"Love in the Wilds"

OR
The Romance of a South African Trading Station.

CHAPTER VIII.
BUYING THE PAST.

At first the country was more open, but soon it became rockier, and at last, towards evening, the dark outline of another forest appeared in view.

"That there is the Black Forest," said the runner. "We shall have to skirt a little for deer—those rascals have run short, they tell me. If you've a mind to try your luck with a hundred-yarder, p'raps you'll come along."

Laurence accepted eagerly, but said, with regret, that he had no gun.

"Here, Tim, bring the hundred-yards," said the runner, and a little Hottentot boy galloped up with a gun which the runner handed to Laurence.

"We allers bring a good supply," he said, passing him some ammunition, "for we don't know as we sha'n't want it."

Laurence thanked him, and, following his directions, paired off with two of the elder natives, going toward the east, while the runner bore to the west.

As they entered the forest the natives tied the three horses to a tree and, carefully noting the place, crept along, with Laurence at their heels, examining the ground at every foot.

Presently the foremost one held up his hand and then fell flat upon the ground.

Scarcely had Laurence time to follow his example—the other native dropped at the same moment—when a peculiar crackling of the branches and underbrush was heard and suddenly, like the vision of a fancy, a herd of antelopes came flitting through the deep glade.

With the quickness of lightning he raised his gun and marked the foremost one. There was a sharp crash, echoed all round the vast wood, and the graceful beast gave a leap in the air.

Laurence was about to spring forward, but the natives held him back, whispering:

"Sh, 'sh, massa! Him not dead enough. Him rip massa up—him rip massa up. Massa go to him d'rectly."

Laurence waited a few minutes, that seemed ages, and then, with his knife ready in his hand, ran to the fallen game. He was dead, but to make certainty doubly sure he plunged the knife in the noble neck, and then, assisted by the natives, carried the prize to the open.

There they found the runner with a fine buck, which he had shot, and slinging the two across two of the spare horses, they went on their way.

The runner seemed rather surprised at Laurence's good fortune, and evidently thought more kindly of him, for he grew somewhat more talkative and inquisitive.

When they alighted in a clear space, after having ridden thirty miles, and the natives had set about preparing dinner, the runner stooped to examine the antelope which Laurence had shot, and said, curtly: "That's a good shot."

"I'm glad you think so," said Laurence.

"And you can ride, too," said the runner. "What might be your name?"

"Laurence Harman," was the reply.

"Oh," said the runner, "one of 'em ul do for us fellows! L-or-ence—how do you spell it?"

Laurence spelled it for him.

"Ah," said the runner, "it's a gim-crack name! But you can't help that, can yer? A chap doesn't give himself his own name, more's the pity sometimes. My name's Jack. Long Jack I'm called; that's short if it ain't sweet."

Laurence nodded.

"It's both," he said, "and a better one than mine, which you can alter for any other you like."

"Thankee," said the man. "Maybe I shall. Now, then, you rascals"—addressing the natives, and eliciting a chorus of "Yes, massa"—"where's the grub?"

The steaks were soon done, and proved very acceptable. Laurence enjoyed his portion none the less for having earned it.

After dinner the runner, Jack, offered his pipe to Laurence, but he refused to deprive him of it, and Jack, taking the refusal in good part, smoked it himself, eyeing Laurence with an increased interest, for a man who could refuse a pipe was a curious piece of humanity in his eyes.

On they went, as before, until night-fall, when, instead of one camp-fire, half a dozen were formed in a circle round horses and men.

Laurence did not need long to ponder over the why and wherefore of this, for, as the darkness grew, the stillness of the night was broken by the roar of the tiger and the laughing of the hyena. As he grasped his gun, with a thrill of excitement, he thought: "I am at last on real hunting ground."

Toward the close of the sixth day the cavalcade approached its destination.

The towering hills and thick forests gave place to miles of springy, emerald pasture, upon whose soft, velvety bosom grew a wealth of many-colored flowers, here and there bent down by the tread of many herds of cattle and the wheels of the heavy wagons.

Laurence noticed all these appearances attentively.

"We are near home now," said the runner, looking to see if his company was in proper order. "Away, my boys!" and, with a deep-sounding crack of his long whip, he urged the horses on a flying pace.

Soon the tracks on the grass grew thicker and more frequent, and presently the station came in sight.

Laurence uttered an exclamation of delight, for before him lay an earthly paradise—green grass, bright flowers, studded by cattle, horses, and sheep in thousands, backed by a distant range of tree-covered hills, and, like a small scrap of canvas cut from an artist's picture, a picturesque farmhouse, built of wood and rough white stone, rearing its head in the middle of the plain, and sheltered by a group of noble trees.

At its side a silver, bubbling brook; around it rose majestic hay-ricks, and everywhere horses and cattle were to be seen—the wealth of the squatter.

At the sound of the horses' hoofs, pattering over the rough, beaten road, a small crowd of Hottentots ran, shouting, to meet them, followed more leisurely by half a dozen men, runners, built and dressed on the order of Jack.

Laurence looked round with deep and heart-swelling emotions.

"This is Paradise!" he exclaimed. "It be Stewart's Corner," grinned Jack, and, with a final crack of his whip, he leaped to the ground before the door of the homestead, the natives rushing at each other with questions and welcome, and hastily unfastening the horses and heading them off.

Laurence, still looking round him, dismounted.

"Where's the gov'nor?" asked Jack of one of the men.

"Here I am!" exclaimed a voice which Laurence recognized at once, and the owner of the station stepped out of the house.

He started with astonishment as he saw Laurence.

"By the living Jingo, young sir," he exclaimed, "I did not expect to see you so soon!"

"I trust I am none the less welcome on that account," said Laurence, with his grave smile.

"Not a bit—not a bit. More, more!" retorted the settler, shaking hands. "Here, come aside, will you?" he added, as the group of men were staring with curious eyes and listening with all their ears.

Laurence followed him into a large, plain room, with great beams across the high ceiling, and furnished with rough, strong deal tables and chairs.

There was an exquisite perfume pervading the place, which was wafted in through the open windows from the flowers that shone and glittered in such profusion without.

The settler pointed to a chair and, throwing his hat upon the table, reached a large, black bottle from the cupboard.

"First of all, let me do the hospitable," he said. "There man, drink to the new land and the new life!"

And, setting the example, he lifted one of the horn cups, which he had filled, to his lips with a cheery smile.

Laurence, with a grave smile, wet his lips and put his cup down.

"Now let us hear all about it," said Mr. Stewart. "Here, have a cigar," and he handed one.

Laurence lighted it and, feeling more at ease at the first puff, said:

"Mr. Stewart, I did not think when I listened to your description of your station that I should so soon visit it."

And the poor fellow sighed.

"Well," said the settler, with a meaning smile, "I did."

"You did?" repeated Laurence, with his swift frown. "Why?"

"Well, no matter," replied the settler. "Here you are, you see, Mr. Darrell."

Laurence Harman lifted his head quickly, with a sudden flush.

"Not that name, please," he said. "If I remain here, and I came here with the intention of asking you to give me employment, you must promise me to forget, as entirely as I do, that there is such a place as the Dale, or that such a person as Hugh Darrell—he faltered at the name, but went on, almost sternly—"ever existed."

Mr. Stewart held out his hand.

"That's a bargain," he said. "Mr.—"

"Laurence Harman, without the 'Mr.', please," said Laurence, firmly. "I have left the Dale and the old name for good, and, with your permission, will not trade upon the past. I am, here and elsewhere, plain Laurence Harman, cattle-runner, herdsman, what you will," and he shook his head with a somewhat bitter laugh.

"Very well, Laurence," said the settler, who could guess at what had occurred between the fiery squire and his son, and was inwardly blessing the bad temper of the one and the wilfulness of the other for sending such a fine, stalwart servant.

"Very well, it's a bargain, as I said before. We'll forget the past and go in for the future, and that's not such a bad exchange as you might think, Laurence."

"I care not, bad or good," replied Laurence, indifferently. "Give me enough to eat, and plenty of hard work to keep memory at bay, and I shall not complain. Nay, I will even be grateful."

Looting and Destroying Their Chief Delight--U. S. Destroyers Ordered to Mexico-- Allies Send Ten Day Ultimatum to Hungary --Utmost Confidence in British Trade.

RUNS IN THE RANKS.
WARSAW, May 5. (By the A.P.)—Bolshevik soldiers are reported to be looting houses and stores in Kiev, preparatory to abandoning the city. Advices received here indicate great confusion there.

U. S. AND MEXICO.
WASHINGTON, May 5. Secretary Daniels to-day ordered a division of the destroyers now at New York with the Atlantic Fleet to sail immediately for Key West, where they will be held for possible duty in Mexican waters.

FRENCH STRIKE OVER.
PARIS, May 5. The announcement that the strike of railway workers throughout France was virtually over was made in official quarters here last night. Since Saturday, traffic has been seriously embarrassed. Volunteers have given material aid. Yesterday a large number of strikers returned to their posts.

INCREASE COST OF FOOD.
WASHINGTON, May 5. The family food budget in the United States in February was exactly twice expended for the same articles of food in February, 1913, according to the Department of Labor statistics. During approximately the same period in Great Britain the increase was 120 per cent, while in Italy it was 107 per cent. Germany outranked all countries enumerated with an increase of 224 per cent.

WHY U. S. ATLANTIC FLEET STAYED HOME.
WASHINGTON, May 5. An attack in force on the German submarine bases by the combined British and United States forces had been agreed upon before the war ended. Admiral Benson, former chief of naval operations, disclosed to-day in his testimony before the Senate Committee investigating the Sims-Dante row. The Admiral said he had held the opinion from the first that the German bases should be attacked, and that a confidential plan to be carried out later had been agreed upon with Admiral Jellicoe, former first Sea Lord of the British Admiralty. He added that he had insisted that the United States ships take part in the attack. Admiral Benson told the committee that the Atlantic Fleet was kept at home during the war to provide a force to meet the German fleet in the event it broke through the British cordon.

