MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES GAR-GET IN COWS.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CURES GAR-GET IN COWS.

An Amazing Cure For Neuralgia
Magical Relief For Headache

The Most Effective Remedy Known is
"Nerviline."

The reason Nerviline is infallibly a remedy for neuralgia resides in two very remarkable properties Nerviline possesses.

The first is its wonderful power of penetrating deeply into the tissue which enables it to reach the very source of congestion.

Nerviline possesses another and not less important action—it equalizes the circulation in the painful parts, and thus affords a sure barrier to the re-establishment of congestion. You see the relief you get from Nerviline is permanent.

It doesn't matter whether the cause is spasm or congestion, external or internal; if it is pain—equally with its curative action upon neuralgia—Nerviline will relieve and quickly cure rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, strains, swellings or enlarged joints, and all other muscular aches.

Nerviline is a guaranteed remedy. Get the large 50 cent family size bottle; it is far more economical than the 25 cent trial size.

Love in a Flour Mill,

OR,

The Romance of Two Loyal Hearts!

CHAPTER IV.

A faint smile crossed her face, the first he had seen, and she left him again, to return with a plate of bread and butter. Ronald ate it slowly, and with obvious enjoyment. Then he put the empty plate on the top of the corn-bin beside him and rose with a reluctant sigh—reluctant, because he now knew that he was tired, and that the girl interested him. To put it shortly, he would have liked to have remained with her, to have seen more of her, to have heard more of the sweet contralto, which, when she spoke, seemed to fill the narrow space in which they were with a subtle and delicious music. He had risen slowly, as slowly refilled his pipe, and, as he lit it, looked distastefully towards the mill.

"I must be going," he said reluctantly. "I'm awfully obliged to you. You've been very kind to me, kinder than I deserve, for I broke your window. That reminds me—"

He took some silver from his pocket and, as unobtrusively as possible, laid it down on the lid of the corn-bin. The clear olive of the girl's face flushed crimson, she frowned darkly, and shook her head.

"Oh, come!" said Ronald protestingly; but a moment afterwards, with the instinct of a gentleman, he took up the money. "Well, good-night, and good-bye!" and thank you very much.

He held out his hand. She looked at him with faint surprise, then slowly, reluctantly, put forward hers. Then suddenly—Ronald had, of course, pressed it—she snatched her hand away and slammed the door in his face.

CHAPTER V.

The girl flung to the heavy door behind him; but she stood still, and, after a moment or two, she opened it again and looked out. The colour had left her face, but her bosom was still heaving, her hand was clenched tightly on the scoop. She watched Ronald's retreating figure until it gradually disappeared from sight; then she went into the mill.

She stood by the hopper and cleared it with her scoop; but the familiar action was purely mechanical; the scene that had just passed was being enacted in her whirling brain. It was the first time that any man's hand excepting her father's had touched hers; and little wonder that she was thrilling with the pressure of a strange man's.

The bare meeting with him had been a novel experience for her; she had never seen any one like him; for her knowledge of men was limited to a mere acquaintance with the farmers, the labourers, who brought the sacks of corn from the valley below; no one of them had ever offered her the slightest indication of familiarity; they had all recognized and accepted the reserve, the coldness, which characterized her, and had been content with exchanging a formal greeting or a few commonplace remarks with her.

And this stranger, whom she had seen for the first time, and for only a few minutes, had insisted upon shaking hands with her, had pressed her hand! Had she herself been to blame? She recalled everything, every word she had uttered; and in doing so, while she acquitted herself of blame, she remembered vividly all that he had said, every little movement of his. It was as if some new creature had swung into her ken. She knew that she had been keenly interested in him, had wondered, and half-unconsciously admired, his handsome face, the grace, the ease, of his bearing, the well-fitting clothes, which were so different to those which were worn by the men she knew. She had noticed the signet ring on his finger, the diamond pin in his scarf; was there anything about him that had escaped her?

His voice, too; it was so pleasant, so frank and musical; he had spoken to her as if they were old friends; and he had treated her with a subtle sort of respect, of the charm of which she had been as conscious as if she had been a London woman; she, who always involuntarily held herself aloof, had felt herself melting under the spell of the unaccustomed manner, the frank and easy bearing.

She sank upon a sack of corn, and, with her elbows on her knees and her chin in her hands, gazed into vacancy with half-closed eyes. Presently she heard a knock on the door, and with a start she rose; but, before she could reach it, the door opened and a man entered. He was an elderly man of less than middle height; but so spare and thin, so well formed and finely knit, so alert in his bearing, that his shortness of stature was not noticeable. He was very dark—indeed, swarthy; and his eyes, which were almost black, were as keen as a hawk's.

Like most men of his calling, he was clean-shaven, and his hair was cut short; like his clothes, it was finely powdered and whitened by the flour, which, by contrast, deepened the effect of his swarthy complexion; his shirt, with its wide collar, was open at the neck, displaying a lean and muscular throat; his hands were long and expressive of dexterity and strength. In feature, manner, and bearing there was something foreign; though, on a board over the door of the mill, was painted, in rude characters:

LEMUEL RAVEN, Miller.

He was still handsome, and there was an indefinable air about the man, a certain indication of reserved force, of subtle power combined with the alertness which has already been referred to; he gave one the idea of a man who is always on guard against even the small surprises of the ordinary workaday life; but the swarthy face was not an unpleasant one, notwithstanding the keenness of the black eyes and the tenseness of the long, thin lips.

Many years ago the Moor Mill had been run by one of the farmers of the neighbourhood; but he had lacked energy, and had lost the trade and given up the mill, and it had remained unoccupied and unworked for quite a long time; then one day Lemuel

Raven had appeared on the scene and had made an offer for the mill and the small piece of ground on which it stood, an offer which had been promptly accepted by the owner, who had never expected to make another penny out of it; and the new-comer entered into possession and worked the mill for a time by himself.

In most country places the appearance of a stranger and a foreigner would have excited curiosity and remark; but in Estford they were accustomed to foreigners; for, as Evelyn Desborough had told Dexter Reece, there were many foreigners actually established in the little seaport town by the estuary, and others frequently visited it, coming by the small vessels trading between the little port and the coasts of Italy and Spain. Some of these foreigners—Spaniards, Italians, and Frenchmen—joined their compatriots in Port Dale, or even wandering farther afield, settled peacefully and prosperously in some of the inland villages; so prosperously and to their satisfaction that it was not at all uncommon for them to send for their wives and children. England is supposed to be in a parlous case; but it is astonishing how well your foreigner manages to thrive here.

No one was surprised when Lemuel Raven's little daughter, a child of six, appeared at the mill; though no one knew whether her father had gone to bring her across the Channel, or whether she had been brought by some friend or relative; for the communication between the Moor Mill perched on the hill and the little village in the valley beneath was solely a business one; no one came up to the mill, excepting to bring sacks of corn or take away sacks of flour. Lemuel Raven had no visitors of a social kind, nor did he make any friends; and yet he was by no means unpopular, for he was pleasant of speech, would take his glass and pay for another man's, and was always ready to chat about the crops and the weather.

