A PRACTICABLE PROPOSAL.

Sir Fred. Bramwell Suggests Italian as the Universal Language.

London, Sept. 22.—Two or three points of general interest developed at this week's sessions of the British Association for the Advancement of Science at Belfast.
Sir Frederick Bramwell, setting

aside the manufacture of a universal language as impracticable, suggested that a living language should be taken and that all the important na-tions of the earth, the United States, Germany, France and England, should agree that no person in these States, over whom the Government has control, directly or indirectly, should, after the expiration of say twenty years, be eligible for any ap-pointment, from prime minister to policeman, unless in addition to him own language, he is able to read, write and converse in some other language.

That language, it is proposed, should be Italian. Its adoption international should be Italian. Its adoption would not create any international jealousies. It is closely based on Latin and is highly melodious.

WHAT THE GAY WORLD OF FASHION OFFERS-PARIS. LONDON AND BERLIN HINTS-HOUSEHOLD HINTS, FUN AND GOSSIP SPECIALLY CULLED FOR TIMES LADIES &

(By Satie Fontaine Paris.)

(By Satie Fontaine Paris.)

The empire, the Du Barry and the Pompadour periods of fashions have as hecome so popular-possibly because they are so elaborately extravegant—that it is no uncommon thing to see the three styles combined in one costume. Why it is that women adore in fashion and fiction that which speaks of historical romance no man can explain, but certain it is that they do. And as it was with the colonial, the empire and the days of the Bourbons, fashions have become widely mixed, with no distinct setting, so that to-day all things that look smart or chic pass for fashionable.

In evening gowns the old French fashions will hold their sway this winter. Yet they are all modernized in a way—perhaps to suit the modern complexion or the fashions in complexions and figures change oftener than centuries.

The Brussels will continue to be much worn for some time, as it has all the coveted softness for which set is adverted to the softness for which an the coveted softness for which net is adored, with none of the gross suggestions of the spectacular that many of the coarser nets show. A black or white net in the Pompadour style is exquisite. It is made over a soft silk of the same shade usually, with several thicknesses of the net over the silk.

Called Pompadour Applique.

This flower embroidery is called the "pompadour apptque," and is as stunning a thing as any well-bred woman-could ever hope to find. A black net gown, made princess, with a wreath of these chenille flowers ranning from the left shoulder, across the bust and down to the bottom of the skirt, or trailing shightly on to the side train, presents a beautiful spectacle. In white the effect is equally lovely, but higher shades of the chenille should be used for the applique.

The coral rose shades are being daringly flaunted once more. Made up in back lace, they present an aspect of rare old portraits painted in the fluent days of the empire. There is a model of a dinner gown in a deep coral shade that is covered completely with an overdress of black brussels net, in which at infrequent and unexpected intervals are set wide-spreading butterfiles of black chantilly lace. Empire Gown Popular.

The empire gown is going to be very popular this season. It is not cut as it was in the days of Josephine. It is very much higher in the nock. u. ually with sleeves, and the empire effect is mostly done in lace over silk. There is nothing quite as rich and flocey as these silk and lace rich and fleecy as these silk and lace cupire gowns. They vary greatly in cut, according to the figure they are made to f.t, and it is seldom two empire gowns are made alike this season. Usually the silk underdress is made princess and fits the figure like a glova, ripoling down gradually into a glove, rippling down gradually into a sweeping and very long trained circular skirt, with a half fan effect in back; that is, the skirt dips in at the knees in front. Over this princess gown, perfect in Over this princess gown, perfect in its simple elegance, and a beautiful toilet of itself, though untrimmed, falls the glory of rich lace, a perfect-ly cut and long empire gown along true empire period lines, but abso-lutely graceful in every detail, as the sik princess gown shows well beneath through the fall of fine, thin lace. Frequently the style is changed so that the lace will fit the figure, with the slik either in front or in back. One marvelous gown on this order isof an either blue slik that shades into an exquisite silver. The lace overdress is of point de Venice. The empire out is perfect in back, but in front the lace is divided and fits the figure, leaving an opening of about five inches to the hem of the skirt.

The loose empire effect is not lost, but is carried out by flat bands of pearl passementerie, which are hung loosely within the opening to a line below the waist, where they are caught by a cross band of the pearl tribunity and continue, held down to hem of the skirt.

Fine Models in Lace.

There are some marvelous models en lace and rare brocades in big flaring patterns that bear the marks of the Du Barry period. The petti-coats have the colonial flare and square sweep and the bodices are cut over the bosom, with elbow sleeves done in monstrous frills of lace, silk and ribbons. The bodices are cut off right at the waist line with a little sharp point in front

Over these bodices—which are a different color from the skirt usually, with sleeve frills the shade of the skirt—is worn a sleeveless jacket of lace, in the cutaway Louis XIV. style front, which falls well over the hips. The jacket is made tight in back by two large buttons which hold it to the bodice at the waist line.

which hold it to the bodice at the waist line.

In front it is the regular Louis XIV. coat when left unconfined, except that it has no lapels. Just another modernizing of the Du Barry! Plumes should always be worn in the hair with this sleeveless coat, a fan carried, and a corsage bouquet worn. These lace coats will be very much seen for dinners and informal evening affairs.

THE LATEST OF THE SEASON'S BEAUTIES

-----Banished to the realms of the four domestic walls are the summe gowns in which women have looked so ravishing for the last few months and in their places on the street are seen trim tailor made costumes. Each season we await anxiously the coming of the first models, which are the embodiment of fashion's newest modes, and if there are no radi-cal changes we are disappointed, so fond are we of variety. However, the season is still young and the lack of new lines may find a recompense in novelty and beauty of fabrics. Plaited skirts are not yet to be abandoned, and we are to see many of the new walking costumes made with back or side plaits, falling made with back or side platts, falling from a deep hip yoke, with skirts just to escape the floor—for again that question of skirt length is being agitated, and French modistes have declared in favor of the comfortable, sensible style. It is still early, however, serious-y to consider the trim walking dress, o we are offered a choice of more so we are offered a choice of more formal costumes. For example, there is the charming design of Raudnitz (see cut), which expresses the coming of autumn in its rich tones of serpent green and blue, a combination that bids fair to be extremely popular. The material is a satin faced novelty cloth of medium weight, and shows a fine check scattered with polka dots in dark green, having a rim of blue. The skirt is fitted to the figure by means of tucks run in clusters and converging toward the waist line, while at the knees there is a space of about ward the waist line, while at the knees there is a space of about five inches between the clusters. A shaped flounce set upon the up-per section of the skirt displays more tucks, following out the per pendicular lines slightly marked i the fitted part. the fitted part.

Huge four petalled flowers of Cluny, for a conventiona larrangement, are inserted at this point, and the effect of the lace insets is much enhanced by the delicate outlining in blue and black silks. In the centre of each design is a disk worked in silk. disk worked in silk. The same or-namentation trims the bottom of the flounce, and the fabric is cut out underneath the Cluny so that catches a glimpse of the blue green novelty silk lining.

