THE NEW MODEL

TRIUMPH

ADDING AND COMPUTING MACHINE, $15.00.

Combines all the features of the high-priced, non-listing Adding Machine, together with ease of operation, high speed and portability.

The TRIUMPH Adding Machine has a capacity of 999,999.99 and can especially be adapted for computation in fractions, inches, decimals and English currency.

It is not only an Adding Machine. It is a Computer of the highest degree. The machine multiplies, divides and subtracts with the same ease that other machines add.

The TRIUMPH has a checking device that makes it indispensable to the man who counts his number of operations. This is an exclusive feature found only on the TRIUMPH.

It is operated by pulling a chain with the finger. It thus brings the possibility of error to a minimum.

In short, the TRIUMPH offers simplicity, accuracy, speed, portability and moderateness in price; a group of features that no adding machine has yet presented. Come in and try it. No obligation to buy. We will be glad to demonstrate it.

CHAPTER VIII.
"Tulliver!" called Kelpie. "Tulliver, what are you doing?"
There was not a sound in answer. Kelpie rapped sharply on the door. "Tulliver, Tulliver, are you asleep?" Not a sound still, but the silence of death within.
"Oh, Tom!" whispered Kelpie, "I'm afraid he's dead!"
"No danger of that," said Tom, but his face was anxious and his voice a trifle hoarse. "Let me unlock the door, Kelpie."
Obediently, the girl moved aside, and Tom turned the key and opened the door.
It was as dark as the grave in the small room, and as silent.
"Tulliver!" called Tom. "Come out of there, if you want to, Tulliver!"
Receiving no answer, he took out his match case and Kelpie struck a light.
"Hold the light higher, and I'll go down," he said.
She obeyed, and the assistant keeper went down the short flight of steps.
"Oh, Tom, what has happened?" cried Kelpie, in an agony of suspense. "Is he dead?"
"No, he isn't down here," was Tom's answer.

CHAPTER IX.
"Oh, Tom, I see a boat putting out from Thatcher's Rock!" cried Kelpie. "I do, indeed. Oh, it's daddy—I'm sure it's daddy. I'm so glad, so glad!"
Then the brave girl, who had not shed a tear during the perils and terrors of the past night, dropped the spyglass, and, sitting down on the deck, covered her face with her hands and wept like a child.
"Well, I wouldn't cry about it, little woman," said Tom, tenderly. "Let me take a look, and I'll soon tell you whether it's the cap'n or not."
And, picking up the glass, he swept the distant shores with an eagle glance.

"Yes, it's the cap'n!" he cried out, "and he's heading direct for New Castle Light; so you may dry your tears, little woman."

But Kelpie's tears flowed all the faster.
"How can I dry my tears, Tom," she exclaimed, "when I am crying for joy? Oh, I am so glad—so glad! It has been dreadful without him, and I've worried myself to death thinking he had perished in the storm. But he's coming home, and—oh, Tom, he should be so happy if we could only find out what has become of Tulliver. Tom, how do you suppose he managed to get out?"

"Heaven knows, Kelpie," replied Tom, with a bewildered look. "It is a great puzzle, but I dare say the cap'n will be able to explain it when he comes home."

"How can I tell you, Tom?"
"Would you like to have him come back, Kelpie?"
A swift blush warmed Kelpie's cheeks, and her eyes flashed.
"I don't think you have any right to ask me such a question, Tom," she replied.

"Well, I dare say you are right, and I beg your pardon. I've got a message for you," he added, "from the young man."

Kelpie started violently and the color deepened in her cheeks.
"What young man are you talking about, Tom?"
"Oh, don't pretend you don't know! The city chap, of course. He sent you this."

"He sent me this, Tom?" the girl repeated, taking the chain in her fingers. "Why, what a lovely little locket! Oh!—a happy light glowing in her eyes—it's got my name on it. Tom, where did you see this young man?"

"I haven't seen him at all, Kelpie."
"Well, how did you come by this?"
"Fate sent it, I suppose," he answered bitterly. "I was standing on the parapet last night, and a white bird that had beaten its breast out against the lantern glass fell fluttering at my feet. I picked it up, and by mere chance found the chain fastened about its neck. I removed the chain, and the bird died in my hand!"

"Oh, poor bird! What became of it, Tom?"
"Heaven knows. It was only a moment later that Tulliver rushed out and threw me over the parapet."
Kelpie held up the chain to the light and then took the locket in her fingers, her eyes radiant and the color of a wild rose in her cheeks.
"How wonderful!" she said softly. "How strange the poor bird should fly against the lantern! I can scarcely believe it."
"It happened all the same."
"Do you think the strange young man put this chain about the bird's neck, Tom?"
"I can't tell, Kelpie. It seems natural to hang ropes and other rubbish on, but you're mistaken. It holds a sliding panel in place."
"And what's the use of the sliding panel, daddy?" put in Kelpie.
"It shuts in a small door, from which an iron ladder, leading down to the base of the tower, is suspended."
"Why, how funny!" cried Kelpie. "Why, in the world, daddy, haven't you told us about this before?"
"Oh, I don't know," the old man replied; "it's a ticklish sort of contrivance, and I thought it better to say nothing about it."
"For what purpose do you suppose it was put there, sir?" asked Tom.
"I've never quite made up my mind. Tom, to be used in case of some great emergency, I suppose. I'll admit that it has always struck me as being a useless appendage. I was keeper here a number of years before I found out that such a place existed."
"Well, I never heard of such a thing. How did you find out about it, daddy?" asked Kelpie.
"The man who was here before me told me a very strange story on his deathbed about the secret passage, and afterward I searched and found it."
"A story, Tom, do you hear?" cried Kelpie breathlessly, "and the keeper told it on his deathbed. Oh, daddy, how could you keep it to yourself all this time?"
"I'm half sorry now that I've mentioned it," replied the old man, with a heavy sigh. "I'd better have kept the secret to myself. The first thing I know you'll be climbing down the iron ladder and breaking your neck."
"No danger of breaking my neck, daddy; but do tell us the story. I shan't sleep a wink to-night if you don't."

