owner; but the real France this war proves to have incomparable qualities of faith and hope, steadfastness and perseverance.

"We will not say and do not think," says the Westminster Gazette, "that the British people are inferior in these virtues, but it does sometimes occur to us, when we read the excited and agitated comments of some of our critics, that in outward appearance the comparison is not all in our favor. Here are we, with our sea frontier, our great Navy growing in strength with every month, and such an Army as we have never had or ever dreamt of having, both for our own security and for the common cause—surely a position which justifies fortitude and composure, with however grim a determination to use it all for the winning of victory. And yet when our French Allies bear every German threat and German bluff with complete sangfroid, though the enemy is actually on their soil, there are some who would throw us into agitation and excitement at the remote chance of his reaching Calais and being able to throw a random shot into one of our coast-towns. This is no more the English spirit than the French excitability, of which we heard in old days, is the spirit of France in this war. What we say to our Allies in these days is that we will be as steady and enduring as they, that we believe in our power, as they believe in theirs, that the pledge which we made together last year is stronger and firmer than ever, and that we have no shadow of doubt of our capacity and theirs to carry through to the end."

The example set by France is inspiring. "There is much," the Westminster adds, "that we can learn of France both in the field and in the organization of war. The French army and the French people are quicker to adjust themselves to circumstances than the British. Their ingenious minds—more ingenious than the German, for all that is said to the contrary—are all the time at work inventing new devices, new tactics, new methods of economizing their strength and using it to advantage at selected points. They somehow give the impression to the onlooker that their military staff is more youthful, more alert, and keener to work out the problems of this particular kind of warfare than ours. They seem to have the right combination of experiment is that, despite the passing of a Government which brought Irish hopes in sight of fruition, and despite the lack of tact displayed by its successor in the proposed appointment of a Lord Chancellor the flow of Irish recruiting continues from week to week. There has been nothing finer in the whole conduct of the British communities in this war than the fine response which all sections, all classes, and all creeds of Ireland have made at this time of crisis. Ulsterman and Nationalists have stood shoulder to shoulder, and are fighting side by side in upholding the cause of human liberty.

Ireland's highest interest, Mr. Redmond said, in the speech from which we have been quoting, was the spirit and patriotism which she has displayed will make all the stronger the determination of the British democracy to see to it that when the war comes to an end, faith will be kept with Ireland and Home Rule will become an accomplished fact.

The settlement of the Welsh coal strike is the best news of the day. The concessions made to the miners on the whole, appear to be fair and reasonable. They are entitled to share in the war profits of the mine owners.

If any more American citizens are murdered by German submarine commanders, President Wilson will assume that the murders are "deliberately unfriendly" acts, the inference being that German submarine commanders who have already murdered American citizens on the high seas may have been moved thereto by the mistaken idea that they were performing an act of friendship towards the said American citizens.

The liquor men who fought prohibition in Alberta and got beaten last week made the mistake of hiring as their chief campaign orator a Chicago man named Windle. It soon became known that Windle publishes a weekly paper which is strongly pro-German in sentiment. Editorial extracts from his paper were copiously quoted by prohibition speakers during the campaign. Of course Windle's pro-Germanism had nothing to do with prohibition, but it "queered" him with the Alberta people, and he did his cause more harm than good.

Sir Leo Chiozza Money, says that when war broke out the aggregate incomes of the people of the United Kingdom amounted to £2,200,000,000. The estimated expenditure of £1,133,000,000 in the present fiscal year, he concludes, means spending publicly in a year a sum about equal to one-half a year's income. He estimates that in the last year of peace the rich and poor of Great Britain together spent on luxuries "from motor cars to tobacco, and from sumptuous dresses to four-ale, £600,000,000." He continues: "So that it comes to this: Terribly costly as the war is, it will not cost us twice as much in the present financial year as we spend normally in a year on alcoholic drink, temperance drinks, tobacco and motor-cars. We need not be frightened, therefore by the mere look of the figures. We are a great nation. There are forty-six millions of us to find the money. We are going to find it, and more if necessary, to see the thing through. But we may do the thing with many different degrees of wisdom."

On Friday night a large number of representative and influential citizens of Belleville met at the Armouries and determined to take concerted action to stimulate recruiting in this city and district. Strong committees were appointed for each ward to consider ways and means of assisting in this very necessary and laudable endeavor. Into their hands was given the duty of taking such action as would best achieve the unanimous wish of the meeting. The committees are thoroughly representative, well selected and fully competent to discharge the duty entrusted to them. They will have the backing of every citizen in any project they may undertake. Their duties are by no means light, and they will need every assistance that every one can render them, and they are entitled to whole-hearted assistance. So far as The Ontario can assist the committees in any way that to them may seem desirable, our modest services are at their command. We feel that every citizen worthy of the name will view the matter in the same light. Let us all get together and see to it that nothing is omitted that should be done to secure for Belleville further representation on the battlefields of Flanders.

The London Lancet, discussing the statistics of British casualties, says that of the total losses in the army the killed numbered 3327 officers and 47,015 non-commissioned officers and men, a greater loss of life than ever before occurred in a similar period of time. Throughout the Crimean campaign the British losses were 2755 killed and 12,094 wounded and the Allies lost 8250 killed and 39,868 wounded. In the Franco-German war of 1870-71, the Germans lost 17,570 killed and 96,189 wounded. In the Russo-Turkish War of 1877 the Russians lost 32,780 killed and had 71,268 wounded. In the South African War there were 5256 killed in action and 26,286 wounded. The ratio of killed to wounded and missing was at 1 to 4.25, or 23.5 per cent. In the Crimea the ratio of killed to the wounded and missing was at 1 to 4.4, or 22.7 per cent; in the Franco-German War of 1870 it was 1 to 5.70, or 17.53 per cent; in the Russo-Turkish War it was as 1 to 2.17, or 45.98 per cent; in South Africa it was as 1 to 5, or 20 per cent. The proportion of killed to wounded has, therefore, so far been similar to, but slightly in excess of, British experiences in the Crimea and South Africa. Among officers the proportion of killed to wounded has been in the present war much higher than in the case of the men—namely, as 1 to 2.3, or 43.61 per cent; it forms the main cause for anxiety in England.

THE OSTRICH AND THE TORTOISE.

An ostrich, filled with self-conceit And giddy ostentation, One day a tortoise chanced to meet In casual conversation. The tortoise, though extremely plain, Was, like the ostrich, rather vain. As all of you, no doubt, have guessed, In noting this allusion, The ostrich was, of course possessed Of feathers in profusion. The tortoise had a useful shell Wherein it was his rule to dwell. The question they discussed was made A theme for disputation; What is the best way to evade Unwelcome observation? As each had fixed ideas, you see, They were not likely to agree.

"My scheme is this," the ostrich said: "If any one pursues me, I'll dig a hole and hide my head— They cannot fail to lose me, The plan's so simple, I'm surprised That it should be so criticized."

"Your plan," the tortoise said "is quite Delusive and fallacious; To draw the head in—out of sight— Is far more efficacious. Till I have cause to change my view, That method I shall still pursue."

In this dispute they persevered With vain vociferation, Till suddenly two men appeared, Commercial by vocation. One gathered ostrich-plumes to sell, The other dealt in tortoise-shell.

The ostrich, showing no dismay, Was busy in a minute; He dug a hole without delay, And placed his head within it, And thought, with egotistic pride, "This is the only way to hide."

The tortoise said, "I still protest, Though ostriches deny it, My method is the very best— At any rate, I'll try it!" And with sarcastic smile withdrew His silly head from public view.

The traders came, as you surmise, And made an easy capture. The feather-merchant viewed his prize With nothing short of rapture, "I didn't want his head," said he;

"His plumes are quite enough for me." The other man was pleased as well, And after brief inspection, Removed the tortoise from his shell In spite of all objection, "The tortoise not a penny brings, But shell," said he, "makes combs and things."

Of morals there are nine or ten, But this one is selected: Don't wear your shells and feathers when You go out unprotected. The other lessons taught hereby I leave for others to apply. —By D. K. Stevens.

AFFINITIES.

I'm fond of a stroll by the river's dank brim, When the flowers are brilliant with dew; I'm fond of the woods when the twilight is dim, But the blooming mosquitoes are, too.

I'm fond of reclining at eve on the porch When the stars are just coming in view, And watching each firefly light up its torch— But the prowling mosquitoes are, too.

I'm fond of a round on the close-shaven links Alone; or, still better, with you When the afternoon sun toward the mountain top sinks— But the knavish mosquitoes are, too.

I don't like mosquitoes; I'd fain let them be, I hold that they're sordid and venal; And I am convinced that they do not like me But our tastes are acutely congenial. —Louisville Herald.

IMMUNE RASCALITY.

Canada has had an unpleasantly long list of political scandals in which every note in the gamut of political vice has been struck. But probably in no single previous scandal has there been embraced such a variety of political shortcomings, nor any in which so many of the sinister and evil forces so influential in Canadian public affairs, has been brought into play.

Probably the most striking incident in this sordid and sickening drama of incompetency, betraying trust, fraud, and miscellaneous crime was the burning of the telegrams by the order of the president of the private company which controls a large portion of the telegraphic system of Canada. In the injury inflicted on the public interest by the destruction of what doubtless would have proved to be information of great public value, this man added insult, in the form of a cynically insolent "explanation" of his conduct. One day there is reference in the evidence before the Royal Commission to certain telegraphic correspondence. By midnight of the following day all the telegraphic company's copies of that correspondence are destroyed by the local manager of the company under instructions from its president in Toronto. The magnate has given two different explanations of these instructions, both about equally insulting to the intelligence of the people. He says that the burning was done under a new rule under which all copies or originals of telegrams were to be destroyed within a very short time. This rule was evolved and brought into operation with such suddenness that it did not apply to the whole of the company's system, but only to four cities. Still more curiously these four cities happened to be those between which this telegraphic correspondence wanted by the Royal Commission was carried on.

This president, Mr. Zebulon A. Lash, also explains that the reason why the telegrams were burned was the company's regard for the interests of its customers, whose confidence it was bound by law to protect. He quotes the statute which obliges the company to maintain inviolate this confidence and in quoting he garbles. He leaves out of his quotation the clause which demands that the company shall produce its records of telegrams when these are required by the proper legal authority.

Now this man was for long, and probably is still, chief legal manipulator for Mackenzie & Mann, these ardent but expensive Canadian patriots. He is an adept in the business of finding shelter or immunity behind legal technicalities for performances which could pretend to no moral sanction. As he is, probably, like most of his kind at bottom, somewhat of a coward, he doubtless feels very confident that he will find protection under the law for his glaring and insolent flouting of public opinion in the matter of these telegrams. Probably he will. But it is the immunity which such men can find, under shelter of the law, that brings law into contempt. Indeed The Tribune has heard of a very intelligent and moderate man who expressed the opinion that, in these strenuous times, it would not be altogether a bad thing to have martial law in Canada. He further avowed that he would like to be a military dictator just long enough to hang a few prominent Canadians, whom he had clearly in mind, and without whom Canada could get along very well. One of these, and the first who would feel the embrace of the rope, was Mr. Zebulon A. Lash.—Winnipeg Free Press.

RECORD OF MR. NORRIS IS CLEAR.

There is no evidence that Mr. Norris was a party to the dickerings. It is exceedingly gratifying that he comes through the ordeal with clean hands, and with the confidence of the public. It remains for him to decide whether he should retain Mr. Hudson in his Cabinet.

Manitoba today is in just the same position that Ontario was in after the collapse of the Ross Government. What the people want is a good big dose of plain, old-fashioned honesty, such as the late Sir James Whitte gave Ontario. If Mr. Norris will hand it out in large quantities, and frequently, he will strengthen himself with the electors. He cannot have a better model than the rugged old Tory knight who cleaned up Ontario and kept it clean. His closest friends credit Mr. Norris with these qualities and predict confidently a period of honest administration for Manitoba.—Orange Sentinel.

WHY REVIVALS ARE NEEDED

Any boy can throw a stone and break a window, but it takes an artist to build the house; any fool can build a fire and burn a building, but it takes a skilled mechanic to reconstruct it; a mob crucified Christ, but it took God to raise him from the dead; any fool can sneer at a revival any fool can do that, and you are a fool if you do.

"Why is a revival needed?" a preacher said to me in Iowa. "I thought I had done my duty when I held up the bleeding form of Jesus Christ and dilated upon his precepts, but I find that I must talk upon sin." You bet you must. Many an old sinner isn't fit for the balm of Gilead until he is given a good old-fashioned fly blister and the currycomb of the law.

And some old pachyderms will sit in their pews and shake, like a flat-tailed sheep in the rain, one shake and they're dry.

The spirit of God flees from the scenes of strife and discord. You might as well expect a mummy to speak and bear children, you might as well expect hell to sing the doxology. You might as well try to batter down Gibraltar shooting green peas with a popgun as to expect that.

A revival is needed when the worldly spirit is in the church of God. It isn't necessary to do something grossly inconsistent. A ship is all right in the sea, but is all wrong when the sea is in her. The church of God is all right in the world, but all wrong when the world is in the church.

Some people come to church Sunday morning and Monday morning they take a header into the world, and the church never sees them again until Sunday morning. They squat and take up a little space in the pew and stay there and put a little money on the plate, but you never see them again until Sunday morning.

I tell you I believe half of the church members could die and the church wouldn't lose anything of its spiritual force; it would lose them in numbers, but it wouldn't lose anything in spiritual power. I tell you, my friends, we need a panic in religion; the world doesn't need informing; it needs reforming. We are going to the devil over culture clubs, as if the world needed informing. It doesn't need anything of the kind. There are people who go to church and go to certain denominations because their wife goes there. They get their religion and their property in her name. They go to that church.

Look at the Sunday School. The Sunday school ought to be a constant feeder into the church. Why isn't it? Because we have Sunday school teachers who are absolutely good for nothing; they help nobody, but the publishers. They don't sit down and study. They don't prepare.

I want to say if a public school teacher knew no more about the work and methods of teaching than the average Sunday school teacher knows about the will of God, she would not be on the payroll fifteen minutes.

Go down to the dance halls, the nickledeons, the cheap skate dance halls—there you will find young girls with dresses to their shoe tops. I ask you why? I'll tell you; the spiritual destitution of the multitude. Thousands never darken the church doors. A revival is needed when sinners are careless, licentious. A general revival of religion has got to sweep over this country or it will mean the dissolution of the church the home and the nation. I don't care a rap how you fortify your shores; how many ships you build; America has got to have a revival or it means the end of your religion.

ON WINNING SOULS.

God's plan was for every soul saved to be a soul winner. But the plan is perverted today. When travellers on an eastern desert exhaust their water supply the plan is for all members of the party to spread out, each as far from the other as his voice will carry. When one of the party strikes water, he cries, "Water, water," at the top of his voice, to the men of each side of him, and they to the men next to them, and so on.

What would you think of the man who found a cool, rippling stream of water and drank his fill and went on his way and allowed his fellow-travellers to perish from thirst? If you have any manhood or womanhood in you, you would say that he ought to be killed. Well, what are you doing? If Christ is worth anything to you tell others about Him. If He isn't, then deny Him, and get out.

The keynotes of the gospel are: "Come unto me and I will give you rest," and "Go into the world and preach the gospel." Come and go. You can't take anything to heaven but souls. You can't take money or culture. God will ask you: "Did you win anybody to Christ?"

It is said that the angels in heaven rejoice more at the winning of one soul than for ninety-nine souls that don't need saving. It's my desire to keep heaven busy with rejoicing.

I'm out to make hell mad and heaven sing. It requires an effort to win men to the church. Everything requires an effort. You've got to do more than build your church and hire your janitor to ring the bell and the choir to sing. You must work.

FALSE DOCTRINES.

I was going west one time, and they had two engines ploughing along and there was a woman with a little baby in her arms, and wanted to leave the train at a certain little flag station—they will stop the train if you come from a certain distance—and the woman wanted to get off of the train. The brakeman came in and called the name of the station, and the woman said, "Don't forget me," and he said "sure."

There was a travelling man there, and he said, "Lady, I will see that the brakeman doesn't forget you—don't worry."

And she settled down, and after the train had gone on a while the travelling man said, "Now lady, we are getting near the place; you had better be getting ready—they won't stop long."

They had gone on a half or three-quarters of an hour, and the brakeman came in and said, "Where's that woman?" The travelling man said, "She's got off." The brakeman said, "Then she's gone to her death. We stopped the train because there was something the matter with the engine and we stopped to fix it—she has gone to her death on the prairie."

They sent orders back, called for volunteers and went back and looked for her, and searched for hours, and they found her out on the prairie covered with a shroud of ice and snow woven about her by the pitiless storm, and with her little babe folded on her breast. She followed the travelling man's directions, but his directions were wrong.

That is the way, those preachers of false doctrines are robbing people of God.

CARDS AND THEATRES

I used to play cards. I never saw a card player that didn't cheat, and I did it like the rest of them.

He took away that desire, and I have not had a card in my hands for twenty-five years, and have never had a deck of cards in my home.

Tom Keene wanted me to be an actor and offered me a large salary. He said: "Bill you'd make a cracker-jack of an actor."

In the summertime the ball players have money and the actors and actresses are broke. In the Wintertime the latter have money and the ball players are broke. You never saw an actor who couldn't get a pass to a ball game, and you never saw a ball player that couldn't get a pass to the theatre. So they work a plan of reciprocity.

The last time I saw a play was Jos. Jefferson in "Rip Van Winkle." From that day to this I have never darkened a theatre door except to preach the gospel of Christ, but I never had to pay a cent to see a show. God has taken away the desire.

WHISKEY AND MURDER.

Two years ago in the city of Chicago a young man of good parents good character, on Sunday crossed the street and entered a saloon, open against the law. He found three boon companions. There was laughter, song and jest and much drinking. After a while, drunk, insanely drunk, his money gone, he was kicked into the street. He found his way across to his mother's home. He implored her for money to buy more drink. She refused him. He seized from the sideboard a revolver and ran out into the street with the expressed determination of entering the saloon and getting more drink, money or no money. His little mother followed him into the street.

His fond mother followed him. She put her hand upon him in loving restraint. He struck it from him in anger, and then his sister came and added her entreaty in vain. And then a neighbor, whom he knew and trusted and respected, came and put his hand upon him in gentleness and friendly kindness, but in an insanity of drunken rage he raised the revolver and shot his friend dead in his blood upon the street.

There was a trial; he was found guilty of murder. He was sentenced to life imprisonment, and when the little mother heard the verdict—a frail little bit of a woman—she threw up her hands and fell in a swoon. In three hours she was dead.

In the streets of Freeport, Ill., a young man of good family became involved in a controversy with a woman of the town. He went in a drunken frenzy to his father's home, armed himself with a deadly weapon, and set forth in the city in search of the woman with whom he had quarrelled. The first person he met upon the public square in the city, in the daylight in a place where she had a right to be, was one of the most refined and cultured women in Freeport. She carried in her arms her babe, motherhood and babyhood in the streets of Freeport in the daytime, where they had a right to be, but this young man in his drunken insanity, mistook her for the woman he sought and shot her dead upon the streets with her babe in her arms. He was tried, and Judge Fernand, in sentencing him to life imprisonment, said:

"You are the seventh man in two years to be sentenced for murder while intoxicated."

Last Spring in the city of Anderson, you remember the tragedy of the Blake's home. A young man came home intoxicated, demanding money from his mother. She refused it. He seized from the woodbox a hatchet and killed his mother, and then robbed her. You remember he fled. The officers of the law pursued him, brought him back. An indictment was read to him, charging him with the murder of the mother who had given him his birth, of her who had gone down to the valley of the shadow of death to give him life, of her who looked down into his blue eyes and thanked God for his life. And he said: "I am guilty; I did it all." And Judge McClure sentenced him to life imprisonment.

Wounded Soldier Returns Home

Peterboro Review—Smiling and happy because he had been able to do his little bit for King and country and that he would soon be home again. Pte. Russell Perrin, who went to France with the First Canadian Contingent was in the city for a few hours on Wednesday morning on his way to Lindsay. He was accompanied from Quebec by Lieut. Bennett.

Pte. Perrin was wounded in the early activities of the Canadians, and suffered the amputation of one leg. He was first admitted to a hospital in Boulogne, where he had four operations. Later he was sent to London, where he says nine operations were performed, finally resulting in the loss of his leg.

Pte. Perrin enlisted at Toronto with the 10th Royal Grenadiers, and at the front was attached to a motorcyclo corps as a despatch rider.

He had very little to say when seen but he did remark that the people at home can form no idea of the actual conditions which the allied soldiers have been called upon to undergo at the front. Anything that could be done to aid in their comfort should have the united support and assistance of everyone at home.

A South Shields Soldiers Wedding

An interesting wedding was solemnized this afternoon, the bridegroom being Gunner Richard Felstead R.G.A. Heavy Battery, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Felstead, Dixon street, of this town and the bride Dorcas Helen Dashwood, Southampton.

Gunner Felstead who is on a seven days' leave from the fighting in France had seen eleven years' service before the present war broke out, six years of which were spent in India, he was on the reserve in Canada and has been between nine and ten months at the front. The bride who wore a dress of old Indian lace with wreath and veil carried a bouquet of flowers and was attended by four bridesmaids, his three sisters and a niece, Mrs. M. Naylor. Mrs. Katy Spencer, Miss Olive Felstead and Miss Doris Spencer. The three former carried bouquets and the niece a basket of flowers. The bride wore an old Indian gold cameo necklace. The best man was Mr. Oswald Felstead brother of the bridegroom. The bride was given away by the bridegroom's father. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. G. T. Roberts.

