantern slides depicting the different scenes of which he spoke, and one of the most interesting of these was the picture of the Cathedral of Carcasson, the architecture of which structure is of two distinct styles. One part of the church is of the early Roman period, and in its simplicity conforms with the style of the walls and battlements of the city, while the other section is distinctly different in type, having been erected in the 12th century and being of the more elaborate Renaissance construction.

To Build Shrine. The speaker then took his audience to the miracle shrine of Lourdes, where the Blessed Virgin appeared to St. Bernadette and commanded her to go forth and urge the hierarchy of France to build a shrine at that point.

The lantern slides showed the thousands of pilgrims who now journey to the shrine every year, the beautiful cathedral, and the processions of devotion which are conducted at Lourdes.

"As many as 10,000 people come to the City of Lourdes at one time," he stated. "Some merely go there as an act of devotion, but the majority are those in poor health or deformed, and who seek to be cured in the miracle-working wells. I saw many a child who had been suffering from tuberculosis of the face, and who was completely cured of this ailment after praying at the shrine of Lourdes every year."

"The most noticeable characteristic of the pilgrims who come to the shrine is their marked religious zeal and devotion to the shrine every year. Prof. Meras treated at length of the lakes and waterfalls of the Pyrenees country, and the native Basques who live in that region. "The Basques were at one time a very powerful nation," he said, "and inhabited the entire Iberian Peninsula. After the conquering Romans and Phoenicians passed through their territory, however, they retired to the mountains, where they now live."

"They are one of the hardest and most sturdy classes of people in the world, and their spirit of hospitality is most marked. Even if you are a stranger in their cities they will stop in the midst of their work to wave at you as you pass, and in many other ways they make visitors feel entirely at home."

"Although they live on the border between France and Spain, their language does not resemble that of either of these countries, and it has no similarity to Latin, all of which go to show that the Basque tongue antedates all three of these."

The next extension lecture will be delivered in the Public Library next Thursday, and his subject will be "A Visit to Pompeii."

ORACLE CLUB STAGES POLITICAL ELECTION

Liberal Candidate Supports Lower Tariff and Unlimited Immigration.

"REDS" INTERRUPT

Soviet Delegates Demand Repeal of O. T. A. and Free Chewing Tobacco.

Thirty members of the Oracle Club held what was probably the stormiest political meeting in the history of this riding, when Gordon Hobart and Douglas Hunt, Liberal and Conservative candidates, respectively, addressed the electorate at the county council chambers last night.

Major Kippen, introducing the Liberal standard-bearer, outlined his party's platform. A lower tariff, unrestricted immigration, the establishment of a grain board, and a civil service commission were discussed. Hamilton Bingle, who sponsored the Conservative contestant, denied that any plank in his adversary's platform was worthy of conscientious support.

Levelled Anathema. Both candidates covered the problems facing the country in creditable fashion. The red element, represented by Gordon Underwood and Isaac Hodgins, levelled a perpetual fire of anathema at both speakers, but were hooted down when they attempted to outline the platform of the Bolshevik party. Mr. Hodgins advanced into verbal fray regardless of a bedlam of noise, and at a tense moment undraped a flaming red flag, while his comrades sang the Russian Soviet national anthem.

Comrade Hodgins heckled the party speakers consistently, and made frequent demands that Liberal and Conservative platforms include recognition of the Soviet government. Hodgins advanced free soup kitchens, preferably consume, three hours a day working time, and annexation to the United States. He favored cancellation of the anti-Bolshevik vote, changed his tactics and free beer for working men. Veiled charges of graft and corruption were hurled at the head of the government in connection with alleged failure to lower the tariff on oysters and frogs' legs.

Other charges included denunciation of both parties for allowing the capitalist press to exist in this presumably free country. Mr. Hodgins said he had been to Russia, and was adversely impressed with the democracy of that land. He thought too much attention had been given to farmers at the expense of laboring men.

Gordon Tennent in his speech addressed his remarks to the independent red element, and advocated the incorporation in a specially endowed hospital for incurable fanatics, later, however, observing that the result of the election depended largely on the sincerity of his sincerity, and admitted the recommendations of the Soviet delegates, such as those relating to the repeal of the O. T. A. and free chewing tobacco, had many points of merit.

Offset Impression. Mr. Stone offset what favorable impression Mr. Tennent's speech may have had on the red members by offering, on behalf of his party, every advantage for Bolshevism. It was humanly possible to give. He succeeded in convincing Mr. Hodgins and his supporters of the sincerity of the latter voted for the candidature of Mr. Hunt. The election resulted in a tie.

Before the mock election the club decided to hold their meetings once a week, as they did last year, instead of semi-weekly.

THOMAS

240 DUNDAS STREET.

LONDON, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, MARCH 9, 1923.

LONDON MAN WITH HARDY PIONEERS IN RUSH TO QUEBEC GOLD FIELDS

Thomas B. Dunkin, Just Returned From Rouyn Township, Northern Quebec, Believes That District Will Become a Second Porcupine and Help to Make Canada World's Richest Gold Area—He Went In Last Fall and Has Secured Valuable Claims.

PRESENT RUSH TO ROUYN WILL RIVAL EARLY DAYS IN COBALT

Gold and Ontario are not often associated in the minds of Londoners.

But—
Ontario has the largest gold mine in the world, the Hollinger. Nearly nine-tenths of Ontario's area consists of gold-bearing formations.

Ontario is likely to become within the next twenty years, the richest, or one of the richest gold fields of the whole world.

And London has its own interest in this development. Thomas B. Dunkin is a Londoner, who has interested himself for the last twenty years in Ontario's quest for hidden gold. He took part in the Porcupine rush and has known the gold country of the north in every phase of its triumph and disaster.

Mr. Dunkin is home in London now from fresh adventures. Across the Quebec border, in Rouyn Township, gold has been found, and mining men the world over are looking to a great rush in the spring. Mr. Dunkin has just returned from a visit to this new discovery, at present frozen in the grip of winter, and to The Advertiser yesterday recounted his impressions.

Frantic Rush.
Gold finds in Rouyn already have precipitated a frantic rush to the scene of the discoveries. Prospectors, lured to the north country by visions of precious mineral veins, have staked innumerable claims, and others are buying properties through the adjoining country.

"A second Porcupine," is the way Mr. Dunkin describes it.

In Toronto, Montreal and New York the word "gold" is on the lips of thousands. When word of a rich strike reached Ontario, miners sped to the scene of the discoveries in throngs, and among them were Mr. Dunkin and his partner, Robert Cockeran of Toronto.

Rouyn is hailed as the greatest gold find since Porcupine. Evidence of gold is everywhere, but not until early summer is positive corroboration possible. Prospectors, however, are extremely hopeful as to what shall be found when frost leaves the ground and estimates can be made.

The discovery was made by Tommy Powell, a miner. It is said that Powell optioned his claim for $150,000 to Chaboud and Thompson of New York, who disposed of the property for almost a million dollars.

The Cockeran-Dunkin properties are being offered for a quarter of a million, and Mr. Dunkin expects the deal will go through within the month. The townships of Boischatel, Joanne, Daseat, Duprat and Dufresnoy hold out prospects of huge gold yields, almost as great as Rouyn. But Rouyn is the "white hope" of the Quebec prospector. It is in Rouyn that he has staked his claim, and his bid for wealth.

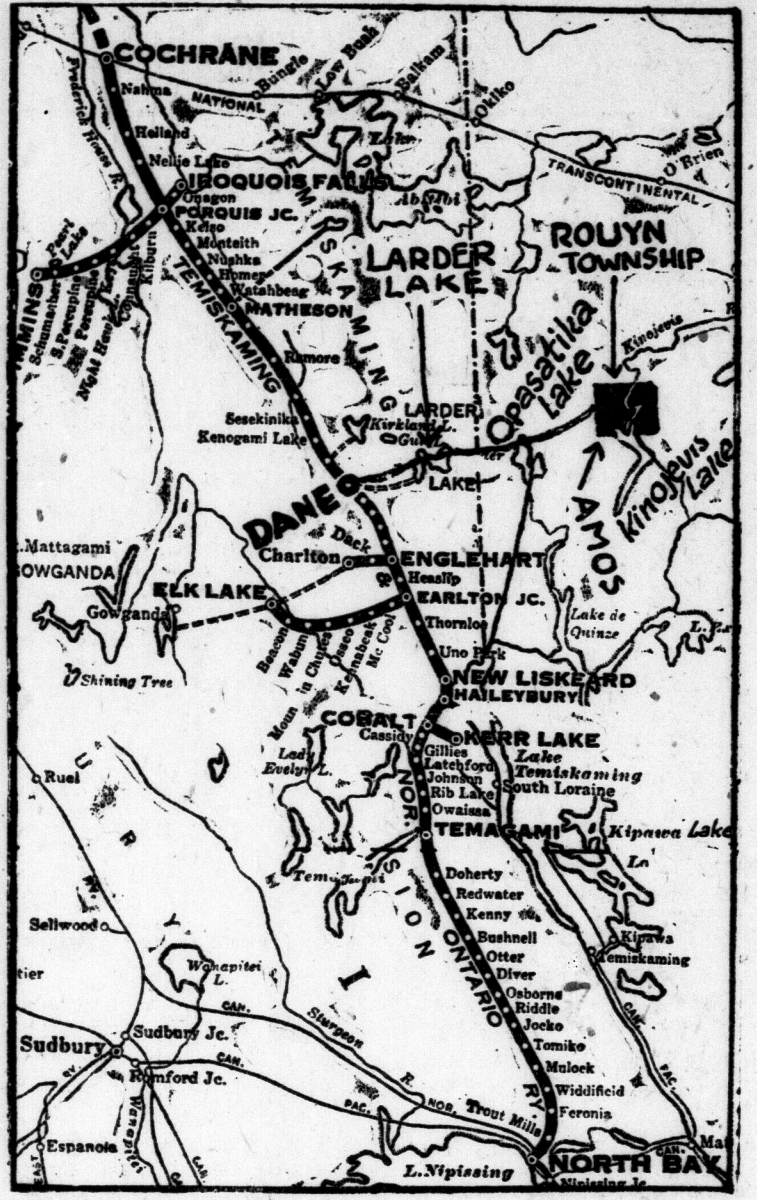

Mr. Dunkin caught the gold fever back in 1904, when discoveries in Cobalt startled the continent. George Taylor, former mayor of London, became president of the Hudson Bay silver mine, and Mr. Dunkin invested a small amount at 10 cents a share. Within a few years a single dollar originally invested brought $285 to its lucky owner.

In 1908 Mr. Dunkin prospected in Elk Lake and Gowanda. He expects shutes of ore in Rouyn to produce as high as $70 a ton in many instances. Basaltic and porphyry formations in that vicinity extend 100 miles east in Quebec and the possibilities of finding new camps are numerous.

"The rush to Rouyn reminds me of the wild scramble for claims in Porcupine during the fall of 1909," Mr. Dunkin said. "Since that time Northern Ontario has become the second greatest gold producing country in the world. People of Western Ontario have been given up millions in mineral development before sufficient power is made in Labrador to warrant diamond drilling.

Went In Last Fall.
Last fall a few prospectors preceded the hundreds that were to come. Many of us left our interests in Ontario to stake claims across the border line. Cold winter days made our work difficult but all were intent on corraling the best properties before the territory became invaded by Americans from big financial centres of the United States.

In Rouyn today are men from every part of the globe—cultured, educated men, who have been led

ROUYN TOWNSHIP, QUEBEC'S NEW GOLD FIELD.