"Of course, he will. Daddy always explains everything. Oh, Tom"—clapping her hands like a child—"if it weren't for that poor, crippled arm of yours, wouldn't we have a jolly dance to-night?"
"I see nothing to hinder us, Kelpie," answered Tom. "I don't use but one arm when I waltz."
"Who said anything about waltzing. I'd like to know?" demanded Kelpie, with a toss of her pretty head.

The young assistant regarded her with adoring eyes; then all at once his handsome face clouded and he turned abruptly away.
"What's the matter, Tom?"
"No matter, little woman. Come sit here beside me. I've got something to tell you, and I want to get it over and done with before the cap'n gets here."

"Why, Tom, what in the world can you have to tell me?" said Kelpie, sitting down by his side.
The poor fellow was silent for a moment. He took the girl's soft little hand, petting and caressing it between both his own, and at last pressing it to his lips.
"Don't be foolish, Tom," said Kelpie. "I'd like to know what you're kissing my hand for?"
Tom had never spoken a word of love to Kelpie, and she shut his teeth hard together, determined not to betray himself now.

"I kissed your hand because it has done so many kind services for me," he replied.
"You great, big, dear, foolish fellow! What is it you've got to tell me? I'm waiting to hear."
"I'm going to ask you a question first. Do you think that city chap whose life we saved that night—Carroll Fitzhugh he called himself, I believe—do you think he'll ever come back to New Castle Light?"
"How can I tell you, Tom?"
"Would you like to have him come back, Kelpie?"

A swift blush warmed Kelpie's cheeks, and her eyes flashed.
"I don't think you have any right to ask me such a question, Tom," she replied.

1219.—A SEASONABLE ATTRACTIVE STYLE.
White linen was employed for this model, with trimming of striped tulle. The design would be pretty in rose colored gingham, or blue seersucker. It is suitable for all wash fabrics, and lovely for lawn and batiste, for cashmere, voile and poplin. A neat and becoming business suit could be developed after this pattern in serge of a pretty Burgundy shade, or the new brown or Russian green, with briars binding or silk or woolen contrasting material for trimming. The right front of the waist is crossed over the left in surplice style, and the low neck opening is filled in with a "dicker" or insert. This of net, tucking or embroidery would be very neat and cool looking. A new round collar and simple cuffs finish the smart waist. The skirt is gored and cut on new lines, with ample width of 44 inches. It may be finished in raised or normal waistline. The pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. It requires 3 1/2 yards of 44 inch material for a 36 inch size. The skirt measures 2 1/2 yards at the lower edge.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

1212.—A COMFORTABLE ATTRACTIVE NEGLIGEE.

Ladies' House or Lounge Robe (with Sleeve in Either of two Lengths) Figured cotton crepe in blue tones was used for this design. The free edges were bound with satin in a contrasting shade, and buttons to match trimmed the shaped front. The style is neat and pretty. It will lend itself nicely for developing in flannel, flannellette, silk, lawn, voile or cashmere. The sleeve is comfortable and may be finished in wrist or shorter length. This design could be used for a bath robe in flannel, blanketing, elderdown or towelling. The pattern is cut in 3 sizes: Small, Medium and Large. It requires 5 1/2 yards of 36 inch material for a Medium size. A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10c. in silver or stamps.

A full house greeted Mr. J. M. Kent at the Star Club Rooms last night, when he delivered a lecture on "Daniel O'Connell" to the members and their friends. Being introduced by the Chairman, Mr. J. J. Lacey, the lecturer reviewed the entire life of the great emancipator of our Irish ancestors, and for over an hour recounted his many trials and successes during his 74 years. At the close a very earnest vote of thanks moved by Mr. Thos. Kelly, seconded by Mr. D. M. Dempsey, and very eloquently supported by President E. M. Jackman was tendered the lecturer, who in thanking the Society said that it was a duty and a pleasure for him to come there. On next Thursday evening, Mr. M. A. Devine will lecture in the Club Rooms and on Monday, March 29th, Rev. Fr. Cox, S.J., will lecture in the Theatre flat, which has been kindly tendered by Jack Rossley for the occasion. His subject will not alone be interesting but of a highly entertaining nature, and special numbered reserved seats will be on sale shortly at the Atlantic Bookstore through the kindness of the affable Mr. Power.

Four sealers named Robert Butler, Ed. Costello, Ed. Harvey and John Mooney, belonging to Conception Bay points, who were amongst those who landed from the Erik when she struck the shore near Bay Bulls Head on Tuesday night last, went to their homes by last evening's train. They felt sorely disappointed over not being able to go to the ice.

M.C.L.I. Debate.

