

Athens Champs. Group One, Leeds Co. League

Defeat Delta in Both Games and Win their Division
Ten to Five on the Round

PLAY OFF WITH NEWBORO FOR LEAGUE HONORS

Athens hockey team carried the leadership of Group 2 in the Leeds County League on Saturday last by defeating Delta here 4-2 and winning the round 10-5. They now play home and home games with Newboro, who won the Division 1 honors by six goals to two, for the league championship and the right to play-off with the winners of the Brockville and Gananoque League, for the Stewart Cup.

Saturday's game was played on very poor ice, and the puck was "lifted" so much on account of the slush that at times it resembled a baseball mix-up. The game was refereed by Kerwin, of Brockville, and was a very clean one, penalties being exceedingly rare.

Delta opened the game with some fast work, C. Roddick scoring in the first few minutes. C. Layng then evened the score and near the end of the period Athens made it 2 goals to 1. This last tally was more good luck than anything else. R. Layng shot and Halliday, the Delta goalie, stopped the puck, but lost track of it and inadvertently shoved it into the net.

The first part of the second period found Delta pushing hard into Athens territory, and Elliott finally scored, evening the count. C. Layng again bulged the Delta net, however, and the period ended Athens 3, Delta 2.

The only score of the last period was notched by Athens after some good combination work. Layng shot but Halliday saved, R. Taylor scoring on the rebound.

Both goal keepers put up a good game, the soft ice making it very difficult to clear the shots. The game as a whole was a poor exhibition of hockey, but was as good as could be expected under the conditions. A large number of fans were present, including a good bunch from Delta.

The teams were composed as follows: Athens, goal Yates, defence L. Taylor, J. Scott, centre R. Lang, wings C. Layng, R. Taylor, subs. L. Johnston, G. Purcell.

Delta, goal F. Dugall, defence C. Roddick, R. Halliday, centre J. Green, ham, wings D. Elliott, F. Chisholm, subs H. Russel, G. Snyder.

The Farmersville Reporter

Vol. I Farmersville, Wednesday, June 25, 1884. No. 9.

These are the sports that went to wake
The fishes in blue Charleston Lake,
One Saturday in the month of May,
Which was a very pretty day.
Instead of coming home that eve,
That pretty lake they didn't leave,
But stayed and slept till dewy dawn,
Not thinking it was Sunday morn.
That morning two did take the skiff,
Which soon the raging winds did lift,
And when the surging waves they met,
Between two isles, the boys upset.
And they, afraid to start for shore,
Clung to the sail and loud did roar—

Methinks I hear C. C.'s great shout
When he was 'bout to be tipped out.
They shouted just like drowning boys
And woke J. P. with their loud noise,
Who for C. C.'s sake sent them aid,
For of his death he was afraid.
They should have had some L.L.L.
To rub them with and make them well,
For I am sure they were quite cool
When they were in that raging pool.
I hope from this time ever hence
Our village boys will have some sense,
To leave C. C. at home such days
Because mishaps he's sure to raise.

Obituary

MRS. SCOVILLE ROBESON
"Loving friends, be wise, and dry
Straightway every weeping eye;
What ye lift upon the bier
Is not worth a wistful tear."
"Tis an empty sea-shell one
Out of which the pearl has gone;
The shell is broken—it lies there;
The pearl, the all, the Soul is here."

In the early hours of Wednesday morning last, Feb. 11th, the spirit of Mrs. Robeson slipped quietly away, following but a few hours of suffering. Deceased was possessed of a disposition so gentle and sweet that she endeared herself to all, yet her religion was of the exultant positive type, that left no room for gloom or doubt. The sanctuary was her chief joy, and the prayer-service was her delight. On the Monday evening preceding her demise, she had attended prayer-meeting, joining in the refrain, "When we all get to Heaven what a day of rejoicing that will be."

About ten years ago, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Robeson took up residence here, coming from Elgin, where they had been engaged in the grocery business for ten years or so. Previous to that the family had resided in Newboro, Mr. Robeson driving the Newboro-Kingston stage for nineteen years. A year ago last November Mr. and Mrs. Robeson celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary, when the family and intimate friends were present. Two sons and three daughters were born, all of whom survive, viz., J. E. Robeson, Winnipeg, J. P. Robeson, Toronto, Mrs. F. J. Kelly and Mrs. R. J. Powell, both of Elgin and Mrs. R. Hillman, Chapleau, Ont. Had deceased lived until next September, she would have attained the advanced age of eighty years.

Funeral services are to be conducted on Saturday afternoon, in the local Methodist Church, of which the late Mrs. Robeson was a most exemplary member. The remains will be placed in the vault to await interment here in the spring.

"Peace, perfect peace, with sorrows
surgings round,
On Jesus' bosom sought but peace is found."

Delta Short Courses Are Completed

Programme Closed With a Banquet Thurs. Night

PRIZES ARE PRESENTED

To Those Winning First in Agriculture, Nursing, General
Proficiency, Etc.

The Short Course in Agriculture was concluded at Delta on Thursday Feb. 5. The two courses in Sewing and Home Nursing for the Ladies, consisting of two weeks each, were concluded on Jan. 27th. The courses were very satisfactory, as much interest was shown, especially by the ladies, whose average attendance for the course in Sewing under the direction of Miss Alice Owens, Kitchener, was 22, and that of the Course in Home Nursing by Miss Flora McDonald, Annan, R. C., was 30. The boys' average was 13, with the greatest attendance on occasions of the Stock Judging, which was conducted at the farms of Arthur Slack, when Holstein were judged; at Levi Raison, where Ayrshires were judged, and at W. T. Sheridan's, where Bacon Hogs and horses of Percheron breeding were judged. Poultry Culling Demonstrations were put on, on two different occasions; 43 being present on the first afternoon and 20 the second. Thirty-seven men were present on a special Friday afternoon when alfalfa was the main theme, the Agricultural Representative showing by chart how alfalfa might be successfully grown on Leeds County farms, by the use of hardy seed, and the use of lime where soils were sour or leached out by years of cultivation and crop growth, and in this way become depleted of this very necessary element.

On Thursday evening, Feb. 5th, the three classes held a very successful banquet in the Town Hall, when 150 members and their friends sat down to tables sumptuously prepared by members of the ladies classes and Women's Institutes. At the conclusion of the supper community singing was engaged in by all present, led by Mr. Neff, following which a toast list was presented by the Reeve of Bastard Township, Mr. Frank Seed, who acted as chairman. The principal speakers were Col. A. W. Greay, who responded to the toast to "Our Country," Dr. W. B. Baker, who responded to the toast to "Our Guests," and Mr. Joss, representing the United Dairymen, Ltd., Montreal, who replied to the toast to "Agriculture."

These toasts were proposed by Harry Morris, Miss Vera Whitmore and E. F. Neff, respectively. The last toast to "The Ladies" was proposed by Mr. E. A. Summers of Winchester, who acted as assistant during the courses, and was responded to by Mrs. M. Kilbourne, President of the Senior Women's Institute. Orchestra Music was also rendered during the program of toasts and at the conclusion of the Toast List prizes were presented by the Rev. Mr. Keough to Miss Lillian Sheridan for obtaining the best record at the Nursing Course, to Stanley Singleton for the highest marks in the Stock Judging Competition, which had been conducted at Johnson-Frye's on the preceding Tuesday, to John Raison, who came second in this Competition, and to Albert Gile, who won the prize for General Proficiency and Attendance. The prize to Stanley Singleton was a pair of highest quality skates denoted by Mr. Phelps, who showed his interest and support of the course in this very tangible way.