Of his own business, of his private affairs, he said nothing; what was there to say? The man, with his child, lived a life of monotonous, though not hard, toil, a life which was, so to speak, as open to the gaze and scrutiny of his fellowmen as were the huge sails of the mill which stood, as solitary as its owner, on the moor-side. Lemuel Raven peered at the girl keenly.

"Why is the door unlocked, Cara?" he asked, quietly enough, and by no means sternly, but in the tone of a man who expects to be answered promptly.

"I opened it just now," she replied. "Some one knocked, came."

"She had not intended to tell her father anything of the visitor or the visit, which in themselves were of no importance.

"At this time of night?" he said, still quietly, but with a slight uprising of his brows. "Who was it?"

"A man—a stranger," said Cara. "He had lost his way," he was crossing the moor—was going to Shelford."

"Where from?" he asked, still in the same tone.

She shrugged her shoulders; she did not turn her head away, but looked him full in the face, meeting his eyes steadily; and she was perfectly calm.

"I don't know. I did not ask him."

"I trod on broken glass," he said, "just outside the door."

"The man threw a stone at the window and broke it," she said. "I was at the hopper when he knocked, and did not hear him; and I suppose he got tired of waiting."

Lemuel Raven's face darkened.

"I'm sorry I was not at home," he said grimly. "What is this?" He motioned to the can, the empty plate.

"Oh," he commented, with a nod. "The man was a tramp, I suppose? Yes; I wish I had been at home; he would have paid for that broken window, in money or a thrashing."

"He was not a tramp," she said, hesitating for the first time. "He was a gentleman—I think; I am sure. He wanted to pay for the window, and the food and drink; but I wouldn't take it."

"You were right," he said, "if he were a gentleman—we don't keep an inn. What was he like? Try and describe him."

Cara turned to the hopper. It is very difficult to describe a person in whom one is not interested; it is not easy to give a description even of one who has made a deep impression on the mind. She could see him plainly enough with her mental vision, but words seemed to fail her.

"He was young and—good-looking," she said at last, as she guided the flour into the sack. "He was dressed like a gentleman; different to any one about here."

"And he gave no account of himself?" She shook her head. "He must have been a traveller; one of those men taking orders for drapers or grocers. How long has he been gone? which way did he take?"

"I don't know—some time," she answered, indifferently enough.

Scarcely waiting for her reply, he opened the door and went out.

"Lock it after me," he said.

He was absent about half an hour; and, as she let him in, he said, "I couldn't see anything of him." She breathed an inaudible sigh of some relief like relief. "The mist is still hanging about; it may come up again; if so, the gentleman will probably stray into a bog. So that he will pay pretty dearly for the broken window and his supper. It's late, Cara; you'd better go to bed. I'll stop the mill."

She was going up the narrow stairs which led to the tiny space in which she slept, when, without turning his head or stopping in his task, he called up to her.

"Cara, if anyone comes again when I'm away, don't open the door; and don't answer unless you're obliged to—let them think that there is no one here; but, if you must speak, tell them that I will come back soon. I'm never away for long."

"Very well," she responded. "But I'm not afraid."

He looked up at her swiftly, with a curious gleam in his eyes.

"Afraid!" he echoed. "I suppose not. Afraid? Who's afraid? But do as I tell you."

"Yes," she assented. "Good night, father!"

He stopped the mill; the huge sails creaked groaningly and became motionless. He leant against an upright beam and listened until all was still in the little room above; then he lit his pipe and, opening the door, stood on the threshold, with his hands in his pockets, and looked out upon the moor. He had the appearance of a man who was taking his ease and a quiet smoke after the labours of the day, or, rather, the night; but, though his attitude was careless enough, his eyes were keen, his ears on the alert, as if he were watching and listening intently.

"LOOKED THE PART."

Men must look right and be right to command success. Clear eyes, clear skin and clear brain mean money to the man who possesses them. Dull eyes, sluggish brain and a pimply, blotchy skin are a serious handicap.

O'Mara's Hypophosphites will remove pimples and blotches, brighten the eye and increase vital power by giving you pure blood and good circulation. Price $1.00.

We recommend it because we know what it contains.

EVERYDAY

"A friend invited me to spend the week-end at her country home recently. As I have no home to entertain in may I send her a slight gift in appreciation?" inquired Ethel.

"It is quite proper though not necessary, to send a gift after such hospitality," said her sister.

Clean the goldfish bowl thoroughly once a week. This means taking out the rocks, pebbles and sand, and washing the whole carefully.

The Late Lt. Gordon.

The following extracts are from a letter received recently by Mr. T. McNab from Major MacLeod of the Gordon Highlanders, to which Battalion the late Lieut. Bert Gordon, brother of Mrs. McNab was attached.

"I was badly wounded on the first day of the heavy fighting while storming the German trenches by the side of your brother-in-law, and have since until a week ago, been so seriously ill from the effect of my wounds as to render me quite incapable of undertaking even letter writing.

"Lieut. Gordon was the only officer of my company who got through the terrible fighting of the first day (Sept. 25th). The command of the Company developed on him then, and in that capacity he proved himself a most capable and gallant leader throughout the fighting of the 26th and 27th. On the latter date the Gordons—who had lost heavily—were relieved from the front line by fresh troops, but unfortunately these troops found it most difficult to hold the positions we had captured against the Germans' desperate counter-attacks, delivered by greatly superior forces. At this critical moment the Gordons, sadly thinned, were again called into the fight, they charged the enemy with the bayonet and re-captured the famous Hohenzollern Redoubt. It was when gallantly charging at the head of my company, that Gordon was mortally wounded. Although removed without delay, and all that medical help could do for him was done, he died at Chocques, a French town, about 8 miles behind the fighting line.

"I presume as there is a military cemetery at this town, that he is buried there, which will ensure his grave being properly marked and looked after in the future. However, I will make quite certain on this point by writing to the Battalion, and I will let you know as soon as I hear. Gordon was a great favorite and my most promising officer, and a perfect gentleman, and he is a great loss to the Battalion."

Midnight Fight by Moonlight Was Dazzling Affair.

Guns of French Destroyers Roared on Large German Boat Off Ostend—Torpedo Sent Hun Destroyer Down as She Was Running to Cover.

Paris, Oct. 8.—A midnight battle by moonlight with the guns of two French destroyers roaring broadsides in reply to German salvos, preceded the recent sinking of a large German destroyer off Ostend.

A torpedo sent the German to the bottom as she was running for cover of the shore batteries. She sank with all on board. The French destroyers sped away, comparatively unharmed by terrific bombardment from the shore. The complete story of the thrilling fight reached Paris to-day. It came in the form of a letter from a bluejacket aboard the leading French destroyer which the writer called "O" and lent new color to the flat statement in a recent official communique.

Sea Smooth as Oil.

"It was shortly after 11 o'clock at night," wrote the bluejacket aboard the destroyer "O," "and we were patrolling before Ostend with all lights out. The "B" another destroyer was following also with lights out a short distance astern. The night was clear, there was a moon, and the sea was smooth as oil.