REPLY TO HUNGARIAN OBJECTION.
PARIS, May 5. The Allied reply to the objections of the Hungarian peace delegation to the terms of the peace treaty, handed the Hungarian representatives in January, was delivered to the Secretary of the Hungarian mission at Versailles this afternoon. The Hungarians are given ten days, dated from tomorrow, in which to accept or reject the treaty. A covering letter accompanying the reply, given out this evening, begins by saying that the Allied and Associated Powers while hoping that Hungary will become in future an element of stability and peace in Europe, they cannot forget Hungary's share of responsibility of provoking the war.

BRITISH TRADE CONDITIONS.
LONDON, May 5. Sir Robert Horne, President of the Board of Trade, speaking at a dinner of the London Chamber of Commerce, said that the present state of the British trade showed that the nation could go forward with the greatest confidence. Unemployment, he said, was today lower than any period before the war. About eight hundred thousand more people were now engaged in industry, and about 85 per cent of the returned soldiers had now been absorbed in industry.

2.7 BEEER.
BOSTON, May 5. President McKnight late yesterday signed the bill passed by the Senate yesterday to make 2.7 per cent beer legal beverage in this State, should the Volstead Act be declared unconstitutional. The bill which had previously been passed by the House, then went to the Governor.

Overalls Ueber Allies?

(Columbia State.)
The "overall movement" may amount to something or it may fizzle out. It may end in a shirt-tail movement, for all we know or in the good old summer time the people may compromise on pajamas. Men of 50 have in mind the picture of half a dozen little blacks perched on the top rail of a staked and ridged fence dressed, or undressed, in a single cotton garment and they recall it as the climacteric conception of comfort in the realm of warm weather raiment.

Shall we wear overalls? Perhaps some carping critic will call them "ueber allies," insinuating that it implies, "kultur."
The cost of living will not be substantially reduced by resort to a single expedient. The clothiers are not making greater profits than other men, unless the cotton mills could not declare handsome dividends unless they received handsome prices for their goods, and the farmers' cotton would not fetch 45 cents a pound if it were not in demand at that price. To economize in one particular, without cultivating the spirit of thrift as well as practicing it will accomplish nothing. There are hundreds of ways of saving money. We suppose that the consumption of gasoline could be cut down 50 per cent in Columbia without entailing hardship on any citizen—and all of us would be healthier if we ate less rich food, especially meats.

The overall movement, we suppose is a kind of frantic gesture from the drawers of salaries who think they have been hurt rather than helped by the rising markets the last three years. There is no ground for excitement or alarm. The people and the people will all wear clothes—one kind or another. No one has the faintest idea of going naked or even of contenting himself or herself, with fig leaves.

The notion of an "overall club" does not entirely fit into our notion of what ought to be. If one wish to wear overalls, why not? It is a respectable garment. But why should Smith fear to wear them without obtaining the consent of Brown, Jones, White and Green? Numbers of persons have reduced their clothing expenses. We know men who formerly had their suits made to order but lately have "boycotted" their tailors unstarched collars in order to circumvent the laundry. By the way, the laundries must have suffered terribly from the general abandonment of stiff cuffs and shirt bosoms.

If one wish to save by substituting a Ford for his car, by eliminating breakfast bacon from his table six days in the week, by purchasing one new record for the phonograph instead of two a week or month, by walking to his office instead of paying street car fare, by wearing the fine old war hat of 1918 rather than the new Panama, it is his own business. Let him go to it, it will not be prohibited, but we suspect that those who have not the will or the courage to do it without the assistance of an organization will not go far. They will waste what they save in another way.

OLD PEOPLE NEED STRENGTH

This Woman of Eighty-one Years Tells How Vinol Creates Strength for the Aged

She says: "It is with great pleasure I tell others of the great benefit I have derived from VINOL. I am now eighty-one years of age, and I have never found any remedy that would create an appetite, overcome nervous conditions and build up strength equal to VINOL."
The reason VINOL is so successful in such cases is because it contains the tissue building and medicinal elements of cods' livers, aided by the blood making, strength creating properties of konic iron, beef peptone and hypophosphites.

Thus, in a natural manner, it increases the appetite, aids digestion, enriches the blood with thousands of red blood corpuscles and imparts strength, health and vitality to every organ, muscle and tissue of the body.
If feeble old people only realized the good VINOL will do them our druggists would not be able to supply the demand.

Wedding Bells.

A very quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the Roman Catholic Cathedral on April 31st, the contracting parties being Miss Bride Power of Salmonier, and Mr. John Kieley of Odein. The bride was handsomely attired in a suit of blue crepe de chene, with veil and wreath of orange blossoms, and was attended by Miss Carrie King, who was neatly attired on a suit of white silk with hat to match. The groom was ably supported by Mr. Frank Jervis. After the ceremony was performed by Rt. Rev. Monsignor McDermott, the happy couple drove to the Albion Hotel, where a sumptuous repast was partaken of. The bride was the recipient of many useful and valuable presents to show the esteem in which she was held. We all join in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Kieley many years of happy wedded life.—Com.

Overalls on the Bench.

JUSTICE BURT APPEARS IN COURT CLAD IN GRAY KHAKI.
NEW YORK, April 19.—County Judge Burt J. Humphrey, of Queens Borough, was clad in gray khaki as he presided in his court to-day. He let it be known that his attire was a testimonial of his having joined the "overall rebellion" and the broad smiles with which he was greeted in court by lawyers who have practiced there for years and have known him as one of the best dressed men in Queens, feared him not a whit.

"I want to do what I can toward lowering clothing prices," said Judge Humphrey. "I believe in this idea. If people will wear clothing of this kind and give woolen prices time to become adjusted, it will reduce clothing prices wherever there has been profiteering."

Morris E. Connolly, president of Queens Borough, had planned to run the borough's business to-day clad in workman's garb.
"But do you know," said he, ruefully, "I haven't been able to find any ready-made overalls and jumpers big enough to fit me. I'll have to have some made. Why they don't make these things in men's sizes is more than I can figure out."

From all over the country came reports of accessions in large numbers to the "overall rebellion" and the "carry your own lunch" movement, just instituted as a kind of side issue to the revolt against high clothing prices, is also becoming popular.

"You don't have to buy even overalls at $6 a suit, if you don't want to, in order to join the movement," said an official of the cheese club to-day. "The main idea is to buy no regular citizens' clothing until prices come down. Wear old clothes—any old clothes; the more the patches the better."

C.C.C. ATHLETIC ASSN.—The C.C.C. General Athletic Association meeting, postponed on account of the Sacred Concert, will be held to-night when the various sub-committees will make arrangements for the season's sport.

To-Day's Messages

CANADA GETS REPRESENTATION.

OTTAWA, May 5. Canada will be represented at the second International conference, called under the auspices of the League of Nations. The conference is due to open in Genoa, Italy, on June 15.

TWO OPINIONS.

PARIS, May 5. Despite official claims that the general railroad strike in France is virtually broken, labor leaders to-day maintained an optimistic attitude, claiming that the outlook was favorable for the ultimate success of the movement. From railroad headquarters came reports of the movement of passenger traffic, characterized as satisfactory, with a marked increase in the number of freight trains running, thus relieving freight congestion.

HAREN OFFERED TOWNSHEND.

MONTREAL, May 5. Major General Sir Charles Townshend, who addressed the Canadian Club to-day, said that during the fighting at Kutelamara, he had been told that he would not have to advance without a force of forty thousand men, but later he received orders to the contrary, which compelled him to go forward without sufficient strength. Later he received orders to surrender on the best terms he could get. The British soldiers were then forced to go on long marches by German officers, who were with the Turkish forces, and were anxious to humiliate the English before the surrounding country. The Turks were gentlemen in battle, clean fighters and honorable opponents, even to defeated and captured enemies, said the General. As an instance of their hospitality the General said that while in captivity in Constantinople, Enver Bey sent an officer to him with an offer to establish a private harem fitted with Circassian beauties to help him while away his captivity. The offer was refused.

RELEASED ON BOND.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 5. John Lewis, President of the United Mine Workers of America, surrendered to the U. S. Marshal here late to-day on a Federal indictment, charging him with violating the Lever Act, and was released on a ten thousand dollar bond.

NEW ZEALANDERS ENTHUSIASTIC.

WELLINGTON, N.Z., May 5. The Prince of Wales had a great reception on his return to-day from his tour of North Island. The procession, in his honor, occupied an hour in traversing two miles of decorated streets leading to Government House, so great was the assembly along the route.

QUEBEC JURIST DEAD.

QUEBEC, May 5. Hon. Sir Louis Amable Jette, formerly Chief Justice of the Court of Kings Bench, and Lieutenant Governor of the Province of Quebec and father in law of Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux died here to-night.

BOUNDED THEM UP.

COBLENZ, May 5. Fifty Communist workmen, from the vicinity of Duesseeldorf, entered the British occupied area last night, after a brief but sharp encounter with a detachment of the Reichswehr occupying Duesseeldorf, who were stationed a few miles south of that city. Several Reds were killed in the encounter and three men and a child were wounded. The Reds were caught in the British zone and interned. Reichswehr are out gathering arms and arresting leaders of Reds.

RESTORED TO DENMARK.

COPENHAGEN, May 5. Danish troops to-day occupied Northern Schleswig, the people of which on February ten last, in a Plebiscite provided for in the Peace Treaty, voted by a large majority for the return of this part of territory to Danish nationality. Enthusiastic scenes accompanied the arrival of the Danes at Sonderberg. There the entire population, among them a number of aged persons, who still remember the raid of German shells on the town, and about fifty veterans of the war of eighteen sixty four, were out to cheer the soldiers when they landed.

IN CASE OF NECESSITY.

