DEATH OF JOHN NOLTIE

Respected Farmer of Kent County Is Called To His Reward

A Few Incidents In A Long and Useful Life—Funeral Monday

One of the earliest settlers of this district passed away this morning, at two o'clock, in the person of John Noltie, of Chatham Township. Deceased was 77 years, 7 months, and 21 days old, and was one of the most respected farmers in Kent County.

Mr. Noltie was born January 23, 1830, in the parish of Alford, on a farm east of Gallowhill, Aberdeenshire, Scotland. He remained with his parents in Scotland until 1853, when he went to the Isle of Man, where he was engaged as a steward on 1,000 acres of land. After six months he came to this country, landing in New York, July 25, 1853. He remained there a short time, and then went to Buffalo, and took a position on a farm. Tiring of this, he came to Canada, locating first at Fort Erie, where he managed a farm for one year. His next location was at Oaledonia, Ontario, where he managed a farm of 1,000 acres for two years, then he left that locality and proceeded to London, where he stayed only a short time. He then settled in Delaware, where he was married to Miss Martha Harris. He purchased 100 acres of Indian land, and lived on it for two years. He and his family then finally settled on his fine farm in Chatham Township. Shortly after his last move he added 100 acres to his land.

Deceased was the father of five children, Jessie, who married Thos. Manning, of Dover; Henry, who died in 1898, at his home in the Northwest; William John, of Chatham Township; James Harris, who died at Bismarck, in 1898; and William, of Detroit.

Mr. Noltie retired from active farm work four years ago, and built a house on Delaware Avenue, North Chatham. He was blessed with exceptionally good health for a man of his years, and enjoyed his retired life. He was stricken with paralysis a few months ago, and his illness, which followed, was the cause of his death. He was a much respected man, and at the time served as a public school trustee. He also held other offices of trust. He was known far and near for his industry, honesty and integrity, and was considered one of the most successful farmers in Chatham Township. In religion he was a Reformer, and in politics he was a respected and consistent member of the Presbyterian Church. He was always considered a good neighbor, a pleasant companion, and a man who always made welcome a guest within his gates.

The funeral will be held on Monday morning, at half-past ten o'clock, and will be conducted at the deceased's late residence by Rev. Dr. Battisby. Interment will be made in the family burying ground, on the 6th Concession, Chatham Township.

Mrs. Noltie and family have the sympathy of a very large circle of friends and acquaintances.

ROLLER SKATING PARTY

Mrs. Joseph Hadley entertained a large number of her friends to a roller skating party yesterday. At an early hour in the afternoon the guests arrived at the splendid Roller Rink, and a very pleasant afternoon was spent on the rollers. It was a very unique event. Many of the guests were experts, but others were beginners, and a very jolly time was the result.

After the skating the ladies repaired to Mrs. Hadley's residence, where tea was served, which proved a very fitting ending to a most successful event.

Roller skating parties of this kind are a novelty in Chatham. Judging from the success of the one yesterday, they will become quite popular. It is surprising the number of Chatham's society who take advantage of the splendid local opportunities to enjoy this healthful exercise. It is expected that when the fall season opens, in earnest the rink will be one of the busiest and most popular places in the city.

HELD UP THE AGENT

Daring Robbery By Two Unknown Men At Thamesville

Bold Midnight Deed By Which Robbers Carry Off $25.00

Thamesville, Sept. 12.—A daring robbery took place here last night, when Station Agent John W. Millen, of the Grand Trunk, was held up and robbed in his office at the depot by two masked men.

The robbery was evidently premeditated, as during the afternoon a drover dropped into Thamesville depot and asked Millen if he would look up his wallet in the safe.

"I've just closed a deal for a big herd of cattle and am afraid to carry this money around all night. There's $3,500 in gold and bills."

The station agent took the money, counted it, put it in the safe, and then, as the drover started out of the station, began to fear the consequences. For it was known about Thamesville that the drover had made the deal and carried the $3,500. And it would spread with equal speed that he had put it for greater safety in the station master's care.

So the agent hunted up the drover, and, unknown to anyone else, returned the cash and sent the cattle dealer off to Windsor, there to find someone to guard the wealth.

Shortly after midnight two masked men entered the office, slugged the operator, bound him with a rope, and proceeded to rifle the office. They secured about $25 in money, a number of small articles, and a revolver.

The work done, the robbers carried the bound operator to a freight car and looked him in it was some hours before his cries attracted attention and he was released. No attempt was made to hold up any of the trains.

One of the robbers is described as being about 25 years old, 5 feet 6 or 7 inches in height, dark complexion, and dressed in a dark suit with a soft light hat. He apparently weighed about 150 pounds.

An express package containing nearly $1,000 lay in the station all afternoon, but was sent out on an evening train.

ANOTHER ACCOUNT.

St. Thomas, Sept. 14.—John Millen, star pitcher of the St. Thomas ball team last year in the Western League, South African veteran, and at present night operator on the Wabash-G. T. R. at Thamesville, was confronted at 12:30 o'clock yesterday morning with the cold steel of a masked man's revolver.

The operator was alone. Only the tick of the telegraph instruments could be heard, for the midnight robber moved stealthily. So suddenly did he come upon Mr. Millen with his order of "Hands up!" that the latter could do nothing but obey.

The robber then forced the operator, under cover of his revolver, out of the station and into a box car standing near. Millen was then looked in.

The robber was alone and only partially masked. Above the mask Mr. Millen noted that he was of dark complexion and dark hair and dark eyes. He would be between 25 and 30 years, standing about 5 feet 6 inches and between 145 and 155 pounds. The robber wore a dark suit and a light brown cap with dark peak. The cap fell off during his ransacking and in his hurry to get away he left it. The cap may yet prove a clue for the police, who have been notified all along the line.

Answering the robber's description, a man was arrested here yesterday morning on the arrival of an east-bound Wabash train. He was found on the tender of the engine and was at once suspected of the crime. The railway authorities, however, say that though the prisoner may be a pal of the robber, he cannot be the man wanted, as the train on which he came passed Thamesville before the hold-up took place. Moreover, the man under arrest had only 15c on him, and the robber had got away with considerably more than that. The desperado secured $30 in cash and the operator's revolver. The man arrested here by Sergt. Ketchabaw gives his name as R. J. Ross of Woodstock. He was remanded until Millen can identify him.

The hold-up man is probably the same one who operated in a similar way at the M. O. R. station at Ridgetown last week.

MR. COURTNEY WEDS

A. O. Courtney, of this city, left this morning per O.P.R. for Preston where he will be married on Tuesday. After a ten-day trip to Buffalo and other points, Mr. and Mrs. Courtney will make up their residence on Sixth Street, this city. The Planet joins in congratulations to the happy couple, and wishes them prosperity in their matrimonial voyage.

TRAFFIC IS DELAYED

A Severe Smashup on The C. P. R. Near Kleinburg

Cars Splintered Into Matchwood—a Neglected Signal

Toronto, Sept. 14.—The derailment of a number of freight cars on the C. P. R. line, about a mile north of Kleinburg, last night, beside resulting in considerable damage to rolling stock, blocked the line for passenger traffic, making it necessary to send the Owen Sound train, bound for Toronto, around by way of Reservoir and to trans-ship passengers bound for points between Toronto and Bala.

Latest reports indicate that the smash-up was a severe one. The freight train was a long one, of about twenty cars. The engine and most of the cars stuck to the rails when the jolt came, but several were smashed almost into matchwood, and their contents, general way freight, scattered about in heaps. One of the cars is lying across the rails.

An auxiliary was sent out from Toronto Junction, at 11 o'clock last night, and details generally were made. Advice indicated that four or five freight cars were lying beside the track above Kleinburg, 18 miles north of Toronto Junction.

Superintendent Smith, who has supervision over terminals between Toronto and Owen Sound, went to the scene of the wreck immediately on receiving advice of the happening. No one is reported injured.

So completely is the main line blocked that passengers on the Muskoka train, due here about 8.15 p. m., did not arrive at the Union Station until more than two hours later, while those on the Owen Sound train, also due here early in the evening, did not reach Toronto until about 11.40 p. m. The outgoing train for Bala had to be used to convey passengers to Kleinburg, where they boarded the stalled trains in waiting, and were carried on to their journey's end, while the delayed occupants of the other trains were trans-shipped in the same way.

With Tessa As Proxy.

By JEROME SPRAGUE

Copyrighted, 1907, by Homer Sprague.

"Tessa," said Miss Mason, with decision, "you are not making that bed properly."

Tessa, tucking in the sheet of the doll's bed, raised limpid, inquiring eyes.

"I told you I wanted hospital corners," Tessa whispered, curled a small red lip and overlooked.

"Don't cry—oh, Tessa, don't cry!" Miss Mason expostulated as the small pink aproned atom flung herself at full length on the floor.

Tessa did not move.

"Well, I shall have to let Mary Brannigan do it," said Miss Mason.

Mary Brannigan and Tessa Votoldi being sworn rivals in the affections of the settlement teacher, the small Italian raised a calculating eye. Mary, every red curl bobbing, every freckle radiant, already had hold of one corner of the infinitesimal sheet.

Then Mary pulled and Tessa pulled.

"Perhaps you'd better let Tessa finish it, Mary," said the teacher weakly. Mary blazed wrathfully. "Aw, she doesn't know how!"

"Oh, well," Miss Mason sighed, "see if you can make it, Mary. Tessa can watch you and tell you if you don't do it properly."

Tessa, sobbing a soft accompaniment to Mary's bedmaking, squealed suddenly.

"She's gotta be hem out-a-side."

"Oh, Mary," said Miss Mason reproachfully, "I thought you could do it."

"An' I can," said Mary, "but I won't," and straightway, like a small fury, she tore the bed to pieces and flung the mattress on the floor.

The twenty small girls of the little housekeepers' class looked at the teacher with expectant eyes.

"Oh, Mary!" quavered Miss Mason. She felt unequal to discipline. It was merged people. I want to go where every one is clean and the air is pure and where I can breathe." As she caught her breath sharply he bent over her with a sudden tender light in his eyes.

"Poor little woman!" he murmured. "Don't pity me," Miss Mason said, with flaming cheeks, "but I do like pretty things. Why, I am a different creature in my pink dimity. You've never seen me in it, have you?"

He smiled down at her indulgently. "No," he said slowly, "but I saw you once in an old white linen that had been torn and trampled, and you held in your arms a little child that you had saved—and you were beautiful!"

