CHAPTER XXI.

After breakfast comes an ordeal which Yolande dreads and shrinks from, but to which she is obliged to submit in her helplessness and friendlessness—a visit from mademoiselle, the meek dependent, who, while ostensibly Lady Maria's nurse and companion, is in reality the mistress of the house and every one in it. She glides in, in her pale-gray gown and her Puritan bands and kerchief, with a bright smile and sweet words of sympathy.

With downcast eyelids, she hears all Yolande has to say, acquiesces meekly, and arranges everything for her immediate departure without one unpleasant comment or question.

Indeed Yolande wishes yesterday more than that mademoiselle Isabelle, as she is called in the household, would evade some little natural surprise and inquisitiveness on the subject of this sudden journey, the parting of a newly wedded pair; but mademoiselle seems possessed only with the idea that Yolande has caught a bad influenza cold and is obliged to go posthaste to London to nurse herself.

"And, of course, no matter what poor Captain Glynn's feeling may be at having to part with you, cheer up, your health and comfort are his first consideration," mademoiselle says, with a solemn shake of the head and a plaintive smile, which to Yolande appears like a sardonic grin. "We must try to keep him from feeling lonely, dear," she adds, softly, "though I don't suppose any of us could succeed in doing that"—with another serious shake of the head.

"I couldn't resist that one small joke at her expense," mademoiselle says to herself, laughing heartily, "when I fully expect and intend that he and Joyce Murray will flirt to their hearts' content all day long and every day, now that the green-eyed

MRS. BUDGE SO WEAK COULD HARDLY STAND

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health

River Desert, Que.—"I used to have a severe pain in my side—I would be unable to walk fast and could not stand for any length of time, do my ironing or washing, but I could have to be down to get relief from the pain. I had this for about two years, then a friend told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she had had good results. I certainly got good results from it, too, as the last time I had a severe side was last May and I have not had it since. I am also glad of having good nursing for my baby, and think it is your medicine that helped me in this way." Mrs. J. V. Brown, River Desert, Quebec.

If you are suffering from the tortures of a displacement, irregularities, backache, headache, nervousness or a pain on the side, you should lose no time in trying Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"monster" poor Yolande—in out of the way! And she hurries off to announce to Lady Maria and the vicount, who is paying his duty visit, Mrs. Dallas Glynn's intended departure.

She smooths the way, explaining and arranging everything so deftly that, when Yolande is dressed, she has nothing to do but to say "Good-by" to every one, including her husband.

Lady Maria is very kind and full of sympathy for Yolande's evident illness, and urges her, when in London, to see a favorite "specialist" of hers—Dr. Sutherland Smith.

"For one cannot be too careful, dear, of one's precious, precious health!" Lady Maria says, swallowing a nauseous reddish-bued dose.

Yolande then hurries down to the hall, where the carriage is waiting. "Please tell Captain Glynn I am going now," she says to one of the footmen.

He has gone to the stables, and the message does not reach him for some little time. He is utterly confounded, but incredulous, until he sees the carriage actually piled with luggage, and his wife and her maid sitting inside. His face pales visibly, and his eyes glitter as he comes forward and puts his hand upon the carriage door. But he smiles quite pleasantly, though coldly.

"I did not think you intended going until the afternoon," he says, carelessly. "Williams, fetch my overcoat!"

"You—you are not coming?" Yolande asks, flushing and frowning, and trying to speak very coldly, while her heart is bounding with joy.

"I am going to the station with you, of course," he answers, his eyes flashing. "I can't escort you all the way, as I explained to you last night, you know!"

"Oh, yes, very well!" Yolande replies, in an indifferent tone. "Will you have room, or shall Pitts go outside?"

"Plenty of room," he says, curtly, detaining Pitts, who is alighting with an armful of small luggage.

A few words more, about the time of the train and so forth, they speak but not a tone or glance is exchanged that might not pass between utter strangers, until the station is reached.

When she is seated in the railway carriage, there is a few minutes' grace; and Yolande hopes for even a few words of reproach in her husband's farewell.

But Captain Glynn is deeply offended, and betrays it only in his lofty polite attention to his wife's comfort. He buys her books and papers, sees that she has a foot-warmer, and fees the guard handsomely to be attentive. Then he strolls to and fro until the last bell rings, when he steps into the carriage, and as Pitts is locking on, puts his arm round his wife's waist, and just brushes her cheek with his mustache in a cold semblance of a kiss.

"Good-by—take care of yourself!" he says, stepping out on to the platform. "Good-by, Pitts."

The whistle sounds, and he smiles pleasantly, raising his hat as he turns on his heel.

Yolande, as she gazes wildly after his retreating figure and the train glides swiftly on, feels now, when it is all too late, in a spasm of agony that seems to suffocate her, that it is by her own act and deed that she is thus divorced from her newly wedded husband—her love whom she loves but too well—it may be for long desolate years, it may be forever!

CHAPTER XXII.

Captain Glynn walks away from the platform without so much as casting a farewell glance at his young wife; but he sends the carriage home without him, and, lighting a cigar, walks slowly back the mile and a half to Pentreath, Bitter and dreads thoughts are his during that lonely walk; Yolande is avenged for his cold repulse of her last night, if she could only now see his heart.

The sullen rain clouds of yesterday are hanging low over the wet, cold-bued landscape; it is far more like a day in "drear November" than in "the sweet springtime," and Dallas feels as wretched as the day is, desponding as he plots on his solitary way.

"It has been a slight mistake—that is all," she says, smiling bitterly. "Like a good many other marriages. I thought she was a gentle, patient girl, but she is not. She thought I was a tame, sentimental fool, and is disgusted to find I am not. I thought I was getting a wife to love me and comfort me; and, instead of that, I have bound myself for life to a jealous young ternaunt, who treats me to a curious scene from a melodrama on any and every occasion."

He stops to think for a moment here to his angry reverie, and conscience, by no means desisted, reminds him of the impassioned clasp of loving arms, of the love light in her dark, passionate eyes, the truth and the tenderness of her cry of devotion, and the promise never to leave him which she sealed with the kisses of her pure lips. His eyes soften, his face flushes faintly with a glow of pleasant emotion.

"She is a jealous young ternaunt, though!" he mutters, half laughing. "But I will say this—I don't believe I should easily tire of Yolande, even if everything went smoothly with us; and I do believe she loves me desperately, poor little girl!"

He is nearly back at Pentreath Place now, and, with a curious desolate sense of loss, he frowns as he looks at it. Jealous, loving, angry, tender Yolande is not there to smile or to frown at him; and a pang seems to go through his very heart as he thinks how she would have met him—with dark eyes and soft, tremulous lips of rapturous delight—if he had not driven her and her love away.

"But there is one thing I will not endure," he tells himself, his brow clouding again; "and that is, Yolande doing just as she pleases in everything, in direct defiance of me and my wishes, and leading this highly independent life because of her girlish whim. I will follow her to London as soon as all this is over, and insist on her obedience, and on her living with me as other docile wives live with their husbands, when once I get those confounded debts paid and things on a proper footing." Dallas decides firmly. "I will not allow my little lady say more of this free and untrammelled existence. She has married me, and she loves me, and she must learn to obey me! The earl would never be so shabby as not to leave me at least a thousand," he muses uneasily, "and, mean and grasping as Lylyth is, he could never grudge me a paltry sum like that—rich as a Jew as he is, too! I must have a talk, a serious talk—and a large slice of 'humble pie' along with it, I suppose—with Lylyth this very evening," he muses. "He is not all bad, I dare say, though I have never heard any good of him. I will tell him frankly how I stand, and how, when I have given up soldiering and sent in my papers, I am not going to settle down to spend the rest of my days in idleness. He and old Dormer between them ought to be able to put me up to something good in the city or out of it."

