

WATER SCHEME IS HELD UP HITCH OVER THE RESERVOIR

Hon. Mr. Beck and Commissioners Appear To Differ as to the Construction.

MR. BECK IS AFRAID OF FROST

But Chairman Jones Wants Him to Go Ahead With the Reservoir Despite the Approach of Winter.

There is a hitch between Hon. Adam Beck over the artesian wells agreement and the water commissioners, and the construction work on the new pump-house was stopped this morning.

Mr. B. V. Hole, who was awarded the contract, had a large force of men and teams at work yesterday, and had made considerable progress, when ordered to stop. He is not doing any work today, and it looks as if the proposition is liable to be held up indefinitely.

This, of course, is not of advantage to the city, and if the construction is delayed much longer the city will be the loser eventually.

The deadlock. The deadlock happened yesterday afternoon, when Hon. Adam Beck, J. C. Fidd, K.C., City Solicitor, and Mr. Glauz, City Solicitor, met to discuss the matter.

This matter has been up before, and in the main the terms had been agreed upon.

It was thought yesterday that there would be little trouble in finally arriving at a settlement, but the reverse seems to be the case, and the work will likely be delayed for some time.

No agreement was signed, and the whole question is now in the field of controversy.

Cause of the Trouble. The trouble happened over the request of Mr. Beck to delay the work on the reservoir until next spring.

It was pointed out by both Mr. Beck and Mr. Glauz that the season was far advanced for doing so large a job of concrete work. A million-gallon reservoir is of large size, and to commence it now would be unwise, as the frost would likely come before it was nearly completed, spoiling a large portion of it.

Consequently Mr. Beck desired to leave this in advance until spring, as a protection to himself and to safeguard the city.

Very Much Work. The building itself is of concrete and brick, and it will keep the contractor very busy to finish it before cold weather. Mr. Beck would protect the city by the erection of a temporary reservoir sufficient to handle two million gallons of water a day, plenty to protect the city, no matter how dry the weather became, or how large a fire took place.

This did not suit Mr. Jones, who desired that the work should all go on at once, and that nothing be left over until next year. Consequently the deadlock occurred.

Delay Is Dangerous. Every day's delay at the present time is not in the city's advantage, as it will be impossible to rush the work at a later period.

Hon. Adam Beck refused to discuss the question when interviewed. But he admitted that there was a hitch in the negotiations.

"We have no agreement with the water commissioners," said Mr. Beck. "There was a verbal arrangement entered into, but no signed agreement. I have no statement to make other than this."

Contractor Displeased. Contractor Hole is not pleased with the delay, as it interferes greatly with his work.

"It is not fair to me, nor to the city," said Mr. Hole. "I have a number of men ready to go to work, but I am prevented for some reason or other. I do not know anything about the differences between Mr. Beck and the commissioners, but something should be done so that I could get to work. Every day now is worth three later on, and we want to have the concrete work done before the frost comes. I am ready to go ahead, and I think we should have instructions to do the work. The city is not gaining by the delay, not by a long shot."

Effort to Settle It. An effort will be made to settle the dispute today.

Mayor Stevely is confined to his house with a severe cold, and was not present at the meeting yesterday. Commissioner Darch and Engineer Moore are in Toronto, and will not be home for a day or two.

Chairman Jones also goes to Toronto tonight until Tuesday, and Hon. Adam Beck is also going to Toronto.

Unless there is something done this evening, the work will be delayed for some time, and valuable time will be lost to the city.

The matter is quite a serious one, and is causing not a little comment amongst citizens who are anxious to see the city with a good supply of water as speedily as possible.

MERCHANTS VICTIMIZED. Ottawa, Sept. 2.—The appearance of Cameron McDonald, aged 23, in the police court today on the charge of forging a check on the Bank of Ottawa for $8.40, cleared up the mystery regarding the identity of the matter of over a dozen bogus checks. The case was adjourned. Over a dozen merchants recognized McDonald as the man who had victimized them.

LOOK OUT FOR YOUR HAT!

A London lady, whose name the Grand Trunk officials do not wish to make public, lost a new $12 hat in a peculiar way yesterday. She was on her way home from Detroit, where she had acquired the "lid," and was sitting beside an open window.

A sudden gust of wind lifted it from her head and through the window. She notified the crew of her loss, and when the next station, Stony Creek, was reached, a telegram was sent back. So far no trace of the hat has been found.

CITY ENGINEER GRAYDON AFTER THE "PAY-AS-YOU-LEAVE" CARS

Says They Are Dangerous to the Public—But Manager King Just as Emphatically Points Out Their Good Qualities—A Big Battle Appears To Be Looming Up.

City Engineer Graydon and Manager King of the London street railway are having a discussion at the present time over the "pay-as-you-leave" cars, and the council will likely have to deal with the question within a short time.

Some time ago Mr. Graydon wrote to Manager King stating that the cars were not built in accordance with the bylaw governing the agreement with the London street railway, and in addition, were inconvenient and dangerous to the public.

Manager King, in reply, declared that the cars were in accordance with the agreement, and were a protection to the public.

He pointed out that many people were injured each year by stepping off cars when in motion, and the gates at the rear prevented this. He further pointed out that the front steps were lowered, and the door widened, making it much easier of access. If Mr. Graydon insisted upon condemning the car he would take the matter before the council.

Complaints, Says Engineer. "I have a number of complaints regarding these cars," said Mr. Graydon. "I think they are inconvenient, and positively dangerous in case of a panic. I am also of the opinion that they are not in accordance with the bylaw. I have written several times about them, and the council will have to take the matter up shortly."

Manager King in his correspondence is equally as emphatic in his statement that the cars are safer than the ordinary car, and prevent numerous accidents, as well as being of service to the company.

COOK'S FEAT IS CONFIRMED

Danish Authorities Informed That American Reached Pole.

NEW YORK PLANS WELCOME

Great Ovation Is Promised the Arctic Hero Upon His Return to States.

Skagen, Denmark, Sept. 3.—A newspaper correspondent, who went on board the Hans Egede steamer off here was able to obtain a few words with Dr. Frederick A. Cook. The explorer ascribed his success to the fact that he had made use of old methods, namely Eskimos and dogs, and that he lived like an Eskimo himself.

Skagen, Sept. 3.—Dr. Cook was interviewed today by a newspaperman who went on board for that purpose.

The doctor then gave a hurried sketch of his expedition, in which he said: "Going northward I struck first a westerly course from Greenland, and then moved northward."

"I arrived at the North Pole, April 21, 1908, as already announced, accompanied by only two Eskimos."

"We reached the Pole at seven o'clock in the morning."

"I took daily observations for a whole fortnight before arriving at the Pole."

"Returning, we were forced to take a more westerly route, and the first ten days I took observations daily and recorded them. I was unable to measure the depth of the sea as I had not the necessary instruments."

"The lowest temperature recorded was 83 degrees centigrade below zero."

In conclusion, Dr. Cook said: "I ascribe my success to having employed old-time methods, namely, Eskimos and dogs, and to the fact that I lived as an Eskimo."

Eighty-three degrees centigrade below zero last night in 117 degrees below zero Fahrenheit.

Washington, Sept. 2.—Maurice F. Egan, the United States minister at Copenhagen, has telegraphed the state department that Dr. Cook's reported discovery of the North Pole has been corroborated by Dergard Jensen, the Danish inspector of North Greenland.

Preparing a Welcome. New York, Sept. 2.—Preparations already are afoot here to make the home-coming of Dr. Frederick A. Cook, discoverer of the North Pole, an event of national, and possibly international importance. If the plans outlined today by members of the Arctic Club are carried out, the welcome home which Cook will receive in New York will be an ovation in which city, state and nation will take part, while prominent explorers—Cook's former rivals—from all parts of the globe, will gather to pay their personal tribute to his achievement.

Among the most notable of those who in all probability will be here to greet Cook on his return will be Lieut. Shackleton, the intrepid Englishman, whose recent explorations in the Antarctic, during which he succeeded in pushing nearer to the south pole than had any previous explorer, made him a figure of world-wide prominence.

Is It Flat at Pole? Paris, Sept. 2.—The news was received with the greatest interest by members of the French Geographical Society, one of whom said: "Dr. Cook apparently has succeeded where others failed. His success depended on the condition of the atmosphere and the positions of the glaciers which up to the present time have jealously stayed the advance of man. Dr. Cook's record should determine whether or not there is a flattening of the earth at the pole, and verify the mathematical situation of the polar star at the zenith."

Pierre Levasseur, the French geographer, was overcome with delight when informed of Dr. Cook's achievement.

THE INQUEST OPENED IN SARNIA MYSTERY

Inquiry Into Tragic Death of Hotelman Brings Out New Evidence.

(Special to The Advertiser.) Sarnia, Sept. 2.—When the adjourned inquest to endeavor to determine the cause of the death of the late Wm. Hendrie was resumed at the police court room tonight, the building was crowded to capacity with friends of the deceased and interested citizens. Hendrie, who was landlord of Wees Beach Hotel, was found last Monday night in one of the bedrooms with a deep gash in his throat, which resulted in his death, after being removed to the hospital. At the inquest tonight Coroner Dr. Logie presided, while J. P. Bucke, county crown attorney, appeared on behalf of the crown. The entire evening was taken up with the examination of seven witnesses, after which the inquest was adjourned for one week.