WASHINGTON, May 5. Recognition of Carranza's rapidly diminishing power in Mexico, was admitted by Government officials to-day, but the despatch of a flotilla of destroyers to Southern waters was not taken to indicate that foreigners are in any immediate danger. Six destroyers, which sailed from New York will arrive at Key West to-morrow, and will be used along the East Coast in the event of necessity arising.

HUN DELEGATION IN LONDON.

LONDON, May 5. A German delegation, headed by Dr. Zeelinger, has arrived in London to settle with the Maritime section of the reparations committee the question of the remaining ships to be handed over to the Allies.

POLICE CONFISCATE "HINDY."

BERLIN, May 5. Colossal Hindenburg War Statue, standing in front of the Reichstag, which after the war passed into private ownership, has been provisionally confiscated by the police. This action was taken, it is declared, in order to prevent the possibility of disorders in the event of its being removed from Germany.

EVADING THE QUESTION.

LONDON, May 5. The Russian Bolshevik Minister of Foreign Affairs, in his reply to the British note requiring definite assurance regarding treatment of Denev's troops in South Russia, has not, says the London Times, condescended to answer the plain question, but again retreats to Polish Hungarian questions. These questions, Great Britain in a previous note said, were still issue.

TURKS DELEGATES ARRIVE.

VERSAILLES, May 5. Turkey's delegation to the Peace Conference arrived here shortly after midnight this morning.

SHORTAGE EXPLAINED.

PARIS, May 5. Shortage of foodstuffs in France is attributed by many persons to the loss of a million farm workers, as a result of the war and the drafting of an additional six hundred thousand more into the services of the Government and cities.

The Man of Sorrow

Epstein's Great Statue of Christ.

There is no greater sin than to make beautiful things seem vulgar, and noble things trivial. Men inherit beautiful and noble possessions in literature and the arts and in the records of human lives, and each generation adds to the store. These possessions (that are common to us all) are to be counted against the disappointment and sorrows and the selfishness and the meanness that combine to make living hard and sometimes almost unbearable. To mar the beautiful is, therefore, to commit a grievous sin. To make the beauty more apparent is the work of a public benefactor.

The Conventional Figure.

Whether or not one accepts the orthodox Christian faith, the character and the life of Jesus Christ are certainly among man's spiritual assets. The life of the Man who went about doing good is at least beautiful. His simple teaching is a social inspiration. The more completely one realizes the beauty, the more compelling must be the inspiration.

It was inevitable that a figure that has, for two thousand years, dominated the Western world should have attracted the brushes of innumerable painters. The medieval pictures of Jesus Christ, beautiful and worthy as they are, do not add much to knowledge. The artists saw Jesus as God, a being to move our wonder but to be worshipped from afar.

The Middle Age created a conventional figure of Christ which has been copied and copied until it has become trivially pretty, and the pictures of Christ that now appear in children's picture books and religious almanacs are undignified and unworthy, and it is certain that they give an entirely false idea of the Man in his manner as he was. It would be difficult to conceive a finer service to his fellows than that any great artist could perform than to create for us a vision of Jesus that squares with the record of His acts and His words. And that is exactly what Jacob Epstein has succeeded in doing in the full-length bronze Christ that is now exhibited in the Leicester Galleries.

For Trafalgar Square.

If wisdom reigned in the tents of our rules and if they really cared for the spiritual well-being of the people, this wonderful thing would be set up in Trafalgar Square (cleansed, of course, beforehand of its stone and marble absurdities), and the achievement of an inspired Jew would be among the chief glories of a professedly Christian city.

Epstein has never been interested in the creation of things that are merely beautiful. Look up at the figures at the top of the British Medical Association building in the Strand (how few ever do look up at them?), and you will realize that the sculptor is ruthless in his determination to be truthful. Sometimes he has been hard to understand. I confess to have been utterly bewildered by his Venus. But the most inexpert and inexperienced feel at once when looking at most of his work that his figures are men and women as the artist sees them, unidealized, uncamouflaged by any attempt to cover force or weakness, irregularity of feature or even sheer ugliness with the conventional prettiness of the fashionable portrait painter. The consequence is that one recognizes the Epstein busts as human, even as you and I.

The Amazing Eyes.

The sculptor has conceived Jesus as just risen from the tomb. He is tall and very lean, and the funeral bindings are still round his limbs. The hands are large and well shaped, and in one of them is the wound left by the nail that held it to the Cross. The head is long and thin. The hair and beard are scanty. The forehead has the bulge that denotes intelligence, and there is a curious depression on the left side. The eyes (and it seems to me that they are the great technical achievement of the artist) are just amazing. They hold you. You cannot get away from them. You forget the maimed hand and the bound legs and you remain enthralled by the eyes, in which the genius of the sculptor has contrived to show the soul of Him, whom we remember as "the Man of sorrows and acquainted with grief."

For All to See.

A little room in a private gallery is no place for this splendid thing. One does not want to be jostled by fashionable ladies as one looks at it, and, moreover, one wants to see it very often. Therefore, decidedly Trafalgar Square! A few hundreds will see Epstein's "Christ" at the Leicester Galleries. All the busmen and the typists and the policemen and the errand boys ought to see it. It is only a little way from Green Street to the Square, and the move could soon be made. But, alas, the marble generals would first have to be carted away, and there are such a lot of them! And, besides, where could they be put?—PEM, in John o'London's Weekly.

Season, 1920.

First Ship to Navigate St. Lawrence.

Montreal, April 26—Navigation on the St. Lawrence for 1920 was officially opened yesterday in the arrival of the s.s. Canadian Aviator. It is the first time in the history of Montreal port that a Canadian owned and Canadian built ocean steamer has led the way to the hundreds of vessels which are to follow during the season.

In addition to belonging to the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, the Canadian Aviator is captained by a Canadian ship master, Capt. H. S. Hilton, of Yarmouth, Nova Scotia. Being the first captain to reach port he will be the recipient of the Harbor Commissioners' prize, and the award is a very popular one.

The Canadian Aviator docked shortly before noon yesterday and was met by prominent officials of the port and harbor, also by Mr. H. Millburn, local superintendent of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine. She is berthed at shed 12, facing Bonsecour Market.

Although she had an uneventful trip across the ocean from Glasgow, which she left on the 11th, the first incoming ship saw a good deal of ice outside Cape Race and some exceptionally heavy river ice in the lower Gulf.

Recent reports that the sealing season has been a failure this year were not supported by the facts as the crew of the Canadian Aviator experienced them. The ship passed through ice floes that were black with thousands of seals which dived or slipped off as the vessel came near. There was one notable exception however, a big bull seal that refused to budge off a cake of ice which the vessel had run into and brushed to one side. This seal looked decidedly blasé.

Coming up the river the ship made exceptionally good time. She was fairly high in the water, carrying only a few hundred tons of fire clay bricks, some paper stock and tea. She was constructed in Vancouver for the Canadian Government and made her first voyage to Liverpool passing through the Panama Canal. This is her third cargo. She is of 5,100 tonnage as compared with the 8,400 tons of the vessels constructed here at Canadian Vickers yard.

About Medals.

British War medals are being produced at the rate of about 67,000 per week.

The disc has to pass through twenty-seven processes before it is ready for forwarding to the War Office for issue.

The latest announcement is that only those who served overseas will receive the British War Medal and the Victory medal.

The work is being done entirely by men, most of whom are ex-soldiers; the processes usually carried on by men are being done by disabled men.

The plain silver discs are prepared at the Mint, together with the brooches; the remainder of the work is done at the Medal Factory, Woolwich Arsenal.

The King has approved of a bronze oak leaf being worn on the Victory Medal ribbon by all ranks who were mentioned in despatches by a commander in the field during the War.

You will get your medals—presently.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

DO YOU KNOW THESE PEOPLE!

RUTH CAMERON

There is a woman in our town who has for many years employed a seamstress to come once a week and do common sewing for her. This seamstress is a widow, in humble circumstances and of a humble origin, but a pleasant, well-mannered person, respected by all who know her. She told me the other day that this woman for whom she has been working for over 12 years has never once recognized her on the street. "When she passes," she says, "she usually manages to be on the other side of the street; but even if she isn't she will pass by me and never smile or say 'how do you do.'"

The seamstress told me this in explanation of the reason why she wasn't willing to serve on a civic committee which this woman was head.

I certainly did not blame her, but the whole of me fairly boiled with indignation at that other woman.

They are as Dangerous as Agitators.

There is much said these days about deportation of the agitators who stir up class hatred and fill the working people with revolutionary ideas.

I wonder if the Government would do well to deport a few of the women who fill working people with class hatred and revolutionary ideas like that?

Here is another example—a friend of mine tells me this story: She was riding with a rich woman down boulevard which leads from a big park past a lovely lake. Most of the boulevard is given over to handsome private homes, but at one place is a one which certain kind-hearted people support as a Mother's Rest.

Fifty or thirty tired mothers from the city are entertained in this house, while in another the children who are too small to be left at home are looked after. It is a wonderful philanthropy and has meant the difference between succumbing to the struggle and managing to keep it up.

to many an overworked mother. Said the rich woman, "Isn't it too bad to spoil this lovely place by having that Home here?" (They are not ugly buildings at all, by the way.)

Stone Blind in Heart and Soul.
Fancy seeing in that beautiful philanthropy only a blot on the landscape! Fancy being so stone blind in heart and soul as that.

"One more experience. A young working girl, who was staying at an Inn where I was one summer, showed what was evidently a powerful aversion when a certain woman's name was mentioned. She was a woman with great charm of manner when she chooses to exercise it, and we wondered. "She treated me," explained the girl, "as if I were the dirt under her feet. Once I held the door open for her, and she never even looked at me or said, 'thank you.'"

Can you doubt that these three women have done about as much as any agitator could, to stir up class hatred?

Do You Think They Could be Educated?

Needless to say, all three of these women are of the type who have done little or nothing to justify their existence. Two of them are supported by successful husbands, one by the labor of past generations.