A Mountain of Tobacco.
MARVELS OF JOHN BULL'S ANNUAL SMOKE.

The most extravagant smoker would probably be amazed to learn that the tobacco in his pipe is part of a huge mountain of the fragrant weed weighing over 40,000 tons, every ounce of which will, it is estimated, vanish before this year comes to an end.

So heavy is this mountain that, if all the people in Manchester, Blackburn, and Bolton were placed in a pan of a gigantic pair of scales, and John Bulls supply of tobacco for 1922 to the other, the million and more of human beings would remain suspended in the air.

All the people in Middlesex, using their combined strength to the utmost, could not raise it a fraction of an inch from the ground. It would even prove an impossible feat for the entire population of Durham or Essex, with their larger numbers, approximately 1,400,000 people.

Train Twelve Miles Long.
If we wish to transport our tobacco by rail, we will require 4,000 trucks, each carrying 10 tons of tobacco; and our train, with 120 powerful locomotives, would be more than long enough to stretch from Waterloo to Surbiton—a distance of 12 miles.

Let us now imagine a pipe large enough to hold a year's supply. We shall find that the bowl will be so capacious that eighty men could scarcely "touch fingers" round its ample waist. And it will rear its head more than twice as high as Nelson's Column.

So big is our bowl that we could pack into it every man, woman and child in Kent, to the number of more than a million; or we might persuade the people of Leeds, Bradford, and Hull to take their place. When the bowl is tightly packed with one year's tobacco, its surface will be so large that 10,000 soldiers could be massed on it.

The Preservation Of Our Caribou.

From the reports of sportsmen and guides who have studied the caribou for years, the general opinion gathered is that our once magnificent herds are dwindling rapidly, and unless some further efforts are made to protect them, the time is not far distant when they will cease to exist. Only a few years ago, it was not difficult to secure a good head on any of the hunting grounds; to-day the securing of a large set of antlers is the exception rather than the rule, and then only at the cost of considerable trouble.

As the Caribou offers one of the chief attractions of the sportsmen to our shores, and as the hunting provides employment for a considerable number of people during a part of the year, the steps to be taken to prevent the extermination of this famous animal are worthy of consideration. The season for hunting opens on August the first, but very few sportsmen go into the country before September for reasons that we mention below. In August, however, many animals are shot by the people of the settlements or of the lumber camps for the purpose of providing themselves with meat, but it would not impose a hardship on anyone if August was included in the close season, as at this time of the year food of all kinds is far more easily procurable than by hunting.

During this month the fawns are with their mothers, and even if they manage to escape the bullet of the hunter, it is questionable if many survive the various dangers which beset the young and inexperienced in the wilds. The antlers are valueless as they are soft and have not reached full growth, and are covered with velvet.

Early in the season caribou are frequently found in the river valleys, and perhaps because their one obsession at that time is feeding, and because they are preoccupied with the flies by which they are constantly attacked, they seem less aware of the approach of danger than they are later on when they take to the uplands.

Were the close season enforced until September 1st, it would undoubtedly result in a considerable increase in the number of animals that would reach their prime.

The Caribou Reservation is a tract of land in which hunting, trapping or camping is forbidden. It lies to the northward and eastward, roughly speaking, of Grand and Deer Lakes. In course of time the caribou have discovered that once within this area they are in comparative safety, but as the Humber activities are centred in this locality it will no longer prove a sanctuary. It will be necessary to select a new Reservation, in the choice of which the advice of the Game Wardens should be obtained.

The close season from October the first to the twentieth should be of longer duration, as it is generally recognized that the mating begins earlier and continues longer than that period. Even if it began a week earlier and closed a week later, the natural increase in the size of the herds would be considerable.

Objection may be taken by some people to any alteration in the regulations, but if after a consultation with the various experienced guides and wardens it is found that alterations are necessary, the Game and Inland Fisheries Board should revise them immediately. The preservation of the animals is the first and only consideration.

There is a tendency to be wasteful of Nature's lavish gifts, and to fail to realize until too late that they have reached the vanishing point and cannot be replenished. Wise precautions taken now may make it unnecessary to enforce a close season covering a period of years at a later date.

The Return of the Gold-Miners.

"AN ABSOLUTE TAKE IN."

Such is the expression—not to mention others—used by the gold miners who made their way to the Labrador coast in the season from all over the continent of America.

Dashed by the glowing accounts of the promoters and the Canadian and American papers of riches, and lands that were "obdurate gold," and only waiting for the shovel to be put to work, they started off full of enthusiasm and dreaming of wealth untold. Upon their arrival at the new-found Klondike, despite the heavy amount of the consignment covered in the snow of winter, they made their way up Big Brook and Black Duck River, risking their lives in their "cray-cray" through dangerous rapids and wet to the waist as they dragged their boats through the icy waters. At night, dog tired, they threw themselves down to the till dawn chilled to the marrow. On again at sunrise, their misery intensified by the myriads of mosquitoes that never gave them a moment's peace. Ever in front of them loomed the elusive phantom of the yellow metal, but of the substance they saw none. There was but one cause. Everywhere was grim granite—in the bed of the river, in the sides of the valley which shut them in, and when at times they climbed the hills, away to the edge or beyond extended more granite rocks and ridges.

At last they realized that there was nothing for it but to strike the back trail. Sadder and wiser than they had been, they turned their backs on the gold fields and to civilization which consisted of the Newfoundland Government officials and the "Gold Coast" police. From them they received every attention and kindness, and they cannot speak too highly of their consideration. Among those who formed the exploring party were L. F. Pelly, H. W. Sixton, of Bonna Bay, A. Payne of Port Blanford, A. Gen of Thomastown, Ont., Geo. Tourner of Windsor, Ont., G. Mackenzie of Scarborough, N.S., R. R. Stapleton of Fredericton, N.Y., Isaac Barle and Edward Holmes of Bay Roberts, Geo. Fallon of Parisborough, Arthur Gainwells and Jack Nohet of Montreal, C. D. Mayer of Stratford, Mo., R. J. C. Wilson, U.S.A., and L. Edwards of Montreal. Most of these men are placer miners who have prospected in various parts of the west coast of the world.

They are not discouraged by their experience, and they are very confident, and all of the type that are never downhearted, but they are disgusted. This feeling has been aroused not so much by their failure to make a fortune, as by the fact, which they wish to publish to the world, that there is no gold in that locality, never was, and never will be.

We refrain from publishing their uncomplimentary comments on the promoter of the Labrador Gold Fields whom they blame for sending them off at no small cost to themselves on what they consider as nothing more than a "wild goose chase."

Midnight Blaze.

GARAGE AND STABLE ON KING'S BRIDGE ROAD, SUITERED BY FIRE.