An M. C. L. I. programme without an "Education" debate would be incomplete, so that last evening the subject was: "Does instruction in accordance with the Curriculum of the C. H. E. tend to fit a Youth for a Commercial Life?"
The speakers for the affirmative were Dr. Chas. Roberts, Mr. Thomas Soper and Mr. Penny, and for the negative Mr. Wm. White, Mr. A. Hayward and Mr. L. Butler. The affirmative speakers built their chief arguments on the technical wording of the debate which was altogether in their favor, and contended that the word tend means to contribute and that no matter what a child learned at school, if he learned anything it was a contribution towards fitting him for a commercial career. It was also claimed that Education in general was all that was necessary and not education in particular. That the health of the children did not suffer by the enormous strain put on them by the C. H. E. Exams which compelled the study of so many subjects. That the C. H. E. was not responsible for the work done, that if there was any fault it lay with the teachers and the scholars. That the C. H. E. had stimulated education in Newfoundland.

The negative speakers argued that the results of the instruction given in accordance with the C. H. E. were very unsatisfactory and did not fit a youth, male or female, to enter commercial life. The C. H. E. official report for 1914 showed that out of 1,175 scholars who took the important subject of arithmetic in the primary grade, 11 to 13 years, 644 failed to reach 40 per cent. pass marks and contended that in this grade too much time was spent by teachers on the theoretical subjects at the expense of the practical. The preliminary grade statistics showed that only 60 per cent. of the scholars obtained 40 per cent. marks and over, and that too many subjects were taught in this grade and too much time was given to History, Algebra, Latin, Geometry, and French, this last subject occupying 1-5 of each day or one whole day in each week on a subject that is not of very great use to the average Newfoundland boy, and that this was done at the expense of better English, arithmetic, shorthand and office routine. It was also shown that the public schools of the United States and Canada dealing with children of this age, 12 to 14 years, do not teach algebra, geometry, languages, and the C. H. E. system forces the Newfoundland boy to struggle with these theoretical subjects at the expense of the more practical. The report of the London Examiners is very condemnatory in regard to such subjects as writing, arithmetic, shorthand, typing and office routine, as shown by the examination.

The time for discussion was fully occupied, several ex-teachers taking part who also said that it was impossible for a teacher to teach all that is required under the C. H. E. system, and do justice to the scholars or give them an education that fitted them to go into trade and commerce which was the chief source of employment in this country or any other.

The C. H. E. sets the standard of subjects, etc., for the examinations and that it was imperative that all teachers who regarded his or her own reputation to teach the subjects required for the exams and usually neglect the more practical subjects, the results showed this. On the vote being taken the affirmative won by a large majority chiefly on the technical wording of the debate.

THE QUEEN AND THE FASHIONS.

It has been much noticed that Her Majesty the Queen is not encouraging any tendency to wear dark or dull colors at present, and that in spite of the fact that the Court might adduce the loss of Prince Maurice of Battenburg as a reason for remaining in sombre hues. Her Majesty not only dresses Princess Mary in pretty, bright colors, but herself appears in them in public. At the big matinee for the Actors' Benevolent Fund, for instance, at the Royal Opera House, the Queen wore a wonderful shade of petunia color, while Princess Mary wore one of the new pastel blues that suited her fair hair and lovely coloring. The Queen is believed to approve of the wider skirts coming in, though it is of course noticeable that Her Majesty, now as always, keeps to her own style of dress, and prefers to be individual in her choice of the fashion.

THE FIFTH GUARDS.

General satisfaction is expressed at the announcement that His Majesty has approved of the addition of a battalion of Welsh Guards to the Household troops. The suggestion, which was made in a letter to the press less than a fortnight ago, has been adopted quickly, and the astonishing readiness of the War Office to meet this aspiration of the Welsh people is likely to give lively satisfaction in the Principality. Certain difficulties and objections were anticipated by those who were interesting themselves in the movement, and arrangements were being made to send a deputation on the subject to Lord Kitchener, but the timely action of the Government has disposed of the need for any agitation. A high standard is set before the new battalion by the four existing units of the Brigade of Guards. The Irish Guards who in the last six months have been undergoing their baptism of war, have already distinguished themselves, and it will be interesting to watch the rivalry which undoubtedly will be created by the presence on the field of two regiments of Guards who have yet to inscribe battle honors on their colors. King George is rumored to be considering the possibility of appointing the Prince of Wales as Colonel of these new Welsh Guards. The Brigade of Guards will present rather a curious formation when peace is declared, since the Grenadier Guards and the Coldstream Guards will each possess three battalions, the Scots Guards two battalions, and the Irish and Welsh Guards one battalion each, presuming, of course, that the present reserve battalions are then disbanded, as will probably be the case. Thus there will be then ten battalions in all, whereas a normal brigade consists of only four.

WAR, DENTISTS AND DOCTORS.

A correspondent informs me that he found a Wimpole Street dentist in a state of despondency the other evening. His complaint was that he had not had any patients since Christmas. My correspondent expressed surprise at this, and suggested that the army regulations about efficient teeth ought to have provided him with plenty of work. "So it has," he said, "but I don't get anything for that work. All the dentists are doing it for nothing. It's an ordinary practice which has gone to pieces. Either people aren't having any aching teeth now or they are."

bearing their aches with more fortitude!" Apparently it is not only dentists who are suffering from a dearth of patients. Many West End consultants are unemployed, and some of the Harley and Wimpole Street men—many are at the front—are talking moodily of the easiest way to the Marylebone Poorhouse. Another odd thing is that panel doctors are not being employed to anything like the extent they were before the war. There has been a large diminution in the number of insurance Act patients. It is difficult to account for this fact, although of course the absorption of large numbers of men into the army has a good deal to do with it. One doctor suggests that people are much too excited to be ill, while another declares that the consciousness of hardship and suffering at the front makes people ashamed to visit the surgery for the treatment of trifling ills.