None of them have ever treated me discourteously, and yet the very thought of them fills me with rage. What feeling must they inspire in those whom they do treat this way!

If we want concord and harmony in this country, and in the world, I think one important step toward it will have to be the education of this class of spiritual defectives.

The High Cost of Loafing

(From The Ottawa Record.)
Somehow, men are beginning to realize that so far as the high cost of living is concerned, they are working at the wrong end of the affair. We have mistaken the cost of living for the cost of something else, while in another the children who are too small to be left at home are looked after. It is a wonderful philanthropy and has meant the difference between succumbing to the struggle and managing to keep it up.

Crimes—and a Remedy.

The post-war period has thus far been marked by a crime wave in all the belligerent nations, this Canada of ours not being exempt. No doubt the four years of killing and destroying have left their marks upon the nations in the form of lack of respect for human life and for the sacredness of property, and crimes of violence are more easily committed than heretofore. William Pinkerton, one of the greatest of living crime detectors in the United States, and son of the famous Allan Pinkerton who organized the Secret Service System for the Northern States during the Civil War, recently granted an interview to which he stated that the present crime wave in the United States had reached a height where ordinary methods are helpless to stem it. He recalls the fact that after the Civil War a class of men called the "Bounty Jumpers" became crooks and outlaws in large numbers. A somewhat similar condition obtains at present among a similar class. Mr. Pinkerton is also very emphatic in regard to the evil effect of a certain class of moving pictures upon the minds of the young. The pictures particularly referred to are those depicting the commission of crimes. The youth sees the picture of the act and the get away" and soon feels he could do the same thing with safety, his first attempt being usually the stealing of an automobile, about the easiest crime in the world. One thing this master detective is very emphatic upon is the best method of punishing crime. He believes firmly that the public whipping post would be more quickly and thoroughly effective than anything else. Certainly criminals are not punished severely enough to-day. The average crime committer does not fear imprisonment in the slightest degree. In many cases they treat it as a joke providing the term is not very long. They fear the whipping post, however, and that fear makes them think some time before entering upon a career of crime. Mr. Pinkerton believes most emphatically in the value of this corrective and tells the story of four "swell" mobmen of New York who went to Wilmington, Delaware, to burglarize the house of a wealthy resident; but they did not have in mind the fact that Delaware has a whipping-post still in force. They tied up the members of the family and were accomplishing their venture when a negro maid who had hidden under the bed got away and gave the alarm. All four men were arrested. They made a costly struggle through their attorneys to escape sentence to the post, but there was "nothing doing." They got forty lashes apiece and stood two hours in the pillory. Ten years in the penitentiary they did not mind; but the lash cut deep and it was many years before any New York burglar visited Wilmington.

THE FRISKY BACKBONE.

The spine of winter beats the band, it is an artful dodger; at times we think we have it canned, and made a graveyard lodger. We cry, "The spring has come at last, with robin, wren and sparrow!" And then there comes a bitter blast that chills us to the marrow. Then in a whitewashed ward we lodge, attended by neat nurses, and we are lucky if we dodge a joyride in some hearses. Each year the backbone seems to sag, to show that winter's ended; each year it springs the same old gas, and all our hearts are rended. We plant our early spuds and greens, that we may eat in summer; then comes a blast from arctic scenes that puts them on the hummer. One night last week I went to bed and thought the winter ended; the sky was cloudless overhead, the outlook simply splendid. I thought the backbone had the jar it long had been demanding, and so I didn't drain my car, but left the water standing. Oh, whiskers! When the morning broke, the winter was renaissance, the snow was flying round like smoke—I longed to cuss, but desisted! And all my neighbors had the gripes, those patient watchful waiters; the town was full of frozen pipes, and busted radiators.

Worthy of Support.

There are two promises of improved legislation, contained in the Speech from the Throne, which, if brought to finalization will be commended by the taxpayers, and will materially help progress along the lines upon which they are to be constructed. For years past, the Estimates presented to the House of Assembly by successive Receiver Generals, have been veritable bones of contention, and more valuable time has been wasted over their discussion, all of which came to naught, than that devoted perhaps to any other subject coming within the purview of the members. Especially so was this in the case of the vote asked for Supplemental Supply, meaning thereby that should the estimate for a certain purpose be short of its actual cost, the additional sum be paid by the department contracting such obligation, out of Supplemental Supply and securing authorization of and indemnity for, such expenditure at the next succeeding session of the Legislature. This practice very common in the past, has grown into a tradition, and Supplemental Supply has become the recognized procedure to cover under estimates. Many evils have grown out of this practice, and to bring to an end an unbusinesslike process, the present Government have proposed to abolish Supplemental Supply, and according to the address at the opening of the Legislature, "Ministers propose to submit (to the House) for careful consideration a bona fide statement of the monies which are estimated to be necessary to cover the expense of the public service of the colony for the current fiscal year." There should be no cavilling or objection to this, if it is carried out as proposed, and both members and people should welcome an innovation which promises deliverance from ancient and slipshod methods, and presents actual estimates of expenditure for the information of the House and the public. "The practice," continues the address, "which has grown up during recent years of submitting estimates far below the actual anticipated expenditure should be discontinued as far as practicable." Just how far that is, will be learned after the Estimates for the coming fiscal year have been submitted, but the start is well timed.

The other bit of promised legislation which deserves special mention and approval is the proposal to reorganize the Department of Marine and Fisheries. This department is undoubtedly one of the—if not the—most important of any, controlling as it does, all matters connected with the work and conduct of our chief industry, the fishery, and exercising supervision over shipping and all that appertains to our floating trade both local and foreign. Deep sea and inland fisheries come under the direction of the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and the value of a competent and efficient department cannot be over-estimated. The lighting of the coasts, the construction and operation of aids to navigation, the care of the men who go down to the sea in ships, all these with numerous others come within the scope and care of the department named, therefore the duties devolving upon the Minister and his staff are multitudinous and exacting. It has been well known—a deplorable fact indeed—that too little, much too little consideration has been given our greatest asset—the fishery—and very little has been accomplished in a scientific way to assist Nature in the performance of her functions. The work of Information Bureaus and Scientific Research Departments as carried on by other fishing countries have been read of, but beyond sporadic efforts at long intervals, nothing whatever in a tangible form has been done to augment and conserve the bountiful supplies donated Newfoundland by a kind Providence. The promise, which we trust will be more than that, to do something at last will be hailed with satisfaction, and the idea which has taken root should be fostered and cultivated until it brings forth a substantial change for the better in the methods hitherto employed by the department of Marine and Fisheries. With the establishment of an Information Bureau and a sub-department of Scientific Research, progress along lines of valuable returns, must of a surety be made, and there will not be any person who will not wish the present minister a full measure of success in cutting clear from a hide-bound system and bringing to the assistance of his department for the enlargement of our production, all the information and advantage that science and experience can give.

Holiday Fixtures Set.

Yesterday the Importers' Association met in the Board of Trade Rooms to consider the holiday programme and closing hours for 1920-21. The meeting, which was largely attended, was presided over by Mr. W. Frew. It was decided that Empire Day, May 24th, be eliminated as the celebration in this month was not suitable to local conditions. It was suggested by some of the members that the June 3rd (Kings Birthday) holiday should be abandoned, but this was not generally agreed to. The five o'clock closing hour, which was found unsatisfactory during last season, will not be continued this year. From December 13th to New Year the stores will remain open until 10 o'clock each night. For this season the first holiday will be observed on June 3rd the half holidays beginning June 9th and continuing to Sept. 1st ending with a whole day Sept. 8th.

Results and Acknowledgments.

(Daily News.)
The gross receipts of the Sacred Concert in aid of the Permanent Marine Disasters' Fund exceeded $850. In addition was the $5.00 from an anonymous correspondent, referred to in yesterday's issue. Another handsome gift came to the hands of the Hon. Secretary yesterday morning in the shape of five ten-dollar bills accompanied by the following letter:
Dear Sir:
Enclosed herewith please find the sum of $50.00 for the Marine Disasters' Fund. This contribution is the result of an informal collection taken up in the Knights of Columbus Club Rooms on last night, and on behalf of the members of Terra Nova Council I have much pleasure in handing over the amount to this very worthy and charitable object.
Faithfully yours,
C. J. CAHILL,
Grand Knight.

For this very welcome contribution the Committee will be most grateful. The accompanists at the concert were Messrs. King and Gordon Christian, to whose instrumental skill much of the artistic success of the concert is due. Mr. H. E. Cowan, Vice-President of the Board of Trade, very kindly called on several members of the Board and by that means disposed of over 400 dollar tickets. The Committee has not yet met, but to extend thanks to him and to all who in any way assisted in achieving the splendid success attained, is but anticipating what must be the unanimous desire of its members.

Ministers Transferred From Nfld. Conference.

A late dispatch from Toronto, published in the Canadian newspapers, states that a number of Ministers under the Methodist Conference of Newfoundland are being transferred to the Canadian Provincial Conference. The names of those given are: Chas. A. Abery, Albert Johnson and Robert Smith into Montreal; N. Cole and B. J. Warr into the Nova Scotia Conference; Albert J. Waterman into Saskatchewan.

Washed Up By the Sea.

The nude body of an infant was on Tuesday morning found on the beach at Holyrood. Constable Grouchy had the babe placed in a temporary coffin and brought on here. Dr. J. S. Tait, who made a post mortem examination of the body, was unable to pronounce on the cause of death, owing to decomposition having set in. No marks of violence were found on the child's body.

Young-Adams Co.