Last night shortly after 11 o'clock, a fire broke out in the Central and East-End Fire Companies to the residence of Messrs. Gordon and Herbert Winters, known as "Sunbeam" King's Bridge Road, where a fire which lasted very threateningly had broken out in a stable adjoining a garage at the rear. How the fire originated is unknown, but two men passing along King's Bridge Road first noticed flames issuing from the stable, and having quickly ascended Mr. Gordon Winters of the occurrence, the alarm was hurriedly sent in. Before the fire apparatus had arrived, Mr. Winters' first thoughts were centered on the garage, which he believed was in the burning stable. Upon making a through search he failed to locate her, and it was not until a few minutes later after he had made a hurried exit to the rear of the building that the valuable animal was found grazing in a field close by. The flames spread so rapidly that all chances were Mr. Winters' "Sunbeam" car in the garage immediately adjoining the stable, proved futile. The firemen had now arrived on the scene. They quickly realized that a difficult task lay before them. The flames which were burning from all sides of the building, and were brilliant, reflecting at times thousands of car citizens to the house. The firemen, under the supervision of Inspector General Hutchings, with the assistance of the police and other citizens worked like trojans to quench the blaze. Four streams of water with great pressure were operated from the front, by means of the pumper, while two others were taken to the rear. Before the flames had gained serious proportions, two partly filled casks of gasoline which were on the premises exploded, and enveloped the place in a huge mass of flame and smoke. The firemen worked assiduously for hours towards the rear of the house, but the chances of saving the garage were doubtful from the first. Fortunately for all concerned the weather was calm. The gasoline burned rapidly and the four streams of water in play it appeared to have very little effect. It spread along the floor of the garage with the rushing water, and the firemen had to exercise great care in not operating the hose too closely for fear of being burnt. The flames were no longer under control when several firemen who were operating a submersible pump in the rear of the house were suddenly surprised by a renewed outbreak of the flames, and made a hurried exit to the rear of the house. A quarter of an hour had elapsed before it was finally under control. At 1 o'clock this morning the "out" sounded, leaving the "blowing" nothing but a mass of ruins. Mr. Winters' "Sunbeam" car, which was not insured, was totally destroyed. Luckily for Mr. Herbert Winters his car was out of the garage at the time. His first intimation of fire was while he was motoring through Topsail, when he immediately returned to town. The firemen did yeoman service in battling with the furious blaze, their clothes were saturated with water, and they had many narrow escapes in operating the hose at close quarters. It is understood that the premises was covered by insurance.

The Great Awakening in the West

The Humber Development—Some Details of Project.

The town which the Newfoundland Paper Co. proposes to build at Corner Brook, is destined to be the most important on the West Coast. The plans for the present allow for the accommodation of about 5,000 people. Situated on a plateau rising about 100 feet above the paper mill site and having a view of a mile and a half square, the town will have many sanitary advantages. This plateau which rises up an ever-broadening slope towards the south east, has been selected for the creation of a town larger than St. John's. Some of the homesteads now on this area are to be torn down to make room for the proposed streets and public squares. The main thoroughfare of the old town of Corner Brook is to be diverted at a point a couple of hundred feet east of the Presbyterian church and extended into the country to the south. It has been staked out a considerable length of new road and a considerable length of new cleared ready for a top dressing. In the centre of the town site are a vista of majestic coast scenery. All the temporary buildings being erected in a valley at the foot of the paper mill site. Three shacks, a staff house and 20 shacks have already been completed. The shacks which are used as temporary quarters for workmen, are comfortable and well equipped. They are all covered with rubber felt. Their equipment includes water, wash room and lavatories. Most of the men board themselves and although the Armstrong-Whitworth Co. offered them board $10. per day, the majority decided they could live cheaper by preparing their own food. In the layout of the town provision has been made for a public square, athletic field, hotel and hospital. The plans of the hotel and hospital have been completed and their erection is now open to tender. There is a quarry and monster stone crushing plant in operation close to the paper mill site, yet the Armstrong-Whitworth Co. in order to have the material close at hand, are erecting another crushing plant on the town site, a quarry from which the rock will be taken is now being cleared of debris. Mr. Alexander, who as stated in a previous article, is supervising the Humber project, in his estimation of the new town states that settlers will be allowed to own business outright. In other words, the town will not be a closed town. The Paper Co. however, make reservation that should the owner desire to quit he must resell to the company. With no restriction as to who may prevail in a closed town.

there is no doubt but that two years hence when the paper mills will be in operation, thousands of people will flock to Corner Brook. Land values at adjacent places such as Curling and Petrie's Crossing are bound to increase in value as a result, and in fact the whole West Coast will directly benefit as a result of this development. It must be remembered that the Humber Proposition is double that of the original Grand Falls undertaking. One wonders where all the wood required to manufacture 400 tons of paper per day is to come from, yet according to Mr. Alexander a ten year's supply is almost in sight of the mill. He states that for this period there will be no need of drawing on the immense areas in the Deer and Grand Lakes section.

WHERE NATURE IS LAVISH IN HER GIFTS.
Nature has been lavish in her gifts in the area embraced in the Humber Proposition. Agricultural land is abundant, and hundreds of homesteads could be established there. Its mineral resources are as yet untouched. Sand, building stone and limestone abound. At Humbermouth, just a few miles east of Corner Brook, a mountain of lime stone rears its head towards the sky. Quarrying has been going on here for some time, and hundreds of tons of the material have passed over the railroad to be used in the paper plant at Grand Falls. At South Brook, a few miles farther east, stone and sand for concrete work are to be had in unlimited quantities. Here the Fraser Bros. Co., one of the sub-contracting firms to the Armstrong-Whitworth Co. is obtaining the materials for the construction of the Power House and Dam. The stone quarry and sand hill are close together and a short diversion of the main line of railway had to be made to permit the removal of the sand. A steam shovel with a clam shell grab, somewhat similar to that used on the dredge, is used to load the sand on to box cars. The drills which are used to make the necessary holes for blasting are operated by compressed air. At the time of the visit of the Assemblymen a temporary installation operated by steam was being replaced by one using oil. Some hundreds of barrels of oil for the engines were on the spot. No less than one hundred thousand tons of broken stone will be taken from this place and transferred along with its necessary complement of sand to the sites of the power house and main dam. The former is 2 and the latter 15 miles distant. All the stone appears to dovetail, and it is probably due in a great measure to the foresight in planning that such rapid headway has been made.

REPORT OF THE CHIEF AGENT S. P. A., AUGUST 24TH.
Attended to the landing of 160 head of cattle, 51 pigs, 11 horses, 48 sheep and four boxes fowl from S. S. Canadian Sapper. All were carefully landed and watered before leaving the Furness Withy premises. To my mind this is too big a deck load and the agents have promised that this will not happen again. I also attended to the landing of 32 sheep from S. S. Stella Maris, and 24 head of cattle from the train. The cattle were taken to pasture by Mr. Halliday. I put to death two very old cats, one for a lady on Forest Road and the other for a lady on Leath Street; also a dog for man on Water Street and another on Hamilton Street. I attended three sales of cattle, sheep and horses at Campbell & McKay's. All cattle were taken away as soon as possible after being sold. Horses that have been kept in for lameness are now all right. I have received several complaints which I am attending to.
I would like also to call people's attention to late shopping on Saturday nights. Express horses in some cases are yoked at 9 o'clock Saturday morning and are not taken out of harness until Sunday morning. I am sure this is not justice to horse or man when it could very easily be avoided. In speaking to the manager of one of the largest dry goods and grocery stores in the city I was told that people have made a purchase of 25c worth and had it sent right to the city limits Saturday night. I would ask all lovers of dumb animals, also Union men and their wives, to try and leave their orders early so that the poor fagged horse and man may be able to get home at reasonable hours. This can be done if people would only do their shopping earlier.

Politics and Prohibition.

From an Unprejudiced Point of View.

By SPECTATOR.

A MORAL MELANCHOLY ABOUT THE SITUATION.