HAMMETT IS GUILTY OF MIS- APPROPRIATION

Confessed in Police Court This Morning—Had no Defence to Make—Case Enlarged.

Guilty was the plea which Stanley Hammett, treasurer of the local lodge of Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, No. 108, entered in police court this morning to the charge of having on different occasions in 1913 unlawfully and variously converted to his own use various sums of money to the amount of about $800 received by him as treasurer in relation of his duties.

Hammett was represented by Mr. W. Carnew and the crown by Mr. P. J. M. Anderson, County Crown Attorney.

The accused through Mr. Carnew stated that he had no defence to offer. He had enlisted with the Queen's Own, Toronto, on Friday and offered to assign his G.T.R. pay during service by appointing an attorney.

Magistrate Masson decided that as it was his first offence as he had acknowledged his error and, as he desired to make restitution, a great part of the ends of justice was accomplished.

Crown Attorney Anderson stated that he had been informed by the vice president of the B. of R. T. who was present, that Hammett had dismissed men from the lodge and made some under pressure pay up and then appropriated some of the money to his own use.

Mr. Carnew after consultation with the prisoner said Hammett had no recollection of this. For a time he had been badly mixed up in his accounts and the methods he followed in collecting he believed were the regular ones. In a number of cases there had been considerable larceny.

Mr. Anderson suggested an enlargement for a few days if the accused desired.

Magistrate Masson said that the main trouble was that societies had never impressed upon their young men who are treasurers their responsibility. They collect money on the street from members, put it in their pockets and think it is their own.

It was finally decided to enlarge the case until August 3rd and bail was fixed at two sureties of $1000 each.

Austrians Paroled

Three Austrians were detained for a while on Saturday in order that they might give an account of their actions on Dundas street. It appears that the men were seen paying particular attention to a certain important plant in Belleville and one appeared to be sketching. This was detected by the neighbors and Sergeant Harman went down to the scene. He questioned the men. They claimed to be Russians. They were escorted up to the police station where they were learned to be Austrians. One was from Point Anne, the others from Winnipeg. The latter had been sent for by the Lehigh Cement works plant and their fare here paid. They had been under parole at the western city. The men were admitted to parole here.

Secures Position at Edmonton

Mr. Elmer L. Luck, M.A. Esq., secured an excellent position as modern languages master in Edmonton High School. He leaves in a couple of weeks to assume his new duties.

Non-Support Case Enlarged

William Wright's case was this morning enlarged so as to allow time to discover if any arrangements can be made for the care of his wife. He is charged with non-support, but pleaded not guilty.

Navarch Aground

The Government steamer Navarch had the misfortune to run aground at Northport on Saturday. The vessel was on the wrong side of the buoy when she struck mud and rock. So far as the bar did the Navarch run that she listed very heavily and is now lying on her side.

Boys in Toronto

The runaway Toronto boys who were caught at the G.T.R. station a few days ago are now in Toronto. The father of one came down and took his lad home and the other was sent to Toronto today on a ticket which the Mayor gave him.

A lady left some money at the police station for a purchaser who had bought berries on the market on Thursday as she had not the address.

TWO HUNDRED DOLLARS IN GOLD FOR SPECIAL PRIZES

All Contest Workers Have an Opportunity to Win These Magnificent Special Prizes

In the centralizing of attention upon the twenty-four Grand Tours given by The Ontario in their Great Popularity Campaign, it is to be feared that many have entirely overlooked the amazingly generous set of special prizes also offered by The Ontario to those who put forth just a little special effort and work just a little harder than their neighbors.

Here is a list of rewards that will be worth some special and additional effort.

As we have previously stated it is not necessary for any candidate upon our California tours to have a cent of money with them on the journey. The Ontario has foreseen every contingency and has provided for ALL legitimate travelling expenses—including railway tickets, pullman fares, automobile fees, meals on train, meals at hotels, hotel accommodation, bus and baggage transfer, admissions to exhibitions, admissions to side attractions, car fares on side trips, and a hundred and one incidentals which every experienced traveller knows fall well to amount to far more than railway tickets. On The Ontario Tours the first-class railway tickets to California are much the smallest part of the outlay.

The candidates do not need to take with them a cent of money, but for those who may wish to purchase souvenirs or some mementos for their friends we are providing an extra fund of Two Hundred Dollars which will be distributed among the best workers on the following plan.—

Of the eight candidates winning tours to California the four who obtain the highest number of votes will be paid cash prizes as follows—

- 1st Prize $50.00 in Gold
- 2nd " 25.00 "
- 3rd " 15.00 "
- 4th " 10.00 "

Of the Candidates winning trips to New York City, the four obtaining highest standing will be awarded prizes as follows—

- 1st Prize $30.00 in Gold
- 2nd " 25.00 "
- 3rd " 15.00 "
- 4th " 10.00 "

Of the Candidates winning trips to Niagara Falls the four obtaining highest standing will be awarded prizes as follows—

- 1st Prize $10.00 in Cash
- 2nd " 5.00 "
- 3rd " 3.00 "
- 4th " 2.00 "

These prizes are open to candidates in all districts and will be awarded to those who obtain the highest number of votes in their respective classes.

The Ontario has received a number of photos of the Candidates from which cuts will be prepared as speedily as possible.

A number of others have gone to W. S. Clarke's studio and availed themselves of The Ontario's offer to secure a new cabinet photo for which we pay the cost.

Candidates who wish to have their campaign greatly promoted should attend to this important matter at once.

SCOUT SHIP BOMBS ORTONA

Two Casualties, the Victims Being an Old Man and a Child.

ROME, July 26.—The Italian Ministry of Marine yesterday issued the following statement:

Early Thursday an enemy scout ship and four torpedo boat destroyers bombarded Ortona (a town of 70,000 population on the Adriatic), and some parts of the railroad on the coast from Ortona to Pedaso ad Tremiti Island. Only as Ortona were there any casualties, the victims being an old man and a child. The damage done was unimportant.

On Wednesday night one of our dirigibles dropped bombs on the San Polai and Nabresina railroad. All exploded with excellent results. This aerial incursion was repeated last night on the Nabresina railroad with good results. Each time the dirigibles returned undamaged, despite a violent cannonade.

Victory in Fortnight?

ROME, July 26.—Information has been received here from diplomatic sources that the Turks as well as the allied forces on the Gallipoli Peninsula expect that the Dardanelles will be forced within a fortnight. Because of this expectation, according to the information, the Turks are purposely wasting their ammunition in order to exhaust the supply rapidly their object being to compel the Germans to permit the discontinuance of a resistance which the Turks regard as hopeless.

PINNACLE STREET PAVEMENT CAUSED SOME DISCUSSION IN CITY COUNCIL

Heated Arguments for Few Moments Last Night Over Bylaw-City Solicitor's Views on Pavement Petition-Case of an Invalid-Blowing of Train Whistles Near General Hospital Discussed-Sidewalks to be Built.

(From Tuesday's Daily.)

At the city council last evening was witnessed the first open dispute of the year, the bone of contention being the kind of pavement for Pinnacle street. For some moments about 11.30 o'clock there was high talking, but gradually it subsided.

It all occurred when Ald. Jas. St. Charles brought in a bylaw for paving Pinnacle street with Trinidad Asphaltic concrete, notice of which had been given at the special session last week. Ald. Wallbridge arose objecting that the bylaw was not in order as the amended petition had not come before the council and the engineer had not reported upon it. Two weeks ago it will be remembered, the city solicitor made some suggestions as to changes necessary in the petition.

Mayor Panter ruled that the bylaw was in order. Ald. McFee and Ald. Smith supported Ald. Wallbridge's view. Ald. Smith wished to know why the bylaws of which he had given notice for Victoria Ave. and George St. were not ready.

The Mayor stated that objections to the petitions had been raised by the solicitor. Ald. McFee appealed against the Mayor's ruling and as it was sustained called for the yeas and nays which resulted as follows—YEAS—Ald. Duckworth, Ald. Earle, Ald. St. Charles, Ald. Platt, Ald. Woodley. Total—5.

NAYS—Ald. McCurdy, Ald. McFee, Ald. Smith, Ald. Wallbridge. Total—4. Mayor Panter said he was not trying to force the council. As his ruling had been sustained, he would agree to leave the consideration over for a week.

Ald. Wallbridge said "Go on with the bylaw" and hinted that if such process were taken, it would be stopped. The Mayor said such had been threatened last year, the trouble having arisen with new members of the council.

Ald. McFee rose at once to his feet "If you refer to me —" Ald. Wallbridge interrupted with the same remark—"If you refer to me, I demand an apology." The Mayor motioned for quiet and said to the last speaker—"You'll get none. I may plainly tell you, I'm in favor of Trinidad Lake Asphalt because the ratepayers are asking for it!"

Ald. Wallbridge—"I took no action last year." Mayor Panter—"You tried to do something." Ald. Wallbridge—"If you go ahead with the bylaw, I will do something." His Worship stated that he did not wish to force the hands of the council and never did. On request of Ald. Wallbridge he read the solicitor's communication regarding the original Pinnacle street petition. The city clerk Mr. Holmes answered a query of the Mayor's saying he had examined the revised petition and found it satisfactory.

On motion of Ald. Woodley, it was decided in accordance with Mayor Panter's suggestion to leave the bylaw over until next Monday. When council opened its session a number of deputations were heard at the bar.

AN INVALID CASE

Two letters relating to a case of an invalid woman and destination owing to drink and intemperance of her husband were read. The only place for her is the Home for Incurables but they ask a guarantee of $5 per week. The letters were written by Miss Bradley, city deaconess and by Mr. J. B. Flint.

Mayor Panter explained what he knew of the case. The woman had become a morphia fiend by taking the drug to ease pain. "We are supporting a home for the friendless. Those in charge have refused the request of the charitable women. The council might order her taken in but would that be to the advantage of the home?"

Ald. Platt said as a humane body the council should see that the woman be taken to some home. On motion the question was referred to Ald. Platt and Ald. Earle with power to act.

A request for a transfer licence for the sale of tobacco at the corner of Market street and Pinnacle street was granted. The W.C.A. corresponding secretary wrote asking McDonald St. be closed until buildings are erected there, because the whistles of passing trains at the crossing are a great annoyance to the sick patients at the hospital.

The matter was referred to the city solicitor and engineer. The Bell Telephone wrote stating that the company desired to sign the petition for asphalt concrete on Pinnacle street.

Mr. J. Lutton requested that his name be withdrawn from the George street petition, as Mrs. Lutton had signed it during his absence.—Referred.

Mr. Driscoll of the Standard Paving Co. quoted by letter prices on asphaltic concrete—for heavy traffic streets at $28 per square yard; for residential streets at $18.

Ald. Woodley asked if it was the intention of the public works department to oil the new roadways. Ald. McFee—"It is, with the oil we get from the gas works."

The assessment rolls will be issued this week said Ald. McCurdy in answer to Ald. Duckworth. Ald. Earle asked if the engineer had accepted any tender for the base of the cannon on the park. Mr. Evans said he had as yet received only one tender so far.

Military Notes

Recruiting in outside points has sprung up again with a great deal of activity. In two days no less than 17 recruits have been secured by a recruiting officer for the 49th Regiment.

The Fifteenth Regiment has taken up its recruiting quarters with the 49th Regiment in the tent on the Armouries lawn. A large placard at a desk reads "This is the city regiment office."

Sergeant Joseph Douch has received clippings from the Daily Express, London, which show the active part his old regiment, the 23rd London Regiment, is taking in the war. Sergeant Douch was formerly senior color sergeant and musketry instructor of this regiment. This regiment carried three successive lines of German trenches in a charge that bids fair to come historic. The charge was made at a point where the regulars had fallen three or four times. It took place at 6.30 in the evening with the bayonet. The German trenches were held by the Prussian Guard. The trench was occupied under great difficulties all night. Countless deeds of heroism were performed.

In the charge 157 men of the 23rd were killed. The Daily Express contains their names, many of them familiar to Sgt. Douch.

Harold Buchanan and Harold Ingram of the 26th Battery, C. F. A., Valcartier are in the city on a visit to their parents.

Pte. Arthur Moon of the 59th Battalion C. E. F., was in town yesterday. Harry Symons recently went to Kingston with the 19th detachment to join the 8th C. M. R.

Recruiting organization is proceeding with all the zest of an election campaign. Several of the ward committees met last night at the armouries and completed their organization.

The committees which have so far organized are—Samson Ward. Chairman—John Kerr. Secretary—F. S. Wallbridge. Ketcheson Ward. Chairman—J. F. Willis. Secretary—A. R. Walker. Baldwin Ward. Chairman—John Carr. Secretary—Peter Doyle. Coleman Ward. Chairman—F. G. Mills. Secretary—Robert Boyle. Murney Ward. Chairman—W. A. G. Hardy. Secretary—H. L. Ingram.

It is expected that Blecker and Foster Wards will complete their organization this week. Baldwin ward committee propose holding another meeting on the evening of July 30. Ketcheson ward committee will also hold a meeting, at the High School on the evening of July 30. Samson ward committee meets at the Ann Street School on Monday, night, Aug. 2nd when speakers and music have been arranged. Murney ward committee will also hold a meeting the same night at the Queen Mary School.

Hard and soft corns both yield to Holloway's Corn Cure, which is entirely safe to use, and certain and satisfactory in its action.

A little girl named Emma Cousan was reported lost yesterday but her whereabouts were discovered later.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Embury and the Misses Embury, Grier St., returned Saturday from a two weeks motor trip to London.

Miss Edith Mossman, Ridley St., is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Lewis R. Slater at their summer home, Hayes Point, Lindsay.

Miss Ethel Slater, North Front St., is spending her holidays at Hayes Point, Lindsay, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Slater at their summer home.

These Pills Cure Rheumatism

To the many who suffer from rheumatism a trial of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills is recommended. They have pronounced action upon the liver and kidneys and by regulating the action of these organs act as an alternative in preventing the admixture of uric acid and blood that causes this painful disorder. They must be taken according to directions and used steadily and they will speedily give evidence of their beneficial effects.

Worms sap the strength and undermine the vitality of children. Strengthen them by using Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator to drive out the parasites.

Hamilton, Ont., July 25.—Pastor Russell has given our bodies a new view of this transaction, we shall not think that we must repeatedly give ourselves to God. We shall be concerned about living up to the contract which we have made with Him. God has accepted and sealed with His Holy Spirit. This seal is the earnest of our inheritance; it binds the contract which we made when we gave ourselves to God in consecration. (2 Corinthians 1:21, 22.) We have signed a contract giving our all to Him; we have received the earnest, the hand payment; and through the coming days we are to keep giving ourselves without cessation in harmony with the Lord's will.

Daily we should search the Word of God that we may understand the Divine Message and get the Spirit of the Truth. We must see what is the real meaning of the Bible, so that God may be greatly pleased with us, as He sees how earnestly we are trying to do His will in everything. Thus His Spirit will grow in us. More and more we may be filled with the Holy Spirit. It is a Spirit of meekness, gentleness, long-suffering, patient endurance, and love; it is the Holy Spirit of God; and the more we have of its fruits, the more we shall have of the Spirit itself. But we cannot have these fruits, developed from the teachings of God's Word, unless we have the Holy Spirit, the Spirit of God, the Spirit of Christ, influencing all our acts, words, and thoughts.—Galatians 5:22, 23.

When first we entered the School of Christ, we were babes and acted like babes. But the Apostle says that we are not to remain babes. We are to put away childish things, to be no longer children tossed about by every wind of doctrine. As babes we were fed upon "the sincere milk of the Word," that we might grow thereby. (1 Peter 2:2.) But as grown men we no longer desire milk as a steady diet, although we enjoy a glass of milk occasionally. (Hebrews 5:12-14.) We prefer to come to our Father's table, the table of the Lord, and receive the "Truth"—the strength that belongs to such as are of full age, who have been able to stand strong in the Lord and in the power of His might.

The Holy Spirit is not a spirit of excitement. We have known people to be filled with the spirit of excitement who did not seem to have the Holy Spirit at all. If we have the Holy Spirit, it will manifest itself in meekness, gentleness, patience, brotherly kindness, love.

What God has been doing for His people during the past forty years is wonderful. To every one of them the Bible has become a new Book. More and more the old things are passing away. It was not sufficient that we should have the Saviour and should believe in Him. That knowledge was only the beginning of our blessings. We still rejoice greatly to know that our sins have been forgiven. We still have the milk of the Word, assuring us of the merit of our dear Redeemer's sacrifice. But we are not living on a milk diet now. We need something stronger than the knowledge that our sins are forgiven. This is far from the end of the knowledge bestowed upon the people of God.

Growing in grace and in knowledge, we are learning more and more to see what the Divine will is and what the Holy Spirit is. Things which once we thought very consistent and reasonable are now very inconsistent to us. As we receive more of the spirit of a sound mind, we see how foolish were many of the things which once we believed. There is new light coming into our minds—appreciation of the lengths, breadths, heights and depths of the Love of God, which passes all understanding. Whoever comes into relationship with God receives a begetting of love; for God is Love. Love worketh no injury to his neighbor. Therefore the Apostle says, "Love is the fulfilling of the Law." God's Law is a Law of Justice; and, as the Scriptures set forth, whoever receives the Spirit of the Lord, the Spirit of Love, will at least render justice to others. No law requires more than justice. Whatever we do more than justice is that much of sacrifice on our part. But we cannot do all that we would like to do; for in our flesh dwells no perfection. Nor can we live up to the full Law of God. But we can see that our will is to do nothing less than justice; and that if in anything we come short of justice, if in anything we have infringed the Golden Rule, it has been contrary to our mind. Therefore we shall not rest until we have made right the wrong act, word, or look—whatever was an infringement of the rights of others.

Should some one say, "This is a hard rule to live by," we will never be ready for the Kingdom unless you have the right spirit, my dear brother." This principle of justice, which is the foundation of God's Throne, is the foundation of His character. To do to others what we would have them do to us is the right thing to do—justice. If we cannot do justice in every act, we can at least do it in our minds. "With my mind I serve the Law of God," said an invitation to do the same thing that Jesus did. The Master said, "If any man will come after Me [be My disciple, My follower], let him deny himself, take up his cross, and follow Me." (Matthew 16:24.) To deny himself is to give up his own will. Whoever has given up his will has given his all to the Lord. As the Apostle says, we present our bodies a living sacrifice. (Romans 12:1.) We give up our will entirely, and the Lord accepts us and presents us to the Father. But before He can do this, He must impute to us of His righteousness; for by nature we are imperfect through the fall, and the Father will accept nothing that is imperfect. As our Lord said, "No man cometh unto the Father but by Me." Again He said, "Him that cometh unto Me I will in no wise cast out."—John 14:6; 6:37.

EVIDENCES OF A TRUE HOLINESS

After we have given ourselves through the Lord Jesus Christ, He imputes the merit of His sacrifice to us in such form that the Father can receive us as His children, and start in us the beginning of a new creature—a new creation. When we get a proper view of this transaction, we shall not think that we must repeatedly give ourselves to God. We shall be concerned about living up to the contract which we have made with Him. God has accepted and sealed with His Holy Spirit. This seal is the earnest of our inheritance; it binds the contract which we made when we gave ourselves to God in consecration. ### Flowers at the Front

Lieutenant K. L. Hutchings, the famous All-England and Kent batsman, who is with the Royal Welch Fusiliers, says in a letter to a friend: "Our trenches and dug-outs are wonderful, with flowers, roses, pansies, ferns, etc., which we have grown all along our lines."

A Falling Zeppelin. Dropping from a height of 6,000 ft., the 35-ton weight of a Zeppelin would strike the earth in a little over seven seconds at a speed of 5,000 ft. per second.

Justice is the foundation of God's Throne. The whole superstructure of His Kingdom is built upon justice. He will not do less than justice, and this is what He requires of every creature. Nothing more than absolute justice will be permitted. But the great test now upon the Church is more than this—that we should have the love which will lay down life itself for the redemption of the world. While God demands nothing more than justice, yet if we do not render more than justice, we cannot reign in the Kingdom. The Father is seeking those who have the spirit of love—those who are kind, loving, forgiving, helpful. He desires them to be His Spirit.

The Christian knows that all things work together for good to them that love God. This knowledge is to him a spirit of power, of strength. Circumstances and conditions which would overwhelm others would be to him would expect to have. But the child of God is courageous, knowing that his Heavenly Father will not permit anything to come to him that will not be for his good. In proportion as he receives the spirit of a sound mind, the Spirit of the Lord, and in proportion as the Holy Spirit works in him, he will become more and more like our Lord; and this spirit will enable him to love more and more compassion on the souls who are out of the way. It will give him broader views of life, and more general views of mankind; and as God sent His Son, and as the Son came and did things for the good of man at His own expense, so will His Spirit work in us, to bless mankind.

The spirit of a sound mind broadens and deepens the character along all its good lines. It helps its possessor not only to take more correct views of his own disposition, but to be more sympathetic toward others. As he realizes more and more the impairment of his own mind and body and his own need of mercy and helpful correction, he recognizes the similar derangement of the whole world of mankind and the general need of sympathy and assistance. As he learns to rectify the deficiencies and inequalities of his own mind, he sympathizes more and more with those who are without this regulating principle—this spirit of power, of love, and of a sound mind. Thus he gradually becomes more patient, more sympathetic, more generous, more loving—more like the Redeemer, who is Godlike.

INQUEST REVEALED A SAD STORY

Rebecca Youde Committed Suicide According to Verdict of Jury at Madoc

It was a sad and distressing story that the evidence brought out at the coroner's inquest at Madoc on Wednesday night to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the death of Rebecca Youde, a seventeen-year-old Barnardo girl employed as a domestic at the home of Mr. Frank Smith, Coroner Dr. W. S. Harper presided at the inquest and a considerable number of witnesses were examined.