English Comedy a Continuous Scream.
The Young-Adams Co. presented an English comedy last evening and not since coming here has the troupe put across one which caused more laughter. The play, written by Earnest Denny, one of England's most widely known writers, was a Broadway success, and no less a St. John's success. Genuine, true humor and fun, and fresh, original comedy were presented and the hall rocked with laughter from the beginning to the end. Miss Adams, as "Peggy O'Mara," vivacious, irrepressible Irish girl, was perhaps the star of the season. Mr. H. Wilnot Young as "Jimmy Koppel," added to the evening's enjoyment, while Miss Vivian Mayo, as Mrs. O'Mara, and Mr. Perry Norman, as Uncle Gregory, were good. Between the 2nd and 3rd acts Mr. Young delivered two recitations, "Jean Dupres" and "Alaska." The evening was indeed an enjoyable one for all present. "All-of-a-sudden Peggy" will be repeated to-night.

Address in Reply Presented.

The Legislative Council met this forenoon to present the address in Reply. Both branches of the Legislature proceeded to the Government House and presented the address to His Excellency. Only members of the Government were present.

Highlanders' "At Home"

The annual "At Home" of the Newfoundland Highlanders held last night in the C.C.C. Hall proved to be the most successful event held by them for years. Some 200 couples including representatives of the sister Brigades, the army and the navy, were present. The Hall was tastefully decorated, the work being done by Sergt. Major Morris reflecting credit on his skill. The St. Andrew's Young Ladies Guild served supper at midnight. Sergt. Major E. Spry superintending the catering. Dancing was kept up till an early hour this morning. The C.C.C. Band rendered very pleasing music, several numbers being encored.

Seen From the Lobby.

House of Assembly, May 6.
Mr. W. J. Walsh, member for Pleasant and St. Mary's, dealt lucidly and exhaustively with the Bill on Bounties for shipbuilders. His speech, which occupied 3 1/2 hours, was very instructive and it is clear that Mr. Walsh has given the subject a big amount of thought.

His remarks were delivered straight from the shoulder that Hon. Mr. Coaker, the Minister of Marine and father of this particular Bill, could not stand it and left the Assembly, returning some time later.

Mr. W. J. Higgins, at the evening session, dealt interestingly with the subject before the chair. Mr. Higgins is always interesting, no matter what his topic, and you could sit and listen to him for hours while he hammered the Government.

Mr. C. J. Fox was in his usual form. One remark of his struck me. He said that unfortunately it was a fact that people visited the Assembly in the hope of witnessing a row between some members, and that they were disappointed when none came off. Really, I almost blushed and I was careful to avert my eyes from him.

Mr. Fox, greatly to the surprise of the House, and perhaps to the greater surprise of Mr. Coaker, passed some of the most eloquent remarks on the latter gentleman, praising his energy, industry and cleverness. "He is the most powerful figure in politics to-day," he stated.

Sir John Crosbie, true to his usual good-natured way, put the House in a jolly mood and enlivened the proceedings for the rest of the night.

The Opposition wanted Mr. Coaker, the introducer of the Bill, to withdraw a certain retroactive section, and the speeches of the various Opposition members were directed to that end.

"I really believe," said Sir John, with a broad smile, as he looked across at Mr. Coaker, "that you would withdraw this section were it not that you think we would crow over you! But, upon my word, we won't. I promise you."

Mr. Coaker himself joined in the general laugh.

And a member who had been sleeping, with his feet upon his desk, suddenly awoke and asked the one sitting next to him what the joke was. LOBBYIST.

Legislative Council.

May 6th.
The House opened at 4.30 and the following Bills were read for the third time and adopted without amendment:

"An Act respecting the effect and application of certain Acts subsequent to the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series)";

"An Act to amend 'The Industrial Societies Act, 1919'";

"An Act to amend Chapter 41 of the Consolidated Statutes of Newfoundland (Third Series) entitled 'Of the Newfoundland Medical Board'";

The second reading of a Bill entitled "An Act respecting the Department of Public Works" was deferred.

Hon. John Anderson spoke on the Food Control Act before its adoption, and said in effect re the sugar situation: "The value of the Cuban sugar crop for this season surpasses that of the three past years put together. Its estimated value being $4,200,000.

Some 19 steamers are loading and 3 are on the way from there with cargoes of raw sugar for St. John, Halifax and Montreal, making some 50 thousand tons for the Canadian market. There need not be the slightest alarm for high prices of sugar, and I don't think it will come to 28-cents per pound." Speaking on the coal problem, he said the coal being sold in the city to-day is nothing more than absolute dirt. He hoped the Government will make some effort at reciprocity with the Canadian companies. We are sending ore to Sydney and receive a royalty of 7 1/2 cents per ton which could easily be increased if the other parties would not make arrangements with us. Some 70 thousand tons of coal were needed for the city alone, and altogether we need about 200,000 tons per year. He thought the Government should assist our local coal company in every possible way. The company has already spent over $40,000 in development work. Potatoes, said the hon. member, are scarce and the next arrivals will be selling for $14 per barrel, the local selling for $11. During the war there was a "hush and cry" for allotments to grow vegetables. There is now more need for them, and he hoped the Minister of Agriculture would make things hum, and see that all the produce possible is raised by our people. It is necessary to keep down the high prices especially of potatoes even to the granting of a bounty if necessary.

The House adjourned until 12.15 to-day, when the Address in Reply was presented to His Excellency the Governor.

Gipsy Smith, Soldier Evangelist.

Twenty-six years ago was born in a tent of a gipsy encampment in Scotland. Capt. Gipsy Pat Smith, the soldier-evangelist who has been visiting in Canada. His father was a Roman of pure blood, but had broken the traditions of the tribe in marrying an Irish colleen. Pat's earliest days were spent traveling through the lowlands of Scotland and the north of Ireland and England; the typical nomadic life of a gipsy boy. He had no religious training, as the gipsies have no religion of their own. Until he was sixteen he went barefoot and earned his living by selling pots and pans, clothes pegs, baskets and mops. At the age of eight he was sent to school, but owing to the fact that the tribe traveled every summer he was forced to confine his education to the winter months. For four winters he attended school and his education was complete.

Many are the conjectures as to who the gipsies really are. Gipsy Pat Smith gives the following account of them: "We have a language of our own called Romany. A great many of our words are distinct Hindustani words. Through the ages the Anglo-Saxon race has married and intermarried until they have become what they now are, but the Romany have only married among themselves. Thus they are a separate people with customs and language of their own. They are a counterpart of the Jewish nation—a nation without a country."

Gipsy Pat explained that there were several tribes of gipsies and their rule was to elect the oldest man as king. The Boswell tribe, he said, was staying in Toronto and he had received a visit from one of its members. The word "gipsy" was the name bestowed upon them by "Gorgios," or people who were not gipsies. In Great Britain there were 40,000 Romany of pure blood.

"No gipsy ever steals," said Captain Pat. "He finds things—but he never steals. I knew of one man who found a horse in a field, dyed it and the next day sold it to the farmer who owned the field."

Of his early life he says: "I never heard the name of Jesus except as an oath. My mother was a very good and sweet woman, but she knew nothing about religion. At the age of sixteen I had never been asked if I belonged to my Master. My father would send me out to 'find' something for supper each day, and if I returned empty-handed he would beat me and send me out again. I had no education and no chance to rise. At this age I had become leader of a gang of roughs on the south side of Glasgow, and I was prouder of those twenty-one boys than General Currie was of his whole army. We specialized in university students. After one scrap, when the leader of the students and I were rolling in the mud, he cried out he had enough. So we shook hands and asked each other's name. He was the son of one of the richest men in the city. We formed a great friendship and a few Sundays after he told me he had promised his mother he would go to church. Instead we went to the tent mission which had been built for D. L. Moody's work. A man asked my friend if he were a Christian and he said he was—which was untrue. The man asked me. I had never been asked before and I felt overcome and said 'Yes.' The man asked me when I had become converted. I pointed to my arm and said, 'The same time as him.'"

After that, exclaimed the captain, for six nights he had cried himself to sleep, and the following Sunday he stood up at the meeting and said that "stink or swim" he intended to live for Christ.

"From then my whole life was transformed. I went home to the gipsy tent on Vinegar Hill and putting my arms round my mother's neck, I said, 'Mum, I've found Christ; I'm saved!'"

"A year and a half later in the same tent I knelt with her and led her to the feet of Jesus. I count among my personal friends some of the greatest men in Great Britain, but I never had honor shown me like that God bestowed upon me that night."

Gipsy Pat preached his first sermon when he was seventeen. When he was eighteen his father put him out for being a Christian. Six months later his mother died. Soon after this, in response to many requests he decided to become an evangelist. "Shortly after mother's death I came home and found father in the stable with his two horses. I put my hand on his shoulder and said: 'Isn't it time you started for heaven?' and then I saw my first miracle. Two tears rolled down his cheeks and in a moment he was on his knees asking God for mercy."

In 1914 the evangelist was becoming so famous that he was asked to tour Canada and the United States. On August 4 he had his bags on the steamer ready to sail when word came that war was declared. He immediately left the ship and enlisted as a trooper in Lovat's Scouts in the "First Hundred Thousand." He was offered a commission, but refused. After ten months he had risen to be a sergeant and had recruited 1,500 men. He was then given a commission in the 1st Tyneside Scottish of the Northumberland Fusiliers and went to France in 1915.

In the battle of the Somme he was shot through the arm and the thigh, and was forced to lay in the field all day. When night came he managed to crawl back to the trenches; it took him nine hours to cover 700 yards and he fainted seven times.

St. George's Coal Fields and the Sydneys.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—Enclosed you will find copy of a letter forwarded to the "Sydney Post" for publication in contradiction of a statement appearing in that issue of March 9th last concerning the coal areas of Newfoundland. You will observe also a footnote inserted after our letter, claiming that the article objected to, was drawn from a report made by the late James P. Howley in 1909.

We also hand you copy of the 1900 report of Mr. Howley, to examine and see if such statement as referred to, occurs in any part of it.

Canada has yet to produce a man who can successfully contradict the late James P. Howley's Geological report, wherein he estimated the possible contents of the coal trough between the Middle Barachois, Robinson's and Northern Feeder Rivers at 25,920,000 tons of coal for every square mile the seams outcropping on these Rivers may underlay. In fact that estimate can be now enlarged upon from the test work carried out during the past year by this Company, and we defy contradiction.

