Madam-It's Got to be Blended or You Can't Use it for Pastry as Well as for Bread is sold for what it is—a scientifically blended flour—the original blended flour—pure, honest, reliable.

"BEAVER" FLOUR

Don't bother with two kinds of flour—don't put up with heavy pastry, or flavorless bread.

Order "Beaver" Flour—at your grocer's.

THE T. H. TAYLOR CO., LIMITED, - CHATHAM, Ont.

All this talk about western wheat flours being "pastry" flours, is just plain talk. Anyone, who knows anything about wheat, knows that western wheat flour cannot, will not and does not, make as good pastry as "BEAVER" FLOUR.

Any flour, which is said to be western wheat flour, and makes extra good pies and cake, will be found to be blended like "Beaver" Flour—whether it is sold as such or not.

A blended flour like "BEAVER" FLOUR is the only one that is equally good for bread and pastry. You will understand WHY.

Manitoba wheat has what the bakers call strength. It makes a big loaf of bread; but the bread is spongy or full of holes and lacks flavor.

Ontario wheat, blended with spring wheat, makes the ideal bread and pastry flour. By combining the two in just the right proportions, we have "Beaver" Flour—a flour that makes the real home-made bread and delicious light pastry.

In cities such as Toronto, where bakers have tried a blended flour, it was found that although a smaller appearing loaf was the result, the people refused the Manitoba flour bread in favor of it—and there is now no other flour used.

pathies are with your brother. He is an admirable young man—"

"He will be the Duke of Torbridge," murmured Alicia.

"Quite so," said Lady Gwen, unabashed by this candor. "A very good match for Cynthia. And she would make a very good duchess. Now, my dear Lady Alicia, I want you to give Lord Northam to understand that Cynthia's refusal of him is not final. You know what girls are; at any rate, I do. They are full of whims and fancies. For the moment Cynthia's fancy is set on this young fellow, but if she were to marry him she would bitterly repent her folly. On the other hand, if she married Lord Northam—"

"She would learn to appreciate my brother's good qualities," murmured Alicia.

"Quite so," said Lady Gwen approvingly. "You put it very nicely, my dear. I wish you would tell Lord Northam that he need not give up all hope. I have had a long talk with Cynthia; in fact, I told her my mind pretty plainly. I told her she was a little fool, and I threatened to turn her out of the house; in fact, I gave her twenty-four hours in which to pack and take her departure."

Lady Alicia sat upright and looked hard at the floor, two red spots appearing on her porcelain-like cheeks.

"You told her that," she said.

"I did," replied the Griffin grimly.

Lady Alicia was silent for a minute or two, then she said quietly, gravely: "Was that wise, do you think? I mean, don't you think that was driving her to extremities? She is a peculiar kind of girl; very impulsive, very impetuous. I should think Mr. Frayne is a rather hot-headed young man. They might—you can't tell what they might do."

Lady Gwen started and peered at the fair face before her with a sudden apprehension.

"Do you mean that they—"

"I don't know," replied Lady Alicia; "but I know what I should do in his place—in hers. I should go off and be married out of hand."

Lady Gwen gasped. The idea had never occurred to her.

"You would!"

"Most certainly," said Lady Alicia, with a smile; but the two spots of red had disappeared from her face, and she was now very pale. "Forgive me, but I think you have made a very great mistake. I don't know very much of Miss Drayle, but from the little I do know of her I should think she was the last girl in the world to be driven, as you have attempted to drive her. She is the sort of girl to make a clandestine marriage."

Lady Gwen started up, her face pale under its rouge, her eyes flashing fire.

"I'll soon stop that!" she exclaimed.

"How?" asked Lady Alicia, still smiling.

"I'll shut her up; I'll keep a watch on her!"

"Love laughs at locksmiths," said Lady Alicia, with a laugh. "And one can't do that sort of thing nowadays. Lady Westlake. Miss Drayle is perfectly free to walk out of your house and marry whom she pleases."

"But—" stuttered the Griffin furiously.

Lady Alicia laughed again and shook her head. She was silent for a moment or two, then she said:

"I wonder whether you would let me help you, Lady Westlake? Of course, I am not nearly so clever as you are; every one knows you are the cleverest woman in London, but still—"

"well, there are various ways of looking at things, of dealing with them. I am nearer Miss Drayle's age than you are; I know how a girl in her situation would feel, would act. Let me make a suggestion. Ask me to dinner to-night, and leave me alone with her."

Lady Gwen openly jumped at the offer, but while she was thanking Lady Alicia, with a profuseness in which she did not often indulge, her mind, as keen as Alicia's was at work; she was asking herself why Lady Alicia, who did not appear to be the kind of girl who would be likely to take an interest in the welfare of a mere acquaintance, should be so ready to offer her assistance, and, it is needless to say, the Griffin guessed the reason; this exquisite piece of Dresden china was herself in love with Darrel Frayne!

Beautiful Cynthia;

Victory After Many Defeats.

CHAPTER XV.

"Can't we?" he retorted, with a happy laugh. "Here's something that will do the trick!" He drew the license from his pocket. "Percy Standish thought of it, helped me to get it. To-morrow, dearest! What?"

Her eyes were downcast; then she raised them and looked at him; and they radiated trust and love.

"If—if you say so, Darrel," she said, in a whisper.

Darrel would have caught her to him in his passion of gratitude and joy; but a nursemaid with a perambulator was passing at the time, and he was compelled to restrain himself; but he pressed her hand and murmured, incoherently:

"You are an angel, Cynthia!" he said at last distinctly. "We will get married at once. You must meet me to-morrow; we will—"

He stopped suddenly, not unnaturally confused; for the scheme had been Percy's, and Darrel himself had formed no plans. "I must see Mr. Standish; he will know what we ought to do, and has promised to help us. I don't know his address, by George!"

Cynthia gave it to him.

"I will go round at once when I leave you, and I'll send you word where to meet me. But why not meet me here? Say at eleven o'clock to-morrow morning, dearest?" he added.

"I will come," said Cynthia faintly. She was still bewildered by the prospect which had opened to her. To be married to Darrel to-morrow!

"I must go now, Darrel; Aunt Gwen may miss me. Oh, Darrel, I don't like deceiving her. She has been very good to me up to now; I think she is fond of me. I feel wicked, very wicked. Is there no other way?"

"There is no other way, dearest," he said, gravely.

They separated after many attempts to do so, and Darrel went straight to the Standishes' house.

He met Percy, who was just coming out, and that amiable young man listened sympathetically to Darrel's partial account of his meeting with Cynthia. Percy appeared to have all the details of the plan at his fingers' end.

"I will be at the Park gates at eleven o'clock," he said; "we will take a taxicab to a little place in Surrey. I know the vicar there; he was up at Oxford with me, got pitched into a living early; he will make no difficulty; indeed, he can't. A special license does everything. You can be married and away on your honeymoon before Aunt Gwen is up."

Yainly endeavoring to express his gratitude, Darrel parted from this true friend in need, and just succeeded in catching the train which carried him to Aldershot.

CHAPTER XVI.