Little Light on Case. While the investigation by the authorities was of the most searching kind, very little evidence was secured that would tend to throw any light upon how or in what manner Hendrie came to his end. Evidence failed to disclose any reason for suicide, and likewise failed to locate the instrument which undoubtedly was used to gash Hendrie's throat—whether by himself or some unknown person. As yet the case is shrouded in deepest mystery.

Chas. Kinsley, bartender at the hotel, testified that only a few minutes before Hendrie was found in the bedroom which last month was the scene of the tragedy, he had been seen with the remark: "You look after (Continued on Page Ten.)"

COOL WEATHER STEMS THE CHOLERA INFANTUM

A Lull in the Epidemic Noticeable the Past Few Days.

The cool weather of the last few days has had a decidedly beneficial effect on the epidemic of cholera infantum, which has been raging among the children of the city, and according to physicians, it is greatly checked. Medical men are not looking for any respite, however, and are agreed that the worst ever experienced in the history of the city, and all state that notwithstanding the lull, the epidemic is not over, and that there were very large numbers of cases where patients were dangerously ill, and where recovery was made.

Should Have Own Cruisers. Proceeding, he said: "I see it is suggested that the dominions should have cruisers of their own. If that is so I can only say that it is an excellent suggestion. The difficulty you will encounter is in the training of your men. Any dominion can hire its defence, but it cannot buy its discipline and all that is necessary in time of war to make a man-of-war effective."

If the dominions do decide to have cruisers that can be easily arranged. It will consolidate the empire more to have standardized cruisers and repairing stations. You can have four on the east coast and three on the west coast, and those on the west coast can change with the Channel fleet in times of trouble, and so get to know each other better. We should find that the overseas dominions could teach us something. That would give the fleet to the old time."

No Aggrandizement. On the other hand, the cruisers of the sister nations would have the advantage of the experience of the old country in naval affairs. It is a sound thing that it will unite the empire more, and certainly make its defence more effective if we did so. It is the same as having a policeman on the beat. It is no use the policeman going to bed, and then when a burglar comes ringing him up. The man's away with the bang by that time."

Once again he pointed out that imperial defence did not mean imperial aggrandizement. Let each of the component nations have its own flag, but let the old Jack—"There the old beggar is, blowing out," he said, pointing to a represent of the empire, one and indivisible."

Cheers again broke out at the conclusion of Lord Charles' address, and the proceedings terminated with the singing of "God Save the King."

The admiral's last important sea command was that of the Atlantic fleet, which he brought from San Francisco by way of the Pacific Ocean and the Suez Canal to Hampton Roads. He reached the rank at which he was retired today about three years and three months ago.

WALLACE IS CERTAIN COOK HAS SUCCEEDED

Labrador Explorer Was to Head a Relief Expedition to Seek the Doctor

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Sept. 3.—Dillon Wallace, the Arctic explorer and author, whose companion, Leonidas Hubbard, was frozen to death in the wilds of Labrador, said this afternoon at the home of friends in Matteawan, that he had explicit faith in Dr. Frederick Cook's wonderful feat.

Mr. Wallace has almost completed plans for an expedition to go to the relief of Dr. Cook. In his statement today, he said: "I knew Dr. Cook well, as he was one of the closest friends of my youth. You may put implicit trust in his veracity. I have known him intimately since he was born. When a boy he exhibited signs of a scientific bent. When he could he would read of explorers and study their methods.

"When I left on my last expedition on May 30, 1905, Dr. Cook led a delegation of the Arctic Club, which went

IT WORKS

The Laborer Eats Food That Would Wreck an Office Man.

Men who are actively engaged at hard work can sometimes eat food that would wreck a man who is more closely confined.

This is illustrated in the following story:

"I was for twelve years clerk in a store working actively and drank coffee all the time without much trouble until after I entered the telegraph service.

"There I got very little exercise and drinking strong coffee, my nerves grew unsteady and my stomach got weak and I was soon a very sick man. I quit meat and tobacco and in fact I stopped eating everything which I thought might affect me except coffee, but still my condition grew worse and I was all but a wreck.

"I finally quit coffee and commenced to use Postum a few years ago and I am speaking the truth when I say, my condition commenced to improve immediately and today I am well and can eat anything I want without any bad effects, all due to shifting from coffee to Postum.

"I told my wife today I believed I could digest a brick if I had a cup of Postum to go with it.

"We make it according to directions boiling it full twenty minutes and use good rich cream and it is certainly delicious."

MONTREAL ENGINEER ASSOCIATED WITH COOK

Latter at One Time Proposed Trying Balloon Route to the Pole.

Montreal, Sept. 2.—Harry D. Bayne, of this city, a civil engineer and expert in ballooning, was for a couple of years associated with Dr. Cook, the discoverer of the North Pole, in scientific work in New York. Cook wanted to try the balloon plan of reaching the pole three years ago, but Bayne advised against it. Before the Spanish-American war, Cook and Bayne started for the pole with such an outfit as Cook succeeded with, but before they got far the outbreak of war interrupted their plans.

Poor Mitchell Man Comes Into Nice Inheritance—News From Classic City.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Stratford, Sept. 1.—Mayor Dingman today is in receipt of a letter from Admiral Lord Beresford in further response to an invitation sent to the famous naval officer, prior to his leaving England, to visit Stratford in the course of his tour through Canada. On reviewing his engagements with the limited time at his disposal Lord Beresford states, with regret, that a visit to our city cannot be arranged.

In the same letter he states: "I am earnestly hoping that the result of the conference between the Canadian and British Governments may be some practical and definite scheme for securing command of the sea, more particularly by the security of the trade routes upon which our scattered empire depends."

Heir to $25,000.

"Dick" Rodgers, of Mitchell, for the past two years engaged as porter in the Royal Hotel there, received the good tidings Tuesday evening from England that he had fallen heir, by the death of an uncle there, to $25,000. A brother who is a minister and in charge of a church at Woodbridge, is left a like amount.

When the news came of his inheritance Rodgers was engaged in mopping the barroom floor, one of his multifarious duties around the hostelry and celebrated the event by calling up all hands.

His only earthly property, a small house and lot, which he was selling on time to a man named Baker, Mr. Rodgers at once donated to the purchaser, giving him a clear deed to the property, although several hundred dollars were yet due on the purchase.

Mr. Rodgers leaves at once for England to claim his share of the estate, and announces that he will immediately return to Mitchell and engage in business there.

OAK HALL

Laren, of Shakespeare, counselled the people.

Word has been received in the city from Chicago relative to the drowning of Mr. H. B. Bell, a former Stratfordite, in that city on Monday, Aug. 30. No particulars as to the sad accident have been received by the relatives here, but it is understood that an inquiry into the affair has been called.

He had a successful business here prior to his going to Chicago, having discharged capably the duties of manager in two of our large grocery establishments.

He is survived by two brothers and four sisters. They are: Mr. John Bell, Stratford, and W. A. Bell, of Chicago; Miss Margaret Bell, Bay street, city; Mrs. A. Webster, Nelson street, city; Mrs. A. Nash, Sioux City; Miss Minnie Bell, Brantford.

Stratford's gigantic Labor Day celebration has been well planned. The programme of track and field athletics, horse racing, band concerts and the splendid fireworks display of forty-two numbers is one that should attract thousands of holiday visitors.

LONDON, FRIDAY, SEPT. 3.

HOUSE-CLEANING IN MONTREAL.

The civic inquiry in Montreal has uncovered a very bad state of affairs. All the familiar growths generally known as graft are shown to have flourished in the municipal garden. The patronage system has been highly developed, and the business methods of the city hall have been so loose and wasteful that the city treasurer describes the whole civic administration as being permeated with dry rot. One enterprising middleman verified Samuel Johnson's aphorism by appealing to the racial sentiments of French-Canadian aldermen in behalf of French-Canadian contractors—regardless of the taxpayers' pockets. He showed himself to be personally above such prejudices, however, by admitting English-speaking contractors to a share in his operations.

When conditions of government become so bad as they have been in Montreal, they are likely to improve. The revelations there have shocked citizens into a sense of duty and reform is apparently in sight. A change in the constitution of the city council has been demanded, and a vote will shortly be taken upon the proposal to establish a board of control. It is argued that better results will come by fastening responsibility upon a few persons forming the municipal executive, and that only men will be elected who are big enough to be seen beyond the boundaries of their particular wards. The system should be an improvement, but the first condition must be a keener and more intelligent interest in municipal affairs on the part of the public. There are many hopeful signs in Montreal, chief of which is the enthusiastic support given to the reform movement by leading French-Canadians. Every prominent French-Canadian newspaper with one exception is advocating the board of control plan, and such men as Senator Dandurand, Sir Lomer Gouin, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, and Mr. Henri Bourassa, are working for it. Representative French-Canadians are sensitive to the knavish attempts to traffic on the race issue, and feel that the good repute of their compatriots is bound up with the struggle for better government in Montreal.

TWO FIRES AND THEIR LESSONS.