"Oh, that was Tessa," Miss Mason said quickly, "the morning the fire engine horses ran away. It was a wonder we weren't both killed."

"I saw you for the first time, and I knew then that I had found what I had been looking for all my life."

Her startled eyes read the meaning in his. "Oh, no, no," she protested, "I am not good enough. I am vain and frivolous—and I long for the flesh-pots."

He went on steadily. "I have seen you since then every day teaching your little girls to be tidy and sweet and good, and I have wondered at your bravery—when you might be in luxury, cool and comfortable."

"So might you," she reminded him. "How many men of your talent and influence would have chosen a downtown church?"

"Oh, that," he put it away lightly. "I like it, and I am a man—but not many women would do it."

"Don't," she said tremulously; "don't praise me." And she rose and went to meet Tessa, who was coming toward her, sobbing.

"Oh, Tessa! Crying again?"

It was discovered after some questioning that Tessa's conscience was hurting her. She was sorry, she whispered, that she had been bad.

"Poor baby!" Miss Mason crooned as she gathered the small culprit in her arms. "Dear heart! And the wet cheek lay against her own."

As they sat in the above the stained glass window of the parlor, office made a background of sapphire light, against which Miss Mason's fair hair shone like a halo. Tessa, smiling and forgiven, lay with her limpid eyes shut.

The rector, still seated on the corner of his desk, looked at the pair with thoughtful eyes.

"Do you really think you would be happy on the hotel porch?" he probed.

"It would be cool," Miss Mason said wistfully, "but I should miss the love," and her eyes went toward the children playing peacefully at the end of the room.

"Whose love?" he asked boldly.

Tessa's eyes opened sleepily. "I love-a you!" she murmured fervently. The eyes of the rector held the eyes of the little teacher masterfully.

"You say it like that!" he commanded.

"Oh, I—I can't," she breathed, all pink and white and tremulous, "but Tessa shall be my proxy!"

"I LOVE-A YOU," SHE MURMURED FERVENTLY.

very hot, and the room was close, and the children had been restless and fussy all the morning.

"Oh, Mary," she quavered again as a young man in a Panama hat and round clerical collar poked his head in at the window.

"Can't you and the little girls come over and have lunch with my boys in the parish office?" he asked.

A sigh of blissful anticipation issued from twenty throats.

"They have been so naughty!" Miss Mason hesitated. "I don't know whether I should let them."

Twenty pairs of eyes reproached her, and the young rector said, "No one ought to be naughty on such a day."

"Well, if you will promise to be very good," Miss Mason finally decided. And, like lion and lamb, Tessa and Mary led a decorous procession.

The young rector's class in wood-carving were having sandwiches and cake and lemonade, provided by the ladies of the parish. There was a big pitcher of lemonade, and the ice tinkled deliciously as the biggest boy filled twenty glasses for the twenty little girls.

The young rector, beaming with enthusiasm, sat down beside the little settlement teacher. "It's lovely work, Miss Mason," he said.

Marion shook her head. "Oh, no, it isn't," she said; "it's horrid. They are so ungrateful. I wish I was out on a hotel porch in my best linen frock, with my hair marcelled and with the waves beating a soothing accompaniment to the conversation of some intelligent masculine."

With a twinkle in his eye, the young rector asked, "Can't I masquerade as an intelligent masculine?"

"Oh," Miss Mason conceded, "you might. But I'm not dressed for the part. Shirt waists and serge skirts and tan shoes, and dusty ones at that—she poked out a small foot in a shabby shoe—are not the attire of attractiveness."

"We planted vegetables in the school garden all the morning—beans and things—all we were grubby."

"I don't believe you would be really happy on that hotel porch," asserted the young rector as he sat on the edge of his desk and looked down at her.

"I should! I want to be care free and frivolous and to forget the problems of the suffering and the submerged people. I want to go where every one is clean and the air is pure and where I can breathe." As she caught her breath sharply he bent over her with a sudden tender light in his eyes.

"Poor little woman!" he murmured. "Don't pity me," Miss Mason said, with flaming cheeks, "but I do like pretty things. Why, I am a different creature in my pink dimity. You've never seen me in it, have you?"

About Strawberries.

Many persons have wondered how strawberries got their name. They have been so called by Anglo-Saxon people for hundreds of years, but no corresponding name for them appears in other languages. On the contrary, their fragrance mainly is set forth in the names by which they are called in non-English speaking lands. The old Anglo-Saxon form was "strew-berige."

It seems probable that the "strew" is the long stem of the vine, which runs along the ground. Some have thought, however, that in ancient times the Anglo-Saxon berry hunters brought the berries home or sent them to market upon straws. The explanation that the word is a corruption of "strawberry" due to the running habit of strawberry vines, is believed to be erroneous as well as that which would derive the name from the habit of placing straw among the plants to keep the berries off the ground.

Coronets of dukes are adorned with strawberry leaves, though authorities on heraldry insist that they are not strawberry leaves at all, but merely conventional leaves which popular fancy has turned into the foliage of the favorite berry. However, strawberry leaves are actually borne by the house of Fraser of Lovat as a punning allusion to the family name, since "fraser" is French for strawberries.

"Joking."

When Richard le Gallienne first visited this country he was introduced at one of the clubs to a gentleman who delights in elaborate funmaking and does it all with an intensely sober face. After the first formalities were over the humorist asked the poet abruptly:

"Well, Mr. le Gallienne, how is the poetry business?"

Mr. le Gallienne surveyed the face of his questioner and, seeing nothing in the countenance to enlighten him, replied, with dignified seriousness:

"I should hardly speak of poetry as a business."

"Why not?" said his interlocutor.

"The grocer sells groceries, the merchant dry goods and you sell rhymed stuff. The market rates you obtain vary with conditions and the quality of the article offered for sale. The grocer is complimented when inquiry is made as to the conditions of the grocery trade. Why not the poet when asked about his business—his sonnets, lyrics, ballads and other forms, which are often sold at a ruinous sacrifice?"

Mr. le Gallienne stared, still perplexed at this harangue, when the half-suppressed laugh of the listeners cleared the air and the humorist himself smiled.

The poet woke up and said, with an air of great relief:

"Oh, I see; you are joking!"—Judge.

The Mosquitoes That Infest the Region of Lake Nyassa.

In his book "From the Cape to Cairo" E. S. Grogan writes: "The Kungu fly, which is peculiar to Lake Nyassa, resembles small May flies, and at certain seasons of the year they rise from the water in such stupendous clouds that they blot out the whole horizon. Seen in the distance they have exactly the appearance of a rain-storm coming across the lake. When they are blown landward they make every place uninhabitable by the stench which arises from the countless millions that lodge and die on every inch of sheltered ground. I myself have seen them lying a foot deep in a room, and I was told that they are often much worse. The natives sweep them up and make cakes of them."

"Biting and poisonous ants are another pest, but the mosquito is the great enemy of man. It was absolutely necessary to turn in half an hour before sunset and to make all the preparations for the night. I piled all my belongings round the edge of my net and kept a green wood fire burning at each end, and then I lay inside, smoked the native tobacco and prayed for morning. As soon as the sun went down the mosquitoes started operations."

"It was like having a tame whirlwind in one's tent. They could not possibly have been worse. Every night 200 or 300 contrived to enter my net—I have no idea how. The most pernicious and poisonous kind was a very small black mosquito that might possibly have penetrated the mesh. I used to turn out in the morning perfectly dazed from the amount of poison that had been injected during the night."

Wrinkles.

A small boy of an inquiring turn of mind, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, looked at his father earnestly and asked:

"Father, what are wrinkles?"

"Network, my son—network," replied paternally and confidently.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heartburn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, and special Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abdominal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at its formula will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine of proper strength, from the roots of the following native American forest plants, viz., Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherry bark, Queen's root, Bloodroot, and Mandrake root.

The following leading medical authorities, among a host of others, extol the foregoing roots for the cure of just such ailments as the above symptoms indicate: Prof. R. Barlow, M. D., of Jefferson Med. College, Phila.; Prof. H. C. Wood, M. D., of Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., Author of American Dispensatory; Prof. Jno. M. Souder, M. D., Author of Special Medicine; Prof. Laurence Johnston, M. D., Med. Dept., University of N. Y.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., Author of Materia Medica, in Remedy Book, published by the Chicago College, Chicago. Send name and address on Postal Card to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive free booklet giving extracts from writings of all the above medical authorities and many others endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient of which "Golden Medical Discovery" is composed.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. They may be used in conjunction with "Golden Medical Discovery" if bowels are much constipated. They're tiny and sugar-coated.

NOT AN OLD ONE.

They alluded to me as an old grifter, declared Senator Gishall angrily.

That's a shame. Ain't it, now?

I should say so. You're only 52.

FORECAST OF FASHION

Sunbonnets Are the Latest Fad of the Summer Girl.

RULES FOR THEIR SELECTION

Poke Shape For the Round Faced Girl. Baby Faced Maiden Can Wear the Lingerie Model—Featherbone Cap Style For Edna May Type.

Sunbonnets are the rage this summer. It is undoubtedly a pretty fashion and, it may be said, a comfortable one too. The materials responsible for these bonnets are so light and airy that their weight is not noticed, and, while affording more protection than the average street hat, they do not disarrange the coiffure. There are no hard lines resting on the head nor stiff pins for holding these sunshades in place, and then they have the additional merit of being universally becoming. Not that these sunbonnets can be placed on the head at random—not at all. The careless grace with which they are worn is the result of real effort, notwithstanding all their careless effect. But, then, as there is no true conventional way of setting the bonnet upon the head, it can be tried over and over again at every angle until it suits the contour of the head and the desired coquettish touch is accomplished.

LINGERIE MODEL POKE BONNET.

A few general rules in regard to their selection are, however, necessary, as there are quite a number of models to select from, and one may not be quite confident as to their own judgment in such matters.

The pretty poke bonnet in the illustration will become the round or short faced maiden, whether she be fair or dark. The poke will add length to the face, and the broad bow formed by the ties will provide a pretty background for a plump chin. Then the soft frill of lace outlining the brim is really one of the most fascinating features of the whole bonnet.