TWO WOMEN OF THE WORLD.

Cynthia returned to the home that was to be hers for only a few hours longer, and reached her room undisturbed. For Lady Gwen was shut up in her own apartments. The Griffin was having a bad time of it, for she was suffering from a defeat which had been the greatest, the most difficult to endure, in all her long and intriguing life.

She had gloated over the prospect of being aunt, guide, monitor, and friend to the future Duchess of Torbridge, and Cynthia, by her sickly sentimentality and mulish obstinacy, for so Lady Gwen characterized to herself Cynthia's conduct, had destroyed, shattered, this delightful fabric.

For a time she gave way to her rage and disappointment, but presently she began to think of some means of repairing matters. No doubt Cynthia had dismissed Lord Northam definitely, but would it not be possible for her, Lady Gwen, to qualify Cynthia's refusal? Girls as young as Cynthia had no right to dispose of their own destinies in the ridiculous way in which Cynthia had disposed of hers.

It was obviously Lady Gwen's duty to save her ward and niece from the disastrous step which she proposed to take.

The Griffin, sending for her maid, caused herself to be bowigged, rouged, and carefully made up, ordered the carriage, and had herself driven to Burton Crescent. The footman, who received her with the respect and reverence due to her rank and position, informed her that Lord Northam was not at home, but that Lady Alicia was, and the Griffin was shown up to the drawing-room.

Lady Alicia appeared almost immediately, and Lady Westlake went straight to the point.

"I've come to see you about Northam and that girl of mine, Cynthia," she said, in her direct way—a way which often disconcerted her friends and struck terror to her foes. "I understand that Lord Northam has proposed to her, and that the silly child has refused him. Of course, she is an idiot and doesn't know her own mind. It appears that there is, or she thinks there is, some one else. I may as well be candid, Lady Alicia, and tell you that the other man is—" she seemed to find it difficult to pronounce the name.

Lady Alicia, reclining gracefully amid the cushions which had been chosen to match her faultless complexion, smiled comprehensively.

"You mean Mr. Frayne, dear Lady Westlake," she said sweetly.

"I do," assented the Griffin grimly.

"A young man who is quite unsuitable, quite ineligible. He is the son of a country baronet who is, so I am informed, very much embarrassed; in fact, up to his neck in debt. I could not consent to such a match, and I have told Cynthia so. All my sym-

LOCATING ANTIQUES

In a New Treasure Land.

A COLLECTOR'S ADVENTURES IN SEEKING VALUABLE OLD FURNITURE AND CHINA AMONG THE FISHER FOLK IN THE WILDS OF NEWFOUNDLAND.

Every profession has its secrets; perhaps that of the collector of antiques possesses more than its share. The collector's secrets do not always relate to authenticity. Take, for instance, the matter of locality. The collector who discovers an unexplored region takes as much pains to hide his foot tracks as the man who has discovered a gold mine and has not yet staked his claim.

About five years ago a collector appeared in New York, opened a small shop and sent out pamphlets to private collectors and dealers announcing that his stock "represented part of an important English collection formed in places hitherto unexplored." The word "English" possibly misled his readers; at any rate few of his rivals suspected the source of his wares. Now the collector in question, John Murray Anderson, having made his last trip to the treasure land he discovered is willing to tell everybody that it is Newfoundland.

A Canadian by birth, a cosmopolitan by profession and American by affiliation, he tells an interesting story of his finds. He did not go to Newfoundland as a collector, but he became a collector by the natural course of events.

His first trip to Newfoundland was made as a fisherman in the days when salmon fishing was not restricted and when a catch of fifty a day was not extraordinary. His fad for the time was the collection of postage stamps and he stumbled across whole sheets of an issue catalogued as worth a shilling or so a stamp. He took the entire lot of 22,000, paying about $1,200, and knowing that he could dispose of them advantageously he went to England, opened an office on the Strand and finally sold them complete to a German collector.

This episode was merely preliminary, for during that summer excursion, hobnobbing with fishermen and other native folk, he located many antiques worth having—Chippendale, Adam and Sheraton furniture, "hob grates, Bow and Staffordshire ware, silver, lacquer. He watched the old wives making the famous "hook mats from inherited designs, and became convinced that if it had not been for the disastrous fire of 1892, which ravaged St. John's and left 30,000 homeless, Newfoundland would have been unique in the history of antiques, particularly of the Colonial periods.

Nor was Newfoundland entirely undeserving of the suspicion that fell upon her in the days of smugglers and professional wreckers. Certain it is that many of its unearthed treasures bear out the idea that there was a reason for keeping their whereabouts secret for many years. Some of the stories told emphasize the fact that collecting antiques, like collecting orchids, is a profession often hazardous to life and limb.

There was, for example, one story persistently prevalent when Mr. Anderson first went to Newfoundland. It related to the loss of the steamer Anglo-Saxon. Rumor had it that 400 bodies were washed ashore and rifled of jewels by the wreckers, after which they were buried on the beaches of that part of the coast called Seal Cove, near Cape Race. In the fishermen's huts along the coast, rumor said, were still to be found some of the Anglo-Saxon's spoils.

Mr. Anderson determined one winter to find out the truth of this story and made a journey to Seal Cove on a catamaran, which he describes as a biscuit box on runners. He was under the convoy of Larry O'Rourke, an Irish guide, who made through a beard dripping with icicles one remark on the twenty mile ride. That was merely to inquire if his passenger was warm enough, and the remark was later accompanied by a friendly gesture of rubbing snow on the frostbitten nose of his face. After changing horses and substituting one reticent guide for another the journey was completed. All that was left of the settlement was two fishermen's huts and the story of the rifled bodies resolved itself into the fact that the 400 passengers were poor emigrants, coming to the island without a penny.

In every settlement, no matter how unpromising at first sight, there was usually to be found one family of prominence, comparatively speaking. A wonderful block desk was found at Topsail which is an almost exact double of the one presented by Mrs. Russell Sage to the Metropolitan Museum. This he sold to a Madison avenue dealer for a large sum. Vincent Lockwood, an authority, said that it was probably an early American piece and was possibly made in Newport. The one time owner contends that it is superior to the Metropolitan Museum piece, for while that has the carved birds on the small top shelves, his had the original brasses and the blocking of the front. He found it in a very humble home in other in the bedroom.

When he inquired concerning the fate of the birds which should perch on the places intended for them, the owner said that they "kept 'em until they began to moult." Later it was discovered that the carved birds had been replaced by a stuffed owl and penguin, which explains the remark quoted.

Schoolgirl's Exhausted Nerves

Headaches, Dizzy Spells and Weakness Overcome by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Miss Gallop.

At about the age that most girls are working hardest at school studying for examinations there are important physiological changes taking place which are an additional strain on the nervous system.

Mrs. Gallop has had experience in the cases of her daughter and grand-daughter, and for this reason her letter is particularly interesting to parents.