The attitude of the authorities in relation to the Prohibition Act I should be inclined to characterize as "laughing travesty" on civil administration, only there's a moral melancholy about it that turns satire into pity and ridicule into contempt. Drunkenness, with all its train of evils, is again quite prevalent in our midst—almost as prevalent as it was in the days of licensed public houses and "hush money"—while the owners of shebeens and dives are doing an active business on some of the principal streets of the city. It is a condition, not a theory, that now confronts us. Intoxicating liquors have been declared by the supreme law of the land to be illegal and contraband, and the Act referred to has defined what an intoxicating beverage is. It seems to me beyond the pale of argument that law-and-order-loving citizens, whatever their tastes and inclinations may be, should obey the law. This does not mean that they may not advocate its repeal, but they ought to do so strictly and carefully and sincerely, and not by processes of reason. They can succeed in obtaining an ordinance of repeal.

EFFORTS TO REGULATE THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

Most of us do not regard the drinking of wine, or beer, or distilled liquors, as a sine per se. Murder should be made a crime in law because it is in its very essence a sin, not merely because it is an injury to society. In some countries, spitting on a city highway has been made a crime in law, because it has been found to be detrimental to society, and not because it is in itself reprehensible. For fifty years the people of Newfoundland continuously endeavored to regulate the liquor trade. They tried high license, public amusement, and local option. In spite of everything, the liquor trade continued to corrupt politics and disseminate vice and disease. In the struggle of half a century against the appalling evils of the commerce in wine, beer, and distilled liquors, prohibition is the last resort of a people and a Government that have tried almost every other conceivable remedy. It is too soon to say whether prohibition is a workable remedy, because it has not yet been given a fair show by the Police Department; but it may be, and if it should succeed in putting alcohol on the list of other toxic and medicinal drugs, and a generation of Newfoundlanders should grow up to look upon alcohol as every sane and wholesome Newfoundlanders now looks upon opium, an incalculable good will have been done, both for the individual and for society.

THE SACRIFICE OF "PERSONAL LIBERTY."

Of course, it is this social possibility which makes us willing to sacrifice our so-called "personal liberty" in order to see, after a fair trial, whether prohibition cannot be made to work. The only men who can discuss repeal with any adequate knowledge of the facts are our sons and grandsons. It is our duty to turn over the country to them, after having made every possible, honest, and reasonable effort to prove the practicability and, therefore, the desirability of the law. Our sons and grandsons will be able to judge whether the law can achieve its great purpose or not only in the intervening years if it is obeyed and enforced.

A REFORMER INDICTED FOR FORGERY.

Speaking of the liquor question and those who are prominently identified with it, reminds me of a curious case which has recently occurred in the United States. William H. Anderson, Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York State, and one of the most influential men in the National Council of the Anti-Saloon League, has been indicted by a Grand Jury on charges of larceny and forgery. Of course, the reader does not need to be reminded that an indictment is not a conviction and that a judgment must be withheld until these issues have been settled by trial. The charges were brought against Mr. Anderson as a result of his handling of the funds of the Anti-Saloon League. A similar case of less importance happened here in St. John's some years ago. However, during the course of the investigation he has lost public sympathy owing to his failure to put all his cards on the table. A policy of secrecy and evasion is never advisable, no matter how sure the man may be of the propriety of his acts. The surer he is the more open he should be.

STARTLING INFORMATION FROM PROFESSIONAL MEN.

It seems that in Switzerland one sees no drunkenness. Indeed, with such a sober, serious folk as are the Swiss one does not expect to find drink excesses. Yet in that proper of Swiss towns, Lausanne, eminent medical authorities inform us, no less than three-fifths of the cases in its municipal hospitals are due to alcoholic excesses. Perhaps not so large a proportion is characteristic of hospitals in other parts of Switzerland, but the proportion is sufficiently large to alarm the citizens in general, and the medical fraternity in particular.

"THE TEST OF SUCCESS IN POLITICS."

What is the test of success in politics, not only with respect to the liquor question, but in regard to all other matters? Office, position or decoration? No. Certainly not the latter, as recent notorious events in our own small community amply prove. According to the Right Hon. Lloyd George—and surely he ought to know—the only test of high success in political life is service. "I am the last man," he says, "to despise or to minimize exalted office. I have held some of the greatest in Great Britain for seventeen years, and I am proud of it. But office, rightly regarded, is only a wider opportunity for service. Without genuine service the memory of those who hold the most glittering offices soon perishes. It is he who serves that endures. Service alone embalms the memory of a departed life. Some of the best known and most honored names in the political history of the Empire are those of men who either never held office at all or in whose life office was but a transient, trivial and often distracting incident." Burke, Fox, Sheridan,

Johnson's Shaving Cream.

For the man who shaves at home: this quick-working, antiseptic, beard-softening cream means much in the way of shaving comfort. It works up quickly into a rich creamy lather, that leaves the face smooth and velvety when the shave is finished.

PETER O'MARA,
THE DRUGGIST,
THE RETAIL STORE.

Romilly, Bright and Shattisbury, each of them held office for a short period of their lives, but their official record is of little account, and, on the whole, added nothing to the sum of their achievements. Their renown, which is immortal, was won out of office. Wilberforce, Cobden, Cobbett, Pittsoll, Daniel O'Connell, and all the great Irish leaders, also the men who fought for the solidarity and independence of labor in Great Britain, never held office, but their contributions to human liberty, dignity and happiness are so great that their names will endure forever.

PREMIER WARREN'S OPPORTUNITY.

To get back to local affairs! Patriotism on the part of our politicians of both parties (and let me say the people generally) requires that, under existing circumstances, Premier Warren be given opportunity to demonstrate the qualities of leadership adequate to the occasion, which those who know his forbears believe are in him. But he must redeem his promise to probe to the bottom the political ineptitudes of his predecessor in office, and the almost equally culpable men who aided and abetted him in his official turpitude. Then, and not till then, will it be possible to have a better condition of things here. The natural resources of the colony ought to be equal to all the reasonable requirements of the people. Our great fishing, mining, lumbering and agricultural resources, if properly applied, should—with economy and capacity on the part of the Government—be more than ample to support in comfort twice 260,000. There is nothing in the outlook to make us think otherwise.

WHAT THE DOUBTERS FAIL TO REALIZE.

Of course, the slight tendency towards inflation both in prices and wages during the past few years has awakened a pessimistic mood in some observers—who believe that industrial costs are too high for permanent prosperity. But the consuming public always has it within its power, to check inflation by curtailing its demand. What the doubters fail to realize, is the extent and power of the domestic market. Up to recent times, this country, as compared to some others, had reason to be proud of its prosperity. This shows that the colony has within itself quite a large economic circle, consisting of some of the most necessary productions. One of our greatest obstacles to sustained production and prosperity is the widespread lack of faith in the domestic market. Some working men are misled by the notion that there is only a limited amount of work to be done, and that the way to make work is to shirk. The fallacy lies in the failure to realize that production often creates demand. It has done so with hundreds of articles like automobiles, phonographs, toilet goods and even better homes in the outports as well as in the city. Human wants are insatiable, when awakened. They are limited only by purchasing power. This colony has held to the idea that a high living standard for all is better than ostentation for a few. A decent living standard for the masses may not result in such large capital accumulations as have been known in the past, but it is resulting in a great flow of consumption-goods. This is the movement now on foot in this colony, and it gives new possibilities to the domestic market. The way to sustained production and prosperity lies in keeping the standard of living and purchasing power high!

POSSIBILITY OF RESTORING EFFICIENT ADMINISTRATION.

However, if the Government and popular opinion continue to support Mr. Warren, he will, doubtless, succeed in restoring efficient administration, under which our people can go forward some distance in improving themselves and their affairs and conditions. At present we seem to be a long way from capacity to govern ourselves wisely and well. The Anglo-Saxon peoples do not govern themselves any too well under the best of circumstances. But they have been doing it a long while, in spite of awkward little jolts, from time to time, such as we are experiencing just at this moment, and they will probably continue to do it "world without end!"