The evidence revealed that the girl had fancied herself to be in a delicate condition and in a spirit of remorse and melancholy she had decided to make an end to herself by taking carbolic acid.

The post-mortem examination showed that her apprehensions were baseless.

The jury after some deliberation, brought in the following verdict, — That Rebecca Youde came to her death on the 13th day of July, 1915 at Mr. Frank Smith's residence in the Village of Madoc by carbolic acid poisoning administered by her own hand, evidently while laboring under a false impression as to her physical condition.

John Hodgins, inspector for the Barnardo homes, was present at the inquest, as was also a sister of the unfortunate girl from St. Louis, Mo.

The police reported that she had killed herself by a revolver shot in the left temple.

KILLING OUR MEN BY COTTON

WHAT GERMANY DOES WITH IT.

WHERE THE EXPORTS GO.

Cotton means shells. More than half of every propelling explosive, whether for rifle bullet or for gun shell, is just cotton chemically treated. Germany and Austria are said to be firing 5,000 bales of cotton a day. They are getting these bales through neutral ports, as Great Britain has not declared cotton contraband of war.

The above is the substance of the arguments of distinguished chemists like Sir William Ramsay and engineers who are pressing the Government to declare cotton contraband. There are more cotton ships in Gothenburg (Sweden) harbour just now than have ever been seen in the whole history of the port, said a Swedish captain yesterday. Every one of them is stuffed with cotton for Germany—to make shells to kill our soldiers and our Allies. Other neutral ports have their cotton ships for Germany. Holland, Denmark, Greece, have all played their part, not necessarily illegally or in an unfriendly spirit in supplying Germany with the article.

"Conditional Contraband." As early as October the announcement was made that there was no intention of putting cotton on the list of contraband. On February 5 Sir Edward Grey stated that the proportion of cotton imports used in the manufacture of explosives was very small, and the requirements could be supplied from the stocks of goods in Germany at the outbreak of the war. "The advantage of treating cotton as contraband of war is consequently not apparent."

By March 11, however, under the Order in Council instituting the blockade of the German ports, cotton became "conditional contraband." If a British cruiser stopped a cotton ship proceeding to a neutral port and came to the conclusion that the ultimate destination was the enemy it could be stopped, but the onus of proof would rest with the British.

On April 27 the net was drawn a little tighter by an order prohibiting the re-exportation of cotton from Great Britain to European ports, with certain exceptions; and on May 20 Mr. Lloyd George declared in the House that the action taken was "in every respect effective in preventing cotton from reaching Germany."

Related Admissions. . . . By June 10 the Government confessed through Mr. Runciman, that evidence "to which they could not shut their eyes" made it plain that cotton going to neutral countries was leaking through to Germany. Figures quoted by the Board of Trade the same day showed that in March and April this year 273,427 centials of cotton had been imported by Sweden, Norway, Denmark, and the Netherlands, as compared with 9,917 centials in March and April, 1914—in other words a thirty-fold increase.

To make 100 lb. of ammunition for propelling a shell or rifle bullet you need 60 lb. of cotton. To make the million shells that Germany fired on one single front during a few days not long ago there would be needed 1,750 tons of cotton—an average steamer load. This is assuming 9-10ths of the shells to have been mere field-gun shells of three inches and the remaining tenth to have been shells of six inches. To fire a big gun, such as a 15 in. gun, of say, H.M.S. Queen Elizabeth, you need a whole bale of cotton—400 lb weight.

In addition to using vast quantities of cotton for making munitions Germany is now clothing her troops in cotton. It has been stated that fears of offending America, the big cotton-growing and exporting country are the cause for any hesitation in our action, but Manchester alone has offered to negotiate the purchase of the whole American cotton crop at an excellent price. America could come to no commercial harm if that were done.

Mr. Runciman's Admission. . . . Mr. Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, in the House of Commons last Thursday said that in one direction they had found evidence to which they could not shut their eyes that cotton going to neutral countries was leaking through to Germany. In the opinion of the Department best informed Germany was not finding this cotton necessary for the manufacture of explosives, for she had already stocked herself very well with cotton for that purpose, and it therefore became necessary to place it among articles which were prevented from passing to Germany.

Mr. Lloyd George in the House of Commons on May 19 stated that action taken since March 11 was in every respect effective in preventing cotton, an essential element in all modern explosives, from reaching Germany. Figures showing a thirty-fold increase of British exports of raw cotton to Sweden, Norway, Denmark and Holland were given on Thursday by Mr. Runciman.

STOP THE SUPPLY.

Sir William T. Dupree writes to The Daily Mail: "A friend of mine landed in Bombay last Christmas, where he met a German he had known for years before. The first question my friend put was, 'Well, how long will the war last?' The reply came, 'It will last two months if you stop our cotton. It will go in indefinitely if you don't.' 'Every soldier and sailor knows that cotton is the basis of all high explosives and that every round that has been fired by Germany on their extensive frontiers for the past three months has been fired by the 'good will' of England in letting them have cotton.

Ruse of Britain to Fight Pirates

Gunboat Distinguished as Trawler Intercepted and Sunk Submarine. JOHNSTON, Penn., July 24.—A letter received here yesterday by Andrew McAtee, a prominent business man, from a relative in Scotland, throws a light on the defensive measures being used by England in submarine warfare waged by Germany.

The letter is in part as follows: "Two of the enemy's submarines were cleverly disturbed the other week, one off Peterhead and the other near Aberdeen. At Peterhead an innocent-looking trawler, in reality a government gunboat, left the harbor and was soon spotted and held up by a submarine. The gunboat did not give the submarine time to approach, but opened fire at once, smashing the periscope with the first shot, whereupon her crew rushed upon the deck. The second shot disturbed the conning tower, and down she went like a stone.

"All the officers and crew were rescued, and, curiously enough one of the rescued men turned out to be a German who for several years previous to the outbreak of the war had been engaged in the fish trade at Peterhead. He must have been a spy."

"In the Aberdeen fight, a British submarine submerged followed in the wake of some trawlers as they put out to sea. When the trawlers were approached by the German submarine they diverted their course a little. The British submarine then came to the surface, and with the first shot the shell nearly split the German boat in two. All the crew and officers of the German boat, with the exception of two, were drowned."

The letter which was mailed July 9 also speaks of the keenness with which the people of Great Britain are awaiting President Wilson's action in the Lusitania case. According to the records given out by the British Government, a submarine was sunk by "a trawler" in the early part of July. At the time this statement was given out, no other details were made public.

Kaiser to Punish Germans Making Shells for Allies

Subjects Working in Munition Factories in U.S. are Guilty of Treason Declares Berlin.

BERLIN, July 23.—An official declaration is published here calling attention to the fact that "Germans working in factories in neutral countries, particularly in the United States producing war supplies for the enemy render themselves liable to prosecution for treason, under Paragraph 89 of the Penal Code, penalizing such assistance to an enemy with a maximum of ten years' imprisonment."

Another paragraph of the Penal Code authorizes prosecution in the case of such offenses, even when committed abroad, and it is understood that the German courts will proceed against offenders.

Trial is inexpensive.—To those who suffer from dyspepsia, indigestion, rheumatism or any ailment arising from derangement of the digestive system, a trial of Parolee's Vegetable Pills is recommended, should the sufferer be unacquainted with them. The trial will be inexpensive and the result will be another customer for this excellent medicine. So effective is their action that many cures can certainly be traced to their use where other pills have proved ineffective.

AUSTRALIAN INDIGNATION

Raised to High Point by Mr. Luck's Letter Describing Huns' Treatment of Joseph Vial.

Mr. Elmer L. Luck, M.A., has just received the following interesting letter from Mr. J. Edwin Vial, 737 Hunter St., Newcastle West, N.S.W. Australia, father of Joseph Vial, the brilliant nineteen-year-old violinist, who is now slowly dying in St. Catherine's Hospital, Ramsgate, England, as a direct result of brutal treatment received at the hands of the Huns. On March 28th special arrangements were made by the British Foreign Office to send back to Germany two German consular officials in exchange for Mr. Luck, his two small children, and Mr. Vial, who were the first Colonial British subjects to be exchanged since the beginning of the war. The letter reads in part:

My Very Dear Friend,— I address you so because of your great kindness to our boy, although a complete stranger to us. Plainly poor Joseph would have died had it not been for your timely aid. Indeed we were extremely anxious about our dear son, for we could get no news of him no matter how we tried, and try we did. I can assure you. Your letter from Rotterdam, dated April 2nd which took two months to get here was practically the first news we had had of him since war began. Little did I think my son was going amongst barbarians, when he left home three years ago, so full of life and promise. We have much to make us sad, and yet much to be thankful for to the good God of Heaven for raising up such kind friends as yourself and Mr. A. Van Rompaey to get our son out of the hands of those fiends. Poor Joe was loved by everybody here, and the people are more than distressed at your account of the brutal treatment meted out to him, just because, as you say, he was a Britisher and for no other reason; and they instantly raised funds to send his mother to England to bring our boy home if he can travel; or, as seems more likely, to see the last of him there. Mrs. Vial will leave for England on July 3rd, by the "Sonoma," travelling via San Francisco and New York. We thank you for all the trouble and expense you went to to get our poor dear boy over to England in the most comfortable way; words can never express our thanks fully for your kindness to the son we think the world of.

When we cabied to Leipzig at the beginning of the war, just fancy getting the following reply: "Joseph Vial in prison Leipzig since Sept. 14th, best of health NO COMPLAINTS TO MAKE." Seeing how we treat the Germans here in Australia as Christians, letting them have a two mile radius to exercise in, and our boys cooking for them (and getting plenty of impudence back in return). I supposed poor Joe would get at least fair treatment even if he had some hardships. Your letter to me telling the story of Joe's brutal treatment has been published far and wide here, and some of the thriving Germans in business got a bad time of it on the evening of the day on which it appeared in the newspapers. Could you blame the citizens for smashing things when they read of the crime against an unoffensive student?

Mrs. Vial and I cannot express our thanks to you on paper, but may the good God soon restore your own health and spare you to look after your motherless little girls. Oh what a charge on our poor Joe, to get away from that fiendish cruelty, to England, and be again among kind friends. Yours sincerely and gratefully, Edwin Vial.

Mr. Vial and Mr. Luck were among the sixty Britishers who were arrested in Leipzig last September and confined in the cells of the municipal jail. Long after all the other fifty-nine had been released (mainly through the good offices of the American Consul) Vial was still kept in prison, and for no apparent reason. The cell, which he had to share with a tubercular convict was particularly foul and dark, and the unspeakable sanitary conditions under which they lived were of themselves enough to cause illness. Mr. Luck states that Vial was in perfect health at the time of his arrest, but in three months showed unmistakable symptoms of tuberculosis. The prison doctor told him contemptuously that if he were cold and weak he could wrap himself in a blanket and lie down in his cell,—that certainly he would get nothing else there in the way of comfort. In January when Vial was so weak that he could no longer stand or even sit up, permission was reluctantly granted to move him to the city hospital in Chemnitz. Here his treatment was most unkind, and finally the hatred of all things British became so intense that he was actually put out of the hospital, on March 17th without a moment's warning. Before 7 o'clock on the morning of that raw rainy day he was sent out in the rain half dressed and scarcely able to drag himself outside the gates. With the greatest difficulty Mr. Luck succeeded in finding a private place for him—a rooming house, where the landlady's pressing need of money overcame her anti-British scruples; and here a French lady, herself an alien enemy under strictest police supervision, nursed him till the day that the welcome message came from U. S. Ambassador Gerard in Berlin, that the exchange had been arranged and that the necessary passports were being forwarded from the Imperial German Foreign Office. At the city hospital in Rotterdam the Dutch doctors who examined Vial stated that his larynx and one lung were almost entirely gone, and that a few months longer would be the utmost limit of his life.

Mr. Vial's tragic experience is only one of many; others could tell even sadder stories. But many are already dead, and the others still in confinement in Germany have no way of conveying to us the information which they must certainly be burning to tell. It was announced a few weeks ago by the London "Times" that it had been learned from a most trustworthy source that thirty of the British civilians in the concentration camp at Ruhleben have died since November as a result of lack of proper food, care, and medical attention.

Facts like these call for a swift and speedy vengeance. German "Kultur" that can defend and even boast of such things is surely the foulest blot on civilization that the world has ever seen.

NO HOPE FOR CHARLES BECKER SAYS GOVERNOR

Careful Study of Prisoner's Statement Fails to Change Whitman's Opinion of His Guilt.

ALBANY, N.Y., July 23.—Governor Whitman said last night that a careful study of the statement of former Police Lieutenant Charles Becker, now under sentence of death, had not changed his opinion of the guilt of the convicted man.

"There is only one thing new in the statement," the Governor said. "That is the allegation that the late Alfred Henry Lewis told Becker he was to be 'framed up.' That would have been an important part of the evidence, if true. But if it were true why was not Lewis called to the stand during Becker's second trial? Now, with Becker facing death, we hear of this matter after Lewis is dead."

NEW YORK, July 23.—The story written by Charles Becker in the death-house at Sing-Sing in an attempt to escape death in the electric chair for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, was corroborated in many respects by Harry Appelbaum, former secretary to "Big Tim" Sullivan, whom Becker named in his long statement. Appelbaum further asserted that he would help the condemned ex-lieutenant of police to obtain clemency or a new trial.

No British Ships Sunk During Week

LONDON, July 23.—So far as British vessels are concerned, the German submarines drew a blank during the week ended yesterday. Not a single British merchant ship or fishing craft was sunk.

This was the first week since the commencement of the war that some loss to British shipping has not been occasioned by either German cruisers or submarines. During the week under review, 1326 vessels of more than 300 tons each arrived at or departed from ports of the United Kingdom.

Busy Trenton

THE latest news of the town and surrounding neighborhood is given in an interesting manner.

TRENTON, July 23.—Miss Playter of St. Hilda's College, Toronto, and Miss Mary Pickford of Brighton were town visitors to-day.

Mr. John D. Shurie of Wellington, son of Mr. J. P. Shurie of this town, has been elected D.D.G.M. of Prince Edward District A.F. and A.M.

Last evening about 6 p.m. a car came into town from the country, driven by one of the lady occupants. While the ladies were shopping one of the male members of the party, who was left in charge of the car apparently thought he would tour around a little on his own account, with the result that the fence between the Motsons' Bank and Trenton Electric building is this morning a wreck. Before the operator succeeded in gaining control of the machine it was fit for the garage. Fortunately no one was hurt.

Today a drunken man in charge of a buggy occupied by a woman and child, as well, attempted to do the wild west act, on Dundas street. Chief Moffett remonstrated with him but in return only received vile abuse so without further argument the unruly stranger was jerked out of the rig tumbled gently on the cocoa mat and escorted to our comfortable dungeon.

There are a lot of people from neighboring towns who fail to realize that the old, wide-open days, are a thing of the past in Trenton.

It has been suggested that the Girl Guides inaugurate a recruiting campaign. A good idea, but the date should be kept secret or there will be no young men to be found.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bullock, of Brighton, are town visitors today.

The following Trentonians are at St. Anne de Beaupre this week—T. A. O'Rourke, Miss Jean O'Rourke, Rev. Father Connelly, Misses Bernice and Gladys O'Rourke, Mr. and Mrs. Ayger, Mrs. McCormick, Misses Rose, Flavia, and Minnie Desjardins, and Rev. Father McFadden, of Woodland. Father Crowley of Auburn.

Miss Bernice Coyne has just returned from a two weeks' visit to Rochester.

Miss Aileen O'Rourke is visiting at Falls River, Rhode Island. Mr. P. W. Fairman was in town yesterday. He returned last evening to his camp in the north country.

We regret to report that Mrs. W. H. Gill is still critically ill. Barrister S. J. Young, we are glad to announce, is able to sit up for a short time each day.

Prosperity Evident by Building Progress—A Pleasant Motor-Boat Party—Twin Boys Arrive at the Bradshaw Home.

That prosperity has not flown is evident from the building in progress throughout the vicinity.

Stewart Dies, Fred Melburn, and Geo. Lazear are each building barns, and Orin White is having a house erected. Many others are making extensive improvements.

Mrs. J. E. Robeson, who has been visiting her son Rev. J. G. Robeson, left Monday to visit relatives at Peterboro and Toronto.

Reginald Mills received a severe shaking up and injured his arm when thrown from a motorcycle by a dog running under the wheel.

Plainfield football team gave the local boys an interesting game Wednesday evening. The score stood 2 to 1 in favor of Plainfield. A return match is being arranged.

Misses Grace Morden, Ethel Reid, Roxey Gray, Kathleen Bukkar, Rev. J. G. and Mrs. Robeson and Margaret, L. E. and Mrs. Mills, were entertained Wednesday afternoon and evening by Reginald Mills in a motor boat cruise to Big Island and Massasaga Park.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Bradshaw of the 2nd Concession Tyndnaga, twin boys. Both are doing well and are as alike as two peas. With the loss of men in war, that was a patriotic event.

Mrs. R. H. Liddle received the following interesting communication from her son Everett who recently went overseas with the 39th Batt. Folkestone, Kent, July 5, 15.

My dear mother:— Just a few lines to let you know that we are in camp once more, near the town of Folkestone, a town with a population of about 45,000, a very pretty place along the sea, or the English Channel.

The city of Dover is just 8 miles distant, and the city of Calais, France about 25 miles across the Channel. We are situated in a valley, with hills all the way around us, some of them about 250 feet high.

You can from the top on a clear day see Calais and all the coast line, and hear the guns roar when there is a big battle on. We saw two French dirigibles last night when we were marching down to camp. They fly over here every day watching for German aeroplanes and Zeppelins.

This morning when we were drilling, I saw two aeroplanes flying over. They say their sheds are just a little way from here.

I cannot imagine that we are in England and neither can any of the Canadian boys. We are about 3500 miles from home and within 50 miles of the firing line. We certainly are lucky boys to get across here without being sunk as so many boats are being sunk all the time.

There was a big ship which passed us Friday afternoon at 3.15 and was torpedoed and sunk at 5 o'clock.

Our escort certainly did some great flying around. The captain was quite uneasy when we were crossing the Channel. He ate his supper Friday night and breakfast Saturday morning on the bridge, didn't leave his post. They could have got us easily enough on Saturday morning as a heavy fog came up and we had to stop for awhile and had to keep the syren blowing all the time so that no ship would run into us.

We arrived at Plymouth Sound, Saturday morning at 11 o'clock at low tide, and laid there till 4 p.m. then moved up a little further and dropped anchor and laid until 8.30 Sunday morning.

Following Everett gave a description of the train trip to Folkestone, the beautiful scenery and the funny little cars.

In closing he writes: "I am well as usual and did not get a bit seasick." Everett H. Liddle Wiarion Lady Troubled With Kidney Disease Finds Relief and Cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Wiarion, Ont., July 26.—Special. "I have found Dodd's Kidney Pills all that is claimed for them and can highly recommend them to all who are suffering from weak kidneys." So says Miss Hannah E. Renshaw, an estimable lady living here. Miss Renshaw had kidney trouble and found a cure in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Speaking of the troubles that led her to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, Miss Renshaw says: "I had cramps in my muscles and very bad headaches. Some nights I got very little sleep. My skin was harsh and came off in little scales. I had rheumatism at times and always a heavy feeling in the region of my kidneys. There were dark circles under my eyes, my face was bloated and painful."

"Reading in Dodd's Almanac led me to use Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I can't be too thankful that I did." Miss Renshaw's troubles came from disordered kidneys. That's why she found such complete relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills. They always cure sick kidneys.

Cotton Situation Featured in Press

London Times, Daily Mail and Daily News Complains of Inflation.

LONDON, July 26.—German military authorities, according to information received here, have announced that a census will be taken, beginning of midnight August 2nd, of all stocks of cotton in Germany. The census will apply to raw cotton, cotton waste, cotton wool and all cotton materials, especially those used by the army. A census will be made at the same time of wool and half wool of the underclothing for men and various other supplies such as sackings and materials used in making rope.

The Times and the Daily Mail again today urge the government to declare cotton contraband, and to undertake the scheme, purchase the textile as outlined by The Times Friday. This plan contemplates the purchase by the government from the southern cotton exchanges of the amount of cotton that would normally have gone to Germany and Austria-Hungary and Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Switzerland, at the same time declaring cotton absolutely contraband.

The Daily Graphic also complains of the inaction of the government on this question, and says the matter is becoming a grave danger to the country, as, unless something is done before the new cotton crop is available Germany will be able to get all the cotton she requires.

The Adly Mail in an editorial, says "It will be a gross public scandal if this matter is not dealt with, before Parliament rises, to save our soldiers."

Mysterious Explosion on British Steamer

Sugar Cargo of Freighter Lying in the Hudson River is a Total Loss

NEW YORK, July 26.—An explosion of unknown origin occurred in the forward hold of the British freighter Cragside at her dock in the Hudson River here yesterday and was followed by a fire, which, however, was speedily controlled. The Cragside, which was to leave here last night for an English port with a cargo of 100,000 bags of sugar, will be delayed a few days. Authorities are investigating to determine the cause of the explosion.

The fire and water damage to the steamer was estimated at $10,000, while the cargo of sugar, valued at $144,000, is believed to be a total loss.

Mrs. Harold Dexter, of Spokane, Wash., is visiting friends and relatives here.

A row happened in a certain residence between a father and his son, but no arrest was made by the police had subsided.

Mr. Rowell Pleased at "Dry" Victory in Alberta

Special to The Ontario.