The corsage is solidly tucked and has the neck cut down to show a dainty yoke of white mouseline. A piping of black velvet outlines the neck, while narrow ribbons of the same fasten across the bust. From the shoulders to the wide ceinture of white silk elastic there extends, each side of the opening, a row of egg shaped insets, of Ciuny, placed end to end.

Below the elhow the closely tucked sleeve is released, and the puff thus formed is gathered into an odd cuff made of black velvet straps, ornamented with embroidery and blue silks.

The scoop hat worn with this dress is faced with black, and is surmounted by a huge breast of soft, downy white, caught at one side under a twist of blue and green miroly velvet.

NEW THINGS FOR THE LADIES.

Large purses and handbags are the order of the day. Those small leather affairs which have been popular for more than a year are no fonger con sidered the correct thing. To be thoroughly modish now you must carry a bag about ten inches deep and eight inches broad. This should be of soft English morocco, in black, green, dark red, tan or blue, and have elaborate mountings of Burmese gold, with a short chain of the same metal on which to carry it.

A handsome bag in this new shape had two golden l'zards, one each side of the clasp, and set in the beautifully wrought bodies were pale amedesigns, and, when more elaboration is desired jeweled paillettes lend their beauty to that of the filmy chantilly. They are far more comfortable for summer wear than kid and much less expensive. The white ones are easily washed and require no ironing. The lace ones are made with half fingers.

Sunday School INTERNATIONAL LESSON NO. XIII

SEPTEMBER 28, 1902.

Review. -- Deut. 8: 1-10.

Summary.-Lesson I. Topic: Hea venly bread. Places: Elim. The wilderness of Sin. The Israelites jour neved from Elim to the wilderness of Sin; they murmured against Moses and Aaron; they feared they would starve in the wilderness and longed to be back in Egypt; the Lord rained bread from heaven rained bread from heaven.

II. Topic: God's covenant with man. Place: Mount Sinai. God spake to the people with His own voice and gave them the ten commandments. This lesson embraces the first

Moses up into the mount where he remained for forty days.

V. Topic: Setting up the tabernacle Place, Mount Sinal. Moses commanded that the tabernacle be set

The cloud is taked up from off the tabernacle and the children of Israel leave the wilnerness of Siaai and journey to Paran.

Vili. Topic: The land of Canaan. Place: Kadesh Barnea. One man from each tribe was sent to search the land of Canaan; they were gone forty days; they brought back some of the fruit of the land; they reported that the land was good.

1X. Topic: Saving Israel from a just punishment. Place: The valley of Arabah. The Israelites are obliged to go to war.

Lesson I. The Lord provides. It was not absolute want that caused the Israelites to murmur at this time, but distrust for the future. How soon men forget God's deliverances and repine in anticipation of evil to come!

eme!

II. Duties to God. The "Lord thy God' is the supreme lawgiver. He is self-existent, independent and eternal; the source of all being and power. The creature has no obligations equal to those he owes his freator. Other obligations are secondary in character and grow out of the relationship we sustain to each other.

III. Duties to men. We have duties to our fellow-men that spring from our relation to God as our common Father. There are duties we are under obligation to perform to each other that arise from our special relations, and would exist if we could suppose man had no Creator.

suppose man had no Creator.

IV. Carnal worship condemned. The commandments had been proclaimed to Israel. In response they said, "All that the Lord hath said will we do and be obedient." Thus they piedged themselves not to make graven images or to how down to them. In less than forty days of this time they tunultuously demanded of Aaron, "Up, make us gods, which may go before us." Spiritual worship was not to their liking.

V. God's dwelling place. All buildings erected for God's worship ought in a erected for God's worship ought in a sense to have a divine pattern. They should not be built for show and so gorgeously furnished that the poor will be excluded. "The glory of the Lord" it is all places where He is properly worshipped.

VI. The effect of strong drink. It is vi. The effect of strong drink, It is not improbable that the sin of Nadab and Abihu was caused by "strong drink." Under its influence they committed a great sin and "died before the Lord." It unbalances the intellect and prompts the individual to do wicked and rash acts. The brain fevered by excessive stimulation does not perceive apparent danger. tion does not perceive apparent dan-ger and often rushes its victim into crime and death. Wine or strong drink disqualifies for the discharge of duty and the performance of sacred and business obligations. VII. The Lord directing his church. while the there are the control of t not make haste."

VIII. The evil belief. Unbelief is not content to rest alone upon the word of God, but demands evidence of its truth. Israel said to Moses, "We will send men before us and they shall search out the land." Rather than at once to trust and obey God, than at once to trust and obcy God, they were willing to spend forty days in proving their ability to do what they were commanded. How condescending the Lord is to human wonkness!

IX. God's remedy. God's ways are not our ways. How unlikely that to look at the image of a serpent would heal its deadly bite! Israel would heal its deadly bite! Israel requested Moses to "pray unto the Lord that he take away the serpents." It has been the cry of humanity that God may remove their afflictions from them. This he does not always choose to do. The serpents remained among the Israelites, but the Lord gave a perfect remedy against their fiery poison.

IX. Christ's likeness to Moses.—Moses was the greatest prophet that ever arose in Israel; Christ is the greatest that has ever arisen among men. Moses as a servant re-among men. Moses as a servant received and revealed the law-to the people; Christ as the only begotten Son of God came from the "bosom of the Father" and revealed His perfect law to the world. God "spake in time past unto the fathers by the prophets"; in these last days He has spoken unto us by His Son.

and gave them the ten commandments. This jesson embraces the first four. I. Thou shalt have no other gods before me. 2. Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image.

3. Thou, shalt not take the name of of the Lord thy God in vain. 4. Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.

III. Topic: The duties we owe to our fellowmen. Place: Mount Sinai. This jesson embraces the last six of the ten commandments.

IV. Topic: Israel's idof worship. Place: Mount Sinai. After the ten commandments were given to children of Israel, the Lord called Moses up into the mount where he word is very nigh unto thee, in the wages of disobedience are "death and evil." We are appealed to as being possessing a power of choice, with the exhortation to "Choose life that both thou and thy seed may five."

XII. Moses dies but his work lives remained for forty days.

V. Topic: Setting up the tabernacle. Place, Mount Sinai. Moses commanded that the tabernacle be set up, the ark and the furniture were to be put in the tabernacle; the altar of burnt-offering and the lavar were to be put in the court before the tabernacle.

VI. Topic: The consequences of dramkenness. Place, Mount Sinai. Nadah and Abihu. Aaron's sons. put prepared for His people. Moses for drmkenness. Place, Mount Sinal, Nadab and Abihu, Aaron's sons, put strange fire in their censers and went in before the Lord; the fire of the Lord devoured them.

just punishment. Place: The valley of Arabah. The Israelites are obliged to go to war.

X. Topic: True and false worship. Place: East of the Jordan opposite Jericho. The abominations of the heathen are enumerated and positively forbidden by the Almighty.

XI. Topic: The blessing and the curse. Place: East of the Jordan, opposite Jericho. God's commandments are not hidden, and are not afar off; before every one is set "ilfe and good, and death and evil;" the commandment is given to love God and walk in His ways; a blessing is promised to those who do, but a curse is pronounced upon those who worship other gods and serve them; all are urged to choose life.

