AGRICULTURE

Notes and Suggestions of Practical Utility FOR THE FARM, FIELD, GARDEN AND DAIRY.

Reduce the amount of stock rather than pinch on feed. Beware of feeding unground grain to domestic animals. Stick to a breeding sow as long as she breeds profitably.

On the dairymen's question, a western man makes a very good point. Mr. George Percey writes that the fact that the horns of the animal have no sort of protection from cold in the winter.

Working on the road—getting your products to market. Moderate feed and gentle exercise are good for the horse.

At the meeting of the Shropshire association at Buffalo, Nov. 15, Prof. Thomas Shaw of the Ontario agricultural college at Guelph, read an excellent paper on the Shropshire in its relation to the sheep industry in the United States.

PARAGRAPHS

On All Subjects of Current Note at Home and Abroad.

In 12 marriages out of every 100 one of the parties has been married before. As many as 2,300 tons of meat have been delivered at Smithfield in one day.

By way of a joke a man, unperceived extracted a bottle from a fellow-passenger's pocket in a train near Dublin, and drank some of the contents, believing it to be whiskey.

When, in 1840, M. Guizot was the French ambassador to England he was upon terms of friendly intimacy with the young queen, who was much entertained and instructed by the learned diplomat's varied and brilliant conversation.

The smallest book ever printed since type was invented is, perhaps, the microscopic edition of Dante's "Divine Comedy," which was exhibited at the Paris Exposition of 1882.

JINGLES OF HUMOR.

A Little Romance Gathered for Leisure Moments.

The pen is mightier than the sword when it comes to making flourishes. After the usual knot is tied many find that it is not what they expected.

A philosopher says a man should select a wife for temper not for looks. The man who gets his deserts in this world usually has no "padding."

There is nothing we make so many blunders about—the mind or the few—so the smallest amount of our importance. According to Stock Exchange reports brewers are most of the strength these cold days.

When a man starts out to lecture he does not know how long it will last. "Alas! it's an age of doom," sighed the philosopher. "What?" asked his companion. "The age of women," he answered.

REFORMATORIES.

Every once in a while there is an outcry in the St. John papers and among the clergy for a Reformatory, to which juvenile offenders may be sent where their morals can be improved, instead of consigning them to the goal or penitentiary to hard among deep-dyed criminals. In any other place with the expenditure of so much talk something good would come out of it. While the talk seems to be all right, there is not a person in St. John to take the lead and place the business on a practical footing—plenty of gabblers, but no workers. The old penitentiary has been closed for many years—just the place already at hand for a Reformatory, and although this has been frequently suggested it remains in embryo, as if required some one to work it up with the Dominion Government who own it.

What the difficulty is in the way of getting possession we know not, it is not the want of some live man to bring it properly before the government? Here then comes in the question of services to be rendered by the representatives of St. John—but after all the people themselves to whom the representatives are indebted for the life blood they are supposed to possess. Once upon a time there were leading men in St. John to take up matters for the public good—men who worked as well as talked—the W. O. Smiths and the Lachlan Donaldsons for instance, but the supply appears to have become exhausted with their departure. It is not only a shame, but a crime to send children to the penitentiary not in the Magistrate, but in a community in not providing a proper place for the safe keeping of bad children and their reformation. Last week a boy was arrested for the third or fourth time for stealing. Now there ought to be christian spirit enough in St. John that steps may be taken so that such children may be trained in the way they should go and thus become members of society—instead of the apathy which allows them to go to destruction as far as they possibly can.

In all very well for the pulpit to preach against sin, but the people and magistrates ought to do something likewise and prevent children growing up into criminals.

DIED OF OLD AGE.

Every week the St. John papers publish the mortality statistics for the city during the week, under which head all the different diseases of which persons die are placed in single columns and in the enumeration is one for "Old Age." Now we are anxious to know what Boards of Health mean by old age, when they classify it among the diseases? How is it that infants are not so treated—for there are more who die of (n) infancy than of old age; if the classification is permissible in one case, so it should be in the other? No! We are told that infants die of croup, diphtheria, or some other such disease. Why then say that men die of old age, when there is no such thing to die of except disease, or sudden death if you like; but sudden death is as common to the young as to the old. But take the term in its abstract sense, and we ask when does old age begin—where does the statistician fix the turning point? Ay, when the death just at that point? Now it is well known in physiology that some men are quite old at 60, while others are not old at 70 or 80. What is the standard of old age (that men should die) in such cases? True, the vital powers as age advances become weaker and weaker; and although not so likely to happen in the young, still they also weaken. More persons die at 20 than over that age. When an old man dies it is from some weakness, or running down of the system; but the same with much younger persons. It depends upon the constitution, good or bad, how long a man can live; and, therefore, old age has no more to do with one man's death than death has with another in the infancy of his days. "Died of Old Age" is a contradiction of common sense.