At ten o'clock tables were cleared away and the Beverly orchestra rendered splendid dance music, to which some fifty couples tripped the light fantastic until the wee sma' hours of the morning. Those present declared this one of the best patronized and most enjoyable dances put on in Delta Hall.

It was unanimously agreed that the fine Community Spirit shown during Courses and especially during the last day of the course, would go far towards filling a long felt want in the Delta District.

Thanks is due the Bastard Township Council who gave the Town Hall for the course, as well as heating and lighting it during the five weeks. Wood was also supplied by the Council for heating the room belonging to Mrs. Geo. Morris where the Ladies course was conducted.

To show their appreciation of the services rendered by Messrs. Neff and Summers, the members of the classes presented them each with a beautiful fountain pen and a pair of cuff links.

HOBBIES

(Crawf. Slack.)

Some men were born for great things
While some were born for small,
And some it would have been better
Had they not been born at all.

Sometimes I get thinking that it would have been better for all concerned, myself included, had I not chanced to come across this way. There seemed to be two strikes called on me when I was born, and I have been hitting out fouls up to the present; I have not a sacrifice hit, a home run, not even a score to my credit, and I expect the umpire, one of these days of jazz, craft and bank merging, will call me out of the game and send me to the club house as a misfit.

I have heard it said "that a man with a hobby never grows old." If there is any virtue in this saying, I should live for a few moons yet at least, for I have been in the hobby game since childhood, and cannot understand what has kept me out of the hot-house. I have endeavored to butt into almost every hobby known to mankind, with the exception of one, that of making moonshine. I have not taken that up as yet, but have often thought that it must be a very interesting hobby—satisfying and remunerative with a dreamy after-effect, and a hobby that is sure to get one somewhere, eventually, at least. I may take this up later on in life and make a home run. When a boy I took up the hobby of acting the fool on the stage to amuse others. This hobby did not cost me much effort, for all I had to do was to act natural. This was about the only successful hobby of my unsuccessful career. When I arrived to the years of accountability, that is to say, manhood, and being ignorant of my incapability, I added the hobby of love to my list, and loved a fair maiden as hard as a Kentucky mule would kick a partition. She married me through pity, and all her friends have pitied her ever since. I have taken on the hobbies of music, literature and art. I have slandered Nature by striving to paint it to that extent that I feel condemned when I stoop to take a drink from the pasture creek, defiled literature by trying to write, assassinated music by attempting to compose and play it. The hobby of music most of all appeals to me, and if I was only crazy enough to compose a fool song to jar the pin-heads along the jazz trail my fortune would be made, and I would lie away to the woods and hide.

I have been the chief disturber in many musical organizations. Once upon a time I had a somewhat mixed orchestra, that is, it was mixed as to male and female—it was also mixed in other ways, both morally and musically. This organization was formed B.J. (before jazz) and came to an untimely end. After we had synocopated on the beat and off the beat for a time, the more timid citizens started to leave town by the score, some took to the tall timbers, while others hid themselves among the remote islands of the lake; the piano and ice cream parlors were closed, and about the only thing that stood the test was the planing mill.

The members of this organization ran the risk of being arrested for disturbing the peace, or killed by the solidified bouquets hurled at them by the remaining citizens. However, I have been spared to tell the story. After we got so we could syncope a few rat-a-tats we used to go out around the district and disturb for hot-dog and swing-sandwiches. Our prospect looked bright. We were wined, dined and feasted. And the female members were taking on flesh rapidly. But, alas! to fate! The first violin player went crazy. The piano player eloped with a tramp barber; the clarinet player had the misfortune to buy a second hand Ford car and tried to climb a tree with it; the cornet player was arrested for bootlegging; my wife threatened to sue me for the divorce courts. The second violin player shared the worst fate of all—she married a clergyman and went to China. Thus was time and talent busted and scattered to the winds.

Time winged away, but in its flight did not take my hobby, and after making all sorts of promises and resolutions to my wife and by consenting to join the anti-saloon league, I won back her affections and pity. I got a chance to display my artistic ability by painting a farmer's cowshed. This afforded me the necessary cash to get my trombone out of the pawn shop and start anew. At present I have another bunch of windjammers, or community disturbers, of great promise. Since I started this last musical organization the citizens have cursed a little, but as yet there has been but one to move out of town, and I have it from the best of authority that we are to be presented with a purse of gold, through gratitude of the citizens, for they say it will be a relief to their wood-piles. I also understand they are in favor of strengthening the organization that more may leave in the near future. In conclusion I might state that I do not know what is in store for the present bunch of disturbers I have under cultivation, but shall report later on, if the undertaker does not back his dump-carp up at my shack.

There seemed to be two strikes called on me when I was born, and I have been hitting out fouls up to the present; I have not a sacrifice hit, a home run, not even a score to my credit, and I expect the umpire, one of these days of jazz, craft and bank merging, will call me out of the game and send me to the club house as a misfit.

I have heard it said "that a man with a hobby never grows old." If there is any virtue in this saying, I should live for a few moons yet at least, for I have been in the hobby game since childhood, and cannot understand what has kept me out of the best-house. I have endeavored to butt into almost every hobby known to that of making moonshine. I have not taken that up as yet, but have often thought that it must be a very interesting hobby—satisfying and remunerative with a dreamy after-effect, and a hobby that is sure to get one somewhere, eventually, at least. I may take this up later on in life and make a home run. When a boy I took up the hobby of acting the fool on the stage to amuse others. This hobby did not cost me much effort, for all I had to do was to act natural. This was about the only successful hobby of my unsuccessful career. When I arrived to the years of accountability, that is to say, manhood, and being ignorant of my incapability, I added the hobby of love to my list, and loved a fair maiden as hard as a Kentucky mule would kick a partition. She married me through pity, and all her friends have pitied her ever since. I have taken on the hobbies of music, literature and art. I have slandered Nature by striving to paint it so that content that I feel condemned when I stoop to take a drink from the pasture creek, defiled literature by trying to write, assassinated music by attempting to compose and play it. The hobby of music most of all appeals to me, and if I was only crazy enough to compose a fool song to jar the pin-heads along the jazz trail my fortune would be made, and I would hie away to the woods and hide.

I have been the chief disturber in many musical organizations. Once upon a time I had a somewhat mixed orchestra, that is, it was mixed as to male and female—it was also mixed in other ways, both morally and musically. This organization was formed B.J. (before jazz) and came to an untimely end. After we had syncopeated on the beat and off the beat for a time, the more timid citizens started to leave town by the score, some took to the tall timbers, while others hid themselves among the remote islands of the lake; the better and ice cream parlors were closed, and about the only thing that stood the test was the planing mill. The members of this organization ran the risk of being arrested for disturbing the peace, or killed by the solidified bouquets hurled at them by the remaining citizens. However, I have been spared to tell the story. After we got so we could syncopeate a few rat-a-tats we used to go out around the district and disturb for hot-dog and swine-sandwiches. Our prospects looked bright. We were wind-dined and feasted. And the female members were taking on flesh rapidly. But, alas! to fate! The first violin player went crazy. The piano player eloped with a tramp barber; the clarinet player had the misfortune to buy a second hand Ford car and tried to climb a tree with it; the cornet player was arrested for bootlegging; my wife threatened to sue me in the divorce courts. The second violin player shared the worst fate of all—he married a clergyman and went to China. Thus was time and talent busted and scattered to the winds.