XII. Topic: Closing scenes in the life of Moses. Place: Mount Pisgah. Moses goes up from the plains of Moals to the top of Pisgah; the Lord showed him the land of promise, but told him that he should not go over.

At Montreal this week there has been a fairly active demand for goods for the fall in some depart-ments of business. Travellers, after being off their routes for about a month in connection with the Exhibition openings, returned from Toronto to their routes again this week and have since been sending in some liberal sized orders. At Pacific Coast trade centres, according to reports to Bradstreet's, there has been some improvement in wholesale trade. At Winnipeg there has been a steady expansion in the demand for fath and winter goods: Hamilton wholesale trade circles display a good deal of activity at present. Orders from the Northwest are quite plentiful now that bountiful crops are assured, and trade in Ontario is picking up notwithstanding the fact that the grain deliveries at country markets are comparatively light and trade is a trifle slow in some cases as is usual when the farmers are busy at this season. The factories and mills are busy with orders on contracts and have little or reports to Bradstreet's, there has ders on contracts and have little on nothing to job, so that values an firmly maintained in most deparments of trade. Then he

I may like you, and I may not like you; but I don't fly at your throat and call you bad names by way of introducing myself, even though I find my wife and daughter hiding away under the shadow of your wing, as it were, from their own husband and father."

Here he looked up at me sideways with a slow nod, to emphasize the little legen in the control of the complex control of the contro same thing more than a week together—barring a miracle."

And Mr. Ellmer looked at me, with his head a little on one side, as if expecting that the narration of his experience would conclusively affect my views on matrimony. As I said nothing, however, being, indeed, too much involved in a whirlpool of doubts and longings and miserable certainties to have any neatly-turned phrases ready with which to carry on the conversation he presently cleared his throat and went on again.

"You see," he said, with an odd assumption of paternal dignity which covered some genuine feeling as well as some genuine humbug, "it isn't often that I can spare the time to take a journey as long as this. Therefore, when I in, I like to see some thing for my trouble. Well, and what I mean to see this time is one of two things, either I leave with the knowledge that my daughter is engaged to be married to an honorable gentleman who is able to support her, and willing to be good to her, or I leave with my daughter herself, and I put her in the way of earning her own living on the stage, which is a more honorable position than playing lodgekeeper to any gentleman in the land.

"And you would take her mother with her, of course?" I said as easily as I could, with a sudden gloomy misgiving that Babiole, happy as she was among the hills, would snatch at was among the nuis, would snaten at the chance of rushing into the con-flicts of the busier life in which she took such an ominous interest, "Oh, she can do as she likes," an-swered Mr. Ellmer, with a sudden return, at mention of his wife, to sul-len and brutal ferocity of look and tone.

I was horror-struck at the possibility of my little fairy choosing to leave the shelter of the hillside under the protection of this man, whose the protection of this man, caprice of paternal pride and affection might, I thought, at any mo ment of drunken irritation or disar polatment, change to the selfish cru elty with which he had treated hi hard-working wife,

"Will you give me till to-morrow morning to think about it, and to speak to Babiole, Mr. Ellmer?" I asked, after a few moments' rapid thought. "In the meantime we will do our best to make you comfortable, either here or at the cottage. O able, either here or at the cottage. Of course, I cannot prevent your saying what you please to your daughter, but I hope you will, in fairness to me, let me plead my own cause unbiassed by one word from you. The subject is one I know she has never dreamed of, and it will surprise, and may even startle her very much. So that I may ask so much of you, and beg you to rely on my discretion."

"Why not? She seems to like you."
"She does like me, as a beautiful girl may like a grandfather, battered and scarred in war, or a lomeless cur which she has picked up and which has grown attached to her." To be frank with you, Mr. Ellmer, nothing but my ugly face prevents me from becoming a suitor for your daughter; but that obstacle is one which, without any undue self-depreciation, I know to be one which makes happy marriage Mr. Ellmer seemed pleased with the success of his diplomacy, and he of-fered me a fat, pink, lazy hand to shake.

"Say no more, sir; between gentle men that is quite sufficient. And I should like to add, sir, that if every thing should turn out as we both desire, you need have no fear of belin sire, you need have no fear of being put upon by your wife's relations, whatever Babiole's mother may say. The votaries of art, sir, are used to poverty and need not blush for it. But I should be glad to think that my devotion to it had brought only its dignity and not its penalties upon my daughter."

I shook his hand heartily, almos I shook his hand heartily, almost feeling, for the moment, so deep was his own conviction, that this greasy person with the paper collar—whose language and sentiments, like an untuned musical instrument, could rise and fall to such unexpected heights and depths—was really treating me with a generous condescension for which I ought to be grateful.

I accompanied him to the door, and be grateful.

I accompanied him to the door, and watched his ponderous figure making its way to the cottage, near the entrance of which I saw his wife waiting for him; then I whistled to Tata, who had followed the stranger lor a few stens in order to get a betfined neuralgia as "a cry of the nerves for better blood," and to ef-fectually drive it from the system the ta, who had followed the stranger for a few steps in order to get a better view of his retreat, and, taking blood must be made rich, red and my hat, went down the drive for a walk. It was past five, and the April sun was shining out a fair good-night to the hills after a day of rain; faint tufts of pale green were showing on the dark foliage of the larch-trees, and the darks in the soft green were pure. For this purpose there is no other medicine so prompt and sure in result as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills make new, rich, red blood with every dose, and impart new life and new vigor to the person using them. Mr. John McDennott, Bond Head, Ont., offers strong proof of the certain results obtained from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pils in cases of this kind. He says: "A few the forefinger of his right hand uptaised, and the dusty point of his

Hope for myself, I can assuredly say, I had very little; and, if this modesty seems excessive in a man in the very prime of life, who, moreover, had already some sort of assured place in the esteem of the girl he loved, I can only say that there was a balance against me in the books of the sex which I was paying off to this one member of it, and, therefore, in proportion as I had felt myself to be too good for the rest of those I had met, so I felt that Babiole Ellmer was too good for me. The matter mer was too good for me. The matter was arranged in my own mind with very little trouble, and I was eager to unfold it to her. I had half expected to find her in the road through the fir-forest, knowing that after the development.

road through the fir-forest, knowing that after the day's rain the little maid must be thirsting for a long draught of the fresh sweet air-but no; I passed through it and out into the open country, over the stone bridge of Muick, skirted the Dee and out it again by Ballater Bridge, without a glim

I had no distinct purpose in coming so far, and the faint bark of my own dog, which reached my ears as I was ascending the bare and rocky space which separates the oak-grown lower slope from the fircrowped summit of the fill, caused me to stop suddenly in surprise and excitement so sharp and so sudden that all the blood in my body seemed to rush to my head, and my heart to continue its action by inwonted, tumultuous leaps.

I pulled myself together, not without some consternation at the phenomenon.