Mrs. J. A. Gallop, 125 Victoria street, St. John, N.B., whose husband is a carpenter, states:—"We have used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in our family for nervousness, headaches, dizziness and nervous dyspepsia, and have found them satisfactory in every particular. My daughter Bessie was going to school, and became quite run down in health. By the time she had used three boxes of this remedy her nerves were steady, her general health was excellent and she was entirely free from headaches and dizzy spells. We are more than pleased with the results of this treatment."

"More recently we used the Nerve Food for my granddaughter, who was out of school for nearly a year from nervous trouble, and noticed improvement in her condition at once."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 10c a box, $2 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Yates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

On the shady side of 140 Pounds

If your weight exceeds 140 lbs. the tell-tale scale urges the wearing of the La Diva No. 809 corset known as the "NU MODE" sustaining.

This corset not only improves the appearance by reducing the abdomen by as much as six inches, while helping a graceful and erect figure, but it gives great comfort either sitting or standing—freedom from pressures which soon turn to pain—freedom from breaking over the hips—these qualities being assured by their patented construction. Its price is only $4.00.

Many imported so-called reducing corsets, which on account of customs duties are sold at from $1.00 to $3.00 more than the NU MODE are neither as comfortable nor as stylish.

There is a D. & A. or a La Diva model for every figure. Our catalogue, sent free on request, will help you to choose the best for yours.

DOMINION CORSET CO. QUEBEC.

"fine fool" was making a lot of money in "New York" and "London" with his trades. The native folk determined to be shrewd in their turn. When he made one of his periodical visits they were on guard. When he approached an old wife she would say, "Oh, go away with you. Four dollars for that bedstead? Why Ned Morris has offered me any money for it."

Sir William Morris is the present Premier of Newfoundland and "any money" is the term the native folk use to express munificence, for which they sometimes substitute forty dollars, their imagination never wandering to loftier flights.—N. Y. Sun, April 6.

TRAGEDY OF VANITY.

A tragic ending to a young girl's objection to an unbecoming hat was disclosed at the Westminster inquest held recently on the body of Madeline Berthel, aged 15, an Italian lace-worker in London, who committed suicide after quarrelling with her mother. Her body was found in the Thames.

A friend of the girl's stated that deceased had a "liff" with her mother over a black hat. The mother insisted on the girl wearing it at a funeral, and the fact that the hat belonged to the mother, and was unsuited to the girl, apparently worried her very much. She became very depressed and morose.

FRIDAY, April 25, 1913.

C. E. School Report.

We have before us the report of Mr. Blackall on the schools under his superintendence. Mr. Blackall sets forth prominently the growth of office work. Some 4,044 letters were sent out, 1,600 quarterly return forms, 400 annual ones were dealt with, the financial statements of 84 Boards checked and tabulated, conferences held with boards, chairmen and teachers, building grant administered, and not one cent of educational funds issued without a requisition being made out and signed by the Superintendent. All this and much more of the same nature took up considerable of the time of the Superintendent and his assistant. Mr. Blackall asks for more assistance. We would much prefer, however, to see most of the clerical work of the superintendents consolidated and transferred to a central office, in order that the superintendents might devote more of their time and energy to inspection of schools, advice to teachers, and a more intimate association with the technical side of teaching.

On the time required for the inspection of schools, Mr. Blackall comments thus:
"My assistant and myself have made a careful estimate of the time that it would take one man to inspect thoroughly all the Church of England schools once, and we find that it would be some 325 days. When Sundays and school vacations are taken out of the year, as well as Saturdays, which must be omitted as the equivalent time for travelling—an allowance which is, I fear, too small—it will be seen how ridiculous it is to imagine that any one man can inspect each school once a year, and yet how very necessary it is that this, at least, should be done! In fact, with so many of our teachers young and inexperienced and ill prepared for their work, the efficiency of the schools as a whole would be enormously increased if many of the schools could be officially visited three times a year. We find the majority of the teachers very glad to see us; they welcome the visit of the Inspector and would be most thankful if he could call and come with his counsel, guidance and encouragement two or three times in each school year. Sympathetic inspection must be of the utmost benefit to teachers and scholars, for it is perhaps the greatest of all influences towards efficiency. There can be no doubt that our educational system loses very much on account of the inadequate provision made for supervision."

This estimate has been made by Mr. Blackall and Mr. Thompson, both of whom are experienced in school inspection, on the time it would take to make an adequate inspection and the time taken up in travelling from place to place. Mr. Thompson, if we mistake not, has been travelling from school to school for seventeen or eighteen years. Thorough inspection is good enough in its way as a means of government control, but if an adequate educational value is to accrue from it, it must be something more. After the inspector has studied the situation on the spot as an educational expert and got a grasp of the particular difficulties of the local authorities, the teachers and scholars, it must be followed up by counsel and conference with the teachers. That is the real value of the visitation, otherwise inspection becomes merely inquisitorial, and the inspector a mere educational detective.

THE MESSIAH.

A full hall representative of all classes, showed that the interest in the performance of this great oratorio was general.

This is as it should be. The production of such a work is notable, and especially so here, where unfortunately the music-masters limit our knowledge of the world's great music in a degree that sometimes is unacceptable.

It is surprising indeed that Mr. Allen has not given the Messiah before. However, we can appreciate the difficulties which a performance of this sort entail—the want of a good practice room, large enough to accommodate all the players and singers, a few good workers to see to the details, and the need of a fund to clear initial expenses. A chorus to get up some good musical work each year would increase in efficiency, instead of now having to work three times as hard owing to the infrequent periods in which they are called together.

The chorus last night was fine and all their work except an anxious moment in "He trusted in God" was taken with precision. The "Amen" chorus, which we hear was performed for the first time here last night, went well and formed, as it was intended, a grand close.

Mr. Allen's choir boys sang with the soprano and their fresh clear voices were beautiful. It seems to us that perhaps the greatest result of Mr. Allen's work is shown in his boys. He has certainly the correct method of teaching them if we are to judge by the many expressions of pleasure we hear concerning their singing.

In his individual performances Mr. Allen is rather cold, and there is nothing more inspiring to a chorus conductor who is moved by and with the music.

There are details which one could find fault with, but the ambitious performance like this it is not just to be particular and as some one says, it is better to give good music with a few mistakes than to give poorer music without any. We thought the Halle-lujah Chorus went exceptionally well. Mrs. King sang well. No multiplication of adjectives can express her full, round voice and her "Rejoice Greatly" and "I know that my Redeemer liveth" were gems which the audience could not refrain from applauding, though it had been requested that there should be no applause.

Miss Herder made a good impression, especially in the first part of "He Shall Feed His Flock" and in "He Was Despised." We think that her voice anticipates an excellent mezzo-soprano, and the promise is so far from Mr. Seymour sang his recitative and solo at the beginning very well indeed. Tenor voices are rare here and with a little more force Mr. Seymour promises to do much towards improving the want.

Mr. McCarthy was in good form and gave a splendid rendering of "But Who May Abide" and "Why do the Nations" and "The Trumpet Shall Sound," the latter being accompanied by Mr. New on the cornet.