The destruction of the west wing of the Parliament Buildings has taught Toronto another lesson.

Chief Thompson, of the fire department, complains that there was barely sufficient pressure to throw water to the apex of the buildings. Yet the pressure was 70 pounds, which some people in this city profess to regard as ample for fire protection. Chief Thompson laments that the Parliament Buildings were not covered by the high pressure system, recently installed in the downtown section of Toronto. This section has a pressure of 300 pounds, "which means a dandy pressure to fight a fire with," says the chief. The Toronto Mail and Empire demands the extension of the high pressure service, and pays this tribute to its merits:

"Had the legislative buildings been within our high pressure zone, the firemen would have had no difficulty in saving the west wing. As it was, the west wing had to go, and their utmost resources were taxed to save the central portion of the building."

Similar testimony comes from Winnipeg. The Winnipeg Telegram speaks of the recent McClary fire in that city:

"Before the fire in the McClary warehouse on Bannatyne avenue was discovered it had obtained a hold on the contents of the structure which rendered the salvage of anything contained in it impossible. The great danger lay in the fire spreading to other buildings, and causing a general conflagration. The building is six stories in height. It is on a comparatively narrow street in one of the most densely built-up sections of the city."

"The risks from sparks at this season of the year, when everything is as dry as tinder, was excessive. Yet the high pressure system was able to throw an immense stream of water above the building, and to damp down the stream of sparks from the furnace below, which might have gravely threatened surrounding property."

"The conflagration was limited in its extent to the building in which it originated. For that fortunate circumstance Winnipeg has to thank the wise expenditure which placed such effective means of fighting fire at the disposal of its fire brigade. The Winnipeg Tribune says: 'It would seem within the bounds of probability that the high pressure plant saved the city from vastly heavier losses in the great wholesale district of the city. The further extension of the system is only a matter of a few years.'

The lesson for London is that while it has solved the problem of water supply, that of fire protection, which is almost equally important, has still to be dealt with.

THE AUSTRALIAN NAVY.

As outlined by the London Times, the plan of naval defence finally decided on by the Australian Government, and endorsed by the Imperial authorities, is identical in principle and application with that to which the Canadian Government and Parliament are pledged, and is declared to be entirely satisfactory to Australian national sentiment.

At first the ships of the Australian navy will be built in England, the object being to expedite the building of a fleet. For some time the Imperial navy will be drawn upon for officers and men. Ample provision will be made for interchange of officers, so that a Commonwealth's fleet will be of the same standard as the British fleet in all essentials. One of the great Australian ports will remain, as heretofore, an Imperial naval base. The establishment of one or more training colleges in Australia, while forming no part of the conference programme, must be regarded as the foundation on which the Commonwealth would build the personnel of the Australian navy.

The Commonwealth is to retain the completest possible control of the Australian navy during peace time. Instead of passing automatically under the control of the admiralty in time of war, the ships will be placed at the disposal of the admiralty by the Commonwealth, if and when the necessity arises. It is fully recognized that in time of war the navy must be under one central and individual control. While providing the best form of defence for Australia, the scheme agreed upon is such that it will form a really effective part of Imperial defence whenever and wherever Imperial interests are assailed.

Australia's offer of a Dreadnought was made quite unconditionally, and with the understanding that the Commonwealth was not bound to supply this class of vessel only, if others were thought more desirable. There is reason to believe that a Dreadnought, as such, will not be the form of the Commonwealth's contribution. The admiralty has shown its desire to do as much as possible in meeting Australia's aspirations for a navy of her own; but it has been pointed out that the value of a Dreadnought alone in Australian waters would not be great, and the advantage of substituting fast cruisers is now generally recognized. The difference between the position of Canada and that of Australia on the question of naval defence is that while the Canadian Government and Parliament saw the proper course from the outset, it required time to convince the Commonwealth of the wisdom of her hasty though well-meant offer.

The cause of tariff reform in Great Britain is now intertwined with the cause of land monopoly.

Lord Rosebery remarked in a recent speech attacking some proposals of the Government, that his words would not be likened to "the croaking of a retired raven on a withered branch." It is possible that a good many are now taking him at his word.

The Winnipeg Telegram says that the project of a Canadian fleet is "abhorrent and obnoxious." Admiral Lord Charles Beresford yesterday told a Toronto audience that Canada should have its own fleet. The old sea dog puts some Canadians to shame.

Canada and the United States are not going to quarrel over the ownership of the North Pole. It is not worth a cross word, anyway. Explorer Cook found it neither a pole nor a hole (as some scientists contended) but simply "a few arpens of snow."

Mr. James J. Hill cannot say anything too good now of the Canadian West. Two years ago, perhaps in a fit of resentment over the exodus to Canada of American farmers living in the states served by his railway, he declared wheat-growing in the Canadian West could not permanently succeed. Nothing succeeds like success.

BEST SORT OF LUCK.

"Some folks is born lucky," said Uncle Eben, "an' de man dat is born wif plain, common sense is one of 'em."

HARRIMAN'S MISTAKE.

[St. John Telegraph.]
Not more than six months ago a visitor to Mr. Harriman's office found the financier so busy that he did not take time for luncheon. While he talked to the caller he used his desk as a table, eating as he worked and talked.
And there you are. The man is a glant, but the price is shattered health, probably early death. Doubtless he was happier when he only the dollar and the pocket knife. He has taught the world nothing that is good.

HAD THEM ALL.

[Detroit Free Press.]
"Were you ever in love?" asked the sweet young thing. "No," replied the bachelor, "but you can't mention any other fashionable disease that I haven't had."

TOMMY'S INTUITION.

[Exchange.]
"Tommy," said the younger man to his prospective brother-in-law, aged 5, "will you be sorry when I marry your sister?"
"Yes," answered Tommy—"I'll be very sorry—for you."

THE PROPER WAY.

[Ladies' Home Journal.]
"I would like to ask," said a lady visiting America for the first time, "when you call here do you turn down the end of your visiting card or not?"
"No," said a man; "you bite it in the middle."

MAIDEN CAUTION.

[Judge.]
Hestress—Do you examine titles, Mr. Lawyer—I do, Ma'am.
Hestress—Well, this is my fiancé, Lord Preservus. I'd like you to examine his title before we get married. I'd hate to get stung!

AMERICANS OF TITLE.

[Exchange.]
The London Daily Express gives a list of American titled hostesses who are adding to the gaiety of the London season, and who are either married Englishmen or who make their permanent homes in London. The list is an interesting one and worth reproduction. Here it is:
Duchess of Roxburghe,
Duchess of Marlborough,
Duchess of Devonshire,
Consuelo, Duchess of Manchester,
Cora, Countess of Strafford,
Lady Cheylesmore,
Lady Bateman,
Countess of Craven,
Lady Hesketh,

HELPMATES.

[Judge.]
"Let me see—didn't you tell me to remind you to get something when you got to town?"
"I believe I did."

ROSEBERY AS A TAX-DODGER.

[Stratford Beacon.]
And now Lord Rosebery has, like the other dukes and earls, refused to pay the share of his class of the bill for an enlarged navy. He will speak against the budget in Glasgow. It is amazing how some rich men, who boast of their patriotism, try to dodge the tax collector.

Tigers Defeated Red Sox Again

TIGERS TAKE FINAL CONTEST OF SERIES FROM THE RED SOX

Victory Is Fourteenth Successive One That Team of Jennings Has Annexed—Boston Outbats Champions—Visitors Rally After Detroit Has Lead.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Detroit, Sept. 3.—Weighted down with the laurels of 14 successive victories, 13 of the number being over eastern teams, Detroit played its last game of the season on the local grounds with a club from that end of the circuit yesterday, and left last night on the boat for Cleveland where the Champions are billed to meet McGuire's Naps today and tomorrow.

TIGERS 8, BOSTON 5.

Detroit 8, "Speed Boys" 5, is the way the last game of the series with the Bostonians terminated. It was quite as exciting as the one of the day before, although in this one the Tigers' advantage was a little more secure. At that Boston made it interesting enough by coming within one of tying the score after Detroit had obtained a five-run lead. It is all very pleasant to think about, now that it is over, but for a few minutes yesterday there were some of the more humorous fans who saw visions of a Red Sox victory.

Make Eight Runs on Seven Hits.

Like the two contests which preceded it there was some good and some poor playing. Boston outbatted the Champions 10 to 7, but errors, which figured in the scoring of both Tigers and Red Sox, gave the Champions a little better of the argument. To make eight runs on seven hits might be considered something of a feat, at that. Edgar Willett, who responded to the Champions' summons for aid in Wednesday's game, was selected to do slub work against the Bostonians yesterday.

Willett and Collins.

He had opposing him Collins, a youngster, who has met with more or less success since he became a member of the rapid transit outfit. Collins' doom was sealed in the opening inning, although Lake permitted him to remain in the box during the four rounds following. In the first Detroit collected three hits, a pass a sacrifice and an error, and the combination was converted into a trio of tallies.

Collins Departs.