THE CONDITION OF SERBIA.

Serbia has had a curiously chequered history in the war. Twice it has come largely into the map of current events owing to the invasion of its territories by Austria, and as many times it has won the distinction of having heavy newspaper headlines devoted to it by its splendid victories. After each crisis of activity, however, there is a period during which Serbia almost disappears from the newspapers. Just now, as a matter of fact, there are special reasons why so little should be known. Cablegrams from the country at present take seven days to reach England, and they are consequently rare. What is known is that Serbia's national resources are bearing the strain of the war with something approaching heroism. The difficulties are immense. I have excellent authority for saying that those parts of the country which were overrun by the Austrians have been devastated with peculiar brutality, and in these regions the civil population is suffering greatly in consequence. As to the army's condition, its reliability as a military force is beyond question. It is not perfectly equipped in certain respects. The need for help in its hospital arrangements may be best stated, perhaps, by saying that it is very difficult to take the elementary recreation of changing the clothes of the wounded.

A CONFERENCE OF NEUTRAL POWERS.

I have reason to believe that Germany's threat to torpedo neutral ships has definitely decided the United States Government to summon a conference of representatives of neutral countries in Europe, Asia and America at Washington. The necessity of such a conference was recently urged by the governing board of the Pan-American Union, which for the past six weeks has been engaged in drafting a series of proposals for the revision of the rules of international law in their bearing on the rights of neutrals in the present war. These proposals seek to define neutral rights in such questions as the presence of belligerent warships in close proximity to neutral shores, contraband seizures, detentions, etc. The repudiation in part of the Declaration of London by the Allied Powers, and the refusal of the United States Government to accept piecemeal adoption of the Declaration, have forced neutral nations to frame their own codes of law. The resulting lack of uniformity has led to much controversy and confusion. I learn that if and when the governing board's proposals are adopted by the Conference they will be submitted for consideration to the belligerent Powers. Germany's threat has rendered necessary the prompt meeting of the Conference, and to enable this to take place immediately it has been suggested that the diplomatic representatives at Washington of all the neutral Powers should act as delegates. The Ambassadors have already been consulted on this point, and are said to have expressed themselves in favor of the course suggested. They are now awaiting instructions from their respective Governments.

majority are erratic Winchester of the old pattern. Yet the shooting in these places is often very good and exciting. There is one not very far from Temple Bar which attracts interesting patrons. The social grades of the civilians who use the ranges are almost as varied as the regiments represented by the men in khaki. Many Kitchener recruits practise grimly at the special target which on being hit in the bull promptly exhibits a portrait of the approving countenance of the Secretary of State for War. Some marvelous marksmanship is to be seen. There was a colonial private, who has now gone to the front, who came in regularly every week with half a dozen of his comrades. He would fire 16 shots in 32 seconds at 25 yards, forfeiting five shillings to each of his friends for every bullet placed outside the outline of a man about the size of an ordinary playing card and receiving a like amount for every perforation of the figure. One night he made about £60 at this game. Shooting for high stakes is fairly common. Two Americans entered one of these booths the other evening and had a match. They shot at lighted candles, the only hits that counted being those that put out the candle without knocking it down. This means striking fair on the wick every time. The stakes were £5 a shot, and one of the marksmen won £30.

No Indigestion, Gas, Sourness or Upset Stomach if you'll take "Pape's Diapepsin"—Try This!

Do some foods you eat hit back—taste good, but work badly; ferment into stubborn lumps and cause a sick, sour, gassy stomach? Now, Mr. or Mrs. Diapepsin, get this down: Pape's Diapepsin digests everything, leaving nothing to sour and upset you. There never was anything so safely quick, so certainly effective. No difference how badly your stomach is disordered you will get happy relief in five minutes, but what pleases you most is that it strengthens and regulates your stomach so you can eat your favorite foods without fear.

Most remedies give you relief sometimes—they are slow, but not sure. "Pape's Diapepsin" is quick, positive and puts your stomach in a healthy condition so the misery won't come back.

You feel different as soon as "Pape's Diapepsin" comes in contact with the stomach—distress just vanishes—your stomach gets sweet, no gases, no belching, no eructations of undigested food, your head clears and you feel fine.

Go now, make the best investment you ever made, by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder.

SPRING BOOK PUBLISHING.

Like many other trades, that of publishing is showing signs of a definite revival. Conversations which I have had to-day with several members of the most important publishing firms reveal the fact that the prospects are better now than anybody looking forward from last August could have hoped they would be at this time. There are some reservations to be made in this statement of a general view. Although a general revival in trade affects the publishing business, it is still true, as one publisher put it, that "books are a luxury." There is sufficient uncertainty in the prospect also to make some members of the trade, and probably some authors, hesitate to fix dates for publication. However, most firms have issued, or are about to issue, a respectable spring list—considerably shorter list than usual, but decidedly interesting. There are signs of the war almost everywhere.

in them—novels which take the hero to the Battle of Mons, a noteworthy ingredient of books of foreign origin, and books of travel in the belligerent countries. War subjects have even forced themselves into some of the modern "libraries" of new books. One notices the absence of some distinguished names which might have been expected to appear in the ordinary course among the spring authors. But Mr. Alfred Noyes has written a play about Belgium, Mr. Conrad—who was caught by the war in Galicia, but is now back in London—has produced a new novel, and work by Maxim Gorky and Strindberg is also to appear in English for the first time. This is a respectable achievement for so delicate a trade in so strenuous a time.