The above map shows the location of the new Quebec gold field. The heavy lines show the three winter routes by which mining men may get into the new camp. One is south from the Transcontinental Railway, another north from North Temiskaming, by way of Lake Opasatika.

from Africa to California and from California to Quebec, by the gold fever. We built our little shanties among the French-Canadian inhabitants, staked our claims and looked expectantly to the break-up of winter and the warm breezes of spring. As soon as snow disappears a buzz of work is heard and the gold zone and excitement will run high as each property examination reveals the wisdom or lack of wisdom of our pioneering efforts.

Land of Rugged Beauty.

"Thickly wooded and rambling is the country of Southern Quebec. Nature has endowed the gold territory with lavish hand. It is a land of rugged yet ethereal beauty, artistic in its wildness.

Mosquitoes and forest fires are the bane of the French habitant living in and around the Township of Rouyn. In other respects it equals the beauty and charm of any country

REBELS WOUND OFFICER

Associated Press Despatch.
Cork, March 9.—When Commandant Scott of the Free State troops called last evening at the residence in Cork of Mrs. Powell, a sister of Michael Collins, whom he had come to visit, the door was opened by men who, observing Scott's uniform, promptly opened fire on him.

The officer was seriously wounded. It happened that the house had been occupied by a party of incendiaries, who were busily engaged in saturating the furniture with gasoline, preparatory to burning it. One man was arrested, the others escaped.

Ruhr Magnates Urge Government to Render Bill to Invaders.

GATHER STATISTICS

Damages Inflicted on Property, Life and Health To Be Considered.

By GEORGE WITTE.
Special Cable to The London Advertiser and Chicago Daily News, Copyright.

Berlin, March 9.—Germany will present France with a reparations bill for her own for damages done by French troops in the Ruhr district while trying to collect reparations from Germany. For weeks past the Ruhr industrial magnates have been urging the government to compile authentic figures and documents showing the damages inflicted by the invaders on "government, state and other public properties and on the life, health and property of German subjects in the Ruhr basin."

The industrialists have impressed upon the government the necessity of gathering statistics along this line now, "so that in due course of time reparations for these damages can be demanded from the French and Belgians."

It is understood that the government has promised to take the necessary steps to comply with the request.

SEND OUT CHILDREN.

Associated Press Despatch.
Bochum, March 9.—The task undertaken by the Germans of sending several thousand children from the troubled zone has been begun. Five hundred youngsters from 3 to 7 years, were sent from here by train yesterday. The Germans announce they were sent to Bremen, where private families will be cared for until the troubles blow over.

NOT SIGN OF NEUTRALITY.

Associated Press Despatch.
Berlin, March 9.—Premier Poincaré is declared by the Social Democratic News Agency to have notified the Danish Government that France can hardly regard the admission of German children to Denmark for recuperation as a sign of neutrality.

This statement is made public in connection with a report that the Danish Socialists had decided to care for 10,000 children from the Ruhr in Denmark for three months, instead of 1,000, as originally planned.

POSTPONE CASE TO AID BOAT RACE AT OXFORD

Noted Oarsman, Being Sued in Court, Allowed to Continue Training.

Canadian Press Despatch.
London, March 9.—A sporting element was introduced in a court proceeding over by Judge Harrington yesterday, when the fate of the Oxford crew that will row in the annual boat race against Cambridge University on March 24 seemed to be in the balance.

Guy Nickalls, the noted oarsman, president of the Oxford University Boat Club, and himself a member of the Oxford crew which is preparing for the coming boat race, is being sued in the courts, and the time set for the trial of the case would interfere with his training for the big event.

An application was made to Judge Harrington, on the ground that Nickalls was in strict training for the boat race, and an enforced break of one day in his training to attend court would be a serious interruption thereof.

The judge expressed his agreement with the application on Nickalls' behalf, and he said he supposed the other party was probably a sporting gentleman, who would not object to a postponement.

The other party, however, did object, as the case had been hanging over since December last, but his objection did not carry with the judge.

DECLARES PARIS GIRL'S FIGURE FINER THAN VENUS DE MILO'S

Georgette Carrier Wins Beauty Contest—Works as an Artist's Model To Support Widowed Mother—Declared New Triumph for the "Flapper."

Special Cable to The Advertiser.

Paris, March 9.—In a tidy little maison Meuble, over the River Garonne in the heart of the Latin quarter that has crowned her queen, stately-geared Georgette Carrier, winner of the greatest and most exact beauty contest of the year, today declared the measurements Paris artists declare surpass those of Venus De Milo as ideal.

Georgette, sole support of a family of four brings her earnings as artist's model hovered about the proudest prattled unconcernedly in a corner. Georgette, whose figure was officially declared most nearly perfect of all the models of Paris, is a slim, 5 feet 12.5 inches; bust 32.7 inches; waist, 26.3 inches; hips, 36.2 inches; thigh, 21.3 inches; calf, 12.8 inches.

Leading artists of Paris declare Georgette Carrier has the figure of the modern American girl. Slim, firmly rounded, small lipped, with a Diana-like grace that is vigorous rather than voluptuous. Where artists of the left bank once sought the Venus type of model, slender Georgette now sets the standard. Her triumph is admitted by critics a triumph for the "flapper." But an odd type of flapper is the Georgette of private life. When she strolled bare but unabashed from the judge's stand at the famous Julian Ball, acclaimed "queen of beauty" by the revellers and experts alike, modest Georgette did not join the buxom dances that ushered in the dawn, she slipped away, though every swain of the party sought her for a dance, and hurried to the little home, where a young brother was slightly ill.

Candidly, she confessed she liked to be nude better than dressed. She has been an artist's model since the age of 8, eleven years ago. Her frock was of simplest cut, fingers, throat, and golden hair free of ornaments. "I love to pose for pictures in oil," she said, adding as an afterthought, "I like the smell of the paint."

Georgette believes that she preferred posing for sculptors. "The result is more than a flat painting," she explained.

"Dancing," she said, "is fine fun, and keeps me slim."

"Go in the movies?"

"Mais, oui, each Saturday night I take the little brother and we sit in the fifty centimes seats."

London, England, March 9.—The Duke of York, Lady Elizabeth and the Queen were shopping in the west end yesterday. Seven bridesmaids have been chosen for the wedding, being Princess Maud, Lady May, Cambridge, Lady Mary Cambridge, Katherine Hamilton, Hon. Diamond Harding, Hon. Cecil Lyon, and Hon. Elizabeth Elphinstone, the last two being nieces of the bride.

After the marriage, the duke will be made knight of the Thistle, and at the wedding the King, Prince of Wales and the bridegroom will wear the green ribbon of the Thistle as a compliment to the Scottish bride.

WILL PRESENT ADDRESS TO DUKE OF YORK'S BRIDE

Associated Press Despatch.
London, March 9.—Fortifort, seat of the estates of the Earl of Strathmore, father of Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, will present the lady with an illuminated address on the occasion of her marriage to the Duke of York. The decision to send the prospective bride this gift, rather than an expensive present, was made at a meeting of the people of the province at which a letter from Lord Strathmore was read, urging that, because of the hard times, a large sum should not be spent for a present.

Thousands of presents have already been received by the duke and his bride, but many of them have been returned, as it is the custom of the royal family not to accept a gift from anyone not personally known.

FRENCH TO BE LOSER

Commercial and Financial Interests of France Are Large in Turkey.

By CONSTANTINE BROWN.
Special Cable to The London Advertiser and Chicago Daily News, Copyright.

Constantinople, March 9.—Though the official press communiqué, issued by the Nationalist Government is couched in the typical Oriental manner, leaving room for much speculation as to what the Turks may do, the correspondent understands from a well-informed source that the official note, which will be handed to the Allied high commissioners Saturday afternoon, is couched in the most conciliatory tone and contains counter-proposals.

The Nationalist Government does not refuse to accept the treaty, but asks the Allies to revise and modify many of the clauses of the Lausanne draft. They explain at length that while the solution of the straits and territory controversies, accepted by Ismet Pasha at Lausanne, is also accepted without modification by the Nationalist Assembly, it is necessary for Turkey to demand that the Allies revise the Lausanne proposals with regard to the judicial and financial clauses.

Furthermore, the Turks add that it is a matter of justice that the Greeks should be made to pay for the reconstruction of the towns and villages wantonly destroyed by their retreating army.

With regard to Mosul, the Turks agree to leave the question to be settled after the signature of the peace agreements prior to the negotiations. The government fixes the period of settlement at not later than a year after peace is concluded.

quarters in Constantinople are optimistic as to the prospects of peace. It is pointed out that the Allied argument has not only not slammed the door on further negotiations, but has expressed a willingness to send Ismet Pasha to meet the Allied delegates again, as soon as the Turkish counter-proposals form a satisfactory basis for new parleys.

Victory for Moderation.

In allied circles the Turkish reply is considered a victory for the moderate elements, led by Mustafa Kemal Pasha, over the extremists, and also a considerable victory for British over French diplomacy. British commercial and financial interests in Turkey are small, compared with those of the French.

The number of British small traders, who need the protection of the capitulations is insignificant, as compared with the number of French traders of that class. British interests in Turkey are mainly political, while those of the French are almost exclusively economical and financial.

Great Britain's losses will be compensated by the fact that she will be able to obtain for a more or less definite period, control of Mosul and Gallipoli. Furthermore, Great Britain looks forward to getting compensation for trade losses through the important concessions she is trying to obtain in Turkey, in spite of American competition. Men are already at work preparing the ground for a consolidation of the concessions obtained by British firms before and after 1914.

LABOR MAKES NO ATTACK ON SECRETARY PHILIP

No attack is being made upon Gordon Philip, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, by the Trades and Labor Council.

In a brief statement to The Advertiser today, John McGuire, president of the latter organization, made this position quite clear.

"It must not be understood that we are attempting to criticize Gordon Philip or any other individual," the president said. "We have expressed the opinion, however, that if the city is spending any sum, even $2,500, it should have a better way to spend this money than is spent."

As nearly as can be ascertained by The Advertiser, it was the desire of the city council for other years that the $1,500 should be the fixed sum granted, while one-half the printing and traveling expenses would also be taken care of. As it happens, the latter item totals $1,000, making the entire appropriation $2,500.

Rev. Dr. A. J. Vining to Tell Story of Armenians at Sunday Mass Meeting.

ALLIES OF ENTENTE

Canada Asked to Help 250,000 Armenian Orphans—Place Some on Ontario Farms.

A true story of thrills, unparalleled by romance, is the one which Rev. Dr. A. J. Vining of Toronto, formerly of London, will tell at 8:30 o'clock Sunday evening in the First Methodist Church, when he addresses a mass meeting of citizens, under the auspices of the London Ministerial Alliance. Dr. Vining arrived in the city late last night.

As secretary of the Armenian Relief Fund of Canada he will relate to date the news of that tragic race, ally of Britain and the entente in the Great War, which for centuries has survived, despite inhuman, unrelenting persecution from surrounding hostile peoples, and, in particular, the unspeakable Turks.

Canada is being asked at present to extend a helping hand to 250,000 Armenian orphans, many of whom saw their parents down to death. Permission has been received from the Dominion Government to bring a limited number of healthy orphans to Canada. A farm of 135 acres has been purchased, near Georgetown, Ontario, and the committee will bring out to it in May the first party of fifty little Armenian boys. A second party will be brought in September, if friends of Armenia will supply the needed funds. The boys will be trained under the supervision of a government instructor as agriculturists.

Inhuman Order.