Collins pitched in good form during the succeeding two innings, but in the fourth the Tigers again did the unusual, scoring two runs on a pass and a hit; the latter, it should be explained, was a four-base drive along the left field foul line by George Moriarty, the hero of Wednesday's battle. Collins worked in just one more chapter after this and then he gave way to Pape, a Milwaukee American Association Club recruit.

Recruit Pape Follows.

The latter didn't prove any too soft for the Tigers and during the three rounds in which he twirled, Detroit got but two hits, these two luckily coming in one round and netting as many runs. What the Champions did in the game, for the last run made off Collins in the fifth gave the Tigers a total large enough to insure that they looked very comfortable on the scoreboard nevertheless.

THE EEL THIRD IN GREAT AMERICAN DERBY

HERE'S FINE CHANCE FOR HUSKY UN

YOUNG MILLER.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Minneapolis, Sept. 2.—This is Young Miller, who claims to be welterweight catch-as-catch-can champion of the world. Miller has been wrestling but three years, and during this time has defeated such men as Max Luttinger, Ed Adamson, Fred Baril, Max Wiley, and Stanley Karp, some of the best wrestlers in the country.

Miller is after Otto Suter, holder of the international welterweight title. The pair met at Duluth about a year ago, and went to a draw, which lasted nearly three hours without a fall.

In this bout Miller was the aggressor throughout, and the opinion prevailed at the matside that had Suter opened up he would have been defeated.

Miller is a marvel of strength, speed and cleverness, and in his debut says he will wrestle any man in the world at 142 pounds, the welterweight limit.

PIRATES HAVE PENNANT CINCHED

THE last time F. Leroy Chance visited New York with his performing troupe, the Peerless Leader was peddling a fine line of optimistic conversation. "Leave it to us," he said, easily. "We will beat Pittsburg SURE. We are just beginning to make our run now."

That was the last week in July.

The Peerless Leader has changed his song. The glad note of optimism has died away to a low, sad whisper. Some of Chance's friends asked him how he deplored the present state of the contest.

"How about you, Frank? Are you still going to win?"

The Peerless Leader "hefted" his bat, shifted his fine-cut and ran his gnarled fingers along the bulge of the weapon before he answered.

"We-e-e, I'll tell you," he answered, thoughtfully. "We've got a chance."

THE CHANCE CHICAGO HAS.

Yes, Chicago has a chance, but only one, and it chews tobacco and talks back at umpires.

It was that four-time licking in Chicago which spilled the beans for the three-time winners of the National League pennant. The Cubs were going great guns until the Giants stopped them in their own town. Had the Cubs been able to make a clean sweep of that series they would now be tip-toeing along so close to the Pirates that the least flurry on the part of the Pittsburg outfit would have meant a whipping, slashing finish between Cubs and Pirates, and in that case the Dutch company would have given another specimen of their end-of-the-season gameness.

A few half-grown boys who sit near the visitors' bench have been having fun with the Chicago lads during the series which has just closed.

"Hi! No pennant this year, fellows!" they howled. "You'll never catch Pittsburg!"

BOYS KID THE FOOLISH.

Two or three of the world's champions were stung by this line of comment; some of them were nicked so severely that they talked back. When a ball player begins to talk back to the "bugs" it is a sure sign that his goat has gone to the country. Tinker was one of the players who answered the stinging remarks from the grandstand.

"Oh, I don't know!" he said. "We won it three times straight and we trimmed you last year. Three times is pretty good, hey?"

Yes, Joe, three times is going some, as they say in Boston. No team ever won the flag four years in succession, and a pennant, like a poker chip, has no permanent home.

FORMER PENNANT.

The history of the National League shows that in 32 years eight teams have divided the pennant-winning honors rather unevenly. Chicago won nine times, Boston eight times, New York four times, Brooklyn, Baltimore and Pittsburg three times each, Providence twice and Detroit once. Eleven times a winning team was able to repeat; five times teams have won three years in succession. Philadelphia, Cincinnati and St. Louis have always

ASK FOR LEGISLATION ON BREAD QUESTION

Ald. Moorehead and Assessment Commissioner Grant Return From Convention at Toronto.

Ald. Moorehead and Assessment Commissioner Grant have returned from Toronto, where they have been attending the convention of Ontario municipalities. Both agree that it was a most successful convention, and many things of great importance were discussed.

"The city of Toronto certainly treated us royally," said Mr. Grant. "We were given the freedom of the city and handsomely entertained."

"There was a great deal of discussion in our section on the assessment act. The act proper was not amended at all, but there were some clauses added to the section dealing with business assessment. There is always a great deal of trouble about business assessment when men retire, and the like of that, and some slight changes were made to meet these contingencies. In London we have little difficulty with that, as we always assess the business section last, and also bring down all changes to the moment the rolls are handed over. In that way we have little trouble, although some of the municipalities have found trouble with it."

"Our taxes are collected well here, and as a result we have the least possible trouble."

The Bread Question.—said Ald. Moorehead. "We took up many things of great importance to the city and to the province. We have asked for legislation on the bread question, the feeling of the convention being that the present system was not successful. It will soon be hard to distinguish between bread and buns, one representative thought. We also favored the commission system of civic government, and discussed roadways and many such propositions."

"It was a good convention, and we learned many valuable things."

MEAN THIEF STEALS VALUABLE JARDINIERS

Theft Reported to the Police at Residence at 425 Dundas Street.

Mrs. Clarkson, of 425 Dundas street, reported to the police this morning that two valuable jardinières had been taken from the verandah of her home some time during the night. The thieves before taking the jardinières removed the flowers.

At the police station it is stated that three such cases have been reported since last night, and during the past two weeks there have been a number of others. Jardinières are difficult things to trace, but the police hope to recover some of the missing property shortly, and if the thieves are caught they will be severely dealt with. It is dangerous to leave things out at night, as a gang of sneak thieves is around, and have been stealing many small articles from verandahs and other places.

LATE LOCAL ITEMS

Firm Was Fined.

A local firm, charged with selling a lady, sugar, which contained deleterious matter, was fined $5 and 75 cents costs in the police court today. The firm pleaded that the case arose through the negligence of an employee.

Bad for the Lorry.

One side of a Grand Trunk lorry that was being driven down the sidewalk on Carling street, just west of Talbot street, went over into the new roadbed about 11 o'clock this morning. The hind wheels jammed against a telegraph post and it was some time before the lorry could be gotten out.

Masons at St. Thomas.

About 75 local masons went down to St. Thomas last night with D. G. M. Wallace, on the occasion of his official visit to St. Thomas Lodge, No. 44. The visitors were warmly welcomed by Worshipful Master Judd and the first degree was exemplified in an exceptionally capable manner by the degree team of St. Thomas Lodge. The visitors all returned at midnight.

South London Wedding.

A very quiet wedding took place yesterday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Doyle, of 31 Wharfedale road, South London, when Miss Menette Sumner was united in marriage to Dr. F. R. Marr, of Ridgeway, Rev. Mr. Stuart, of Knox Church, South London, conducted the ceremony, which was followed by a dainty luncheon. Dr. and Mrs. Marr were met at the station by Toronto and points east, followed by the heartiest good wishes of their many friends.

COUNCIL'S BUSY NIGHT

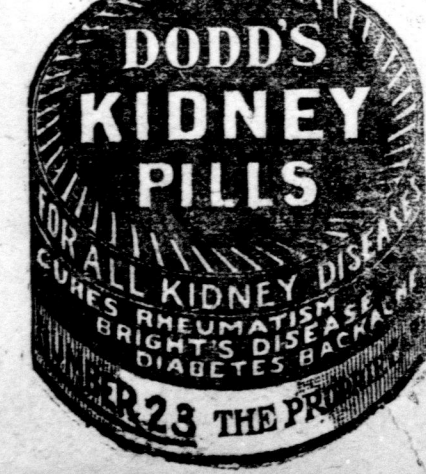

The Regular Standing and Special Power Committees to Meet.

The city hall will host a three-ring circus this evening.

All the regular standing committees, No. 1, 2 and 3, the special power committee will meet, and the court of revision will hold a session. It should prove entertaining.

At the meeting of the power committee there will be submitted definite figures of the cost of the distribution station or at least the share the council will have to bear of the cost of the joint station.

It will then be up to the committee to either accept or reject the offer. It will likely be accepted.

CHAS. ASHMAN CHARGED WITH STEALING VIOLIN

Big Catch Made by P. C. Barnhill of the Local Police Force.

Charles Ashman, of this city, was arrested this morning by P. C. Barnhill on a charge of stealing a violin last night in St. Thomas.

Sergeant Ketchabaw, of the St. Thomas police force, arrived in the city and took Ashman back at 1 o'clock.

Ashman, it seems, was down at St. Thomas last night having a big time, and in the course of it imbibed too much St. Thomas liquid. He stated this morning that if he did take the violin, it would be found at his home, but he could not remember taking it. Ashman has been in court here for non-support.

HANBURY-WILLIAMS FOR SCOTTISH COMMAND

Military Secretary to Earl Grey Given an Important Appointment.

Ottawa, Sept. 2.—Sir John Hanbury-Williams has accepted the appointment of brigadier-general in the Scottish command. This will necessitate his early departure from Canada. This will be a matter of regret to the scores of friends he has made throughout the Dominion.

