IN KINTORE TOWN

Town Hall and Store Beneath Were Completely Destroyed.

Some time- after 3 o'clock yesterday norning, a fire was discovered in the town hall, Kintore, and in William Crellin's store underneath the hall. The fire was well under way before it was discovered, and though everything possible was done to stay the flames both places were completely destroyed.

The cause of the fire is quite unknown, as no one had been in either the hall or the store for some hours previous to the first discovery of the fire. The hall had been remodelled only a year ago, and the loss on it will be considerable. It was not known whether there was any insurance or not. There is some insurance on the store, but Mr. Crellin's loss will be at least $2,000 over and above the in-

Tray Cloths, this time, and a great opportunity it is, too. Not the ordinary every-day Damask Tray Cloth, but a real Irish hand-embroidered one. Not a pickedover lot either. Just fresh from Ireland, where the snowy-white, pure linen they're made of was woven and hemstitched. Then they were distributed among Irish embroiderers and embroidered on each end by hand, in a graceful and artistic floral design. Very different from what might be expected at the price. We will ask to make one day clear the lot.

"I conceive that this power was reposed in the President with the hope that the maximum duties might never be applied in any case, but that the power to apply them would enable the President and the state department, through friendly negotiation, to secure the elimination from the laws and the practice under them of any foreign country of that which is unduly discriminatory. No one is seeking a tariff war or condition in which the spirit of retaliation shall be aroused."

If the Liberals and Laborites lost 100 seats to the Unionists in England, the Unionists would still have fewer members in the House than the Liberals, provided Scotland and Wales remained as before. It is plain that nothing less than a political landslide will give the Unionists a majority over all parties combined. On the other hand, if the Liberals lose more than 25 seats they will not have a working majority, but will be at the mercy of a combination of Nationalists and the Laborites. These two parties are favorable to the budget, and to the destruction of the veto power of the House of Lords, but they could not be relied upon in any contingency. The situation would become dramatic, indeed, if neither of the historic parties had an absolute majority in the next

AS TO PUBLIC WORKS.

During the discussion in committee of supply of the public works estimates, Hon. Mr. Pugsley took occasion very small push. When the woman opento answer the oft-repeated charge ed the door a young chap stood outside that the Government sows a crop of with his hat in his hand. public buildings only where there will day," he said, "which is worth a quarbeen a time when there was so little ground for this complaint. There are Conservative members, representing constituencies in all parts of the country, who can testify that Mr. Pugsley has endeavored to do his duty impartially. Take the city of Toronto. It seldom elects a Liberal member. The present Government certainly owes it no political favors. Yet the Government is at present spending about $700,000 there in improvements. The minister claims he has honestly endeavored to as far as possible recognize the legitimate claims of the various sections of the country.

Mr. Pugsley does not agree with the Opposition that any kind of a structure is good enough for the smaller cities and towns, and that the Government ought not to put up a public building in any place where the interest upon the cost and the expense of caretaking will amount to more than the postal revenue. In the larger cities the Government does not limit the class of building to one which is immediately sufficient for the purpose, but shows some regard for appearance. The smaller municipaliwhich the citiens will be proud. In the great majority of these towns there are no harbors to be dredged, no navigable channels to be dredged, no wharfs to be built, and the only public expenditure they get is the small amount of money which may be devoted to the erection of public offices. Mr. Pugsley is therefore determined to give fair consideration to the for the construction of public buildings in the thriving towns of the country, regardless of party politics.

A BIG SUCCESS WAS THE BAZAAR

Held Yesterday to Raise Funds for the Children's Aid Society.

A very large measure of success attended the bazaar given at the home of Mrs. George C. Gibbons yesterday afternoon and evening, in the interest of the Children's Aid Society. The cooms in which the bazaar was held were filled with a constant stream of people, and the sympathy in which the motive of the bazaar was held, combined with the attractiveness of he articles offered for sale, was accountable for a very handsome addition to the funds of the society. The rooms were very prettily decorated in the Christmas fashion, and formed a very attractive scene.

The front room was occupied by the West and North London tables, which were given over to a display of fancy work. In charge of this table were ton, Richardson and Allie Hyman.

In charge of the East London table was Mrs. Betts, who was assisted by ase, children paid 9.64 cents, and in Mesdames W. A. Young, C. N. Spencer and Miss Bullen. During the afasked ternoon these ladies were assisted by Florence Stevely and Miss "No chance," answered Mr. King, Hague, and in the evening by Miss Leonard and Miss Labatt. A very generous supply of olives for sale at this table had been donated by seven of the grocers of the city, Messrs. Rowat, Diprose, Rennie, Mc-Cormick, Harley, Denny and Scandrett The fortune-telling booth was one of the most attractive features of the occasions, and provided no little interest and amusement. Williams' can attain to that calm and sublimity blinds to the strident sounds and the Piano Company, Limited, 261 Dundas that is necessary to man's highest development. His lecture before the theological students at Harvard led to a storm of abuse. Even the Unitarians turned against him, and claimed that he was undermining the foundations of religion. Emerson objected for a unique reason. 'They make me think about myself,' he said, 'while I want to think about my thoughts.'

"Emerson," continued the speaker. 'worked in a quiet unostentatious way. Luther, if he objected to his neigh-bor's fence, would have ordered the man to take it down, and if he did not be would have torn it down and beaten prove that it was rotten. Emerson would have laid the fence gently down and called the owner to look out at the view of the mountains beyond. Perhaps the man may have been furious after Emerson had gone at the mention of this back fence of dogmatic theology, but he could never quite forget that one glimpse of the mountains beyond, and not all the fences, were put back in exactly the same place. "Critics have said that there is no consistent elaboration of a definite argument in Emerson's essays, and that one could grasp his thought just as well by starting from the last paragraph and reading forward. There is something in this idea, but what the critic failed to see was that the essays were good reading, either "Emerson lived in a world of ideas and did not reach out into the manysided human world, and the result is that there is not to be found in Emerson any understanding of some of the there found anything bearing on those who are down and out in the maelany solution of the problem of the suf-