VANCOUVER, July 26.—Among the hosts of people outside of Alberta, who are delighted with the "dry" victory in that province, one of the most pleased, naturally enough, is Mr. N. W. Rowell, who at present, is in British Columbia on a vacation. It must be an added source of satisfaction to him that he did his "bit" to secure the victory in the "foothill" province. Not only was the example of his fight in Ontario admittedly a help to the Alberta workers, but Mr. Rowell also addressed two large meetings during the campaign, one in Edmonton, the other in Calgary, on "The War and the Liquor Traffic."

Mr. Rowell in these addresses, did not discuss the actual details of the bill to be submitted, for he did not want to interfere in other provinces' local affairs, but he did point out the patriotic duty of getting rid of any force or any interest interfering with personal and national strength, especially at such a critical time as during the war and the difficult period of readjustment and reconstruction which inevitably will follow.

Mr. Rowell must also feel satisfaction in the Saskatchewan situation. Hon. Walter Scott has publicly acknowledged that his government and the people of his province had been influenced in their temperance course by the inspiration of Mr. Rowell's courageous fight. The Ontario leader, while thoroughly agreeing with the Saskatchewan plan as far as it has abolished all drinking places, has definitely reserved judgment on the question of its government-owned liquor stores until time will have shown its results.

In Manitoba today both parties are pledged to prohibition. In British Columbia there is a more vigorous organization against the liquor traffic than ever before; an advance may be expected in this province, Alberta and Saskatchewan, at any rate, are definite examples of anti-liquor traffic hopes turned into actual accomplishment. Ontario's progress, when viewed in the light of what these two provinces have done, looks unfortunately small. Here, under the Commission, it is a question of retaining or cutting off individual licenses in specific localities; in Alberta and Saskatchewan the axe has been laid to the very roots of the traffic, and the abolition has been done in a wholesale thorough way. Mr. Rowell, as the exponent of the abolition of all drinking places in Ontario, may well expect that the people of his own province will be influenced considerably by the example and initiative of their comrades in the west.

Most infants are infested by worms, which cause great suffering, and if not promptly dealt with may cause constitutional weaknesses difficult to remedy. Miller's Worm Powders will clear the stomach and bowels of worms and will so act upon the system that there will be no recurrence of the trouble. And not only this, but they will repair the injuries to the organs that worms cause and restore them to soundness.

Girls to Turn Down Boys Not in Uniform

Hamilton Discusses Dollar Week Tax on Bachelors—City May Insure Its Soldiers.

HAMILTON, Ont., July 23.—Vigorous efforts are being put forth by Hamiltonians to induce single men to go to the front. The president of the new recruiting league, J. H. Colinson, principal of Highfield College, is urging in public speeches the young girls of the city to discourage the attentions of young men unless they intend to serve their country. He advises the formation of a girls' guide with this purpose in view, every member to agree to frown on their suitors until they enlist. The executive has also arranged to take a census of the young men in Hamilton with a view to personally approaching those who are in a position to go.

The scheme to tax single men a dollar a week each for patriotic purposes is reaching a head. Last night Mayor Walters and W. H. Davis, ex-secretary of the Federal Life Assurance Company, now municipal auditor, leave for New York and other cities in the States to try and arrange for the insurance of all Hamilton soldiers. If the trip is unsuccessful the government will be applied to for authority to issue twenty-year debentures for a local civic insurance fund. The dependents of those already killed will be helped out of civic finances.

These Pills Cure Rheumatism.—To the many who suffer from rheumatism a trial of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills is recommended. They have pronounced action upon the liver and kidneys and by regulating the action of these organs act as an alternative in preventing the admixture of uric acid and blood that causes this painful disorder. They must be taken according to directions and used steadily and they will speedily give evidence of their beneficial effects.

Intercession Services for Victory of Allies

Bishop of London Holds One on Steps of St. Paul's Cathedral.

LONDON, July 26.—The hymn, "O God Our Help in Ages Past," welled from the throats of thousands of Londoners today to the accompaniment of massed bands when the Bishop of London, the Right Rev. Arthur F. W. Ingram, appeared on the steps of St. Paul's Cathedral to conduct a service of intercession for those killed in war and for the success of the arms of Great Britain and her allies.

Intercession services also were held in all the free churches of the kingdom.

There Goes My Last; I Have Given My All

As Mrs. Alex. Smith, Peterboro, kissed her khaki-clad son good-bye, she strove to keep back her tears, as she watched him board the train for Kingston Friday morning to join the 8th C. M. B. stationed at Barrfield. Inquiry revealed the fact that Mrs. Smith has allowed all of her four sons to leave the parental roof since the war broke out. With the exception of one in Scotland, the others are now on active service, soon to be on the firing line. Private F. Smith is with the 39th Battalion at Stormont, as is also Private J., Smith. Her last son, who departed Saturday, was private R. O. Smith, who enlisted for the 8th C. M. B.

Col. Hodgins to Command 'Pioneers'

OTTAWA, July 27.—Col. Arthur Hodgins, of Victoria, B.C., formerly of Toronto, has been authorized to raise a regiment of pioneers for overseas service. The regiment will be entirely enlisted in the four western Provinces, where there are hundreds who will make likely men for such a unit. The pioneers are used for trench building, railway construction, road building, and sapping. The regiment will be either attached to one of the Canadian divisions or used separately if desired as needed. Col. Hodgins is a South African veteran, and is an engineer of continental reputation.

Presented With Wrist Watch

Yesterday afternoon, Mr. Geo. Glover, moulder in the Springer Lock Manufacturing Co., Ltd., was presented by his fellow employees in the Iron Foundry, with a wrist watch on his leaving as a member of the 59th Battalion, and has now left for Kingston.

This makes the eleventh man from the above company to volunteer for overseas service.

"THE LEAST WE CAN DO."

A great army has been organized. Millions have placed themselves freely under the rigid and stern military discipline, and the achievement of Lord Kitchener in that respect is one of the most brilliant in military organization. When there are millions of men who readily, of their own accord, without compulsion, merely by an appeal to their instinct of patriotism, have placed their lives at the disposal of their country, I think we who are at home, who are facing no dangers, who are not going to confront the terrible horrors of the battlefield, the least we can do it with all our strength, all our skill, all our reserve, to help these brave lads to win. (Cheers.) We stand or fall together. (Cheers.) It is either the common weal or the common woe, and it depends not merely on those valiant lads who are going to fight our battles in Flanders and the Dardanelles—it does not depend merely upon them. It depends just as much upon who are at home, and especially upon those who are working in the great factories which can turn out munitions of war.

That is why I am here. I want the troops to feel that they are going into action with someone behind them. There is a very fine description in one of the Erckmann-Chatelain tales of the conscripts at the battle of Waterloo. They had been fighting all day, fighting very bravely, as Frenchmen always will, (Cheers.) Suddenly in the evening they had a sense that there was nothing behind them; the field was empty; there was no support and for the first time their hearts failed them. Our fellows—they are fighting. They are fighting gallantly. God alone knows what they have got to face. They are fighting as gallantly as men ever fought. (Cheers.) When they are told to go forward in face of the dread machinery of a scientific foe they have never flinched. They never knew any faintheartedness. Do not let them one day feel that the field behind them is empty and there is no support. Let them hear the ring of the forges of Britain and the hammers on the anvil, and then they will say, "Our fellows are behind us. Let us go forward." (Cheers.)

Our men are fighting a brave people for a great cause. Let us make no mistake. We are fighting a determined enemy. We are fighting an enemy that has been taught in its schools to subordinate everything to the Fatherland. Are Britons less patriotic? (Cheers.) Is Britain not a country you can love as much as any German can love his Fatherland? Is Britain not worth fighting for? (Cheers.) I ask every man, be his function what it may, to use his strength to fight for this beautiful land in the days to come. But Germany had prepared for war. You have only got to study now what has happened. I can see it more and more. The whole organization of their industry had its steel-point directed to war—the great engineering industries so organized that when war came they would be ready, its steel industries, its copper industries, above all its chemical industries, ready at a moment's notice to distil poison—subtle, deadly, cruel poison—in order to destroy the enemy with the greatest torture, pain and anguish. The steel point now has been unshathed, and you can see it. Britain may not have been ready. Britain means to make up for lost time now. (Loud cheers.)

This is not the first time that the men of the west have been called upon to fight a great military empire organized for war, eager for war, seeking to establish a military tyranny. It was the men of the west who overthrew the Spanish Armada. (Cheers.) I want you to repeat that exploit. You can do it. I want you to fill our wagons with the material that will enable our troops to break through their lines. (Cheers.) You see what happened at Neuve Chapelle. (Cheers.) We rained shot on them, and our men got through. But then we had to pause. We want a deluge of Neuve Chapelles. (Loud cheers.) Let them rain forty days and forty nights without ceasing. (Loud cheers.) They have taught us a lesson. That is why the Germans have been able to succeed to the extent they have done in the past of Europe.

It is by incessant striking, striking, striking. You only can do that by filling up our reserves with plenty of shell ammunition. Then you will hear the crack of the German steel barrier under the incessant hammering of the British guns. You will hear the cheers of the British infantry as they march through their shattered entrenchments to victory. And in that hour the engineers will know with a thrill that the workshops of Britain have won a lasting triumph for "the righteousness that exalteth a nation." (Loud and prolonged cheering followed, the audience standing and cheering the Minister.)—Mr. Lloyd George at Bristol.

Two Warships in Kingston Harbor

On Thursday morning, bright and early many persons were astonished to see two Canadian warships in the harbor. Out in the stream opposite the waterworks there was anchored the cruiser Golliner and beside the Kingston Shipbuilding Wharf was the cruiser Vigilant. It seems that both cruisers had been given orders to be in Kingston harbor at the same time. The cruiser Golliner has been engaged practically since the opening of hostilities along the Atlantic coast dragging for mines and the cruiser Vigilant has been stationed at Port Dover, on Lake Erie, guarding the Canadian fisheries. The latter boat formerly carried Maxim guns but an agreement between the United States and Canada brought the elimination of these. Instead rifles are carried. Both cruisers are to remain in Kingston harbor until further orders, and according to some reports this city is to be made the headquarters at these boats, as this is where so many of the American foreign element land in Canada. The cruisers will in all probability patrol up and down the St. Lawrence river, between Kingston and Prescott.—Kingston Whig.

Important 1000 Island Transfer

The Batterman property on Larue Island has been sold to a Mr. Low, New York. It is understood the consideration was $55,000. This is one of the best properties on the Canadian side, being splendidly fitted up with electric light plant, waterworks plant, roomy yacht houses, etc. Mr. Low will not occupy his newly acquired property this season.—Gananoque Reporter.

"It Goes Well"

Lance Corporal Robt Caldwell, who enlisted at Cobourg and who was formerly of Campbellford, has written an interesting letter to the Editor of the Campbellford News, in which he says that in the French papers there has been the same heading over the war news for a few weeks. It is "Ca va bien." (It goes well.) He is with the machine gun section of the Second Battalion. It will be remembered that there was a Robt. Caldwell reported killed in action and at first it was thought to be the writer of this letter. That fortunately was not the case. In describing the last battle in which the Canadians were engaged he says:—

Two days after we had received the tobacco we went into the trenches and under a furious bombardment. Attacks were carried off by Canadians and English to our immediate left, indeed half our trenches had to be vacated so that the attacking troops could make the assault from there. During the complete engagement which, with its artillery preparation and the final bombardment, lasted some five days. We were busy, first keeping the enemy from repairing the damage done by the artillery. This was done by rapid fire on their parapets at irregular intervals throughout the first two nights. Later, during the assaults, with a continuous rapid fire supported with our artillery we kept them from enfilading our troops as we dashed across the space between trenches. There were three attacks made before we could hold our gains, so completely had the Hun consolidated his positions and so strong and desperate his counter attacks. We did not get off soot free for the enemy returned the artillery fire and in places our trenches were sorry looking wrecks. One of the boys from town said before we left the trenches "Gee, I'm glad that tobacco came when it did." We all were, for smoking proves one of the best reliefs you can get when under fire.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. By F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. Y.M.C.A. Boys' Camp Doings

On Wednesday evening Dr. Marshall and party motored out to pay us a visit. Dr. Marshall did a thing which in the minds of the boys established him as a proper candidate for Mayor. As soon as the fellows ascended their franchises, this is what he did, presented to the boys the biggest and sweetest watermelon they have seen for many moons. Master Jack Marshall acted as Chief Carver. He made a great success of it. The fellows gave him three lusty cheers and a tiger. The boys then gathered around in their Indian blankets in front of the camp fire and each in turn entertained the rest with a humorous or thrilling story.

BOYS' CAMP FIELD DAY

Friday afternoon turned out to be the finest day imaginable. Nature made it appear glorious. The athletic field is located on a high elevation from which the spectators who gathered from the surrounding country could get a splendid view of the surrounding scenery. The lake nestles as it were at the feet of the beautiful pines. Every waft of wind would stir the fragrance from the pines. For running off the sports the zone seemed to be charged. Note the scores which follow:

A GLORIOUS HIKE.

On Thursday morning all the boys of the camp agreed to go to the Trent Canal. "POP" Gifford put up a good solid lunch of salmon sandwiches and each boy had to carry his own. Leaving the camp at nine o'clock they started out with the help of the mouth organ which made everybody keep in step. Col. J. Ketcheson was in command and it is saying the least to say that he is an able commander. While enroute the boys picked up all the information that was possible. Such as the different kinds of grain, cattle and points in farming, etc. Arriving at the dock the boys were not long in getting into their swimming suits and taking a header into the water. Some famous diving was indulged in, some fellows diving and swimming across the canal for the first time. After a good swim and after everybody had watched "Twig" Woodley take a high dive and "Dabby" fail to do the same, a good lunch was partaken of after which in order to get ready for another swim, the boys all walked a wooden fence, climbed a bridge, and tired themselves out. They then betook themselves back to the canal. Some more famous high diving and stunts were indulged in. The boys started for home about three o'clock. At five o'clock they landed back at camp about all in.

Off to Prince Edward

Forth from the prairie, so boundless and wide, We're homeward bound, homeward bound; We've laid all care and our business aside, We're homeward bound, homeward bound;

We're off to Picton, to us it is dear, Fathers and mothers, to bring you good cheer; Warm is your welcome, your hearts are sincere, We're homeward bound, homeward bound.

Merry the train that is speeding us through, Pancakes we'll have and a pumpkin pie too, Steak with good gravy that mother can make;

Dish, deep and brimful, of hot Johnny cake, Relished the more for the mother-love's sake.

Father will talk of the good olden days, Driving away with a fine span of bays;

Picton to Bloomfield and Wellington Beach, Sandbanks, returning so charming to each;

Then on the Bay sailing, to down to Long Reach.

Each one will gladly at home take a rest, We're home at last, home at last; Spending the time with the ones we love best,

We're home at last, home at last; Treasuring the words of the old folks alone;

Absence out West we'll attempt to atone, Lingering lovingly round the hearthstone, We're home at last, home at last.—Dr. A. E. Blakely in Picton Gazette.

Rev. Alfred Young Leaves Wellington

The Rev. Alfred Young, who for two and a half years has ministered to the congregations of the Friends Churches at Wellington and Bloomfield, has received an unanimous call to the pastorate of the Friends Church at Newmarket, and has accepted the invitation. Mr. and Mrs. Young have made many friends during their residence in Wellington, and the good wishes of all will follow them to their new sphere of labour. Mr. Young takes up his work at Newmarket on the first Sunday in August, consequently he will say farewell to his present congregations on Sunday next, July 25th.

There will doubtless in the morning, and Bloomfield in the afternoon to bid God-speed to Mr. and Mrs. Young. Mr. Young will give his last address at the Methodist church, Wellington, next Sunday evening.

Mr. Young's departure will be a distinct loss to the community. He was a man of fine type of character, and his work and influence has been of great benefit to all those with whom he came in contact.—Picton Gazette.

Port Hope Boy Drowned

Oliver Moffat, the ten-year-old son of Mr. O. H. Moffat, was accidentally drowned in Port Hope Harbour on Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock. The little lad had been learning to swim recently and jumped into the harbour to bathe going beyond his depth. He over-estimated his ability and sank almost immediately. The body was recovered by Capt. McMahon, but efforts to resuscitate him proved in vain.

Seek Places Vacated by Eastland Disaster

CHICAGO, July 27.—Hundreds of unemployed assembled in front of the Western Electric Company's plant at Cicero this morning seeking positions left open by deaths in the Eastland disaster. They were denied admittance to the employment office, and were told that the company had no positions for them. Police were called to disperse the crowd and clear the pavement in front of the company's offices.

Good Bass Fishing

Messrs. W. H. Hubbell, John Gehan and Lorne Hubbell had a great day's fishing at Crowe Lake last Friday. They brought home 24 fine bass, returning a number of smaller ones to the water. Some of these fish were very large and the whole lot were above the average. They also secured one 'lunge, three others getting away from them. A number of others also report an excellent day's sport.—Marmora Herald.

Got Suspended Sentence and Joins the Soldiers

On Monday Reuben Graham and Lavern Wright, Bewdley, appeared before Judge Ward in the County Judge's Criminal Court charged with stripping horses of the hair on their tails and manes. Graham was found not guilty and discharged, while Wright pleaded guilty. He came up before the judge and was let off on suspended sentence, he having agreed to sign up for overseas service. The judge gave Wright some good advice, warning him that the offence to which he had pleaded guilty was punishable by a several year term in penitentiary. Wright went out of court with Capt. Neilson who promised to look after him.—Cobourg Sentinel Star.

Child Fell Through Bridge and Drowned

A sad drowning accident occurred at the head gates between Macintosh Mills and Graham Lake on Sunday afternoon, when the four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Leeder lost her life. Four little children, three girls and a boy, were picking flowers, and when they came to the gate, seeing some flowers on the other side, ventured across. The youngest of the four fell through a small opening in the bridge. Her little brother, only six years, worked like a little hero trying to save his sister, while the other two ran for their parents. Medical aid was quickly summoned, but it was too late.—Gananoque Reporter.

Boys Got a Fright

While out berry picking the other day one of our local residents accompanied by his son and boy companion put up a joke that fairly scared the lads out of a year's growth, in fact the very mention of a "bear" still startles them. When all were deeply interested in picking the luscious fruit the father shouted a 'bear' and started with his hat in his hand, to beat it towards the clearing. With a scream of fright the boys dropped their pails and in less time than it takes to pen it they had gained the road where they stood trembling like the aspen leaf and could hardly be consoled even when they were told it was only a joke. One of the boys vows that if he ever gets a chance he will lobb off on the old gentleman just to get even.—Tweed Advocate.

Trent Becoming Popular

Trent River is fast coming into its own again, after a somewhat dull past month. The cottages are nearly all taken at this popular resort and the dancing pavillion is once more crowded every night by gay young people intent upon having a good time.—Norwood Register.

Wrongfully Accused

Mr. Abner Mouch was summoned to Preston on Tuesday to answer to a charge of having run his auto in that place without the regulation lights on the evening of July 3rd. In answering the summons he took with him Mr. R. Patterson as a witness and some sworn affidavits from other local residents to show that he was home on the date in question. On reaching Preston and upon the advice of Dr. Stafford Quinn he obtained legal counsel and it was fortunate that he did as the court seemed bent on convicting him regardless of the evidence produced. We understand that Mr. Mouch was never in Preston until summoned there and it seems very clear that the official "spotter" of that little burg has been treated to an optical illusion. He simply got the wrong number. The court reserved judgment for 10 days. Mr. Mouch has been put to considerable expense in the case the party or parties responsible should be made to make restitution.—Tweed Advocate.

Change in Management

Mr. Duncan Kerr, the genial manager of the St. Lawrence Hall Hotel, Campbellford, is retiring and the business will be taken over about the end of July by his son, Mr. Jas. Kerr, who returned this week from Edmonton. We predict for "Jimmie" the large patronage and goodwill which his father has enjoyed during the many years he has been in charge of this popular hotel.—News.

Let him turn to Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy and know what complete relief it can give. Let him but use it faithfully and he will find his asthma a thing of the past.

Horses Fed on Hemlock Bush

Mr. J. R. Johnson has just returned from a visit to Jamestown, N.Y., and among the side trips he took was one to attend the races at Warren, Pa. While there he had the satisfaction of seeing two Canadian horses carry off the money in the 2.11 and the 2.15 classes, with a field of thirteen and eight starters respectively. In the 2.15 class was a horse from London, Ont., Major Kelly, and although there were stiff odds against him, Dick's loyalty to anything Canadian impelled him to back the horse. After he had won and Dick was cashing in, he was mistaken for the owner, and was met with cries of "Canadian ringer." Dick's retort was prompt and characteristic. He said, "He's not a ringer, and more than that, I wintered him on hemlock brush. If he had had the same feed as the Kentucky horses he went up against he could beat an aeroplane." His remark "brought down the house," and afterwards he was pointed out as the man who raised horses on hemlock brush. Mr. Johnson was very much impressed with Jamestown. It has two hundred establishments, and is the cleanest city he has ever been in.—Gananoque Reporter.

Rest Place for U. S. President

Efforts are being made by a syndicate of prominent Washington men to purchase the summer home of George C. Boldt, known as Boldt Castle, on Heart Island, opposite Alexandria Bay. It is pointed out that the Thousand Islands would make an ideal place for the president to spend the summer, on account of the cooling breezes and the variety of entertainment afforded.

Should the president desire privacy it is only necessary to prevent any boats landing at the island and he could remain for days without being disturbed by outsiders. Though the Thousand Islands are on the northern frontier of the country it is but 24 hours' ride from Washington and the president could easily return to the capital if urgent business summoned him there.—Gananoque Reporter.

District 8 Cinched by Campbellford

Campbellford cinched O.A.L.A. intermediate district No. 8 on Wednesday, when they defeated Hastings in the latter place, by a score of 8-6. This makes Campbellford's fifth consecutive victory and they expect to go a long way in the intermediate series.