"Yes, a woman in her own house always extends her hand when any one is presented to her, thereby conveying a sign of cordial welcome of the acquaintance," said her mother.

The public meeting and the addressing of the schools at Fortune finished the work in that section, and our next duty was to hasten back to Grand Bank to catch the "Glencoe." We found the schools at Fortune well conducted, and also were pleased to find that there was a reading room in connection with the Good Templar Order. At 2 p.m., February 4th, the Glencoe left Grand Bank, and amidst thick slob forced her way out the bay and about 6 p.m. arrived at St. Lawrence. The stay here was short, and it being dark there was not much chance seeing the place. We were, however, fortunate in meeting Capt. Thomas Farrell, and from whom we learned that St. Lawrence had sent several volunteers to the front, and that the industrial and domestic conditions of the people were entirely satisfactory.

The next port of call was Burin, where there was some delay owing to ice conditions. While waiting we interviewed Magistrate Avery, and also visited the C. of E. and R. C. Schools, and found the buildings well adapted to teaching, and the teachers very courteous. Burin is one of our principal centres of trade, and it possesses a splendid fleet of banking schooners, some of which have cost as high as ten and twelve thousand dollars each, and were built at Shelburne, N. S. These schooners begin fishing operations early in the season, and are commanded by some of the smartest captains of the West Coast. Among the names which stand foremost in Burin we may mention the following:—Bishop, Vigus, Hollett, Goddard, Bartlett, Brushett, Lukpen, Collins, Keech, Street, Emberley and Darby. These were the forerunners and founders of Burin's present success and their names are entwined in the whole history and business of the place. The splendid churches, and presbytery and convent, all speak the high ideals of the people, and tell the passerby that is the higher duties of life Burin takes a foremost place.

Among the passengers on board the Glencoe we met Capt. Wm. Hollett, who is well known as one of the most successful banking masters of Newfoundland, and from him we learned that bank fishing as conducted at present, is a much safer and much easier industry than it was under the old way of fishing. Formerly the dories left their vessels and rowed to the distance to set their trawls, and then rowed back to the ships, thereby entailing hard toil upon the part of the dory man. But now the custom is for the vessel to be more stationary than was possible under the old custom. This is done by the vessel arranging all her dories and dropping them in order for a distance of about two miles, and then sailing to and fro for the purpose of picking them up, and taking the fish on board. This means that the vessel does not anchor as heretofore, and that the men being all systematically berthed there is no danger of loss either by storm or fog. Each dory keeps its place and tends its own particular section of the trawls, and whether it becomes foggy or blowy there is an understanding that they are to remain at their position until the vessel drops along and picks them up. Capt. Hollett informed me that it is a splendid system of fishing and that the few men on board are able to work their vessel under small sail, and to keep in constant touch with the crews of the various dories. To make it still more safe the vessel keeps as much as possible to the windward of the dories, so that in the event of an accident or an emergency, it is quite an easy matter to run down before the wind and pick up the men before there is time for loss or danger.

The splendid churches, and presbytery and convent, all speak the high ideals of the people, and tell the passerby that is the higher duties of life Burin takes a foremost place.

Among the passengers on board the Glencoe we met Capt. Wm. Hollett, who is well known as one of the most successful banking masters of Newfoundland, and from him we learned that bank fishing as conducted at present, is a much safer and much easier industry than it was under the old way of fishing. Formerly the dories left their vessels and rowed to the distance to set their trawls, and then rowed back to the ships, thereby entailing hard toil upon the part of the dory man. But now the custom is for the vessel to be more stationary than was possible under the old custom. This is done by the vessel arranging all her dories and dropping them in order for a distance of about two miles, and then sailing to and fro for the purpose of picking them up, and taking the fish on board. This means that the vessel does not anchor as heretofore, and that the men being all systematically berthed there is no danger of loss either by storm or fog. Each dory keeps its place and tends its own particular section of the trawls, and whether it becomes foggy or blowy there is an understanding that they are to remain at their position until the vessel drops along and picks them up. Capt. Hollett informed me that it is a splendid system of fishing and that the few men on board are able to work their vessel under small sail, and to keep in constant touch with the crews of the various dories. To make it still more safe the vessel keeps as much as possible to the windward of the dories, so that in the event of an accident or an emergency, it is quite an easy matter to run down before the wind and pick up the men before there is time for loss or danger.

tested to learn of this newer and better mode of bank-fishing, and to know that such a systematic course is possible, and that it is being found both satisfactory and beneficial. Those of us who live on the land cannot really know what the dangers of bank-fishing are; for at the best of times, and with the staunchest ships, and with the safest systems, there is ever lurking "neath the surface of the sea, a treachery and a risk to "those who go down to the sea in ships, and do business upon great waters."

Obituary.

MR. J. H. NICHOLS.

It is with regret that we chronicle to-day the passing of Mr. James H. Nichols, printer, which sad event occurred yesterday afternoon at the General Hospital, after a long and painful illness. The deceased was well and favourably known among the old-time printers, many of whom will hear with regret of his demise. A sad feature in connection with the death of Mr. Nichols is that only on Wednesday past his beloved wife was laid to rest, she also had been a sufferer for a number of years. To the seven daughters and one son who are left to mourn the death of a loving father and mother the Telegram extends deep sympathy in their double sorrow.

MR. THOMAS NOLAN.