WRITTEN-NEWMAN.

On Aug. 4th at 7 p.m., at All Saints Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., Miss Rose Whitten became the bride of Mr. Frank Newman, the wedding ceremony being performed by the Rev. Kenneth Guthrie of New York. The bride was becomingly dressed in bisque georgette with hat to match, and carried a bouquet of carnations and maiden hair fern. Her only attendant was Miss Muriel Grant, as maid of honor, who wore a dress of cocoa color velvet and georgette, with hat to match and corsage bouquet of tea roses and maiden hair fern. The groom was supported by Mr. Frederick French. After the ceremony the bridal party motored to Long Island, returning to Brooklyn at 9 p.m. to the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Stewart Rose, where a reception was held. The happy couple have taken up residence in Brooklyn, their future home. From her co-workers at Abraham & Straus Department Store, where she had worked for the past two years, they presented her with a silver fruit bowl and a handsome bouquet of flowers, showing the esteem in which she was held by them. The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a cheque, to the maid of honor a pearl necklace, and to the best man a silver engraved cigar case. The bride, formerly of St. John's, Nfld., is a sister of Mr. James Whitten at the G.P.O. She will be remembered by her many friends, having worked for the firm of Hon. G. Knowling at the West End Store, where she made a wide circle of friends. To the bride and groom we extend our best wishes for many years of happy wedded life.

OUR COUNTRY.
Our country has it for you, whatever joy you love—
The great wide sea before you, the great blue sky above,
And would you choose the mountains, the rugged peaks and tall,
Where race the streaming fountains, our country has them all.
Our country holds your pleasure, whatever that pleasure be,
Within her bounteous measure the world's rich charms you'll see;
Southward the palms are waving, inland her white lakes shine,
What ground choose you for playing? 'Tis here, by God's design.
Would you hear forests singing the anthems of the trees,
Or see the wild ducks winging across the lake in V?
Or would the partridge whirring, or would a moose's call
Set drowsy pulses stirring? Our country has them all.
With all she gives of splendour, 'tis here that she asks the best
From those who choose her, be faithful to your tasks,
Whatever joy you cherish, 'tis here where men are free,
Then let not freedom perish, but live for liberty.

The furnace stands in the cellar, directly under one register, and pours heat up through the house—warms to the furthest corner—heats the whole house like a stove heats one room—keeps the same temperature everywhere.
It saves one third to one-half of your fuel. The price of fuel next winter will have no terrors for owners of Enterprise All-Cast-Iron Pipeless Furnaces. This splendid furnace burns any kind of fuel and takes less of it to do its work than any other furnace that is made.
Remember we are practical Tinsmiths, and have a thorough knowledge of how to install this furnace right in your home. We can recommend the size and pattern to suit yours best.

SEMIER VACATION SCHOOLS
 From the large number of letters both from autos and from the youth of this City during vacation time, ways and means should be adopted to have better vacation schools. The children of the nine or ten weeks of vacation are exposed to many temptations in every part of the city and growing city. With such a large number of country places in the vicinity to the city on the St. Lawrence River, Lake St. Louis, Richfield and the Ottawa Rivers, it should be a matter for the Provincial Council to provide such vacation schools. Large pavilions could be built and divided into dormitories, ball and recreation rooms, and in the afternoon could be devoted to school work, the balance of the day filled in with games of different kinds, hunting and swimming, and evening a variety of entertainments. The money would be raised profitably and benefit the children mentally, physically and morally.

KNIGHTS' CONVENTION A GREAT SUCCESS.
 The Convention of the Knights of Columbus was a great success in every way. It was the largest Convention ever held in the Metropolitan City. Fully ten thousand visitors were in the City during the Convention. The parade to Notre Dame Church was nearly a mile long. The religious service at the Convention was one, that for which, was only excelled at the time of the famous Eucharistic Congress. The great beauty of the large sanctuary with its hundreds of electric lights and other decorations; the large number of priests and church dignitaries, with the Apostolic Administrator of the Archdiocese, His Grace, Archbishop George Gauthier, as the central figure; the fine music rendered by a large male choir; the two excellent sermons delivered in French and English by Monsignor Deschamps, Vicar General of the Archdiocese and Donnelly, Domestic Prelate and Pastor of St. Anthony's Church; the large number of religious celebrations, numbering over six thousand; made a memorable scene in the old historic Church. The Commemorative Service for the deceased members of the Order was another event that left a great impression on the minds of the visiting delegates and others. St. James Cathedral or the Basilica was heavily draped for the occasion. The singing of "Requiem" by the choir was excellent. The delegates and visitors, were loud in their praises of both religious celebrations. The business part of the Convention was held at Mount Royal Hotel. Nearly three days were occupied at several sessions, in which many things for the good of the Order were discussed and adopted. Probably one of the most important, and one that will be far-reaching in many ways for the extension of the Order was the decision to launch immediately a movement which will deal with the Catholic Boy Problem. This question according to Monsignor Knight J. A. Flaherty has been under consideration for some time and is one of the principal problems confronting the Order. Rev. Brother Barnabas, an American member of the Brothers of the Christian Schools and one who has made the "Boy Problem" a life study, addressed the members on the subject.

"As the twig is bent, so the tree grows" stated Brother Barnabas of Toronto, member of the Catholic Boy Life Council of Canada, in emphasizing the need of an organization for the guidance of boys out of school. The average boy spent 1,000 hours out of a possible 4,000 in school. "How are the other 3,000 hours being occupied?" It is estimated that there is possibly between one and two million boys in the United States, between the ages of nine and sixteen years, eligible for membership in this Junior Boys' organization.

This movement, it was announced will be controlled through the 2,800 councils in existence in America, and approximately 800,000 will be expended in educating two men from each metropolitan centre, who will take special courses in Boy Leadership. Definite plans have not yet been worked out but the proposed movement will likely operate along the lines of the Boy Scouts and the Boys' Federation plan in the United States, operating in a manner to counteract the effect of the movies, detrimental environment, poverty, lack of parental control and other disastrous elements and to assist the underprivileged boy who constitutes 50% of the boy population, stated Brother Barnabas. He urged the young members of the association to take up the work as a profession, stating that at the present time there was a scarcity of workers in this connection.

An open meeting was held in the banquet room of the Mount Royal Hotel, at which a large number of delegates and friends gathered. An enthusiastic ovation was tendered Mr. James A. Flaherty, Supreme Knight, as he rose to address the gathering. Mr. Flaherty stated that the convention had been one of the most successful ever held. "We have had a strenuous time, but a happy time. By this convention the name of Quebec and Canada have become more widely known and have become more popular than ever."

A VERY DANGEROUS AND SPECTACULAR FIRE.
 On Sunday, Aug. 13th, during lunch hour, a very dangerous disaster, but spectacular fire destroyed the Jennings-Ledoux Garage Repair Factory situated in Osborne Street, just across from the Windsor Station. Thousands of spectators watched the big building burn itself out. A general alarm was sounded, but the firemen could not get within easy reach of it owing to the terrific heat from the flames, together with the danger of explosions from two gasoline tanks and large casks of varnish and paints. Two explosions took place, a large number of costly cars and heavy auto trucks were destroyed. The walls crumbled and fell in different directions. All the firemen could do was to save the adjoining buildings, the stables and equipment building of the Bell Telephone Company. The water pressure was low and the fire took about an hour to destroy over $200,000 worth of property including cars, the building, paints and gasoline. It was one of the most spectacular fires here in recent years and did the largest amount of damage in the quickest space of time. Had there been a strong wind, or had it taken place during the night the whole block on both Mountain and Drummond Streets would have been wiped out, together with several buildings in Osborne Street.