A large number of fans accompanied the club to Hastings, every car in town going up with a load and several carriages conveyed a crowd of boys. The game was fairly clean, although a few field fights marred the day's pleasure. Both teams played excellent lacrosse, the score being tied twice, in the second quarter at 3-3 and 4-4, but Hastings never led. The grounds which were very uneven favored Hastings as they were familiar with the bumps and hollows while our boys would stumble.—News.

Auto Struck by Train

Going to Brockville on Monday an automobile owned and driven by J. McConnell, of Lyndhurst, and containing Mr. and Mrs. Geo. R. Rooney, their son Travers, Miss Alma Graham and Miss Beatrice Webster, of Lyndhurst, was struck by an outgoing C.N. train at Glen Buell crossing. All the victims were taken on the train to Athens, and later Mr. McConnell was taken to the hospital in Brockville with his right leg fractured at the knee, and injuries to his head. Young Rooney, who sustained several cuts about the head and eyes was also taken there. Miss Graham and the other occupants who were injured remained in Athens.—Gananoque Reporter.

ENGLISHMEN FEEL DISGRACED IF FAMILY NOT REPRESENTED IN THE WAR

Interesting Letter From Corp. A. L. Johnson to His Former Teacher, Mr. E. F. Milburn

Mr. E. F. Milburn of Belleville High School Staff has received the following grateful and appreciative letter from his old pupil, Corp. A. L. Johnson, son of Mr. J. W. Johnson, M.P.F., now with the 21st Battalion C. E. F. on active service in Europe. Sandling Camp, June 24, 1915.

My dear Mr. Milburn,—
Your good old-time, warm-hearted epistle of the 6th inst. reached this one of the twenty-one recipients of E. F. M.'s handwriting and I can assure you I was pleased immensely, for the news is, but more for all that lies beneath, between and round each line; and I wish I could write adequately to have you know that that underlying feeling is reciprocated. It's mighty good of you to bother with so many of us.

Not keeping a diary, I do not remember just what I have written you but it cannot be of much interest compared with what you are receiving from the real soldiers at the front. I often think how much more fortunate we have been than the fellows of the 1st. Instead of mud and rain, continuous fair weather has prevailed since our arrival. We're quartered on high grounds, in sumptuous huts, compared with the "Porridge Works" in Kingston. Sanitation fine and everything exceptionally clean. Food good and particularly so now that our own company cooks are looking after us. Then too, we are benefitting by the 1st's experiences and taken all through we're a mighty fine outfit. Sometimes—while marching, a pride swells up in me I would not swap for the pleasures so many chaps are enjoying over in Canada. This is no hardship and come what may we'll try our best to carry on the good work that the 1st have started. If this sounds trish (the coming sentences) don't blame me, it's in the blood, but I don't really intend writing what I'm about to. A person feels disgraced in this country if there is not one or more of their family over the way. They are bricks these English, if there's sorrow in their hearts, there's pride also, rich and poor they are game. I only wish the chaps at home could come over here and have a touch of it, they'd realize that a good job or ought else was a poor thing compared with a British uniform. Never again will I in my heart insult an Englishman, no matter how much of a blighter he may be, there's a whole of a lot behind him. But enough.

Scores and scores of camps are around here, some three hundred and fifty thousand troops in all. Em and I were over at Shorncliffe for a course in machine gun work. Returning here I ran into a quarantine in my hut for mumps. Herp's hut also was unfortunate, so we've had the lid on for nearly three weeks, however, tonight finishes it. While at Shorncliffe we ran across Will Casey, fact is we were attached to his battalion while there. He is fast recovering from wounds and gas, you will be glad to know, and has also now obtained his commission and maybe off to the front again by this time. Newton Alford was in to see us Sunday and Tuesday evening Ern and I met a chap McPherson, whose family live just across from the Geen homestead at home. Ah! there's some of us here all right, Mr. Milburn.

There's so much I might write about I scarce know where to start. England was in the midst of its spring-time freshness, when we arrived and just now millions of roses are everywhere to be seen. Trellises of beauties covering villas and cottages from foundation to eaves while gardens are ablaze with them.
Historically interesting are many of the places nearby. I'm much afraid I'm too much of a modern to truly appreciate it all and much of my English history has been forgotten by this never-adept scholar. I had intentions of walking over to Saitwood castle (about ten minutes' walk from here) this evening, but it's cold and misty out of doors. It was here that the conspirators crossing from France, planned their deed and spent the night previous to its successful accomplishment at Canterbury Cathedral the next day. I refer to the assassination of Cardinal Thomas A'Beckett. Lymp Castle is a little over two miles distant from here, we passed it the other day while marching. I anticipate going over to Canterbury Sunday next, only some sixteen miles from here. Churches of antiquity are all about here, many of them with records on file going back to the early hundreds of English history. But again enough.

June 28.
Did not get over to Canterbury yesterday, as I was shoved on as orderly sergeant for the present week, much to my chagrin. It's another week fast in camp. Saturday afternoon and evening I spent in Folkestone, and a most gorgeous afternoon it was. Toward six o'clock three dirigibles of the Parseval type were maneuvering about and at times dropping to the hundred foot level. The usual assortment of destroyers were about, sometimes we will see twenty-five or more at once.
Geen and I saw Tom Fennell, Saturday afternoon, has been over here a week today. He is looking fine and is camping in an old camp occupied once by Caesar's army.
I think I have told you previously in a most inadequate way, how very much I think of England. My regard for it grows constantly. Probably the oldness of it, is some of the allurements. Could some of the chaps at home have seen me Saturday afternoon, I'm mighty sure recruiting in that vicinity would have increased abundantly. Down by the sparkling Channel, with two charming girls reading to me, and afterwards tea in a rose garden. Ah, this "King and Country needs you" is not all thorns by any means.

Have written now, till I'm fairly certain further perusal would become boring, so wishing still, to hold your regards, I had best desist from lengthening this.
My kindest regards to Mrs. Milburn and the girls, my very best respects to yourself.
Believe me,
Sincerely,
Arthur Johnson

The Cheerfulness of the British Soldier

A special correspondent with British Headquarters in the field, writing on June 1st comments on the cheerfulness of the British soldiers. He writes:—

"The more I see of the British army in the field the more I am impressed by its cheery optimism and unquenchable good spirits. It works and plays with the same good-humored zest; nothing can dishearten it. Until the gas-poisoners began their work it was an army that regarded the foe facing it impersonally. Killing was the business in hand, but killing without malice; flower-covered graves for dead enemies and cigarettes for live prisoners. Now the business of killing is full of bitterness and there are no flowers. Yet even the menace of the new death has not choked the spirit of cheerfulness. Men take their turn in the gas zone with a grim resolve to swell the enemy's casualty list with their own, but they can jest even when they are gasping for breath. "Another peasant fog" said a North Somerset lad to a comrade in the trenches, when he saw the wall of gas vapour stealing towards him. "It isn't safe to be out in the night air."
"It's a bad day for the Lord Mayor's procession," said a London rifleman when the fog swept over his trench. He lay in a dug-out for an hour, his face buried in a respirator, and then staggered into the open air, dizzy but practically unhurt.
"Reminded me of the Thames Embankment on a November morning," he said to me when I saw him in hospital, "except that it was much safer. No trams."
"Another gassed soldier I saw was breathing painfully, but able to talk. "Takes all your lung power to keep alive," he gasped. "Haven't breath enough even to curse the Kaiser properly. A man ought to be given extra lungs for trench work."

The chaplain attached to this clearing station was going among the new arrivals as they lay on stretchers in the open air after having their wounds dressed, and giving each man a regulation postcard—one of the sort which is prepared for the post by scratching out some printed sentences and leaving others. He came to a victim of gas—a mere boy who stared at the card suspiciously.
"Would you like to send your people a postcard, my boy?" said the chaplain, and went on to the next stretcher. "Does, does this mean that I am going to die?" asked the lad, as he tried to scrawl a name across the front of the card.
"Nonsense," retorted an orderly who was passing. "There's no use wasting the card. Besides, it says, 'I am wounded.' I am not wounded. I'm full of this bloody gas, and as soon as me chest is clear I'm going back to 'do' for some of those Germans. Give us a drink!"
The cheerfulness of the wounded is very marked. A man who has been shot in the leg or arm after severe shelling, and then carted for perhaps twenty miles in a slow-moving ambulance, could be forgiven if he took a somewhat gloomy view of the immediate future. Ten to one he arrives at his destination hiding his suffering behind a mask of gaiety.
I sat in the grounds of a casualty clearing station one afternoon watching the endless procession of Red Cross motor cars discharging their doleful burdens under the trees. I heard very few cries of pain. These men had been brought direct from the battle-field with only a halt at the dressing station where first aid is rendered. Many were, of course, wholly disabled but those who could use their legs pluckily tried to walk.
They joked with each other as they sat or lay around the garden, waiting for the ambulance that would take them to the coast. One of our aeroplanes was sighted overhead, sailing back from the German lines with enemy's shrapnel bursting in its wake and every man who could do so hoisted himself upright in order to watch the battle.
"Rotten shots," said a Durham miner, whose left arm was bound to his side, "they never hit anything."
"It's a sinful waste of ammunition," said the Cameronian, "but they hit you."
"They must've aimed at something else," growled the miner. "I could shoot better with my eyes shut."
Two men beside him paid no heed to the conversation. They were gaily turning over the tattered leaves of an old copy of a London illustrated paper. Three hours before they were struck down by shrapnel, which killed one man around them. Now, with their wound dressed, they were intent on photographs of "K's" battalions and scenes from a new London play. Cheerful in the trenches; cheerful under fire; cheerful on the march!
My motor-car halted at a crossroads to let a famous battalion of infantry pass. Big men they were—some of the pick of England's manhood. They had been tramping for hours through a blinding cloud of dust, and faces, uniforms, caps, were thickly powdered with it. They sang, coughingly, a weird song about being very dry—dry—dry—how dry! Tunics were unbuttoned and thrown back, perspiration streamed in rivulets down their grey cheeks, and they were tired—dog tired. Yet they sang.
The column halted beside me. A sergeant-major came out of a cottage with a magpie sitting solemnly on his thumb. Instantly a volley of questions. "Oo's your friend, Bill?" "Mind your packets, boys, there's a black thief around!" "Does he talk French?" "That's a German magpie; watch him." "Crude jests maybe, but they served their purpose."
"How long have you been on the march?" I asked one grey apparition. "A thousand sanguinary years," said a hoarse voice. "We do this for fun. Got a match?"
The battalion moved on and disappeared in a whirling cloud, while the magpie, cocking his head wisely, listened to the dying chant: "Still dry; still dry; still dry."
I saw another famous battalion—shorn to a third of its original strength by German shells, march to billets in a village near my quarters. For a fortnight these men had endured all imaginable horrors in the sally of the British line beyond Ypres. Scarcely they were, and men with the shadow of death still across their set faces, but as they came into the narrow street, where friendly villagers smiled at them from their cottages, you could see the old spirit coming uppermost again.
"Baths," cried one man as they passed a slime-covered pool beside a stable yard.

"Billiards," exclaimed a second as he glanced through the open door of the little restaurant.
"Tobacco," said a third, as he saw a tiny shop window crammed with boxes of English cigarettes. They sat around that night, in cottage doors, in fields and along hedges, smoking and writing letters home or watching the crimson sunset, with an air of utter contentment such as I have seldom seen. Three of them were giving an impromptu concert to some admiring youngsters with a mouth organ and an accordion. Another was chasing a reluctant cow into her night quarters, to the delight of the venerable person who owned her.
"It's a good old world," said a corporal (who is a barrister when he is at home), sitting with his two comrades near my gate. "This place beats our dug-outs, what! Wonder when we're going back."
"Don't care," said his companions. "It's all in a lifetime."

Candidates, is such a tour worth working for?
You cannot buy the tour for less than $350.00. If you went on your own responsibility it would probably cost you more than $500.00 to take up all these features.

This will be the last opportunity to visit California and at the same time to see two world's expositions.

TRADE AFTER THE WAR

Germans Are Anxious Since They May be Boycotted

LONDON, July 23—The Morning Post's Amsterdam correspondent says "In German industrial circles great uneasiness prevails about the suggestion in the allied states to exclude German exports from the world market after the war."

"One result is that the formation at Berlin of a central export office to promote the interests of German export trade after the war is being suggested by the industrial union and central association for German industry."

A lady's suit case was found on the Kingston Road and awaits an owner at Mr. Bell's store, Shannonville.

CORP. FERGUSON OF THE 39TH BATT. WRITES

The following are extracts from letters received from Corporal J. A. Ferguson, of the 39th Battalion—

July 3, '15
Here we are at the end of our sea journey safe and secure in Plymouth Harbor and we are now awaiting high tide to get us in close enough to land. We were accorded a rousing reception from the people on shore and all the ships blew their steam whistles. A mail boat, pulled out from shore and took off all the mail. I should judge nearly 2000 bags. We were classed all night by German submarines but as we changed our course often and ran at full speed, they were unable to come up with us. A big liner which crossed our bow yesterday afternoon was torpedoed and sunk half an hour after passing us, by a German submarine disguised as a torpedo boat.

Shorncliffe, July 4th, 1915.
We left Plymouth Sunday morning about 9 a.m. arriving here about 8 p.m. nearly starved as we had nothing to eat since 6 a.m. The scenery was grand all the way. We passed on the outskirts of London and were disappointed as I had figured on passing directly through London. Nearly 40,000 Canadians are camped in Kent, most of the 2nd still being here.

July 6th, '15
We are now fairly settled down in our new encampment. It is far better located than our old one on the Island and is more up to date in every way. Having all kinds of modern conveniences, which our old camp was sadly lacking in. We are within a stone's throw of where Julius Caesar is supposed to have landed on his first visit to Britain. Our tents are all nicely floored and slightly larger than our old ones and the ground on which they are erected is as smooth as a lawn, adding greatly to our comfort. The only thing which I object to is the board which is 100% worse than what was served out in Canada. We are working a whole lot harder than formerly and we N. C. O's have far more duties and harder ones than ever before. No man is allowed out before 6 p.m. and must be in not later than 9:15 p.m. as last post sounds at 9:30 p.m. We were out last evening having a look around Folkestone. It is a quaint little village. Its streets are of the narrowest I ever saw and not one runs straight, making it very hard for a stranger to find his way around. Prices of goods have gone up so high on account of the soldiers being here, that nothing can be purchased for less than three times its actual value. At a modest looking lunch room we were asked 35c each for what we could have got in Canada for 15c each. Over one million men are in training around this part of the country and soldiers are going out and arriving every day, some on pass but most of them wounded. The 2nd contingent are still in training about three miles from us.

The old historic Abbey of Canterbury is about 8 miles from camp, besides a hundred and one places of more or less interest. We are within a mile of the coast and on a clear day can see the coast of France and if unusually calm can hear the roar of the big guns as they pound away at one another.

The firing line is so close at hand that soldiers crossing the channel early in the morning often return in the evening of the same day wounded, and others never return. I met and talked with several fellows back from the front suffering from gas poisoning, and believe me they are not at all anxious to return. A big aeroplane base is located near here and not a day passes without seeing a few of them flying over our heads, some near the ground and others so high as scarcely to be seen.

CURT REPLY GIVEN TO THE HIGHEST WAR LORD

French Sergeant, a Prisoner, Told Kaiser, to Face, What He Thought

Paris, July 23—Albert Aveline, a member of the Paris Opera Company, has just returned from Germany, having been taken prisoner while acting as a stretcher-bearer. He tells of a colloquy which he says occurred between Emperor Wilhelm and a captured French sergeant. Perceiving the number of the sergeant's regiment on his collar, the Emperor, praised the regiment, saying: "I know it very well and I think most highly of it."

"Not more than I do," replied the sergeant.

The Emperor then asked what the sergeant thought of the food supplied to the prisoners.

"We are given absolutely unclean stuff at present," the sergeant responded. "Lester on a suppose William II. will give us nothing but bricks."

The Emperor's suite, was horrified at this remark, but the Emperor, unperturbed, passed on.

Captured German Gun at Toronto Ex.

TORONTO, July 23—Some idea of the dimensions and destructive power of the captured German gun which the British War office is loaning to the Fair as part of the war trophy may be gleaned from the fact that for purposes of crating, a box 16 feet long, 9 feet high and 8 feet wide was required. This is just about the dimensions of the modern sized room of the average dwelling.

The Exhibition's representative in England in sending along the information that the gun is now on its way to Toronto writes that "of the hundreds of guns in possession of the British this is the only one that is complete." When unlimbered, he says "it will take up one whole side of your exhibit."

The terrible Krupp engine of destruction will be shown complete with carriage, limbers, wheels, breech block, sights, covers, ammunition wagons, cases, poles, etc.

After that awful three days' fight at Ypres on April 22, 23 and 24, the 48th Highlanders of Toronto had only one drum left and the head of that was riddled with bullets and shrapnel. The shot torn skin has been received at the Exhibition offices and is a most interesting relic. Traced in pencil and ink is a complete record of its movements of the Killed Regiment from the time they first went into training at Long Branch until the bloody engagement at Ypres, St. Julien and Laegermark, the continuity of the story being interrupted here and there by great ugly holes where the shrapnel and other death dealing missiles went through.

FRENCH PREPARE FOR 18 MONTHS

Meat Contract Until End of Next Year "Or Till End of War"

PARIS, July 23.—The purchase for the French army of 120,000 tons of refrigerated meat annually until the end of the war, or until Dec. 31, 1918, has been agreed upon by Minister of Agriculture, David, and Eugene Maulever, head of the army administration. Companies doing business with the Government will be permitted to import their products duty free.

Departmental Examinations

The results of the departmental examinations are announced. The certificates of successful candidates and the statements of marks of those who failed that have not already been mailed to Principals or inspectors will be sent in the course of a few days.

LOWER SCHOOL

The candidates named below, under counties, have passed the Lower School examination for entrance into the Normal Schools and faculties of education.

A candidate after whose name a subject is indicated in brackets is required to re-write said subject with another departmental examination for which he is eligible, and which he requires to take.

They have even so early in life appeared in the Juvenile Court, Toronto.

LAI'D TO REST

The funeral of the late Samuel Nelson Douglass, late postmaster at Corbyville took place on Thursday afternoon from his late residence, where the Rev. M. E. Wilson, conducted service, to Elmwood cemetery where the interment was made. The remains of the deceased were followed to the grave by a large cortege of citizens and many flowers bore testimony to the high esteem in which he was held. The bearers were Messrs. F. Reed, J. W. Reed, Joseph Brenton, James Brenton, H. Hicks and W. C. Farley.

Boys at Shorncliffe Can Hear Roar of the Guns

Mrs. Clarence Ramsey, College St. has received the following interesting letter from her husband, Pte. Clarence Ramsey, who left with the 39th Battalion for Shorncliffe a month ago.

Folkestone, July 7, 1915.
Dear Wife and Mother—
I am writing to let you know I arrived safe and had a fine voyage. During the eleven days we were on the boat we saw whales and icebergs after we got on the ocean. Plymouth has some lovely scenery.

We are only sixty miles from London and were on the train eight hours coming from Plymouth to Shorncliffe. The firing line is fifty miles from us, and we can see the flash of the guns and hear the cannon's roar. Airships are flying over us almost continually. Bert Tepp and I are going to get a pass and go up to London. I saw Joe Belch and Larry Hagerman and they expect to carry for the front soon. We went up a high hill which was formed of chalk and we had to rest three times going up. From the top, we could see over Folkestone and Shorncliffe, the Channel and France. The boys are having a good time but think of home also, M. included.

Well I must close with love to all from, Clarence Ramsey.

USING AEROPLANES TO TAKE OUT ALIENS

German Officer Living Near Montreal Vanishes Over Night.

MONTREAL, July 23—The disappearance of a German officer who resided at Chateauguay, coupled with the appearance over that town on Tuesday night of an aeroplane has given rise to the theory that the airship method is being used to spirit alien enemies out of the country. The German officer is said to have made his will on Tuesday and to have stated that he was going to New York. When it was pointed out that the last train had gone the officer said: "Nevertheless, I shall go."

The officer was not in Chateauguay to-day.

A number of Chateauguay residents say the aeroplane sighted in a field and then rose again and flew away.

Other reports received in Montreal, quote people as contradicting that aeroplanes have been seen in Montreal and near the Vickers plant during the past two nights.

It is believed by some militia officers here that the aeroplanes have been making reconnaissances with the object of learning their way over this district and that one plane is to drop bombs on the boats and locks so as to put them out of commission when the western harvest starts to come down. This would be at a time when closing the canals or locks for a week or so would mean an enormous amount of wheat and delay in getting out the damage.

Masonic Grand Lodge

At the Masonic Grand Lodge at Hamilton Lt-Col W. N. Ponton was appointed to the Board of General Purposes.

Col. Poston and W. H. Wardrop, K.C. of Hamilton, had a spirited contest for Deputy Grand Master and Mr. Wardrop won out in the final vote. The officers are as follows—

WAR IS THE CURE RATHER THAN CAUSE OF HARD TIMES

Belleveille District Bound to be Prosperous--Depression That Exists Only in the Mind--A War-Time Contest--Today's Vote in the Grand Campaign.

Some of the canvassers, and particularly in the rural districts, inform us that their appeals for subscriptions are often turned down because of the plea of hard times and the war.

We thought it was pretty well understood by this time that the war came to us as a life-saver as far as concerns hard times. Had it not been for the war Canada would probably have passed through a period of almost unprecedented financial stress, due to over speculation and to unemployment. But the war came along just in time to keep certain industries going, to relieve unemployment, and to create an era of high prices.