On Saturday, March 6th, after a very brief illness, Thomas Nolan passed peacefully away at his son's residence, at the age of 70 years. The deceased was one who from boyhood to old age would be a very good example as he was one of those men who if he could not benefit a neighbour in some way he certainly would not injure him either by word or action; let us hope he has gained the reward such conduct merits hereafter. Boston and Canadian papers please copy. COR. Salmonier, March 10th, 1915.

Piles 2 Years. Cured by ZAM-BUK

Mr. W. J. Donovan of New Edinburgh, Ont., writes, "For two years I suffered from bleeding piles. The pain was most intense. I tried first one and then another of the so-called remedies but without effect. At last I decided to try Zam-Buk. This gave quick relief from the dull gnawing pain, and perseverance with Zam-Buk entirely cured me."

Mr. Henry S. Fougere, Poulamond, N. S., says,—"I suffered terribly with piles and could not find anything to give relief until I tried Zam-Buk. The first few applications eased the pain. I continued using Zam-Buk and am now completely cured."

The above letters are taken from hundreds which have been received from men and women who have ended their suffering from piles by using Zam-Buk. Why not do likewise?

Whether it be Piles, Eczema, Ulcers, or other skin disease, Zam-Buk gives quick relief. As soon as applied, the rich herbal essences, of which Zam-Buk is composed, penetrate right to the root of the trouble, stop the irritation and stimulate the growth of new healthy tissue. Zam-Buk is the best cure for Cuts, Burns, Bruises, Piles, Eczema, Chapped Hands, Cold Sores, Ulcers, and all skin diseases and injuries. BRITISH VICTORY IN NORTH FRANCE — GUNS AT CHANK GROW WEAKER.

LONDON, To-day. The arrival of the German auxiliary cruiser Prinz Eitel Friedrich at Newport News is removing for a time at least another menace to British shipping. The successes of the British troops in the region of Labasse are for the moment the most interesting topic of discussion in the British press. Whether Prinz Eitel Friedrich will be interned or will again set out for the High Seas, it is considered here that her career as an armed cruiser must come to an end, for should she be allowed to sail after repairs, it is believed the Allies on watch will account for her. The possible action of the American Government with regard to the sinking by Prinz Eitel Friedrich of the American ship William P. Frye is also being much discussed. The general view is that if the States allow German warships to sink American ships with food supplies for England, the Government can hardly protest against the Allies' prohibition of food-stuffs to Germany. Of the British victory in Northern France there is no news beyond the official reports. It is believed, however, while no great amount of ground has been captured, the improvement in the British position brought about by it is of the greatest importance. If pressed further it might compel the Germans to evacuate Labasse and perhaps other points which make their lines so strong at present. Equally important was the success achieved by the British airmen, destroying the railway junctions at Minin and Courtrai. These are one of the German main lines of communication and their destruction delay the arrival of new contingents of troops which are reported to be again concentrating in Belgium for another attempt to break through Calais and Boulogne. According to a Dutch report these troops have brought with them a large number of boats for the passage of canals and rivers, and for the first time for months they include cavalry units. There has been some fighting in Champagne but, on the whole, the French seem to be satisfied for the present with the progress they have made in that region. In the Vosges the battle for Reich Ackerkopf has been resumed. These, however, are small affairs in comparison with the battles which are in progress in North Poland between the Niemen and the Vistula rivers. The Germans apparently are falling back North, but are fighting a rear-guard action which reached the importance of a pitched battle and are taking few prisoners. The Germans are again in Augustow forest on the East Prussian border which has been the burial place of so many German and Russian soldiers. The Germans have brought up more guns but of lighter calibre to bombard Ossowitz, while further to the south in the neighbourhood of Ostrowo they claim to have defeated the Russians. The battle on the roads from Khorjole to Przasnysz, along which the Germans hope to reach and pierce the Russian fortress line still continues. The weather having turned colder the ground in North Poland has hardened which will greatly facilitate a movement of troops. This is said to be the first time in history that weather favored an army, attempting to invade Russia. Reports from Tenedos say the Turkish artillery in the Dardanelles grows weaker daily, that the last bombardment by the Allied warships badly damaged forts at Chanak Kalfisi. Two big cruisers spent the night in the Straits protecting the vessels engaged in mine-sweeping. Despatches from Rome indicate that the German Ambassador, Prince Von Bielow, has renewed negotiation with the Italian Government with the object of securing the continued neutrality of that country in return for territorial concessions in Austria, Austria, however, is said to be opposed to making any such concessions as would satisfy Italy.

MANY GERMAN SUBMARINES MISSING.

LONDON, To-day. A despatch to the Express from the Hague says: A secret report has been sent from Cuxhaven to the Admiralty at Berlin that twelve submarines have failed to report at their base, eight of them being among Germany's newest boats. The Naval Council will meet to-day or to-morrow under the Presidency of Emperor William to discuss whether or not it would be better to abandon the submarine war.

DETAIN AMERICAN STEAMER.

LONDON, To-day. Laden with the products of American factories, the American steamer A. A. Raven, has been detained in the Downs. The cargo is consigned to dealers at Rotterdam, and the British Government insists that it must be consigned to Netherlands Overseas Trust, before it is allowed to proceed. The steamer sailed from New York on February 12th.

FOUR BURNED TO DEATH IN QUEBEC BLAZE.
Quebec, Mar. 3.—Four persons perished early to-day when fire broke out in a dwelling house in Saint-Sauveur ward, partly destroying a two-story building and burning to death Mrs. Arthur Talbot, 35 years, and three of her children. All the victims were trapped by the flames and burned beyond recognition.
In the blaze the lives of fourteen persons were endangered, for two families occupied the place, the lower flat was occupied by the Talbot grocery, while the upper flats had the tenants of the Talbots and of Raoul Decolin, the latter escaping through windows with his wife and five children. Of the Talbot family, only four escaped.