Christmas has come and gone, and the young folks have enjoyed themselves as only young folks can, and are looking forward for a good time on New Year's, while the older people are again getting ready to face the trials and troubles of life, so familiar to the majority of people, but who, nevertheless, have found the Christmas season a joy ful and happy one, and the period of the year which goes to prove that "it is better to give than to receive," and is a time significant with good wishes and family reunions. A time when the poor are not forgotten, but have everything done that can be done to make one bright spot to shine in their lives, of the season when charity reigns supreme.

To our readers we wish them one and all the compliments of the season.

The Liberals have lost two members from the Senate within a month. By the death of Hon. A. H. Paquet the Liberal party have lost a good member and there are now only about eight Liberals left in the upper house. Mr. Paquet was sixty one years of age and has been in public life since 1863. He was a physician by practice and was thought a good deal of by the people in the district in which he resided.

The services in the various churches were well attended yesterday. At the Cathedral the singing was exceptionally fine, and the sermon by the Rev. Mr. Parkinson was delivered in his usual eloquent way. To-morrow the morning service will be the same as on Christmas Day.

In the different churches throughout the city special Christmas music has been prepared for the morning and evening services to-morrow. The methodists have prepared an excellent programme of music, which we were unable to get before going to press.

HOTEL KEEPER MURDERED.

Before his own door at Rindge, N. B., struck down with a Warrant for Reformation in his hands.

RINDGE, N. B., Dec. 16.—J. C. Wheeler, keeper of a hotel at Rindge Centre, was murdered about 5 o'clock tonight in front of his hotel by John Burnell or Brannell, a Frenchman belonging in Fitzwilliam.

Burnell accompanied by another man, whose name is not known, drove up to the hotel and asked Wheeler for some liquor. This was refused and a scuffle ensued. Burnell became terribly enraged, and striking a wild blow, dealt Wheeler a savage blow over the head, killing him instantly. Two other men who came to Wheeler's assistance, received severe treatment and one was very badly injured.

After dealing the murderous blow, the Frenchman and his companion ran from the scene across the field, but the latter was soon overtaken and is now in custody. Burnell up to the present time has eluded arrest. He is described as a hard character, who has served several terms in jail. His victim was about 60 years of age, nearly blind, and leaves a wife and three children. He had been in the hotel business in Rindge about three years, his son Frank having previously conducted the house.

Jim Kehoe seriously ill.

One day last summer, Jas. H. Kehoe was driving up the St. Croix stock farm and was leading a horse behind his road cart. This horse suddenly "set back" and gave Mr. Kehoe's arm a severe wrench. It did not bother him much at the time, and he afterwards drove Elsie and Carrie to St. John, New Glasgow and Pembroke. Then he consulted a doctor, and the result of his injuries was made known to him. He has since been confined to his home and, should the worst results follow his illness, it will be difficult indeed for Mr. Todd to find so capable and faithful a manager.

All sorts.

The influenza is raging throughout the States.

Boston's municipal government is strongly Democratic in every branch.

The Bowdoin Square Baptist church at Boston is to have a new tabernacle.

People of the Isle of Orleans, near Quebec, are terror stricken by strange noises.

Archduke Ernest, residing in the Raiser Palace, Vienna, where Archduke Sigismund died the other day of influenza, has also been stricken with that disease.

A man in New Albany, Ind., who had been unable to stir hand or foot for some months was the first person out of the building when a cry of "Fire" was raised. Great is the power of imagination.

"I see you are advertising again for a runaway dog. This is the third time in a single month!" "Yes, bother it! Since my daughter has begun taking music lessons I can't keep a dog in the house."

Six ladies, making 29 persons, who were stowage passengers on steamer Lake Ontario, from Liverpool, which arrived at Boston the other day, were by order of the port physician landed at Galloups Island. Eleven out of the number were affected with measles.

The hereditary Prince of Meiningen and his wife and daughter, Countess Elizabeth and other members of the aristocracy, of Berlin, are suffering from influenza. Official statistics show an increase in the number of cases from the disease especially in Eastern Prussia.