The baby faced girl may wear the lingerie model and look more girlish still in it. This is built from batiste, embroidery, lace and finest lawn, trimmed on the ends with embroidery and lace. As a rule, I think these should fall straight rather than be tied. Some faces may be able to stand the bow under the chin, but what might be picturesque in one case may become grotesque in another, so the safer plan for the average maiden will be to use the strings in a toy fashion for holding the bonnet down to the head rather than tying it so. You see, the shape of the bonnet being round, the effect of a large bow directly under the chin and tied on one side will destroy the lines of the bonnet on a grownup. Only real babies should attempt it.

The featherbone style of lingerie cap will become the girl with the demure face of the Edna May type. Supposing the wearer lays claim to a certain amount of beauty as well, she can use this Quakerish looking model, set squarely on the head, with fetching effect, the curtain, a special feature, giving a Priscilla-like effect that will be very fascinating. Wagner's Childlike Happiness.

While in London in 1855 Wagner took a walk every day in Regent's park. There, at the small bridge over the ornamental water, would he stand regularly and feed the ducks, having previously provided himself for the purpose with a number of French rolls, rolls ordered each day for the occasion. There was a swan, too, that came in for much of Wagner's affection. It was a regal bird and fit, as the master said, to draw the chariot of Lohegrin.

The childlike happiness, full to overflowing, with which this innocent occupation filled Wagner was an impressive sight never to be forgotten. It was Wagner as you saw before you, the natural man, affectionate, gentle and misanthropic. From Ferdinand Praeger's "Wagner as I Knew Him."

Huxley's Larger View.

James Huxley, once a member of the staff of the Pall Mall Gazette, was a typical man of letters. And Huxley, as everybody knows, was a typical scientific man. Huxley had been a midshipman when Huxley was a naval surgeon. Years after the two met each other on the steps of the British museum. "Huxley," said Huxley, "I care nothing for man except as a creature of historical tradition."

"Nor I," answered Huxley, "for him except as a compound of gas and water."

"But," he added, "if we were each of us better educated men than we are we should know how to respect each other's studies more."

Had to Take Him Down.

"Why does Mrs. Everson have her own baptismal names engraved upon her card instead of those of her husband? She isn't a widow, is she?"

"No, but I understand that she had a batch of cards engraved once upon which she styled herself 'Mrs. William Edgar Everson,' and he was so puffed up over it for two or three days that he actually seemed to think he was the head of the family. It is never safe to give some people too much leeway, you know."—Cleveland Leader.

WING SHOOTING.

It Cannot Be Taught to Hunters by Reading Books.

Wing shooting can no more be theoretically taught than can riding, skating, sailing a boat, milking a cow or playing the violin. Practice and perseverance in this, as in all field sports, can alone make perfect, while the most persistent effort even then often fails to make a "crack shot." Certain rules, however, must govern the beginner, which, if observed, will materially aid him in becoming an expert.

When a novice takes the field for game he is very apt to become flustered, or "rattled," at the critical moment when the bird is flushed, and then he will stare, open mouthed, and wonder how it happened. This often occurs in the field, and the tyro invariably has some plausible excuse to offer. His "gun was not cocked," he "stumbled his toe just as the bird rose" or some equally weak explanation is made, or else he lays all the blame on his dogs, whose thoughts, could they but express them, it would be interesting to interpret.

The best wing shooters do not close one eye in aiming, nor do they follow the bird in its flight with the muzzle of the gun, but closing one eye is admittedly better than tightly shutting both, as many young would be sportsmen have been known to do.—James W. Dixon in Recreation.

RAILWAY GATES

The Council has this week taken an important step in advance by inaugurating, or rather announcing their intention of inaugurating an energetic campaign against the C. F. R., with a view to securing proper gates at the Wellington and Centre street crossings, for the protection of the public, whose lives are, under present conditions, being almost daily endangered.

Mayor Stone summed the whole situation up in a few words when he said that these crossings are death traps, and a serious menace to public life.

The Council can rest assured that whatever action they decide upon will be heartily endorsed by every ratepayer of the city, provided it tends even in a small way to overcome present dangerous conditions.

THE VANCOUVER TROUBLE.

There can be no doubt that the Japanese trouble has been rendered possible by the blundering at Ottawa on the immigration question, says the Mail and Empire in a well-written editorial on the Vancouver situation.

It has been known for years that the far West is opposed to the introduction of large numbers of people from Asia. This fact was brought to the attention of Sir Wilfrid Laurier when he was appealing for the Premiership. On that occasion Sir Wilfrid telegraphed to Vancouver that whatever the West required should be done. Some time afterwards British Columbia passed Acts prohibiting the employment of Chinese and Japanese on works for which charters were then being granted. These provincial laws were disallowed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in response to the representations of Mr. Chamberlain, who, after pointing out that they were contrary to international comity, recommended instead the adoption of a restrictive immigration law on the basis of the Natal Act.

The next move in the history of the question was the informal agreement of Japan to limit the emigration to Canada. Meanwhile, a Royal Commission, appointed by the Ottawa Government, enquired into the Japanese question, and reported strongly against the unrestricted admission of Japanese. It was represented by this authority that the coming of vast numbers of Japs would affect the conditions of the labor disadvantageously to the white population, and would alter the racial outlook for the West. This report in its hands the Ottawa Government proceeded to deal with the question, and the course it decided upon was most extraordinary. It actually determined to accept all the provisions of the Japanese commercial treaty with Britain, including the clause guaranteeing the Japanese immigrants free and unrestricted admission to this country. The clause which alters the situation so radically reads thus:—

"The subjects of each of the two high contracting parties shall have full liberty to enter, travel, or reside in any part of the dominions or possessions of the other contracting party, and shall enjoy full and perfect protection for their persons and property."

"They shall not be compelled under any pretext whatever to pay any charges or taxes other or higher than those that are or may be paid by native subjects or by subjects or citizens of the most favored nation."

This agreement obviously abrogates the understanding previously in force, in virtue of which Japan restricted the emigration from that country to Canada. It also, in the latter clause, relating to taxation, forbids the laying on of any form of tax by Canada, for the purpose of regulating Japanese immigration, as in the case of the Chinese. When the ratification of the treaty was before Parliament, Sir Wilfrid Laurier omitted any reference to the immigration clause. That gentleman represented, untruthfully, as it turns out, that the main feature of the treaty was the commercial agreement. It is clear that the abrogation of the restrictive understanding, and the adoption in its place of the treaty provisions cited above, has brought in the great Japanese influx, and has led to the difficulties now prevailing in the West.

Now that trouble has arisen it is represented that the Government is making another agreement with Japan to nullify the treaty, and to bring into force the understanding which was set aside when the treaty was accepted. But this representa-

FROM PLANET FILES OF HALF A CENTURY AGO

Taken from Planet files from June 18th, 1868, to June 25th, 1868.

A few minutes before six o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out in the extensive saw factory of Mr. S. Hadley, on Wellington St. The steamer, which is stationed close by, was very soon brought to bear on the flames. Owing to the material of the contents and of the building itself the fire had a fair hold on it in a few minutes and it was impossible to save anything. The adjoining fanning mill factory of Mr. Wm. Campbell caught fire early and was completely destroyed. Mr. Hadley's loss will amount to $12,000, and there is no insurance. Mr. Campbell's loss will be $7,000.

About four o'clock on Monday afternoon, Albert, a son of Mr. Henry Baxter, master builder, aged 9 years, met with a death by drowning. He, along with an elder brother and other youngsters, was amusing himself by running along a lot of logs which are jammed up in McGregor's creek above Prince St. and while at the lower end of the jam the little fellow slipped off a log into the creek and was drowned.

Mr. John Green has sold out his pop manufactory to Messrs. Lambert and Turner, two young men of excellent business habits. The Planet recommends these two gentlemen to the public and states that they are honest and upright young men.

The Fenians are again making preparations for an invasion of Canada.

Weston, the walker, has been matched against George Topley, the English champion pedestrian, to walk 100 miles for $3,000 in Boston, between the 15th and 18th of June, under a forfeiture of $1,500.

A heavy frost fell on Tuesday night in the County of Wellington, doing considerable damage to the fruit and crops.

Lake Superior, the largest body of fresh water in the world, has an area of 32,000 square miles, and a mean depth of 1,000 feet. Lake Michigan has an area of 24,000 square miles, and a mean depth of 900 feet.

There are 170,000 barrels of oil stored in tanks at Petrolia.

There are in the Province of Quebec over fourteen hundred lawyers and their number is yearly increasing to an alarming extent.

A despatch from Bothwell states that a party of volunteers, belonging to Wardsville, on their way home from drill on Friday night were attacked by a party of men, supposed to be Fenians. The volunteers were badly beaten and one of them is not expected to live.

Early last week a young cow, belonging to Mr. Gourlay, living on the lake shore, in Raleigh, brought forth four calves, all of which were dead; the cow is still alive and well.

Burglars entered the store of Mr. Jackson, on Wellington St., the other night and carried off $12 in cash, three or four pounds of tobacco, candy and raisins, etc. They were captured a few days afterwards and turned out to be two colored lads by the name of Ferguson, of this city.

Wm. M. Smith, a former resident and fireman of this city, and lately Captain of Beaver Fire Co. No. 1, St. Thomas, was presented with a fine meerschaum pipe on leaving that town to return here.

The chief of the Astor House kitchen receives a salary of over $4,000 per annum.

Among the 130,000 persons buried in Greenwood Cemetery, New York, there are but seven centenarians.

On Wednesday night last a most daring robbery was perpetrated upon Mr. Samuel Barfoot, Postmaster, the particulars of which we have just learned. Mr. Barfoot occupies apartments in the upper part of the Post Office Block, and his habit is when going out of an evening, to leave his room unlocked. He did so on the above evening, and on returning he found that his room had been entered and several articles stolen. No clue has yet been found.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

THE BUSY WORLD.

Speed up, speed up!
That's the modern way.
Never stop to take a rest
Or a bit of play.
Morning, afternoon and night,
Hurry all the while.
That's the way to win success
And to land a pile.

Keep the grindstone turning.
Never stop to see
If the birds are singing
In the apple tree.
If the flowers are blooming
Or the grass is blue.
That won't bring in money
Or returns to you.

Pile up, pile up dollars!
Nothing else will count.
Strive to every minute
Add to the amount.
What is love or friendship,
Culture, truth or art
To a very handsome
Rating in the mart?

Never stop a minute.
Never ease the pack.
Keep right after money;
Always lead the race.
Never halt for pleasure;
Waste time in bed.
Life, you know, is fleeting,
And you'll soon be dead.