Time winged away, but in its flight did not take my hobby, and after making all sorts of promises and resolutions to my wife and by consenting to join the anti-saloon league, I won back her affections and pity. I got a chance to display my artistic ability by painting a farmer's cowshed. This afforded me the necessary cash to get my trombone out of the pawn shop and start anew. At present I have another bunch of windjammers, or community disturbers, of great promise. Since I started this last musical organization the citizens have cursed a little, but as yet there has been but one to move out of town, and I have it from the best of authority that we are to be presented with a purse of gold, through gratitude of the citizens, for they say it will be a relief to their wood-piles. I also understand they are in favor of strengthening the organization that more may leave in the near future. In conclusion I might state that I do not know what is in store for the present bunch of disturbers I have under cultivation, but shall report later on, if the undertaker does not back his dumpcart up at my shack.

FAIRFIELD

Womens' Institute of Fairfield East Will Form a Glee Club.

Fairfield East, Feb. 2.—The January meeting of the Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. H. E. Pyke with 13 members in attendance. After the minutes of the last meeting had been read and approved, the secretary read an appreciative letter from Mrs. E. C. McDougall, thanking the members of the Institute for kindness shown her while a patient in the General Hospital.

One of the features of this meeting was an interesting discussion upon community recreation for the winter, and it was decided to form a Glee Club as soon as the necessary music could be procured. This was followed by a short programme, including a nicely rendered piano solo by Mrs. Pyke and a reading by Mrs. R. W. Greer. Miss Inga Atcheson will take the February meeting, the roll call to be answered by "Don't's for the Sick Room". A full attendance of members is desired at this meeting, as a vote is to be taken upon an important matter of business.

C. D. Walker has been re-engaged as cheesemaker for the coming season at Pendleton, Que.

Mrs. Hilliard Earle, who has been quite ill, is much better.

MAKE PARLOR IN OLD-FASHIONED HOME SERVE A PURPOSE.

If you have never tried using the largest, pleasantest room in the house for the family bedroom, you don't know how much more you will enjoy it in that capacity, than as a parlor, used only occasionally.

I live in one of those old-fashioned houses in which a parlor was added to an already larger number of rooms than is needed by the average family. This company room was the largest room in the house, and so pleasant, airy and sunny with its south and west windows and sash door opening to the east upon the end of a south verandah. So delightfully situated it was a shame to use it so little. Such an abundance of sunshine went to waste in it and the finest view we had was from its seldom-used windows.

I tried using it as a living-room, but it was too remote from the kitchen and dining-room, and an air of made-to-be-used-only-on-state-occasions clung to it so persistently that the man invariably stopped in the "middle" room to lounge and read, leaving my cherished living-room to the isolation that the habits of years had banished it.

I reflected one day what an attractive bed-room it would make, and how convenient the smaller room opening from it would be as a nursery. The idea so captivated me that I promptly planned to rearrange it for that purpose and soon had my erstwhile useless parlor fitted up as a bedroom and private sitting-room.

A fair-sized bedroom opened from the middle room, which was also a large room, and both having a south exposure. I had a very wide doorway cut between the two rooms, nearly eliminating the partition, and so combined them into one delightfully long, sunny living-room. It was so enjoyable to have the piano and books and all the most useful articles of furniture out where we would use them every day. Our living-room became one, in a sense that no other room ever had, while my parlor never afforded me the pleasure and satisfaction that my big, sunny bedroom does with its accommodation for a fire in the winter and plenty of fresh and sunshine during the summer.—Mrs. E. M.

MEASLES.

The season for measles is during the winter and spring months. One-half of the deaths from measles in Canada occurred in the months of January, February and March. A great many of these deaths could have been prevented if parents had realized the danger and how to avoid it.

The dangerous age for measles is early childhood. Sixty per cent. of the deaths from measles occur in children under five years of age. Some parents consider measles to be a necessary evil of childhood and that a child may be allowed to catch measles and have it "over and done with." This is a great mistake.

The older a child is when he contracts measles the better the chance he will have of recovery, the younger he is the greater the danger. The death rate of children having measles at two years of age may be five times as high as it is among those who postpone the disease until the tenth year of life.

Measles is spread by the secretions of the nose and throat, especially in the tiny droplets sprayed out in coughing, sneezing and loud talking. The danger of catching the disease is greatest during the period from five days before the rash appears and for five days thereafter. Before the rash appears the child may seem to have only a cold, but in reality this cold may be the beginning of measles.

From the time of exposure, from ten days to two weeks elapse before the child is taken ill. The illness is much less likely to be dangerous if taken in hand at an early stage. The first symptoms are a rise in body temperature and redness of the eyes. Therefore, when a child has been exposed to measles, the temperature should be taken on the eighth, ninth and tenth days after exposure. If the body temperature has risen or the eyes are reddened, put the child to bed and keep him there. Bed is the one safe place to fight measles, and the earlier in the disease the child is put to bed, the less will be the danger of death or a serious result, such as pneumonia, tuberculosis, eye or ear trouble. There is all the difference in the world between an attack of measles developing in a child exposed to body chill, and in a child safeguarded by warmth and rest.

Measles requires good nursing and the care of a physician. The patient should be kept away from other people until the rash has quite gone, and should remain in bed as long as there is fever or a cough. Do not let the child be uncovered and chilled as this may lead to pneumonia. A somewhat darkened, comfortably warm room is the best and the air should be kept moist and soothing to the air passages by means of pans of water or by wet sheets, which may be hung across the doorway.

Love Gives Itself

THE STORY OF A BLOOD FEUD

BY ANNIE S. SWAN.

"Love gives itself and is not bought."—Longfellow.

CHAPTER VI.—(Cont'd.)

"Mr. Garvock has had all he wishes, Ramsay. I think he is not feeling over well."

"Yes, ma'am. I don't wonder he was upset," answered Ramsay indifferently, and on the spur of the moment. Then he reddened under his mistress's inquiring gaze, and hastily went on with his duties, praying that he would not be further questioned.

"What do you mean, Ramsay? Has your master been specially upset this afternoon? Did anybody call while we were out?"

"Only Miss Rankine, and the doctor."

"Miss Rankine and the doctor! But why wasn't I told? When did they come?"

"Miss Rankine came about half-past five; and the master, he expressly said I was not to mention anything to anybody," said poor Ramsay, now floundering hopelessly.

"That will do, thank you, Ramsay," said his mistress with dignity. "We can wait on ourselves."

Directly the door closed she looked across at Lucy, determinedly.

"I must be at the bottom of this, Lucy. Peter can be very tiresome and masterful, but he must remember that his mother requires some consideration. I will go to him. You had better stay here—or go to the boudoir. I must make him understand that there is more deference owing to me than he seems inclined to pay."

So saying, and gathering all her dignity—which was considerable—about her, Mrs. Garvock sailed out of the room.