We ought to hear Mr. McCarthy more often than we do. The accompaniments were played by Mr. Arthur Mews, at the organ; Mrs. E. F. Horwood, Florence, at the piano; Miss Johnson, Miss Bradshaw, Miss Fennell, Mr. Patton, Mr. F. Emerson, violin; Mrs. McVie, Mr. Alex. Mews, violoncello; who materially aided the performance. Taken all together the Messiah was a great success and Mr. Allen is to be congratulated on the work. It is gratifying that such a large audience attended and it should prove an incentive to Mr. Allen or some other musician to continue the work and not to leave us again for five years or more without the opportunity of hearing some great oratorio.

What About Your Cough?

Is it gradually growing from bad to worse? A person contracts a cold some way or another. Very often you do not know how you contracted it. The symptoms do not begin until 1 or 2 days after.

1st.—It affects the head, causing a nasty, uncomfortable feeling for about 36 hours, leaving the head and affecting the throat and gradually settling on the chest, which 9 cases out of 10 is neglected. This is the time when the danger is at hand.

If there is nothing to relieve the spasms of coughing and to take effect on the bronchial organs of the throat and chest, the chances of the cough leaving the system of its own accord is not very great.

As a rule in the night your cough is worse than any other time.

Pheratone Cough Mixture quickly gets at the seat of all kinds of coughs and colds, and in a few hours great relief is obtained. If you mix equal parts of Stafford's Liniment and Sweet Oil in a saucer, warm slightly and apply on a piece of thick flannel, placing same over chest and allowing it to remain three or four hours, this will also relieve you a great deal.

Hundreds of people have coughs and colds gradually growing from bad to worse just because they do not take the proper treatment. If you are one of these don't delay any longer.

Pheratone Cough and Cold Cure is prepared only by DR. E. STAFFORD & SON, St. John's, Nfld. Price 25c. a bottle; postage 5c. extra. apr25,11

Arrested for Embezzlement.

A thirty year old clerk was arrested last night for embezzlement by Constable Lawlor under a warrant issued at the instance of Mr. Miller, Manager of the United States Picture and Portrait Company, which with the firm the accused was a servant and who was engaged as a collector. Within the past few months and during the absence of Manager Miller, who was abroad on business, the accused had been misappropriating monies collected for his own use to the extent of eighty-three dollars ($83.00). This morning the prisoner was arraigned before Judge Knight and admitted his guilt for the charge of embezzlement but pleaded that the amount was not as much as $83. The prisoner was remanded until all the receipts are presented as evidence. He has the option of going before a jury in the Supreme Court but prefers to be tried summarily in the Magistrate's Court.

A MISNAGE.—An old house on the North Side of New Gower Street, just below the Western Fire Station, was pulled down some weeks ago and left an old cellar unguarded. This place is now becoming the receptacle for old garbage and fifth of all kinds and as it is right on the margin of a busy thoroughfare it is a menace to the health of the city. The Council should compel the owner to rail it off.

Terrible Accident

FACE TERRIBLY MUTILATED AND JAW BONE BROKEN IN SEVERAL PLACES.

While at work in his lumber mill at Hickman's Harbor, yesterday forenoon, a man named Martin, suffered a terrible accident and one which may injuriously affect him for life. Heavy planks were being sent down through a chute to him while he stood on the ground floor, and they came with great velocity. Once he turned his head and before he was aware of it, several planks came through the chute and struck him full in the face. He received terrible injuries, his face being a mass of deep cuts and bruises and he was rendered unconscious. His jaw bone was broken in pieces in four places, and the teeth and pieces of bone fell into his mouth. Dr. Burr attended him and he was rushed along to the General Hospital here, coming in by the accommodation train last evening. Coming along in the train the man lost much blood, the wounds having opened in some way. He was quickly taken to hospital on arrival.

Splendid Singing Act.

Last night an extra big crowd at the Star Theatre Shadrick and Julienne Talbot put on another fine singing act that delighted the large audience and was loudly applauded. Mr. Shadrick sang a rousing sea song entitled "Heave Ho," while Miss Julienne's single songs were the old and famous English ballad: "The Last Rose of Summer" and "Daddy Has a Sweetheart," her name is "Julienne." In the style and was encored again and again. The pictures are very fine. The orchestra in the latest London selections, a big show for Monday in which Rossley dances on new lines.

The Bride.

Newspapers are inadequate and news columns are often careless to the last extreme.

A news report for example will say that "The Bride wore a spray of Orange Blossom." Which is certainly incomplete and decidedly libelous.

We shall come now in a day or two to the month of roses—to the month of brides. It may be merely a matter of curiosity to the public, what the bride is going to wear, but to the bride herself it is rather an important subject. And what she is going to wear is certainly not concluded by a spray of orange blossoms.

The bride has to wear a number of things, too intricate and too feminine for discussion and she has to buy all of those things somewhere.

Not only that, but her bridesmaids have to buy other things too numerous to mention, and all of these other things, have to be bought in harmony with what the bride wears.

One thing more—the bride's mother also has to have new things to wear: like-wives, the bride's sisters, and her small brothers.

At this point the bride's father breaks down and weeps wildly; such outbreaks continuing spasmodically right up to the "Will-you-I-will at the church."

And now we come to the hub of the discussion, if newspaper descriptions of what the bride is going to wear are inadequate we must have some complete source of information.

That complete source has come to be not the columns of news, but the columns of advertising.

For not only is the bride interested in colors, but she is deeply interested in prices per yard. So also are the bride's mother, and her sister and her bridesmaids.

So also is that paternal, pallid, pocketbook who sits there in the corner wondering whether the sun will ever shine again (you have to have been the father of a bride to know what real suffering is.)

If there is any time in the year when advertising comes as a real source to suffering pocketbooks, it is at the beginning of this glorious month of Roses, when, at the risk of pauperizing an entire community, we begin our preparations to give away the jutting bride.

So turn to that advertising now and study it as if it were your last hope on earth.

Out-of-Date Education.

Lord Haldane, addressing a meeting of secondary and technical teachers at the London University on Saturday, described the condition of education as a national peril.

We ought to widen the scope of elementary schools so that a child might not stop at fourteen but go on perhaps by half time or whole time. In Germany boys and girls went to continuation schools where they were trained in the industries which they wished to follow. In England we had never understood the position of the secondary school in the educational system. The whole educational fabric of Germany rested on the basis of the secondary school. There a boy after remaining in a secondary school for nine years, was qualified to go straight to the university without a matriculation examination.

We had outgrown the period of the old-fashioned examination. It was no longer an adequate test. What was wanted was a record of the pupil in the secondary school.

ADVENTURE BACK.—The s.s. Adventure, Capt. Randall, reached port at 9 o'clock this morning from Botwood, bringing a couple of hundred empty oil barrels. The Adventure left here three weeks ago, loaded coal at Sydney and brought it to Botwood for the A. N. D. Co. The ship was jammed in the heavy ice in the Exploits for six days.

Notes From Fortune Harbor.