The authorities of Vancouver Island have received an offer from a Chinaman to take into the interior two Chinese lepers who were recently landed there and dispose of them so that they would never again be heard of for $300.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 22. Fanny Davernport, the actress, is confined to her room at the Cadillac with rheumatism, and the company has gone to Buffalo with out her.

NOTES AND NOTIONS.

Running Comments on Passing Events.

Sundry Evidences in Prose and Verse.

How the Domestic, Social and Literary World Weighs.

Father (indignantly): "How does this happen, sir, that you have such a miserable report this term?"

Small Son: "I suppose because you ain't a member of the School Board any more."

The story of a lazy schoolboy who spelled Andrew Jackson "Arn Jaxn." has been equalled by a student who wished to make a half-dozen new shirts. He marked the first "John Jones," and the rest "Do."

She was showing him her picture in the album

"I would like to have the original" he said.

But while she thought he was good and proper

She gave him a negative instead.

She: "Oh, horrors!"

He: "What is it, darling?"

"I forgot all about poor pussy, left in the house alone, and we off for a week she'll starve."

"Oh, I remembered her. I left a can of condensed milk on the kitchen table with a sardine open beside it."

They were engaged. Perhaps he repeated; perhaps he did it only for fun. Said he:

"My darling Ethel, what would you say if I were to tell you that I cannot marry you?"

"I would say my dearest love, that I have a big brother who would make it warm for you, and that I have some of the sweetest little billets-doux that would make an expensive you, George dear."

"But you know I haven't a pet."

"I know you haven't a pet."

"So we'd better get married, hadn't we?"

"I think so, my precious."

Master: "Mary, I wish you would be more careful. I am very sorry to hear my wife has to scold you so often."

Mary: "Oh, don't you mind me, sir. I don't take any notice of it."

The Court of Appeal has decided that shop assistants do not come under the description of persons engaged in "manual labour." It had been already decided that omnibus conductors and drivers did not, though a driver of a horse and cart who loaded and unloaded goods did.

A gallant young man, giving an after dinner toast, referred to one member of the sex he enjoyed as a "delectable dear, so sweet that honey would blush in her presence, and treacle stand appalled."

The following notice was displayed on an evening outside a small American theatre at which a travelling troupe were about to give a performance: "On account of the loss of the headman's pocket handkerchief, 'Hamlet' will be given this evening instead of 'Othello.'"

A Berlin scientific gentleman has informed a medical journal that that gentleman has discovered a small American who cannot abstain from so dangerous a habit as kissing should indulge it through the medium respirator.

A farmer invented a scarecrow recently which seems to have worked with wonderful effect. It not only scared off every crow that saw it, but one crow was so frightened by the invention that he brought back the corn which he had stolen three days before.

Not long ago, in a public school examination, an eccentric examiner demanded:

"What views would King Alfred take of universal suffrage, the conscription, and printed books, if he were living now?"

A pupil wrote in answer:—

"If King Alfred were still alive, he would be too old to take any interest in anything."

Brown: Did you take any holidays this year, Jones?

Jones: Yes, of course.

Brown: How did you manage your business while you were away?

Jones: Oh, I just took my advertisement out of the papers until I returned, so there was no business to manage. Capital idea, wasn't it?

A clergyman had arranged with another to take his place for a Sunday. The day arrived, and with it the Rev. S. C., when for his text he took:—

"Who are these arrayed in white, and from whence came they?"

Just then two young ladies came in very late arrayed in white.

He was again repeating, the text, when a man who thought indeed someone might tell the clergyman and not have him ask twice, stood up and said:—

"Oh, sir, they are the Miss Whites, from the top of the road."

Political Candidate (addressing meeting): "I cannot help remarking my friends, how mean my opponent is, but I wish to warn him that two can play at that game."

Insurance Agent: "What is your pleasure, ma'am?"

Careful Wife: "Oh! my dear sir, I have only come to take out an insurance as our house is on fire."

The Canadian apple crop is believed to be the "largest on record" this year, and at the date of last advices the railway companies were bringing 30,000 barrels a week from Ontario to Montreal for shipment.

At Montreal is itself the centre of a great apple district, the export trade has attained unprecedented proportions, and it is doubted whether there will be steamship accommodation enough to take all the apples forth-coming. One London steamer is described as having received 5,000 boxes of cheese and 3,000 barrels of apples recently.

Brothers with Different Names.

It will be noted by many people that Sir Charles Dalrymple, the member for Ipswich, is a brother of Sir James Ferguson. The change of name has come about in connection with the succession to property. This is the second pair of Scotch brothers in parliament under different names. Mr. James Campbell, the conservative member for Glasgow University, is a brother to Mr. Campbell-Bannerman, the Liberal.