Yours truly,

NEWFOUNDLAND COAL AREAS.

Government Report and Statements of Company Conflict.

Editor Sydney Post—Sir—An Article appears in your issue of March 9th, concerning the coal areas in Newfoundland, under the heading "Colonial Prospectors Fail to Locate Workable Deposits, Three Areas Tested." In this article under the above heading the following statement is made:

"Considerable has been written about the Coal Fields of Newfoundland, and as possible competitors of Cape Breton, a little detailed information of the known qualities of coal. First, however, it can be safely stated that Newfoundland for some years to come will have to depend on Cape Breton and other outside sources for its coal supply, as the coal seams so far discovered and tested show no quantities of coal for commercial purposes."

The above quotation, whoever its author may be, is entirely erroneous and was given either with the object of misguiding the public, or with ignorance as regards the prospecting work carried on during the past season by the St. George's Coal Fields, Ltd. on their property in Bay St. George.

For the information of those whom your article has probably misguided, and in justice to the above Company, we ask you to publish the following:

The St. George's Coal Areas occupy 18 square miles, 10 of which are being prospected at the present time, with the result to date that 5 seams of excellent coal have been opened up running 6 ft. 4 in., 2 ft. 6 in., and 2 ft. 6 inches of clean, high grade coal, comparing by test with the highest grade of bituminous coal deposits of other well-known areas outside the Colony.

The vertical thickness of the strata is estimated at 2963 feet, while according to the measurements of Mr. Richard Brown, F.G.S., who made an exhaustive study of the Cape Breton Fields, the result of which was published in 1871. The vertical thickness of the coal bearing strata around Sydney Harbor is but 1860 ft. The 5th seam mentioned above has up to the present been traced for 14 miles longitudinally, and no doubt extends much further, the 5th seam of coal has been traced longitudinally to date for a distance of three miles.

According to analyses made by some of the leading Chemists of the Empire, including those of the Imperial Institute of London, England, the evaporative power of the coal taken from these areas expressed in pounds of water evaporated by 1 lb. of coal at 212 degrees F. was 12,371, which considerably exceeds that of North Sydney, or the best Scotch, Welsh or English coals.

We ask you to publish the above, not in criticism of your article, as you were no doubt misinformed, but in justice to a vital matter which concerns not only this company but the Empire as a whole.

No doubt Canada and Canadians are more interested in the conservation than the exportation of coal, and consequently with the opening up of Newfoundland's coal resources your Dominion stands to benefit in as great a degree as the Dominion of Newfoundland.

No one need have any doubt that Newfoundland has at least one coal area containing millions of tons of coal in workable seams, of a quality second to none, and further, that in addition to the extensive deposits of iron ore at Bell Island, Conception Bay, there are in the district of St. George's only a few miles from these coal areas, mountains of iron ore, both magnetic and hematite, from which millions of tons of pig iron, steel and other such products could be manufactured by the coal from these areas, and which some day in the near future will play an important part in the steel industry of the Empire.

Yours truly,
The St. George's Coal Fields, Ltd.
T. J. FREEMAN,
Managing Director.

The article complained of was written after a study of the Newfoundland Geological Report, compiled by James P. Howley, F.G.S., and published in 1909. This report was printed after an exhaustive survey had been made of all the probable coal bearing areas of the Colony.

GOOD OPINION.
These are the lasting joys of earth. A home which shelters honest men. A few good loyal friends and true. Who take delight in all you do. Clean hands which know no secret shame. And, first of all, a spotless name.

There are a few great treasures here—
A kindly heart, a conscience clear. A mind which knows no bigot's charge. And yet, for truth, will firm remain. A voice that's quick to utter praise. And scorns the gossip's evil ways.
He shall be glad who walks erect. And wins and keeps all men's respect. Though lacking wealth and fame and skill. No man shall seek to do him ill. And whosoever his pathway wanders. He shall find happiness and friends.
Fools waste their hard-won bit of fame. By linking pleasures unto shame. They fling away at Folly's smile. The treasures that are most worth while. And lose, one mad gay hour to spend. The good opinion of mankind.

He shall be happiest here who clings. Unto the joys which honor brings. Who lives his life so he can be. Head high in any company. Who tries to serve some useful end. And scorns to disappoint his friends.

Spiritualism.

(From the Canadian Churchman.)
Spiritualism has as one of its arch-detractors, Mr. Conan Doyle. In one of his books, The Vital Message, his treatment of the Holy Scripture seems rather peculiar. Do you know how he explains our Lord "groaning in the spirit," before He went to the grave of Lazarus? (John, 11:33.) He says that anyone who has ever heard the distressed groanings of a medium when coming under the "control" of a spirit, will recognize the significance of Jesus' groaning. If that isn't blasphemy, it is foolishness. But unfortunately, it is said by a who has a certain part of the public by the ear. Mr. Doyle says that spiritualism was practiced in New Testament days, because St. John says: "Beloved, believe not every spirit" (1 John, 4:1). If he will read one, he will possibly catch the words "false prophets."

We have not the evidence to judge the accuracy of his statements regarding the spiritualistic phenomena he mentions, but after reading his treatment of Scripture, for which he has no more evidence than any one else, our confidence in his powers of logic is sadly shaken, and we have to warn his judgment. We have enjoyed many of his works of fiction we almost enjoyed this book, after we realized it was in the same class. A warning and a diagnosis of this spiritualistic wave is given by Dr. A. Maxwell Williamson, Medical Officer of health for the city of Edinburgh. In his opinion, the modern spiritualist movement is a direct threat to the nervous and mental stability of the nation, "we shall be little better than a race of neurotics, if this thing grows." This morbid growth has suddenly appeared as a direct result of five years' war strain, with its astronomical effect on the nervous system of the bereaved and those associated with them.

"The overwhelming majority of those who dabble in spiritualism are neurotic. I had a man here in my room recently who had visions. I had to tell him quite frankly, as a medical man, that if he encouraged these he would find himself very seriously ill and in danger of mental disturbance. Those who suffer from these practices are really on the same plane as victims of shell shock. Unless spiritualism is checked it will mean social suicide. We must put our heel on this contamination. Clear minds and healthy thinking will give us a mental and physical deterioration. Watch its adherents; they are in the main, day-dreamers, abnormal, or nervous."

The Yardstick.

(From The Kennebec Journal)
"More pay, less work, whole loaf, loaf all the time."
All in favor stop and think it over. This is the tendency of "labor" as understood by a good many people who inhabit these good comfortable United States. How long will they remain good and comfortable if the brawn and muscle that ought to be rebuilding the losses occasioned by the war with redoubled vigor and industry, sink and strike and slack? All the clap-trap stuff about the industrial class becoming possessors of industry we now know to be nothing but another way of saying that a business would run as well if the president and the junior changed places. It is nonsense to suppose that the men who have put their lives and brains into trying to make a success of their business can be replaced with unskilled hands without detriment to that particular business, and if the practice become general, to all business. Whether the theorists and alleged philosophers like it or not, there is a certain quality called common-sense that has a disturbing habit of popping up and measuring things by its yardstick—and its measure finally has to be the standard.

The Real Offender.

Because he supplied liquor to a young man who begged for it to give his dying father, a citizen of Lindsay, Ontario, is reported to have been sent to jail. The accused was not able to pay a fine of $500 imposed.
A system which deals with the liquor question by encouraging, or even countenancing such incidents as this one is far from perfect. The sentence imposed no doubt was arrived at in due process of law, but the opinion of the vast majority will be that the real offender escaped untouched.
Sympathy for others is all too rare and noble a sentiment to be discouraged, particularly by acts of deceit. An individual mean enough to act as the one who approached this Lindsay citizen acted is not fit to serve the public welfare, and the activity of such weakens the moral prestige of the "dry" crusade.—Montreal Daily Star.

Cause of High Prices.

Westminster Gazette: The figures given in the Statist show that the cost of living is still increasing, and that in the cases of forty-five representative commodities the present price is three times that in 1913.
In the main the rise is due to more fundamental causes, and the cure is beyond the powers of legislators. The world during the four years has devoted a great deal of its energies to the destruction of life and property. It has ceased to devote its surplus produce to new productive developments; it has used up that surplus and pledged its credit, and has not an escape from a political peril. Until production recovers and credit is restored, the relation between the value of money and of goods cannot begin to move back towards the normal.

Concerning John Bull.

Egyptian Mail: We back British common-sense to beat Bolshevism any day, either inside the British Empire or outside it. Furthermore, we back British common-sense to maintain the British Empire as a going concern—no matter whether the hand at the helm be labelled Coalition or Liberal or Labor. Those who think otherwise are more than welcome to their opinions, but we condole with them in good time on having backed the wrong horse. The Britisher—we don't like the word, but if we talk about Englishmen, letters from Australians, Canadians, Scotsmen and Prince Edward Islanders shower on us worse than rain on a February day in Cairo—the Britisher, we repeat, may be recognized anywhere within hearing distance by two outstanding characteristics: he always grumbles, just to show his independence, while, thanks to his common-sense he realises perfectly just how much he really has to grumble about.

Chinese Tea Legend.

Chinese legend has woven an interesting myth about tea. According to this authority tea was discovered by a son of an Indian king, Darma, who in 519 A.D., paid a semi-religious visit to China. He vowed never to sleep that he might devote all his time to prayer, but one day, after many years, he was overcome with drowsiness, and against his will, slept. To show his remorse he cut off his eyelids. The next morning he found the eyelids metamorphosed into two shrubs, which, ever since have been called

The Denim-Cratic Party.