Just a few remarks about an item published in the Plaindealer of April 10th, concerning Easter Monday night here. It was the worst ever experienced, Fortune Harbor is a model town. I was at the concert, and a more orderly crowd I never saw in any hall. True, there was some loud talk and arguing outside, but no fight continued all night. I strolled around quite a bit, but failed to see any fighting. What trouble there was, was caused by non-Union men. The fellow who talked of "gutting out" the hall wasn't a Union man, but he didn't "gut out" the hall. Oh, no. Another non-Union man got a black eye given, I believe by another non-Union man who is not even a native of Fortune Harbor. The only one who got anything worth noticing was the one mentioned by him. His face was scratched but not "badly cut," nor did he have to stay indoors for several days. I know him well; he is an upright, honest, good-natured chap and I am sure it wasn't cowardice that kept him from fighting Sunday. I guess not. If he was so terribly scandalized at Monday night's doings, would he go witness a fight on a Sunday? I notice he said "when we went to the appointed place, etc." Truly he is a kind of a muddle brain, shocked at a "row" Monday night and calling a man a coward because he wouldn't fight on a Sunday. The fellow in question did imbibe too freely Easter Monday night, but when he became sober, fighting on a Sunday was the last thing he would think of doing. And those who did want to fight as well as all who went to witness it are not worthy the name of Christian. He also said "The she-beenars are the only people who derive any benefit from the Union." Well, I say the person who derives any benefit from the Union is not yet born here. And by the way, there are some rotten members in this Union, who have reported that its members are working against the interests of the church. What Roman Catholic men in a Roman Catholic community would work against the interests of their church? The members of the Union are doing their very best for their church, and would not dream of doing anything against the interests of the church, and the men who reported such a falsehood are not worthy the name of men, nor worthy of a place among men and deserve to be wiped off the face of the earth. Since Easter Monday, poor "She-beener" has paid the penalty of she-beening. Constable Cram, of Lewisporte, was here and four she-beeners were pulled up, but we were disappointed; we thought this rum trade would be done away with, as we heard that every man who sold a glass of liquor would be fined. It is well known to one and all that two other she-beeners were on the list, and I ask why in the name of justice were they overlooked? Why wasn't an investigation made in their case as well as the others? Those who were fined got their deserts, and the other two suspected ones should have got the same. Is this fair? Is this giving everyone a square deal, Mr. Editor? No, it is not. It looks as if another motive, meaner than the desire to stop she-beening, is at the bottom of it all. Anyhow this way of working will never stop it as one of those "lucky ones" who escaped, is selling liquor now. The Fishermen's Hall is a credit to Fortune Harbor and to those who interested themselves in building it, and parents and all who have the interest of the future men and women of this place at heart, should be glad to see it completed, and should, in my opinion even insist on it being used as a "Court House" instead of the school house, which is used on all occasions for concerts, law suits, etc., thereby depriving our children of many hours and even days schooling. IPSO FACTO.

That Tragedy.

Special to Evening Telegram. PITTSBURG, April 24. With the dawn, fresh crews took the places of the tired workers, who had toiled incessantly through the night, braving death in their efforts to penetrate the dark recesses of the Cincinnati mine of the Pittsburg Coal Company, at Finleyville, where an explosion of firedamp yesterday, killed many men and wrecked the mine. Eighteen bodies were brought to the mouth of the principal opening this morning. Until the mine's main cross entries have been explored, the extent of the catastrophe cannot be determined. As these are choked by fallen timbers and rocks, to do this is most difficult. Artificial methods for forcing air through the gas-filled galleries help the workers. The bodies were found not far from the principal entrance, among them that of a miner named McCullough, who had volunteered for rescue work, and who was known as one of the best and most careful miners in the district. He was among the first to enter the mine after the explosion. Advancing further than his comrades, he became lost, and is believed to have been killed by a falling roof, as he was provided with a helmet, and was in no danger from gas. The rescuers reported that 21 bodies had been seen, the majority of whom were killed by the explosion. Latest estimates of the dead reach the hundred mark.

Is Your Skin Rough and "Patchy"?

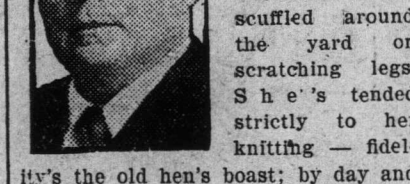

Zam-Buk Will Make it "Peachy." Every girl likes a good complexion. Use of Zam-Buk ensures one! If you have pimples or rough and scabby patches on your face or any part of your skin just try it. Think what your skin has had to go through during the winter just past. You have been out in rain and sleet and snow. You have been at one moment perspiring from skating, or some other exertion. Then you have stood to "cool off." You have spent hours indoors at temperature equal to summer heat. Then you have covered up your skin except your face and gone out into a temperature away below zero! No wonder that with all these changes the skin of the face and neck shows signs of needing attention. Zam-Buk is a skin food. Don't forget that the skin has to do work just as any other organ of your body has, and if you overwork it, it gives out. Zam-Buk is the remedy. Smear it lightly over the spots, the eruptions, the scabby patches, at night, and note how quickly your appearance improves. As the rich, refined, herbal essences sink deep into the tissue, the hard scurf-like patches are removed. The cuticle is softened. The cells beneath are stimulated to healthy operation. The pores resume their work properly. Better color results. The cells of the skin are purified by Zam-Buk, become transparent, the blood beneath is able to impart its proper coloring to the tissue, and the delicate "peach bloom" of health replaces the sallowness and pallor of disease. A few days' use of Zam-Buk will be found to give this result. Use also Zam-Buk Soap. Zam-Buk and Zam-Buk Soap are obtainable from all druggists and stores, or by mail from Zam-Buk Co., St. John's, Nfld.

Royal Bank of Canada.

We thank Mr. W. H. Crowley, Manager of the St. John's branch, for a copy of the forty-third annual report of the Royal Bank of Canada. The Profit and Loss account shows a net profit for the eleven months, ending Nov. 30th, 1911 of $1,527,324.77. The Balance of Profit and Loss account carried forward is $610,219.36. The Reserve Fund is $12,560,000.00, an increase during the year of $5,593,812.00 due to the transfer to this account of the latter sum which was Premium on new Capital Stock. We take the following extracts from the report: "In accordance with the authority granted by the Shareholders at the Special General Meeting held July 3rd, 1912, the authorized Capital Stock of the Bank has been increased, with the approval of the Treasury Board, from $10,000,000 to $25,000,000." "The Agreement to purchase the Assets of the Trades Bank of Canada, approved by the Shareholders on July 3rd last, was sanctioned by the Treasury Board in due course. After a thorough investigation, the business of the Bank was taken over on September 3rd, and your Directors are pleased to report that it has since proved entirely satisfactory." "The Board has also to report the purchase of the business of the Bank of British Honduras, Belize, B.H., on advantageous terms. This Bank had a capital of $100,000, surplus of $30,000 and deposits of approximately $400,000."

The Settling Hen.