After the slaughter of the parents by the Turkish officials, some of the less blood-thirsty Turkish officials and officers tried to save the children by gathering them together and feeding them. Talat Bey, whose determination to destroy all Armenians living in Turkey, was responsible for the terrible massacre, issued this order: "Collect the children of the Armenians, who, by order of the war office, have been gathered together and cared for by the military authorities. Take them away on the pretext they are to be looked after by the deportations committee, and send them to a remote place. Destroy them, and report to me the number of those who have been destroyed."

Children, it is said, wept themselves to death in those terrible days. They were not all destroyed, hence the humanitarian and Christian order to save the remnant of a valiant nation.

"I have figures before me," said Dr. Vining to the press today, "to show that the sacrifices of the Armenians in the cause of freedom in the Great War were as great, in proportion to their population, as any of the allies. As a matter of fact, General Allenby owes his success in Mesopotamia in no small measure to the heroic qualities of the Armenians on the Caucasian front."

In London For Years.

Apart from the subject which he is to present, very keen local interest centers in the visit of Dr. Vining. For some years he was the minister of Talbot Street Baptist Church, and attracted wide attention by his vigorous exhortations and eloquence as a preacher. He enjoyed also the friendship and admiration of people of all creeds and denominations, and the president, Rev. J. H. Versey, and members of the London Ministerial Alliance are anticipating a capacity audience to greet him Sunday evening.

After leaving Talbot Street Church in 1910, Dr. Vining was appointed the American representative of the Baptist World Alliance. He traveled Europe for some time, studying conditions before conducting a Canadian and American campaign for a Baptist University in Russia. Plans were interrupted by the war.

On his return, he accepted the post of financial secretary of the Indiana campaign in the Baptist Forward Movement. He returned to Canada to take over the work of the Armenian Relief Fund. The Armenian Relief Fund Committee of Canada has as its patron His Excellency the Governor-General of Canada, and included in the list of vice patrons are Most Rev. Neil McNeil, Archbishop of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Toronto, Ven. Archbishop Cody, D.D., L.L.D., Hon. Sir William Pellatt, K.C.M.G., Col. Sir Henry Pellatt, C.V.O., D.C.L., John G. Kent, manager of the Canadian National Exhibition, is the chairman.

Rev. J. H. Versey, as president of the Ministerial Alliance, will be chairman Sunday evening.

NURSES IN CITY SCHOOLS ADOPT NEW FILING SYSTEM

Public school nurses in this city are being instructed and trained in the use of a new filing system, which is expected to add greatly to the efficiency of the work in that department. The instructor is Miss W. Loughy, a member of the Department of Education School Nursing staff, who is spending two weeks in this city.

Through the system being introduced it is hoped to attain greater continuity in health work among children. It will enable the nurses to map out much more effective program in their efforts to prevent disease.

The system will also cover thoroughly health teaching, classroom talks in hygiene, visiting of homes, and the follow-up work in every case.

Great Granites: Landis Bears Benton: Elks Put Hussars Out

Soo Nicks Granites for One Goal Margin First Tilt

Granites Played Below Form, Say Toronto Writers—Walsh, Northern Goalie, Saves Team in Second Period When Curlers Unloose Attack.

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, March 8.—The Soo Greyhounds secured a one goal lead in the first of the series with the Granites in the first round of the Allan Cup elimination series here tonight, winning by 3 goals to 2. The winners obtained their goals in the first twenty minutes of the game, and led by 3 to 0 at one stage, only to have the locals cut down the margin by two goals in the remainder of the second period, while no scoring resulted in the final twenty minutes.

The Granites appeared to be below their regular form, and the loose defence work assisted the winners in scoring their three goals, but they deserve all credit for taking advantage of their opportunities. The losers had the best of the play by a good margin in the second period, while in the closing session both teams turned in hemming their opponents in for a while. The best combination effects of the game came in the final frame, the Soo, especially, showing some snappy passing.

On the whole the checking was close, and this made team play the exception rather than the rule. The defence players did a great amount of rushing, while the forwards did a lot of back-checking. Walsh in goal for the winners was the star of the game, and in the second period he saved his team from being overwhelmed. Brown, Woodruff were the best for the winners, while McCaffrey, Ramsay, Smith and Aumo were the Granites' best.

First Period.

When the game started the Granites were favored to win by two or three goals, but during the first ten minutes Cameron was beaten twice, the first time when play had been under way for less than a minute, and the second time when play had been under way for less than a minute. Phillips was allowed to follow in after he shot from outside the defence and he netted his first goal. The best combination effect of the game came in the second period when Woodruff scored on a right-side shot from outside the defence as he crossed after the defence and he scored on a right-side shot from outside the defence.

Second Period.

Although both teams made desperate attempts to score in the final frame, the end came with the score three goals to two in favor of the winners. Short, snappy passing was indulged in by the Soo players, but their efforts were frustrated by the Granites. A splendid game for the Granites, and Walsh was not tested so frequently as in the first period, the local sharpshooters gave him plenty of work to do, and he was called upon to make a number of saves.

Third Period.

Down the Line In All Sports

The Soo-Granite game last night went a step further in proving that the Stratford Indians are only a notch below top senior form.

Those who are out for the interests of junior soccer have a good opportunity to put the junior dribbling code game on a stable basis in the hint that the Garrison A. A. have a plan for consideration a summer program. The junior game has not done too badly, but it would seem better and grow into a strong healthy club more quickly if it were run under the auspices of the Garrison A. A. Three or four of the teams are military teams now, and the switch for some of the clubs would be an easy matter. There are two clubs in St. Thomas, but one military unit, which is one obstacle that crops up immediately, but there aren't many fences to be jumped as far as the situation in London goes.

ELKS CHURCH CHAMPS PUT HUSSARS TO ROUT

Church Leaguers Surprise Talent With 3-2 Win in City Semi-Final.

Asklin Elks, Church League champions, sent the Hussars, aspirants to the city title, home nursing a 3-2 defeat last night in a battle that was a distinct surprise to most of the footers that "turned out." The Elks' hands' made besides one goal to the good to base their claim upon, except that they did show better headwork around their enemy's net, and it was that sureness that won the game for the Elks.

The Hussars came back with a vengeance, and gave Smith, the Elks' goalie, a hot one to think about, and he moved to the left for two of them. BUOYANCY LESSONED AT NEW YORK MARKET

Cautious Sentiment Prevails and Speculative Pools Not Readily Followed.

By STUART P. WEST.

Special to The Advertiser.

Wall Street, New York, March 9.—In today's stock market the selling movement of the previous day was not resumed, but there was not the same buoyancy that had characterized operations in the early part of the week.

Sentiment was more cautious and speculative pools no longer got the same ready following. Still these pools operated in the market in a number of individual stocks.

Sugar stocks were active in hand again, especially United Sugar, although situation to account for this.

The incentive was found in previous operations in highly favorable estimates regarding the earnings of raw sugar producers, and the expectation of the year is out.

Transcontinental Oil was actively bid, and the new combination of oil concerns had been formed, in which the proper title of the Transcontinental was included, and the jump in the market Street Railway issues had as its motive the fact that the city of San Francisco for the purchase of all the company would save the city a million dollars as the probable compromise figure between what the city is bidding and what the company is willing to take is $400,000.

This would be sufficient to pay off all the preferred stock, and the second round selling below 40, at par. Besides this would leave a balance for the common very much above the present selling price.

The Pan American were held up against the fact that the company had announced a new dividend of $1.00 per share on the common in 1922, and this after a heavy deficit in 1921.

Wall Street Features.

Atlantic Gulf.—It was stated recently that the income of the Atlantic Gulf and West Indies was sufficient last year to cover interest requirements, with some surplus over and above the interest.

The annual report will be out next month, and it is stated that earnings for the current year will double those of 1922, which means that income will be available for the preferred stock.

Atlantic Gulf's stock is operating fully, and at a substantial profit.

MacK Trucks.—MacK Trucks had another of its characteristic advances, which this time carried the stock to a new high for the year.

Here essentially one of large earnings, as has been repeatedly pointed out. Lately it was reported that the company had booked business for the year. Income for the first six months of 1923 will be at a high level, and for the entire twelve months income, according to estimates, will be at a high level.

Sending Pictures 120 Miles Through the Air By Man's Latest Servant—Radio

Tiny Star Told Watching Scientists of Most Recent Conquest of the Air

Brighter and Brighter It Gleamed, Heralding Another Step in the Progress of Radio-Photography—Invention's Limitless Possibilities.

Last Saturday a new miracle was achieved. Three photographs were flashed through the wireless air from Washington to Philadelphia, a distance of 120 miles, by means of radio.

This achievement opens the door to a whole host of new and fascinating possibilities. The successful test was directed by The Advertiser and fellow-members of the North American Newspaper Alliance co-operating with the naval radio station at Washington, D. C.

The pictures above tell the story. The upper picture on the left is the radio transmitting set at Washington. Below this is the receiving apparatus in the radio department of the Philadelphia Bulletin. The portraits on the right are those flashed through the air. The upper row shows from left to right the original pictures of President Harding, Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania and Vice-President Coolidge, as placed in the sending apparatus at Washington. The middle row, from left to right, shows the same pictures as they were received by radio on sensitive plates in Philadelphia. The bottom row shows the received pictures after retouching. The picture of President Harding demonstrates the danger of the retouching process, as the presidential nose has undergone a transformation. All the portraits were, however, clearly recognizable as they appeared on the plate in Philadelphia.

Special to The Advertiser. Philadelphia, March 8.—The pictures, "taken from the air," were imperfect, but were sufficiently clear and recognizable to astonish the group of prominent publishers and scientists to witness the demonstration. The inventor of the process was present and directed the experiment. He is C. Francis Jenkins of Washington, who in 1898 received world-wide recognition for the invention of the first motion picture machine, for which accomplishment he was awarded the much-sought Elliott Cresson Medal upon recommendation of the Franklin Institute.

How It Was Done. All of the principles of radio are preserved in the transmission of pictures. An 1150-metre wave length was used by the Washington station Saturday in the demonstration. The receiving apparatus consisted of a detector and amplifying unit of the type familiar to many amateurs. Summed up, the principle of transmission is transfer of light impulses into electrical impulses and thence into radio impulses.

This is done through a prismatic plate, a new, optical shape in glass, invented especially by Mr. Jenkins, which gives to a ray of light or a picture beam passing through it a fixed axis on one side of the rotating plate and an oscillating or hinged action on the opposite side of the plate. The simplicity of the operation was the most interesting feature of the historic occasion, in the minds of those assembled to watch it. The receiving apparatus, contained in two large suitcases and a trunk, had been installed on the tenth story of the Bulletin Building. It appeared like a big camera; in fact, it was a camera divided in two parts, with the lens in Washington, and the photographic plates in Philadelphia.

On one of the box-like mechanisms was a device made chiefly from an ordinary automobile headlight bulb. Something analogous to a periscope was constructed on this, a vibrating mirror whose purpose was to reflect the photographic rays of light. Next a card was fitted over the lens in which a hole had been drilled about as wide as a pencil. A black hair was pasted lengthwise down the card. Two important factors were that the hair had to be

Caught His Idea While Up In Air

Mr. Jenkins, inventor of the new radio wonder, is a typical inventor and he had an inventor's hard luck. He got the idea about how to send pictures by radio years ago but he couldn't work it out. It was not until last year, while flying in his hydroplane high above Washington, that the final perplexing problem in his invention became clear to him. The difficulty was the adjustment of the prismatic plates on his sending machine and the solution came "like an inspiration out of the clouds."