"I came up the hill too fast," I said to mys.if, and crept up the slabs of rocks that now formed a wet and slippery footway among the firs, with a sensation of horror at the thought of Babbole's trusting her little feet on such a treacherous path. At the top, a little way beyond the cairn, I came upon her suddenly. She was sitting on the trunk of a fallen tree, looking out to the western hills, across the slopes of which were lying dense, cloud-like mists, against the blackness of the darkening hill-sides. The last rays of the sluking sun threw upon her face a weird unnatural glow, and caused her moist eyes to glisten like strange gems in the sun-lit marble of her still features. The wild sweet sadness of her expression, like that sadness of her expression, like that of a gentle animal who has been stricken, and does not know why brought a lump to my throat, and caused me to halt at some distance from her with a feeling of shy respect.

pect. Ta-ta who sat by her side, with a sensitively-dilating nose on the young girl's knee, saw me at once, but merely wagged her tail as an apologetic intimation that I must excuse her from attendance on me, as she had weightier business on hand than mere idle frisking about my heels.

PARADISE OF

Jamaica the Home of the Obeah Man-Curious and Elaborate Scheme to Frighten Away Ghosts.

Every one of the West India isands has been described, more or less accurately and sarcastically, as a paradise of some sort. Hayti has been christened as the Eden of the professional revolutionists, Cuba as the Eden of the hungry expatriot, Trinidad as the paradise of the American "promoter" and Jamaica, the fairylike, as the earthly heaven of the obeah man.

According to the books the government of Jamaica is vested in officers of the British crown, but as a matter of fact the meanest obeah man upon the island is more respected and feared than the most dig-nified dignitary that ever exhibited his gold lace before the dusky population. Desperately and vigorously for 200 years the powers that be have plotted and planned to overthrow the science of witcheraft, and yet to-day the obeah man is as num ous and as powerful as he was be fore the first Briton landed upon th shores of the island. Laws have been made to batter his influence to pieces and schools have been es-tablished to undermine it, but, though his clients are taught the futility of his art and he himself is sent to the stone pile, he continues to flourish like the green bay tree

From the west coast of Africa the first obeah man came with the first shipload of slaves brought to Jamalca by the Spanish pirates who wrested the Island from the Indiana. In each ship thereafter one of his brethren was a passenger. To-day their descendants lord it over 714,-000 blacks and black and tans, who make up 99 per cent. of the island's population. The laws against them are useless and the efforts of the 14,000 white Jamaicans to destroy their power by showing that it is not power at all are worse than futile.

Obeah Like Hoodoo Man. Except in Kingston and a few other larger towns the obeah man is a greater personage than the resident administrator. The latter may send a man to prison and may even order him to be flogged, but he has no grasp upon his immortal soul. The obeah man has—and he makes use of it

The obeah man has—and he makes use of it.

His methods are the methods of the "hoo-doo man" of southern Maryland, the "voo-doo" man of Georgia and the "snake dootor" of the back woods of Mississippi. He effects a queer garb and uses queer words. In his house are piles of dried herbs, old bones and bits of junk, broken glass of many colors, scraps of gaudy calico, cracked pebbles, egg shells and battered coins are his talisman. With their aid he can force nine-tenths of King Edward's Jamalcan subjects to do anything or everything he may desire. He is their absolute master, their lawyer, physician, protector, advisor and monabsolute master, their lawyer, physician, protector, advisor and monarch. According to their simple articles of faith his enmity means death. Consequently they endeavor to propitiate him and please him. Consequently, also, he waxes rich. The case of an obeah man recently tried at Morant Bay, a small town on the west coast. was a typical one. The official account of it illustrates very well the witch doctors method of working and also throws a side light upon the means adopted by the police to land him in the toils.

"Constable Clarke, of Morant Bay,"

"Constable Clarke, of Morant Bay," says the story, "went to the house of Hamlet Richards on the 15th inst., in civilian dress, and representing himself as being a headman on an estate, asked the latter to remove some ghosts which three men whom he had sept to prison put on him. Richards informed him that the ghosts were on him very badly, and told him to return on the 19th inst., and bring a pint of rum, a cock, two eggs, a yard of calico, nine pebbles and 20 shillings in money. He returned on the 19th bringing these articles with him. He met Richards about a mile outside the town and they proceeded to his house together. Richards lives about six miles from Richards informed him that the Richards lives about six miles from Morant Bay. When they got to the house Richards gave him some hogs' tusks to hide in the thatch of his house, a vial containing mercury to bury in front of his door, some hair to sleep on and a box of gave him to sleep on and a box of grayish powder to put under his pillow for nine nights. He also "flogged" him on nights. He also logged him on the shoulders with some weeds. Having frightened away the ghosts' Richards asked for pay-ment, and the constable in hand-ing the money to him rattled loud-

—a signal previously arranged—antered and arrested Richards. Richards had a gun in his hand, which he was in the act of firing over Constable Clark's head as a finish-

"Accused was found guilty and sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment with hard labor."

Not an Isolated Case. This case should not be considered an isolated one by any means. Almost daily the Jamalean newspapers contain reports of the capture of obean men. The general penitentiary at Kingston and the various district prisons are full of them. And it must be remembered that not more than 5 per cent. are ever enmeshed by the officers of the law. Their victims had rather jump before a moving train than give evidence against them. This is why the police find it necessary to employ means such as those desembley means such as those desembles. why the police find it necessary to employ means such as those described above to catch them. When they are captured the law deals severely with them, but they are perfectly willing to take the risk. And it is no wonder that they are, for in this country of little money where the wages of an ordinary laborer are from 25 to 50 cents a day the obeah man may obtain laborer are from 25 to 50 centre as day, the obeah man may obtain a fee of $25 for pronouncing a few meaningless words over a sick baby.

The British Government has sta-

The British Government has stationed district medical officers in every parish in the island, but when the average black is ill he no more thinks of consulting a regular physician than he would of taking advice from a constable. If he finds that his home remedies do not cure him and year of the hearth he has tried from a constable. If he finds that his home remedies do not cure him —and very often before he has tried them—he seeks out an obeah man and applies for treatment. First of all the latter takes a shilling fee. Then he delves into his stock of miscellaneous rubbish and concocts a vial of foul emelilug liquid. This he carries to the sick man's house and smears its contents over the walls. Then he repeats a few unjutelligible Then he repeats a few unintelligible words, rolls his eyes, walks around the house three times and hangs a bettle containing a pebble and a bit of cloth over the door. Then he pockets his fee—which is as large as the partient can afford and downton. the patient can afford—and departs. If the latter dies it was because "the spirits were too strong." If he gets well—great, indeed, is the obeah

Having frightened away the 'ghosts' Richards asked for payment, and the constable in handing the money to him rattled loudly, an arrangement which brought in two constables in plain clothes, who were concealed outside. ATHENS, SEPTEMBER 24, 1902.