Getting Peated.
"Be you a lawyer?" asked a middle aged woman with an air of business as she entered the office of a budding attorney.
"I am," the young man confessed without blushing.

"What is the price of a divorce, to come right to the point?" she asked.
"Well, that depends somewhat on the kind of a case you have. What are the grounds on which you wish to sue the monster?"

"He ain't no monster."
"Pardon me, I mean your husband."
"I ain't got no husband."
"Then you are inquiring for a friend?"

"No, I ain't. Old Bill Skiffels has asked me to marry him, and I was thinking of some of doing so, but some folks say he ain't no good, and I want to see what it will cost me to get rid of him if we shouldn't hitch."

How He Escaped.

"How did the fish biting today?"
"Well, not so as to be dangerous. I hung about the bank for several hours and none of them bit me."

Failed.
"I know why woman is vain."
"Why?"
"To show men how foolish it is, that they may avoid it."

"Poor things!"
"Why?"
"They so obviously exist in vain."

For Business Purposes.
That women of Great Britain
In form may be complete
They're growing, so they tell us,
A larger size in feet.
It isn't for the beauty,
Maybe it's because
They'd be much more successful
A race of mother-in-laws.

But No Relief.
"Brown says he is hard up?"
"Well, let him be of good cheer."
"Why, especially?"
"I heard that he is going to get called down at the office."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.
Realizing ideals isn't always what it is cracked up to be.

Looking out for themselves seems to be the way lots of people take care of the poor.

Don't get mad unless you feel sure that you can make it operative.

People who have a winning way are apt to be poor losers.

Some people appear to think that if they owe duty to others it is up to the others to call and collect.

If we were not weak we would be so intolerably arrogant that we could not live with one another.

Some people really seem to think that the Almighty makes an irreparable mistake by not consulting them.

A woman would not want to be an angel if she thought the uniform wouldn't be becoming.

It doesn't require such a good swimmer to swim in wealth.

Good form ought to conform to common sense, and sometimes it does.

He is indeed an economist who makes a little work go a long way.

Most of our misfortunes are more supportable than the comment of our friends upon them.

Labor Scarce in West.

Winnipeg, Sept. 13.—The crop situation is still bright. A large proportion of the crop in Manitoba has been cut, and stacking is in progress. The scarcity of labor is causing alarm in spite of the large number flocking to the west. Reports from northern Saskatchewan and Alberta state that late crops are now suffering from severe frosts, but these reports are in the minority. It is estimated that 75 per cent. of the wheat was cut before the arrival of damaging frost.

Rowley Not Released.

Ottawa, Sept. 13.—The statement that George Rowley, the defaulting manager of the defunct Elgin Loan Co. of St. Thomas, has been pardoned after serving four years of a 12-year term is entirely untrue. Rowley is not "out west," but in Kingston, and his case has not been considered by the Department of Justice.

WHEN THAT COLD COMES.

How is it to be cured? This method is simplicity itself. Rub the chest and throat well with Nerviline, use it as a gargle and take some in hot water before retiring, along with one of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Next morning finds you refreshed, free from cold and bright for a dollar. These household remedies are wonderfully successful, and certainly won't fail in your case. For sale at all dealers.

Fatal Blast at Cobalt.
Cobalt, Sept. 13.—Jandre Kwarters, while at work on the scaffolding on Kendall shaft of the Nipissing Mining Co., was yesterday killed by a piece of rock fired from a blast on the Kerr Lake branch of the T. & N. O. Railway. The blast sent a stump about 200 feet in the air. The unfortunate man was 500 feet away.

A HARD CASE OVERCOME.

No longer necessary to suffer from muscular rheumatism. Every case can be cured. Ferrozone is unfailing, as proved by David Johnston, of Ormond, Ont. "My wife was a dreadful sufferer," he writes. "For two years she could do very little work. Her knuckles and joints swelled, causing torture. To get up or down stairs was impossible. She took box after box of Ferrozone and rubbed the sore place with Nerviline. Improvement started and she mended fast. To-day she is quite cured and we thank Ferrozone for her recovery." No remedy more popular with doctors than Ferrozone; it does cure, 50c. per box at all dealers.

Body on Lake Shore.
Colchester, Sept. 13.—The body of a young man was found on the lake shore two miles west of Colchester, day morning, with the letter "P. D. I." tattooed on the right arm. The body is supposed to be that of Percy Langdon of Conneaut, Ohio, who was drowned from a small boat near Bar Point one day last week.

Coming to Canada.
London, Sept. 13.—(C. A. P.)—Enquiries at the emigration offices of prospective emigrants to Canada next season promise to double those of September, 1906, which was a record month.

PITY THE BUSY OFFICE MAN.
He feels half dead, a sense of nausea, headache and nerve strain. He is on the verge of breakdown owing to overwork and lack of exercise. These difficulties are best overcome by Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which make the bowels active, stimulate kidneys and liver and thereby free the system of impurities.

To revitalize and stimulate your system, to shake off lethargy and tiredness, nothing compares with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which do make good looks, good spirits, good health. Sold everywhere in 25c. boxes.

Foot Horribly Mangled.
St. Thomas, Sept. 12.—A section man named Butler, lately out from the old country, was brought to the Aurora Wood Hospital here last night, with his foot horribly crushed. The accident happened at Sheddon, where the man's leg was extricated from between two bumpers of freight cars.

State Officer Short.
New Orleans, La., Sept. 12.—An alleged shortage of $100,000, reported yesterday in the accounts of the state tax commissioner here.

The police are searching for Charles E. Latham, a clerk in the office.

Hurry if you would succeed.

FISHING.

Standing all day on the edge of a stream
Dangling a thirty cent line
Into the water where, it is supposed,
Flashes are anxious to dine;
Standing on one foot and then on its mate
In the industrious sun,
Furnishing lunch to mosquitoes and flies—
Call that a bushel of fun?

Slipping around on a slimy old bank,
Sprawling at times on your knees,
Gleaning all sticky and covered with mud,
Looking as tough as you please,
Making you, when some rude bystander
Laughs,
Feel like committing a crime,
Something terribly cruel and fierce—
Call that a peach of a time?

Pulling out suckers so small they will not Measure an inch and a half,
While your companion, a beautiful girl,
Thinks that is where she should laugh;
Throwing them back and rebelling your hook,
Trimmed for more sizable prey,
Drawing a blank or a smaller one yet—
Call that hilarious, say?

Trailing off home when the sun has gone down,
Carrying nothing but tan,
"Where are your fishes, old man?"
Bearing up nobly until you are called in to explain to your wife
Just how it happened your string never strung—
Call that the time of your life?

First Aid.
"She raised thirteen children."
"By hand, I suppose."
"No, by the slipper."

Effective, but Heroic.
"Ladies," said the horrid man who had broken into the woman's club under false pretenses, "I have solved the servant girl problem. Would you like to hear how?"
"Would we?" they exclaimed in chorus.

"I take this as an invitation for me to proceed."
"It is," said the president, and all the others nodded assent. The excitement, though suppressed, was intense. Here was a man who was able to do what one stroke, what they had been striving to accomplish in a life time.

"How do you do it?" they cried.
"Simply," said the man picking up his hat and seeing that the exit was clear—simply by each woman doing her own work."

So Restless.
"I never saw anything like women. They want to be on the go all the time."
"Your wife that way?"
"I should say so. I took her to the theater last Christmas and now she wants to go to the circus this summer."

Similar Sounds.
"Won't you please bark for us, Mr. Shalleyhound?"
"Do you think I am a dog?"
"No, of course not."
"Then what do you mean, child?"
"Well, Brother Charley says you talk like a sausage, and I didn't see how else it could talk."

Leaves Her Track.
"That fluffy little blond is a very charming creature."
"And you can always tell when she has been around."
"How?"
"She sheds smiles and hairpins wherever she goes

MANNING THE YARDS.

A Naval Ceremony That Is Not What It Used to Be.

In the old navy, when United States ships were actually ships with yards, the boat's mate's call, "All hands cheer ship!" was followed by a much more picturesque ceremony than is possible now, when the vessels of the navy are fitted with but a single yard and that only used for signaling. At the word of command "Man the yards!" there was an amount of acrobatic scurrying on the main decks of the old ships that was calculated to make the ship visitor hold his breath, the thing looked so dangerous. The men forward in blue jacket uniform would fairly leap up the rope ladders, and almost by the time the echoes of the command had died away every yard on each mast would support scores of men and boys, all standing erect, most of them only held up by the crossed arms of the men below them. This representation of a cross was held by all of the men, and it was their business to stand thus with absolute stateliness. Then the command "Cheer ship!" would be bawled out on deck by the chief boat's mate, and there would be a yell from cathead to mizen that couldn't help but warm the blood of everybody within hearing of it. When the men manned the yards with all sail except topmasts and stunnies set, such a picture was really beautiful, the men's uniforms of blue standing out in sharp contrast to the faded white of the masts. This was a ceremony on all formal occasions, such as the visit aboard the old ships of distinguished men. And "Man the yards!" and "Cheer ship!" were commands always given when one of the old clippers of the United States navy was either departing for or arriving from a foreign station.

TO MASTER THE SHEET.

What You Must Learn if You Want to Be a Sailor.

One thing you have to learn before you can write sailor after your name, and that is to master a sail. Brute force is of no account. To use brute force with a sail is like employing it to capture an elephant of run down an untamed steed. Mastering a sail is a game of strategy, finesse, diplomacy, flattery, persuasion and perseverance, with fierce energy flashed in at the right instant. You must know your sail. Sails are not all alike. What will work with a jib will fail if applied to a mainsail or topmast.

When once a man has become skilled at this game he can do more at it than three lubbers. I've seen three men tackle a jib and come back on the head hauled and beaten after a fifteen minute fight, and then a fellow not a quarter their combined weight go out and conquer the sail, binding it captive in ten minutes. A sail master has five hands—two on his arms, two on his legs, and his teeth. Besides, he has knees, his elbows, the grip of his thighs, his neck, and his whole body. He must be an octopus, a boa constrictor and a monkey, combining with their qualities the patience of an ox, the quickness of a tiger and the subtlety of a fox. T. F. Day in the Outing Magazine.

His Medal.