Mr. Jenkins claims that by the use of his new invention the day is not far distant when moving pictures can be sent in the same way as the present photographs. Imagine sitting at home, as one does now, listening to the radio and seeing the latest five-reel thriller projected on your own private screen.

black, and that it had to just pass over the small opening. Heralded By A Star. The little party of absorbed spectators stood about the magical, yet simple-looking apparatus. The room remained light. Soon a little star was seen sparkling through the hole. It was 8 o'clock, and the navy men had started accomplishing the once impossible task of sending pictures through the ether.

A set of prismatic plates began to rotate. The "negative" was placed beyond them. Each of the party watched the star sparkle brighter and brighter. The sharpness of the light set the air quivering, and the quivering cast a shadow upon the opening. The prismatic plates kept the ray of light moving slowly. It passed down the negative and continued to do so again and again in parallel lines, a fraction of an inch apart. The portrait of President Harding was traced on the negative.

There was a moment of tense suspense when the picture was taken from the machine and shown to the assembled party, relieved by a feeling of exultation when it was seen that the test had not failed, and that the photograph—though imperfect—was really recognizable. The imperfections, according to Jenkins, the inventor, are due partly to the "static" in the air, and other atmospheric disturbances, and also to the fact that he has not yet been able to "trap out" entirely ordinary radio transfers, some of which—in the form of code dots and dashes—imprint themselves on the negative.

The inventor's career. Mr. Jenkins has had an adventurous career. He was born near Dayton, O., Aug. 22, 1868, went to Earlham College, a Quaker institution in Richmond, and at the age of 16 left home for the Oregon wheat fields. While there he became interested in the mowing and reaping machinery, and was soon an expert repairer or "trouble shooter." Later he became again applied his genius for mechanical invention to the mining machinery and oil well pumps, in addition to which he also worked as a surveyor and "punched" cattle for variety.

Mexico next attracted him, and while there he received a telegram from his father, notifying him of his appointment as a stenographer in the United States treasury department at Washington. He incidentally had picked up stenography while on his cross-country tours. He became private secretary to S. I. Kimball, chief of the life saving service, now called the coast guard service, but resigned in 1895 to take up research work, which led to his inventions.

three weeks' time to unravel all the "red tape" to get the court in actual operation. Citizens in general are pleased with the appointment of Rev. Quintin Warner as judge of the juvenile court.

"I think he is a fine man personally," declared Magistrate A. H. M. Graydon. "I understand he had experience with prisoners in Montreal when he was down there."

"He ought to fill the bill," remarked Dr. Alfred J. Grant, chairman of the boys' work committee of the Rotary Club. "I don't know where the site for the juvenile court will be," Dr. Grant added. "I suppose the councilors have that under their hat. I suppose it will be up to them. I understand a site on Carling street was obtained, but that there was some objection raised to it, because of its being too close to the police station."

Dr. Grant did not know whether the case of the two children arrested for stealing a doorman and locked up would be brought before the police commission. "I suppose that was the only thing that could have been done. What we were disturbed about was their being locked up and subjected to the same formalities as other prisoners. However, the juvenile court will do away with all that."

MUCH SLEEPING SICKNESS REPORTED IN NEW YORK

Special to The Advertiser. New York, March 8.—Thirty-two new cases of "sleeping sickness" have been reported in New York since Monday, the health department announced today. SNAPPY SPECIALS Friday-Saturday At THE BIG STORE

We all know the story of the man who stood on the Brooklyn bridge and tried to sell the $10 gold pieces for a dime. Nobody would buy them. It was too good to be true. Passers-by thought they were wise, but they did not know that the man was simply deciding a wager, and the $10 gold pieces could really be purchased for a dime. We sometimes wonder if we should not raise our prices.

CHURCH CHOIR OFFERS
DELIGHTFUL PROGRAMBrilliant Artists Assist at the Askin Street Annual Concert.

REFRESH AUDIENCE

Madame Fillion With Excellence of Numbers Enhances the Evening's Enjoyment.

By A. MINOR.

Short enough to send everyone home feeling refreshed and rested, and with an appetite for still more was the delightful program presented last evening at the sixteenth annual concert of Askin Street Methodist Church choir, under the direction of Dr. James H. Smith, organist and choir conductor.

Madame Fern Goltre Fillion, soprano; Ferdinand Fillion, violinist; and Miss Mary MacKinnon, accompanist, of Toronto, were the assisting artists on this occasion.

Dr. Smith was to be congratulated upon his choice of choral numbers, all within the realm of the very best taste, of wide appeal, but genuinely good music. These included Rachmaninoff's "Hymn of the Cherubim," a humming number, "Voix Celestes" (Alcock), of which a repetition was demanded; "Goin' Home," from the Largo of Dvorak's "New World Symphony," and "Jubilee in Jerusalem" (Clarence Lucas), founded on a negro jubilee song. In addition, the tuneful male chorus gave "The Trumpet-ter" (Dix-Salter).

The singing of the choir was characterized by buoyant, flexible and pleasing, unforced tone, good balance of parts, gratifying attention to attack and release and a nice appreciation of the content of the numbers.

Pre-eminently Artistic.

Madame Fillion is pre-eminently artistic. Most thorough training is revealed in her management of her voice, which she uses to the best possible advantage. The delicate and graceful numbers suit her best, and these were given prominence last evening.

Particularly charming and well adapted to her voice, especially sweet and true in the middle register, was "Chantons des amours de Jean," the second of the four Bergerettes of the eighteenth century, which constituted her French group.

A Mozart aria, "Che pur Aspro," introduced her to the audience, and in conclusion, she gave a group of three numbers, "Little Gray Dove"
(Bauer), "Little Mother of Mine"
(Burleigh), "Il Bacio" (Arditi), notable for the excellence of her enunciation, and enhanced by the violin obligato of her husband, Mons.
Fillion.

Technical Finish.

Ferdinand Fillion always played with technical and artistic finish, giving a sufficiently colorful reading of a Romance by Bruch. Fireworks were provided in the allegro of the prelude and allegro, "Paganini"
(Kreisler), and "La Chasse" (Cartier-Bresson). In addition, he gave a berceuse by Juon, a Serenade Espagnole (Chaminade-Kreisler), and the Hejre Kati (Hubay), so familiar in London, owing to its popularity with local violinists.

Miss Frances Cullis, contralto, added a most pleasing bit to the evening's entertainment, with her solo work in "Goin' Home."

INDIVIDUAL PHONES
FOR LARGER SCHOOLS

Party Lines Now Being Re-Moved From Three Buildings and Others to Follow.

Individual telephone lines are to be installed at once in Lorne avenue, Talbot street and St. George's schools to replace the party lines which have served inefficiently for some time past. Word was received by the secretary of the board of education that the Bell Telephone Company is prepared to undertake the work immediately.

The company intimated at the same time that they would be ready to install lines in Empress avenue school by April 1, and in Chesley avenue school about June 1. When this is done, all the largest schools prepare city will be equipped with individual service.

The change is being made by order of the board to increase the efficiency of the work in the larger schools.
The telephone also add a certain degree of protection to the pupils of the schools.

No reply has been received by Secretary Tanner from City Clerk S.
Baker to his communication recommending that efforts be made to secure a special rate on all telephones in civic use.

EVEN TOOK AIRSHIPS TO GET TO CONFERENCE

London Teacher Tells of Wide Spread Interest in Auxiliary Class Work.

MET IN CLEVELAND

International Council Would Standardize Training To Aid Exceptional Children.

"There were representatives present from Atlantic to Pacific, and some even came part way in aeroplane in order to get there," said Miss Florence McDowell of the auxiliary class, who was in Cleveland to the Advertiser yesterday afternoon, as she told of the enthusiastic interest manifested in the conference in Cleveland of the International Council for the Education of Exceptional Children, from which she has returned.

"The organization of classes to give a fair chance to children who for special reasons are not adapted for the regular school grades is going ahead by leaps and bounds in the States," continued Miss McDowell. "In Cleveland, the teaching staff of this city to the Advertiser yesterday afternoon, as she told of the enthusiastic interest manifested in the conference in Cleveland of the International Council for the Education of Exceptional Children, from which she has returned.

"The idea of the special classes for the exceptionally bright children over there is not to hurry along and enable them to skip a grade or two, but to enrich their course by the addition of subjects to the curriculum.

"The term 'exceptional' includes, as well as the unusually bright and the dull students, those who perhaps have physical handicap, such as deafness, eye trouble, tubercular tendency, crippled children, boys and girls who require outdoor treatment.

"Dr. S. B. Sinclair, organizer and inspector of classes for exceptional children in the Province of Ontario, was the speaker on the program who represented Canada.

Truly International.

"The International Council for Education of Exceptional Children was formed last summer at Columbia University, with Miss Elizabeth Farrell as president, and members in Canada, Great Britain, New Zealand, Australia and a very large number in the United States.

"Among the subjects for which the council is working are standardized training for teachers of classes for exceptional pupils, and equalized grants. The interchange of ideas is felt to be invaluable, and some time in the future it is hoped to effect exchange of teachers.

"Educational departments are to be approached in regard to inauguration of special training in the normal schools for the pupil teachers who are looking to the taking up of auxiliary class work."

Though small in numbers, the auxiliary class teachers of London, five in all, in the case of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Allen, who is visiting in Ottawa, is returning home next week.

Mothers and Their Children

A Rose-Garden Dress.

I have made Alice a little dress which she calls her "rose dress." The top was cut from the ordinary kimono slip pattern, and the skirt is straight length. The skirt is of white crepe and the waist is a lovely rose. The yoke and sleeves are single-crocheted in rose thread. The vest is of white crepe, a beading made of rose thread, lined with narrow black velvet ribbon. Little roses with green leaves were cut out and appliqued on the dress, to give the finishing touch to this flower-like dress for a little girl.

TAKE SALTS IF STOMACH ISN'T ACTING RIGHT

Says Indigestion Results From An Excess of Hydrochloric Acid.

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather ferments, the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that indigestion is caused by hyper-acidity, meaning there is an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach, which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach, much like garbage in a can, forming acid fluids and gases, which inflame the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy, misery in the chest; we belch up gas; we eructate sour food, or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to try a little of his digestive aids, and instead get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before bed, and drink a glass while eating, and you will be able to continue this for a week. The relief often follows the first dose. It is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-masses, start the liver, stimulate kidneys, and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salt is used for many stomach disorders with excellent results.—Adv.

Influence of King Tut Dominates Fashion Today

Paris Designers Object, But Money Talks—Stylish Stout Is the Despair of Makers of Frocks.

By AILEEN LAMONT.

(The following is the first of a series of weekly articles on the fashions, in which the writer, who is in close touch with manufacturers, merchants and designers both here and abroad, will outline for the readers of The London Advertiser, in an interesting and non-technical way, the outstanding styles of the day, and indicate the probable trend for the seasons to come.)

New York, March 8.—They have sealed King Tutankhamen's tomb, but not before the inspiration of ancient Egypt, and the fashion of the Egyptian influence will dominate the trend of dress, but none denies that it is paramount today.

The chief opponents of the mode are the French designers, who had their spring models already prepared before they realized the hold which the archaeological discoveries had on the fashion of the world.

However, the wealth of the world, America has always been a greater inspiration to the French designers, and pounds are to be had for Egyptian designs, Paris will design them. No matter how long the Tutankhamen vogue lasts, the skirts will be shorter. Elaborately draped treatments will be almost universal, both for street and formal costumes, with the backs must be very, very tight. The appearance of the latest street frocks depends on the point of view.

The many friends of Mrs. H. G. Collamors, Erie avenue, will regret to hear of the death of her mother, Mrs. George Couke of this city.

CLUB NEWS

HOLD HANKIE SHOWER.