An old woman has taken up her abode in a wood on Lord Annull's estate at Kildyart. She has made a bed of fern leaves between the trunks of trees, sticks and ferns forming a rude thatch. The only article of furniture is a crucifix. She subsists on bread and water, and says she has resorted to this wretched mode of existence as a penance.

The Servians have a curious custom of giving a parting kiss to their deceased friends before final burial, and the observance of it has caused a serious epidemic of diphtheria. The Police Prefect of Belgrade has accordingly issued stringent orders against the custom, prohibiting it for the present, however, only in the cases of those persons who have died from that malady.

The Eiffel Tower is evidently a financial success. Over 217,000 have been admitted to it by visitors since March 22nd last, when this year's season commenced. During August, when Paris is always crowded with tourists, the receipts exceeded £4,000. These are encouraging figures for Sir Edward Watkin and for the promoters of the Black-pool Eiffel Tower.

THE RING.

The Myers-Carroll Fight.

The fight between Myers and Carroll was one of the greatest fights of the year. Both men were in good condition. There was nothing but sparring in the first and second round with Myers on the defensive. The close was slightly in Carroll's favor. In the third round Myers gained first blood, but received two heavy slugs in the face, which he returned with a right-hander.

In the fourth round Carroll had the advantage. In the fifth round Myers had the best of the round and landed heavily on Carroll's neck.

Eighth round—Carroll led for the head and got a touch from Myers in the neck. Both men clinched but broke away on command of the referee. Carroll planted right and left on Myers' ears.

Ninth round—Both men came up promptly, Carroll landing right and left on Myers' head. He then reached the Pricco boy's stomach lightly. Some sparring was followed by Myers tapping Carroll at long reach in the right hand. The round closed with both men sparring.

Tenth round—Carroll came up rather slowly and drove his best twice in quick succession on Myers' breast. Both men prettily stopped each time. Just before the round stopped Carroll landed his right on Myers' stomach. Both men clinched with double intent, and had the best of it when the gong sent them to their corners.

Eleventh round—Carroll came up fresh from the hands of his seconds and was very wary of Myers who came also. Carroll landed with his right and left on Myers' neck, and Myers rushed and landed lightly on Carroll's stomach. The round was decidedly in Carroll's favor.

Twelfth round—This round showed up in good shape the science of both men. Carroll opened up by leading for the stomach, but he then reached for Myers' head. Myers responded by a lead for his stomach. Carroll planted a couple of lefts and rights on Myers' breast. Both men then led for the stomach. They seemed to be reserving their wind and strength and sparred very cautiously.

Thirteenth round—This was a terrible round. There was little time lost in preliminary sparring, when Carroll went to work for a knock out, leading on Myers' head and chest. The referee had with a like intention landed savagely on Carroll's mouth. From this on the call of time both men fought entirely with savage energy, and went to their corners blowing hard, although Carroll appeared to be the more distressed of the pair.

Fourteenth round—Carroll opened the round with a short left hander that failed to connect with Myers' neck. A moment later he sent the left to Myers' stomach following it with two left handers on Myers' nose. Myers forced his opponent to the corner and struck him in the neck as he was going down and getting Myers the first knock down as well as first blood.

Fifteenth round—Carroll came up looking savage. Myers looked calm and gave Carroll a straight one in the mouth, which made the latter's teeth tingle. Carroll responded for Myers' knock by countering with a similar blow. Myers then rushed him into a corner, and against the ropes and a few lively blows were exchanged. After that got into the centre again Myers reached for the heart and got butted in the stomach with Carroll's shoulder.

Sixteenth round—Myers opened with a swing on Carroll's stomach which Carroll returned. In the 18th round both men began to spar for wind. In the next few rounds there was considerable hot work. Both men hit heavy and there was much eveny matched. For the next few rounds there was again give and take.

Will Take no Part in the Fair.

The Liverpool Chamber of Commerce in London has decided that Liverpool, as a British centre of trade and traffic, should not take any part in the Chicago Exhibition. The ground assumed by the representatives of Liverpool's commercial and mercantile interests is that the McKinley law has greatly injured and, as to certain interests, has stopped altogether, business that was formerly flourishing. Another argument is that the British exhibits will be exhibited by Americans to the great detriment of industries that have cost Great Britain years of effort and great expenditure of capital to develop, and that therefore it would be worse than a waste of time to assist in the American exhibition.