Sir John came to Canada over four years ago with Earl Grey as plain Col. Hanbury-Williams. For his splendid services in connection with the tercentenary celebration at Quebec, he received the honor of knighthood. He belongs to a distinguished English family, and has had a highly creditable military career. He joined the army in 1878, being attached to the Fourth Light Infantry.

In 1882 he took part in Lord Wolseley's Egyptian campaign as D. C. to Sir E. Hamley, in command of the second division.

At the battle of Tel-El-Kehir his horse was shot. He was mentioned in dispatches, and received the medal, with clasp, the bronze star, and other decorations.

Two years later Col. Hanbury-Williams was appointed a D. C. to Sir M. E. Grant Duff, governor of Madras, and he subsequently served in Burma. From 1892 to 1897 he was adjutant of the Third Oxford Light Infantry Regiment. Then came his appointment of military secretary to Lord Milner in South Africa. For these services he was decorated.

Personal Mention

Miss Lena Macfie, 19 Bathurst street is being visited by friends in Hamilton and Toronto.

Mr. F. A. Young, of Toronto, travelling passenger agent of the Canadian Northern Railway, was in the city this morning.

Miss Fleta Banghart, 70 Wharfedale road, left today for a week's stay with her brother, Dr. P. C. Banghart, of Dorchester.

Mrs. W. Richmond and family, Langarth street, after a couple of weeks' vacation at Port Stanley, have returned home.

Dr. L. F. Banghart returned to his home in Detroit today after a ten days' visit with his parents, 70 Wharfedale road, and with his brother, Dr. P. C. Banghart, Dorchester.

Miss Davidson, who was formerly with the Wm. Penfold Company, has returned to the city, and accepted a position with the Ontario Furniture Company. She has just returned from a trip to Grand Rapids, New York and other American cities.

EAST LONDON

Work Was Begun on Rectory Street

This morning.

Work on the surface of the Rectory street pavement was commenced this morning, and by this afternoon the first coat had been laid on a large portion of the west side of the road between Dundas street and the Grand Trunk.

The east side will be finished up shortly and at the present rate of going the whole job will be finished before the fall. The street has been tied up for a long time, but the majority of the residents were willing to stand for the trouble in order to secure the improvement, as the road has been in very bad shape for years.

A SMALL FIRE.

Children playing with matches set fire to a pile of rubbish at the rear of Mr. English's grocery at 1004 Dundas street yesterday afternoon at 4:30, the end of the barn being burned.

The blaze was discovered in time and the firemen called. It was extinguished with little trouble, and the loss is small.

Service preparatory to communion will be held in the King Street Presbyterian Church this evening at 8 o'clock, when Rev. J. G. Inkster, of the First Presbyterian Church, will preach.

LATE MARKETS.

GRENFELL'S YACHT GOES TO BOTTOM

Said To Have Been Lost With All Hands Off the Labrador Coast.

WAS A HOSPITAL SHIP

Miss Mayou, Formerly of Victoria Hospital, a Member of Grenfell's Staff.

St. Johns, Nfld., Sept. 2.—Wednesday evening the police received a message from St. Anthony saying that the steamer Prospero (Capt. Kean) brought news of the supposed wreck of a steam yacht from New York, near the entrance to St. Anthony.

It is supposed to be the yacht that was given Dr. Grenfell for missionary purposes.

All hands are said to have perished. A fishing boat hauled up a new log line, and got it buoyed near the scene to mark the spot where the ship went down.

Further news is expected on the arrival of the Prospero on Friday.

It is hardly likely that Dr. Grenfell himself would be on the boat, as he always travels on the Stratcona. The yacht mentioned in the dispatch is an American one, given him at New York.

His headquarters, however, are at St. Anthony, where the wreck is reported from. About three weeks ago he left to return to the Labrador coast, after delivering lectures at Yale and Harvard Colleges on his work.

The Andrew J. McCosh, a memorial to Dr. Andrew J. McCosh, of Princeton, left New York last June to be used by Dr. Grenfell as an emergency hospital boat on the Labrador coast. The yacht is fitted up with an auxiliary engine, but it was the intention to have her proceed under canvas whenever it was possible.

Miss Mayou, formerly lady superintendent in Victoria Hospital, is on Dr. Grenfell's staff of nurses, but it is not known just where she is stationed at present.

Acting-Magistrate Beattie decided to leave the case until next week for Magistrate Love to deal with.

THE BIGGEST DAY OF LAKESIDE SEASON

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Port Stanley, Sept. 2.—This was the biggest day of the season. At least, the villagers thought so, for it was the annual civic holiday. All the stores were closed down tight and everyone joined in the grand celebration. There was not a dull moment all day. Boat races, foot races, swimming races and even donkey and mule races were pulled off. A very exciting game of baseball was played between two very evenly matched local teams. The local fans rooted till they were hoarse, and the game went on fast and furious. In the meantime the Dexter Brass Band discoursed music, and the music, which was greatly enjoyed by the large crowd of holiday-makers.

Confesses to Perjuring Himself and Is Sentenced to Two Years.

Toronto, Sept. 2.—Solomon Altman was this morning sentenced by Col. Denison, the police magistrate, to two years in the Kingston Penitentiary. Altman surrendered himself to the police recently, saying that in the course of a civil court action last spring in this city, he had deliberately committed perjury on behalf of Lewis Morris, who had promised him $50 for doing so.

Of the amount he was, he claims, paid only $25. Altman, when he surrendered, said he could not sleep at night or rest during the day because of his crime. Lewis would be tried next week on a charge of subornation of perjury.

A TRIP NEVER TO BE FORGOTTEN

One of the Ladies of The Advertiser's Party Tells of the Pleasures Enjoyed.

IN BRITAIN AND FRANCE

Also in Canada—The Voyages Both Ways Were Very Pleasant for All.

The following is an interesting account of the recent trip of The Advertiser's European party:

From the time of leaving London, Ont., on July 1, until the time of reaching that place again, on Aug. 9, our tour was one of great enjoyment. The auto trip through Toronto, especially through High Park, was very delightful. Going right on through to Montreal, we had just time enough for breakfast there, and to get our car for Quebec, where we boarded the magnificent ocean liner, Empress of Ireland. We were all delighted with the Empress. Every one was very comfortable and one's comfort and convenience on this boat. We made the acquaintance of a great number of very nice people while on board, and were sorry to say goodbye to them on landing. At Liverpool we were very much impressed with the bustle and air, and in particular we noticed the good stamp of horses used there. After meeting our guide, Mr. Bergin, we went at once to our train, which was to convey us to Edinburgh. Here we found special compartments reserved for us, as on all other subsequent journeys. The scenery certainly was a vast difference between English and Canadian trains. The English trains are much smaller, but on account of the excellent roadbed they travel a great deal more smoothly than do our trains. The compartment method, with perhaps eight or ten people in a compartment, appeared rather funny to us at first, but we soon got used to that. From the view from the train we got a good idea of the beauties of English landscapes. It was one continual picture of hills, valleys, hedges, green fields, rivulets and cascades, shrubbery, old churches, here and there the ruins of some old abbey all overgrown with ivy. In no other country did we see roses grown in such profusion and beauty as in England. The towns are quite large and are quite close together, and are mostly manufacturing centres of some kind or another. Passing through Carlisle we found ourselves in "bonnie Scotland." The scenery in Scotland, although as beautiful as that of England, is of a wilder nature. We could see the Cheviot Hills, covered with the purple heather, towering so distinctly against the sky. We passed over the beautiful Tweed River several times, as its course is very winding. At Melrose we caught a glimpse of the old abbey ruins there. Arrived at Edinburgh, Waverley station, about 2:30 p.m. after dinner. Started sightseeing at once, going directly to the castle, passing en route the Princess Gardens, which are indeed very beautiful. Here are statues to Dr. Livingstone, Adam Black, Allan Ramsay, and other noted men, and also the world-famous Scott monument, towering in graceful proportions to 199 feet. In the niches are statues of familiar figures from Sir Walter Scott's novels and poems, while under the canopy is a marble statue by Sir John Steell of the famous author and his dog Benvie. Once up on the Battery, a magnificent view is afforded of the northern section of the city. Up on the Bomb Battery stands St. Margaret's Chapel, the oldest building in Edinburgh, and the smallest church building in Britain. In front is "Mons. Meg," the big old cannon supposed to have come from Belgium. The castle itself is an immense stone structure surrounded, of course, by a stone wall and built on a huge rock, whose sides are almost perpendicular. From here we drove to Calton Hill and saw the Nelson and national monuments and the Calton Jail. On Sunday morning some of the party went to St. Giles to attend service. It is a beautiful old church, containing much of interest in the shape of monuments and tablets to notable personages, among others to Montrose, Argyll, Jenny Geddes and Robert Louis Stevenson; as well as the tattered remnants of the old regimental colors of the Scottish regiments. In the afternoon we drove through High Street, past John Knox's House, St. Giles' Cathedral, Old Market Cross, Parliament Buildings, where the courts of law meet, and saw the stone slab with letters, I. K., marking the position of the grave of John Knox. We next visited Holyrood Palace. Here we saw Queen Mary's bedroom, containing her bed and workbox, and a dagger hung on the wall; the place where Rizzio was killed, and passing out through the picture gallery, we next inspected the Chapel Royal, now very much in ruins, but presenting a beautiful sight within. Here is a vault containing the bones of Scottish kings and queens, gathered from the ruins, and placed there by Queen Victoria. Visiting Princess Street Gardens that afternoon, we were enchanted with the beautiful lawns, fountains, the floral clock, and the pretty flowers and shrubberies there. Some of the ladies climbed to the top of Arthur's seat and were well repaid for their labor by the magnificent view obtained there. The following day we started for Glasgow, via the Trossachs. The Trossachs is a great North Bridge, costing three million pounds. This bridge is 1½ miles in length. En route we passed through Lower Dunfermline, the birthplace of Andrew Carnegie. From the train, we saw a good view of the Wallace Monument, also Stirling Castle. At Aberfoyle we took coach, thus starting our lovely trip through the Trossachs of Scotland, the road winds in and out among the mountains, and is gradually ascending for perhaps three or four miles. The air is very pure and exhilarating, and the mountains, covered with heather, ferns and huge boulders, present a delightful scene. At the Trossachs Pier, we took the steamer Sir Walter Scott, and had a beautiful sail over Loch Katrine, passing very close to Ellen's Isle. At Stronachlachar Hotel, we again took coach, and were again treated to more magnificent mountain scenery. The road leading down to Inversnaid is very winding and very steep. At the beautiful Inversnaid Waterfall, a snapshot was taken of our party, standing about on the rocks and boulders, with the waterfall and little white footbridge above. In the background, we enjoyed immensely by our sail over Loch Lomond, and now can fully realize what the "Bonnie, Bonnie Banks of Lomond" means. As we were nearing the end of our trip across the loch, we turned to take a farewell look of the scene. Mountains on either side of the lake, Ben Lomond standing so majestically up in the distance, the clouds coming down over and floating in and out between the different peaks and the sun shining on the whole, made it a scene which will ever be fresh in our memories. Landed at Balloch, we immediately took train for Glasgow. Had a very enjoyable tram-car ride around Glasgow that evening, and in the morning left for Warwick, going via Birmingham, the home of Chamberlain. Two notable places of interest seen while traveling to Birmingham were the Castle of Drumlairing, the residence of the Duke of Buccleuch, and Gretna Green, where the runaway marriages were performed long ago. Arrived at Warwick and every one went into raptures over the Woolpack Hotel, where we stayed. It is a lovely, old-fashioned house, full of curios, beautiful silverware and Dutch pictures. That evening we all went for a stroll around the town and every one was more than pleased with the place. Next morning we started for Stratford-on-Avon, taking one of the most delightful drives we ever have had. The fine wide road, the beautiful gardens, ivy on the walls, and hedges, holly trees, fine old elms, the fields of red poppies, and the tall trees on either side of the road, sometimes meeting in an arch overhead, made this drive a memorable one. Then, also, we heard the English birds, the thrush and the skylark, singing. Saw the gate mentioned in "Merry Wives of Windsor," the home of Marie Corelli, the Red Horse Hotel, and we visited Ann Hathaway's Cottage. It is a most romantic spot. In front is the old garden grown up with all kinds of flowers. Inside, we saw Ann Hathaway's bedroom, the old four-poster bed, most wonderfully carved, and over 400 years old. The mattress is of burdock, and the curtains of linen woolsey 200 years old. Then also we saw a piece of needlework, most beautifully done, by Anne's sister. In another room is the old fireplace and settle, the oven, bacon cupboard, and a glass roll-top. The ceilings of all the rooms are very low. We visited the house where Shakespeare was born. It is built of frame-work, timber and plaster. Part of it is used as a museum, dedicated entirely to Shakespeare. Here we saw the old manuscripts and letters, portraits and busts of Shakespeare, and his signet ring. In the birth room, the ceilings and walls are almost entirely covered with signatures of men and women of Shakespeare's time. There is only one original window left, and on one of its small panes is the signature of Thomas Carlyle written with his diamond ring. We also visited the old church, where Shakespeare is buried. In here we saw the font where the poet was baptized; also the old chained Bible, both dating back to the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. The church is situated on the banks of the Avon, and we stood at the water's edge and gazed on the river, the beautiful white swans, and the trees overhanging the water, and then turned and walked through the lovely old churchyard, where is said to be the finest turf in England, with roses, roses, everywhere, and then on down the long avenue of tall trees we felt as though we had seen a picture that it would be impossible to find words to describe. Returning to Warwick we devoted the afternoon to visiting Warwick Castle, and the grounds surrounding it. The castle dates back to the fourteenth century, and as we passed from room to room we noticed in particular the immense thickness of the partitions. Here we saw beautiful paintings of kings and queens, numerous coats of mail and armor, and passing outside we were pointed out the Duke of Buccleuch, Scotland Yard, Cleopatra's Needle brought from Egypt and Blackfriars Bridge now being enlarged. Also several statues and monuments to noted men. Arrived at the heart of the city where seven streets come together like a hub. Passed the Bank of England, walked into the Royal Exchange, drove over London Bridge, also, over Tower Bridge which cost three-quarters of a million pounds to build, and came to the Tower of London. This old tower teems with historic associations of a gloomy character, and has been the prison home of kings, queens, poets, statesmen, ecclesiastics and royal favorites, all, justly or unjustly, having spent a portion of their lives within the walls. In some cases ended them here. From the outside our guide pointed out to us the window of the room in which the two little princes were smothered, also the parapet, where Elizabeth, once a prisoner here, was allowed to walk, and which still retains the name of "Queen Elizabeth's Walk." Then there is the Traitor's Gate, through which the prisoners of long ago were brought into the tower. Inside we visited the banquetting hall, now containing firearms, cleverly arranged on the walls and ceilings, so that the form flowers and various kinds of figures. Here, also we saw different instruments of torture used long ago; the cloak on which General Wolfe breathed his last, the coronation robes of our King and Queen. In the council chamber is kept the horse armor; also ranged around the room are many fine specimens of armor. To mention a few, there is one suit of Henry VIII., weighing 81 pounds, damasked armor given to Henry VIII. in 1544; armorment suit of Dudley's in 1598. Champion suit of George II. In here also are bow-staves and catch-poles used by thief-catchers. We saw the block and axe used for executions in this room. In another room are kept the crown jewels, which are very interesting to see, in going from this part of the tower across the court to Beauchamp Tower we had pointed out to us the Execution Spot, where Anne Boleyn, Lady Jane Grey, Earl of Sussex, and several others ended their lives. In Beauchamp Tower we saw the room on the walls of which so many unhappy prisoners have left a lasting record. From the tower we drove to St. Paul's Cathedral. This church is the second largest church in Europe. St. Peter's in Rome, being the largest. We all sat down and gazed up into the immense dome, beautifully decorated in mosaic work. Down in the Crypt Chapel below we saw where Christopher Wren is buried, also the last resting place of the remains of Arthur, Duke of Wellington; Nelson is buried in the centre of the church, directly underneath the dome. Also saw the funeral car of Duke of Wellington. Monuments to Nelson, men of South African war; also, several other statues and monuments of various kinds and statemen. On the way back to our hotel we passed down Fleet street, passed the boundary marked by a statue between London and Westminster. Saw the home of the prime minister, also the new war office. In the afternoon we went driving, past St. James' Park, Prince of Wales' house, Hyde Park, Buckingham Palace, Duke of Westminster's house; drove through Pall Mall and Piccadilly streets, our guide pointing out to us the houses of the nobility, also clubhouses, also the house where Lord Byron parted from his wife. We saw the Marble Arch, where only the King drives through, and then visited the Walter collection, valued at six million pounds, which is indeed very fine. On Friday we visited the Tate gallery, also drove past Lambeth Palace, where the Archbishop of Canterbury resides; Victoria Tower, the largest square tower in the world; Parliament Buildings, the seven hospitals, statue to Boadicea, and on to Westminster Abbey, which is English history in stone. We walked all through this church, saw the Poet's Corner, the graves of Dickens, Handel and other noted people. The oldest grave is that of King Sæbert, who died in 616. We also saw the chapel of St. Mund and Henry VIII's chapel. In this church, as well as St. Paul's, we noticed in particular the beautiful stained glass windows, the style of arches and other things. We visited the Albert Memorial, which is a very fine monument. Opposite it is the Albert Hall. We also visited that afternoon the Oratory of St. Philip, also the British Museum. This museum contains a library of three millions of books. Here we saw the original Magna Charta; also one of the oldest copies of the Scriptures, dated the year 4 A.D. Scott's Kenilworth, written by himself; George Eliot's "Adam Bede," Tennyson's "Idylls of the King," all in the original handwriting of the authors.

OAK HALL

That evening the whole party attended the "Merry Widow" opera. On Saturday, the forenoon was devoted to shopping, some of the largest stores being visited. The afternoon was spent by different members of the party in different ways. Some went to Regent Park, where there are very fine gardens and large zoological gardens; others went sightseeing around the city, and in the morning a group of the party went to His Majesty's Theatre to hear the celebrated Beerbohm Tree in "School for Scandal," and enjoyed it immensely. Sunday was spent very quietly, some attending service in St. Paul's, others going to Whitechapel in the east end, others going to hear Campbell Morgan preach. On Monday we left London for Paris, going by way of Newhaven and Dieppe. Had a very smooth voyage across the channel, and arrived in Paris in time for dinner.