There is a sort of psychological depression in certain sections of the Belleveille district. That is to say the depression exists only in the minds of the people.

In the face of the crops that are abundant beyond all previous records the prices for cheese that have reached unknown high levels, the values for almost all other farm products more remunerative than they have been for years, rich pasturage and all that that means to the dairyman, the farmer ought this year to be the happiest and most prosperous individual on earth.

The farmer who talks hard times in this year of abundance and high prices must surely be a humorist.

And this rural prosperity cannot fail sooner or later to be reflected in the city. The money that flows into the farmers' coffers will eventually find its way back into the channels of trade, and general prosperity will result. This is inevitable.

We need a little more of Mary Baker Eddy's philosophy just now--believe that depression does not exist and it is gone. It is all an unhealthy state of mind. We need the enlarged outlook, the spectacles of the optimist. Therefore, candidates in our Great Contest, everywhere that you go preach the gospel of optimism. Spread the glad tidings of returning good times. Enthusiasm the others with some of your own enthusiasm.

If any one speaks of the impropriety of a newspaper contest during the time of war, ask him why not?

The war should not be the occasion for a newspaper to close its doors. Neither is there any greater impropriety in a newspaper extending its business or circulation during a war period than at any other time. "Business as usual," or "Business better than usual," should be the motto.

People require a newspaper more during the war period than at any other time. The Ontario at great cost provides its readers with a daily telegraph service giving all the latest news from the seat of war.

Today's report is not quite so good as Thursday's, many of the workers holding coupons will report on Monday when the date of expiration falls due.

We regret that so many of the contestants still too largely adhere to the policy of collecting coupons and are neglecting the immensely easier way of getting votes by getting subscriptions. A little of the effort spent in soliciting subscriptions would have produced better results.

All candidates who desire cuts made should hand in the photos at once or get them taken for us at Clarke's studio. The Ontario pays the cost. The work of canvassing would be greatly facilitated in this way.

Talk about experience being required to secure subscriptions. One young canvasser who never had any experience whatever in work of this kind started out and in a few hours of her first day landed subscriptions enough to count nearly 15,000 votes.

There are a number of changes in the relative positions of the workers today.

SUMMER COMPLAINTS

KILL LITTLE ONES

At the first sign of illness during the hot weather give the little ones Baby's Own Tablets, or in a few hours he may be beyond cure. These Tablets will prevent summer complaints if given occasionally to the well child and will promptly cure these troubles if they come on suddenly. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in every home where there are young children. There is no other medicine as good and the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that they are absolutely safe. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Today's Market

From Saturday's Daily.

The market today was a banquet of berries and currants. Nearly every kind that grows beneath the Ontario sun was sold upon the market square this morning. Raspberries of all varieties, currants, gooseberries, cherries, were most plentiful, but they sold very rapidly.

Black currants brought 15c, red and white currants 5c box; gooseberries three boxes 25c; red raspberries 15c to 11c per box; blueberries 8c per box; cherries four boxes 25c; tomatoes 20c per pound, huckleberries 15c quart.

Beans sold at three quarts for 10c or 5c per quart; potatoes brought 2c per quart.

All kinds of produce were marketed, onions, beets, large cabbages, cucumbers.

Mutton is worth 12 1/2c wholesale and spring lamb 18c to 19c; hogs are quoted at 8.30 to 8.50 per cwt live and 12.00 to 12.50 dressed.

Eggs are down. Wholesalers are paying 19c but the market prices ruled at 21c.

Old hay was offered at $17 to $18 per ton.

Fowl sold at 1.25 per pair and broilers at 80c per pair.

The wool season is about ended--washed being worth 39c and unwashed 28c to 29c.

There is no grain moving. The old crop remains high in price and the new crop will be on the market about the first week in August. This is the earliest harvest here in years.

Charged With Misappropriation

Stanley Hammett, treasurer of N. Toronto Lodge No. 108, B. of R. T., was arrested in Toronto last evening on the charge of having misappropriated certain funds of the society on several occasions. Hammett will be brought here tomorrow.

Too Much Rough Talk in Bars

In police court yesterday afternoon Magistrate Masson in dealing with a tissue of five charges of assault and abusive language alleged to have occurred at a hotel, said that there is too much vile and abusive talk around hotels and in barrooms. He said he had warned some hotel-keepers to exert more control over the language of men in the bar-room. Were cases of this kind brought before him, and convictions made, the offences would be severely dealt with.

Mrs. Fred Stibbard, ne Florence Herrington, 157 Woolfrey, Ave., Toronto, has returned home after visiting friends in Belleveille.

WOUNDED SOLDIERS IN HOSPITALS CRAVE FRUIT

And Other Delicacies Which are Not Available--Miss Morrice in a Letter to Her Brother in This City Describes Hospital Work in the Great Military Hospital at Folkestone.

Miss Jessie Morrice, one of the corps of Volunteer Canadian nurses who recently landed in England, has sent the following realistic description of the scenes she has witnessed at the Folkestone Canadian military hospital to her brother Alex. Morrice, Charlotte St.

In this letter Miss Morrice makes mention of the craving of the wounded and the sick soldiers for fruit and delicacies other than the plain fare served at the hospital.

It seems to us that it would be a most praiseworthy undertaking for someone in Belleveille to institute a movement to provide fresh fruit and such other light foods as invalids need and crave. Any person who has passed through a serious illness will appreciate how important and beneficial a thing it is to give to those in a state of convalescence such a diet as appeals to their reduced condition. Who will set the movement going?

Folkestone, England, June 21st, 1915.

My dear Alex, Am not sure whether or not I have written you since the letter I began on board ship.

As you will possibly know by this time, we reached Plymouth on the harbor on Sunday night, June 13th, anchored all night in the harbor and came up to London the next day.

We were divided into two parties, and sent to two hotels run by the same people and right near the British Museum.

Tuesday a.m. we had to go to the office of the Matron-in-Chief and report and sign more papers.

Our uniforms were found to be not correct, and we were also sent to get new hats, that took all of Tuesday. Some of the nurses were told they were to be sent away on Wed. p.m. At dinner on Tuesday the acting matron told me she thought it possible I also might be sent, but to report to her at 9 a.m. next day. I did so and was then told to report at lunch at 1.15. Then I was told I was to come down in charge of a party of 10 nurses, (that meant nothing but some work and trouble) and to at once take my uniform to be altered. We were not to leave till Thursday. That meant I had to wear service dress and could not go to any place where I'd need to be dressed up at all.

We were sent down here leaving London at 11.15 Thursday morning reaching here at 1.40 and started work on Friday at this hospital.

It is called Moore Barracks, Military Hospital; the place is an old regular army barracks, turned over about a month ago.

If we could only get in touch with a few people who have been wasting time all winter and could get them to send small sums to buy fruit and flowers, especially the fruit. When one thinks of the growing in the hospitals at home, and then see men who have fought all winter in the trenches or those who have just left every comfort at home--see them when not well enough to eat much given a slice of bread and butter and a cup of milk and know they should have fruit etc; they get custard and pudding occasionally, but they need a milk diet.

I must say the men who have been fighting make no complaint, they are glad of a bed and food and care. It is we nurses who feel it knowing a little what they came through and what they should have.

At first the nurses wanted to go at once to France, now we feel how much wiser to be here for a while.

We could not bear it to get at once in touch with the horrors of war. Now when men come in with wounds healed, with nerves all shattered, with stories of their friends who fought and died or are prisoners, when we see young men with grey hair, boys of 17 with a leg off, one of 23 in my ward who since April has been suffering from gas, he is partly deaf, his throat is still sore, he is still spitting blood, and can take very little food even milk.

Then have a boy or man come with glee and a letter in his hand unopened, saying a letter from home sister--and then come back telling you it is news of another brother dead in the trenches. We go around all day with such a burden of grief, that it seems we could not possibly bear anything more.

Do not think the men are unhappy, they laugh and sing and joke, smile when we go to them, share their joys and sorrows with us, and make us long for millions to be able to give them what we would, when we are the only women here who have a real personal interest in them.

And then for us to be told a nurse may not speak to a private or a non-com, only the officers, and the nurses have brothers, cousins, personal friends in the ranks, and we are all there on this side of the ocean.

When they frankly say we will never go back, when an officer calmly says--the average life of a Lieutenant is 17 days--when this place is filled, and over-flowing and there are hundreds of hospitals like it, it is better to face this before we get to the awful horror of it all.

Folkestone is 2 1/2 hours journey from London, is just across from France and about 60 miles from the firing line. A great many of the troops land here on their return, and all the Canadians are in this vicinity Shorncliffe Camp being their headquarters.

We stay at the hotel as yet, but we or the nurses, will be moved out near the hospital at Moore Barracks as soon as it is in condition for us to live there.

Thursday a.m. got up to finish this as mail goes out today. You will be pleased when I tell you I received your letter yesterday. The first home letter since I came to England.

One of the boys said yesterday, sister is it not strange, you sit down to write a letter home and have so much to say and when you finish you did not say it all. That is the way I feel.

Ten of the 50 nurses sent same down here yesterday. We had not time to rest at all in London. But they needed help here badly. Four hundred cases in hospital and only twenty-six nurses. The nurses have only been here 3 weeks and things were in pretty bad shape when they came. The men had been here for a long time with just orderlies and the place had been an old regular barracks. They are one story brick some here for quite a while, and one in our ward who was as Ypres, he was an ambulance corps man and got transferred to the fighting line; was the only Toronto man left in his company.

He's down with enteric and its after effects. It is impossible to write. I do not know where to begin. Jessie.

Remains Brought From Napanee

The remains of the late Isaac Lockwood, an aged man, arrived today from Napanee and were laid to rest in the Chisholm plot in Belleveille cemetery.

Cheese Market

From Saturday's Daily. Cheese sold today on Belleveille Board for 13.3c. Two thousand boxes were offered and all sold.

Axle Snapped Off

Last evening about ten o'clock while driving up Front street, Mr. Harold Davis met with a slight accident to his car. The left rear axle snapped in the wheel and let the left side of the car drop, while the wheel went spinning to the side of the roadway. The car was taken to Riggs' garage for repairs.

FIVE SAILINGS WEEKLY--PORT McNICOLL TO SAULT STE. MARIE AND FORT WILLIAM

Canadian Pacific Palatial Great Lakes Steamships leave Port McNicoll Mondays, Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays for Sault Ste. Marie, Port Arthur and Fort William. Steamship Express making direct connection leaves Toronto 12.45 p.m.

Particulars from Canadian Pacific Ticket agents, or write M. G. Murphy, District Passenger Agent, Toronto.

Most infants are interster by worms, which cause great suffering, and if not promptly dealt with may cause constitutional weaknesses difficult to remedy. Miller's Worm Powders will clear the stomach and bowels of worms and will so act upon the system that there will be no recurrence of the trouble. And not only this, but they will repair the injuries to the organs that worms cause and restore them to soundness.

The Two Piece Suit

This is the time of year when a man wants to wear as little as possible. If you wear one of our cool Two-Piece Suits, it's certain you won't "wear a worried look."

But there are two considerations in a Two-Piece Suit which call for the most competent tailoring. In the first place, the coat must be so tailored as to obviate the need of a vest. In the second place, as the fabrics are extremely light in weight, the tailoring must be done with the greatest skill.

Fabrics of carefully selected Sun-Proof Serges, Worsteds, Homespuns, etc., etc.

If you'll step in and try on one of these cool Suits and then take a look in the mirror, you'll be surprised to see what a swell and comfortable looking fellow you are.

We've everything in wearables for a man's summer comfort.

THE MOST INTERESTING AND EXCITING PERIOD IN THE GREAT CAMPAIGN NOW APPROACHES

Easier Now to Secure Subscriptions—Knock the Knockers—Honorable Business and Honorable Methods—Look at the Bright Side.

The Ontario's Great Panama-Pacific contest is now rapidly approaching its most exciting period. Interest is already at fever heat in many sections. Nearly all the candidates realize that one of the Grand Tours is now within their grasp, and that it is a question of results the next few days whether any candidate is a winner or not.

The contestants are only now beginning to understand properly how stupendous an offer The Ontario has made, and how desirable and valuable are the magnificent tours offered to the workers.

Tell your friends about your success and where you stand now in the great contest and enlist their support. They can and most of them will help you.

Subscriptions now Come Easier.

It is far easier to secure subscriptions now than it was even a week ago. That is the unanimous opinion of the great majority of the candidates who are actively working.

The spirit of rivalry is extending to the people themselves and they too are beginning to realize what a marvellous offer The Ontario has made.

The candidates who expect to win must be up and doing their best for the next few days and work as they never worked before. Remember, the winners in each district must have votes instead of promises.

Why not the Ontario?

The friends of all the candidates take some paper, why not the Ontario? Whatever paper they take they must pay for some time. By taking the Ontario during the campaign and paying for it in advance they will not be bothered having to pay the newsboy for it every week. And when they help some hard-working candidate with a subscription, they may be responsible for that candidate winning the first greatest victory in their life.

It is not the money value of the tours that all the candidates are working for. It is the honor and distinction of being first in their district, and to demonstrate that one has loyal friends and the personal energy to win the foremost place in this great competition.

Don't Listen to Knockers.

Don't listen to the person who comes up and tells you that some other candidate has hundreds of thousands of votes in reserve. Don't pay any attention to the stories that are brought to you, if you expect to win one of the Grand Tours. In a proposition of this kind there are always plenty of people who are always trying to discourage the person who is trying to promote what is nothing more nor less than a straight business proposition.

Why do these people do it? Why do they tell you that a newspaper has no right to put on a voting contest during the time of war? Why do they try to make out to you that some one else is sure to come ahead of you in the end?

Look at the matter in a straight business-like way. Has a newspaper no right to try to extend its circulation because a war is being waged? Is it because these people feel that you are not able to look after yourself and need their assistance? Is it from experience that they speak? Have they ever taken such an interest in you before?

Every fair-minded candidate will ascertain that every knocker has some grudge or some axe to grind.

Honorable Business.

The business of securing subscriptions for a newspaper is just as honorable as measuring goods over a counter or counting other people's money in a bank.

The principal involved in a voting contest is exactly the same as that upon which prizes are given at an agricultural fair. At a fair two or three win prizes while a dozen may lose. In our Panama-Pacific contest we go a degree better than a fair-board for there are no losers in our contest. Those who do not win a prize are paid a cash commission. The person who pays a subscription to a candidate does not place the candidate under any obligation. There is a fair exchange of values. The man pays the regular subscription price to the candidate and receives the paper in exchange. The transaction is perfectly business-like, honorable and straightforward.

Look on the Bright Side.

Look on the bright side of things. Go out tomorrow morning determined to win. Talk about the splendid crops, the recent showers, the better business outlook. Conditions are bound to be good in Belleville district notwithstanding the war.

Determine to win, no matter who says you cannot. It is the thing that looks impossible that stirs the virile young Canadian blood.

If the winning of one of our Grand Tours were such an easy matter we would not have such a high class of candidates.

Make up your mind to win and you will win. But it is better to fail after trying, than not to try at all.

G.T.R. PICNIC WAS MOST SUCCESSFUL

Games, Water Sports, Baseball, Dancing and Social Enjoyments Made Annual Railway Holiday one to be Remembered

(From Thursday's Daily.)

A motley crowd gathered at Massena Park yesterday for the annual Grand Trunk picnic. The "Brookville" and "Say When" had been chartered for the day. The boats were crowded on the occasion of every trip from nine in the morning until evening.

The day was ideal on the grounds, except for a downpour of rain which lasted in the afternoon for an hour or more. All activity on the grounds ceased during the rainfall. The sun came out strong about 4:30 and the grass and ground drying up quickly. The enjoyments of the outing were resumed.

The proceeds from the picnic this year go to the Women's Branch of Patriotic Society of the G.T.R.

Dancing was indulged in during the entire day. A large revenue was derived from the sale of badges permitting dancing in the pavilion. These brought 25c each.

In the afternoon a series of games were run off for the children, young people and older people. The water-sports were much enjoyed. The baby competition was closely contested. This was featured on the verandah of the hotel.

Throwing a baseball through a hole in a screen was the new game in which the young ladies indulged.

Baseball.

The baseball match between the G. T. R. Belleville and the G.T.R. Toronto was interrupted by the rain, but when the sky cleared, the players came out and played an excellent brand of the national game. Belleville G.T.R. team defeated the visiting Toronto brethren of the mogul by the score of 4-1. Toronto indeed did not get a man to first base until the eighth innings. The standard of ball exhibited was a high one for Toronto while only scoring one run, still held the locals down.

H. Tugnut Had His Nose Broken
Harry Tugnut, a boy, who lives with his mother, Mrs. Wm. Tugnut, corner of Catherine and Wickett Sts. had the misfortune yesterday afternoon of having his nose broken. The accident happened on the baseball diamond at Massena Park. A thrown ball struck the lad full in the face. Blood poured from the upper part of the nose. He was given first aid on the grounds and sent to Belleville by boat at once. From the Belleville wharf he was removed to the General Hospital where the fracture was set by a physician. He will be unable to leave the hospital for over a week.

MANY VOLUNTEERS FOR 8TH C. M. R.

Fifteen For 8th Rifles and Seven For Base Battalion Left Belleville This Morning

Twenty-two recruits left Belleville for Kingston this morning to join the 59th Battalion and the 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles. Fifteen of these are for the 8th C.M.R. The 49th Regiment contributed ten men and the Fifteenth twelve men to the detachment as follows—

15th REGT. VOLUNTEERS

Arthur J. Stewart, 8th C.M.R.
Piper D. McIntosh, 8th C.M.R.
E. J. S. Wallworth, 8th C.M.R. or artillery.

Arthur J. Stewart who left for Barriefield this morning is the 7th member of the Belleville Rifle Club to volunteer within the past two weeks. Arthur is one of the crack shots of the club and was the winner of the Dominion Government's Silver Plate—a valuable trophy for the season's competition.

Piper D. McIntosh of the Johnstone Pipe Band will be much missed in Belleville. His ambition is to get to the front as piper.

Every branch of war activity to be vividly portrayed at Toronto Fair.

Every branch of war activity to be seen in Europe today will be vividly portrayed at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto. Aeroplanes will land at the Military Camp after taking observations in mid-air; miniature battleships will be blown up in the lake; there will be bridge and sheltered trench building, armored cars, hospital autos, field ambulances with stretcher bearer sections, field dressing stations, field bakeries and cookeries, ammunition columns, bomb throwers, signal corps, observation posts, etc. The camp will be occupied by several hundred officers and men now training for overseas service at Niagara and other camps for the infantry, cavalry and artillery units.

Some young men in the city are willing to go to the front. The only drawback is the condition of their teeth. The authorities would accept them if the teeth were put in a satisfactory condition. But some of those who are willing to go have not the money for dental work and it has been suggested that a small fund be raised for that purpose. One possible recruit says he would go if he could find any one to pay for the necessary work on his teeth.

TO CONTEST WORKERS.
Note change in date of Voting Coupon. Time limit for handing in coupons expires at 6 p.m. Aug. 2nd.

Military Notes

A suggestion is being made that a number of the young men in this city or others for that matter, contribute to a fund for the purpose of providing a machine gun for the use of the Canadian troops. One of these weapons costs from $700 to $1000 and will do the work of fifty men.

MARRIED

SPANGENBERG—ELVINS
At Belleville, Wednesday, July 21st, 1915, Gertrude, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Elvins, Herkimer Ave., to Mr. Frederick Geo. Spangenberg, of Toronto, Rev. E. C. Currie, pastor John Street Presbyterian Church officiated.

Deaths

(From Thursday's Daily)
Miss Gellina Rhodes passed away yesterday at the House of Refuge after seven years' residence. She was 94 years of age and came from Tyendinaga. The remains were removed to Shannonville for interment.
William Scott aged 82 years passed away in Thurlow yesterday afternoon. His home was in Dunganon.

The Midway at Toronto

There will be no freaks on the Midway at the Canadian National Exhibition this year, but the carnival world has been scoured for attractions and "The Pike" should be livelier than ever. A Wild West Show and a water circus including log rolling, diving Venues, trick canoeing, etc., Streets of Cairo, the Hippodrome and a dozen other thrillers are among the features.

These Pills Cure Rheumatism.—To the many who suffer from rheumatism a trial of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills is recommended. They have pronounced action upon the liver and kidneys and by regulating the action of these organs act as an alternative in preventing the admixture of uric acid and blood that causes this painful disorder. They must be taken according to directions and used steadily and they will speedily give evidence of their beneficial effects.

Government Dredge No. 105 is in the harbor today. It is on its way to Ottawa for repairs.
The tug "Sir John" is in the harbor
The dredging around the new government dock here will begin this week. The Randolph Macdonald Co. has the contract.

LIEUT. DR. M'COLLOCH WITH B.A.M.C.

Popular Physician Remembered by Medical Fraternity and Church Societies

Lieut. R. J. P. McCulloch, physician of this city has gone to join the British Army Medical Corps and expects to reach the front, where he will carry on his work of mercy in the hospitals.

Lieut. Dr. McCulloch was kindly remembered by his medical associates on the eve of his departure on active service. The physicians of Belleville presented him with a number of useful gifts including gold and badge him Godspeed.

As the doctor has been a most active worker among the young men of the city, particularly in Bridge St. Methodist Sunday School and the Y.M.C.A., he was not allowed to leave before Bridge Street Sunday School and his young men's Bible class, known as the "Byar-Readers" had in some manner manifested their appreciation of his work in Belleville and their hopes for beneficent service and a safe return. A handsome wrist watch was the gift of the school, while the class also honored him in no uncertain way.

FAMINE AND TERROR REIGN AT TRIESTE

Advance of Conquering Italians Causes Inhabitants to Vagrite City.