ATTEMPTED TO RANSACK CELLAR.
Three mischievous lads, who were evidently bent on nefarious work, made a bold attempt to get look about 11 o'clock to-day. They had been engaged to remove the snow from the sidewalk of a Duckworth St. residence. Having finished and got paid for their job, they hung round and watched their chance to get into the cellar of the house as they must have known what was kept there. Eventually two of them lifted off the hatch and the other was endeavoring to get down through when a young man, who passed by and noticing that something was wrong, alarmed the occupant of the house. Meanwhile the young scamps fled.

Hr. Grace Notes.

The wind to-day is blowing strong from the westward, a welcome change from the continuous east winds for the past few weeks. The ice is moving out and if the breeze holds good for a few days our harbor and bay will be free of ice.

Among the volunteers in town for the past few days were several St. John's boys who visited this town for the first time. They are very pleased with Harbour Grace, and promise to pay us another visit "after the war is over."

A pleasant time was spent at the C. C. C. Armoury last night when the members and ex-members met and had a happy time. The occasion was on account of the departure of Mr. Luke Fallon, a member of the Corps, and one of the Volunteers soon to leave our shores to fight the Empire's battles. After an enjoyable programme of music, speeches, etc., a very handsome cigarette case nicely engraved was presented to Mr. Fallon by his comrades. He made a very suitable reply in thanking his fellows for this souvenir of home.

The K. E. Brigade met at their armoury at 7.30 this morning and paraded to the station to bid goodbye to their fellows of the volunteers and the other brave fellows who are about leaving for England. As the train moved out Major Pike called for three cheers for the Volunteers which was very heartily given. The kahlki lads cheered to as the train slowly left the station.

Mr. W. J. James arrived from St. John's by last night's train after a short business trip.

What Has Helped You?

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

A group of us drifted into a conversation the other day about the bits of poetry or wise or beautiful sayings which had helped us the most. Each member had at least one to contribute. Indeed I think there are few people who have not felt the restraining or comforting or impelling force of some such utterance which they have read and stored up in their minds, or rather, hearts. Sometimes it's from the Bible or Shakespeare; sometimes it's just a sentence from a magazine or a verse from an obscure poet. It isn't always the greatness of the thing, it's just its appeal in each particular case.

Our talk set me to thinking. It was such an interesting and inspiring conversation that I wished my reader friends could gather round the fire with us and chime in. And then I thought "Why not?"

Why not? Don't you think it would be interesting to have a round-the-fire talk on this subject, reader friends? Tell me the verse or the sentence which has helped you and I'll ass it on. It may help someone else as much. Who knows?

What Some of Us Liked Best.

Just to start the ball a-rolling let me tell you what some of the members of our group contributed.

"The world is too much with us—Late and soon, getting and spending We lay waste our powers."
—Wordsworth.

(Incidentally I happen to know that this is Mrs. Tatt's favorite poem.)

"I am yours for everything expect to do you harm."
—Mrs. Browning to her husband.

"Too be useful to be lonely and too busy to be sad."
—Author unknown. The motto of the lady-who-always-knows-o-m-e-ho-w.

"Let me live in a house by the side of the road
Where the race of men go by.
The men who are good and the men who are bad
As good and as bad as I.
I would not sit in the scorners' seat
Nor hurl the critic's ban,
Let me live in a house by the side of the road
And be the friend of man."
—Sam Walter Foss.

"Whereupon, Oh King Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision."
—St. Paul.

These are quoted from memory, so I trust you will pardon any inaccuracies and will join us round the fire with your favorite quotation.

Questions and Answers.

Question. Do you think it is fair for my father to expect me to give him part of my earnings? I am eighteen years old. I live at home and earn six dollars a week?

F. L. B.

Reply. That depends on whether your father needs your help. If he does I shouldn't think you'd wait for him to "expect it." Most fathers have a hard enough time making their salaries cover all household needs until their children grow up without continuing to feed and house them free after they are earning money, so that they may have all their earnings for personal luxuries. If he

Is a Short Man a Better Fighter?

Dr. M. S. Pembrey, lecturer on physiology at Guy's Hospital, opened an interesting discussion at the Royal Sanitary Institute, Buckingham Palace-road, on the question of Tall versus Short Men for the army.

A typical Scot, said Dr. Pembrey, would be considered a tall Welshman, in support of his contention that a man might be considered tall when his height was four or five inches greater than that of the average of his countrymen. The difference in height between a tall and a short man was due chiefly to the longer legs of the former, but height depended upon the correlated activity of certain glands which produced internal secretions and extremes.

The essential organs, Doctor Pembrey added, were in the head and trunk, and these were often better developed in the short man than in the tall man, the weight of the brain being relatively greater in the short man and the reaction time not so long. Tall men of full proportions, he contended, were heavy and often slow, and there were strong physiological reasons for the greater agility and activity of the small man, who did not suffer from the mechanical disadvantages of height and weight. The small man had a greater capacity for work, endurance, and stronger resistance to disease.

Judging from the fighting capacity of tall and short races and from the fighting capacity of tall and short men of the same race, Dr. Pembrey summed up in favor of the short man, though he modified his remarks by warning his hearers to beware of the danger of rushing to extremes.

In the discussion which followed, the verdict was given in favor of the short man as against the tall.

A Happy Child In Just A Few Hours

When cross, constipated or if feverish give "California Syrup of Figs" then don't worry.