"All of a sudden we sighted a vessel, its silhouette stood out boldly in the night. It was assuredly a German destroyer, bigger than ours and better armed. Up to now she had not sighted us. Slowly she glided through the water, all tranquillity itself.

"Swiftly everyone was at his post and without a sound. Gunners sleeping in their hammocks one instant were behind their guns the next, waiting for the command.

Shell Screams Past.

"Our commander signalled discreetly to the "B" astern. The "B's" crew as intently as we stood ready for action. The decks were cleared and

The ease with which OXO is assimilated is one of its strong recommendations. OXO CUBES are better than beef-tea—uniform in food-value—handy—ready in a moment. our engines were prepared for maximum speed. There was a lingering doubt, however, that the destroyer might turn out to be a friend, but just as our commander signalled in order to make sure a shell screamed past us. The German destroyer had begun the fight. He was much closer than he at first seemed. "Open fire," our commander ordered.

"All our guns can fire broadside and we turned loose. The "B" did likewise. Our searchlights fell on the enemy ship and brought her out as plain as day. What she was getting from us was plenty.

"We were not above a mile off. Our fire seemed perfectly timed. The enemy fired, too, at least one gun being superior to anything we carried, at least in calibre; but he didn't touch us. The enemy's machine guns came into action and the pat-pat-pat of these and the zip of the bullets added to the music of the night. It was now 11.20.

More than She Wanted.

"The German vessel now seemed to be getting more than she wanted. She appeared to be trying to make off. Her fire slowed down and her searchlights went out. With all steam we went out after her in the direction of Ostend. It was plain now that she wanted to make port.

"At the same instant the shore batteries opened upon us. They fired illuminating shells and the great balls of fire lighted up the sea, making a fairy picture of the fight.

"We gained on the German, and soon had him within 1,000 yards of us. He was still firing, but badly, and we often had a laugh at his expense.

"When from our forward tube a torpedo was fired, I followed its course plainly visible in the moonlight, and bomb-illuminated water, and saw it go straight toward its target. It struck. There was an explosion and two minutes later the destroyer went down by the stern. The fight was over. It was 11.30 exactly.

"For a moment the commander thought of going to the rescue of the drowning German sailors but the German batteries on shore bombarded us hotter than ever, now that we were close in, and we had to make tracks in another direction. It was tough on the sailors, but as somebody near me said: "So much the worse for them."

Handling the Greek King.

The Greek crisis is still shrouded in mystery. Venizelos has lost hope and advises allowing the elections to go by default on the ground that his supporters are largely with the Colors and cannot vote, and even should he win, he has no hope of being able to carry out his policy of supporting the Entente against the wishes of King Constantine. If the news to this effect is correct it would appear that affairs are trending towards King Constantine's liking, and with the debacle of the Venizelos party and the Bulgarians driving the Serbians on to the Greek frontier, Constantine will justify his conduct as reasonable in the way of saving Greece from German, Austrian and Bulgarian hostility. King Constantine's profession of friendliness to the Entente is not convincing, and the act of the Entente in declaring a trade boycott on Greece is an outward and visible showing of scepticism of the genuineness of Greek professions. In American papers last week it was stated that the Entente has reminded King Constantine that they are the guarantors of the Greek constitution and that if he violates it, the powers which put him on a throne, will put him off it. Lord Kitchener has been sent to take a hand in the game and we have no doubt that at his several conferences with King Constantine, with the Greek Prime Minister, and with the chiefs of the War Staff, he made plain and unmistakable what the Entente intended to get from Greece in the way of use of territory, and that they were into the Balkan fight at the invitation of Greece, and that the slightest sign of treachery, hostility or hindrance to the Entente plans would be followed by the bombardment of the Greek seaports by the fleet which is now enforcing the trade embargo.

Intense Anxiety for Missing Schooners.

Anxiety is increasing for the schooners which were caught out in the storms of last week and as yet are unreported. The schooner L and S, for which grave fears were felt, has turned up at Carbonear, word to that effect having been received today by the Marine and Fisheries Bureau; also word was received that the May Brown, of Bar Haven, reached her destination. The vessels unheard of since the last places they left are the Annie and Blanche M. Rose. Captain Martin, of the s.s. Florizel reports having sighted a small schooner yesterday on the northern edge of Green Bank. She was not flying signals and there was nothing to show that the craft was in distress. She was going in a westerly direction. Capt. Martin could not account for such a small schooner being so far off to sea and concluded that she must have been driven off. The Florizel also passed the D. P. Ingraham last night off Cape Race. The Ingraham is scouring south and the whaler Cabot north for the missing schooners.

AT GREENFELL HALL.—The Greenfell Hall was crowded again last evening to hear Mr. W. H. Jones lecture on a "Tour through Morocco." The subject was handled in a masterly manner and the discourse was most interesting and educative. During the evening Messrs. Hart and Andrews rendered a pleasing duet and Miss Jones gave a delightful solo.

530.—PRIVATE BERNARD MURPHY, Catalina; seriously ill.
OUT OF DANGER.
1177.—PRIVATE THOMAS CRAWFORD GOWANS, 175 Pleasant Street, previously reported dangerously wounded; gun shot wound in neck; secondary hemorrhage, is progressing favorably and is off the danger list.
68.—PRIVATE WILLIAM WALLACE KEARNEY, 9 Livingstone St., previously reported dangerously ill, is out of danger.

Sensational Arrest.

Quite a stir was created in police circles Saturday evening by the arrest of Mr. Job Roberts and his brother Nathan, charged with unlawfully casting away and destroying the s.s. Henry M. Stanley and attempting to defraud an Insurance Company. The arrest was made upon a deposition sworn to by Mr. C. W. G. Tessier, Insurance Agent. Job Roberts was arrested in the city and his brother was brought on here from Bay of Islands by Inspector Bartlett. The accused was released again Saturday evening on their Counsel, Mr. W. J. Higgins, procuring bail to the extent of $20,000; Hon. M. G. Winter, Hon. P. Tempelman, Mr. E. Wright and Mr. J. Sellars, giving bonds in $2,500 each and the accused $5,000 each. Bail was granted up to Monday next, when a preliminary enquiry will take place.

Florizel Here Again.

The Red Cross Liner Florizel, Capt. Martin, arrived in port this morning from New York and Halifax, bringing a full freight and as passengers in saloon:—George McGuire, Geo. H. Glasser, John McDonald, Joseph B. Butler, Wm. B. Smith, David A. O'Neill, Hazel O'Neill, Lawrence Everett O'Neill, Helen Corkum, Jeanne M. Trappell, Charles Dupoe and 12 in second class. Very rough weather was met after leaving Halifax and the steamer was hove to for several hours.

For the Cot Fund.

As a result of the efforts of Misses Lizzie and Gertie Lukins and Miss Martha Lee a very successful supper and dance was held at the residence of Mrs. F. Lukins, Lion's Square, on Tuesday last, and the splendid sum of $20.92 was raised for the Soldiers' Cot Fund. The Lukins family are certainly "doing their bit for the Empire." Two of the boys are with the Newfoundland Regiment at the Dardanelles, and their father's only brother is in the trenches in France.

Reids' Boats.