A successful handkerchief shower was held in connection with the March meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of Knox Presbyterian Church, Kent Bridge, at the home of Mrs. Wilson, Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Thompson presided. Committees were formed for the annual bazaar in the fall, and plans were made for a quilting at the April meeting, at the home of Miss Smith, which will be featured with an apron shower, in aid of the bazaar. Tea was served at 5 o'clock.

ZETO CLUB HOLD BANQUET.

Wednesday evening the Zeto Club of Ridout Street Church held their most delightful event of the season in the form of a banquet, given in honor of Mr. A. D. Hone, their class teacher. The work was a credit to the promoting committee composed of B. Elliott, M. Taylor, A. Tapp, J. G. Moloney, and G. A. E. Wintersgill (social convener). Throughout the evening, Mr. Hone sent the members into convulsive laughter by his witty remarks and stories. A remarkable contest was staged between Mr. Hone and Burt Elliott for the "capacity" championship of the club; the latter won, however. Covers were laid for eighteen and the tables were delightfully decorated in red and yellow. Delightful music was rendered by Thomas W. Warner.

OFFER QUILTS.

The W. M. S. of Thamesford Presbyterian Church held their March meeting Wednesday afternoon, in the lecture room of the church with a fair attendance. Mrs. Eyre, second vice-president, presided, as Mrs. Gall, the president, is very ill. In response to the appeal for quilts for the September bazaar, three were offered and a quilting in the church parlors will be arranged at a later date.

Mrs. George McKay gave an interesting paper on the first chapter of the new study book, "The Building of the Nation," written by Dr. G. Smith. A valuation of $65 was put on the sale of clothing sent to Victoria Mines in February.

WOMAN'S MUSIC CLUB HOLDS STUDENTS' DAY

Interesting Program Presented by Talented Young People At Fortnightly Recital.

An interesting program covering a wide range was presented by a number of clever young students at the fortnightly concert of the Woman's Music Club Thursday afternoon at the Normal School. Many of these young people showed promises of bright futures in the artistic manner their numbers were presented.

Among the outstanding features was the group of songs given by Mr. Sydney Kingsmill, baritone, who possesses a smooth, clear voice. His numbers were "Scotch Love Song" (Vail) and "Wessex Love Song" (Sanderson), which he interpreted in an artistic manner.

Another student of much promise was little Miss Irene Sinclair, who played with musical appreciation "Bolero" by Ravel. This little lady possesses a round, clear tone, delicacy and grace.

A voice sweet and clear, with a sympathetic appeal, made Mrs. Macleine Schreiber's offering of "Arcadian Lullaby" (Krogmann) and "Hedley Roses" (Schubert) most enjoyable.

Master Edward Lance, violinist, was a popular young artist who played in a skillful manner "March" by Van Carse. His interpretation of this number was quite remarkable for a child of his years.

Other enjoyable numbers were a violin selection, "Sonata" (Mozart), Edward Walters; piano solo, "Prelude C. Sharp Minor" (Rachmaninoff), Miss Nellie Milligan, with Miss M. Raymond at the second piano.

The program was arranged by the conveners, Mrs. Eckert and Mrs. Roomie, and the accompanists were Mrs. Grant Harris, Mrs. H. Kingsmill, Mrs. Fenton and Mr. C. Percy.

AUXILIARY CLASSES ARE SENDING EXHIBIT

London Pupils' Work To Be Shown at National Educational Conference.

London auxiliary classes, of which there are now five in the city, through the Association of Auxiliary Teachers, have been invited to send an exhibit of work to the national conference to be held in Toronto in April, arranged by the National Council of Education of Canada.

The exhibit will be a most interesting one, for it will be a woven mat of silk rags, in process of making for the great occasion at the present time.

Among the eminent British educationists who will take part in the conference are Sir Henry Newbolt, who recently visited London, Sir Michael Sadler, Sir John Baden-Powell and Lady Baden-Powell.

WEDDINGS

DENNING-FOSTER.

A wedding of unusual interest to a great number of friends and relatives took place on Wednesday afternoon, February 28, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Foster, Kewwood, when their eldest daughter Kathleen was united in marriage to Mr. Earl Denning of Plate, Sask, and son of Mr. Denning of Plate, Sask.

Mrs. Elmer Langford, and son of Mr. Langford, the bride was with her father, Mr. Fred H. Coles, Colborne street, this city, in a pink Ophelia. Little Mary Foster, niece of the bride, looked very sweet in pink silk, and was the dainty drawing-room girl. The bride entered the drawing-room with her father who gave her away, and took her place beside the groom under a white and gold canopy. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Beatrice, and the ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. C. J. Moorhouse, and Miss Beatrice Foster, sang very sweetly.

"Until" at the signing of the register. Afterward all repaired to the dining-room, which was decorated in pink and white, and where a bountiful repast was enjoyed. The happy couple left on the evening train for Plate, the bride wearing a handsome coat of light brown, with large fur collar, and hat of silver braid. They are leaving for their new home in Plate, Sask, the last of this week.

Moore-Palmer.

Tuesday afternoon, the marriage took place quietly at the Baptist parsonage in Dufferin avenue, Chatham, when William Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Moore of this city, and Miss Daisy Palmer of Wallaceburg, Rev. J. T. Marshall officiated, and Mr. and Mrs. Moore, the groom's brother and sister, were the attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Moore will reside in Chatham.

Rumball-Stewart.

The marriage of Miss Irene Stewart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Stewart, Adelaide street, this city, to Mr. Rumball of Chatham took place in Windsor, Monday March 5, Rev. W. A. Eary, rector of All Saints' Church, officiating. The bride wore a suit of blue tulle, with French hat to match, and relieving touch in a corsage of orchids and sweet peas. Following brief visits to relatives, the young couple will take up residence in Detroit.

Invoice Arrives For Sterilizer

A member of the War Memorial Children's Hospital committee expressed confidence last evening that the hospital will be in running order to do business before the end of March. The invoice has been received for the sterilizer, which, with the installation of the lighting system approved, has been delaying progress.

When Lent is Over.

Here is a rather unusual gown offered for the post-lenten dances and other social affairs. It is made of white tulle in a design which is as charming as it is daring. It is not daring in the usual manner, but merely has dared to be different from the usual styles offered. The effect of the loose white gown is very Grecian, and the blond debutante would find it most becoming.

A corded yoke gathers in the fullness of the blouse, and a single cord at the waistline gathers in the fullness of the skirt, which has a scalloped hem. A large medallion of interlocked rings laced with green velvet ribbon to match forms an unusual skirt decoration, and is placed near the hem in the center front. A tiny cap sleeve is made of interlocked rings, and long streamers fall from the shoulders to the hem. Note the quaint touch of an old-fashioned bouquet worn at the wrist.

SURPRISE PASTOR.

Special to The Advertiser.

Chatham, March 8.—The sixth anniversary of Rev. A. S. O'Brien's installation as pastor of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, was fittingly celebrated Wednesday evening, when a little social affair was given at the close of the mid-week service. Headed by Mrs. James Innes, president of the Ladies' Aid Society, the party was given as a surprise to the pastor.

SEPARATE SCHOOL UNITS HAVE AMBITIOUS PLANS

Presenting first-aid kits and furnishings which will make the schools more attractive, holding socials, debates and sales of work are among ambitious plans for the immediate future, reported by the presidents of the various separate school mothers' units at the meeting this week of the Mothers' Units executive, presided over by Rev. St. Peter's Hall by Mrs. J. B. Leech, the president.

Rev. Father Brisson, superintendent of the separate schools in the city, Mrs. R. M. Burns, who succeeded Mrs. Leech as president of the Catholic Women's League, were guests of the occasion.

Father Brisson gave a short address in the course of which he told of the attention given in the schools to the study of music, especially choral singing. He spoke with warm appreciation of the service the mothers' units have already rendered the schools in the first year of their existence.

Mrs. Burns congratulated the members on their work and assured them of the hearty co-operation of the league in all their undertakings. Mrs. Leech asked for continuance of the interest that has always been shown in league activities, particularly along the lines of social service.

THE ETERNAL QUESTION

by Felice Davis

GENIUSES.

Jasper—Let's sit this out, Cleo, and talk of our Art!

Cleo—Our wonderful Art. Think how fortunate we geniuses are!

Jasper—To be able to live in this enchanted world—Greenwich Village! Cleo—in Bohemian atmosphere!

Jasper—Where genius communes with genius in the realms of exalted inspiration!

Cleo—Free from all the old-fashioned restrictions of the uninspired world!

Jasper—Yes, all comrades to gether, unshackled by marriage forms and customs. Here both sexes strive on an equal footing.

Cleo—How wonderful that we were ordained to be geniuses!

Jasper—If we had been like common mortals you and I would have married long ago!

Cleo—It would have been the end of our careers—you as a great poet, I as an artist!

Jasper—They're starting a new number. Let us "on with the dance."

Cleo—Wait! Listen! They're playing "On the Banks of the Wabash."

Jasper—What's that? The Wabash!

Cleo—That piece brings back childhood memories!

Jasper—Why, there's a tear in your eye!

Cleo—Stop! I—I guess I'm getting homesick!

Jasper—Homesick? For what? The Wabash?

Cleo—I was born on its banks!

Jasper—Great Caesar! I came from that country myself!

Cleo—You! You've been bluffing, too!

Jasper—I guess we've both been faking and bluffing!

Cleo—How I'd like to see the moon shining on the Wabash tonight instead of on this unreal, tiresome place!

Jasper—And how I'd like to have my old job back as sporting editor on the Cleoero Eagle!

Cleo—The dear old Wabash!

Jasper—What do you say—let's can this genius stuff and beat it back where we belong. I'm fed up on this Bohemian bunk!

Cleo—So am I! And with the minister's blessing we'll live our lives out happily on the banks of the Wabash!

MURINE for Your Eyes

COCOANUT OIL FINE FOR WASHING HAIR

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified coconut oil (greaseless), is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this cannot possibly injure the hair.

Simply put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water, then moisten your hair with water and rub the Mulsified in. It will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified coconut oil shampoo at all drug stores. It is very cheap, and a few ounces will last everyone in the family for months. Be sure you get Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.—Adv.

Blackheads Go Quickly By This Simple Method

Blackheads—big ones or little ones—of the body go quickly by a simple method that just dissolves them. To get this get about two ounces of peroxide powder from your druggist—sprinkle a little on a hot wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly for a few seconds—wash off. You'll wonder where the squeezing blackheads once were.

The pores of the skin and leave them large and unsightly—while the simple application of peroxide powder and the water softens the pores in their natural condition.—Adv.

THE STRANGER

By JOHN GOODWIN

CHAPTER 22.
The Skipper's Decision.
A warm drizzle set in with the dusk over the little coast town of Bampton. Somewhere out at sea the fog strewn of a lighthouse beamed like a lost cat.

Leaning on a gate in a lane that skirted the hillside high above the town, a man of tall stature gazed out over the misty sea with thoughtful, brooding eyes. He was wrapped in a black mackintosh, and a tweed hat was pulled low over his face. The morning of the fog siren seemed to please him, mournful though it was, and now and again he glanced up at the darkening sky. Not till the gloom had intensified did he set off along the lane, with a light, noiseless step.

He looked about him as he went, like one who is in unfamiliar country, and not quite sure of his own bearings. Turning a sharp corner where the road was fenced with high thorn hedges, he came upon a very snug little biou villa, standing well back from the road among shrubbery, with a neat green gate. A white flag-staff, taut and well rigged, stood up from a patch of grass near the house.