At Toronto last week a man was arrested for selling the return half of a railway ticket. He was kept all night in a foul cell at the police station, where the back wash from a choked sewer flooded the floor, and taken the next morning before the Police Magistrate who sentenced him to pay a fine of $20 and costs or to spend eleven days in jail. The conviction was made under a clause of the Railway Act. The arrest was made without a warrant by a railway detective. The sale of the ticket caused no loss to anyone. The owner of it had bought the right to ride on the railway to a certain point, and he sold this right to another, who would receive no more from the railway than the original purchaser had paid for. Yet a crime under the law had been committed, and the penalty provided by Parliament was rigidly imposed.

It will be noticed that the face of the king on the new Canadian coinage is turned to the left. The reason for this is that for upwards of 200 years whenever there is a fre h coinege after the accession of a new British monarch the head of the new monarch on the new coins faces in the opposite direction to that of his or her immediate predecessor. There does not appear to be any reason for it : it is just a custom.

GRAPES SCARCE THIS YEAR.

This is the time of year when the grape trade should be at its best, but, in fact, very few baskets of the luscious fruit have arrived in the city. A city fruit dealer said last evening: "The grapes crop is almost a failure this year e to the excessive cold and wet of the past summer. There should be tons of fruit moving now, but there is been made by boring many feet below scarcely a shipment at all. The wine makers of St. Catharines are offering be bedrock in the stream bottoms. $25 and $30 a ton for grapes and supply the packages themselves. Ordinarily the price per ton is only from $15 to $20. Unless the weather continues warm, the prices will be higher. A sharp frost now would cut off the crop.

DATES ON OLD COINS MADE PLAIN

Most boys have an old silver coin of some kind which they are keeping as a relic, either for sentimental reason or because they think it worth more than its face value. In some instance the date or the inscription has been obliterated and it is impossible to read it, even with a strong glass. The foltowing method, originally practised at the mint, to discover the genuine coins when silver was called in, will enable any one to read an obliterated inscription: Make the poker red hot in the fire and then place the silver coin on it. The inscription will be plainly visible in a greenish hue which will fade as the coin cools.

MINERS WILL NEVER YIELD.

Claim They Can Hold Out Ali Winter,

New York, Sept. 22.—President Mitchell, before a mass meeting of workingmen, declared that the anthracite mine workers would remain out all winter if necessary to gain their end, and were in a position too do so. "After four weary months," he said, "the miners stand as strong as when the strike began. They will never return to the mines until they are treated as American workingmen should be, and, thanks to the gener-ous assistance given to them they, can and will stand out all winter, if necessary, to win this fight."

Late in 1900 Mr. Moore was sent to South Africa by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, in connection with the shipments of supplies for military purposes, and while there he made a personal study of the requirements of the markets from a Canadian standpoint. During his visit he had interviews with the leading importers and business men of Durban, East London, Port Elizabeth, and Cane Town. and Mr. Moore states: Cape Town, and Mr. Moore states:
"In each of these centres of trade
I was impressed with the cordial and friendly feeling displayed by the people generally towards Canada and Canadians. The existence of this sentiment makes the present a specially opportune time specially opportune time introduction of Canadian products. Our participation in the war has made Canada something more than a name to British Sout Africa, and the interest thus awak-ened manifests itself in business circles, in a general desire for closer commercial relations with Can-

'The magnitude and value of the South African market was recognized by our neighbors in the United States some years ago, and, by persistent effort and good business persistent effort and good business tactics, they have built up a trade worth in 1899 about eighteen million dollars. A fortnightly steamship service has been in operation for several years between New York and South African ports, and trade has increased rapidly. Commercial travellers

Representing United States Firms, Representing United States Firms, and thoroughly conversant with South African methods and customs of business, are continually soliciting orders. A flourishing business is also done by New York commission houses. Their procedure is as follows: A representative, sent out to promote the interests of one of these firms, travels around the country until he has become somewhat familiar with the conditions of trade and the manner of transacting business. He then makes one town his headquarters, and in cach of the other commercial centres appoints resident agents who sell on commission. All agents who sell on commission. All sales made by these sub-agents have to be confirmed by the head representative, so that he can check any dealings with firms of no financial standing. Such a precaution is very essential, because this business is all done on drafts with documents at tached. If a sale be made the New York house receives its commission of 2 1-2 per cent. or whatever the

The great disadvantage of transacting business through this medium is found in the multitude of lines sold by those commission houses, leading them to work along the lines of least resistance, and to push the articles that are well known and sell west resistance. most readily.

Direct Representation. "Of primary importance is the ques to introduce Canadian firms into the South African market, and to make Canadian products known. Some pin their faith on the efficacy of a catalogue; but the concensus of opinion of business men on this point convinced me that, used alone as or vinced me that, used alone as an agent to secure new business, the catalogue is nearly asseless. When a South Africa ness, the catalogue is nearly uscless. When a South African firm receives a catalogue from a foreign house with which they have not had any dealings, the chances are a thousand to one that it is never taken out of the wrapper. Every mail brings hosts of circulars and catalogues, which find their way only into the waste paper basket. The most effective agency our com-petitors possess is the Direct Rep-sentative. One good agent who possesses energy, ability, and tact is ous lines.

A Land of Samples and Brands.

"In South Africa "Samples" and Brands' play an important part in business. To sell a new article a sample must first be submitted, and if the sample be a good sized one a better impression is created than if it be a mean, niggardly one. Careful attention to those small matters is repaid a hundred fold, while neglect of them may spoil a good business opportunity. It is a capital thing to make up a small consignment, representative of the lines to be introduced, and to ship the lot to some reputable firm, advising them that they are to take what samples they require and make returns for the belegate.

that they are to take what samples they require and make returns for the balance.

"Every article, especially in food stuffs, should be sold under a brand. If the price and quality be satisfactory, and the brand judiclously advertised, it will soon take a firm hold on the market, because the people will ask for it and will take mo other.

people will ask for it and will take no other.

"In the past, 'price' rather than 'quality,' has ruled in South Africa. This still applies to a large proportion of the up-country trade; but in the towns the well-to-do class want a good article, price being a secondary consideration.

Prospects for the Future. "The restoration of confidence in the political future of South Africa, combined with the world-wide adcombined with the world-wide advertisement the country has received from the war, will undoubtedly result in a much greater investment of capital and a large influx of population. Canadians will have to be on the alert if they wish to participate in the expected expansion of the South African market, with a direct service; keen business representatives; enterprising shippers, who will work for future rather than present profits, and a determination to meet the special requirements of the market, there is nothing to hinder the development of a trade worthy of our velopment of a trade worthy of our people and the resources of our country."

Mr. Moore further stated that "be-ing interested specially in food pro-ducts, I paid particular atten-tion to the needs of the market in this branch of the trade and quired as well into the sources sup-plying present demands. In the fol-lowing details Natal and Cape Colony are treated separately, because in some respects the trade of each presents different features. In dealing with the imports I have used the figures for 1898, in order to show the normal trade before the

Flour Free From Duty.