Lucy went abstractedly on with her supper, disturbed in her mind, and full of curiosity. Mrs. Garvock went straight to the library door, which she opened without knocking.

There was only one small light, under a green shade, burning on the desk at which Peter had already seated himself. He looked up with evident annoyance at the opening of the door. His mother closed it quite quietly, and stepped forward.

"I've come to hear what actually happened to-day, Peter," she said in a tone which sounded quite ordinary, but which was as quietly determined as Peter's own. "Ramsay has just let drop a few words—no, don't get angry; it was done quite inadvertently, but what did Judy come here this afternoon for? And why were we not to be told?"

Peter Garvock put down his pen. "You are rather exasperating, mother. I think I might have had peace for just one night! I told you you would probably hear an embroidered story to-morrow."

"That is precisely why I prefer to hear an unembroidered one to-night. It is my due, Peter, and I should not have had to ask it twice—not even once—from your father."

"Well, if you will have it—Alan and Carlotta have fallen in love with one another, and I've got my conge in consequence. I went to have it out with him. We met at the march dyke, and—well, we did have it out! He'll remember this day, perhaps, and what it means to get across my path as he has done."

Mrs. Garvock looked the picture of consternation. "But, Peter, it's impossible! In love with Carlotta! Why, how often has she seen her?"

"You can go and ask him. I don't know. I'm giving you what you ask for—the plain, unembroidered facts."

"Then what brought Judy here?"

"We fought at the march dyke, and I suppose that on her way here she found him lying on the ground."

"Peter!" cried the mother, in a hollow whisper. "You didn't kill him?"

"Oh, no! Sanderson called in on his way back from Stair—he hasn't been gone above half an hour—to tell me that the cur is all right."

Mrs. Garvock wrung her lily-white hands, on which the diamonds shone.

"Oh, Peter, it would have been better without this! Nothing has gone right with us since you got engaged to that woman! You are well quit of her."

Peter made no demur, but bent his head to his desk again, as if longing to be left alone.

She stood contemplating him for a brief space, wondering whether he suffered, yet afraid to ask. So little did she know of the son she had borne, she scarcely dared offer her sympathy lest it should be cast back upon her!

"But, Peter—"

"Yes, mother. What now?" he asked, raising his head with a gesture of infinite weariness.

"I don't want to keep on about it if it hurts you, but it is not possible that they can marry, here, at least! Are you sure there has been no mistake?"

"There is no mistake. As to their marrying—I don't know where they will marry, or when, or whether they ever will; but I'll keep my fingers tight on Stair, mother, and Alan Rankine shall feel the grip of the man he has played his dastardly tricks on! As for her—it was for my money she wished to marry me. We shall see what kind of a wife she'll make to a man who has none—who will never have any, for he doesn't know the elements of how to get a livelihood, and I'll take care that he gets no chance in Stair!"

The slow vindictiveness with which her son spoke chilled the heart of Isabel Garvock.

"Oh, Peter, don't talk like that! It makes my blood run cold. You will get over it, my dear. There never could have been a blessing with this marriage. It made me very unhappy all along, and I only refrained from saying what I actually thought, because you seemed so set upon it. One day you will be able to look back and be glad this has happened."

"Maybe. And now, mother, having got the whole story, will you leave me?"

"I must, I suppose. But I am not easy in my mind, Peter. I should like to stop and help you to bear it. After all, you have Lucy and me left. We'll stand by you; you may depend on us."

"I do depend on you," he said, but without warmth. And once more the weary look settled on his hard face.

Thus baffled and repulsed, what could his mother do but turn and leave him, closing the door softly.

She met Lucy leaving the dining-room, and drew her hastily into the boudoir.

"Oh, my dear! Terrible things seem to have happened! Can you believe that it is on Alan's account Carlotta has given up your own brother?"

"On Alan's account!" echoed Lucy, and the mother might have been warned by the sudden, shrill note in the piping voice.

"So he tells me. How long is it since Alan came home?—little more than a week!"

"A week, yesterday morning," said Lucy dully.

"Well, apparently he has made good use of his week, or else he has met Carlotta before."

"Do you mean that—that there is anything between Alan and Carlotta, mother?"

"Yes. She has thrown Peter over for your cousin, and, it seems, they had it out on the hill at the march dyke, and Peter left Alan lying on the ground, and Judy was here this afternoon about it! It's the most extraordinary story I've ever heard, Lucy, and to happen in a sober Scotch household on a Sabbath day! Don't you think we have had enough excitement to last us for years?"

But Lucy did not hear.

Presently, the mother, looking at her, saw that her face had become ashen-hued, and that she was trembling like a leaf.

"Don't take it like that, my dear. After all, it is only a man's quarrel, and needn't affect us. And really, in our hearts we ought to be rather glad that it is all broken off, though, of course, if she marries Alan, we shall still have her, in a sense, in the family."

Then the light broke in on Mrs. Garvock, and she understood!

The blow had fallen doubly on The Lees, and the strange affinity between Alan Rankine and Carlotta Carlyon, whether it would ever bring happiness to them or not, had certainly dealt nothing but doom and woe to Peter Garvock and his sister Lucy!

A Promising Prescription.

"I don't know what we're coming to, I'm sure," said the business man as he and the minister sat waiting on the hotel veranda for news concerning a threatened strike. "The world seems to be crazy these days, and no one seems to know the cure for our troubles."

"I ran across something the other day that sounded good to me," the minister said.

"What was it?"

"Just this simple sentence, 'Ye must be born again.'"

"Humph! That's from the Bible. Isn't it? It's a mystical sort of thing that no one has ever fully understood, seems to me. I fear it is too difficult to understand."

"Prescriptions," the minister replied, "are usually a bit difficult to interpret. But it is seldom necessary that the patient shall understand the doctor's Latin. Why do I think this prescription promising? Well, for one thing because it goes to the root of the trouble. Men are blaming the ills of the world to various secondary causes—ignorance, wrong laws, wrong distribution of wealth, wrong surroundings, wrong social customs, and so forth. Now none of these things lie at the root of the matter. At bottom what is wrong is man himself. If laws and social customs are wrong, man made them so. If there is ignorance, if there is injustice, man makes it. If there are surroundings in which man cannot thrive, they are surroundings that man has made. Fundamentally man himself is wrong, and this prescription in its very first word strikes at the root of the trouble."

"You believe then that the problem is a religious one?"

"Fundamentally it is. It is man's nature, his disposition, that is wrong. Education will not cure our ills. We do not sin through ignorance alone. What is needed is a new spirit, and a new spirit is just what this prescription proposes to give us."

"But will it work?"

"It does work. Take Jerry McAuley, river pirate, thief, probably a murderer. You have heard that he was transformed into a valuable citizen who went out to save other human wrecks. What did it? This prescription. Valentine Burke, the burglar, through trying this prescription became a trusted deputy of the law he had once flouted. These are only two out of countless instances."

"Granted that it works in the cases of individuals, that does not prove that it will cure the ills of society."

"Doesn't it? What is society but an aggregation of individuals? How can you change society except by changing the individuals? The process is slow, I grant, but it's sure. And do you know any other proposed remedy as promising as this?"

"To be frank with you," said the business man, "I do not."