The button worn by those to whom congress awards medals for special bravery in the country's service is blue with white stars, but it is not common enough for its significance to be generally understood. A city official who was entertaining a visitor who wore one of these buttons was puzzled by it and finally asked his visitor to enlighten him. The man hesitated modestly and began to explain that it was different from most decorations, especially foreign, which are usually brilliantly colored. Suddenly the official recalled what the medal meant. "Oh, I understand now," he interrupted; "it certainly is different. There's no yellow in it."

INTERNATIONAL S. S. LESSON FOR TO-MORROW.

Moses Pleading with Israel.—Deut. 6, 1-15. Read Deut. 5 and 6.

Golden Text—"Beware lest thou forget the Lord." "Teach me to do thy will, for thou art my God."

The book of Deuteronomy is taken up for the most part recapitulating, and explaining the law given to Moses at Sinai 40 years before. It is a farewell address by Moses, now 120 years of age, to God's people, whom he had led so long and brought to the borders of the promised land.

The whole hope of Israel, as seen by Moses, lay in their paying heed to, and treasuring faithfully and obeying sincerely the will of God, as He had revealed it to them, and it is man's only hope to-day. The mightiest thing in the universe is God's will, as by it He moves everything inanimate in harmony with His all wise plans. With angels, men and demons He acts differently. His will is revealed to them. To man—rebels—God says, in Isa. 1, 18, "Come, now, let us reason together; though your sins be as scarlet they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson they shall be as wool; if ye be obedient," etc. Va. 4, 5 and 6—God's commands are full power on unwillingness and disobedience. The Holy Spirit cannot lead and bless in heart the unwilling and disobedient. Our human will must surrender to the will of God ere we will look penitently to Jesus Christ for a blood-bought pardon and a new heart, which—V. 7—we will rob our homes and our children of our Christian example and precept, and our friends and neighbors—see verses 8 and 9—will be no better of us.

Our very prosperity, without the grace of God accompanying it—V. 12—is a life not worth living, and you make the final, fatal plunge as easily in a palace car as in a third class.

God commands absolute separation from all other gods; His love is jealous over us. Would any true man tolerate a wife with a divided heart? God is the husband of His people and will not tolerate an adulterous and divided heart.

Use the 5th verse as His promise to thee, and pray.

BEES MAKE FRUIT GROW.

Miracle Wrought In a Barren Orchard by Bee Colonies.

"Honey producing is only one of the missions of the bee. Indeed, for actual profit, the honey is but a minor item," says a writer in Suburban Life. "Some years ago I moved to a small place up the Hudson River. I wanted a box of fruit selected for that purpose a spot among apple, cherry, and plum trees, some of which had never borne fruit, others none for years past. My landlord told me I might cut down certain trees as they were worthless and he intended putting out some fine nursery stock."

"Being busy I did not cut the trees down. They blossomed freely, and of course we paid no further heed to them than to break blooms by the armful when we wanted floral decorations. The cherry trees were much to the owner's astonishment, loaded with very large, perfect fruit. He could not understand it; such a thing had not happened for years."

"Early in the autumn, while waiting for a swarm of bees to settle, I observed a number of bees applying to one of the smaller condemned trees. When the landlord's attention was called to them he was completely mystified, and called in his neighbors to see the wonder. Later we gathered from this tree nearly a barrel of the finest fall pippins ever seen in the vicinity."

"No argument would convince the man that 'them pesky bees' had anything to do with the yield of fruit on the place. He insisted that some sort of fertilizer must have been used. "Since that time I have conducted experiments that trees which had for many seasons borne little good fruit, or possibly none at all, have been brought up to a high standard of productiveness by the presence of bees. They carried the pollen, fertilized the blossoms and a bountiful harvest was the result. "Regardless of the honey crop every fruit-grower should have a few colonies of bees. If when the bloom season is past there is so little nectar in mid-season flowers that the bees must be fed, it is a decided economy to feed them, as in cases where a strict account has been kept the cash value of orchard products alone has been doubled by their assistance."

BRING BACK FROM DEATH.

Miraculous Device for Restoring Life Is Invented.

The resurrection from the dead is achieved by twentieth century machines. Prof. George Poe has invented an apparatus whereby persons killed by asphyxiation, poison, or drowning can be resuscitated. By this miraculous device the death of persons under the influence of anesthetics while being operated upon can be prevented; as also can infant asphyxia at birth. A drunken person can be sobered in a few minutes; persons hanged or electrocuted can be revived; and the freezing to death of Arctic explorers can be obviated. The machine which Prof. Poe has modeled connects directly, and has two double larynx tubes, or two tubes to connect with the nostrils, one an inlet for life giving oxygen, the other as an outlet for water or poisonous gases. It is in line with the construction of the heart and, therefore, has two cylinders, each having an inlet and an outlet valve. A demonstration was made with a rabbit which gave every sign of being dead and no sign of being alive. Within three minutes after the machine was applied the rabbit was running around, apparently as lively and well as ever in his life.

Punishment Fits the Crime.

New Zealand fits punishment to crime. Thus, at Wanganui, when certain sawyers troubled their neighbors by their drunken freaks the delinquents were made to pay the fines imposed in such labor as they were accustomed to and were sent to sawing wood with which to build a prison. The result was that rather than transgress again they vanished from the locality as soon as the building was complete.

Men who are not considered chronic criminals are subjected occasionally by experiments in this country to a course of Turkish baths, followed by showers and by a cold douche, the idea being that their criminal instincts are due to physical degeneracy which may be thus counteracted. A Massachusetts town purchases female offenders by giving them, at first, poor clothes and cracked crockery from which to take their food, good dresses and better table equipment being provided and leave being given to keep pet animals as an improvement in their conduct is manifested.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The Earth's Iron Content.

The earth is an unusually heavy planet, when its small size is considered, and this circumstance has given much comfort to goldbugs who cherish the idea that a big lump of gold at the centre of the earth accounts for its gravity. But at the recent meeting of the British Association, in a paper on "The Deeper Layers of the Earth's Crust," Professor Gregory stated that "recent work strengthens the belief that the earth consists of a ball of nickel-iron surrounded by a stony crust," and discussed briefly the possible relations of this question to the future supply of iron ore and to the formation of some of the world's deposits. It is important to note, it seems, that weights of earth. But practical men have always considered an iron-ore mine easier than a gold mine.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

We owe a debt of gratitude to thinking people when they abstain from telling what they think.

Queer that everybody likes to practice foolishness, yet hates to be thought anything of a fool.

In selecting your lies get colors that will wear well.

Some people are so keen on the trail of possibilities that they can't see the probabilities that they are tumbling over.

It is better to get the estimate of your ability from an enemy than a friend if you have any pluck in you.

Don't fool yourself on being able to do well a thing that you don't like to do.

The kicker who won't be still is the one whose case has to be attended to and is.

Not a drop of Alcohol

Doctors prescribe very little, if any, alcohol these days. They prefer strong tonics and alteratives. This is all in keeping with modern medical science. It explains why Ayer's Sarsaparilla is now made entirely free from alcohol. Ask your doctor. We have no secrets! We publish J. C. Ayer Co., the formula of our preparations. Lowell, Mass.

RAILROAD WRECKERS.

More Strenuous Workers Than Fire Fighters in Big Cities.

The career of the wrecker on a big railroad is like that of a fireman in the fire department of a big city, only more strenuous. Like the fireman, the wrecker is on duty every second day and night, and, like the fireman, the wrecker braves blizzards and sleet storms, often facing hardships and cruel suffering and even death for the saving of life and property. But whereas even in emergency the fireman never covers an area greater than the most populous section of a city—the line traversed by the wrecker covers a hundred or more miles—and whereas the fireman is in touch with at least some comforts as he may snatch while on his feet, not infrequently the wrecker is landed in the heart of a wilderness miles and miles from the nearest town, and the pangs of hunger are added to privation.

Sometimes when a big wreck has happened and cars and engines are piled high on crushed and mangled bodies the wrecker is rushed through darkness and snowdrift to work from twenty-four to forty-eight hours without even a chance to take his cap off, and just as his "job" is nearly completed along comes another alarm that sends him sixty or seventy miles in an opposite direction, where box cars and coal cars have heaped themselves thirty feet high, paralyzing the road and costing thousands of dollars' worth of loss in time and prestige almost every hour.

Despite these hardships, the danger, the excitement and the bustle of the work endear it to the men.—Ayer's Boker in Appleton's.

Lively Mourning.

A noted English artist once was standing at the edge of the road waiting for his horse and he was dressed in his usual peculiar style—mustard-colored riding suit, vivid waistcoat and bright red tie. A man who had evidently been reveling happened to lurch round the corner of the street. He stared at the famous artist for a minute in silence, then he touched his cap and asked in a tone of deep commiseration, "Beg pardon, guv'nor, was you in mourning for anybody?"

The Place For the Repentant.

They had eloped and returned for the parental blessing.
 "Father," the beautiful young woman said, "we are sorry for what we have done. Will you?"
 "Then," the stern old man interrupted, "why don't you go to the lawyer around the corner? I'm no divorce court."

Berlin, Sept. 12.—A railway workman at Koenigsbude, Silesia, died Tuesday under circumstances which suggested cholera. Official reports showing the progress made by cholera in Russia are disquieting.

I know that my home treatment is a safe and sure cure for Leucorrhoea or White Discharge, Irritation, Displacement or Falling of the Womb, Prolapse, Scanty or Painful Periods, Uterine or Ovarian Troubles or Growths, also pains in the head, back and bowels, bearing-down feelings, nervousness, creeping feelings up the spine, melancholy, desire to cry, hot flashes, weakness, kidney and bladder troubles where caused by weaknesses peculiar to our sex. I want to send you a complete 10 days' treatment entirely free to prove to you that you can cure yourself at home, easily, quickly and surely. Remember, that it will cost you nothing to give the treatment a complete trial; and if you should wish to continue, it will cost you only about 25 cents a week, or less than two cents a day. It will not interfere with your work or occupation, and you may use it as long as you wish. I will send you free of cost my book—"WOMAN'S OWN MEDICAL ADVISOR"—with explanatory illustrations showing why women suffer and how they may easily cure themselves at home, without the help of a doctor. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any doctor. J. M. (Pike has returned from London.

Mayor Dever, of Dresden, was a city visitor last night.

H. D. Bowman, of Fletcher, is in the city to-day on business.

Miss Kate Robertson, Park St., who has been ill for the past week, is much improved.

Mrs. B. R. Jones, Queen Street, will be at home on the second and fourth Thursday of each month.