THE LAND NORTH ALL DOMINION'S

Government Would Contest Any Claim Set Up by the United States.

LAND CLAIMED LONG AGO

Canada Will Not Let Foreign Flag
Dominate Any Arctic Island.

Ottawa, Ont., Sept. 3.—In official circles the view is taken that the discovery of the North Pole by Dr. Cook does not in any way affect Canada's claim to any new land upon which the intrepid explorer may have set his foot in the course of his wanderings. Canada has always claimed all land which lies to the eastward of Greenland and between the northern shore of the Dominion of Canada proper and the North Pole. These lands, which include as is well known a large number of islands have been visited many times by American explorers more particularly by Peary.

The geographical names which abound in the north, many of the points and bays being named after the presidents of the United States, indicate that the far north has been well over-run by citizens of the United States, but even in view of this Canada has never abandoned its claim to all lands lying directly to the north of the Dominion.

Our claim was strengthened when in 1906-07 Capt. Bernier in the steamer Arctic went as far north as Pond's Inlet, and planted the British flag on the islands touched in the voyage. The gallant captain is at the present time engaged in a similar roving commission. He has not been heard from since he left the last point where communication with him is impossible, but it is expected that he will, as a result of his trip, strengthen Canada's claim to the north.

An Old Contention.
That Canada considers she has the right to administer affairs in all vacant country is clearly set forth in the provisions of which Col. White, controller of Mounted Police, details the territory outside the limits of the nine provinces. The act defines the Canadian territories as comprising "the territories formerly known as Rupert's Land and the Northwest Territory, except such portions thereof as form the Province of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, together with all British territory and possessions in North America and all islands adjacent thereto, not including the colony of Newfoundland and its dependencies."

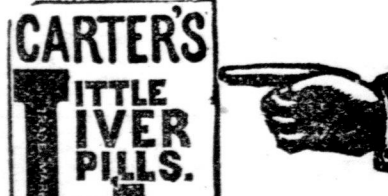

In the detailed report of Dr. Cook's trip to the pole, written by himself, he does not mention that he planted the American flag and laid claim to the land in the name of the American Republic, after the fashion of the famous Dr. Cook, who in the century gone by added considerably to the British Empire after this fashion. Should he have done so, and considered the fact, Canada will doubt be prepared to dispute the claim.

Dr. Cook, like other American explorers, was, however, not seeking the pole for the object of adding to the domain of Uncle Sam, and altogether likely recognizes that the Dominion has a good claim to all land lying between this country and the apex of the earth.

The lands annexed by Capt. Bernier in his last trip to Arctic regions, when he succeeded in getting as far north as Pond's Inlet, and on which he planted the Canadian flag, were: Bylot Island, Griffin Island, Cornwall Island, Byam Martin Island, Eglington Island, Prince Patrick Island, Eglington Island, Lowther Island, Coburn Island, North Lincoln Island, King Oscar's Land and adjacent islands, Grinnell Island, Ellesmere Land, Arthur Land, and Grant Land.

Crossed Canadian Territory.
It will thus be seen that Grinnell Land, Grant Land and Ellesmere Land, across which Dr. Cook made his way, have already been formally annexed by Canada, and the Dominion may reasonably lay claim to any additional land which lies between these far northern regions and the pole.

While nothing definite is known as to what Capt. Bernier has accomplished on the present trip, it is understood that he is expected to work his way through the northwest passage. Capt. Bernier has expressed the idea that a dash for the pole could be made with more chances of success from some point eastward of the mouth of the Mackenzie River than from the shores of Greenland.

LUSITANIA A FOUR-DAY BOAT

New York, Sept. 2.—The Lusitania, by landing her passengers in New York at 7:30 tonight, accomplished the first four-day western passage of a trans-Atlantic liner.

Her time for Daunt's Rock to the Ambrose Channel lightship was 4 days, 11 hours and 42 minutes.

This new record clips more than three hours from the Lusitania's best performance heretofore.

The Lusitania maintained an average speed of 25.35 knots for the entire voyage, beating the Mauretania's record of 25.34.

The Lusitania and Mauretania have heretofore left Queenstown on Sunday, and reached the Ambrose Channel lightship too late on Thursday evening to allow them to dock before Friday morning.

Today for the first time one of them proved herself a "Thursday ship" in the vernacular of the seafarers on board, and there became a four-day boat.

The liner was favored by fair weather for almost the entire voyage.

SARNIA INQUEST OPENED

things, I am going to lie down for awhile." Hendrie then proceeded through the billiard room to the bedroom.

"Have an Eye on Jim."

Before doing so he said to Kinsey: "Have an eye on Jim," meaning Jim McVette, the porter, who had been in company with Hendrie and Alfred Donnelly during most of the afternoon.

A minute or so after Hendrie left the barroom Kinsey heard, as he supposed, a noise like someone falling, and hastened to the room where Hendrie had gone. He found Hendrie lying between the bed and wall with blood streaming from his throat, and the man Donnelly lying on the bed.

Donnelly was awakened, and Hendrie placed on the bed, pending the arrival of a physician. Both Hendrie and Donnelly were the worse of liquor, the former the more so of the two.

Alfred Donnelly's evidence brought out the fact that he and Hendrie had spent the afternoon together drinking, and that towards evening he (Donnelly) had limbed too freely, and had lain down in the bedroom to sleep.

He said that anything that was wrong when Kinsey awakened him and told him that "Bill" (meaning Hendrie) had cut his throat. The only remark Donnelly heard Hendrie make was, "I'm a gone dog."

Charles LePointe, a young man employed as waiter at the Lake Huron Hotel, who heard what he thought was a man falling, Kinsey, the bartender, ran through the billiard room to the bedroom, where Hendrie had gone, and almost immediately returned saying, "Get a light, I think old Bill's cut his throat." When LePointe went into the bedroom with the light he saw Hendrie on the bed with blood streaming from the wound in his throat.

Hendrie said, "It's just a little cut." According to LePointe's evidence Donnelly was still asleep on the bed at the time, but was later roused up and left the room.

Walter Sanderson, market gardener, who lives at Wees Beach, was one of the men summoned to the hotel by Charles Kinsey. When Sanderson got there, he found Hendrie's daughter was there, and her father was lying on the floor. About this time, according to Sanderson's evidence, Mr. Donnelly entered the room and spoke to Hendrie, who replied, "They may think they can kill an Irishman, but they can't."

Kinsey came into the room and remarked that Hendrie had cut himself by falling on the bedpost. Hendrie spoke up and said, "Yes, that's so, a minute or so later, addressing Donnelly, Hendrie said: 'I'll soon be over. I'll be back at it again.' He was asked if he was hurt and replied, 'Yes, I'm hurt very bad.' While the doctor was dressing the wound, Hendrie said, 'This is no case of suicide.'"

At the conclusion of his evidence, Sanderson said when I saw Hendrie, I concluded that it was a case of murder.

The last remark that Sanderson heard Hendrie make was: "Never mind, I'll never squeal, I'll die game."

Dr. Wilkinson, who first attended Hendrie, said he found a cut in Hendrie's neck about an inch and a half deep, which must have been made with a sharp instrument. The artery was not severed, neither was the jugular vein. His opinion was that death was caused by a clot of blood getting into one of the veins.

Dr. Wilkinson stated that in his opinion it would not be possible for such a wound to be made by falling on a bedpost. He did not hold any conversation with Hendrie, as he was not in a fit state on account of over-indulgence in liquor. Hendrie's talk was a jumble of swearing and irrelevant remarks, said the doctor. I did hear him say, "I did not try to commit suicide."

Dr. Henderson, who also attended Hendrie, was of the opinion that it would be utterly impossible for a man to be injured as Hendrie was by falling on a bedpost.

Dr. Henderson, proprietor of the hotel property, testified that in his dealings with Hendrie he knew of no reason why he should commit suicide.

"The only trouble he had was family trouble, owing to his drinking habits. When I saw him Monday evening he was considerably under the influence of liquor," Dr. Henderson said.

James McVette, the porter, was seen with Hendrie during Monday, but there was no ill-will between the two men, said Wees, in conclusion.

Owing to the lateness of the hour, and to the fact that a number of witnesses are yet to be examined, the inquest was adjourned until Thursday, Sept. 9. In the meantime the police will endeavor to secure the attendance of the man McVette, who is now said to be in Detroit.

GOLD FOR MR. HAMILTON

brance, but Mr. Hamilton has chosen a better way, and what he has done for this city will stand as a remembrance of him. We will not let him here, and I am sure Creelman will be a better and a cleaner place because of his presence."

Losing a Brother.
"In parting with Mr. Hamilton," remarked Mr. Gerry, "I feel as though I were losing a brother. We have been together in college life, and in many other phases of life, and he will be missed. I grieve for his loss. I think that no man is better fitted for the great work in the west than he. He is a staunch and earnest opponent of the liquor traffic, in a land where they need such views, and I believe in 1912 Manitoba will be a prohibition province, and the remainder of the west will not be long behind, and Mr. Hamilton will have a hand in the work."