Tea prices are going up mainly because tea is being demanded by millions more people. Tea is the cheapest and certainly one of the most palatable and satisfying beverages known. But the tea-growers have been unable to meet the tremendous demand. It takes three years for a tea bush to mature to the plucking stage.

Mother-of-Pearl and Pearls.

Mother-of-pearl, that pretty substance that shines with all the colors of the rainbow, comes from certain shells. We use for delicate ornamentation what was once the dwelling of a glaucous animal, near relation to the oyster. Truly, this dwelling is a veritable palace in richness. It shines with all imaginable tints, as if the rainbow had deposited its colors there.

"This is the shell that furnishes the most beautiful mother-of-pearl. It is called the melegrina margaritifera. Outside it is wrinkled and blackish green; inside it is smoother than polished marble, richer in color than the rainbow. All tints are found there, bright, but soft and changeable, according to the point of view."

"That superb shell is the house of a mischievous, slimy animal! In fairy tales the fairies themselves have none to equal it. Oh! how beautiful, how beautiful it is!"

"Every one has his portion in this world. The slimy animal has for his a splendid palace of mother-of-pearl."

"Where does the melegrina live?"
"In the seas that wash the shores of Arabia."

"Then those shells are very precious?"
"You shall judge for yourself. First the inner layer of the shell, sawed into sheets and tablets, is the mother-of-pearl that we use for fine ornamentation. Jules' pen-knife handle is covered with a sheet of mother-of-pearl that was part of the inside of a pearl-shell. But that is the least part of what the precious shell produces. There are pearls as well."

"But pearls are not very dear. With a few sous I bought a whole boxful, to embroider you a purse."

"Let us make a distinction: there are pearls and pearls. The pearls you mention are little pieces of colored glass pierced with a hole. Their price is very moderate. The pearls of the melegrina are globules of the richest and finest mother-of-pearl. If they are unusually large, they attain the fabulous price of the diamond, up to hundreds of thousands and millions of francs."

"It is well to know how they are produced."

"Between the two parts of the shell lives an animal like the oyster. It is a mass of slime in which you would find it difficult to recognize an animal. It digests, however, and breathes, and is sensitive to pain, so sensitive that a grain of dust, a mere nothing, renders existence painful to it. What does the animal do when it feels itself tickled by some foreign substance? It begins to sweat mother-of-pearl around the place that itches. This mother-of-pearl piles up in a little smooth ball, and there you have a pearl made by the sick, slimy animal. If it is of any considerable size, it will cost a fine bag of crowns, and the person who wears it around her neck will be very proud of it."—From "The Story Book of Science," by Jean Henri Fabre.

Habit of Gulls. It is a well-known habit of gulls and some other birds that feed in part on shellfish to carry clams to a considerable height and then drop them on some hard surface to break the shell.

A man on the Board Walk at Atlantic City was struck on the head with such force by a clam that a gull had dropped that he was knocked down and for a little while was unconscious. It is an interesting question whether instinct or intelligence impelled the gull to drop the clam just at that moment.

HOST TO A HOST OF GAME

From the dining room of the Miner home. An appreciative gander, inset.

What is, perhaps, the most wonderful hotel in the world, is located on Jack Miner's farm at Kingsville, Ontario. The guests come as far north as the Arctic Circle and from as far south as the Gulf States. They carry no baggage, are not required to register, pay nothing for board or lodging, stay as long as they wish, and when they get ready to leave, they take the elevator for the sky—and off they go in beautiful winged flotillas, honking and quacking their happiness and gratitude.

This is Jack Miner's wild goose and duck sanctuary, and it is one of the sights of Canada. The birds learned that he was a friend of theirs, communicated that fact to their acquaintances, and now thousands of them in their spring and autumn migrations visit his little watering resort for a few weeks' lay-off and recuperation. Jack's feed bill runs pretty high. It takes from 1,000 to 2,000 bushels of corn per year to satisfy his feathered visitors and not slight anybody. But he loves the birds and the birds love him, and where mutual affection exists, he figures the matter of expense doesn't count.

Work and Worry Weaken Many Women

NEW HEALTH CAN BE HAD THROUGH

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

They Give New Vitality—and more.

The demands upon a mother's strength are many and severe; her own health trials and her children's welfare exact heavy tolls, while broken rest and much indoor living tend to weaken her constitution. No wonder that the woman at home is often indolent through sick headache, backache, and nervous troubles. But varied as her health troubles are, the cause is simple, and relief near at hand. When well, it is good blood that keeps a woman well; when ill, she must make her blood rich to renew her health; and the nursing mother—more than any other—needs rich blood and plenty of it.

Care of diet, sufficient rest, fresh air, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will keep a woman's health robust and regular; and because these pills make new blood abundantly, thousands of weak wives and mothers have derived prompt health-help from them.

Mrs. Stewart Grant, Stewiacke, N.S., says:—"After the birth of my first baby I did not regain my health. I could scarcely walk across the room because of the pains in my back. I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and through their use regained good health. Later an attack of influenza left me very weak, and again the pills fully restored me. I can recommend them to any one who is weak or run down."

The Windmill.

Behold! a giant am I,
Aloft here in my tower,
With my granite jaws I devour
The maize, and the wheat, and the rye,
And grind them into flour.

I look down over the farms;
In the fields of grain I see
The harvest that is to be,
And I fling to the air my arms,
For I know it is all for me.

I hear the sound of flails
Far off from the threshing floors
In barns, with their open doors,
And the winds, the wind in my sails,
Louder and louder roars.

I stand here in my place,
With my foot on the rock below,
And whichever way it may blow
I meet it face to face,
As a brave man meets his foe.

And while we wrestle and strive,
My master, the miller, stands,
And feeds me with his hands,
For he knows who makes him thrive,
Who makes him lord of lands.

On Sundays I take my rest;
Church-gongs bells begin
Their low, melodious din;
I cross my arms upon my breast,
And all is peace within.

—H. W. Longfellow.

MAKE CARE OF BABIES EASIER

Stomach disturbances and constipation are responsible for much of the peevishness of babies and young children. When the baby is cross or irritable the mother should not resort to so-called soothing mixtures to correct the trouble, for in the majority of cases these mixtures simply drug the child into an unnatural sleep. What is needed is a gentle laxative that will sweeten the stomach and regulate the bowels. Such a remedy is found in Baby's Own Tablets. They are easy to take and are guaranteed to be entirely free from opiates and narcotics. Concerning them, Mrs. Jos. Toussaint, Ste. Sophie, Que., writes:—"I would like all mothers to know that I feel there is no other medicine to equal Baby's Own Tablets. I always keep a box in the house and their prompt use never fails to restore my little ones to health." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Bull-Fights in Britain.

Bull-fighting, which is declining in favor with the Spaniards, was once a popular sport in England, though in a somewhat different form. It has only been forbidden by law within the last hundred years.

The bull was tied to a stake, after having the points of its horns protected. Fierce dogs were let loose on it, and a terrible battle would ensue. Bulldogs were bred specially for the sport. Their peculiar jaws gave a grip so strong that the bull could not throw off its attacks once their teeth had met its shoulder.

Bear-baiting, too, was popular at one time. Both Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth were fond of bear-baiting and bull-fights. Great men kept "fings" and there was one in nearly every place of amusement. "Bank-side," was a noted place for the "sport" in London. The charges for admission were a penny to enter, another penny to go in the "grandstand," and a third penny for the equivalent of reserved seats.