Anniversary Services in Christ Church To-morrow, Rev. A. L. Murray, M.A., will be the special preacher. All invited. Special music by the choir.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Fandor, of Silver Springs, are expected in the city to-morrow, and will spend a week the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Phelps, Raleigh Street.

If you can't come to-day come on Monday! $3.50 and $3 Skirts for $2.49, $5.50 and $5 Skirts for $3.49 and $2.69, $3.47 Skirts for $3.00 and $4.90. New York Coat Store Sale.

Dr. McKeough, Mr. Richards, and Mr. Somerville inspected the new improvements which have been made at the C.O.I., and state that they are much pleased with the work.

Emma Mays, wife of Frank Mays, King Street East, died yesterday afternoon after a short illness. Deceased was 22 years of age. The funeral will take place to-morrow at 2.30 o'clock from the A. M. E. Church. Interment will be made in the Maple Leaf Cemetery.

Mr. James Galloway, organist and choir-master of Christ Church, Chatham, who is shortly leaving Chatham to take up an appointment in Toronto, will give a farewell benefit Piano Recital in Christ Church Hall, on Monday evening next, Sept. 16, with the kind assistance of Mr. S. I. Slade, of Detroit. Admission 25 cents.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Mills, Murray Street, entertained a few of their friends last evening in honor of their guest, Mrs. Burdette, of Berlin. The evening was a most successful one, and a very pleasant and enjoyable time was spent in cards and music. Mr. and Mrs. Mills proved delightful entertainers. It is with the deepest regret that their many friends have learned of their early departure from Chatham to again take up their residence in Berlin. Both are deservedly popular, and it is needless to say that they will be greatly missed.

Court Fride of lower, No. 8765, A.O.F. Bear Line, holds the ninth anniversary of its foundation early in October, to which the two Chatham A. O. F. Courts will be invited.

John McDonald was fined $1 and costs—$5 in all—this morning for partaking too freely of the juice of John Barclaycorn. McDonald is a member of the crew of the Asov, and, when he lets drink alone, is a good worker and a good citizen. He promised Judge Houston that he would never touch liquor again.

A number of cards were scattered about Queen Street last night by some unknown person or persons, bearing the name of a local man, and insinuating that he was responsible for the recent poisoning of dogs. This probably constitutes a criminal offence, and the parties might be tried for blackmail if discovered.

Mr. and Mrs. (Dr.) Holden and Mr. and Mrs. Jones, of Trenton, Mich.; Mrs. J. Squires and daughter Dorothy, of Detroit; Mr. Wm. Marston, of Fitzgerald, Georgia; Mrs. Simpson, of Niles, Mich.; and Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Anderson, of Chicago, Ill., were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Baikie, Lansdowne Ave., yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rice, of San Francisco, Cal., will prolong their stay in this city until the middle of next week. Mr. Rice is an old Chatham boy, who is now one of California's prosperous business men. He has met many of his old school-mates, and is the same old Frank, only older, broader and a little grayer than when he last visited the city.

A BUNCO GAME

The bunco game worked on the Chinese restaurant man by six smooth young men the other night, appears to be contagious. A woman who was buying produce on the market this market this morning was it successfully on Mrs. Jas. Crower, of Dover.

The woman, whom Mrs. Crower doesn't know by name, approached her and bought two chickens at 50c. She handed Mrs. Crower a dollar and asked for change.

Just as Mrs. Crower was putting down the 50 cents, a companion of the strange woman drew Mrs. Crower's attention away, and the woman picked up the 50 cent change, the chickens and the dollar bill and walked away. Mrs. Crower is there by out the chickens and 50 cents.

LOOKED SUSPICIOUS

Getting off the railway car at a pump house has a suspicious look, and when a stranger did this, on Saturday afternoon last, and having a tough appearance as well, a young man thought it wise to inform Chief Benn of this party's arrival in the Burg. The chief and his staff kept him in view. He registered at the Empire as J. R. Reno, of London, and at 11 o'clock the chief enquired after this mysterious stranger of the hotel man, who informed him that he had just retired.

The chief, just to reassure himself, went with Mr. Hoffman to the room and, to their surprise, the room was unoccupied. The chief notified the banks to keep a close watch on their premises, and on further investigation found that the stranger had taken the 11 o'clock car out of town, which flight was due to the fact that he was onto the police and knew that they had him every move he made. It is supposed that he was the man who was arrested six months ago for breaking into the post office at Dresden. — Wallaceburg News.

ENTERTAINED STUDENTS

The members of the League of Park Street Methodist Church provided a social evening to the students and strangers of the city last evening, at which a pleasant time was spent.

The program was of a high order, and consisted of solos by Miss Gertrude Potter, Mr. Wignall, Miss Anna Clements, Mr. Wignall, and J. P. MacLaine, a duet by Miss MacPett and Mr. MacLaine was sung, after which George Hahn gave an excellent piano solo. An instrumental duet by Miss Hillman and Miss Norma Shillington received much applause. Dr. Daniels gave a short and interesting address.

Will Shillington acted as chairman in his usual excellent style. The various accompaniments were played by Miss Flossie Bogart, Miss Minnie Cumming, and Mr. Hahn. A very enjoyable time was spent by all.

MRS. THOMPSON SETON.

Her New Book an Experience of the Hunting Field.

Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton, wife of Ernest Thompson Seton, is shining forth in a field that few women have entered, that of the gun, the camp and the pack pony. Her latest book, "Nimrod's Wife," is a brisk and gay narrative of hunting experiences in the Sierras, in the Rockies, on the Ottawa river and in Norway. It is a great little book, one that the modern American woman will read with keen enthusiasm, wishing she had been a part of such scenes of care free excitement in the open. But the main point of interest of its 400 and more pages is that Mrs. Ernest Thompson Seton is a crack shot, one of the mightiest of huntresses, a Mrs. Nimrod in all actuality who has brought down her moose, her bear, her deer, her record being most enviable among women with the gun.

MRS. ERNEST THOMPSON SETON.

All these tales of the hunting field Mrs. Thompson Seton relates with much gusto and snap. She is a born story teller and the incidents reel off vividly from her pen. Not until late in the book, when the chapters on Norway hunting are reached, does this woman hunter concede that she finally laid down her rifle for a camera and became a devotee of the "new hunting."

This brilliant set of entertaining anecdotes of Mrs. Thompson Seton's "kills" in the far west and in Canada is striking when it comes to be compared with Ernest Thompson Seton's emphatic announcements over a number of years that he only shoots for food, not for sport, and that his "good hunting" is altogether with the camera. Mrs. Seton's experiences, therefore, are piquant in the extreme, bound up in a book over her own name.

Neatness and Matrimony. Scrupulous neatness, even to the smallest trifles, often determines a man's decision regarding the marrying of a girl more than any other thing. A good education, great ability or even exceptional beauty will not take the place of absolute cleanliness and tidiness. Most men will not overlook the lack of these things.

Men very quickly notice buttons off shoes, gloves, dress or coat, or soiled gloves, or spots upon the clothing, and are always prejudiced by them, because they probably indicate slovenliness in the home. Nothing is more abhorrent to a man than untidiness in a girl.

Nothing is so disappointing to the male sex as to find that the girl from whom so much was expected is found wanting in the matter of neatness and orderliness. Slovenliness is a very easy thing to fall into. We ought all to be on guard against it. After all, it is trifles that tell, small details in the matter of dress. Here is an example: Not long ago, a young man had occasion to travel by an early train every morning and got to know a pretty, well dressed young lady who always went by the same train. He fell in love—but one morning he became disillusioned. As the girl alighted from the train he saw a large hole in her stocking above the heel of her shoe. He was so particular about being neat himself that he could not stand untidiness in others. If this girl could be slovenly in small things, he argued, she would certainly be so in large and careless about the house. And he was perfectly right. All thoughts of asking her to share her life with him have vanished.

Slovenliness in dress without doubt indicates a similar defect in home life. We should all try to make a good impression on people. The world judges a great deal by outward appearances. Any man fights shy of a girl who evidently cares so little about what people think that she will not go to the trouble of being neat. "Oh, it doesn't matter! No one will see!"

the careless and untidy girl often exclaims. But people do so and silently note all that is wanting. Girls who desire to make a good impression, who desire men to respect and admire, must pay attention to the smallest details. Carefully mended gloves, tidy shoe laces, scrupulously clean face—even if it bears evidence of mending—are all indicative of neatness and self respect. A girl who looks after her personal appearance will see that the home is scrupulously tidy and orderly.

There is an old proverb that "it's bad to be poor, but it's doubly bad to look poor." The girl who is tidy and neat in the little details of her dress will not show the empty state of her purse nearly so much as she who allows her clothes to become dragged and unkempt, and the tidy girl will certainly be far more likely to meet a good and worthy man, whose honest, strong hands will labor for her.

Did Likewise. "Upon my word, it's too bad," grumbled Mrs. Dazzle in a complaining voice. "I shall really have to punish those dreadful children."

"Why, what have the little dears been up to now?" inquired the henpecked husband.

"They have made my sewing room into a perfect bear garden," answered his wife. "Nothing is in its right place. Cotton, wool, pins, scissors, needles and all my working materials are jammed in odd corners anyhow."

"That wasn't the children, dear," said Mr. Dazzle in his suave tones. "I did that."

"You did it, did you?" snapped his wife. "And pray what possessed you?" "My kindness of heart prompted me to do it. As you straightened up my room and arranged all my books and papers so beautifully I thought I'd put your sewing room in order—so I did."

Watermelon Cake.

This consists of two parts, the white portion imitating the rind and the pink made like the center. It has a green frosting, and in the pink part are raisins to represent seeds. Divide the same white cake batter in two parts, tinting the one portion with pink sugar until the shade desired. A little strawberry juice may also be put in. Add the raisins dredged with flour. Now it will take two persons to manipulate the batter when pouring in the round mold in which it is to be baked. Let one put in the white part for the border, while the other adds the pink center. Bake about an hour in a moderate oven. When done cool in the mold, then invert on a round platter and ice thickly with icing colored green with a little spinach juice.

Children's Pocket Money.

As soon as a child is old enough to ask for a penny to spend for itself a small weekly allowance should be given and the child taught to save a portion of it for presents, etc. No matter how few the pennies a child should know just how many to expect during the week and on what day. This will teach the value of money—a valuable lesson—and it will also teach the little one how to be generous and self denying by carefully saving up some of those same cherished pennies for a present for some one else.