The old hen sits with feathers ruffled, upon her bunch of fourteen eggs; for three long weeks she hasn't scuffled around the yard on scratching legs. She's tended strictly to her knitting—fidelity's the old hen's boast; by day and night still brooding, sitting, the martyr mother at her post. And now the time has come for hatching, and soon the old hen, swelled with pride, around the dooryard will be scratching, her fluffy offspring at her side. Then mark, O mark her guard and cherish the welfare of her little flock! Before she'd see one chicken perish, she'd whip a wildcat or a hawk. And when the lightning and the thunder announce the sudden, pelting storm, the chickens crawl her wide wings under, and she protects them with her form. There's nothing, truly, more affecting than mother love that old hens bear, as they go clucking round, prospecting to find their children's bill of fare. I sympathize with orphan chickens hatched out in patent tin machines; I can't imagine what the chickens that sort of innovation means. To rob a chicken of its mother—to ride its owner on a rail: One crime's as low down as the other, and each should send a man to jail.

Big Ben

Don't set your mind—set Big Ben

Don't bother your head about getting-up. Leave it to Big Ben. He's a timekeeper; a good, all-purpose clock for every day and all day use and for years of service. He stands seven inches tall. He wears a coat of triple-nickel plated steel. He rings with one long loud ring for 5 minutes straight, or for 10 minutes at intervals of 30 seconds unless you shut him off. His big, bold figures and hands are easy to read in the dim morning light, his large strong keys are easy to wind. His price, $3.00, is easy to pay because his advantages are so easy to see. Big Ben is sold in St. John's by the following jewelers:

Obituary.

MRS. MARY ANN MURRAY.

At St. Lawrence, on the 19th inst. there passed to the Great Beyond, a highly respected and conspicuous old land-mark, in the person of Mrs. Mary Ann Murray, widow of the late David Murray. Although in her 70th year, she was quite active up to a year ago, when nervous prostration overtook her and disorganized the system, so much so, that during this period she lost considerable of her vitality, and soon became an easy prey to the dreaded LaGrippe which terminated her life on the above mentioned date. The deceased was a type of woman very difficult to find in many places, and was remarkable for her many noble qualities. Bereft of a good husband early in life with a large family she had to assume the responsibility of father and mother, and for nearly a quarter of a century directed the affairs of her family after the manner of her own life, which was most exemplary. She was a devoted Catholic and a model example of everything that was truly Christian. The proverbial saying "Charity covers a multitude of sins," was always predominant in her mind, and all through her life she never ceased to practice that virtue. It was at the sick bed where she was a constant visitor, and where she always excelled; her good nature would show itself, and many a poor creature's sufferings were made easy by the prayers and consolations of this good old comforter. In performing such deeds of mercy she knew no distinction of class or creed, and regardless of self with a heart full of sympathy and kindness was always to be found at the beds of the sick and dying, until she literally wore herself out in the cause of her fellow creatures. She was never known to utter an unkind word towards anyone, and even to a fault was always most charitable and considerate. Her sufferings in death were marked by that submission and resignation which characterized her other noble qualities in this life, and the end was most peaceful and happy. She leaves a large family to mourn the loss of a good, kind and loving mother. She has reaped the reward of a well spent life. May it obtain for her a choice place in Heaven, and a crown of glory in the life everlasting.—Com.

The Power of Association.

BY RUTH CAMERON.

And what wonderful power it has to make us happy or unhappy, to lend charm or destroy it! The robin's morning call seems a very sweet and happy sound to me. My mother hates it. It seems that one summer when she was a little girl she was very ill. Night after night she lay awake, tortured by pain, and then, just at dawn when the pain subsided and she might have fallen blessedly asleep, the robin would begin to call to each other and keep it up until sleep had been driven away. That was over sixty years ago, and still she remembers when she hears that sound.

The power of association has much to do with our preferences in the way of names—more, I think, than we realize. If we really try I believe we can trace most of our likes and dislikes in this matter back to people who have borne the name. For instance, I have a deep love for the name of David. I love to hear it spoken, not because I think it is musical or beautiful in itself, but for the sake of a boy who bore it. Perhaps you know him too, for he is a little citizen of the world of letters, the David of Barrie's Little White Bird.

Taste and smell are two of the humblest of our senses. They seem purely physical, whereas hearing and sight are more mental. And yet taste and smell are the commonest channels of this tremendous force of association.

Do you remember in Cranford when Peter's father flogged him for some trick and he ran away? "I was in the storeroom helping my mother to make cowslip wine," writes dear Miss Mattie in describing this dreadful occasion. "I cannot abide the wine now nor the scent of the flowers. They turn me sick and faint as they did that day when Peter came in."

And again, is there anything more powerful in all Kipling than that wonderful refrain, "The smell of the water at Lichtenburg, riding in in the rain?" Yes, it certainly is a wonderful thing, this power of association. Nor is it just dreamers like me who think so. Already the scientists have made wonderful use of it in the grilling of criminals and in the treatment of nervous diseases. Who knows what they will do with it before the twentieth century is past.

Wedding Bells.

MARTIN-SMYTH.

Last evening at the residence of the bride's mother, Water Street East, Clara, daughter of the late Robert Smyth, J. M. Customs, was united in matrimony to Captain William Martin, chief officer of the S. S. Florizel, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Dr. Kitchen, of St. Joseph's. The bride, who was becomingly costumed, was given away by her brother, Thomas, and attended by Miss Etta Kieley, Miss Nellie Smyth, niece of the bride, being flower girl. The groom was supported by Mr. J. M. Tobin. After the ceremony a reception was held after which the bridal party drove to Williams' Hotel, Forest Point, where the honeymoon will be spent. The bride and groom received numerous gifts as an evidence of their popularity. The Telegram wishes Mr. and Mrs. Martin prolonged happiness in their wedded career.

The Girl.

"The Girl" is a tabloid of "The Girl of the Golden West," and was well played by our Casino players last night. We were transported from our quiet St. John's homes to the wilds of far Western Montana. It is a melodrama out of a kind that makes the audience sit up and take notice. Its construction is a masterpiece with its intense situations and dramatic climaxes, all so realistically arranged and portrayed that the audience were spell-bound. It did not seem possible that so much could be conveyed in tabloid form. A "Road Agent" or "hold-up man" falls in love with a young girl who runs a ranch and a bar. A sheriff and in fact all the boys are also in love with her. The road agent is arrested and is about to be lynched, but the Girl pleads for his life as he is the only man she ever loved. They yield his life to her and the road agent reforms. Miss Amelia Barlow is an artist. Her girlish abandon followed by intense, passionate, declamation and pleading, was a revelation in dramatic art. The future has great possibilities in store for her. Mr. Reed as the Road Agent, gained the sympathy and admiration of the audience which is saying a great deal for such lawless characters, are usually held in great abhorrence. Mr. Wright played the sheriff Vance, a peculiar, hard implacable fellow, but who under the hard shell, has a heart of gold. Mr. Wright's work was beyond criticism. Mr. Denton as the bar tender, was just right as he always seems to be, we cannot imagine him playing any part badly. Mr. Barr was a Westerner to the life, a rough, hard, but square man. He is a finished experienced actor. Miss Elvira must have Indian ancestors she gave such an excellent imitation of a real squaw with a tendency for fire-water. On Monday "A Roman Tragedy"—a tabloid of "A Night Off" will be given. This comedy is considered one of the very best. A word of praise is due to Mr. Kelly for the excellent stage settings.