The Argyle is due at Placentia from the westward this afternoon. The Clyde leaves Lewisporte this afternoon.
The Dundee arrived at Port Blandford at 12.15 a.m. to-day.
The Ethie left Clarenvie at 7 a.m. to-day.
The Glencoe left Burin at 7 a.m. to-day, coming east, and is due at Placentia this afternoon.
The Home left Humbermouth at 9 a.m. yesterday.
The Kyle arrived at Port aux Basques at 7.45 a.m. yesterday.
The Petrel is on the way to Lewisporte, whence she takes up the mail service on Notre Dame Bay.
The Meigie is due at Port aux Basques.
The Sagona is north of Twillingate.

An Unqualified Success.

Patriotic Bazaar Opens
--Receipts at Noon
Over $500.

The Patriotic Sale at the store of Miss May Furlong, Water Street, opened this morning and judging by the large attendance this affair promises to be an unqualified success. During the opening hours of the sale, Miss Furlong and staff and the young ladies of the Patriotic Association who were assisting them were kept continually busy, and during the first three hours over $500.00 was realized. It is expected that the attendance will be much larger this afternoon, and if we are to judge by this morning's success, Miss Furlong's contribution to the fund for our boys at the Front will be a magnificent one.

PATRIOTIC ATMOSPHERE.

The whole atmosphere at this store to-day is patriotic. The interior is tastefully decorated with bunting, the flags of the Allies being draped in graceful folds from every point of vantage. The Native Flag of Pink, White and Green also occupies a prominent place and bears testimony of the part Newfoundland is playing in the interest of the Empire. The sales ladies, who are most courteous and attentive to the customers, are wearing scarves of patriotic colors and are deeply interested in their work.

THE WINDOW DISPLAY.

In the window of the store is a very fine display of photographs of the officers and men of the Newfoundland Regiment, who are to-day fighting at the Dardanelles, and of whom some have been already reported wounded. In the centre of the group is a wax model representing Britannia, while overhead the Grand Old Flag is draped in graceful folds.

ATTRACTIVE WARES.

The showrooms are well stocked with ladies' high class garments, millinery and fancy wares that will meet with ready purchasers. The needs of the men have not been forgotten and a portion of the store has been reserved for stalls where pipes, neckties, handkerchiefs and many other articles for men may be obtained.

The sale will continue until 10.30 to-night, and thus those at work in the stores will be afforded an opportunity to attend.

A GENEROUS OFFER.

The offer of Miss Furlong, who as previously announced is giving the entire gross receipts of to-day's sales for the benefit of our boys, is a most generous one. It is an expression of deep-seated patriotism and a further manifestation of her interest in the boys of the Nfld. Regiment. The C.C. C. Band was in attendance and rendered several appropriate selections.

Steering Gear Broken, and Short of Coal.

The s.s. Evansdale, Capt. Key, put into port this morning in a damaged condition and short of coal. She was seven days and a half out from Boston, bound to Manchester and had a hard time of it. Heavy S.E. and S.S.E. gales were continuous. The steering gear was smashed by big waves that boarded the vessel. Coal was then beginning to run short and it was decided to run to St. John's. The Evansdale is a British steamer of 3,775 tons gross and was never here before. Bowring Bros. are agents.

WELL DONE LITTLE GIRLS.

Four little girls, Marjorie Baker, Olive Bishop, Doris Alderdice and Jean Hutchings, collected $5.95 for the Cot Fund on Saturday last. The amount has been handed over to the Hon. Treasurer of the Fund.

THE NATIONAL POULTRY SHOW will be opened on Wednesday, Nov. 24th, at 3 p.m., by His Excellency the Governor, and will be continued for three days. Open daily from 11 a.m. to 10.30 p.m. Exhibitors can obtain season tickets from the Secretary, price 20 cents. General admission, 10 cents. Ten per cent. of door receipts go to the Women's Patriotic Association, and the ladies of that Association will have candy for sale. nov22.31.m.w.t.

DIED.

There passed peacefully away on Sunday night, after a long illness, Mary, widow of the late John Skeans, aged 69 years, leaving two sons and four daughters to mourn their sad loss. Funeral on Tuesday at 2.30 p.m. from her son's residence, 35 Mullock Street; friends and acquaintances will please attend without further notice. —R.I.P. Sydney and Montreal papers please copy.

Gas and Hospitality.

The sound of motor wheels heralding the arrival of unexpected guests has no terrors for the housewife whose menage is run on up-to-date lines. While the visitors are removing the traces of travel with the hot water which a gas water-heater keeps always "on tap," a match to the gas fire makes the drawing room a place of warmth and pleasantness for their reception and the children love to "help mother" by toasting the crumpets before the clear and smokeless glow.

The gas cooker (or the modern gas trivet by the drawing rooms gas fire) boils a kettle of water in no time, and within a quarter of an hour after their arrival the guests are enjoying a cosy chat over the cup that cheers. Should they be persuaded to stay, the invaluable cooker makes it possible, even at such short notice, for the experienced housewife, after a raid upon her emergency store cupboard, to set before them a dainty dinner in which no hostess need be ashamed. Gas means ever-ready hospitality.

General Joffre Will Command Allied Armies.

New York, Nov. 13.—The New York Herald publishes the following:

That General Joffre, commander in chief of the French armies, has been placed in supreme control of the fighting forces of the Allied armies is indicated by confidential advices said to have been received at the Imperial Russian Consulate in this city yesterday.

That the French Generalissimo would soon take this post, if he does not already hold it, has been the report reaching New York from London for some time past.

More than two months ago an Englishman who is in a position to know asserted during a trip here that Sir John French would take his commands from General Joffre.

Strength was added to the assertion by General Joffre's trip to England, followed soon by Lord Kitchener's hurried trip to the East.

From what has been learned, it is said that General Joffre made it clear to the British authorities that an undivided management would be required to avoid consequences similar to those that happened the Franco-British forces during the last advance when British units in the van found themselves unsupported in the vicinity of Loos, and what might have been a great victory fell short of its goal because "some one had blundered."

It has been reported frequently that there has been friction between Sir John French and General Joffre. It also has been said that between Lord Kitchener and the Grand Duke Nicholas there was some disagreement.

With the Grand Duke in the East and Lord Kitchener on his way there, where they might have to co-operate, the fact that they were both under the command of one man, it is said, might have a soothing effect.

In diplomatic circles it is expected the official announcement of General Joffre's appointments as Commander-in-Chief of the Armies of Great Britain, France, Russia and Italy soon will be published.

GRUMBING.

I heard the farmer say, "The bean crop's far from fine, and I am short of hay—what rotten luck is mine!" He wore a dismal frown, and raised a bitter wail, and when he went to town, he told a hard luck tale. His wheat crop was immense, the corn was bumper, too; and by the old rail fence uncounted pumpkins grew. His cows were filling kegs with butter he could sell, his hens were laying eggs too numerous to tell. At covering their slats the hogs were doing fine, and yet, doggone my cats," he said, "what luck is mine!" His Early Riser peas were gleaming in their pods; for whey and milk and cheese he took in many wads. No farmer, near or far, more blessings e'er enjoyed; he had his motor car, his teeth of celluloid. He had, in large amount, the things for which men pant; he had his bank account, his corkscrew and his aunt. And yet he said, said he, "Dame Fortune always tries to take a fall from me and poke me in the eyes!" Ten million men like him upon this globe insure; they ought to sing a hymn, but always wail a dirge.