THE HARDEST ANIMAL TO KILL.
 "The human being is the hardest animal to kill," a young surgeon remarked in the course of a conversation the other day.

"I have made this statement to many noted surgeons, among them George W. Orle, and all have agreed it is true," he continued.

"Remember Tom Longboat, the Indian," he said. "He was a perfect physical specimen of a man. He kept himself in the finest condition by constant training. Longboat ran against a race horse for ten miles and won."

"Rabbits can be run down by tiring them out. Reindeers have like wise been run down by man on foot. The reason we have come to think of man as a weakling in physical power is because he has abused his body. Yet the best evidence of man's tremendous resources is the fact that his body can stand this abuse. He overeats, overworks, and underseeps takes no exercise, lives in stuffy rooms and then in a sudden crisis, withholds the stock of a major operation."

"No other animal on earth could do it. Nor should man try to do it. If a man took half the care of his body that the average animal does, his effectiveness would be tripled."

ANOTHER PROHIBITION JOKE.
 Under the above caption, the Montreal Herald says editorially the American papers are making merry over the latest attempt of the Pusey-footers to arrest the immutable laws of Nature. Under regulations just withdrawn by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, anybody was allowed to make 200 gallons of fruit juices a year, with no restriction on the ensuing alcoholic content. This concession to nature stirred the wrath of the Pures and the derision of the Wets. The Commissioner by a new set of regulations authorizes the manufacture of cider and fruit juices for home use without permit or bond. Prepared for winter use, they must be treated like other preserves put up by the housewife. Nature in them mustn't be allowed to "work." They must always remain within the modesty of one-half of 1 per cent. Now the question is, how is this law going to be enforced.

A GREAT CRICKET MATCH.
 The McGill cricket team had a very narrow escape from losing the John Ross Robertson Cup with the Toronto's here on Friday and Saturday, Aug. 10th and 11th. The day opened with showery weather and McGill on going to bat fared badly putting up only 78 runs, the lowest score this season. Wooley of the Toronto team was the rock on which they broke, as he took 7 wickets for

THE SHOE MEN

27. The Toronto's put up 138, which left McGill 60 short. On going to bat the second time, McGill promised a score of over 200, but Wooley both-ered them after they had lost four of their best bowlers, G. S. R. Saunders the captain, well known in St. John's, Goodman, Godsell and Hedges. They totalled 187 which left the Toronto's 130 to win. Wooley took 7 wickets for 60. The Western lads fared badly until the 8th man fell having made only 87 runs. But McGill struck a snag and had a very hard time in trying to dispose of the two remaining men. Seven bowlers were used and Seagram lost the chance when he was run out. The Toronto's totalled 111 of 249 for 2 innings against McGill's 265. McGill won by 18 runs. A funny incident took place during the second innings of the Toronto's, Capt. G. R. Saunders of McGill threw his brother, Captain of the Toronto team out by a chance shot from midfield. Messrs. Chas. J. Ellis and Cyril J. Cahill, delegates of the K. of C. Convention, together with A. Hinson and J. Ryan of St. John's and your correspondent witnessed the famous cup match. Chas. Ellis was very much interested in the batting of Messrs Saunders, Godsell and Goodman of McGill, and the bowling of Wooley of the Toronto's. Speaking of the latter's bowling, he said that it reminded him very much of the bowling of the late Wm. Nicholls of Shamrock fame. McGill played a very poor game on the field, the men being badly placed, and over 40 runs in both innings were earned by Toronto in that way. When McGill let out to drive they didn't send the ball as far as expected, and on several occasions Charley Ellis remarked, "If Jack Donnelly or some of the other old time batters of our day had that chance, the ball would be landed out on Sherbrooke Street." SIDE TALK.

By Ruth Cameron.

SWEET (I) AND TWENTY.

In one of my favorite magazines this month, there is a delightful homily on the best age to be, by one of my favorite writers. Of Sweet and Twenty she has this to say: "At twenty, you still don't know enough. Your emotional content is higher; you've got more to give away—for nothing. And you still give it, unintelligently."

I sat musing on that prodigal age of 20 until the others in the group about the evening lamp called me out of my abstraction with the offer of a penny for my thoughts.

"I'm thinking on the things I gave away for nothing at 20," said I. And with that we each began to think on the lavishments of that recent age.

Affection To Waste.

"I loved everybody and everything," said Molly. "Even things and people who weren't particularly good for me. I had violent crushes on women older than I. I used to think it was romantic to sit on a low stool by their knees and gaze up adoringly. Oh, but I had affection to give away for nothing at 20!"

"Only to women?" asked someone. "You were 20 once. You shouldn't need to ask that," said Molly evasively. "But at least I didn't squander my affections like the young folks of today, if we are to believe their youthful chroniclers. Such spendthrift petting makes me think of my small niece's admonition to her demonstra-

"I know a girl of 20," said the authoritatively, "who is giving away her strength—her very youth, for nothing. She has an aunt, a regular Minotaur, who demands her constant attention. Her niece must stay with her evenings, must read to her, must measure out her medicines, must rub her head,—all for a vague legacy to be here someday when the aunt has fretted herself into her grave. And Sweet-and-Twenty, with an exaggerated sense of duty, gives of her time, her strength, her youth—unintelligently. It would be much better for them both if she gave less."

Then the older woman of the group spoke. "I am thinking," she said softly, "of an inscription on a war memorial tablet: 'They gave their merry youth away for country and for God.' Oh, I hope it hasn't been—for nothing."

Opinions To Spare.

As for me, I was thinking a bit ruefully of the opinions that I, in common with the youth of my day, gave away so decisively. How well I remember the day a classmate gravely read an original thesis on "What's Wrong With the World." We were all so cocksure of ourselves and our judgements. "You are ready at 20, to instruct the world, which is as good as asking for punishment," says my clever writer.

And yet it is an adorable age—ardent, Utopian, Quixotic.

I'm not so sure I'd like to be back in it though, are you?

GOING TO LAW.

WALT MATON

My uncle, J. Christopher Sawyer, was ever more going to law; each day he consulted his lawyer, with anger and grief in his brow. My uncle was always offended, his rights had been trampled in the mire, and so to his lawyer he wended, all bubbling with virtuous ire. His lawyers were ranting and yelling in courtrooms both near and afar; and lawyers now live in his dwelling, and lawyers have taken his car. My uncle was hunting for trouble, and found it wherever he went; his lawsuits went single and double, until he had blown every cent. And now there is wool in his noodle, and deep are the seams on his brow; a lawyer has taken his poole, a lawyer is milking his cow. As plaintiff or else as defendant, my uncle was always in court, where language profound and resplendent gave legal spellbinders their sport. He always was facing the Daniel, who sagely to judgment had come; and lawyers have taken his spaniel, and lawyers have collared his drum. The lawyers are blowing his riches, the lawyers are wearing his duds, while he, in his hand-me-down breeches, is hungry for bacon and spuds. The lawyers, majestic and mighty, regard him with smiles as they rant; a lawyer is using his nightly, a lawyer eloped with his aunt.

Digging With Dynamite.

In the old days digging a drainage canal was a long and expensive business. It can be done to-day quickly and cheaply, not with picks and shovels, but by means of explosives. It is possible to control their action so closely that they can be made to blast out canals and ditches exactly as they are planned.