The first consignment of Canadian flour arrived at Durban while I was there, and it proved satisfactory in every respect. The dealers were very much pleased with the quality, and sent repeat orders for the same brands. The 56 lb. box is a mitchly cent. suitable package for the local trade of Durban; but tinned butter is ab-solutely necessary for the interior trade. Durban has cold storage accommodation; on the railroads and in the small up-country towns cold storage is unknown. The tinned but-ter trade, therefore, is bound to

"Wheat duty 50 cents per hundredweight; total imports in 1898, $4,185,070. The importation of wheat for milling in the colony is encouraged by the imposition of a duty of $1.12 per hundred weight on flour. Compared with wheat the importation of flour is small, being valued at $368,690 in 1898. There should be a market here for our valued at $508,030 in 1898. There should be a market here for our hard spring wheat, the United States having at present a monopoly in this line. One company alone with mills at Port Elizabeth and Capetown import mouthly from 20,000 to 25,000 bushels of hard spring wheat. Cheese

"Duty on cheese 6c per pound; imports in 1898 $353,290. For the trade of Port Elizabeth and East London, small sized cheeses are re quired, and our big 70 pound cheese is utterly unsuitable. In Cape Town, however, where there is a fine retail grocery trade, the large size is quite acceptable. Butter

"On butter the duty is 6 cents per pound; imports in 1898 $818,855. The remarks concerning cheese apply with equal force to butter. Box butter will sell in Cape Town for the retail grocery trade, but in the wholesale centres, where the largest quantities are imported, tinned butter is wanted by the trade.

"In bacon and hams the requirements of the trade in Cape Colony coincide with those of Natal.

exhaust the food products that, under favorable conditions, Canada might supply. Good potatoes are almost a luxury in South Africa, yet France and England ship enormous quantities to that market every year; California finds there a big and profitable market for dried and tinned fruits; canned meats from Chicago are on sale in every town and village; and Australian frozen and chilled meats are found wherever cold storage exists. Quaker oats (the best advertised article in South Africa) is used on every breakfast table; while Swiss condensed milk holds such complete sway that the milkman is practically unknown. The importation of split peas and beans importation of split peas and beans is extremely large, but a fair por-tion is Canadian grown, shipped via New York. Tinned vegetables find a ready sale, and tinned British Col-umbia salmon is in demand."

Mr. Moore concluded by saying "The whole question of South African trade is a large, many sided one, and I have but imperfectly referred to some of its features. The information I have endeavored to convey, and the suggestions I have endeavored to convey, and the suggestions I have ventured to make, are, however, the result of close observation and careful inquiry, and are, I believe, fully warranted by present conditions of trade in South Africa."

It is said that if followed faithfully the directions given below for developing the neck will enable the scraggiest girt to wear a collariess gown within three months time. The same exercise will make the uncomfortably fat throat of the pudgy girl shim and ladylike.

I. Arms at the sides Bring them slowly forward and upward. As the arms come over the head, rise on the toes and breathe in. Turn the hands toward the floor and push them down at the sides, letting the breath out slowly. At the same time lower the heels. Do this 10 times.

II. Push the arms out slowly to the sides, as in swimming, and take a long, deep breath as the arms go dut. Then bend the arms hack to position again, letting the breath out. Eight times. To fill out the holtows of the lower part of the neck.

III. Bend the arms so that the clumbbells rest on the chest, the clows close at the side. Extend the arms quickly sideways 10 times and then upward 10 times.

Pride-the cruel pride denounced in the Bible, the pride which delighted to humiliate, the mortal moral dis of the mighty—is now but sel-seen. The dying out of cartain dom seen. The dying out of certain forms of power, the increase all over Europe of individual freedom, have abated "the despitefulness of the

Take two common forms of pride pride of birth and pride of intellect, and see how they have been modified of late. Surely in the present day the former does more good than harm. The pride which could in-flict torture for presumption is hardly conceivable now. Pride of intellect still lives, and still divides man and man far more widely than pride of birth. But pride of intellect is not what it was. Agnosticism in all its forms has dealt it a fearful blow.—London Spectator.

Then almost every country has its own standard mile. The Romans had their mile passuum, 1,000 paces, which must have been about 3,000 feet in length. The German mile to-day is 24,318 feet in length, more than four and a half times as long as ours. The Dutch, Danes' and Prussians' mile is 18,449 feet, three and a half times as long as ours, and the Swiss get more exercise in walking one of their miles than we get in walking five miles, for their mile is 9,158 yards long.—Titemen.

FACING MURDER CHARGE.

Was Treated as a Slave, Yet Would Not Leave-Got Only His Board and Clothes-His Own Narrative.

Rodney despatch: The inquest into the death of James William Freeman, the adopted son of Mr. D. B. Freeman of Aldto. ough, was concluded yesterday afternoon, the jury finding that the boy came to his death from a gunshot wound from the hands of Charles William King. The only new evidence brought out was that Mr. Freeman was in the habit of whipping Charles King, the accused, and the last time he whipped him was in June last in the field, because he did not attend to the seed drilling as Mr. Freeman thought he should after repeated warnings. King looked better and more at ease to-day than at previous examinations. He was taken to St. Thomas jail last night to awatt his preliminary examination before the Poilce Magistrate.

King's Story. The people of Rodney and vicinity abhor the atrocuty of the crime, but comment with astonishing freedom on the circumstances over which king had little control, which served to blight his early life and make him as a phot days. With this served to hight his early life and make him an abject slave. With this phase of the case the people's sympathy deals, and right generously, too. Still, for more than six years they have tolerated these things, which they now regard with so much aversion. When Charles King was taken from the Toronto home, where he had heen brought with other youngsters fresh from the same of Whitechapel's dreary portals, by Farmer Freeman, he was 17 years old. Dwarfed by contact with bitter over the waster of the waster. poverty at a tender age, the waif looked younger than his years. Yet he was strong and vigorous though of stunged growth.

Farmer's Agreement.

The farmer's Agreement in taking the young man was that he should clothe and feed him until he was of age. In justice to Mr. Freeman it is now taid that he frequently told King to leave the place after he reached his majority, but he "hung around Ainder like a dog." This is probably true, but it is also true that hired man King asserts that that hired man King asserts that he was a fairly good farm hand, and he was securing his services for his board and clothes, when a "fairly good farm hand" commands $20 nd keep in the vicinity of ey. but they said I was too big."

Awful Environment.

It was this environment that produced a thing, in hany respects resembling a man, yet so devoid of moral conception as to deliberately kill a 15-year-old boy, not in a moment of passion, but deliberately, and for the reason that he would profit by the crime—that he would profit by the crime—that he would profit by the crime—that he would be the preferred child, perhaps, receive treatment as good as that accorded Willie Freeman, the adopted child of the old farmer. What will prevent King being hanged is not apparent. In a sense be is of weak mentality, or otherwise he would hardly have meckly submitted as a man to being lashed by his employer when he failed to please him. His manner is that of the slave bowed down. So hungry does the murderer appear for kind words, that the pitying smile of a reporter caused him to brighten up and ask his guard to let "that man speak to me." So much like a slave is King that his guards do not treat him as a murderer, and a man made desperate by the proximity of the gibbet.

That the constable did not fear an effort to escape was evident, for he never looked around to see if his charge was following. The authorities even discussed the advisability of letting the prisoner sleep in the village hotel Monday night to save a trip back to the St. Thomas jail.