ZURICH, July 22.—Refugees from Trieste state that the city is in a terrible state of terror and that famine reigns. Supplies of vegetables and provisions brought in daily by peasants constitute the sole resources of the population, as all stocks of provisions have been seized by the military authorities. These are now seized at the gates of the city, where supplies are brought by the peasants. The starving population is now given daily a ration of flour and a little fruit. All the civil authorities have abandoned the city on account of the attacks by an Italian aeroplane. The military authorities have ordered the workmen's quarters of San Diago and Servola to be evacuated by their inhabitants.

The thunder of Italian guns can be heard day and night. Fears are felt that the Austrians may destroy the city rather than allow the Italians to capture it.

TELLS GERMANY TO STOP PIRACY

Final Note of President Wilson States More Outrages Will be 'Unfriendly.'

WASHINGTON, JULY 22.—President Wilson and Secretary Lansing, conferring at the White House last night, completed the new note to Germany, warning her that the repetition of a disaster such as that visited upon the Lusitania, or any violation of American rights on the high seas resulting in loss of Americans' lives, would be regarded as "unfriendly." It will be despatched today.

The note is in the nature of a final statement by the United States of the interpretation that will be placed by this government on future transgressions of American rights, and repeats that the American Government will leave nothing undone to stand by the position it has previously declared.

Among the points in the new note are: "The assumption by the United States that Germany, by declaring her submarine warfare to be a retaliatory measure against the alleged unlawful acts of her enemies, has admitted that the destruction of unresisting merchantmen without warning is illegal.

"German submarine commanders have already proved that they can save the passengers and crews of vessels and can act in conformity with the laws of humanity in making war on enemy ships.

"The United States cannot allow the relations between the belligerents to operate in any way as an abbreviation of the rights of neutrals, and, therefore, any violation of the principles for which the American Government contends, resulting in a loss of American lives, will be viewed as "unfriendly."

"The representations which the American Government has made in previous notes for disavowal of the intention to sink the Lusitania, with Americans aboard, and the request for reparation, are repeated with renewed insistence.

"The proposals made by Germany to give immunity to American ships not carrying contraband, and to four belligerent ships under the American flag, are rejected with the emphatic assertion that to agree to such a suggestion would be to admit Germany's right to set aside the American conviction based on fundamental principles in international law—that neutrals may travel anywhere on the high seas on unresisting ships of any nationality, even if carrying contraband."

The note is about 1200 words long. While nowhere in it is there any direct intimation of the course which the United States will pursue in the event of another disaster similar to the Lusitania tragedy, there are emphatic statements throughout the communication pointing out that the discussion of the principles involved has been virtually concluded, and that future conduct of German submarine commanders will determine the responsibility for the continuance of friendly relations between the two countries.

COL. ROOSEVELT SPEAKS FOR WAR AT FRANCISCO

Condemns Molly-Coddles Who Are Not Prepared to Help Country.

San Francisco, Cal., July 22.—This is "Roosevelt Day" at the Panama-Pacific Exposition. Theo. Roosevelt former President of the United States is on the programme to make two addresses, and be the guest of honor at a reception.

Mr. Roosevelt's first address of the day is for the members of the army and navy. His second address was to be on "War and Peace," which he said on arriving here last night, might just as well be called "Damn the Mollycoddles."

GLEEVER CANADIAN CAUGHT SPY

Pretended to be Friendly, Leading the German to Talk Too Much.

LONDON, July 22.—Thanks to the smartness of a Canadian soldier, a German spy has been discovered and sentenced by a British Magistrate to six months hard labor. Carl Amundus, a native of Hamburg, was charged with failing to register himself as an alien and with attempting to elicit information regarding the movements of troops.

Lance-Corporal B. Stanley, Canadian, told the court that he met Amundus at Bristol and after some conversation, Amundus said, "I am sorry to see you in that uniform. Germans are sure to win in the end." Stanley encouraged him to talk and Amundus added that he was born in Hamburg; that he was a German officer; that he had sent two messages containing information to Germany by way of the United States and Norway; and that since his letter had gone 6 ships had been torpedoed.

To lead him on, Stanley asked if there was anything he could do for Germany. In reply Amundus said that information as to the date when troopships left would help and the number of drafts going to the front from camp would also be useful. Stanley then communicated with the police and had him arrested.

Pierce Austrian Front on Isonzo

Italian Troops Break Through at Tolmino, St. Lucas and St. Avre.

GENEVA, Switzerland, July 22.—A despatch to The Tribune from Villach gives the following:

"The Austrian losses since July 18 along the Isonzo have been 8000, of whom 1100 are prisoners. On the Cadore front 1800 prisoners have been taken, and in the Carnic Alps, 2300.

"The Austrian front on the Isonzo has been pierced at three points—Tolmino, St. Lucas and St. Avre. "The Italians continue to progress in Val Sugana.

"With the aid of aeroplanes, the Italians located several Austrian batteries near Rovereto and succeeded in destroying them.

"The provisioning of Goritz is becoming a serious problem, as the Italian artillery dominates the line north of the town. Previously four trains arrived daily. Now there is only one, which comes in at night.

"The Italians are consolidating the position they won on the Carso plateau."

COMMANDER HORTON WAS LUCKY MAN

Had the Good Fortune to "Bag" His Second German War Vessel.

LONDON, July 22.—To Commander Max Horton falls the credit of having sunk the German battleship which was torpedoed in the Baltic on July 2 by a British submarine. Thomas McNamara, Financial Secretary of the Admiralty, informed the House of Commons today that a communication to this effect had been from the Russian Government. The German battleship which was sunk is believed to have been the Pommern. Commander Horton previously was in command of the submarine which sank a German destroyer off the mouth of the Ems last October.

READY FOR THE CROWN PRINCE

First Division is in the Trenches Again "Ready for Anything," After Period of Rest—Officers are Having Leave.

LONDON, July 22.—The German Crown Prince has no terrors for the Canadian Division. A lengthy period of comparative rest has done wonders for the men. When the Division is reinforced to full strength it will be ready for anything, offensive or defensive.

An officer, writing to a friend, says "We are in very good trenches and things are quiet, so really it is rather pleasant as the weather is quite fine. We hear rumors about the Crown Prince's dash for Calais. We really are eagerly waiting for his coming. We have a good position to defend and have nothing to fear.

"After quite an easy, slack time things are quite war-like once more. I have just come in, for a change, to my palatial dug-out, as I got weary walking up and down the trenches. We had our first issue of rum in three weeks today, so am feeling a bit bucked up.

"Unfortunately we lost a splendid officer a few days ago. He was shot by a German sniper. Orders strictly prohibit the mention of any names: We have started to get leave now and a few have already been away. Col. — (deleted) has had his men looking much better for it. With a bit of luck I hope to get mine soon."

ALBERTA VOTES TWO TO ONE TO BANISH LIQUOR

Thirty-Nine Thousand For, Twenty-Nine Against, Prohibition.

EDMONTON, Alta., July 22.—By a majority that will run about two to one the province of Alberta, in a plebiscite vote under the new Direct Legislation Act, today pronounced in favor of the proposed liquor act prohibiting the sale of liquor throughout the province. Returns received up to 10 o'clock last night showed 39,020 in favor, and 20,104 against, with half the polls heard from.

The biggest majorities in favor of the prohibition were piled up in the country districts in the southern parts of the province, while in some of the northern constituencies, where liquor is now partially barred, the majorities were against prohibition.

All the cities, with the exception of Lethbridge, went dry, Edmonton showing a majority of 3800 and Calgary about 3300.

The new liquor prohibition act goes into effect July 1916.

Britain to Celebrate Declaration of War

LONDON, July 22.—It is announced that the King and all the leaders of the nation will attend St. Paul's Cathedral on August 4, the anniversary of the declaration of war, to inaugurate the second year of the war by invoking God's help.

Turks to Open Peace Negotiations

GENEVA, July 22.—Nedjemken Effendi, the Turkish Minister of Justice, accompanied by Fassung Effendi, are expected here today from Vienna for the purpose it is reported of opening separate peace negotiations with the Triple Entente. It is stated that the delegates are invested with official powers.

Russians Confident of Final Victory

MOSCOW, July 22.—Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian Commander-in-Chief, received a deputation representing the municipality here today. He spoke enthusiastically of the spirit of the Russian soldiers, all of whom, he said, were confident of final and complete victory.

A Commission appointed to investigate charges of inhumane methods on the part of the Germans made a report today that they had employed shells with cast iron tips, which were filled with prussic acid.

CHILDREN FOUND BABY IN SUIT CASE

Day-Old Infant, Well and Strong, and Now in Hands of Police Matron.

MONTREAL, July 22.—Children playing in a vacant lot off St. Lawrence boulevard yesterday found a live baby in a suit case. The children brought the suit case home and on being opened was found to contain the young infant. Though the child was only a day or two old, it is thought it will survive as it has shown remarkable vitality. The infant was taken to the matron in the Central Police Station.

German Unrest Grows Peace Strongly Urged

War Weariness Becoming Strikingly Evident, Especially Among Poorer Classes, Says Message Which Passed Censor.

STOCKHOLM, July 21.—A private message to The Stockholm Tidningen from Berlin, which curiously enough passed the censor, states that war weariness in Germany is becoming strongly evident in wide circles of population, and especially amongst the poorer classes. Great excitement prevails, and a proclamation of a state of siege is expected.

The Daily Nibeiter comments on this, saying that even if it is exaggerated one thing is certain, that among the whole German population longing for peace is strongly felt.

GERMANY FEELS PINCH.
AMSTREDAM, July 22.—We learn here that Germany is suffering a severe cotton famine. The factories are closed and the unmarried employees have been sent to work in the mines.

Men's $20 Suits For $15

the face of the heavy advance in all lines of cloth, the above sounds strange, don't it?

BUT—the most people this season are buying $15.00, not $20.00 suits—and we have a lot of money locked up in this better line.

These lines are broken in sizes, but we have your size in some of them.

STR. EASTLAND CAPSIZES AND MANY LOST

Terrible Disaster in Chicago River This Morning—Said to Have Been Overloaded.

CHICAGO, July 24.—From 75 to 300 persons are believed to have been drowned by the capsizing of the steamer Eastland at her dock in the Chicago River this morning. The steamer had been chartered for the day by the Western Electric Co. employees who had planned an excursion to Michigan City, Ind. It is said 2500 persons had been crowded aboard shortly before eight o'clock the hour it was to leave, when the boat slowly listed toward the middle of the river, the officers shouted warnings but it was too late. The heavily loaded steamer continued to roll on till the hawsers which held it to the dock snapped. A moment later amid the screams of passengers, the steamer turned over on its side and floated out into the middle of the river. Apparently scores of women and children in the cabin were drowned without a chance to escape. Hundreds of other passengers were able to climb on the side of the boat which is above water and were taken off later by rescuers.

Cooking Lessons for Tommy Atkins

LONDON, July 24.—Next week will see an innovation in the British military methods—the recognition of women to the extent of giving them the rank of non-commissioned officers. Some hundreds of London school teachers whose speciality is instruction in domestic arts are going to spend their holidays in giving cooking lessons in the camps of Britain's new armies. These women will be given the temporary rank of Corporals and Sergeants. Their initiative is taken as the result of reports of waste in the camps. The War Office has arranged for one hundred to begin work next week, and if the results are good the scheme will be largely extended.

Punish a Workman for Writing a Letter

PARIS, July 24.—The Geneva, Switzerland, correspondent of the Havas Agency sends the following: "The Criminal Court at Constance (Germany) sentenced a factory workman named Radolfzell, nineteen years old, to three weeks in prison for giving 'false' information concerning the economic situation in Germany in a letter to his parents in the United States."

Married

PARSONS — BARNUM—At Bridge St. Methodist Church, parsonage, on Wednesday, July 21st, 1915, by Rev. H. S. Osborne, Mr. Frank Parsons, son of Mr. George Parsons of Trenton and Miss Mary Ella Barnum, daughter of Mr. Samuel Barnum of Belleville. They will reside in Belleville for the present.

OVER NINE HUNDRED MEN ELIGIBLE FOR ENLISTMENT IN CITY OF BELLEVILLE

Says Mr. E. Guss Porter Last Evening—Grand Gathering of Committees and Ward Workers at Armouries—Arrangements Made For War Meetings—Inspiring Addresses.

The public meeting to stimulate recruiting which was held last evening in the armouries lecture hall was a very large and enthusiastic one. Nearly one hundred and fifty workers in the cause and young men ready to enlist were present. Mr. E. Guss Porter, K.C., M.P., presided. The president explained the purpose of the meeting, which was to organize the wards of the city. It has been felt that Belleville was not doing all that was necessary. "It has never been believed that the young men of Belleville were cowards, or that they were afraid to enlist or unwilling to volunteer but it has been felt that the necessities of the occasion have not been brought home to the young men for enlistment in the cause of the integrity and safety of the Empire"

The letter carriers of Belleville had asked to provide a list of the eligible young men or married men who could answer the recruiting requirements on the various letter routes of the city. "I have been furnished with these lists. I am very glad the letter carriers have taken such an interest in the work. These lists give the names of men, their street numbers, whether married or single and contain the names of over 900 men in the City of Belleville capable of performing this service."

"There are 900 men upon whom the committees may operate and with whom they may use their best endeavors to persuade them to go and serve their country." (Cheers.) It is proposed to hold a public meeting in each ward and confine that meeting to the ward as much as possible and then get that ward to work. Speakers and workers will be provided.

Then when all the wards are organized it is proposed to hold a grand rally and public meeting of citizens, the committees and recruits, on which occasion prominent speakers will deliver addresses. By this way we hope to show such a result in recruiting in Belleville that we will show the rest of Ontario what we can do.

Mr. W. B. Northrup, K.C., M.P., referred to the patriotic meeting in Kingston and gave some reasons why Canadians should enlist. The Germans had planned the war for about 1920 but a set of circumstances arose to convince them that 1914 was the opportune time. There never was such a delightful looking expedition laid out before a nation as Germany laid before her people. At this time Canada should come and by her united effort prove to the German states the fruitlessness of the war for Germany. "We must rise to the occasion and be called the lowest meanest people on the face of the earth" The meeting then resolved itself into ward committees for organization purposes

KINGSTON WILL DONATE MORE THAN FOUR MACHINE GUNS

Patriotic Merchants Have United Together and Will Equip the Fifty-Ninth.

KINGSTON, Ont., July 24.—It is predicted that four machine guns will be secured for the 59th Battalion and probably this number will be exceeded. Kingston merchants have taken hold of the idea of having the 59th equipped in a way that even the most hopeful never expected. Officers of the 14th Regiment are canvassing their friends, and it is learned that the cost of two guns has already been promised. There is no doubt but that Kingston will be proud of the result of the efforts on the part of the officers. They are greeted on all sides by donations. In every case where a merchant has been approached the amount subscribed has been splendid. The officers are enthusiastic over the work, which they say is a pleasure. The merchants have never responded so generously to any cause. Lieut.-Col. H. J. Dawson, officer commanding the 59th Kingston Battalion, expressed himself as proud of Kingston and the Commercial Travelers' Association members, who were responsible for the magnificent donation Wednesday night. When speaking of the gift he stated that there is nothing which gives as much value for money expended as a machine gun, and he was proud to think that Kingstonians had taken this means of showing their patriotism to the Empire. He remarked: "I was always proud of Kingston, but I am more so now."

Military Notes

All recruits who enlist at Belleville except those for the 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles will according to orders be held here until the mobilization of the 77th Battalion. Where that will take place is not known. It is expected to mobilize within two or three weeks ers with the regiment to which I belong. We have two recruiting stations the 15th and 49th. We do not care which you join. All we want is that you enlist.

"I want to go with the men. My application has been in for some time."

Capt. Dr. A. E. MacColl, medical examiner said, "Like Col. Ketcheson I have offered myself for any position I can fill. The doctor dealt with the height requirement of 5 ft 3 in. "I do not stick to the height if the recruit is well built." Chest, eight, feet, fingers, joints, and so forth were considered.

"I think there are not enough of the Canadian born enlisting. The great majority that have volunteered are Old Country men. For instance from July 1st out of 57 enlisted, only 12 were born in Hastings or Belleville."

Dr. MacColl suggested the publication of a pamphlet explaining what the country was ready to do for soldiers and their dependents in the matter of pay, separation allowances, patriotic fund assistance, and pensions.

"You will have to break down these conditions," he said speaking of a minor's requirement to furnish a certificate of his mother's consent. "This is the reason Canadians are not enlisting." "For the county of Hastings and Belleville I have examined since January 1st nearly 900 men."

Mr. Porter said that certificates and badges would be presented to the men who volunteer and are not accepted. "Those who do not wear the badge or enlist will not be met with the same smile by the citizens. This is an opportunity to serve. Those who do not go will not be able to blot the opinion that they have of themselves or that their neighbors have of them."

Mr. W. B. Northrup, K.C., M.P., referred to the patriotic meeting in Kingston and gave some reasons why Canadians should enlist. The Germans had planned the war for about 1920 but a set of circumstances arose to convince them that 1914 was the opportune time. TO THE STAY-AT-HOMES. You cheer the war of the football field; you root at the game of ball, but your sporting blood runs thin as milk when you hear your country's call. Are you so dull to your country's need or are your hearts afraid. Or do you think that cheers will help when the game of war is played? The game of war is a bloody game, with a heavy toll to pay. Are you content to sit in the stand and watch your fellows play? Are you content to clap your hands, while others bear the brunt. And thank your stars you've jobs at home instead of at the front?

Stand up and show your blood is that which runs in the lion's veins; Get into the game which calls for men with pluck and thews and brains, Lest your girls shall sneer and say, "Give us the men who are not afraid; Our hearts are with the khaki crowd not with the petticoat brigade."

C. Langton Clarke.

We reprint the above from the Toronto Globe. It has the right ring to it and may possibly reach the eye of someone who failed to notice it in the Globe.

Apparently no progress is being made toward the commencement of the new Carnegie Library building. Councillor O'Rourke has been especially active in connection with the resuscitation of the library and has interviewed the Department of Education on several occasions in regard to its affairs. We think it would be a good move to enlighten the public as to the way matters stand at present. We might add, that the winter season is coming on and it is a hardship for the ratepayers to be without reading matter during the long evenings. If we have a Library board in existence it should be heard from promptly.

Judging from the number of useless dogs we come across every day, the town coffers, if the tax has been collected, should be fairly comfortably filled. It was also proposed early in the year to collect poll tax, which, if collected, should also have realized a nice little sum for the use of the corporation.

The Trenton Lacross team were noised out yesterday by Tweed, at Tweed, by one goal, the score being 13-12. We would remind our readers that the firemen will put on an athletic day, in Belleville on July 28th. The Trenton boys are determined to make a big try for the trophy. The Weddell trophy is the finest cup in the district.

From the way many of our merchants are improving their business premises, we are inclined to think that business cannot be bad with them. We believe that there is no such prosperous town today, between Toronto and Montreal as Trenton. Citizens need not be surprised if this year's tax rate is a high one. We notice Belleville strikes a 28 and Lindsay a 37 mill rate.

It is realized in Turkish military circles that command of the inner seas and the Black Sea has been lost to them. The Turks are preparing for another general attack against the British position on Gallipoli.

Busy Trenton THE latest news of the town and surrounding neighborhood is given in an interesting manner.

G. T. R Employees Encouraged to Enlist Up to the 1st of June 802 employees of the Grand Trunk Company have enlisted and are now in active service. The Grand Trunk has been most generous with its employees enlisting, inasmuch as during their period of service in the war the insurance upon each man in the Insurance Branch of the Railway as well as full pay to each man for his first six months, half pay for the next three months and quarter for the following three months is paid by the Railway Company and his position on the railway reserved for him on his return. This is a most commendable action on the part of this Railway Company, both towards its employees and the Empire, and the same treatment is assured to all its employees who may now enlist. The Railway man now enlisting is also entitled to his regular army pay, the separation allowance, if married, for his wife and family and the pension allowances in case of misfortune, thus there is every encouragement apart altogether from his patriotism for Grand Trunk Railway employees to get into the ranks and do his bit.

TO THE STAY-AT-HOMES. You cheer the war of the football field; you root at the game of ball, but your sporting blood runs thin as milk when you hear your country's call. Are you so dull to your country's need or are your hearts afraid. Or do you think that cheers will help when the game of war is played? The game of war is a bloody game, with a heavy toll to pay. Are you content to sit in the stand and watch your fellows play? Are you content to clap your hands, while others bear the brunt. And thank your stars you've jobs at home instead of at the front?

Stand up and show your blood is that which runs in the lion's veins; Get into the game which calls for men with pluck and thews and brains, Lest your girls shall sneer and say, "Give us the men who are not afraid; Our hearts are with the khaki crowd not with the petticoat brigade."

Apparently no progress is being made toward the commencement of the new Carnegie Library building. Councillor O'Rourke has been especially active in connection with the resuscitation of the library and has interviewed the Department of Education on several occasions in regard to its affairs. We think it would be a good move to enlighten the public as to the way matters stand at present. We might add, that the winter season is coming on and it is a hardship for the ratepayers to be without reading matter during the long evenings. If we have a Library board in existence it should be heard from promptly.

Judging from the number of useless dogs we come across every day, the town coffers, if the tax has been collected, should be fairly comfortably filled. It was also proposed early in the year to collect poll tax, which, if collected, should also have realized a nice little sum for the use of the corporation.

The Trenton Lacross team were noised out yesterday by Tweed, at Tweed, by one goal, the score being 13-12. We would remind our readers that the firemen will put on an athletic day, in Belleville on July 28th. The Trenton boys are determined to make a big try for the trophy. The Weddell trophy is the finest cup in the district.