A recent feat was the construction of a canal 700 ft. long, 12 ft. wide, and 4 1/2 ft. deep in half a day! It was desired to drain a swamp in order to add its land to a valuable farm. The line of the necessary canal was marked out, and workmen armed with picks and crowbars buried sticks of dynamite at regular intervals. There were three rows of holes spaced 2 ft. apart. Each stick was buried 23 ft. deep.

When all was ready, a specially fused detonator was inserted into one of the holes. Its fuse was lit and the workers retired. They had just reached safety when there was a tremendous explosion, the first stick having caused all the others to detonate.

When the men returned to the scene they found the canal ready in one second. Water was beginning to flow through it, and in two or three days the former swamp was showing signs of drying up. To-day it is bearing heavy crops of corn.

Witty!

I asked Sir Eric Geddes the other day what he considered the most striking reply he had heard given in the House of Commons.

"When Sir Rhys Williams was representing me at the time I was Minister of Transport," said Sir Eric, "he was challenged to say whether I had not exceeded the speed limit on three Sundays running."

"Not running, I think," was the answer.

A Bachelor on Love.

One of the most brilliant members of the famous Cecil family is Lord Hugh Cecil, who recently made some pertinent comments on love in connection with the proposal to establish sex equality at Cambridge University.

"A really mixed university," he said, "would be disastrous. The segregation of the sexes is essential for good education."

"I am not afraid of students falling in love, because the modern substitute is 'the relation of pals.'"

This brought a retort and an intimate revelation from Mr. Lawson, a Labour member.

"The pity is," he said, "that Lord Hugh Cecil does not appear to have had a 'pal.' I am thankful to say that I had a 'pal,' and when the opportunity came for me to go to Ruskin College she offered to sell up every stick we had and go into domestic service

LOCAL ITEMS.

Mrs. Eriksen, with his usual kindness to others, took Mr. Granger and Mr. Hussey for a delightful motor drive to English Harbor last week. Unable as they are to go far-a-field, owing to the effects of paralysis, it was a great pleasure to them to be able to visit these parts of the country, that were so easy of access, and so familiar to them in the days of their health and activities. Truly, of such an act of kindness it may be said: "You did it unto Me."

1830—Married in the Church at Ireland's eye, David Kelly, of Portadown, County of Armagh, Ireland, and Sarah Hodder of Ireland's Eye. Witnesses: James Toop, Nathaniel Wiseman, Mary Phillips, and Sarah Miller.

Mrs. Eriksen and Mrs. Alec Mews will leave for Windsor, N.S., the first week in September, accompanied by Mrs. Eriksen's daughter, Miss Phyllis, who will enter "Edgemoor," the C. of E. School for girls. Master Willie Gent returns to Windsor at the same time, to enter upon his second year at King's Collegiate School there. Mrs. Gent will be one of the party as far as St. John's, where she will spend a few weeks. After leaving Windsor, Mrs. Eriksen and Mrs. Mews will visit New York and other points of interest. Such a trip is full of delightful scenes, and we wish the party the fullest enjoyment of it all. The privilege of enrollment at the King's Collegiate School, or the Church School for Girls at Windsor, N.S., is one for which any boy or girl should be very appreciative.

Mr. Gus Parsons is spending a holiday at Trinity. Mrs. Parsons and children have been here for some time. Glad to have them with us.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Chaplin and Mrs. W. and Miss Clouston came by the Fortia and are registered at the Garland. We will be just as good as we can be to them.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Madment of St. John's came by the Fortia, and are guests at the "Anchorage." Glad to see them.

Mr. Somerton is giving his poor broken rib every encouragement to knit; hoping that by so doing he will be ready to tramp over the barrens when the partridge season opens. We are sorry for the poor partridges.

FAMILY HISTORY.

Some few weeks ago I had an inquiry from one of the Gardner family in British Harbour, re the first of the family who came to this country. I gave a copy of the entry in the old Church Books which I now repeat with additional information.

It is quite possible that I have return to duties with a fine stock of renewed health, for which we are glad. We thoroughly enjoyed their company.

Mr. Thomas Maybee of Grand Falls is spending his annual holiday in the home town of Trinity. Glad to see him.

A wet day, when visitors have to stay indoors, should deepen their sympathy for the shut-ins of five days.

Mr. Gillingham of the A.N.D. Co., registered at the Garland on Wednesday last, and went North by the Fortia.

We are sorry to hear of Mr. Walter Clouston being in the Hospital at St. John's with a dislocated shoulder. We have pleasant memories of climbing Gun Hill, the hills of Trinity South, and jumping from rock to rock in Trofy Brook, and we will do it again some day!

We are sorry to learn that Mrs. Benedict has been compelled by unforeseen circumstances, to cancel her proposed trip to Trinity. Her visits in the past have been a source of mental pleasure to her and to us. Come when you can. Always welcome.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

M.—The Mews, Lockyer and Facey families were connected by marriage a hundred years ago, as follows:—

The Lockyers and Mews were neighbours in Christ Church, Hants, England. A Mr. Mews married a Miss Lockyer (a sister I believe, of my Grandfather, James Lockyer). Their son was baptised James Lockyer. His James Lockyer Mews, came to Trinity in the early part of the last century, and served on the clerical staff of Robert Slade & Co., Trinity. He then succeeded Mr. Torcher as Agent for Robert Slade & Co., at Hant's Hr. In 1821 he was married, at St. Paul's Church, Trinity, by Rev. Wm. Bullock, to Christiana Facey, a sister of the late Capt. Nicholas Facey. Their children were: George, William, Jas., Stephen, Sarah, Amelia, Mary and Christiana, who have all been called to rest. Mrs. Mews now residing at Trinity is the wife of Leonard C. Mews, who is a son of William, Master R. Carman Mews, who is also visiting here, being Leonard's son, represents the fifth generation of the Lockyer-Mews family in Christ Church Hants, England. The witnesses to the marriage of James Lockyer Mews and Christiana Facey, were William Codrery and Peter James Fennell. The Mews family used the Surname Lockyer as a Christian name in the person of James Lockyer Mews; and in the line of the Lockyer family, a son of James and Joanna Collis was Jas. Mews Collis.

S.A.—The family you enquire about moved away from Trinity years ago, and I have lost track of them.

F.A.H.—I have been permitted to read your letter to the hotel Management. We are all sorry to learn that unforeseen circumstances will prevent the spending of your honeymoon with us, as you intended to do. Thank you for the kind references to the writer of Week-End Notes. WEEK-END NOTES.

(I. C. MORRIS.)

THE PREMIER AND HIS PROBLEMS.

It is somewhat reassuring to find that Premier Warren, upon whose shoulders great responsibilities have unexpectedly fallen, has displayed such a spirit of frankness in all he has done, and that to all the questions which have been put to him he gave satisfactory answers. For this we congratulate the Premier, and we feel assured that he has the respect and the confidence of all who love their country; and whether he continues the government, or whether he dissolves it, he has done his best in a great emergency, and has displayed an open hand in the discharge of his duties.

The closing of the House will not mean for the Premier any relaxation whatever, because facing him will be the possibility of falling revenues, as well as that of unemployment. The problem that stares Newfoundland in the face at the present moment is that of employment for its people, and it is but natural to suppose that the people will look to the government for some outlet. This may be a false position, but it is the way that we have fallen into.

Since the passing of the Humber deal, the people have realized that the Humber cannot employ more than half the number of persons who expected employment. Five thousand was the number quoted during the election, but half of this number are being disappointed, nor could it be otherwise, because at best the Humber will scarcely afford employment at the present season for any more than are now engaged.