Packing a Coat.

A useful thing for wives to know when they are packing up their lord and master's clothes is how to fold a man's coat. There is a knack in it that it will add domestic happiness for her to master. Lay the coat out perfectly flat, right side up. Spread the sleeves out smoothly, then fold them back to the elbow until the bottoms of the cuffs are even with the collar. Fold the revers back and double the coat over, folding it on the center seam. Smooth out all wrinkles and lay it on a level surface in the trunk.

To Prevent Riding Up of Skirt.

A common complaint is that skirts will ride up in the front. Women that have prominent abdomens have more trouble than others. There are two remedies for this—either to wear some of the many contrivances which are sold for this purpose or to make a tab of lining material about four and a half inches wide and five inches long. This must be shaped out to fit the center of the skirt in front and caught with the seam when the facing is sewed on at the waist line. Finish the edge of it by pinking.

Modish Perfumes.

The woman who aspires to smartness takes care to be as full in the matter of perfumes. Each year sees several new scents in vogue, though a certain few of the old-fashioned essences retain their popularity. Of these lavender and wood violet denote the refined, well bred woman. The scents of the present season are remarkable for their subtle yet penetrating odor. Violette de Indes are again considered modish.

Portuguese Salad.

Slice two medium sized firm cucumbers, one small Spanish onion, two medium sized tomatoes, two sweet peppers and two sound apples from which the cores have been removed. Mix in a salad bowl with four tablespoonsful of French dressing. Serve plain or on lettuce leaves, ice cold.

Save tea leaves for washing varnished paint. When sufficient leaves have accumulated steep them for thirty minutes in a tin vessel and then strain through a sieve. This water will give varnished paint a newer and fresher appearance than a washing with soap and water.

A loving woman will keep her heart warm as long as she lives and her hair black as long as she dyes. Max O'Reil.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, and is constantly used, but both are important. Both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the local.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical anesthetic membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure," as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes and inflames mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, enters nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—two general foods to the system. For positive local help, use as well

EASY FOR MORPHY.

Story of the Great Chess Master and a Celebrated Painter.

Paul Morphy, on his visit to Philadelphia, was the guest of a clergyman, the Rev. Mr. H. On his arrival at the minister's home the chess master was first ushered into the library, and his attention was at once attracted by a painting over the mantel, which was a fine copy of a celebrated painting representing a game of chess between a young man and the devil, the stake being the young man's soul.

The artist had most graphically depicted the point in the game where it was apparently the young man's move, and he seemed just to retrace the fact that he had lost the game, the agony of despair being shown in every line of his features and attitude, while the devil from the opposite side of the table gloated over him with fiendish delight. The position of the game appeared utterly hopeless for the young man, and Mr. H. said he had often set it up and studied it with his chess friends, and all agreed the young man's game was certainly lost.

Mr. Morphy walked up to the picture and studied it for several minutes, when finally, turning to Mr. H., he said:

"I can win the game for the young man."

Mr. H. was of course astonished and said, "Is it possible?"

Mr. Morphy replied, "Get out the men and board and let us look at it."

The position was set up, and in a few rapid moves he demonstrated a complete win for the young man, and the devil was checkmated.

Rice at Weddings.

At a wedding breakfast, according to what to eat, a bridegroom is heard to tell the true reason for rice being used at weddings. It was once believed that if on their wedding journey a newly wedded couple saw a flock of doves it would mean a long life of peace and happiness to them. A bride party in passing so frightened a flock of these timid birds that they flew away in great alarm, and to avert the evil omen that their flight signified for the newly married couple rice was thrown in great quantities to lure the birds back to the place from which they had flown. This plan was so successful that the wedded pair went on their way rejoicing and lived ever afterward a happy and prosperous life. Since then rice has been used as a symbol of good luck, peace and happiness at weddings.

Variations of Cards.

There are an enormous number of possible variations of cards in card games. Every man when he takes up his cards at whist holds one out of 655, 012, 559, 600 possible hands. The total number of variations possible among all players is so great as almost to exceed belief. It has been calculated that if a million men were to be engaged in dealing cards at the rate of one deal every minute day and night for 100, 000,000 years they would have exhausted only a hundred-thousandth part of the variations of the cards.

RIGHT HAND OR BOTH HANDS.

Four-Fifths of the Babies Said to Be Ambidextrous.

Many reasons have been advanced for the prevalence of right-handedness. It is by some said to be the result of nursing and infantile treatment, to be due to early practice in writing and drawing, to be the outcome of warfare, education, and heredity, the result of mechanical law and other remote causes, according to The Strand. Sir James Sawyer declares that the preferential use of the right hand is due to the fact that in primitive days man used the right hand for the purposes of offence, so as to keep the heart—the vital spot—as far as possible from the assault of an adversary. Recent experiments and observations, however, prove that single-handedness is merely the result of faulty or restricted education.

It is a curious instance of human contrariety that should one eye, one ear, or one leg of a child show signs of diminished vigor the parents would instantly seek the cause of and if possible remedy for that lamentable condition; yet for some inexplicable reason or prejudice the left hand of the average child is ruthlessly and deliberately neglected, until in mature years it is an undeveloped, useless, and almost unnecessary appendage.

Close observations have shown that out of every hundred persons born into this world eighty are congenitally ambidextrous—that is to say, they will instinctively reach for an object with either hand and only require proper instruction and training to develop both hands and arms to an equal degree of strength and skill.

Of the remaining 20, 17 will be right-handed, while the other three will show a natural bias toward the left hand. The cultivation of ambidexterity, therefore, offers no insuperable difficulties, and the economical, physiological, and psychological advantages are enormous.

It is said that the Japanese soldiers can use their weapons with equal skill in either hand, for they are trained to be ambidextrous from childhood. At school they are taught to write and draw with both hands. In drawing and painting no supporting device whatever is used, the entire arm being employed.

TEST OF TRUE MANLINESS.

Moral Courage Which Obtains Only With Highest Type.

The real and unflinching test of manliness is a fixed purpose to do the right at all hazards. Physical courage alone may be possessed in a remarkable degree by the bulldog or the weasel, but moral courage obtains only with the highest type of men. Loyalty to the truth, and abiding conviction that no man can afford to be false in any relation of life is a quality of true manliness. This type of manliness never squirms, equivocates or fawns. When in error it most frankly confesses to the wrong, but never compromises with evil. Our genuine man will risk life, reputation, all, for truthfulness of speech and rectitude of behavior.

Quick Wit Saved Him.

William Faversham once saved himself a dismissal from a company in his early days, through his quick wit. "I had been engaged as 'utility man,'" he says, "with a company that opened a war play in a western town. I had a difficult part that ran through every act, and it was important, even if I had little to say or do. I got along very well, and in spite of the many costume changes I had, I was with no difficulty until the last act. I was an 'orderly' in this scene and I was hurrying to buckle my belt when I heard my cue.

"I hastened to the wings. Some one threw fuller's earth all over me to show that I had been riding hard. I dashed madly on just as the sound of hoofs died away. When I reached the centre of the stage and the applause had subsided, my hand went into my tunic for my despatches, which I was to hand to General Allen. I had forgotten them!

"Now, these despatches furnished the climax of the play, and something had to be done and done quickly. I felt my heart rise in my throat and knew that everyone on the stage was looking at me. The wait was growing awful, terrible, and I was just about losing courage, when a brilliant idea came to me. I threw open my shirt, ripped off a porous plaster I was wearing and thrust it into the general's hand. Then I staggered to a chair and dropped exhausted. There was a round of wild applause, for the audience thought I had been shot and had saved the wound with the despatches!"

Witch Doctors.

A curious case of "witch-doctoring" occurred recently near Vryheid, in Natal. A boy belonging to Chief Kembi's tribe returned to his kraal from Johannesburg sick, and Manoni Ulongdwa, a learned Kafir "doctor," diagnosed his ailment as madness. A hole was dug in the clay, deep enough to cover the patient to his shoulders, and bundles of wood were put into the hole and set alight. After the wood had burned for an hour water was thrown on the fire, causing clouds of steam. The patient was placed in the midst of this heated furnace, and carefully covered with a cowhide. One witness said the steam escaping through an opening of the skin, severely burned him on the arms and shoulders, so that the state of the unfortunate patient was obvious. The "doctor" said they could take the man out when he became unconscious, but they found him dead. Four months later native gossip carried the story to the authorities who exhumed the body and arrested the "doctor," who is now serving 18 months' hard labor.

Weight and Power

The CHATHAM 4 cylinder 25 H.P. Motor Car, at $2,500, is a bargain—better than the average $3,000 car of any power. We consider weight of car in relation to power of engine. Many cars are either over or under-powered, costing more to operate in one case, and breaking down frequently in the other.

THE CHATHAM (A CANADIAN CAR)

is built to last and to run economically. It is a handsome car, too. Introduce the first one in your town. It will "make good" to you and be the admiration of your friends. It will be WORTH WHILE to write us for catalogue giving full particulars. Manufactured by THE CHATHAM MOTOR CAR CO., Limited, Chatham, Ont.

TWENTY MINUTES' REST.

Short Naps Taken Daily Will Often Prevent Illness.

A knowledge of how to rest will be a saving of many ill attacks in hot weather. One might think that each individual would know the best way for her to find repose, but nowadays so many women fling themselves down to "rest" in summer, or winter for that matter, with all their clothes on, necks bound in tight collars and closely corseted, that comparatively few of them have even a notion of how to relax body and mind. Resting is a science, and to do it so that one will be refreshed it is necessary to completely relax. There will be little or no renewal of strength if the nerves and brain work like mad during the "rest."

Three things essential to repose are light garments (one is enough during this season), quiet and a subdued light. Lacking any one of these much good is lost, and twenty minutes used in this way are worth hours of lying down without relaxing.

A woman who is at home all day may take such a rest at any time that she chooses to arrange her household affairs for that purpose, but for a business woman it is different. Yet she needs it, and she should always try using a half hour in this way when she comes home from a day downtown, particularly while the summer heat has been exhausting.

To begin the "rest" first remove all the clothes one has worn during the day, and if possible take a shower bath. Failing this a sponging in cold water (a real sponging, not a bath) is sufficient, and then don a thin dressing gown.