The wayfarer had evidently been looking for this house. He paused at the gate, looked around him, opened it, and went in, the winding path between the laurels. The porch of the house was dimly lit, but before he reached it the man halted and scanned the windows keenly. He was about to make for the door when footsteps became audible in the road, and the gate clicked.

The tall man hesitated a second, and then dodged noiselessly in among the laurel bushes, which afforded an effective screen. A burly man wearing a bowler hat and a long oilskin came up the path, quite unconscious that he was being watched as he passed, and, reaching the porch, rang the bell.

"Mr. Grier in?" he asked the maid who answered the door. The next moment the visitor was inside.

The man in the laurel bushes protruded his head, and looked with pensive surprise at the door through which the man had passed.

"The mate?" he murmured. "I remember him. He is older, and fatter, but it is the mate. Strange. So birds of a feather still hang together—after all these years!"

The unbidden visitor considered, and then went quietly round the house to the back, where the light from a parlor window shone out dimly across a small grass plot. This window seemed to attract the man. He crept close to the side of the house and moved very gently towards the light.

Meanwhile the caller who had entered the house took off his oil-skin and was showing in the parlor, brightly lit, where a man of about 70 with a gray close cropped beard, keen blue eyes and a face seemed all of wrinkles, was seated in an arm chair with a tumbler by his side.

"Evening, Capt. Grier," said the caller, as the door closed.

The older man rose and frowned slightly.

"I'll be obliged to you, Jim, if you'll drop that title," he said. "Mister Grier, if you please."

"Anything you like," replied the visitor with a grin. "I got the habit of doing so as I was told, when I sailed as your mate, 'em?"

"First officer, they call 'em now, I believe. But we're always Bob and Jim when we're ashore," said Mr. Grier rather impatiently. He motioned his visitor to a chair and jerked his head toward the whiskey bottle. "You haven't come for nothing."

"We're old friends, but we don't see much of each other."

"I came to ask you if you've seen this," said Jim, taking a press clipping from his notebook, "knowing you ain't much of a readin' man. It's in the papers again today, an' it says," he added, handing the clipping to Grier, "that Capt. Grier, who commanded the S. S. Carriemore in 1909 is asked to communicate with E. Motistont, Middle Temple, London, if you'd like to know, Bob, what you're going to do about it."

Mr. Grier flung the clipping back at his visitor with intense irritation.

"You're the third fool in two days that's asked me that question," he said viciously. "Only this morning a man in the town that knows me slightly came up here and showed me the thing. Said he noticed it in the paper, wanted to know if I was the Capt. Grier that was meant. One of these silly, gossipin' fools!"

"Ah," said the mate, "an' what might you have answered him, Bob?"

"I said I wasn't," retorted Grier, "an' that I knew nothing about it. The name I go by here is Richard, not Robert."

The mate nodded approvingly.

"So you ain't going to answer it, eh?"

"No, I'm not," said Grier. He lowered his voice. "Look here, Jim, it's a long time since the Carriemore was lost, but I take particular care not to have it raked up. She was a rotten ship, as you know, I'm sure for a lot over her value. I lost her for the owners. You remember how it was worked. They paid me $5,000 for the wreck, but the night the bidders did out of it. You got a thousand yourself."

"Hush!" whispered the mate nervously. He glanced at the half-open window, and crossing the room closed the sash. "Things get overheard, Bob, when you least expect it. Don't talk so loud."

"You're quite right, Jim," murmured the older man, "though, of course, we're all right here. He lowered his voice to a little above a whisper. "Well, throwing away a ship and doing the underwriters is an awkward job. Clever as I thought I'd been, I had a bad time at the Board of Trade inquiry. I can't think of it, but they suspended my ticket for twelve months."

He spat into the fire.

"A lot I cured, I'd done with the sea. Settled down at Sunderland on my five thousand. Turned it into a bit more. Came here a year ago and took this little place. I don't think about the Carriemore, Jim. People know I was a sea-faring man, an' that's all. Though the jobs over two years ago, I don't think of the folks who knew me as dead, you never know when a thing like that is going to crop up again. The law's a long arm, you know. Truth come to light that you'd think was dead and buried. For it was a job that'd mean three years in quod, Jim."

"How do I know who this lawyer is, an' what he wants with me?" asked the older man, inquiry. "No lawyers for Bob Grier, I don't like the breed. It looks like a trap."

He rose and pointed a finger at his old shipmate.

"An' that's why, Jim, wild horses won't make me rise to that advertisement. No matter what that lawyer's of, or what his law is, he won't get hold of me. It's too risky. I shall deny I'm Robert Grier of the Carriemore; let 'em prove it if they can. An' if they worry me I shall slip right out an' go abroad for a bit. I wouldn't let anybody pump me—not for a thousand quid cash!"

"You're right, Jim," said the mate warmly. "I'm with you all the way."

That's what I came here about; I was a bit nervous. You and me were both in the job. Then you'll keep mum!"

"Mum as the dead," whispered ex-Capt. Grier. "He had a hand on the mate's shoulder. 'No matter what they offer, you an' me know nothing about the Carriemore; nor the Florida coast, nor anything connected with it. That's agreed?'"

"Absolutely," replied the mate with decision. He helped himself to whiskey with an air of relief. "An' now I'll be gettin' home. Good-night, Jim."

The two men shook hands and the mate departed. As he went out through the gate into the lane he chuckled.

"There ain't a man alive could shake Jim off that," he murmured to himself. "Right he is. What he says he sticks to."

The mate had been gone some twenty minutes when another visitor rang the bell of Acaela Villa.

"Is Captain Grier in?" he inquired.

The maid servant, who was a mere child of 14, with a huge bobbed cap, looked up at the lengthy proportions of the caller with awe. A pair of intensely keen eyes twinkled under the wet tweed cap, and water streamed from the black mackintosh.

"Wait a minute, please," said the maid, and entered the parlor. A deep growl was heard. She returned, looking rather flustered.

"Will you please state your business sir, Mr. Grier says."

The caller took out a half sheet of paper, scribbled a few words on it, and folded it carefully in four.

"Give him that."

The maid took the note, and, presently reappearing, held open the sitting-room door.

"This way, sir, please."

The visitor entered the room. Captain Grier was standing erect by the fireplace. He stared at the stranger, his eyes were bright with anger, and his beard bristled with suspicion.

"What do you want?" he growled.

"Just five minutes private conversation with you, Captain," replied the visitor easily. He spoke with a strong cockney twang. It was admirably done, and Grier did not for a moment guess that it was assumed.

"I don't know you," he snapped.

"It's hardly likely you would," was the reply. "It's a mighty long time since we met. Twenty-two years or more, I should think. But I remember you as if it were yesterday."

He paused, "I sailed with you on the Carriemore."

"You're a liar!" exclaimed Grier. His wrinkled face turned a deep plum color, and he breathed hard.

"Come, come, Captain," said the visitor pleasantly. "That's hardly the way to put it. One would think you had reasons of your own for denying it. Such a simple fact is easily enough proved."

Captain Grier bit his lip. He was no actor. He saw that he had made a blunder.

"I sailed as a fireman on that ship," said the stranger. "You are quite sure, Captain, you don't recall me?" He threw open his mackintosh, and boldly pushed his hat to the back of his head. Grier looked at him with fairly puzzled eyes. He could not remember him, but he remembered the years, wondering if it was fancy, or whether he had seen that high forehead and those brooding eyes before.

"Fireman, was you?" he muttered.

"Very likely. They're a tough lot of blackguards. If you think you can walk into my house like this with a pack of lies I'll make you sorry for yourself! I know what your name is. It's the visitor gently, leave all that out. In forty years I have never feared man, woman or devil, I face any risk that seems good to me, and a shady sea captain has no chance of putting the wind up me. I came here as your friend, and to do you a good turn. There's something I want done, and you will do it."

Grier subsided, and merely glanced at him. The man's eyes made him shiver.

"You are being advertised for at this moment," said the visitor, watching Grier keenly. "By a London advertiser, who with various other people, is anxious to discover your whereabouts. Knowing from what I do of you that you might not come forward at all, I came here to insure that you will do so. And he added, "I can tell you exactly what it is these people want of you."

Grier looked up quickly.

"Can you?" he growled.

"The advertisement," and I tell you I'm not the man. But if you know what the thing means, let's hear it."

There was a ring at the bell. "You shall," said the visitor. "Do you remember, on the 15th of June, 1896, about thirty miles off Key West, the lookout man on your fore-castle sighted something in the water?"

There was a knock at the door, and the little maid poked her head in.

"Gentleman to see you, please, sir," she lisped, "name of Mr. Norman Vile."

"What, another of 'em!" he said, furiously. "What name?" I never heard of him in my life. Tell him I won't see him—I'm not in."

But the door was pushed open, and Norman Vile appeared, looking eager and somewhat anxious.

"Captain Grier," he said, inquiringly, with an apologetic look at the angry skipper, "I'm sorry, but I don't do keep her so tarnation bizzzy that she's, wal, 'rale bizzzy,' consider she's kook bukin' goin' on the stage, studin an' doin' the job she took for life an'—"

"Oh, yah, tryin to help another play actin' crowd to keep turnin ther backs to the front!"

He turned at that moment, and for the first time caught sight of Captain Grier's companion. Speech was stricken from Vile's lips. His jaw dropped, and his face went white as death.

WROXETER APPROVES EXPENDITURE FOR RINK
Special to The Advertiser.

Wroxeter, March 9.—The ratepayers of the village of Wroxeter, by a vote of 61 to 28, on Monday expressed their approval of the bylaw submitted to them to borrow $2,000 to complete a skating rink.

Settlement of the service between Wroxeter Rural Telephone Company and Gorrie and Fordwich and Springbank Telephone Company was placed in the hands of the railway commission, which was represented by Mr. Daggar at a public meeting recently held. The Bell Telephone Company was represented by Mr. Ashley. As a result there will be a free service all around.

Mrs. Harry Brown and two children of Vancouver Island are visiting relatives here after an absence of ten years.

The Boxites are beginning to perk up a bit and give Cynthia a little stimulus in her efforts to make the Mail-Box more and more interesting.

"Goldie" sent in simply heaps and heaps of encouragement with her letter today, and then there is "December Bride's" suggestion about the Boxite badge.

"Think you would like a lot of fun it would be to spy a badge and say 'There's one of the mysterious correspondents.' And on your holidays you would find all sorts of folks with a 'tie that binds,' if we were all wearing Cynthia Grey brooches. I would be thrilled to have my initials on it, the caller with awe. A wee bit of blue enamel? I am awfully eager to know what the Boxites think of it."

Am beginning to receive a great many requests for seeds. I hope somebody will find time to send off a package to the Mail-Box.

Goldie!
Dear Cynthia, I enclosed find some recipes for the Cook Book. How much longer have we to send recipes in? I might find time later to copy more than I have found tasted good.

I am so glad you are asking the members of your page not to ask for anything, although I know many a needed one received help. It does rob the column of interest, though, doesn't it? So let's all stand by Miss Grey and help her make the page of interest to all. We might send in some household economy suggestions, some experiences with your training of the children, and we might also tell what we think of the different departments of The London Advertiser.

I'm so glad Gump is able to be up. I think his sayings in a recent paper were so splendid. Can you imagine making enough pills to have ball-bearing joints? Think I'll buy a box when I tell the rheumatiz coming on. What say?

Will soon be spring and I'll not be sorry. It takes so long to robe the kiddies before going out these cold days.

Must away. We are nicely settled in our new home now, but will find lots to do when spring comes—both outside and in the house. Yours truly, GOLDIE.