To those who were not carried away by the heat of the election, it was apparent that a mistake was being made in stating that five thousand men would be needed. However, such are the tactics of elections, and whether these cries are used for mere party purposes, or whether they are used in good faith, is a matter of opinion for people of independent mind. But we all acknowledge, and perhaps regret, that these extreme cries are used, because such cries are sure to bring disappointment and dissatisfaction in the end.

The industrial situation we say at present is very grave, and it is especially so here in the city. For who can look at our harbour, or visit our waterfront without being concerned. Our shipping has departed, our water-side premises are semi-deserted, and our tradesmen are walking the streets, and it is not an exaggeration to say that the earning power of St. John's as a seaport has decreased fully fifty per cent. of what was a few years ago. This is caused partly by world conditions brought about by the war, and because of the impoverished conditions of our European customers; but that there are local causes for some of this depression all fair-minded men will agree. But this phase of it we will leave others to discuss. The point we wish to make is, that unemployment is facing the people, and therefore we say that for the Premier and his colleagues a strenuous time seems to be in store.

Since taking office the Premier has done well, and because of his attitude our confidence in him is strengthened, and there is room to hope that whatever emergency may arise he will measure up to the occasion and meet the conditions of the situation. He has not sought the position he now occupies. He has very modestly stated he is not a statesman and he is not making any pretensions to do the impossible. Hence there is room to hope that he will prove the right man in the crisis, and that in due time he will bring the ship of State into safer waters and more prosperous days. This is our wish to Premier Warren, and we believe that all true men of Newfoundland will to say "Amen."

It is indeed to be regretted that our public life is continually being marred by such manifestations of extreme party criticism and censure. At the present moment it is difficult to know or even to guess where we really stand but it is very certain that our public debt is rapidly increasing, and at the rate it has gone during the past fifteen years, it will not be long before we reach the hundred million dollar mark. What this will mean is as plain as A.B.C. Looking at our various administrations for a term of say about twenty years, it cannot be said that they have done well. Each administration in turn has added its quota to the indebtedness of the country. They all fall in making two ends meet without borrowing. It has been simply a system of collecting the taxes and spending them, and then floating a loan to meet the annual deficit. If this be statesmanship then all the principles and ideals which we were taught of statesmanship must have been false. However, the past cannot be recalled, nor can its mistakes be remedied; but now that Premier Warren has shown such frankness, there is room to hope that a better day is dawning upon us, and that there is yet a possibility of our parliament becoming dignified and our public life being elevated, and of economic business principles being adopted.

Commandant Hurd, who has been visiting points in Conception Bay in the interest of the New Maternity Hospital, returned to town Wednesday night. He held special services all day Sunday at the S.A. Citadel and on Monday night, gave a lecture on the Salvation Army around the world, at Bay Roberts. On the Tuesday he went to Harbor Grace, where at night he gave his lecture to quite a large audience. At the close of his lecture, an elderly lady who lost two sons in the war, came up to Commandant Hurd, and contributed $100 to furnish a bath room in the hospital, in memory of those two heroes. He was accompanied by his two sons, who contributed musical items at the different meetings.

indicate that there is no surplus of Anthracite Coal in the U.S. The shortage caused by the strike of Anthracite Miners last year has not been made up, and American hard coal will, in all probability, be hard to get and high priced. Coke is an excellent substitute for hard coal, and we have on hand a stock of same that will soon be disposed of, because a shortage of hard coal invariably creates an increased demand for our product. We advise our customers to book their requirements as soon as possible.

Celebrated Singer Gets Big Ovation.

MISS MARGARET FREER DELIGHTS BIG AUDIENCE.

The large concourse of music lovers that attended the Nickel last night were treated to a marvelous program of music and pictures. It marked the initial appearance in our city of Miss Margaret Freer, the noted Mezzo-Soprano of Edison Record fame. The enthusiasm accorded Miss Freer was indeed demonstrative and her singing was such as to linger long in our memories. Miss Freer displayed exceptional artistic and technical ability. Her numbers last evening were "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from Samson and Delilah and "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses." There is apparently no limit to the range of her voice, it is purely mezzo-soprano in quality and there is never the slightest deviation from the pitch. There is a tenderness and sympathy about her interpret actions, which is a rare gift in the singers of the present day. We trust Miss Freer will sing during her engagement some of her songs that made her so popular for the Edison Record. Tonight she will repeat her renditions of last night.

William Rocap of Philadelphia, one of the best known boxing critics in this country, and at one-time amateur lightweight champion, sizes up Dempsey's fifteen-round bout with Gibbons in this manner: "It was the first time the experts had a chance to see what Dempsey could do in the way of hitting with nothing more than soft bandages wound around his knuckles. He is still a heavy hitter, but in the Gibbons fight there was none of the auto tape on his hands that, properly applied, makes a fist as effective as a battering ram."

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES

A CURIOUS OFFER BY DEVALERA

LONDON, Aug. 25. That Eamon DeValera a fortnight before his arrest made a secret peace offer to the Irish Free State Govt. is asserted by the Dublin correspondent of the Daily Express, who attributes the information to a member of Free State Government. The substance of the offer, the correspondent says, was that if the Government would put in DeValera's possession all the republican funds in U.S.A., amounting to £250,000, he would undertake to use them solely for "constitutional agitation" in Ireland and Dominion and immediately declare activities throughout the country. According to correspondent the Government turned down the offer declaring they would make no terms with DeValera whatever.

GOVERNOR OF PENNSYLVANIA HOPES TO AVERT STRIKE OF ANTHRACITE MINERS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 25. Governor Clifford Pinchot began today to "crystallize" plans by which he hopes to avert the suspension of anthracite mining operations on Sept. 1st. The Governor says the plans had not "crystallized" enough to talk about but at a conference with Secretary J. J. Walsh, of the State Dept. of Mines, immediately after arrival, he began to formulate them.

LLOYD GEORGE WILL VISIT U.S.A. AND CANADA IN SEPTEMBER

NEW YORK, Aug. 25. David Lloyd George, the former Premier of Great Britain, will visit Canada and the U.S.A. between September 1st and November 15, as the former Premier wishes to be back in England when Parliament convenes. Lloyd George's trip will not be political, said Sir Alfred Cope, who is making arrangements for the ex-Premier's trip.

STRESSMANN PROMISES SECURITIES FOR PAYMENT OF REPARATIONS

PARIS, Aug. 25. Chancellor Stressmann's address in Berlin yesterday in which he renewed his predecessor's promise of material securities for payment of reparations has added to the slight though general seriousness here over the whole situation. Although the newspapers regret that Herr Stressmann made substantially the same offer as did Dr. Cuno they nevertheless remark that the tone of the speech shows a change for the better.

Newfoundland's Development

PROGRESS OF LEADING INDUSTRIES

Interesting details concerning the conditions of trade and industry in Newfoundland have been published in The Commercial Intelligence Journal (Ottawa). From this it appears that in 1922 the exports of fish, which are the main feature of the trade of the Dominion, exceeded those sent abroad in 1918 by over half a million quintals, but the monetary return to Newfoundland for fish exports in 1922 was over 10% million dollars less than that received in 1918, when the sum realized, was more than 35 million dollars.

Don't Take That Trip

Without one of our $5.00 Protection Policies. We pay from $250.00 for a finger up to $5,000 for life, arms or legs—all for a $5.00 bill, and the investment is so little that no one can afford to ignore it, or refuse to own this wonderful TRAVEL-PROTECTION-POLICY.

When a $25,000,000 Company offers you a Life Policy against travel accident for $5.00, you certainly ought not begin a vacation or a visit unprotected. Street car, Steamer and Train accidents covered.
