Mountain-Grown Teas Best

The tea plant grows best in the pure cool atmosphere of a mountain tea garden. The higher the garden, the finer and more de-licious the flavour of the tea. This is partly due to the clear sunshine on a high mountain side, partly to the more invigorating air, partly to the more frequent rainfall and perfect drainage. The largest and roughest leaf grown at an elevation of 7000 feet is much superior in flavour to the tiniest tip grown only 2000 feet above sea-level. All teas used in the "SALADA" blends are grown from 4000 feet to 7,500 feet elevation. The trademark "SALADA" is a guarantee of quality.

The Weekly Monitor,

gret that I read in your issues of the 14th, and 22nd, of January of the deaths of three well remembered triends of my boyhood days viz. Edwin Ruggles, K. C., who was a very familiar figure. Frank Hoyt Tupper who was an old school mate and David Hicks, who used to run the copperage at my grandfather's mill, I wish to express through your valuable paper my deepest sympathy with the relatives of the deceased. My mother frequently sends me copies of the Monitor and through it I am able to keep in touch with the old home and save old memories from being relegated to the limbo of forgotten things.

I notice with considerable concern that the people of Canada are proposing to or acquiescing in the fe ture of a part of their birthright in granting concessions to supply pulpwood to American mills. Surely there sufficient capital and enterprise in Canadian soil. A Port Wade writer remarks that they are making money out of the Yanks but he must not fool 11 a.m. (Easter Communion.) himself for every dollar you make out of the Yanks in this manner they will make four out of you. Rhodesia is also a country of great natural wealth concession hunters. I surely hope the some action for the enlargement o Government will wake up and place the an embargo on the export of timber Yours faithfully,