Am more than delighted to find some one backing me in my fight to make the 'page as interesting as it is possible. You letter was full of encouragement, Goldie, as well as the nice recipes. Am sure you will find time to write us again.

Song of 16 Verses.
Dear Cynthia and all the Boxites—Here I am again after an absence of a few months. I was glad to see so many old Boxites coming back to visit us again.

I hope Calamity Ann may have success with the cook-book. I will see if I can't find some recipes to send in.

Out of the where someone was wishing that songs would be published in the Mail-Box again. So do I. I wonder if any of the Boxites have the words of any songs. I have a hunch that "Barbara Allen" or "Barbara Allen" I am not sure which. It has about 16 verses, but I would be pleased to get any of it. It will sign as before. I am sure it is a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

We are thinking about getting up an egg supper around Easter-time. What do you suggest for us to have to eat? We would like to have eggs cooked in different ways.

Well, I must close now and get to work. Will sign as before. JOLLY JEAN.

Can anyone answer Jolly Jean's queries? Write again, Jean. Thanks for the recipes.

Shorty.
Thanks ever so much for the recipes and the mite. Shorty. Make your next letter longer and tell us about the syrup.

Hard Soap.
Thanks for the recipes and cook-book mite, Mrs. J. S. I am publishing the recipe you sent in for Spoo-ondyke.

A large tomato can makes a good container for laundry soap, as it weighs when full about a pound and a quarter, and two of them make the proper amount for a can of lye, weighing about 13 ounces. Dissolve the lye in a quart of cold water and add this to the two tins of melted fat. One tablespoon of borax, 1 tablespoon of ammonia, stir until the color of honey. It should not be stirred too much, as stirring will make it separate. Just stir occasionally and pour out to set."

Another Bulletin.
Dear Cynthia—Here's lettin' you know what I got 'em 'ere resopces. I got the big envelope with the millun or so in. The's the one I'm after tellin' you about. Let's see there do be Hopeful. Mrs. W. "I Avoided an Operation Appendicitis Disappeared"

Mrs. James Wells, Odora, Ont., writes:—

"I took a severe pain in my right side. It was very bad at times. I tried oils and tablets without gaining any relief. The doctor pronounced it chronic appendicitis. I dreaded an operation and a friend advised Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I used them and not only obtained relief from pain, but I believe it has completely freed me of appendicitis, as it is now over a year since I have had any of the old symptoms."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

THE BRAVERY OF MANY TONGUES.
By Thornton W. Burgess.

Sometimes it quite amazes me. How very brave a tongue can be. —Hooley the Owl.

Usually just after jolly, round, red Mr. Sun began to daily climb up in the blue, blue sky, the Crows and his friends left their roosting places in the Green Forest and started out for the daily hunt for food. They went in the same way and some another. But this morning, instead of starting out to hunt for food, that whole flock of Crows, with Hooley the Owl, headed straight for another part of the Green Forest. There had been a little talk before the start, but as they were in the air all talking ceased.

Blacky, with Mrs. Blacky right behind him, led the way straight to that part of the Green Forest in which was the nest they had built and used the year before. Some of their friends knew all about that nest, but others had never seen it. They flew high so as to look down. When he was above the tree in which was the nest, Blacky circled around. All the others did the same thing, and of course all saw the nest. Also all saw Mrs. Hooley on the nest. Then, still silent, they flew down and alighted in trees surrounding the one in which was the nest. You see they had not yet discovered Hooley, and it was quite necessary to know where Hooley was.

Now Hooley had been hunting late that morning. He had arrived just a few minutes after the Crows. One of them saw him coming, and at once gave the alarm. Instantly those Crows were in the air again, and every one began peering at the top of his or her lungs. Such a racket as they made! They could have been heard a mile away. Some of the boldest swooped in front of him. Others tried to get behind him and pretend that they were very brave by swooping down and threatening to peck.

Hooley paid no attention to them. He kept straight on to the tree in which were the nest and Mrs. Hooley. In his great claws was a mouse which he was bringing to Mrs. Hooley. But the instant he was rid of that mouse Hooley sat bolt upright on a branch of that tree, ruffled up his feathers, snapped his big hooked bill and hissed angrily. It was daytime, but Hooley was anything but a sleepy-looking bird.

Those noisy Crows took good care not to get too near.

Those noisy Crows took good care now not to get too near. There was no chance to get behind him unseen. For Hooley's head would turn like a windmill and see him equally behind him. Not a Crow would get near enough to strike him without being seen. And not a Crow dared try it.

But how those Crow tongues did go! And such brave tongues as they were. They told Hooley and Mrs. Hooley all sorts of dreadful things that were going to happen to them. They told them that they had got "leave that nest and never be seen there again." They told them that they didn't leave at once they would have their eyes pecked out. My, my, but those brave, brave, brave tongues! They boasted and threatened and called names.

For all the bravery of those tongues Mrs. Hooley continued to sit on that nest, and Hooley continued to sit on guard, hissing, snapping his bill and growing angrier every minute without showing the least sign of fear.

Power Cost, Plus Lamp Renewal Cost—That is What You Pay For Electric Lighting.

Now You Can Buy Electric Lamps Made Especially For Use On The Hydro System

Any incandescent electric lamp that will fit into the socket will light when your turn hydro on, and probably look very good, too.

But, remember, that hydro-electric power generated in the huge water-driven generators at Niagara Falls is not the same sort of power they used to make with steam engines here before hydro came.

Hydro has its own distinguishing characteristics. Its cost is extremely low, but to make the most of its economies use only equipment that suits its peculiar qualities.

HYDRO QUALITY LAMPS

Are the only lamps made especially for use on the Hydro Electric Power System of Ontario. Hydro Engineers in Hydro Laboratories, having only the needs of hydro users to consider, designed a lamp to sell with a DOUBLE GUARANTEE—to give a brilliant flood of light on the smallest amount of power and to be proof against "burning out" for 1,500 hours. They are far cheaper in the long run.

JOYOUS LONDONERS THROUGH SHIRINE CIRCUS

Entertainment in Aid of Crippled Children Meets Merited Success.

ENTHUSIASM REIGNS

Mrs. De Wolfe, Elias Street, Wins Floor Lamp in Drawing.

The people of London waited expectantly five weeks and more for the Shirine Circus, heralded on bill boards, on the windshields of automobiles, and in other sundry places as the "big" event of the season. The circus, in the form of an elaborate, picturesque and variety bazaar, arrived on Monday last—the first of the Shirine of the city in every way possible to care for the crippled children they will take under their wing in an effort to help them back to health so that they may romp, play and laugh the same as their more fortunate brothers and sisters.

Every night this week hundreds of feet have walked over the sawdust-covered floor of the Masonic Temple and laughter—the kind that things true—has gurgled from the throats of hundreds of people while listening to comical, and yet earnest, appeals of the red-faced, red-headed Shirine, who lean far out of their booths proclaiming that "the most wonderful bargains can now be obtained right here. A chance on this splendid aluminum kettle costs only two bits, a quarter. One at a time, please. Here we have . . ."

Last night the temple was crowded, and at times moving about was a difficult task. But the crowd, though jostled and elbowed, was happy. There was no ill-feeling when an overly-anxious individual poked his elbows into the ribs of the person in front of him. Brotherly spirit pervaded the whole circus and everyone seemed anxious to "dip down" and buy chances on the sides of bacon, attractive-looking hams, groceries, flour, sugar, aluminumware, blankets and crockery to provide funds to enable the Shirine to continue their good work among the deformed and crippled children of London.

Those in charge of "The Barefoot Man from Honolulu," the "White Elephant from Africa," the "Two-Fisted Boy from Mexico," "Mazima," and other booths with names just as colorful, all spoke in enthusiastic terms of the generosity of the Londoners that thronged the bazaar last night. Receipts showed a substantial increase, they said, and everything is pointing toward Friday and Saturday nights being the biggest nights of all.

Mrs. De Wolfe of Elias street was the lucky winner of the floor lamp last night. The winning number was 90. Number 1029 won the pair of shoes, but the prize has not yet been claimed.

It is reported that the workmen, accompanied by a priest, were passing through Germany on their way to Belgium, and were forced to leave the train at Rosenheim, where a crowd manhandled them in the belief that they were bound for the Ruhr.

"Jazzmania."

Mae Murray is the delightful wisp of animation, which makes up for any shortcomings in "Jazzmania," the pretty piece of farcical romance now at Loew's.

Her charm and vivacity, and above all, her dancing, lend a new lease of life to the overworked and tottering theme of the "unheard of." Little kingdom in Middle Europe, preyed upon by taxes and a villainous assassin by a lovely lady queen, who is willing to give her life, but not her honor, for her poor dear subjects.

"Jazzmania" is a light bit of froth in the way of movie productions, as exaggerated as the manner of its vivid little star—but quite as enjoyable.

Mae wears quite fascinating clothes, and her own personality, exaggerated as it may be, is so unique that it lacks neither charm nor interest.

"Jazzmania" is very different from anything which has been here in a long while, which goes a long way toward recommending it.

Don't look for anything deep, but Mae Murray and her dinky little kingdom appeals to both the eye and the sense of humor. That is saying a lot.

The vaudeville starts off well, but goes from bad to worse. "Mankins" aren't much in the way of adult entertainment.

"A Lone Hand." at the Patricia is packed full of thrills of both the possible and the impossible variety. Last night's audience took full measure of enjoyment out of "Hoot" Gibson and his cowboy antics, but the film itself is a conglomeration of slapstick and melodrama, which refuses to be placed in any known category.

The best few moments are provided by the scene in the old mill shaft. It is not long and never slow. Evidently "Hoot" Gibson's stardom came from his cowboy ability. He should never attempt the role of the manly hero. Marjorie Daw is a relieving touch.

The vaudeville was fair, a violinist and a man who played the accordion. Most audiences evince a fondness for the accordion, and "Trovatore" was played well.

Although the communication from the Motor League did not reach the board in time for the meeting, the matter was introduced by Trustee Edwin Smith. After a short discussion it was referred to a committee of three, consisting of Trustees Mrs. J. I. A. Hunt, who is an enthusiastic supporter of the project; T. Rowe, W. A. Casselman and the school inspectors.

Measure of Protection.
Mr. Smith spoke strongly in favor of the scheme. He said that the London Motor League was prepared to supply full data on the scheme. He pointed out that not only would it be a measure of protection for the smaller children, but it would be a splendid training for the older boys.

To illustrate the need, he told of a near accident that occurred on King street yesterday at noon, when a little girl, by luck only, was saved from being struck by a speeding automobile.

Trustee Dr. Grant was the only member who seemed inclined to be dubious. "The only knowledge that I have of the plan is read in the newspaper," he said. "It strikes me as something we should consider carefully. Speaking as a motorist, I should say that there are great possibilities of it adding to the confusion already existing at these corners."

"Before reaching any decisions, I would like to know if the boys have tried out with success in any other city."

Mrs. Hunt explained that she had seen it tried out in the newspapers, he said. "It strikes me as something we should consider carefully. Speaking as a motorist, I should say that there are great possibilities of it adding to the confusion already existing at these corners."

Because of the congestion in city schools, there is a grave danger that all county pupils will be crowded out of public schools in London next September.

Senior Inspector V. K. Greer, who is in charge of the board of county pupils, ten in number, now attending Empress avenue school, he notified that after June 29 this year the school board will be unable to accommodate them this year.

This suggestion brought words of protest from Trustee B. N. Campbell, who feared that it would be a hardship to force children who reside near the city limits to walk a mile or two to a country school because their parents were non-residents.

He thought that surely some provision should be made for them.