Thursdays and Sundays were the favorite days for baiting bears and bulls. At one time the theatres were ordered to close down on the former days so that competition should not interfere with the baitings.

The Epidemic.

Father was once a business man who went to his work each day; And mother kept house, as a housewife should, in a highly efficient way;

And Bill was a clerk in a wholesale house whose motto was Work and Win; And Sue was a thoroughly good stonemason and gosh, how the cash rolled in!

But father is home, and nary a dish has mother washed for a week, And Billy and Sue have quit their jobs—and the future is looking bleak.

For the family purse is perfectly flat and doesn't contain a dime, And nobody does a stroke of work, for nobody has the time!

"Here's a word beginning with E T I and ending with E E L;— Look in the dictionary, Bill, and see what it ought to spell!"

"That's all we hear in our happy home, and all that we think about, While nights and days in our various ways we're working the puzzles out.

"Satan finds work for idle hands"— this new acoustic rage is keeping all hands in the family at work on the puzzle page!

We're doing the cross-word puzzles, We're doing 'em hard and fast, And we'll never quit, that's the worst of it, As long as the puzzles last!

"The Call of Untrodden Ways."

"The Call of Untrodden Ways," recently issued by the Canadian National Parks Branch, is a spirited account of a summer outing in Jasper National Park in northern Alberta. The writer, Rev. G. W. Kilpatrick, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Ottawa, is a lover of the mountains and an advocate of the great outdoors. He has succeeded in conveying this spirit in a striking manner to the readers of this publication.

In form this booklet rises to the standpoint of excellence usually set by the National Parks Branch of the Department of the Interior in its publications. The cover design is striking and harmoniously blended in color. This delightful little booklet offers something different, in contrast to ordinary scenic descriptive literature. It leans towards the humanitarian and the spiritual, embodying in a marked degree the motive prompting National Parks inception.

The text deals not so much with the outstanding scenic features of this national reserve or the individual points of interest, as with the benefits that are to be obtained through direct association with nature. It is a splendid effort at bringing home to Canadians the realization that the wonders of their native land are lying unappreciated at their very doors.

The reader is taken on a trail trip through the mountains, and a vivid description is given of the beauties of the ever-changing panorama attending such a journey. The daily routine of the pack-train is set forth in a description that draws and holds interest and inspires a desire to participate in such an outing. Even the inclusion of a description of one of the terrific, though brief, mountain storms adds to the wonder of the journey.

The illustrations are excellent as representing the primeval scenery of the unblazed trails in this, one of our greatest and most extensive wonderlands. The references to the flora and fauna will prove of great interest to all nature lovers.

EASY TRICKS One Hundred

This is a figure puzzle that is not so well known as it should be. The problem is to arrange one digit in such a way that repeated four times it will equal one hundred.

The stunt is easily done and, fortunately, is easily remembered. Figure 1 shows how it is done. A second stunt is to arrange the nine digits in their order in such a manner that the total will be 100. Figure 2 shows how this is done. This stunt is particularly interesting because the digits must be used in their order. Several ways of doing this are possible if this is not required. Perhaps you can discover some of them.

Sent Woman to Bed. Great Change After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sarnia, Ontario.—"After my girls were born I was a wreck. My nerves were too terrible for words and I simply could not stand or walk without pains. I suffered with fainting spells until I was no longer any good for my household duties and had to take to my bed. The doctor said I should have an operation, but I was not in a fit condition at that time. My neighbor said, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' I am sure it will do you good and will save those doctor's bills." So I was advised by my husband to try it after I told him about it. I am very thankful to say that I was soon able to take a few boarders for a while as rooms were scarce at that time. My baby is 17 months old now and I have not yet had an operation, thanks to your medicine. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to a few people I know and have told them the good it has done me. FEEDS THAT TAINT MILK

Undesirable Flavors Given by Some Plants in Autumn

Ragweed an Offender—Rag Clover, Turnip Tops and Rape Also Make Taints—Oil on Perches Stop Hen Lice—To Remove Paint.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

One of the worst weeds for producing bad flavors in milk during the autumn season is ragweed. So says Prof. H. H. Dean of the Ontario Agricultural College. This gives a peculiar pungent odour to milk, which is very objectionable for both cheese and buttermaking. For condensing, powdering, and for city milk and cream trade such milk would be rejected and returned to the farmer. A Bad Case of Ragweed Taint.

A case is known where a cheese-maker was obliged to leave the factory because the cheese was rejected by the cheese buyers on account of bad flavor. On investigation it was found that ragweed grew on many patrons' farms nearly as high as the fences. When pastures are short, as they frequently are in September and October, the cattle eat the weed. This taints the milk and causes no end of trouble for both cheese and buttermakers. The remedy, of course, is to rid the farms of this noxious weed, or else prevent the cows from pasturing in fields where the ragweed grows.

Rag Clover Will Give Taint.

Sometimes very-rank clover will give a taint to the milk. The remedy is to turn the cows into a fresh clover field for only a short time each day until they grow accustomed to the flavor and the persons buying or using the milk become adjusted to the change in flavor.

Turnip Tops Give Offensive Flavor.

Among crops grown for feeding purposes, one of the worst flavored is turnip tops. As soon as the turnip crop is harvested some farmers turn their cattle into the field to clean up the tops, small turnips, etc. This practice is sure to result in bad-flavored milk and cream. Most dairy men warn their patrons against this, as it has been found impossible to prevent turnip-tainted butter where much cream comes from farms where "cows break into the turnip field unknown to the owner."

Rape Nearly as Bad as Turnips.

Rape is nearly as bad as turnip tops. In beef-raising sections, where rape is largely grown for fattening cattle and sheep, the cows, if allowed into the rape field, are almost sure to give tainted milk. If the farmer is using the milk and cream at home and likes the turnip or rape favor all right; but to sell this raw material for manufacturing purposes will spoil the cheese and butter. We cannot be too careful with the autumn foods for dairy cows. Prices are usually good, and we must produce milk of good flavor.—Dept. of Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

Oil on Perches Stops Hen Lice.

When I started to keep poultry I built a new hen-house, and the first year I had no trouble at all with mites, but the second year gave me lots of work. But one day I went out on a pleasure drive which took me close to a friend's home whom I knew to be a good poultry woman. I asked to see her flock, to which she gladly led the way.

The building was just a ramshackle old affair to which several leans had been added as her flock grew in size. She went right into the house, but I hesitated, for when I looked in I saw all sorts of boxes and barrels half full of straw with hens on them, the only thing provided for them to lay in. But she invited me in, and reluctantly I complied. She led off in conversation, I listening, expecting any minute to be set upon by mites. After a few minutes it dawned upon me there were no mites in there, he asked her how she managed to keep such a place free from mites. She turned to the perches, pointed at them and said, "See those black perches. That is oil on them."

I went home and oiled the perches in my new hen-house and have had no mites since; that was three years ago. Each year, after the incubating season is over, I paint the perches heavily with the cheapest lubricating oil procurable, and now I don't think I have a mite on the place. Mites all leave the hen before daylight. The oil kills them, and enough of it gets on the feathers to kill the young as they hatch on the hen's body. Don't put the oil on till the hatching is over or you'll regret it.