Wonderful Cures Reported in Germany.

The use of simple herbs as remedies instead of the more concentrated and usually more dangerous inorganic substances, has been revived very widely of late. In Germany a new school of physicians has arisen which throws out almost a whole of the pharmacopoeia and relies on an adaptation of the method of wild animals in curing themselves. . . . N. Y. World.

It was Dr. R. V. Pierce, chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute of Buffalo, N. Y., who first advocated the extended use of some of our native roots, such as: Golden seal and Oregon grape root, mandrake and queen's root, black cherrybark. These are the chief ingredients in Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which has been so well and favorably known for nearly half a century. A better cleanser and stomach tonic that nature has provided.

Fashions and Fads.

All the Chinese yellows are in full swing. Linen handkerchiefs have pleated tulle edgings. Skirts are being cut up even higher than ever. Filipino hand-embroidery is in favor for fine blouses. More makes a delightful facing for wool sponge wraps. Hip sashes in self-materials are worn with the tennis skirt. Sand-colored linen sponge will be much seen for day frocks. Plenty of lingerie waists with high collars are being worn. Picot-edged white tulle pleatings appear even on tailored suits. Ornamental belts of leather are much used with hip-length blouses. Floral garlands of silk flowers embellish many chic evening toilettes. Narrow silk girdles are run through slits in the newest skirts. The four-gored skirt is as much liked as ever, and is always good style. Cotton crepe is taking the place of chiffon to a great degree in millinery. White net with inserts of printed tulle is being used for afternoon frocks. Skirts of beige sand-colored tussor are chic for the new tennis costumes. Tulle winged sleeves are among the most charming features of evening gowns. Sleeves of figured silk crepe are being worn with sleeveless bolero corsets. White crash and linen coats for small girls have colored ratine collars and cuffs. Flowered foulards and crepe de chine have draped skirts and cut-up effects. Very wide fringed sashes are a pretty feature of both day and evening gowns. Metal-woven broche sashes are still used with plain satins for evening gowns. Trimming under the brim of a big hat is placed in the back with pleasing effect. Malines lace neck ruffles and cuffs are used for the bright little bolero coats. The new pokes have curious little cubistic-looking knots of flowers on their brims. A new trick in millinery is the use of white or black net veils over white crepe. In Paris, odd waistcoats are being worn with smart short and three-quarter coats. The colored sash draped round the hips is popular with a great many summer gowns. The kitchens of olden times seem to have been of extraordinary size, judging from the investigation recently made by an English historical society. At Hursthouse, for example, there was a kitchen 28 feet high, with three huge fireplaces and a bake-house with an oven 14 feet in diameter.

Special to Evening Telegram. LONDON, April 24. Mrs. Mary Ann Copper, a playmate of Charles Dickens, and the original Little Dorritt, died here yesterday at the age of 100.

TOKIO, April 24. Relations between Japan and the United States were discussed today by Premier Yamamoto, who declared that they must remain peaceful, in spite of local disturbances.

SACRAMENTO, April 24. No further action will be taken as to the proposed Allen Land Laws for California, until after the arrival here on Monday, of Secretary of State Bryan.

LONDON, April 24. "Take immediate action to turn the Montenegris out of Scutari, or we shall do it alone," is in effect a circular note sent by the Austro-Hungarian Government to the Powers. The note is regarded as virtually an ultimatum.

ROME, April 24. The Tribuna, which is considered the mouthpiece of the Foreign Office, says that the international situation brought about by the capture of Scutari, is grave and exceptionally difficult. It adds that collision between conflicting interests can be avoided only by the maintenance of the unity of Europe, which must find energy for immediate and precise action. Any hesitation might compromise European peace.

LOS ANGELES, April 24. Some time next month, a ship will leave San Pedro with the most gruesome cargo that ever left Southern California, consisting of the remains of six thousand Chinese, who have died in this country during the last fifty years. Nearly a year ago the Chinese Benevolent Association of San Francisco took out permits for the removal of the remains. Already 5,000 skeletons have been exhumed; and prepared for shipment. Each body is wrapped in a piece of cloth, then placed in boxes and carefully sealed.

BERLIN, April 24. According to high diplomatic officials, the situation has entered another crisis, as grave as that which preceded the Austro-Russian demobilization. The Press Bureau of the Foreign Office, contrary to custom, was not prepared to-day with a statement either in regard to an ultimatum to Montenegro, or to the general situation. An official, however, believed it probable that force would ultimately have to be employed to expel the Montenegris who, it is thought, will not retire from Scutari voluntarily, or in return for a loan, or compensation elsewhere. It is the official view here that all the Powers will work together until the problem is settled.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 24. The capture of Scutari has caused great activity in diplomatic circles here. The Russian Foreign Minister is busy conferring with the ambassadors, and exchanging telegrams with the European chancelleries. It is understood that Russian diplomacy prefers to leave the initiative to Britain and France. It is believed that neither will countenance any force with respect to Montenegro. Russia herself cannot do so without straining to breaking point, the feelings of her Slavophile ruling classes. Under the circumstances, according to opinion in well-informed quarters here, the only possible course is for the Ambassadorial conference at London to reconsider its decision regarding Scutari.

BERLIN, April 24. A feeling of helplessness and consternation was displayed at yesterday's conference of the Ambassadors at London, according to advices received here. Representatives of all the nations, including Russia, agreed that the decision of the Powers concerning Scutari must be adhered to and enforced, but all were non-plussed by the question how Montenegro is to be coerced. The cancellation by the Kaiser of his proposed trip to the Emperor, and his determination to return to Berlin from Hamburg on Monday, are attributed to the present crisis. The stock market is demoralized through fears of grave political complications.

LONDON, April 24. Owing to the fall of Scutari the Powers find themselves in a position which is, at once, ridiculous and difficult. After critical negotiations the Powers have unanimously decided that Scutari should belong to Albania. An international squadron has blockaded the Montenegrin coast to compel King Nicholas to give way. The demonstration proved non-effective. Then the Powers attempted to purchase Montenegro, offering $6,000,000 if she would abandon the siege. Montenegro rejected the offer. Alternative territorial concessions were also refused. The Servians withdrew, and Russia issued a bectoring letter, although she had almost up to the last moment urged Montenegro to continue the siege. Deserted by the Allies, and confronted by the might of the Powers, the Black Mountaineers became more determined, and in the face of the world and the threats of Europe has vindicated her courage and her honor. It is not unlikely that the presence of the European fleet has been the immediate active cause of her successful capture of Scutari, and the redoubtable stronghold at the foot of the Mountain which for many years was the bulwark of Turkish power, now, for ever, passes away from Ottoman rule.

The express which left here at 6 p. m. yesterday took out the sealers of the S. S. Ranger and several other passengers. The express with several passengers from the Linrose arrived here at 10.30 last night. The local arrived at 10 last night with a few passengers.

FOOTBALL CLUBS.