The question threatened to develop into a warm debate, but Inspector Greer nipped the discussion in the bud with the announcement that he had full power in the matter, according to the statutes. He had merely included the matter in his report as a recommendation.

Gives Warning.
"I did this," he said, "because I thought that it was only fair that the trustees of the county school should be given fair warning that there is danger that such a step might be taken. They should be given time to make other arrangements."

"All city pupils in West London will be given preference next September. If there is still room after that we will consider the county pupils for the county pupils again. This should be considered only as a warning. It certainly shows that the question of overcrowding in the city is becoming a serious problem."

A bill now before the Legislature giving electors living within a mile of an urban center, but outside the city limits, the right to serve as trustees and to vote for members of the board, a copy of which was read by Secretary W. A. Tanner, threatened to create a small-sized storm.

Acting from first impressions, members of the board were quite prepared to score the proposed act.

"It is the most life-and-death piece of legislation ever introduced into the House," said Mr. Rowe.

Principal Mooney of the Central Collegiate Institute, who is in charge of the Girls' Athletic Club at the Central Collegiate, Mrs. Hunt and Principal Mooney will see that the girls are properly supervised.

The committee on attendance brought in a report recommending reorganization of the attendance department and an opinion of the committee, a man who was diplomatic, who understood boys and girls, and who was sympathetic towards all groups, both individually and of the home as the result of the adolescent act, should be employed. He should not be over 40 years of age.

DID CANADA HAVE TO WAR FOR DIPLOMATIC POWER?

Parliamentary Circles at Ottawa Curious About Despatch to the Chicago Tribune Which Hints That King Government Had Difficulty With Downing Street.

FISH TREATY ATTRACTS WIDE ATTENTION

Special to The Advertiser by a Staff Correspondent.

Ottawa, March 9.—The estimates of the public works department were the main, indeed the sole item on the parliamentary menu yesterday, and Dr. J. H. King has been laboring manfully to get them through, in face of a running fire of criticism and complaint from the Tory benches.

But what has attracted more attention in the lobbies of the House than the estimates, has been a despatch published in Tuesday's Chicago Tribune from an Ottawa correspondent.

The regular Ottawa correspondent of the Tribune denies all responsibility for it, and there is considerable curiosity about its source. It is carried on the front page under the heading, "Fact signed as free nation—Canada rejects British domination," and emphasizes the fact that the treaty for the first time in her history has concluded a treaty with a foreign government without the intervention and assistance of the British government or its diplomatic representatives.

But the interesting part of the despatch is the assertion that this further step in Canada's diplomatic emancipation, was only secured after some controversial correspondence with Downing Street. According to the Tribune story, the terms of the treaty were settled two months ago, but the King government, when they formed a determination to rid themselves of the last shackles of British diplomatic control, and notified their intention to Downing Street and Sir Auckland Geddes, they encountered considerable opposition to their plan.

Should Be Concluded.

According to the Tribune story, the Duke of Devonshire, as secretary for the colonies, is said to have taken the view, that the treaty should be concluded on the traditional lines, and the signature of the British ambassador.

The King ministry decided to disregard this opposition, and when Mr. Lapointe left for Washington he carried with him definite instructions, backed by the whole cabinet, that no other signature but his own was to be attached to the document on behalf of Canada.

He was told to communicate this decision to Sir Auckland Geddes, and to intimate to the latter that his signature was unnecessary. Communications had been passing between Washington and London on the subject, and eventually Mr. Bonar Law overruled the Duke of Devonshire, and conceded the point, demanded by the Canadian ministry.

Advice to this effect was conveyed to Mr. Hughes, the American secretary of state, and he informed President Harding that the British government recognized Canada's rights to absolute freedom in the diplomatic field, and the document when presented to the Senate for ratification would not bear the signature of Sir Auckland Geddes.

Signed Treaty.

Mr. Lapointe arrived the next day and on the following forenoon he and Mr. Hughes signed the treaty, and not only the state department but the Senate accepted it as a perfectly proper document, although devoid of the signature of the British ambassador, which has hitherto adorned all American-Canadian treaties.

Such is the gist of the Tribune's story, and although when the attention of Mr. Lapointe was called to it by your correspondent, he decided it as fiction, there is ground for the suspicion that consent for this new constitutional departure was grudgingly won from the British government.

Mr. Lapointe definitely stated two days ago, that he alone had signed the treaty on behalf of Canada, and he promised a full opportunity for the Senate to accept it when the treaty came up for ratification.

But it is probable that the episode will be brought up at question time tomorrow, and there will be a demand for the production of all the correspondence with the British government.

Works Estimates.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, March 9.—Employment of day labor on public works occasioned some sharp passages in the House yesterday. Votes for harbor and river improvements were under consideration. The maritime votes had gone through with comparatively little opposition when a Quebec vote brought up the day labor question. Conservatives maintained that if the present policy of the public works department in regard to employment of day labor instead of seeking tenders were continued limiting provisions of the public works act might as well be repealed.

Citing the report of a departmental engineer, Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, opposition leader, said it contained four recommendations for work by contract as compared with 60 or more for day labor; and some of the works for which day labor was recommended ran up to $20,000. Hon. J. H. King, minister of public works, contended in reply that these were only recommendations, that there had been no change in the policy of the department. Robert Forke, Progressive leader, speaking on the issue, declared he honestly believed it was impossible in the case of a great many repair works to have them done by contract.

Docks Need Repairs.

On the vote of $65,000 for New Brunswick harbors, R. B. Hanson, Conservative, York, Sunbury, asked whether the federal government was considering taking over the wharves in that province. Some of the wharves were falling into disrepair.

J. B. M. Baxter (Conservative, St. John) said an undertaking had been given to the people of New Brunswick that the federal government would take over these wharves. The absence of both the provincial and the federal governments was resulting in the wharves falling into decay. He thought that a decision in the matter should be reached without delay.

Hon. J. H. King, minister of public works, replied that the matter was under consideration. He understood the former government had been prepared to take over the wharves of New Brunswick. A careful survey of the wharves had been made by the engineers of his department.

Mr. Hanson protested that the amount spent for repairs and improvements to harbors and rivers generally in New Brunswick last year was entirely too small. He also failed to see why the county of Charlotte was not allotted some money for harbors and rivers. The counties of North Cape Breton and Victoria seemed to have absorbed practically all the money, he said. The Island of Grand Manan produced great quantities of fish, and the fishermen there were entitled to assistance.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie (Conservative, Wellington, S.) suggested that the amounts for harbors and rivers generally for each province might, with advantage, be cut one-third, or even one-half. If the money was voted here, it would have to be provided for in the budget, while it might not eventually be needed.

Must Comply With Act.

S. W. Jacobs (Liberal, George Etienne Cartier) remarked that the last government Hon. C. C. Balguy had built vessels for the Canadian government merchant marine without calling for tenders. The question under discussion was whether wharf repairs and reconstructions were being done by tender or by day labor.

Mr. Meighen declared that the vessels referred to could not have been built in any other way, and that they were well built. They had cost $20 less a ton than vessels built in the United States at the same time of much poorer construction.

Mr. Jacobs: "They went to pieces at the first opportunity."

Mr. Meighen denied this.

Mr. Jacobs remarked that some of them were at the bottom of the ocean.

Mr. Meighen: "A great many good vessels are at the bottom of the ocean. The Lusitania is there for one. The time will come when the honorable gentlemen opposite who derided and derided them will be claiming to be fathers of the Canadian Merchant Marine."

He added that the opposition did not object to ordinary repairs under $5,000 being done by day labor. Over that amount it should not be difficult to have the work done by contract. It was the duty of the committee to see that the statute was complied with, and the fact that the engineer of the public works department recommended one or the other was no excuse for violation of the act.

SALVATION ARMY BAND VISITS WESTMINSTER

The London No. 1 Salvation Army Silver Band paid another visit to Westminster Hospital on Wednesday evening, and its music was much appreciated by the patients who filled the auditorium. Many splendid items were rendered, among them being "Songs of Ireland," selection, and "Emancipation" march by the citadel band. Bandsman Glen Shepherd contributed a cornet solo very creditably, and Bandsman Evan Gare did justice to a pianoforte solo.

Ensign Leech, commanding officer of the London 1 Corps, acted as chairman, and expressed the pleasure the band derived in coming out to cheer the boys with their music. Capt. MacGillivray of London headquarters read from the Bible, and chocolate bars were given out to the patients.

Mr. Smith, one of the officials at the institution, expressed his appreciation of the army's visit. The boys of Westminster showed their appreciation by their applause and rapt attention.

Montreal, March 9.—The fuel situation in Canada is not beyond remedy, according to B. A. Haanel, department of mines, Ottawa, "Canada," he said, "possesses sufficient energy for heat and power to answer her requirements at the present rate of use for an indefinite period."

From every angle, as it is reflected on every province, the fuel problem was reviewed today at the twenty-fifth annual general meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy here.

A recommendation which met with a great deal of approval at the meeting was the suggestion of the establishment of heating plants at strategic points in the larger centers of population. Another advance was the substitution of hydro-electric power for that generated from coal. It was the consensus of opinion that Canada will have to become self-reliant and develop her resources. More energy must be spent in this field.

gun in his chest and stomach, Edward White, negro, 50 years old, is dying at Hotel Dieu, here, and Alvin Johnson, 35, also colored, is held under close guard at police headquarters, charged with the shooting. Both men reside in small shacks out Wellington avenue, in vicinity of Michigan Central Subway.

Engaged in Quarrel.

According to the police report of the affair, the shooting occurred shortly before 8 o'clock last night. The two men had engaged in a quarrel Wednesday, and when White returned home from his work, this evening he was met near his home by Johnson, who carried a shotgun. There were no words passed between the men, the detectives were told, but as White neared Johnson the latter raised his weapon and fired point-blank at his neighbor. Both barrels were discharged, and White toppled over into a ditch, blood spurting from his chest. As he attempted to rise, Johnson, who meanwhile had reloaded his weapon, fired again, the charge this time lodging in White's left shoulder.

This time the wounded man was too weakened by loss of blood to make another effort to regain his feet, and Johnson, retreating to his cabin, locked the door, leaving his victim where he had fallen.

Sounds of shooting had alarmed neighbors, who telephoned police headquarters. The detective flyer, with Detectives Burns and Larriere, and police patrol hurried to the scene. On their way out Wellington avenue they met Elmer Howard, a farmer, who was driving into town. Howard had picked up the wounded man and was bringing him into the hospital. White was quickly transferred to the patrol and hurried to the hospital.

Doctors there report he cannot live many hours, both lungs being punctured with shot, of which there are more than 200 in his body.

Gun in Hand.

When detectives reached Johnson's shack they found him standing in the doorway, a loaded shotgun in his hands and pointed towards them. The negro, the officers say, threatened them if they approached nearer. While Detective Larriere parleyed with Johnson Detective Burns approached from the rear and succeeded in seizing and disarming the negro.

DENIES ANY CONFLICT OVER FISHING TREATY

Hon. Ernest Lapointe Declares Britain and Canada Agreed On Pact.

Canadian Press Despatch. Ottawa, March 9.—Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of marine and fisheries, who on behalf of Canada, signed the halibut fisheries convention with the United States, last night, emphatically denied reports which have appeared in certain American newspapers that there had been conflict over the treaty between the Canadian and British governments. Referring to one such report, Mr. Lapointe said:

"The writer has drawn on a powerful imagination. I went to Washington with full authority to sign the treaty as plenipotentiary of His Majesty the King. There has been no conflict, whatever between the British and Canadian Governments. The alleged interviews at Washington are also pure fiction."