Household Notes.

Uncooked rolled oats is good food for goldfish.

If the stove is full of ashes, the oven will not heat properly.

Chickens should be thoroughly washed before they are prepared for the table.

To make stale bread fresh and new, soak it in milk and then rebake in a hot oven.

A jar of grapefruit or orange marmalade will make a very nice Christmas gift.

Apples and celery, cut together and covered with mayonnaise, make a very good salad.

Close the Christmas bundles with red sealing wax. It is pretty, gay and most convenient.

To brighten the steel parts of a kitchen stove apply a mixture of whitening and sweet oil.

What you must not do when washing anything of a woolly texture is to rub soap on the article.

Cruisers should be made of a very soft dough to insure their being light and tender when they are cooked.

To keep your linen in good color drop a few pieces of camphor gum into the drawer in which it is kept.

To keep lemons in a fresh condition place them on paper on a shelf, with a tumbler turned over each one.

If the goldfish bowl has been allowed to freeze, do not thaw it out rapidly and there will be no harm done.

STORIES OF MR. H. G. WELLS.

Three years ago a little book was published entitled "Shop Slavery and Emancipation." It was a book which told in a more than usually vivid manner of the "dismal miseries of the living-in shop-assistant," additional interest being lent to it by an introduction written by the son of a professional cricketer who to-day is one of the most widely discussed writers, and whose latest book, "The Research Magnificent," everyone is talking about.

The writer of the introduction was Mr. H. G. Wells, who began life as a shop-assistant, and he wrote, "For a couple of years in my boyhood I slept in one of the abominable dormitories he (the writer of the book) describes, ate the insufficient food supplied, and drugged in the shop. Then, when I was fifteen, I ran away one Sunday morning to my mother and told her I would rather die than go on being a draper. That seventeen-mile tramp without breakfast to deliver my ultimatum is still very vivid in my memory."

"Perhaps," Mr. Wells continued, "had not the living-in system caused me to revolt, I might now be the proprietor of a little business over the door of which would be inscribed 'Herbert G. Wells, Cash Draper.'"

Before he became a draper's assistant he aspired to become a black-and-white artist, and after deserting the counter he put in a year or two as a teacher, scribbled articles in his spare time, and by that means discovered his true calling.

"I could not stand London and class-teaching," he said, "writing was the only way out. Ultimately, my wife and I, twenty years ago, set to and wrote 'A Time Machine,' which made a hit. We started another story. We could leave London---and perhaps live. So we left, went on writing, and I am still writing."

At the same time Mr. Wells has, apparently, no very exalted opinion of the works of modern authors, judging from the following little story. Some time ago a friend was talking to him about the good times that novelists of to-day have compared with those of the past. "You modern writers do not work so hard," he said, "and you are paid twenty times as much as you ought to be." Mr. Wells gently shook his head. "You labour under a misapprehension, my boy," he replied; "the chief difference between the old authors and those of to-day is simply this. They die and their works live; our works die and we live---as best we can!"

TO-DAY'S Messages.

LONDON BUDGE.

LONDON, To-day.
The Entente Allies have demanded that Greece either join them and fulfill her treaty obligations to Serbia or demobilize, and to impress King Constantine that they mean what they say the Allies have declared a commercial blockade of the Hellenic Empire. According to despatches from Athens, there is no confirmation of these statements available here; but it very certain Lord Kitchener, British War Secretary, who had an hour's audience with the King of Greece on Saturday, afterwards saw Premier Skouliodis took a firm stand and told them what the Allies could and would do, unless the demands were conceded. The Greek Cabinet met to consider the situation and a few hours should show what Greece's future attitude will be. The Greek Government again has affirmed its friendliness to the Allies but has not yet taken the steps required to prevent Greece from being counted among the friends of the Central Powers. The Entente Allies will not permit any delay. The position of the Serbian army makes any prolongation of the present uncertainty impossible. Already the Serbians are making what may be their last stand in the Plains of Kasso. The Bulgarians it is true, are being held up by unfavorable weather conditions, but they must be almost at the gates of Macedonia by this time, while the Austro-Germans and Hungarians are slowly but surely pressing back the Northern army. The Germans announce to-day the capture of Novi Basar and are therefore on the direct road to Mitrovitz, which has been the Serbian capital since Nish fell into the hands of the Bulgarians. Other armies are pressing in from North, Northwest, Northeast and East. Even the Montenegrins who held their positions for so long are being forced back. Of the French and British troops on the South no news have been received. Apparently they are only holding their positions and cannot longer hope to render assistance to the Serbians except by keeping a large number of Bulgarians engaged. According to German reports an effort will be made by the French and British to save the Serbian armies by sending troops through Montenegro and Albania, but with the poor road it will take a long time for them to reach the battle field. There is no change on other battle fronts. Italians are still fighting for Gorizia, and the Russians regaining ground which they lost along the Sty River last week. Czartorysk, a little village unknown before the war which became famous for bitter fighting that has occurred around it is again in possession of the Russians who evidently let the Germans enter and simply shelled them out next day. The German effort which met with initial success was doomed to final failure as the country is a great marsh, and in the opinion of Petrograd the offensive was taken for political not military purposes with the object of impressing Romanians. In Courland the weather enforced idleness upon both armies.

VENIZELLOS WILL NOT FIGHT ELECTIONS.

LONDON, To-day.
The leaders of the Greek Party of Eleutherics, Venizelos, who twice resigned the Premiership on account of King Constantine's opposition to his policy of entering the war on the side of Serbia and the allies, held a meeting at Athens yesterday to decide upon their attitude in regard to the forthcoming general elections. Reuters correspondent at Athens wires the leaders decided to urge the party not to participate in the election inasmuch as men serving the colours will have no opportunity to do so.

Moreover it is considered doubtful whether in the event of another victory at the polls for the Venizelos party, it would be able to put its policy into effect. General press despatches from Bucharest says the British forces have arrived at the Serbian city of Monastir and are being reinforced. A telegram from Constantinople by way of Bucharest says the first contingent of German troops reached that city and that Field Marshal Von Mackenzen is expected there next week.

KITCHENER CONFERS WITH GREEK WAR STAFF.

PARIS, To-day.
An Athens despatch to the Havas agency says after Premier Skouliodis called on Lord Kitchener at the British Legation yesterday. The Field Marshal had two hours conference with General Dousmanis, Chief of the Greek General Staff, and Colonel Metaxas, Chief Assistant of the General Staff, at which officers accompanying Lord Kitchener were present. Great importance is attached to this conference in political circles. The Government organ Embros affirms "the King and the Greek Government yesterday gave Kitchener formal assurances that Greece in no case would take measures of hostility to the Quadruple Entente, and that a conciliatory solution to present differences would be reached. The Embros adds these who had an opportunity of seeing Earl Kitchener after his visit to the King and Premier Skouliodis brought away the impression that the questions now in suspense have lost much of their acute character. The statement made by Embros are not confirmed from any official source. Kitchener and his staff left Athens late on Saturday night.