To Remove Paint.

To remove old paint from wood-work or automobile body, wash with a strong, hot solution of concentrated lye. Dissolve one can of lye in every gallon of water used and apply while hot. A wooden tub or bucket is an suitable container for the solution. An old paint brush or a heavy cloth may be used to apply the paint remover. The hands should be protected by wearing rubber gloves. After letting solution soak into the paint, which requires about ten minutes, it may be removed with a stiff wire brush or steel wool. A brush or wool becomes clogged with paint, rinse in a pail of clean water. In stubborn cases, or where there are several coats of paint, two or three applications may be necessary.

ERADICATION OF WEEDS

Co-operative Experiments Show How It May Be Done

Rape for Perennial Sow Thistles and Twitch Grass—Iron Sulphate for Mustard—Another Plan for Killing Twitch—O. A. C. Barley Popular in the United States.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

As a result of ten years' experiments the following methods are recommended by the department of Botany of the Ontario Agricultural College:

Use of Rape to Destroy Perennial Sow Thistle and Twitch Grass.

Cultivate the field until about the middle of June, running over it frequently with the cultivator so as to keep the tops down and thus weaken the "roots." Then apply manure at the rate of about twenty tons per acre (12 good loads). Cultivate the manure in thoroughly, and with a double mould board plough slightly ridge up the land, making the ridges about 26 inches apart. On the ridges sow pasture rape at the rate of 1 1/2 pounds per acre. It is important that the right amount of rape be sown; for if too little is sown the stand will not be thick enough to smother the weeds, and if on the other hand too much is sown the weeds will be too crowded and not grow vigorously enough to keep ahead of the weeds. Sow the rape when the land is sufficiently moist to insure quick germination of the seed. If the rape is slow in starting the weeds may get a start in the rows and thus necessitate hand cultivation there. Cultivate the rape every week or ten days until it occupies all the ground and makes further cultivation impossible. If, when the rape is cut or pastured, any weeds remain, the field should be ridged up the last thing in the fall and put in with a hoed crop the following year. This should not be necessary if a good stand of rape is secured.

Spraying With Iron Sulphate to Destroy Mustard in Cereal Crops.

Iron sulphate or coppers can be successfully used to destroy mustard in standing grain without injury to the crop.

Preparation of Solution.

A 20% solution should be applied. This can be prepared by dissolving 80 lbs. of iron sulphate in 40 gallons of water. Iron sulphate is dissolved quite readily in cold water. The solution should be strained through a cheese cloth, as it is put into the spray pump tank. This will remove dirt and small particles that are apt to clog the nozzles.

Time to Apply.

Apply on a calm, clear day just as soon as the first few plants in the fields show flowers. It is very important to spray early. If the plants are left too long the treatment is not nearly so effective. If a heavy rain comes within 24 hours after the solution is applied, it will be necessary to spray again.

How to Apply the Solution.

An ordinary hand pump barrel sprayer, such as is employed to spray fruit trees may be used, or a potato sprayer can be rigged up to do the work. Many of the up-to-date sprayers have a special broadcast attachment for spraying weeds. These are excellent for large areas, as they cover a wide strip at each round. Care must be taken to see that every mustard plant is covered with the solution in the form of a fine spray. Iron sulphate may be obtained at any hardware store.—J. E. Howitt, O. A. College, Guelph.

Another Plan for Killing Twitch Grass.

A successful experiment in ridding land of twitch grass was made recently by the Farm Department of the Ontario Agricultural College on a field that was a mass of twitch after the oat crop had been removed.

The land was so badly infested that the field produced a very small crop that season. After the oats were removed, the land was ploughed lightly and tractor-diced twice, and then cultivated and harrowed. Later in the fall this field was ploughed with a double-disc plough, the front disc cutting six to seven inches deep and the rear disc twelve to thirteen inches. This brought loose subsoil up and threw it on top of the soddy mass of roots.

In the following spring the field was planted to flint corn in the check-row system. Practically no twitch made an appearance during the summer, and the field, without fertilizer, produced an excellent crop of flint corn for husking.

O. A. C. Barley Grown in the United States.

Dr. C. A. Zavitz received a letter recently from Prof. Moore of the Agricultural College of Wisconsin, which says: "Now practically all of the barley grown in Wisconsin, and in many of our surrounding States, emanated from the few pounds of barley which you so kindly sent up. We will never be able to get even for the good things you have done for us in bygone years."

If a little flour paste, say a pint to each pailful, is added to the whitewash used on the inside of the poultry house it will stick better and last well longer, adding half an ounce of carbolic acid to each pailful will also hold insect enemies in check.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS

During the winter season it is recommended to housewives to include in the daily menu some fresh fruit and vegetable for these are rich in the elusive "vitamins" so necessary to keep one in healthful and strong condition. In salads one may safely find these vitamins.

Every housewife likes to try a change of dressing for salads and an excellent one is the following:

Salad Dressing

- 1-4 cup cider or wine vinegar.
- 2 tablespoons olive oil.
- 1 onion.
- Juice of 4 or 5 drops Worcestershire sauce.

Blend together thoroughly and let stand several hours before using.

Pepper and Potato Salad

- 4 potatoes, cut in cubes.
- 1 Spanish onion chopped fine.
- Lettuce.
- Green or red peppers, canned or fresh.

Whitening Clothes

A tablespoonful of coal oil to every gallon of the water in which clothes are boiled will make them a good color.

Cleaning a Frock

If the neck and sleeves of a dainty frock become soiled, do not wash the whole garment. Hot water and a stiff nail brush will do the work.

Cleaning Furs

Do not, under any consideration wash your furs with soap and water. Try dry cleaning them with a paste made of gasoline and cornstarch, rub it well into the fur until the fur is clean, then let it dry. When quite dry beat the cornstarch out with a rattan or light stick, comb carefully. This is the advice of a furrier.

Banana Salad

Peel the bananas required. Cut in half lengthwise and dip each in salad dressing given above. Dip each half in finely chopped walnuts and serve on lettuce leaves. A more delicious salad is to place the split bananas on lettuce leaves and serve with a boiled dressing mixed with sour cream and garnished with salted almonds.

Chop Suey

Cut in cubes one pound of veal steak. Melt two tablespoons dripping in frying pan and then add the veal, searing it well. Then add 2 cupfuls diced celery, 1 cupful Spanish onions, diced. Cook slowly until the celery and onions are tender. Add one large can mushrooms with their liquor and one-third cupful of water, together with 1 tablespoonful chopped peanuts 1 tablespoon salt and a dash of pepper. Cover and simmer 20 minutes. Place in a mound on a hot platter, surround with boiled rice sprinkled with paprika.

Apple Fritters

Five apples, one cup flour, one and one-half teaspoons baking powder, one-quarter teaspoon salt, one egg, three-quarters cup milk. Peel, core and cut apples into slices. Beat the other ingredients together, until smooth. Then dip each slice in the batter and fry until a delicate brown in deep fat. Drain on brown paper and sprinkle with powdered sugar before serving.

Mix potatoes and onions together with any salad dressing, making the mixture quite moist. On lettuce leaves cut large rings of the peppers and fill well with the mixture. Delicious served with veal or beef sandwiches.

ALL RIGHTS RESERVED

She (a publisher's daughter)—"Well, 'All rights reserved,' I think would be rather nice."