Wil Ask for Panetry. Wil Ask for Penalty.

One of the leading officials for the prosecution declared positively that he could conscientiously ask for the infliction of death penalty, and that the case was one of deliberate murder. There is no possible defence but insanity, and this can scarcely be urged with sufficient offections. ent effectiveness to save the miser able creature from the consequence of his deliberate act. King's most probounced sympathizers do not in-sist that he is crazy or has ever been. They do assert, though, that he could not be "right" or he would never have submitted to so much abuse and worked more than six years as a farm hand for his board and clothes. There is ample testimony that King is no fool. He was known to speak at church meetings and took quite a part as a temperance organizer. The defence promises lises to be vigorous, however, and W. L. McLaws, of St. Thomas, will conduct the case. He refused to indicate the line of defence, but he says he has no fear that his client will be hanged.

MADE TO DIG OWN GRAVES

Murder of U.S. Teachers in Philippines.

LIGHT ON A SHOCKING CRIME

San Francisco, Sept. 22 .- Details of the cowardly murder of four American school reachers near Cebu by Tabotada's band of ladrones have Intotada's band of ladrones have just been received by mail. It seems that on June 11 Ernest Hager, Lewis A. Thomas, Clyde O. France and John E. Wels, American school teachers at Cebu, went into the hits near that city for a day's outing. They only took luncheon with them, expecting to be back by 5 o'clock. They failed to return, and the constabulary sent out a searching party the next day but could get no clue. Several parties of armed men were sent out, out all failed to get any trace of the teachtaught his position as a slave and right well he appeared to have learned it. Though 25 years of age he received the same treatment that a general, but now a lieutenant in the united States constabiliary, agreed to go out and get news. He pretended to be a deserter, and in this way to be a deserter, and in this way mide his way to Tatoiacas camp. Meanwhile a strong armed party of eachers scoured the country arrested several suspects, but did not resort to the "waser cure." They could get nothing from the prisoners. One native they released was a wit-ness of the muriar of the ness of the murder of the teachers and when he declared he knew nothing of it he was within 500 yards of the victims' graves.

Luga Young Tabotada, but the ladrone leader suspected him, and in a quarrel he drew a silver mounted re-volver that Luga identified as belonging to Wells. Luga rushed at him and escaping the andit's fire, shot Tab tada dead in his tracks. Luga found a gold watch, fiel! glasses, and other articles belonging to the missing teachers. He also brought in a native who told of the murder and led searchers to the graves. It seems scarchers to the graves. It seems that eight ladrones captured the teachers, stripped them and then actually made them dig their own graves. Heger and Thomas were graves. Heger and Thomas made to stand by the graves were shot, falling into the holes Wells and France tried to run, but were shot down and tumbled into the graves with their companions. Three men who were in the ladrone party were captured and made to carry their victims' bodies to Cebu.

Bodies of Messrs Bruce and Alleged Reason for Defeat of Lewis Hacked to Pieces.

Victoria, B. C., Sept. 22.—Details Victoria, R. C., Sept. 22.—Details were received by the Empress of India of the massacre of Messrs. Bruce and Léwis at Chang Te Hunan.

For weeks the cholera has been depopulating the cities along the Yuan River. In Chang Te they died daily by the score, and from reliable reports the same can be said of the cities west. Chenchou is built on a hillside, and in the centre of the city is a famous spring, from which the people obtain much of their water. This was reported to have been polsoned by the foreigners, and hence the high death rate.

One afternoon Mr. Lewis was studying with his teacher, and Mr. Bruce was in his room across the hall, when in an instant the house and street became crowded with people.

Mr. Bruce was deave by he his heir

Mr. Bruce was drawn by his hair out of the room, and luto the yard, where with clubs, stones, knives, swords and torture, they soon killed him. Mr. Lewis and his teacher went out at the back door into the yard, and started to climb up on an old shed, when a "stroke from a spear brought the former to the ground. With the same instruments as used above his hody was soon beyond recognition. Eyes were knocked out, and the bodies otherwise mutilated beyond recognition. After tilated beyond recognition. After this the mob destroyed all foreign books and other articles they could not use. The trunks and boxes were broken open, but none of the pol-son could be found. When the crowd had almost disappeared, the Chihifu arrived, and had their bodies remov-ed into their respective rooms. On the same street, and a few doors away, were stationed soldiers fo protection. TARIFF COMPROMISE.

Mr. Bertram Hoped it Might Last Ten Years. [Monetary Times.]

The tariff question, according to the repeated declarations of the Premier, is not at present an open question. The late George Bertram, who prominently interested himself in the settlement of the compromise tariff each of the tariff each of the compromise tariff each of the tariff each of the compromise tariff each of the tariff each of the compromise tariff each of the compromise tariff each of the components the components of the compone himself in the settlement of the compromise tariff, asked that it be allowed to remain undisturbed for ten years; that during that period there should be no aggression by the one side or the other. When the history of the struggle to obtain that compromise is written, the difficulty of the task of getting for the manufacturers what they now enjoy will be seen. Canada has a great and, in the future, a mighty West, which regards an increase of the present tariff as strongly antagonistic to its interests. For years, during the existence of the avowedly during the existence of the avowedly protectionist Government, the West called for a lowering of the tariff, on agricultural implements, coal oil, and other things necessary to its and other things necessary to its progressive advancement. It bore with impatience the burthens of high tariff. When a compromise was made, though the West was far from getting what it had asked, agitation ceased. The inevitable was accepted, with, it must be said, a good group. was accepted, with, it must be said, a good grace. At present, the great West is filling up with unwouted rapidity; vast numbers, of immigrants are coming in to increase the riches of a harvest which has air-ady extended beyond the bounds of the most sanguine expectations that anyone ventured to entertain a few years ago. Would it be tain a few years ago. Would it be wise to repel the newcomers, by an untimely increase of the tariff on their implements and clothing? Is it safe or wise for the manufacturers aggressive, selfish policy? We have had a taste of agricultural agitation in the form of the patrons of in-dustry, and the shadows of the grainger movement, across the bor-der, should remind us that the subder, should remind us that the substance may come to vex us, on this tide, if we act indiscreetly. The agriculturists of the West are men with clear-cut opinions, where their own interests are concerned; and they will resist with all their force any increase of the tariff which could introduce of the tariff which could introduce of the tariff which could increase of the tariff which could injuriously affect them; if such increase were decreed they would resent it politically, on the first occasion that offered. A counter movement once begun in the great West, who can say where it would end? The late Mr. Bertram's hope that the tariff might last for ten years might then be less secure of realization. That the demand for an increase in the tariff, at the present time is not the tariff, at the present time, is not without danger, there are manufac-turers who fully realize, and their fears are, in our opinion, well founded.

Ottawa, Sept. 22.—The report sent out from Odessa, giving the impres-sion that the Doukholors in Canada have been sounding the Rassian Government with a view to their repatriation in the Czar's domains, was shown to Mr. Frank Pedley, Superintendent of Immigration, toperintendent of Immigration, to-night. Mr. Pedley said he knew no-thing of the matter and did not credit the report. He expressed the opinion that any little eccentricities opinion that any little eccentricities which might exist among some of the Doukhobors would be eliminated in the course of time.