AMERICAN AMBASSADOR REPORTS ATROCIOUS CONDUCT OF GERMANS TO BRITISH PRISONERS.

LONDON, To-day.
The British Press Bureau published the report of James W. Gerard, American Ambassador to Germany, and a member of the Embassy Staff at Berlin, relative to the conditions of British prisoners in the war camp at Wittenberg, Prussia. Littgow Osborne reported his whole impression of camp authorities was utterly unlike that which he had received in every other camp he visited. Instead of regarding their charges as honorably prisoners of war, he stated, they apparently regarded them as criminals, whom a Regime of fear alone sufficed to keep in obedience. All evidence of kindly human feeling between the authorities and prisoners was lacking, said Osborne, and in no other camp he found signs of fear on the part of prisoners that what they might say to me would result in suffering afterwards. The following extracts are taken from Ambassador Gerard's report: "I regret to state after a careful examination and long conversation with prisoners, my impression is even more unfavorable than I had been led to expect. Upon my arrival at the camp I was not received by the General who acts as Commandant but by the Major. There are over four thousand prisoners in the camp, of whom 278 are British. Among these I found only sixteen overcoats. The men told me that one of the British medical officers in camp recently was struck by a German non-commissioned officer. This fact proved to be true. Many prisoners complain that dogs were brought in by German soldiers at night and that in certain cases prisoners had their clothes torn by these dogs. He asked the authorities whether they considered dogs necessary for the preservation of order, saying that at no other camp had I seen dogs for this purpose. They informed me that they considered it absolutely necessary that dogs were needed to protect German soldiers on duty. I was shown half a dozen of these dogs, which were of the usual police type. Two prisoners informed me that conditions in the camp had unquestionably improved greatly the last few months, that last year when an epidemic of spotted typhus existed in the camp, the conditions were indistinguishably bad. They said they implored the German authorities to put the British soldiers in barracks by themselves, as this was to prevent an outbreak of the epidemic which had been brought to camp by the Russians. This request was refused on the ground that the British should learn to know their allies better. Largely because this, fifty British military prisoners and nine civilians died of the disease. The attitude towards British prisoners seems to be based on suspicion they had no opportunity for playing games or for exercise except walking. I am sending a cheque for two thousand marks to Captain Vidal to be spent for immediate relief. Sir Edward Grey after commenting severely on the facts mentioned says he much appreciates Ambassador Gerard's action on visiting the camp personally and asks Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador in Britain, to convey to Gerard his cordial thanks for the reports.

CONSTANTINE STILL DALYING.

NEW YORK, To-day.
The London correspondent of the New York Herald, referring to Kitchener's visit to the King of Greece, says the King must now declare for the Central Empires and give to the Allies a satisfactory guarantee of continuance of benevolent neutrality, or by immediate action prove that he is willing to submit to the wishes of the great majority of the Hellenic people by honoring the treaty with Serbia and ranging his army and navy on the side of the Entente, thus making for Greater-Greece. The Greek Cabinet forewarned of a vigorous policy to be initiated by the Quadruple Entente, was in continuous session from nine o'clock on Friday night till three o'clock on Saturday morning, and information that it was unable to agree upon any definite course was followed by a manifesto of the Entente Powers. There is only one member of the Cabinet, said to be Mr. Gounar, who threatened to disarm the Serbians and the French-British forces. This led to the Allies to give the warning that Greece must intervene in behalf of Serbia or demobilize. He favored casting the lot of the nation with the Central Empires. The King and other Ministers insisted on maintaining a policy of benevolent neutrality, but they would not agree to give the definite guarantee demanded by representatives of the four great powers. An immense crowd that witnessed the arrival of Kitchener at the Palace, cheered British War Secretary, as he passed as he did Denys Cochin, Minister of France, thus evidencing that the heart of the Greek people is with the Allies. Despite the pessimistic tone of the British newspapers, there is still hope that the King will go with instead of against the people. If he does, Mr. Venizelos will be immediately recalled. Whatever the outcome is to be, and we shall not have long to wait, a great Franco-British fleet is where it can strike hard and protect the Allies' troops in Serbia from the Greek attack by treachery. Of the French and British troops no news has been received.

THREATEN TO DETHRONE CONSTANTINE.

LONDON, To-day.
The economic and commercial blockade of Greece is heartily endorsed by all newspapers this morning. This vigorous action is being defended on the ground that the suppression of the constitution by the King in defiance of the will of the Hellenic people, and the sinister threats of Mr. Gounar and other pro-German Ministers that the Serbian and Franco-British forces would be disarmed and interned if they were forced to retreat into Greek territory, warrant not only a blockade but even more drastic measures to prove to King Constantine that his treachery will mean the end of his reign. This is the attitude of the Conservative Telegraph, which says the Allies mean to have their way, and to rescue gallant Serbia and safeguard the lives of French and British soldiers who are fighting, where if Greece was honoring her treaty should have shown an embattled front, they will use all legitimate means to secure the objects at which they aim. The sooner the pro-German party in Athens realize the Allies' inflexible determination, the better it will be for the Kaiser's brother-in-law and the Hellenic Kingdom.

Germany's "Fatherly" Will.

Under the fatherly government of von Bissing, the Belgians at present have cause to envy the Parisians of 1793, in the Reign of Terror. Not a person is sure of his life, and certainly not an honest and brave person, for the German Reign of Terror seeks by frightful examples to make the whole of Belgium a nation of traitors and cowards. Love of country which the Germans themselves claim to honor as the highest virtue, they punish in the enemy as the most frightful crime. The sentence executed by them has caused the whole civilized world to shudder with horror. We wrote once in this journal "Holland is incapable of shuddering any more." We were wrong; the death-penalty on a brave woman has caused the whole of this country to freeze with horror. The German nation has now given up all make-believe of respect for the laws of nations. Openly and unashamed she makes herself a nation of outlaws against whom in future every possible measure of reprisal must be counted as warranted.—Amsterdam Telegraaf.

Enough Explosive to Blow Up Ship

FOUND IN BAGGAGE OF MAN RESISTING SEARCH.
Two sticks of tannite, a form of dynamite, were found in the baggage of Abraham Cummings, a passenger about to sail on the American liner St. Louis, just before the ship started for Liverpool recently. Cummings, who said he was a British subject, had no passports. He said the explosive was harmless without a special fuse and had taken to police headquarters. When Detective Edward Mallon of the American Line came to Cummings in his routine examination of the baggage of passengers, Cummings objected to the search. Mallon at once ordered his assistants to be particularly thorough. There was nothing in his trunks, and he showed an anxiety to have them pass over a bundle tied with heavy twine. The detectives found in that package two sticks of a greasy substance ten inches long and an inch and a half in diameter. Cummings at once began expostulating. He said he was a coal miner who had worked in the Pennsylvania mines for five years and did not know he had packed up the tannite, left over from his stock of mining explosive, in the things he was taking home. The statement did not bear out his anxiety to avoid search and Mallon promptly turned him and the tannite over to Detective Lieut. Leeson. Cummings had no passport or any other credentials to establish his identity as a British subject. He had rather more money than was warranted by his appearance and dress and a ticket to Liverpool.