No matter how small the apartment, there must be one room into which a person can go to be quiet, and there she should lie herself. If a woman can lie on the floor comfortably she will find this the coolest place in the house. For this she should have pillows in nice cool cases. Sofa cushions will not do for this; they are usually too warm.

Let her throw herself down for twenty minutes and close her eyes, trying at the same time to relax her mind. It will not do the least good in the world to think of the trials of the day or the perplexities of the next. Such thoughts will simply add to her fatigue, and it is more than worth while to try to fill one's mind with pleasant ideas, books one has read and liked or people of whom one is fond. Such a train of thought as this will quite frequently lead to sleep before one knows it, and even five or ten minutes of this are delightful. Even without sleep there is still great rest under such conditions.

Dress Accessories.

Belts, collars, veils, gloves, shoes and stockings—all the little details of the costume—count so tremendously in the total ensemble of the outfit this season that a goodly part of the allowance should be kept to be expended on just these so-called misnamed minor articles. Half an inch more or less in the width of the belt often stamps a gown as smart or out of date, while by the height of the collar band, the style of the veil pattern and the color of the shoes, stockings and gloves the well-dressed woman can at once be picked out of a crowd. Princess and empire frocks are so popular that it is difficult to say just what style of girdle will be a settled fact, for with the two pieces dresses, waist and skirt separate all possible widths and models are to be seen. The tailored suit with a narrow stitched belt seems the thing, and for dressier costumes the draped girdle—large buckles have just lately become the craze, and handsome rhinestones of fancy design in dull gold are always an effective finish to a ribbon belt. All collars are high, but soft in finish, and a splendid background for necklaces and brooches in most elaborate designs.

Chemiselettes or plaited fronts, similar to the ruffled shirt our grandfathers wore, are quite a novelty and can be adjusted to any costume. They are made of handkerchief linen and have tiny ruchings of the same materials on each edge of a one inch fold. A stock and jabot of ruching edged with lace give the finishing an ultra smart touch.

Double Stewpans.

These granite stewpans are made with a flattened side in order that both may be placed over one burner of a gas stove.

A Summer Hat.

One can be made by using a dolly set, the large piece hollowed out to fit the brim of wire frame; one small dolly for top of crown. The remaining five can be used as a rosette or for sides of the crown. Fill under the brim with gathered mull or net. You are saved lots of work of embroidering, and yet have a handsome hat, which is easily laundered.

CUNNING OF MUSKRATS.

Forethought With Which These Animals Build Winter Homes.

In the month of March, before the rivers have opened, on the snow around the heads of the creeks and about the airholes in the thick ice may be seen the curious trail of the muskrat. It can readily be recognized by the firmly planted footmarks, heavily and slowly impressed, and the sharp after drag of the long, scaly, blade-like tail. All through the cold winter months these heavily furred animals have lived warm and comfortable in their well-constructed houses, rearing their third and last litter. One house erected about September seemed planned with almost human foresight. Here, with their long sharp teeth and strong, inch long claws, they had cut and cleared wide paths through all the marshes, paths so deep that three feet of ice did not close them, so wide that we have often paddled along them, marvelling at the great floating masses of torn up aquatic vegetation. These paths were a hundred yards long and four feet wide and were cut through a mass of tangled cover high enough in most places to thoroughly conceal a duck hunter and his canoe. In the winter months the muskrats can easily drive from their houses into these under ice channels, and the whole marsh before them to choose their meal from. The long yellow roots of the flag and the juicy tubers of the wild onion (the muskrat apple) is the more poetic of the way) hang exposed before them or are readily torn out—Bonnycastle Dale in Onting Magazine.

The American Sailor.

It is related of Commodore Decatur that after he had tamed the Barbary powers, whose energies had been reawakened while the war of 1812 kept our navy busy, he set out in his flagship, the Guerrero, to make his way across the Mediterranean, attended and suddenly found himself in the midst of one of the corsair fleets which had remained in a neutral port during hostilities. The situation looked rather equally. The corsair admiral hailed, "What sheep is that?" "The United States ship Guerrero, Commodore Decatur," was the reply. "Where you going?" was the next question. "Where I please!" thundered Decatur through the speaking trumpet, and the Guerrero proceeded unmolested. — Boston Transcript.

Man's Walk Shows Age.

"You can tell a man's age by his hands," said one of the girls. "They get knobby and veined, and terrible. They get old sooner than his face."

"You can tell it most of all, I think," said the woman, "by his walk. I know a man who has been one of the brightest minds of his time who is still the best company I know, but the other day when I saw him come toward me at his home along the hall it made me awfully sad to see the heavy, old, old way in which he walked." — New York Press.

Inspid Company.

Low spirits are my true and faithful companions. They get up with me, go to bed with me, make journeys and returns as I do; nay, and pay visits and will even affect to be jocose and force a feeble laugh with me, but most commonly we sit alone together and are the prettiest inspid company in the world. — Thomas Gray.

In a Hurry.

"How did your wife like that new hat you got her?"

"She was speechless with delight."

"Say, where can I get one like it for mine?" — Cleveland Leader.

Agreed.

Wife—I'd rather starve than cook. Husband—I'd rather starve than have you cook. — Harper's Weekly.

Every action is measured by the depth of the sentiment from which it proceeds. — Emerson.

PANDORA RANGE

PANDORA FLUES

Arrows show direction of heat.

The Pandora Flue System is an Immense Improvement

While we don't desire to say that the usual flue construction is not good, for it is considered good, still we do say that the Pandora flue system is an immense improvement.

In the ordinary range the flues conduct the smoke and heat by the shortest route to the chimney (as shown by illustration in lower corner). The heat does not pass directly under all pot holes, nor around all surfaces of the oven.

In the Pandora (illustrated in upper left hand corner) when the draft is set for baking, the heat, by means of a curved flange, is made to pass under and heat every pot hole except the back inner one, before it is drawn down the outer half of the back end flue, and under the oven—a dividing flange under oven bottom prevents the heat from short cutting, and forces it to travel, first under the outer half of oven, then under the inner half.

The result is that the heat is spread uniformly over the oven. And every loaf of a whole batch of bread will be done equally well on all sides.

From under the oven bottom the heat travels up the inner half of back end flue, and passes under the back inner pot hole before disappearing up the chimney.

Thus it will be seen that all the heat circulates around the oven twice and under every pot hole before it goes up the chimney—that the draft for baking is also the best for cooking.

And, as the heat is made to perform a double duty by this improved system, the fuel bill is greatly reduced.

The most economical as well as the most improved range on the market to-day bears the name Pandora. It's a name worth remembering when buying a range.

If your local dealer does not sell the Pandora, write direct to us for free booklet.

A "Hecla" Furnace

will always keep your home warm and comfortable, and provide, in addition, a system of ventilation that will always keep the air fresh and pure and free from gas, smoke or dust.

Hecla Fused Joints guarantee this purity of atmosphere, because they are made by fusing the iron and steel of the Hecla together at a white heat in such a way as to make a joint that is absolutely tight for all time. In all other furnaces, this joint is made with bolts and cement, and the difference in the ratio of expansion between iron and steel soon strains the bolts and loosens the cement, leaving openings for the escape of gas and dust. Fused joints are everlasting.

Sectional Fire Pots.

I make Hecla Fire Pots in sections to prevent cracking in the centre where most fire pots give way. I provide for expansion and contraction in such a way that there is no strain on Hecla Fire Pots. The flanges, cast on Hecla Fire Pots, add 50% to the heating surface.

Triangular Grate Bars

keep the fire clean with less trouble than any other grate bars made; one turn of the crank clears out the ashes, removes clinkers and leaves a bright, clean fire.

If you are building a House or installing a heating system, you should know why the Hecla is the most sanitary, the most efficient and most economical furnace made. See our nearest agent or write the Hecla Furnace Builder for the latest catalogue and a free estimate.

BASEBALL SUPPORT

Earl Kimmerley umpired the ball game Thursday afternoon to the satisfaction of both teams. His decisions were fair all through. Julius Pierrott, who was the means of bringing the Dutton players here, is deserving of much credit. He put the game on at his own expense, and the people of this city, who are fond of such sport, should feel gratified to Mr. Pierrott for bringing such a good team to the city.

There were over 400 people on the Park yesterday, and the collections amounted to the sum of $6. This makes an average of one and one half cents for each person. It is stated that several men sat through the whole game and didn't make any contributions. Some men are said to have dropped 2 cents and 3 cents, etc., in the hat. This is undoubtedly very encouraging to a person or persons bringing teams to this city for the benefit of the people who are fond of seeing a good game of ball. The man who would drop a penny or a nickel into a hat is practically speaking, not a business man. He does not consider the time and expense of the person who is arranging the game to be anything. It is up to the people to patronize these games and also to help the boys out by contributing to their support.

LARGE NEVERTHELESS.

He has a large family. Why, he hasn't anything but a wife. I know; but she weighs 300 pounds.

It's hard to lose a soft berth.

THE STAGEANNOUNCEMENTS.

Supplied to The Planet by Press Agents.

At the Brisco Opera House—

"SIDE TRACKED" FAIR NIGHTS.

For Fair nights Manager Brisco has made arrangements with an excellent company for the production of that ever popular play, "Side Tracked," so that after visiting the Big West Kent Fair during the day an opportunity will be afforded all those who wish it to enjoy a very pleasant evening.

"Side Tracked" contains enough entertaining diversity to keep an audience in continual hilarity, and runs the gamut of sensation, farce, melodrama and variety. A murder is committed, and a theatrical company give part of an entertainment at a railroad station, a pretty lunch counter girl falls in love with a tramp who eventually becomes as attractive a lover as any girl could want. Pretty girls sing and dance themselves into popularity, and "Side Tracked" moves along without a dull moment, with the soubrette and the tramp in the lead. Sensational climaxes are found in the scenes of railroad contrivances.

The tramp's first appearance is from the door of a passing freight car, and later he is seen riding on the cowcatcher of an engine as it dashes across the stage. A funny Irish policeman and a Dutch laborer manage to extract great fun from their posts. The melodies and dances are well arranged, and the show in its entirety is most entertaining.

At the Brisco Theatre both nights of the Fair.

EVERY DAY.

Until Oct. 31st, there are special one way colonist rates in effect to points in California, Montana, British Columbia, Oregon, Utah and Washington, via the Grand Trunk. For full particulars as to rates and routes call on Mr. W. E. Ripin, representative of the Grand Trunk in Chatham.