Mothers can rest easy after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and they have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it can not cause injury. No difference what ails your little one— if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomachache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

Self-colored and dull gold souache are used in carrying out the military effects of coats.

Fads and Fashions.

Flower wreathed toques are very welcome after the long run of black velvet hats.

Dull gold and metal soutache embroidery are being used on chic tailor-made costumes.

Revers and waistcoats of linen, striped or plain, are seen in the new white serge jackets.

Grass linen blouses have twine decoration and are worn with sand-colored covert skirts.

High stand-up ruffles of tulle and neck ruchings of lace are among the revivals in neckwear.

Some of the silk dresses have the long peasant blouse, belted, and they are high in the collar.

Some of the best Paris dress-makers are cutting their blouses low in the neck—round or square.

There has been a tremendous swing from the tub-like skirt to the picturesque skirt that blows.

And now we have torpedo-shaped toques of silk and straw. A single rose or a single bow trims them.

Warm russet and golden brown, shot with rose, purple or blue, are among the new changeable hues.

YOUR BOYS AND GIRLS

The baby's little nose is often a source of great annoyance to him. If it becomes stopped up so that the child has the snuffles. Sometimes this becomes so severe that he cannot nurse as his nose is so stopped up that he cannot breathe when his mouth is closed over the nipple.

In such cases the mother should very firmly twist a little absorbent cotton on the end of a wooden toothpick and dipping this in a solution of one heaping teaspoonful of boric acid dissolved in one pint of boiling water, she should very gently remove any secretions she may find there.

After this is done, she should drop into each nostril some olive, or still better, some liquid alboline, so that this will trickle far back into the nose and clear out a passage through which the baby may breathe.

OFFICIAL.

LONDON, March 11.

The Governor, Newfoundland:
The French Government reports British success between the River Lys and La Bassee Canal. Neuve Capelle village was carried, whence advance was made northeast and southeast. A thousand prisoners and some machine guns were captured. The German losses were very heavy. In Champagne, violent enemy counter-attacks were repulsed and some further progress was made.
The Russian Government reports that the enemy renewed the attack towards Przasnyz with fresh troops from Germany.

HARCOURT.

ST. PIERRE BULLETIN.

PARIS, via St. Pierre, March 11.
In Belgium, the Germans fiercely bombarded Nieupoort with their heavy guns. Between the Lys and La Bassee Canal the British army supported by the French artillery, gained an important success, capturing the village of Neuve Capelle, east of the Estaires-La Bassee Road. The British also progressed to the N.E. of this village in the direction of Riez Wood. During the latter engagement they took 1,000 prisoners, of which several were officers, also capturing several maxims.
The German losses were very heavy. In Champagne during the night of the ninth the enemy counter-attacks were repulsed, and repeatedly, without gaining one inch of ground. We strengthened our positions on the heights occupied, and inflicted very heavy losses on the enemy. On the Meuse heights our artillery completely destroyed several German trenches.

DESTROYING NIEUPOORT.

PARIS, March 11.

British forces stationed north of La Bassee in France are striking hard at the German troops defending the Lille railway line. It is expected by military experts in Paris that the Germans will soon begin to retire in that district. If the Germans are driven from the strong positions they occupy along the railway line and La Bassee Canal it would be the first step in the campaign of the Allies to re-take Lille. The Belgian coast city of Nieupoort, which was bombarded by the Germans with their heavy artillery, has been nearly destroyed. Shells fell all around the city, the Germans evidently aiming at the trenches of the Belgians which lie among the Dunes near Nieupoort Baine. In the Vosges there has been an unusually heavy fall of snow, the troops marching through drifts from three to four feet deep. Despatches from St. Omer tell of the terrific effect of the shells from the 42 centimetre guns in Nieupoort district. The railway station was destroyed by a single projectile, which exploded upon the tracks tearing a hole nearly fifty feet deep.

NEW DATE FIXED.

LONDON, March 11.

A Daily Express despatch dated "on the Belgian frontier, Wednesday," says: According to a message that reached us late to-night from Bruges, March 11th is the date fixed by the Germans for the next great offensive in Flanders. Troop movements continue on a large scale.

REPRISAL MEASURES.

LONDON, March 11.

Britain's plan to give effect to the Naval Reprisals Measure against Germany, as embodied in an order in Council, was signed to-day by King George. The King signed the order during a session of the Privy Council at Buckingham Palace. Details of the plan have not yet been made public, but the order will be gazetted shortly. Premier Asquith announced in the Commons on March 1st that Britain and France, in retaliation for Germany's submarine warfare against British shipping, purposed to stop all trade to and from Germany.

CROWN PRINCE LIVING LIFE OF HERMIT NOW.
New York, Mar. 3.—A special to the London Daily Express and New York Herald from Geneva says:
For nearly two months nothing has been heard of the German Crown Prince, either from Military Headquarters or from Berlin. A report that he has been killed is wholly discredited, but his sudden retirement into obscurity has been the cause of much speculation. News received here from Innsbruck states definitely that he is in disgrace and by the Kaiser's express command is living in strict seclusion in Berlin.

The Men of Roumania

are very fond of dress, and they have a popular saying which runs,
"the stomach has no mirror." Its meaning is that rather than be shabby a Roumanian should go hungry. The peasant costume of Roumania is very artistic, every village having its own set of colors.
By the hue of his dress a peasant shows the locality he hails from.
The Roumanian is most particular regarding his personal appearance, like thousands of people who patronize our Dry Cleaning establishment.