In spite of the man's insistence on the harmlessness of the explosive, Lieut. Leeson handled the tannite with the tenderest care. A further search of the luggage of Cummings was immediately begun at Police Headquarters to establish the truth of his assertion that he had no detonators. The detectives said there was enough explosive, if handled by an expert, to blow the ship out of water. One theory was that there may have been a plot to put the dynamite in the coal and blow up the boilers.

Charity a Charity.

By RUTH CAMERON.

The question as to whether it is in any way lowering to accept charity came up the other day. The concrete example who started the discussion was a dear old lady who cannot bear the idea of going into an old folks' home because it is partially supported by charitable contributions.

She thinks it will be degrading to accept that measure of charity.

Don't Put A Blot On The Name of Charity.

There can be no worse blot on the name of charity than this feeling. Anyone who by giving in a spirit of patronage or superiority helps to create that sense of resentment and degradation has much to answer for.

A doctor told me the other day that it is the small salaried lower middle class (I always use such terms in their financial sense), and not the very poor who suffer most from the need of medical attendance.

The Generosity of Doctors.

"We doctors are always ready to give our services where there is need," he said, "and the very poor accept the gift frankly and turn to us for help. It's the small salaried middle class on whom sickness falls the heaviest. It's almost impossible for them to put aside a margin for doctor's bills and when they are sick they are in a tight place. Sometimes they go without medical advice when they need it badly, and sometimes they starve themselves afterwards to pay the bills. All because it seems degrading to them to ask for charity. Too bad charity has such a bad name."

It is indeed. To my mind charity is the right of everyone who needs it (if he has done his best not to need it) and should be accepted with dignity as a right not a privilege.

I believe that the world owes every man and woman in it a living provided that man or woman does all in his power to earn that living. It may be that ill health or industrial conditions or other circumstances for which the individual is not to blame prevent him from earning a decent living or from being able to give his children an education or from saving for sickness or old age.

Why should anyone in such a position be ashamed to accept help from those whose better fortune lays an obligation upon them to give it to him?

It is as if someone who has been playing a game squarely and to the best of his ability should feel ashamed that the cards had run against him. There are only two classes of people who have any reason for shame in this connection—they are the people who have been too lazy and shiftless to deserve charity and those who have given in such a spirit as to make charity a synonym for degradation. And so queer a thing is human life it is these people who seldom are ashamed.

With My Letter Friends.

Question.—I am a man hater. What is the remedy for such a case?

Answer.—You have rather an unusual disease for a woman (which I take it you are.) I can't tell you how to cure the disease without knowing what caused it. Your experience with men has probably been unfortunate. You need to meet some worth-while men.

I do wish people who write me for advice would give me correct names and sufficient addresses. A very touching letter came to me the other day from a man who wanted to know whether his duty was to his parents or to his fiancée, who had been taken ill and sent to another climate. I sat down directly (in the middle of a busy morning) and wrote him a long personal letter. The address was insufficient and the letter came back a few days ago. If he will send me his full address I will send it back to him. I will never betray your trust and I wish you wouldn't distrust me.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

It is hard to tell which is the more ingenious, the young girl of sixteen who will put up her hair so she will look twenty-five, or the young girl of twenty-five who tumbles hers down so she may look sixteen. Both so frankly have the end in view. Since Adam delved and Eve span, we have had the first eagerness for age. But it is just recently that the accumulated courage of centuries has burst forth in the second specimen.

It is quite true, though, you may see not a few girls in their twenties, with hair waving and curling, as the case may be, over their shoulders. This fashion will not endure for it is too warm and it requires too much courage. But it is pretty and, as long as the locks are curly everything is well, but no misguided damsel should attempt the thing with hair that hints of a possible Indian ancestry.

Milady's Boudoir.

LEARN TO HELP YOUR NERVES.

The most celebrated nerve specialist in the world cannot restore over-taxed nerves without some material assistance from his patient. He may prescribe a regimen calculated to relieve the high tension, by building up the general health and eliminating worry, excitement and undue haste, but the sufferer herself must make an effort independent of medical aid. Of first assistance in getting control of the wayward nerves is will power. Not a weak, anemic brand of this force, but a strong, efficient one that makes for untiring perseverance. Many people possess will power that exercises well in some directions, especially when it concerns their own desires, but when the will operates directly upon themselves, as in the case of compelling the nerves to "behave," it relaxes and becomes more of an enemy than a friend.

Everytime the will power is put into active operation and quells nervous squalls, the woman scores one in checkmating a further explosion of frenzied nerves. The monotonous grind of daily work should be broken by periods of physical exercise and mental exhilaration. Staying at home with but few outside interests dulls the brain and makes one less companionable for people who enjoy a certain amount of pleasure derived from outside sources. Reading should be undertaken as a means of education and as a diversion, especially those articles which tend to give the reader a higher and broader viewpoint of things. A humorous story makes an excellent tonic for jangling nerves. Physical exercise, especially outdoors, should be cultivation. The other kind of relaxation, equally as important, is to take kinks from the muscles and nerves and relax as completely as possible in both brain and body.

C. L. B. Parade.

In celebration of the 23rd anniversary of the establishment of the Church Lads' Brigade, the battalion and Old Comrades held a church parade yesterday. In the morning the members of the battalion and the ex-members attended a celebration of Holy Communion at the Cathedral, and in the afternoon paraded to Divine Service. His Lordship the Bishop read the Lesson; Rev. J. Brington took the service, and the preacher was the Rev. H. Uphill, who delivered an eloquent and forceful address on the words "Take Courage." Lt.-Col. Rendell was in command of the battalion and about 500 took part, including the Old Comrades. Owing to weather conditions the parade through the city had to be abandoned and return was made from the Cathedral direct to the armoury, the band rendering excellent music along the route. On arrival at the armoury the casualty list was read out by Arlt Winter, and after the rendering of the National Anthem by the band the parade was dismissed.

Ugh! Acid Stomach, Sourness, Heartburn, Gas, or Indigestion

The moment "Pape's Diapepsin" reaches the stomach all distress goes.

Do some foods you eat hit back-taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Dyspeptic, get this down: Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective, but not so expensive, as Pape's Diapepsin. It disorders you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they act slow, but not so. Pape's Diapepsin is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine. Go now, make the best investment you ever made, by getting a large fifty cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.

Ill of Dysentery.

Lance-Corporal Bernard Gardner who had been dangerously ill in hospital, but is now on the mending hand, word to that effect having just been received in town by his mother. He had spent 17 days in the trenches and hoped to return. The young soldier came to Newfoundland as a Marconi Operator. He then joined the Cape Race station and was one of the first to respond to the colors. Lance-Corporal Gardner has a brother who is a warrant officer in the 4th Buffs.

B. I. S. MEETING.—The Quarterly Meeting of the Benevolent Irish Society was held yesterday. Hon. J. D. Ryan presided and there was a large attendance of members. The reports of the various departments of the institution were read and adopted. After some minor business was disposed of the meeting adjourned.