From the way many of our merchants are improving their business premises, we are inclined to think that business cannot be bad with them. We believe that there is no such prosperous town today, between Toronto and Montreal as Trenton. Citizens need not be surprised if this year's tax rate is a high one. We notice Belleville strikes a 28 and Lindsay a 37 mill rate.

It is realized in Turkish military circles that command of the inner seas and the Black Sea has been lost to them. The Turks are preparing for another general attack against the British position on Gallipoli. It will Cure a Cold.—Colds are the commonest ailments of mankind and if neglected may lead to serious conditions. Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil will relieve the bronchial passages of inflammation speedily and thoroughly and will strengthen them against subsequent attack. And as it eases the inflammation it will stop the cough because it always all irritation in the throat. Try it and prove it.

TORIC LENSES There's a lot of difference between Toric Lenses and Flat Lenses besides their slight extra cost. They give you extra vision and extra comfort. They are better-looking, too. Come and see us about Toric Lenses. You who still wear the usual flat style of glasses do not realize your loss in life-enjoyments and business efficiency in doing without the better modern thin Toric Lenses.

U.S. to Ask Germany About the Orduna One American Aboard Declares Sub. Attacked Without Warning.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The United States will make diplomatic inquiries of Germany regarding the attack on the Cunard liner Orduna at a time when she was bringing a score of Americans home. A report of an investigation conducted by Customs Collector Malone at New York, presented today to the State Department, embracing affidavits of officers, crew and passengers on the liner, contains the sworn statement of at least one American passenger that the ship was attacked without warning. All officials refused to discuss the report or its contents, but it is known that the United States probably will ask the Berlin Foreign Office for its version of the affair, and developments will depend on the reply.

Everything Ready Everything is in readiness for the heavy-weight boxing bout that is to take place in the armouries on July 28th between Elias Green and Cleve Hawkins. The interest that is being taken is shown by the sale of reserved seats yesterday, thirty being sold in the afternoon. But the main bout warrants the sale of all the tickets, as these two men are surely the best that ever visited Belleville. Green is one of the cleverest boxers in the ring today. He has two hundred fights to his credit and has never been knocked out and only four decisions given against him on points. Hawkins is also clever as he has a wallop in either hand if he lands on his opponent that ends the bout as the saying is among the fans, he rings down the curtain. The management had a phone message from Trenton last night asking if they could arrange to let Stewart of Trenton box Goyer of Belleville, but there is some trouble as to the weight but the management will try to arrange things so these two men can have a chance to decide the championship between Belleville and Trenton. The tickets are on sale at Doyle's Drug Store.

SYNOPSIS.

Sanford Quest, master criminologist of the world, finds that in bringing to justice MacDougal, the murderer of Lord Ashleigh's daughter, he has but just begun a life-and-death struggle with a mysterious master criminal. In a hidden room in Professor Ashleigh's garden he has seen an anthropoid ape skeleton and a living inhuman creature, half monkey, half man, destroyed by fire. In his room have appeared from nowhere black boxes, one containing diamonds torn from a lovely throat by a pair of armless, threatening hands, both with crevasses and scabs. Notes signed by the inscrutable hands. On his return from finding the body of MacDougal, who had escaped on his way to prison, he is arrested for the murder of his valet, Ross Brown, and Miss Quill, in his rooms. Laura and Lenora, his assistants, suspect Craig the professor's valet, trap Craig and rescue Quest from the Tombs to hypnotize Craig into confession, but when Quest arrives he finds that Craig and Lenora have both disappeared. He dodges Police Inspector French, who has discovered his escape.

CHAPTER XIV.

With a little gesture of despair Quest turned away from the instrument which seemed suddenly to have become so terribly unresponsive, and looked across the vista, through square roofs and tangled masses of telephone wires to where the lights of larger New York flared up against the sky. From his attic chamber the roar of the city a few blocks away was always in his ears. He had forgotten, in those hours of frenzied solitude to fear for his own safety. He thought only of Lenora. He paused once more before the little instrument.

"Lenora, where are you?" he signaled. "I have taken a lodging in the Servants' club. I am still in hiding, hoping that Craig may come here. I am very anxious about you."

"Still no reply!" Quest drew a chair up to the window and sat there with folded arms looking down into the street. Suddenly he sprang to his feet. The instrument quivered—there was a message at last! He took it down with a little choke of relief.

"I don't know where I am terrified. I was outside the garage when I was seized from behind. The 'Hands' held me. I was unconscious until I found myself here. I am now in an attic room with no window except the skylight, which I cannot reach. I can see nothing—hear nothing. No one has hurt me, no one comes near me. Food is pushed through a door, which is locked again immediately. The house seems empty, yet I fancy that I am being watched all the time. I am terrified!"

Quest drew the instrument towards him. "I have your message," he signaled. "Be brave! I am watching for Craig. Through him I shall reach you before long. Send me a message every now and then."

Quest again took up his vigil in front of the window. Once more his eyes swept the narrow street with its constant stream of passers-by. Then suddenly he found himself gripping the window sill in a momentary thrill of rare excitement. His vigil was rewarded at last. The man for whom he was waiting was there! Quest watched him cross the street, glance furtively to the right and to the left, then enter the club. He turned back to the little wireless and his fingers worked as though inspired.

"I am on Craig's track," he signaled. "Be brave."

He waited for no reply, but opened the door and, stealing softly out of the room, suddenly confronted Craig in the deserted hallway. Before he could utter a cry Quest's left hand was over his mouth and the cold muzzle of an automatic pistol was pressed to his ribs.

"Turn round and mount those stairs, Craig," Quest ordered. Craig turned slowly round and obeyed. He mounted the steps with reluctant footsteps, followed by Quest. "Through the door to your right," the latter directed. "That's right! Now sit down in that chair facing me."

Quest closed the door carefully. Craig sat where he had been ordered, his fingers gripping the arms of the chair. In his eyes shone the furtive, terrified light of the trapped criminal.

"What do you want with me?" Craig asked doggedly. "First of all," Quest replied, "I want to know what you have done with my assistant, the girl whom you carried off from the professor's garage."

Craig shook his head. "I know nothing about her." "She locked you in the garage," Quest continued, "and sent for me. When I arrived I found the garage door open. Lenora gave me a message with blank terror in Craig's expression. "How do you know that she locked me in the garage?"

Quest smiled, stretched out his right arm and his long fingers played softly with the pocket wireless.

"In just the same way," he explained, "that I am sending her a message at the present moment—a message which she will receive and understand wherever she is hidden. Would you like to know what I am telling her?"

The man shivered. His eyes, as though fascinated, watched the little instrument. "I am saying this, Craig," Quest continued. "Craig is here and in my power. He is sitting within a few feet of me and will not leave this room until he has told me your whereabouts. Keep up your courage, Lenora. You shall be free in an hour."

The trapped man looked away from the instrument into Quest's face. There was a momentary flicker of something that might have passed for courage in his tone.

"Mr. Quest," he said, "you are a wonderful man, but there are limits to your power. You can tear my tongue out from my mouth, but you cannot force me to speak."

Quest leaned a little farther forward in his chair, his gaze became more concentrated. "That is where you are wrong, Craig. That is where you make a mistake. In a very few minutes you will be telling me all the secrets of your heart."

Craig shivered, drew back a little in his chair, tried to rise and fell back again helpless.

"My God!" he cried. "Leave me alone!" "When you have told me the truth," Quest answered swiftly, "and you will tell me all I want to know in a few minutes. Your eyelids are getting a little heavy, Craig. Don't resist. Something which is like sleep is coming over you. You see my will has yours by the throat."

Craig shook his head. A very weak smile of triumph flickered for a moment at the corners of his lips.

"Your torture chamber trick won't work on me!" he exclaimed. "You can never—"

The whole gamut of emotions seemed already to have spent themselves in the man's face, but at that moment there was a new element, an element of terrified curiosity in the expression of his eyes as he stared towards the door.

"Is this another trick of yours?" he muttered. Quest, too, turned his head and sprang instantly to his feet. From underneath the door came a little puff of smoke. There was a queer sense of heat of which both men were simultaneously conscious. Down in the street arose a chorus of warning shouts, increasing momentarily in volume. Quest threw open the door and closed it again at once.

"Mount Those Stairs, Craig!"

Quest threw open the door and closed it again at once.

"Mount Those Stairs, Craig!"

Quest threw open the door and closed it again at once.

"Mount Those Stairs, Craig!"

Quest threw open the door and closed it again at once.

"Mount Those Stairs, Craig!"

"The place is on fire," he announced briefly. "Pull yourself together, man. We shall have all we can do to get out of this."

Craig turned to the door, but staggered back almost immediately. "The stairs are going!" he shrieked. "It is the kitchen that is on fire. We are cut off! We cannot get down!"

Quest was on his hands and knees, fumbling under his tracheated. He pulled out a crude form of fire escape, a rough sort of cradle with a rope attached.

"Know how to use this?" he asked Craig quickly. "Here, catch hold. Put your arms inside this strap."

Yard by yard, swinging a little in the air, Craig made his descent. When he arrived in the street there were a hundred willing hands to release him. Quest drew up the rope quickly, warned by a roar of anxious voices. Then he commenced to descend, letting himself down hand over hand, always with one eye upon that length of rope that swung below. Suddenly, as he reached the second floor a little cry from the crowd warned him of what had happened. Tongues of flame curling out from the blazing building had caught the rope, which was being burned through not a dozen feet away from him. He descended a little farther and paused in mid-air.

A shout from the crowd reached him. "The cables! Try the cables!"

He glanced round. Seven or eight feet away, and almost level with him, was a double row of telegraph wires. Almost as he saw them the rope below him burned through and fell to the ground. He swung a little towards the side of the house, pushed himself vigorously away from it with his feet, and at the farthest point of the outward swing jumped. His hands grasped the telegraph wires safely. Even in that tense moment he heard a little sob of relief from the people below.

Hand over hand he made his way to the nearest pole and slipped easily to the ground. The crowd immediately surged around him.

"Where is the man who came down before me?" he asked a bystander. "Talking to the police in the car over yonder," was the hoarse reply. "Say, guv'nor, you only just made that!"

Craig pushed his way through the crowd to where Craig was speaking eagerly to French. He stopped short and stooped down. He was near enough to hear the former's words.

"Mr. French, you saw the man come down the ropes and swing on the cables. That was Quest, Sanford Quest, the man who escaped from the Tombs prison. He can't have got away yet."

Quest drew off his coat, turned it inside out and replaced it swiftly. He coolly picked up a hat someone had lost in the crowd and pulled it over his eyes. He passed within a few feet of where Craig and the inspector were talking.

"Say, boys, Sanford Quest is in the crowd somewhere. He's the man who jumped on the cable lines. A hundred dollars for his arrest!"

Quest turned reluctantly away. Men were rushing about in all directions for him.

CHAPTER XV.

The professor swung round in his chair and greeted Quest with some surprise, but also a little disappointment.

"No news of Craig?" he asked. "I got Craig, all right," he replied. "He came to the Servants' club, where I was waiting for him. My luck's out, though. The place was burned to the ground last night. I saved his life and then the brute gave me away to the police. I had to make my escape as best I could."

The professor tapped the table peacefully. "This is insufferable," he declared. "I have had no shaving water; my coffee was undrinkable; I can find nothing. I have a most important lecture to prepare and I cannot find any of the notes I made upon the subject."

Quest smoked in silence for a moment. "Any mail for me, professor?" he asked abruptly.

The professor opened a drawer and handed him a telegram. "Only this!"

Quest opened it and read it through. It was from the sheriff of a small town in Connecticut:

"The men you inquired for are both here. They have sold an automobile and seem to be spending the proceeds. Shall I arrest?"

Quest studied the message for a moment. "Say, this is rather interesting, professor," he remarked. "These are the two thugs who set upon me at the section house. They killed the signal man, who could have been my alibi, and swiped my car, in which, as it cannot be found, French supposes that I returned to New York. With their arrest the case against me collapses. I tell you frankly, professor, Quest continued frowning, "I hate to leave the city without having found that girl; but I am not sure that the quickest way to set things right would not be to go down, arrest these men and bring them back here, clear myself, and then go tooth and nail for Craig."

"I agree with you most heartily," the professor declared. "I recommend any course which will insure the return of my man Craig!"

"I cannot promise you that you will ever have Craig here again," Quest observed grimly. "I rather fancy Sing Sing will be his next home."

Crouching in her chair, her pale, terror-stricken face supported between her hands, Lenora, her eyes filled with hopeless misery, gazed at the dumb instrument upon the table. Her last gleam of hope seemed to be passing. Her little friend was silent.

"Put it Away; You Know You Daren't Wear it"

Quest stepped off the cars at Bethel a little before noon that morning. The sheriff met him at the depot and greeted him cordially but with obvious surprise.

"Say, Mr. Quest," he exclaimed, as they turned away, "I know these men are wanted on your charge, but I thought you'd excuse me for saying so—that you were in some trouble yourself."

Quest nodded. "I'm out of that—came out yesterday. The moment my car is identified and Red Gallagher and his mate arrested every scrap of evidence against me goes."

"Well, here's the garage and the man who bought the car," the sheriff remarked, "and there's the car itself in the road. It's for you to say whether it can be identified."

Quest drew a sigh of relief. "That's mine, right enough," he declared. "Now for the men."

"Say, I want to tell you something," the sheriff began dubiously. "These two are real thugs. They ain't going to take it lying down."

"Where are they?" Quest demanded. "In the worst saloon here," the sheriff replied. "They've been there pretty well all night, drinking, and they're there again this morning, hard at it. They've got firearms, and though I ain't exactly a nervous man, Mr. Quest—"

"You leave it to me," Quest interrupted. "This is my job and I want to take the men myself."

"You'll never do it," the sheriff declared. "Look here," Quest explained, "if I let you and your men go in, there will be a free fight, and as likely as not you will kill one, if not both of the men. I want them alive."

"Well, it's your show," the sheriff admitted, stopping before a disreputable looking building. "This is the saloon."

"Well," Quest decided, "I'm going in, and I'm going in unarmed. You can bring your men in later, if I call for help or if you hear any shooting."

"You're asking for trouble," the sheriff warned him. "I've got to do this my own way," Quest insisted. "Stand by now."

He pushed open the door of the saloon. There were a dozen men drinking around the bar and in the center of them Red Gallagher and his mate. Quest walked right up to the two men.

"Gallagher," he said, "you're my prisoner. Are you coming quietly?" Gallagher's mate, who was half drunk, swung round and fired a wild shot in Quest's direction. The result was a general stampede. Red Gallagher alone remained motionless. Grim and dangerously silent, he held a pistol within a few inches of Quest's forehead.

"If my number's up," he exclaimed ferociously, "it won't be you to take me."

"I think it will," Quest answered. "Put that away."

Gallagher hesitated. Quest's influence over him was indomitable. "Put it away," Quest repeated firmly. "You know you daren't use it. Your account's pretty full up, as it is."

Gallagher's hand wavered. From outside came the shouts of the sheriff and his men, struggling to fight their way in through the little crowd who were rushing for safety. Suddenly Quest backed, jerked the pistol up with his right elbow, and with almost the same movement struck Red Gallagher under the jaw. The man went over with a crash. His mate, who had been staggering about, cursing viciously, fired another wild shot at Quest, who swayed and fell forward.

"I've done him!" the man shouted. "Get up, Red! I've done him, all right! Finish your drink. We'll get out of this!"

He bent unsteadily over Quest. Suddenly the latter sprang up, seized him by the leg and sent him sprawling. The gun fell from his hand. Quest picked it up and held it firmly out, covering both men. Gallagher was on his knees, groping for his own weapon.

"Get the handcuffs on them," Quest directed the sheriff, who with his men had at last succeeded in forcing his way into the saloon.

Crouching in her chair, her pale, terror-stricken face supported between her hands, Lenora, her eyes filled with hopeless misery, gazed at the dumb instrument upon the table. Her last gleam of hope seemed to be passing. Her little friend was silent.

He, too, Inspector French, was suddenly transfixed. Quest's face. He was gazing downward into the little mirror.

"You've found Lenora, then, Inspector?" he exclaimed. "Bully for you! What do I mean? What I say! You forget that I am a scientific man, French. No end of appliances here you haven't had time to look at. I can see you sitting there, and Lenora and Laura looking at though you had them on the rack. You can drop that, French. I've got Red Gallagher and his mate, got them here with the sheriff of Bethel. They went off with my auto and sold it. We've got that. Also, in less than five minutes my chauffeur will be here. He's been lying in a farmhouse unconscious, since that scrap. I can tell you what time he saw me last. Bring the girls along, French—and hurry!"

Quest hung up the receiver. Inspector French was as good, even better than his word. In a surprisingly short time he entered the room, followed by Laura and Lenora. Quest gave them a hand each, but it was into Lenora's eyes that he looked.

"I mustn't stop to hear your story, Lenora," Quest said. "You're safe—that's the great thing."

"Found her in an empty house," French reported. "Out Grayson avenue way. Now, Mr. Quest, I don't want to come the official over you too much, but if you'll kindly remember you're an escaped prisoner—"

There was a knock at the door. A young man entered in chauffeur's livry, with his head still bandaged. Quest motioned him to come in.

"I'll just repeat my story of that morning, Mr. French," Quest said. "We went out to find MacDougal, and succeeded, as you know. Just as I was starting for home those two thugs set upon me. You know how I made my escape. They went off in my automobile and sold it in Bethel. I arrested them there myself this morning. Here's the sheriff who will bear out what I say, also that they arrived at the place in my automobile."

Inspector French held out his hand. "Mr. Quest," he said, "I reckon we'll have to withdraw the case against you. No hard feelings, I hope?"

"None at all," Quest replied promptly, taking his hand.

Quest stood upon the threshold watching the sheriff and his prisoners leave the house. The former turned round to wave his adieu.

"There's an elderly guy out here," he shouted, "seems to want to come in."

Quest leaned forward and saw the professor.

"My dear Quest," he exclaimed, as he wrung his hand, "my heartiest congratulations! As you know, I always believed your innocence. I am delighted that it has been proved."

The professor sank wearily into an easy chair.

"I will take a little whisky and one of your excellent cigars, Quest," he said. "I must ask you to bear with me if I seem upset. After more than twenty years' service from one whom I have always treated as a friend this sudden separation, to a man of my age, is somewhat trying. I do not allude, as you perceive, Mr. Quest, to the horrible suspicion you seem to have formed of Craig."

"All the same," the inspector remarked thoughtfully, "someone who is still at large committed those murders and stole those jewels. What is your theory about the jewels, Mr. Quest?"

"I haven't had time to frame one yet," the criminologist replied. "You've been keeping me too busy looking after myself. However," he added, "it's time something was done."

He took a magnifying glass from his pocket and examined very closely the blood on the front of the safe.

"No sign of finger prints," he muttered. "The person who opened it probably wore gloves."

He fitted the combination and swung open the door. He stood there for a moment speechless. Something in his attitude attracted the inspector's attention.

"What is it, Mr. Quest?" he asked eagerly.

TWO WOMEN TESTIFY

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Their Health—Their own Statements Follow.

Halliburton, P.E.I.—"I had a doctor examine me and he said I had falling of the womb, so I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has done me a lot of good. All the bearing-down pains have vanished. I have gained ten pounds in weight, the discharge is all gone, and I feel better than I have for a long time. I think any woman is foolish to suffer as I did for the sake of a few dollars."

"You can use my letter as a testimonial. It may encourage other poor women who suffer as I did to use your Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. G.E. COLLACOTT, Halliburton, Lot 7, P.E.I.

Read What This Woman Says:

New Moorefield, Ohio.—"I take great pleasure in thanking you for what your 'Vegetable Compound' has done for me. I had bearing down pains, was dizzy and weak, had pains in lower back and could not be upon my feet long enough to get a meal. As long as I laid on my back I would feel better, but when I would get up those bearing down pains would come back, and the doctor said I had female trouble. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was the only medicine that helped me and I have been growing stronger ever since. I commenced to take it. I hope it will help other suffering women as it has me. You can use this letter."—Mrs. CASSIE LORD, New Moorefield, Clark Co., Ohio.

Quest drew a little breath, facing him, in the spot where the girls had been, was a small black box. He brought it to the table and removed the lid. Inside was a sheet of paper, which he quickly unfolded. They all three read the few lines together.

"Pitted against the inherited crime of the ages, you have no chance. I will take compassion upon you. Look in the right-hand drawer of your desk."

Underneath appeared the signature of the "Hands." Quest moved like one in a dream to his cabinet and pulled open the right-hand drawer. He turned around and faced the other two men. In his hand was Mrs. Rheinhold's necktie!

FATE OF SERGT. THOS. MAHONEY

London and Ottawa Know Nothing of Him Except as Wounded and Missing

Mr. Thos. Mahoney of this city recently received communications from Ottawa and London stating his son, Thomas Mahoney, formerly of the 49th Regt. Regina, has been reported wounded and missing. No other information has been received and the war office and departments know nothing of the report that he was killed, though a Belleville officer writing home from France said he was among the fallen.

The family have now some reasonable grounds to believe that he may be a prisoner in a German hospital and unable to communicate with his parents.

Exhibit of War Trophies

The free exhibit of war trophies at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto, is expected to be one of the most popular features of the big fair this year. In addition to the guns and other armament captured on the field of battle and loaned by the British Government there will be a large number of articles on view from private collections throughout Canada made by citizens who have friends at the front and by officers and government officials. Major Leonard St. Catharines, has contributed a very interesting collection, while Surgeon General Ryerson just lately returned on leave, has also turned over his extensive collection of souvenirs. Brigadier General Hodgins has many relics captured in past wars and the present conflict, and these, too, will be shown in this unique exhibit which will be located in the Government buildings.