Not built on any particular plan,
Not blessed with any particular luck,
Just steady and earnest and full of pluck.
For the woman who wins is the one who works,
Who neither labor nor trouble shirks,
Who uses her hand, her head, her eyes,
The woman who wins is the woman who tries.

PROGRAM OUTLINED IN SPEECH FROM THRONE

Amendment of Grain Act and Equalization of Freight Rates in Coming Session.

A despatch from Ottawa says:—The last gun of the royal salute has been fired and another parliamentary session is under way. The King's will has been made known to his Commons through the speech from the Throne and the people's elected representatives will begin on Monday to discuss the "humble" speech in acceptance, which is the invariable forerunner to the general work of Canada's principal Legislature. Chief among the measures forecasted in the King's speech are those dealing with freight rates on land and sea. Senate reform, the most outstanding of the legislation expected for this session, is to be submitted to a conference between Federal and Provincial Governments before Parliament is asked to consider in detail an amendment to the constitution of Canada "with respect to the constitution and powers" of the Upper House.

In brief, the speech from the Throne indicates that the Government intends to ask Parliament for legislation to give:

- (1) Equalization of freight rates between provinces and localities.
- (2) Government control of ocean rates.
- (3) Improvement in equipment of ports on both coasts and on the St. Lawrence River.
- (4) Colonization and settlement (which implies railroad construction) in the Peace River district.
- (5) An Act to amend the Grain Act.

MILITARY ALLIANCE BETWEEN BRITAIN AND FRANCE TO SECURE PEACE IN EUROPE

A despatch from Paris says:—The Franco-British security pact is almost ready. Lord Crewe, who was in London several days consulting with the British Government, has returned to Paris and has had two long interviews with Premier Herriot on the subject. As it is being discussed, the pact is for a French-British or French-British-Belgian defensive treaty. In other words, the British Government is to make a military alliance with France for the peace and security of Europe. German feelers which were made during the past ten days for a general security pact are, on the other hand, based on the proposition of Rhineland disarmament.

The Herriot Government would like a general European agreement for security and disarmament with Germany also, if the Germans are willing to enter into the League of Nations without conditions and guarantee its own peace treaty frontiers—which would mean final acceptance by Germany of the Polish corridor and Posen and Silesian frontiers.

The British have apparently informed the French and the Germans they would have nothing against a Franco-German Rhineland agreement, but as for the British, their idea as expressed in Paris is for an inter-allied agreement.

Lord Crewe made the significant statement in an address at a luncheon given by the Friends of France to the French and British newspapermen: "We have arrived at a difficult moment in European politics. The time elapsed since the armistice has in no way cooled the sentiments of friendship and gratitude among the allies, which continue to become stronger and more vivid with the passage of years.

"Nevertheless, several peace problems as complicated as the war's prob-

TWO KILLED, RAILWAY CLOSED IN KOOTENAY

Disastrous Snowslides on the Mountain Caused by Days of Thaw and Rain.

A despatch from Nelson, B.C. says:—Two lives lost, a railway line closed for the season and one house demolished are the results so far reported of Kootenay snowslides following days of thaw and rain.

At five o'clock in the morning a snow and mud slide demolished the ranch house of John H. Hoyle, at Queen's Bay, overwhelming the portion of the house containing Mr. and Mrs. Hoyle, and carrying away the upper portion containing John Hoyle, a son, and Miss Mary Holt, a servant, were sleeping. The latter two escaped serious injuries and emerged by windows. A force of 22 shovel men worked all day on the tons of mud in which Mr. and Mrs. Hoyle are buried, without success. The house was at the foot of a ravine, and it is thought a snowslide came part way down, choked the ravine and caused water to back up, the subsequent rush of snow and water bringing away the banks of the ravine. A water tank half a mile up the ravine is believed to be the object that struck the house. The Hoyles have ratched there for 18 years.

Three big slides came down at various times since mid-day on the Kaslo and Nakusp branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway, all between the Rambler Mine and Zinton, the largest being 900 feet wide and 50 feet deep. The others are respectively 300 and 200 feet wide and 20 feet deep. The C.P.R. will abandon the Kaslo-Slocan service for the winter in consequence, and travel will be routed by the lakes.

lems, become more and more difficult to solve."

Citing Shakespeare's verse, "There is a tide in the affairs of men," he said: "We used the rising tide in economic domain in forming the Dawes plan. Let us be careful not to allow to escape the favorable tide in the problems of security and final peace, always protecting our rights and our duties as they were set down in the treaties."

As British Ambassadors in making public statements always speak with premeditation (and in the name of their Government, Lord Crewe's speech is taken here to mean that the British Government has definitely decided upon a British-French defensive alliance.

It is not what others think of us that really counts, as much as what we think of ourselves.

Memory is the treasurer to whom we must give funds, if we would draw the assistance we need.—Rowe.

BOTH PARTIES CLAIM VICTORY IN EGYPT

Elections at Mehalla el Kebir Rendered Null by Revolution in Miniature.

A despatch from Cairo, Egypt, says:—Both sides to the Egyptian Parliamentary contest expressed gratification on Thursday with the results of the primary election, and affirmed their confidence in obtaining a majority in the next Parliament. The Liberal Constitutional leaders dispute the claim to a majority of the former delegates made by the party of Premier Zaghlul Pasha, who asserted that the reports showed 90 per cent. of the delegates in favor of the Zaghlul party, the anti-Zaghlulists pointing to the far better showing they made than last year, and professing great encouragement over their prospects. Owing to the smashing of voting urns and the destruction of the list of electors by a mob, the elections at Mehalla el Kebir were declared null. The incident was for all practical purposes a revolution in miniature which only strong measures prevented from attaining more serious proportions. Inquiry shows that the Wardist candidate and his friends fomented the trouble. Some of them were actually seen inciting the people to violence, and those accused of doing this were afterwards found in the Ward candidate's house. Sixty persons have been arrested.

One Hundred Years Old, 86 Years in French Family

Eighty-six years of service in the same family is the record which Victoire Desrumeaux, a domestic, celebrated on the occasion of her 100th birthday, says a Paris despatch. The French papers are losing no opportunity to comment on this remarkable example of fidelity in view of the modern custom of maids and cooks changing their positions almost monthly—often merely for the sake of the change.

One Motor Craft Built by Britain for Every 3 Steamships

A despatch from New York says:—Ship tonnage under construction in Great Britain at the close of 1924 was 1,296,971 tons, about 98,000 tons less than a year ago, according to the Bankers' Trust Co. of New York. It is estimated that one motor ship is being built for every three steamships, while in other countries the proportion is 12 motor ships for 11 steamships. In Germany, Denmark, Sweden and Holland a preponderating proportion of motor ships is being built, the German figures being 47 motor ships of 274,000 tons against 40 steamships of 79,000 tons.

Historic "Dove Fair" Held Annually in Silesia

Pigeons from all over Germany were brought to Lahn, in the mountains of Silesia, where annually in January the historic "Dove Fair" takes place. This event dates back to the Middle Ages and owes its origin to the fact that the region around Lahn abounded with wild pigeons. In 1501 they reached such numbers that they destroyed the harvest. The fair is now noted for the fine specimens of pure breeds exhibited.