"He is fitted for the educational work by his training here. And his tenure as missionary secretary will have given him experience that will help in solving the great missionary problems of the west."

Mr. John M. Gunn spoke of the sense of deep personal loss he felt in the going away of Mr. Hamilton.

"While he had been a minister of a church," said Mr. Gunn, "he has not forgotten that he is also a man and a citizen, and he has made his influence felt widely in this city. While we regret our loss in his departure, I believe he has chosen wisely in going to a land that is yet young and easily molded, and where he can swing things into line, and I know that the friendships he has made here will follow him to the end of his days."

A Warm Tribute.
Mr. D. A. McDermid remarked that Mr. Hamilton had made a deeper impression on the life of the city than any minister he had known in the past 25 years, and that if he had made them in the campaign against the liquor traffic, would all acknowledge that he fought fair."

"I have always found him," said Rev. George McKenzie, "an amiable, kindly, considerate man, and a Christian gentleman."

Mr. St. Andrew's, added his word of appreciation also.

"One would naturally expect the chairman of the Temperance League to be a dedicated man, and I believe Mr. Hamilton has never shaken his fist under a man's nose, and told him to smell that, save only once, and that was when he was aggressive of any cause is such a lovable character, and we regret that he is leaving London for a better man than you are losing. This gathering in itself is a testimony to the good he has done, and I can wish for him a larger measure of success and love and respect than he has had among his ministerial brethren in this city."

A Good Pastor.
"I have known ten pastors in this church," said Mr. McKim, "who spoke on behalf of the board of deacons, and I can say that we have never had one who worked more faithfully or with a greater zeal than Mr. Hamilton, or one who went from us with a more tender feeling of regard. The west is calling for our best men, and we are sending as we feel, the best we have."

When Mr. Hamilton came to the church there was a debt of $12,000 on it. Now there is only a debt of $600 remaining, and this result has been very largely achieved through Mr. Hamilton's zeal in leading us."

"He gave himself to the church," said the Rev. Mr. Clark, "and God always prospers a man who gives himself to his work. And he is going forth to help to answer his own prayers for the salvation of the west."

At this juncture Mr. Wrighton read a very complimentary and appreciative address, and Miss Porteous presented Mr. Hamilton with the purse.

Masters L. Walker and W. Wrighton making the presentation on behalf of the Boys' Guild.

Mr. Hamilton's Reply.
In replying, Mr. Hamilton very modestly placed the credit for the greater part of these advances that had been achieved during his ministry on the shoulders of others—the congregation and the friends of other churches.

"I am a strong believer in church union," he said, "because I saw the way other churches rallied to our aid when we were trying by our jubilee effort to wipe off the debt of our church, and I must acknowledge the debt that we as a church owe to the newspapers of this city for their kind interest and assistance at that time."

"I am not going to speak sorrowful words tonight, for our bonds of friendship do not sever with night, and from among you, I could not have worked with a more helpful or congenial band of fellow-workers than I have had here, and I only for the fact that I may be able to measure up to the standard that my friends here have set for me tonight. I thank the members of the church for their gift, and the boys of the guild, who have helped to keep me young. And we have had many pleasant hours together, which I will not easily forget."

During the evening Miss Lou Dickson and Miss Evelyn Wrighton rendered solos, and Miss Anstie gave a reading, all of which numbers were greatly appreciated.

The evening closed with a social hour, at which the members of the congregation and friends had the opportunity of a more personal word with their retiring pastor.

part of the house and the back that had been nailed up. He had been asleep and dreaming, and when he awoke he saw the smoke and the fire through the opening in the door.

"He said I had been over Mr. Campbell's the evening before and had come home between 9 and 10 o'clock."

"I asked him if there had been any fire in the stove and he said no. 'I asked him if there were any matches in the house, and he said there was a box in the pantry and another box upstairs.'"

Where It Started.
"I asked him where the fire started, and he said in the southwest corner of the front part of the house. That would be where the pantry was."

"We looked at the stuff lying outside, and the accused said that he had shipped a trunk with some bedding, and that the board would take steps to trace the fire out."

"He said some things about the fire, that it looked rather bad. He took a book out of his pocket and said he thought he had about $200 of contents burned. I told him that I had always used him as a gentleman, but I trace the fire out."

The Cross-Examination.
"You had the information," asked Mr. Judd, in cross-examination, A—Yes.

Q—And you know that in it you swore Tinks had set the fire to the house. Did you know that he did it? A—No, I didn't see him do it.

Q—Where did you go when you went to Tinks' house? A—To the kitchen.

Q—You could have examined all the goods if you had wished to? A—Yes.

Q—Was there any reason why you did not? A—No, I was the real value of these goods? A—No, sir. When I said the insurance was too high, he said he had been insured in the Maple Leaf Company for the same amount, and he had more furniture now. I told him if he insured too high he would only get two-thirds of what was burnt, and it was foolish for him to pay more premium than was necessary.

Nothing Suspicious.
Q—Did you think his wanting a heavy insurance was suspicious? A—No.

Q—Do you now? A—It looks suspicious.

Q—Do you think it is suspicious to be a delinquent in paying the insurance? A—No; but others do.

Q—Did you ask him over the telephone if his organ was burnt? A—Yes.

Q—He was the first one to mention that the organ and a box of bedding had been taken away, wasn't he? A—Yes.

Mr. Lawson then continued: "I said, I thought the insurance was a little high when I laid it before the board, but they passed it with little difficulty."

Q—There was no resolution of the board on the matter of suspicions over the fire? A—No, sir.

Q—Then the proceedings to see whether the man is a freeman or not are being held? A—Yes.

Q—Why? A—I thought it was suspicious.

Q—And you have done all the investigating? A—Yes.

Q—No one has assisted you? A—No.

Peter Campbell Testifies.
Peter Campbell, of the township of Westminster, who lives about 30 rods east of the house that was burnt, was the next witness.

"I had been at Mr. Tinks' house the night before the fire, and he wanted to sell me the furniture, $150 was the price he offered, I told him I wouldn't buy about a buggy spread he said he had sent it and the organ down to his wife, as they were hers."

"On Tuesday morning during the night, I was awakened by somebody calling. I got up and saw that Tinks' house was on fire and went there as quickly as possible."

"My brother, William Campbell, and I went into the kitchen to remove some of the furniture. There was no fire there. While we were in the kitchen the fire broke out, and after that from the spare bedroom at the northeast part of the house."

Suspected Someone.
"I was speaking to Tinks, and I asked him if he suspected anyone, and he said he did—that there was a neighbor who was mean enough for anything. He didn't mention any names."

Q—Did Tinks tell you how he had got out of the house? A—He didn't mention it. The only fire to be seen outside was the fire breaking through the roof in the northwest corner."

Neil Campbell.
Neil Campbell, the father of the last witness, was next called. He had gone over to the fire shortly after his couple of holidays. He said for a northwest corner of the roof when he arrived, and it was the only place flames were visible."

Kennel Munro.
Kennel Munro then gave evidence. "Tinks worked for me," he said, "from the 10th of April last and until the 15th of August. He said for a couple of holidays, commencing on Aug. 13. He said he was going home to see his wife."

"He returned on Monday, the 16th, and told me he had had a good time with his wife. I said, 'I thought you were going home.' He said, 'No, I was short of money.'"

"I came time to my room the morning after the fire and told me he had been burnt out the night before."

"I asked him if there had been a fire in the stove that night. He said no. I asked him how he got out. He replied that he made such an alarm that the Campbell's came out and helped him out of the window. The next day he came to me and said he was advised to get out, and that he was going home, and that he had been told by the board that he would be arrested if he didn't get out. He said he was going to get out, and that he was going to get out, and that he was going to get out."

The Cross-Examination.
"Who has been to see you about this, Lawson?" asked Mr. Meredith, who conducted the cross-examination. "Yes, I saw Lawson, as I was asked by Tinks to do."

Q—Tinks told you he had heard he was going to be arrested? A—Yes.

Q—Who told him to get out? Did he tell you? A—Yes; Billy Campbell.

Q—He didn't tell you that these insurance men were threatening to arrest him? A—He said, "They are after me."

Q—Did he say the detectives or the doctors—or are the latter detectives, too?

The witness said that Tinks did not say who were after him.

The Next Witness.
The man who transferred Tinks' goods from the house to London was the next witness. He told of Tinks wishing him to come out to transfer his goods late Friday night.

"I testified him to go in the daytime and told him it would cost him more to go at night, but Tinks told me he couldn't be there till about 9 o'clock," said the witness.

"I drove out to one of the concession roads and then east to the next sidewalk south to the next concession road, and then west to the Wellington road to the house where he wanted to go."

"At or near the corner, where we turned west, he left with me for a few minutes and said something about getting his mail. It looked like a blacksmith shop to me."

"When we got to the house he lit a lamp and we took out two trunks, an organ and two mattresses, and came home by the Wellington road. I kept the goods in my yard and the next morning took