If Your Throat is Husky Catarrh May Be Starting.

A weak or irritated throat is the first step towards Catarrh. Everything depends on your remedy. A cough mixture slips quickly over the weak spots, drops into the stomach and does little, but harm digestion. It's altogether different with Catarrh—It cures because it gets right at the trouble. You inhale Catarrh, breathe in the vapor of healing balsams that strengthen and restore the weak throat tissues. You'll never have colds or coughs. Throat trouble and catarrh will disappear with the use of Catarrhzone. Get the large dollar outfit which includes the Inhaler. It lasts two months and is guaranteed to cure. Smaller sizes, 25c. and 50c., sold everywhere.

Skyscrapers.

By George Fitch.

Skyscrapers are indigenous to the American zenith and are found nowhere else. They are regarded with great contempt in Europe, because they are inartistic, like presidents and captains of industry. But there is a suspicion that Europe scorns all these useful articles principally because America thought of them first.

The skyscraper was invented in Chicago about twenty-nine years ago. It was discovered that by constructing a twenty-story steel skeleton, sticking two or three stories into the ground, and draping the rest with an overskirt of brick, stone or terracotta, a very useful building could be produced. The first great skyscraper was the Masonic Temple in Chicago. It was twenty-one stories high and was once the wonder of the world. Nowadays, New Yorkers frequently stumble over it while looking for really tall buildings. Skyscrapers are now built in one, two, three, four and five dozen story sizes. In New York, the first three sizes are out of style, and are being torn down to make room for really high buildings. The tallest skyscraper in the world is the Woolworth building in New York, with fifty stories, while the city is also threatened with a 100 story building from the top of which the Goddess of Liberty will look like a shop girl on a dry goods box.

Skyscrapers are made possible by the rapid elevator, which is another American invention. The elevator hoists the occupant at the rate of 600 feet a minute, leaving his liver and other internals to follow slightly later. Europeans are more afraid of our fast elevators than they are of our 14-inch breech loaders, but they are quite safe, except just before Christmas. In the highest buildings there are limited accommodation and suburban elevators, with lunch counters and newsboys.

Skyscrapers are also earth stabbers. Some of them reach 100 feet below the surface, and are useful most of the way down. There is no telling how much higher they will grow, but we may expect some day to see a doctor on the 19th floor recommending a patient to an office on the 137 floor, where the climate is cooler and more salubrious.

Skyscrapers are not always beautiful to look at, but they are magnificent to look out of. Europeans who spend their days gazing from the second story of a beautiful building into the rear brick wall of another beautiful building will learn something to their advantage by taking a 45th floor office and soaking their souls in scenery as they open their morning's mail. It is like doing business on a steam-heated mountain top.

S. S. Bonaventure Storm Tossed.

Big Fish Cargo Shipped.—Water in Holds.—Ship Back to Port.—Capt. Caleb Couch Seriously Hurt.

With water in her holds, cargo shifted, master of the ship seriously injured and everything to show that she had been storm swept by the recent gales, the S.S. Bonaventure, Capt. Caleb Couch, which only left here on Thursday evening last for Mediterranean ports with twenty thousand qts. of codfish on board, crept into this port again on Sunday morning. The ship only succeeded in reaching three hundred miles off the coast. At the outset tempestuous weather was met. A strong nor' wester raged, accompanied by huge seas. Gradually the elements increased in violence, burying the ship fore and aft. It was the roughest in the experience of any on board. On Friday afternoon last, owing to the knocking about the ship was getting, a portion of the cargo broke adrift, also a number of the ship's ports were smashed in by the heavy seas and considerable water got into the fore holds on the cargo. Because of the ship's condition and the fact that the captain was put out of commission the previous night it was decided to return to port again. Captain Couch was in his room adjusting a certain over his birth when the steamer gave a heavy lurch and he was thrown over a chair and hurled against the wall of the room. As a result three of his ribs were broken and his back badly bruised. He suffered great pain, but in spite of that, he remained at his post like a true British seaman until the danger was past and port was reached. The Captain was conveyed home where he is now under the care of two physicians. His many friends will wish him a speedy recovery.

The extent of the damage to the cargo and the ship's injuries is not exactly known yet. However, it is expected that the Bon. will resume the voyage at the end of the present week.

ON LEAVE.—Rev. C. Jeffrey of Fouch Cove received a cable last week from his son, Edward of the Canadian Expeditionary Force, who is now in London "on leave." Ned has spent many months in the trenches on the Western Front, and the rest and change of scene has been well earned.

LIEUT. ROSS IMPROVING.—Mrs. H. Ross received a cable this morning from her son, Lieut. Hector Ross, of the Newfoundland Regiment, saying that he is at the Blue Sisters Hospital in Malta, and is improving. Lieut. Ross is suffering from a fractured elbow, and was reported amongst the casualties recently received from the Dardanelles.

The Am. Novel of 1915.

MICHAEL O'HALLORHAN
by Gene Stratton Porter.

This is the story of Mickey the news-boy and his ward-peacher, whom he found with a crippled back and cried for until she was cured. It tells of Mickey's part in the romance of Douglas Bruce and Leslie Winton; and of the kindness of Peter Harding and his wife to peacher, and finally of Mickey's own love story with the wail he found years before.

The book possesses, like all of the author's works, a deep feeling for nature, the charm of the woods, the flowers and all growing things.
Paper 65c.; cloth 90c. Not a dull page in all the 500 pages.

The Higher Form of Dress!

Instead of wearing a blanket like an Indian, civilization prescribes a certain style of clothes—it's a higher form of dress. Society by the same token won't tolerate a man with shabby, untidy garments.

We are ready to help you meet the demands of society. Our Dry Cleaning process keeps your apparel immaculate.

HARVEY & Co., Ltd.

The Eastern Trust Company.

A few reasons why an estate can be better administered by the Eastern Trust Company than by a personal executor or administrator:—

1. The Company affords the estate absolute security; it has a paid-up capital of $931,000.00, and a reserve fund of $229,300.00.
2. It has a long experience in the work of administering estates; it is incorporated for this business of acting as a trustee, and, unlike many other trust companies, it does no other.
3. Its existence is perpetual. Your estate, in the event of the death of a personal executor or administrator, must look around for a substitute, and the work of administration is impeded during that time, and the new executor is unfamiliar with the policy of his predecessor, and confusion results. This company's existence is perpetual, and there is a continuity of policy in its administration that the death of its officers does not break.
4. It possesses the confidence of governments, universities and prominent charities and administers their funds.
5. A number of other advantages which will appear in due course.

Why We Live Longer.

"When Goodyear discovered the vulcanizing process of treating rubber he added immeasurably to the world's health. About fifty million pairs of rubber boots and shoes are made, sold and worn in the United States every year. When you reflect that the most fruitful cause of colds—and all the dangerous and fatal diseases that colds lead to—is a pair of wet feet, it is easy to see that this enormous use of rubber footwear must have a very marked influence on the general standard of health. When Goodyear discovered how to make rubbers, human longevity took a great bound forward."—Popular Science.