Already the different football clubs are forming up and will soon begin practicing for the coming season's games.

BASEBALL DANCE.

Last night the Shamrock Baseball Club held a dance in the British Hall. It was largely patronized and proved very enjoyable. Dancing commenced at 8.30 and terminated at 2 o'clock this morning. The T. A. Band discoursed the music excellently.

A HELPLESS INEBRIATE.

Yesterday afternoon a man was found lying on Prescott Street in a stupor from liquor, being tripped over by a pedestrian. Luckily Detective Byrne came along and had the helpless inebriate conveyed to the police station in a cab.

For dressy tailored costumes white moire and felle silk are the most fashionable.

Mrs. Tucker Visits the Poor House

Mrs. Tucker visited the Poor House the other day and had a chat with some of the inmates. After taking in the general surroundings she is of the opinion that the time hangs heavily on many, who though they may not be able to perform any heavy work, could do many little tasks that would bring in a little revenue, and at the same time prove interesting to the unfortunates who are ending their lives beneath the roof of the Asylum for the Poor. The monotony of a do-nothing existence must be burdensome and instead of being a blessing is nothing short of an affliction. If they knew some charitably disposed citizens send fruit, candy and tobacco to the inmates, but through the rest of the year they see little or nothing in this line. Mrs. Tucker thinks that some work could be found for many of these inmates and a portion of the earnings derived from such labour could be expended for little luxuries for them. Any one passing up by the Poor Asylum in summer can see male inmates of the Poor Asylum lying on the bank near the Brewery, and Mrs. Tucker thinks that if these men were employed at gardening or some such work the time would go along more pleasantly, especially if they knew that they were to receive some compensation for their labours. We see inmates of the Asylum wheeling big barrows of fresh fish up Water St. in the summer mornings, and this effort on their part clearly proves that they are capable of performing other work if they had a chance to do so. Mrs. Tucker says that it isn't because a man or woman is an inmate of the Poor Asylum that they lose their appetite for nice things to eat, and if these nice things could be secured by performing a little labour that would not be too tiresome, 'tis only reasonable to suppose that the inmates would be only too glad to welcome such work, for by having their minds employed it would help to drive dull thoughts away and make them feel that their usefulness in the world wasn't a thing of the past. As it is now it appears to Mrs. Tucker that being an inmate of the Asylum simply means awaiting death, and this must be a terrible feeling. We are trying to be kind by giving them nothing to do, but let us stop and ask ourselves are we not in many cases inflicting a monotonous torture in the brand of kindness that we are doling out. Bridegroom Missing on Marriage Morn—Disappointment of a Grief-Stricken Bride.

Bitter was the disappointment of a bride who learned, on the marriage morn, that her intended husband had disappeared. The sensational affair occurred at Gloucester, the absent bridegroom being Mr. Herbert Charles Deavin, A.R.C.O., son of Mr. C. H. Deavin, also A.R.C.O., of Hillfield-terrace, London-road, Gloucester, who disappeared mysteriously from home about two hours before the time fixed for his wedding at St. Mark's Church, where he occupied the position of organist. He was to have been married to Miss Joyce, daughter of Mr. Thos. Joyce, of Dean's-way, Gloucester. Mr. Deavin had given no indication that the ceremony would not take place as arranged, and was writing letters until a few minutes before the time of the ceremony. He then put on his ordinary outdoor clothes, and went out at 9.45 a.m. He proceeded down London-road, telling his sister that he was going to transact some business in the city, and would be back in a few minutes. He did not return, and his father, upon going to his son's bedroom, found on a table a note bearing on the outside in large plain letters the word "Dad." In it the young man expressed his sorrow for what he was "going to do," and the hope that he would be forgiven and that his friends would think kindly of him. The letter also contained this sentence: "I have undertaken too much with regard to the house, and am in a tight corner." This the father understands to refer to obligations which his son had entered into with regard to the purchase of a house. It is said that Mr. Deavin's disappearance, and that he and the bride-elect were on terms of such great affection as to preclude any suggestion of a lover's disagreement at the last moment. News of the bridegroom's disappearance was at once conveyed to the residence of the bride's parents, where preparations were well advanced for proceeding to church for the ceremony. The bride, who was in her wedding dress, was at the painful and unexpected intelligence. Later in the day a letter was delivered at the house from her promised husband. In it he said, "By the time you get this I shall have gone out of your life and you will never see me again." Six bridesmaids were ready for the wedding, and the service was to have been fully choral. A good deal of public interest had been taken in the wedding, and a large number of people assembled outside the church waiting for the doors to be opened. They were informed, however, by the church officials that in consequence of the unexpected absence of the bridegroom the ceremony would not take place as arranged, and the crowd then dispersed. At ten o'clock Mr. Deavin was seen by a lady and one of his choir boys posting a letter at the George-street post office and half an hour later he was seen emerging from the booking hall at the Midland Station and entering the platform. He had no luggage, his packed portmanteau having been sent to the bride's house prior to the hour fixed for the marriage, in readiness for departure for the honeymoon later in the day. The Rev. L. A. Lyne, vicar of St. Mark's, Gloucester, has since authorised the statement that he has got into communication with Mr. Deavin, who is said to be not many miles from Gloucester, but further enquiries have failed to elicit any further information as to his whereabouts. Mr. Deavin, sen., has not the faintest idea why his son chose to leave in such an extraordinary fashion. It is stated that Mr. Deavin, jun., has already received an offer to become an organist at a church in Newfoundland, a post which he refused on account of his approaching marriage. Mr. Deavin, who is 24, was an uncertified teacher at a local Council School and also had a number of music pupils. He was a keen musician, and had composed several songs. He was studying for his F.R.C.O. degree. His father is a member of Gloucester Board of Guardians and a prominent Good Templar. Mr. H. C. Deavin is described in information furnished to the police as 5ft. 5in. in height, and wearing a dark suit and a brown waterproof coat, with a mourning band on the left arm. He had on a "Tribby" hat of greenish tint.

and nothing but the best goes in the garment made at Maunder's. Our assistant cutter and foreman tailor have just arrived from New York, where they have been studying the very latest in Cut and Style, and how it is done.

Remember, we have the largest selection of up-to-date tailoring goods in the city. Come right along and have the "Maunder make." Certainly some style.

JOHN MAUNDER,

MR. CAR OWNER,
As a Business Proposition,

Which would You Buy ?

The DUNLOP TIRE that is moulded as a UNIT, whereby the thick, tough rubber Traction tread, the rubber side strips, the layers of rubber impregnated fabric and of pure rubber are blended in one live integral product?

Or the other kind which vulcanizes its tread strip on to the body to make a finish.

Your Business Acumen says, DUNLOP.

The DUNLOP TRACTION was put on the market in 1911. After one season's experience it proved so successful that last year it was used by 75 per cent. of all cars in Canada.

Will you buy a proven Tire like the Dunlop, or will you buy a Tire which was proven to be fourth rate by the tire test recently held in England.

Your Business Acumen says, DUNLOP.

Fred V. Chesman, Agent.