(From The Cincinnati Times-Star.)
The "overall" movement that is sweeping across the country is more significant than it seems. There is more in it than the spirit of a sartorial prank. It means that at last there is a popular appreciation of the inexorable truth that to cut down the high cost of living we shall have to cut out some of the high living. There was a time, not so long ago, when the boys of a neighborhood wore trousers that were things of patches, if not of shreds. And they weren't ashamed of them. But the general tide of prosperity swept patched trousers into the discard. The boy whose trousers are of more than one material is now a social pariah. He belongs to the juvenile proletariat, whose parents are not able to buy him a new suit when time has abraded the seat of his trousers. But don't blame the boys. This feeling, this class distinction, is a heritage from fathers who formerly walked or rode in street cars, but who now "tour" to and from work, and from mothers who are not satisfied as long as Mrs. Jones next door has a car of more expensive make. The American people have not been living as they used to. But they are going to live more and more as they used to. The "overall" movement is a picturesque harbinger of the days that are on their way.

The Spirit of the Times.

A former member of the New York Stock Exchange, discussing the present wave of extravagance that is overrunning not only this country, but the world at large, relates the following experience:
"I was at a dinner a few nights ago," he says, "with a number of other men, and, in the course of conversation, someone passed a remark about 'pikers.'"
"What is a 'piker'?" I inquired.
"One of those present, after a moment's reflection, supplied the modern definition: 'A piker is a man who lives within his income,' he replied."

William Wordsworth & His 'Perfect Woman.'

(John O'London's Weekly.)

Love came to William Wordsworth on "the flaming wings of passion," stole unseen into his heart when he was a child; he cherished it unknown, unsuspected, through long years of his youth and early manhood; then at last it revealed itself its maturity, strong, beautiful, and true, to crown his life with a happiness such as is rarely given to mortals.

All the conscious love he had to give in his early days was given solely with a rare prodigality to his sister Dorothy—"the beloved sister in whose sight those days were passed."

It was about this time that the long-slumbering love seems to have awakened to life; and in its revelation the scales fell from Wordsworth's eyes and he saw that the playmate of his childhood was the one woman in all the world for him; "dearer far than life and light are dear"; his heaven-sent helpmate, able "in his steep march to uphold him to the end." And with this revelation came a happiness such as he had never known, or indeed "deemed possible on earth." And thus it was that one October morning in 1802 William and Mary, at the Penrith altar, spoke the vows that linked their lives in a long union that was to prove happy beyond all their dreams.

Never has man had a more ideal helpmate than this Perfect woman, noble planner. To warn, to comfort, to command; And yet a spirit still and bright, With something of angelic light.

The Triumvirate of Hearts. And never has woman, dethroned from her supremacy in the heart of the man she loved, accepted her fate with a sweeter resignation than Dorothy Wordsworth. During the marriage ceremony she remained at home. "I kept myself as quiet as I could," she says; "but when I saw the two men running up the walk, coming to tell us it was over, I could stand it no longer, and threw myself on my bed, where I lay in stillness, till Sara came upstairs to me and said "They are coming." This forced me from the bed where I lay, and I moved faster than my strength could carry me, till I met my beloved brother and fell upon his bosom. He and John Hutchinson led me to the house, there I stayed to welcome my dear Mary.

Then followed for the "triumvirate of kindred hearts" happy years of "high thinking and plain living" in the little Grasmere cottage, with its drapery of roses and honeysuckle, its small orchard and smaller garden, its boat upon the lake, and its environment of towering mountains. "They drank water and ate the simplest fare," we are told. "Books they had few, and neighbours almost none."

Thus more than thirty years passed, during which William Wordsworth fully climbed the first steep of Parnassus, unrecognized by the world of men--years of study and labour's income, made bright and happy by the sunshine of his sister's love and sweet companionship.

To Mary Hutchinson he still remained in the thirties, the "big other" of her school-days. He engaged her company on country rambles, or by the fireside in the "small house at Grasmere." She was his second sister, next in his heart to Dorothy; and no thought seems to have entered his head of the possibility that she could ever be "a man's

But they lacked nothing to make their life happy.

Idyllic Years. In such idyllic ways the years passed in peace and sweet content--at Dove Cottage, Allan Bank, the Grasmere Parsonage, and Rydal Mount. Mary saw her beloved William crowned with laurels and honours. And one of the last glimpses we get of them is in their old age, as they walk arm in arm in the Rydal Mount garden. "They were both quite old," says one who saw them, "and he was almost blind; but they seemed like sweethearts courting, they were so tender and attentive to each other."

To Those Who Died. CONNECTICUT TOWN HAS MEMORIAL FOR ALL TIME.

In the little Connecticut town of Norfolk is a triangular piece of ground belonging to the people. For years it stood useless, almost abandoned, and to a certain extent unnoticed. Norfolk sent to France early in 1918 a score and a half of her boys to fight in the American armies. Other boys followed.

A few months after the first contingent marched away Norfolk began to receive its share of tidings from the front. Names of boys known to every one in the town were found in the lists of those "killed in action." Boys whose faces were bright and shining and whose voices were strong and merry were never to return. They were lying in the fields of France.

The return of these names to Norfolk instead of flesh and blood that went away gave Norfolk its inspiration. The little green triangle became a tract of glory. No more will it be looked upon as a waste, no more will the people of Norfolk call it worthless. For some one thought of a way to make it rich, the most cherished spot in Norfolk.

On Flag Day in the year that the war made heroes of these lads from Norfolk, the people of that place dedicated the point of this triangle to the memory of those who were not to come back from France. At that time four of Norfolk's boys were lying in France under little crosses of wood, and on this day four little crosses of wood similar to those in France, with a name and a date on each, were driven into the ground at the point of the triangle. There they will stay until they are perhaps replaced by more enduring and impressive marks of tribute.

But the little crosses of wood are not all that the people of Norfolk placed in the village triangle in memory of the boys who will not come back. Something that will live and thrive and beautify the barren triangle was placed there for each boy, and it is named for him. For each hero a tree was planted, and it will always be known as his tree, by his name; and long after the great-grandchildren of those who now live in Norfolk are dead and gone these trees will still stand and will be known through all the sunshine and storm of the ages by the names they received at the christening. They will grow to be tall and mighty and spread their branches over the cross that was won on the battlefields of France--the simple cross of honor that every man wins when he gives up his life for his country.

The thought is beautiful. That little triangle in Norfolk will have more trees and crosses; the boys who died in France will live and grow to an age far beyond the years of the oldest of men. How simple this way of commemorating the deeds and the spirit of the boys who go forth to the war was never to come home again! Little cross of wood for the present, a towering tree for the future, and the name of a hero preserved for an age to come.--George Barr McCutcheon.

The Wicked Consumer.

(From The Philadelphia Record.)
Why is the price of sugar going up? Because, according to a sugar refinery official, the consumer is stocking up in excess of his requirements. And why is the consumer stocking up? Because the sugar refiners have let it be pretty generally understood that the price of sugar is going up. The consumer is clearly at fault. He should be arrested and put in jail for trying to take an unfair advantage of the people who want his money.

Pliable Uppers, Weatherproof and Wear-Resisting, Tough Tire-Tread Soles. Hard to wear out.

You know from experience what happens to ordinary boots when used in fishing. You've seen how salt water seems to take the life out of the rubber and how the rubbers crack and the soles wear through in a surprisingly short time.

The "EXCEL" is a different and better kind of boot. It has been made especially to stand up under the unusually hard use a fisherman's boot gets.

The rubber and fabric in "EXCEL" boots are of the very highest quality. But it is the special method of curing, under tremendous pressure, that makes the "EXCEL" so wear-resisting. The pressure forces the layers of rubber and fabric together so that they are actually "one-piece", without losing the least bit of the life of resiliency of the rubber. Salt water has practically no effect on "EXCEL" boots. The UPPERS remain pliable and weatherproof, and resist the drying-out action of sun, heat and cold far longer than other boots, consequently they don't crack anywhere so quickly. The SOLES are almost wear-proof, because they are made like an Auto Tire, with 8 plies of rubber and fabric welded by tremendous pressure into a "tire-tread" sole that rivals an automobile tire for toughness and durability.

These are exclusive features of "EXCEL" boots.

The picture at the left, of an "EXCEL" boot, with every detail of construction visible, shows how "EXCEL" boots are reinforced at every point of strain. There is not a single feature but what has been proved necessary and desirable by tests of severest use. Your own experience will tell you that a boot with these features simply must be a better boot.

Study this picture. Learn these features. Remember them when you compare "EXCEL" boots with ordinary boots. And remember, too, that very important point which the picture cannot show, namely, that "EXCEL" boots are cured under tremendous pressure which leaves the rubber pliable, weather-proof, and wear-resisting. It is only by the use of this tremendous pressure combined with highest quality materials that the best results are obtained.

Below are listed seven special features which make "EXCEL" boots superior. Read them carefully so that when you need boots you will know how to get the best value for your money.

Seven Special Features that make the "Excel" Best.

FEATURE No. 1--The entire boot is cured under heavy pressure, forcing all parts together in "one-piece", and retaining the full life and resiliency of the rubber.

FEATURE No. 2--An 8-ply double sole of tough, durable rubber, made like an Auto Tire, running all the way under the full moulded heel. This sole and heel are so wear-resisting that they are commonly called the "tough on rocks" sole and heel.

FEATURE No. 3--A heavily reinforced boot which will withstand the hardest kind of wear.

FEATURE No. 4--Six plies at the instep relieves strain and prevents wrinkling or cracking.

FEATURE No. 5--Reinforced five-ply leg for extra wear. Just the right amount of strength to stand up, yet not be uncomfortable.

FEATURE No. 6--Four-ply top, very pliable.

FEATURE No. 7--Heavy duck lining, and a heavy insole prevent dampness and keep feet dry and comfortable.

Most reliable dealers sell "EXCEL" boots. Be sure to look for the name "EXCEL". Substitutes and "just as good" boots will not give you "EXCEL" service. If your dealer does not have them in stock, write us for name of nearest dealer.