CHOLERA DEPOPULATED CITIES. PREMIER ISSUES A MANIFESTO.

Melbourne, Victoria, Sept. 22.-Following the dissolution of the Victorian Parliament to-day, in consequence of an adverse vote recently on the Government's schemes for retrenchment, the Premier, W. H. Irvine, issued a manifesto mier, W. H. Irvine, issued a manifesto to the electors, appealing to them to prevent their own servants from paralyzing the administration.

He said that in order to avoid a serious deficit the Government decided on a graduated reduction of the salaries of public servants, and that thereupon the mass of the State employees became rebellious, a strike on the State railroads was openly organized, and in consequence, of the pressure brought to bear on them by the malcontents the assemblymen voted against the Government.

CANADIAN ON BULLER

ays He Never Advised White to Surrender.

SAYS HE TOOK THE DESPATCH

(Toronto World.) "You can tell the Canadian people through the World that there is no truth whatever in the statement that General Buller ever advised Gen eral White to surrender Ladysmith. I was a signalist on the heliographs on the day the advice of surrender was said to have been transmitted, and, in spite of any statement to the contrary in the press or otherwise, I know that no such-message ever was transmitted."

So spoke William Carey, a bright and sturdy young soldier of the King, who has just returned to his home in this city after having served from the beginning to the end of the South African campaign.

Never Suggested Surrender. "You can say," he continued, "that I had to do with the heliographing on that memorable day, and if the particulars of the message are ever made known it will be shown that made known it will be shown that Gen. Buller never even suggested surrender to General White. I was with him during his career there, and every one of us—and there were many of us who knew a good general when we served with him—voted him the finest general that ever breathed the breath of life. When General Joubert was attacking Ladysmith we were twelve miles away, and I took General White's message on the heliograph to Gen. Buller, saying 'I cannot hold out much longer. Gen. Buller aimost cried when we gave cannot hold out much longer. Gene Buller almost cried when we gave him the messages, and he immediatel answered, 'Hold out as long as you can: I am only twelve miles away.' Then Gen. White signalled that he thought it would be impossible for him to hold out, whereupon Gen. Buller heliographed, 'If you must surreader g. t the best conditions possible for your men.' That is the only connection in which Gen. Buller used the word 'surrender,' and every one the word 'surrender,' and every one of us with him commended him for pood advice. In the opinion of all ',' us connected with the 2nd Rifle Brigade, he is the only man who could really get an army corps out of England to-day."

A Brilliant Military Career. Milliant Military Career.
William Carey is 22 years of age, and is a son of John Carey, of Claremont street, who is himself one of the best-known veterans of service to his country living in Toronto. He left iere in 1899 and joined the home service, enlisting with the 2nd Rifle Bri-gade at Rupert Lane, Everton, Liver-pool in August of that year. Just as soon as the first shot was fired in buth Africa his brigade was des patched to the scene of war, under Gen. Buller.

Four Canadians With Buller. "There were only four of us Canadians in the brigade," said the young soldier, "and I tell you we were proud of the way the troops from this country behaved themselves. With me were Dick Richards and Ernest Pont, both of this city and Inch Hore Form Pales. city, and Jack Hoare, from Bolton, Ont. Both Pont and Hoare were killed in action, and Richards is now finishing his time with the brigade. I was with poor Jack Hoare when he passed away, after being shot, and his last words were: 'Well. Bill, I've done this for my Queen and country; we could not all go through—take this message. all go through—take this message to my mother. As requested, I defivered the message given me. Out of about two hundred and fifty who started out in our company only about fifteen are now alive, the rest of them having been shot or having succumbed to sickness. We were with Gen. Buller right through the different encounters to Pilwere with ten. But right the different encounters to Pil-grim's Rest, where that general left the army, and I tell you that we were sorry when he went."

Greeted by Veterans. Among those who first greeted young Carey on his arrival home was Sergt. Turner of the East Kent regiment, who served under General Buller in the Zulu war in 1879, and who knew well the whole territory travelled over by the bold young warrior. Accompanying him in the greeting was John Nunn, who by his activity and alertness has already made arrangements for William to enter the veterans corps in this city and to have such public recognition tendered him as was tendered the other Canadians who served so well for their Queen and King and country.

Mr. George Johnson, Dominion statistician, discussing the coal famine, suggested bringing coal from Wales, and said that a Montreal dealer had ordered 80,000 tons, and Hayden stopped Judge Coulter on the street and asked if the Judge had a grudge against him. Coulter laughingly replied "No," whereupon Hayden drew a revolver and fired twice. One bullet entered directly below the heart, and another in the side. Coulter attempted to disarm the man, and, in the struggle the revolver was discharged, and a third bullet enter Coulter's hand. He succeeded in getting the revolver, however, and Hayden fled.

First Selectman Pratt witnessed part of the affair and gave chase, but Hayden gained on him rapidly and ran to his house, where he procured a shotgun and shot his pursuer just over the heart as he attempted to enter the yard. Hayden then re-entered the house and became involved in a quarrel with his sister, Elizabeth. The latter became frightened and ran into the street, allightened and ran into the street, allightened and ran into the street. Hayden stopped Judge Coulter sister, Elizabeth. The latter became frightened and ran into the street, calling for assistance. A moment later the report of a gun was heard in the rear of the house, and when the crowd which had collected ran into the back yard, they found Hayden on the ground with the top of his head blown off. On the ground beside him was the shotgun with which he had wounded Pratt and then ended his own life.

Pratt and Coulter were taken to Memorial Hospital in New London, Hayden was dishonorably discharged from the navy in 1861, and has the repeatedly to get a pension. He has always been refused, and blamed anyone who refused to take up his case. This is the only reason that can be advanced for the shooting.

Rumors of Inquiries Cause Them Alarm.

THEY FEAR DRASTIC MEASURES

Montreal, Sept. 22.-The rumor current in trade circles here that the tobacco inquiry now in progress is merely the forerunner of a number of other inquiries, which the Govern ment intends to make into different industries, with the object of finding out whether there exists, as some suspect, real combines, either general or local, with the object of maintaining prices excluding competi-

AN OLD TIME COON HUNT.

Coon hunting, except in the newly settled portions of the country, has become an almost extinct art or amusement. To have success in coon hunting, the first essentisl is to locate the feeding grounds of the animals, then having a good coon dog, and a lot of preserverance, success is assured. On Friday evening last the Scribe of the Reporter, accompanied by the manager of the Athens branch of the Merchants' bank, accepted an invitation from John of the Athens branch of the Merchants' bank, accepted an invitation from John Dockrill, the veteran coon hunter of Union Valley, to take a hand in his favorite pastime and go out to Oak Leaf, where it was said the coons were reveling in the luxuriant corn fields of Ormond Greene.

The weather was all that could be desired. Pale luna cast her brightest beams on mother earth, and it was an