PAIGE

The Most Beautiful Car in America

A New Development in Light Sixes

Before we began experimental work on our new six-cylinder motor three years ago, we made a very thorough investigation of the light six field.

We found out just what qualities car owners desired in the power plants of their motor cars and then we designed an engine to meet these requirements.

The wisdom of our method is attested by the unanimous approval given our five-passenger "Glenbrook" model. With its first appearance, it immediately won the enthusiastic support of motorists.

And, by its dependable and economical performance, it has so clearly demonstrated its high character as an investment value that our production schedule is already proving unequal to the demand.

The "Glenbrook" is a truly remarkable development in five-passenger cars. Won't you arrange for a demonstration while our dealer is in position to meet your requirements as to delivery?

SUCCESSFUL SALE OF WORK.
The sale of work held by the Women's Association of St. Mary's at the Parish Hall last evening, proved a splendid success. During the evening His Lordship Bishop White, the Prime Minister, Rev. Dr. Jones and Rev. Canon Bolt paid a visit. The hall was tastefully decorated and the various stalls were well filled with useful goods which found a ready sale. The tea tables were a feature of the evening and were liberally patronized. The ladies in charge were:

- Plain Work—Mesdames Harvey and Harris.
- Fancy Work—Mesdames Burridge and Barrett.
- Jumble—Mrs. Farniter.
- Candy—Mesdames Winsor and Heath.
- Tea Tables—Mrs. Cole, Mrs. Ash, Mrs. Hanson.

The financial returns were fully up to expectations.

Art Craft for Our Disabled Veterans.

Hand-woven Baskets, Wood Inlaying and other work coming from our Vocational Training Schools.

The introduction of Miss Evelyn Smith, of the Ward Aides Branch of our local Civil Re-Establishment Committee, to the various Military patients has meant the following up of an interesting occupational work which previous to the war was only used to a very slight extent in connection with various Nerve and Mental Hospitals in Canada.

"Occupational Therapy" it is termed, and it is a means used to assist the cure by providing something to occupy the patient's time. This is principally obtained by a programme of arts craft work, such as weaving, headwork, wood carving or basketry. The latter is one of the fairly ancient arts in our Hemisphere, and in the Dominion of Canada has won considerable fame; but out of the peculiar circumstances which have made reed work and various branches of hand-weaving a very desirable occupation for certain of our returned veterans, has come a new interest in it and a new appreciation of workmanship. Very handsome baskets of every kind and description, trays in infinite variety and a multitude of other articles useful and decorative, have been turned out by the men in hospitals—and this is the work which Miss Smith has now come to Newfoundland to organize and supervise, with the cooperation of Hon. J. M. Kent, Military Hospitals Commission; Major W. H. Parsons, M.C., Secretary Nfd. Pensions Board, and Dr. W. W. Blackall, M.B.E., Vocational Officer.

Major W. Bailie of the Canadian Medical Corps, has the following comment to make on the system which is now being introduced amongst our veterans who are confined to bed in hospital: "The result of this work is a speedy and complete convalescence, and a readiness to go out and compete in the world again. Occupational Therapy is now coming into its own, and while at present it is very little made use of, it will soon be used in practically every type of case, in every up-to-date hospital."

Those Post Office Coats.

The officials at the General Post Office present a very singular appearance these days, garbed as they are in long CLARK coats. The raiment makes some appear quite YOUNG, while MOORE look decidedly like the NEWMAN. The coats are roomy, can be buttoned ATWILL, and GOO-BE low the knees, giving the wearers the opulent appearance of those ancient county SQUIRES to be seen in old prints. But the tongue will wag, and some unkind folk have said, that the P. O. clerks now resemble attendants at country BARNES, and even a bold bad man decided they looked like PARSONS. However that may be, the coats are a great convenience, and each official NO-ES-WORTHY to wear them. The garment helps much to the wish of the poorly paid clerk to hide his nicely patched clothes each DAY, and FACETS duties strong and ennobled in the knowledge that a GARLAND of celestial flowers will adorn bye-and-bye in that Happy Hunting ground where it neither snows or RAINES. In the meantime if the boys do not get a raise in salary (and Heaven knows they need it) they KIN-SELL-A new coat for half its original cost.

CHARIVARIA.

Burglars Abroad.

Shortly after one o'clock this morning, watchman Rice while doing his rounds found the store of K. Noah, Botwood Hall, broken open. The matter was immediately communicated to the proprietor, and Mr. Noah's two sons with Sergt. Furlong, constables O'Neill and White proceeded to the scene and found that the store had been ransacked and many packages of goods broken open. How much was stolen the owner could not tell until the stock was checked up.

SMALLPOX REPORTED.—The first case of smallpox for several months was reported to the health authorities yesterday. The sufferer, a woman aged 76, resident of Bonclody Street, was removed to hospital.

House of Assembly.

May 5.
 The House met at 3 p.m.
 Mr. Warren, Minister of Justice presented a petition from Rev. Fr. Dinn and others of Carboner, asking that the Roman Catholic property at the place be connected up with the Carboner Water System.
 The Minister of Marine and Fisheries introduced the following bills which were read a first time: "An Act to amend Chapter 173 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series), entitled 'Of the survey of foreign-going and Labrador vessels'; 'An Act to amend Chapter 11 of the Consolidated Statutes (Third Series), entitled 'Of the Department of Marine and Fisheries.'"
 The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the Shipbuilding Bill.
 M. W. F. COCKER (Bonavista), explained that the last clause over which such objection was taken at the previous sitting had been amended by increasing the tonnage of a vessel, so as to be able to secure the rebate duty, from 120 to 130 tons and the rebate only to apply to vessels that were built one year, 1919. He then read the list of those who would come under the latter and be entitled to the duty rebate, as follows:—
 Marystown Trading Co., one vessel . . . . . $1,650.00
 Buffett & Co., one vessel . . . . . 1,796.00
 Dan Palley . . . . . 709.00
 Samuel Harris, Ltd. . . . . 1,381.00
 F.P.U. . . . . 900.00
 Another Unknown . . . . . 591.00
 Approximate total . . . . . 7,029.00
 These were the only ones that needed any consideration, as those launched previous to 1919 came under the Bounty Act.
 Mr. M. S. Sullivan (Placentia and St. Mary's), said that he did not support the Bill, despite the amendment, as the latter did not in the least alter the principle. He was strongly against any kind of retroactive legislation. It is a bad precedent to set and might at some future date be used disastrously for the country. Why should S. Harris, Ltd., Buffett & Co., and the others receive large sums of money from the public funds. Why should the people who are taxed be forced to pay those business concerns five, or ten or fifteen hundred dollars. Only a capitalistic government could do so.
 Hon. W. R. Warren (Fortune Bay), supported the Bill, seeing no reason for its rejection.
 Mr. W. J. Walsh (Placentia and St. Mary's), spoke next, reviewing the Bill, its causes and likely results, at length. The Bill was vicious in principle, at least the retroactive section was. It was intended for the classes, not the masses. Mr. Walsh finished at 6.30 when the House adjourned.
 The House resumed at 8.30. Messrs. W. J. Higgins and C. J. Fox (St. John's East), Sir John C. Crosbie (Port de Grave), Mr. J. R. McDonnell (St. George's), Dr. W. E. Jones (Hr. Manx), Mr. J. R. Bennett (St. John's West), and Sir M. P. Cahlin (Ferryland), spoke on the Bill, exhausting the entire subject.
 On the motion to adopt the report, Mr. Higgins moved and Mr. J. R. Bennett seconded that sub-section 2 of section 3 be deleted. The House divided and a straight party vote supported the Bill, which was adopted.
 The House adjourned at 1.30 this morning.

C. L. B. Cadets' First Annual Banquet.

The first annual banquet of A. Co. Church Lads' Brigade Cadets, was held in the Armoury gymnasium on Monday night last. The chair was occupied by Sergt. F. A. Stone. Supper was served at 9.15 by the Committee. Col. Sergt. E. Earl being chief-in-charge. After full justice had been done the good things provided, the following toast list was gone through:—
 "The King"—Prop. the Chairman; resp. "God Save the King."
 "The Companies"—Prop. L. Corp. Dicks; resp. A. Co., C.S.M. Rendell; F. Co., C.S.M. Colton; E. Co., Corp. Smith; H.Q. Co., Rev. Fletcher; Recruits, Captain H. A. Outerbridge.
 "W. and N.C.O.'s"—Prop. Pte. Pittman; resp. R.S.M. Williams.
 "The Officers"—Prop. Corp. Feaver; resp. Lt. Henry.
 "Our Guests"—Prop. Corp. Adams; resp. Lt. Winter.
 "Absent Friends"—Prop. Lieutenant Moty.
 "The Chairman"—Prop. L. Corp. Dicks; resp. Sergt. Stone.
 During the evening songs and recitations were given by Pte. Moore, C.S.M. Colton, Rev. Lieut. Fletcher, and Pte. A. Moore. The evening, which proved most enjoyable, was brought to a close with the National Anthem.

Household Notes.

Do not put away bread until thoroughly cool.
 Old velvetene makes excellent polishing cloths.
 Grease the cake pans with lard, as butter sticks.
 For frying pancakes use a small omelet frying pan.
 Sandpaper will remove rust from the kitchen range.

RE-BUILT Piano Case Organs.

(Six Octaves.)

BY FAMOUS MAKERS.

We have in stock a number of Rebuilt Organs, piano case, six octave, by Bell, Doherty, Thomas, etc., which we are offering at the same price practically as five octave parlour organs. Every instrument guaranteed.

Owing to its limited scale the five octave organ is only suitable for sacred music. The advantage of the six octave instrument is apparent since its larger scale will accommodate any piano selection, while the finish, style and tone of these instruments should appeal to everyone.

Rebuilt Piano Case Organs . . . . . $150 to $175
 Rebuilt High Top, 5 Octaves . . . . . $100
 Rebuilt Low Top, 5 Octaves . . . . . $85
