BULFORD—BARNES

In Christ's Church, Athens on May 14, 1912, Mr. Stanley R. Bulford and Miss Jessie G. Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Barnes, were united in marriage by the pastor, Rev. W. G. Swaine.

Both the contracting parties are well known and highly esteemed in this district, and the Reporter joins with their many friends in extending congratulations and best wishes.

DEATH OF CHARLES J. SLACK

The death occurred at his late residence, Wiltse St., on Sunday, May 12th, 1912, of Charles John Slack, aged 56 years, 3 months, and 16 days. Deceased was ill only a week, being a victim of pleuro-pneumonia. Everything that medical skill and tender nursing was done for him, but to no avail, and the end came peacefully, fortified by the sacred rites of the Roman Catholic Church, of which he was a member, and surrounded by his family and friends. The Rev. Father Cullinane was by his bedside in the last moments.

He leaves to mourn the loss of a loving husband and kind father three children—Benjamin and Lindsay at home and Mrs. M. J. Kavanagh of Charleston. In politics he was a staunch Liberal.

The late Charles Slack was born near Charleston, on the farm now owned by John Foster, and afterward moved to the place he vacated last June to come to live in Athens.

From his birthplace he went with his parents to Long Point where he lived till in December, 1882, when he married Miss Sarah A. Plunkett, daughter of the late William Plunkett of Boissevain, Manitoba, formerly of Long Point.

Deceased made many warm friends since coming to Athens last June. He had also a host of friends throughout the country and every place he was known. Being of a jovial disposition and fond of music, many a one can recall pleasant moments spent under his roof in social intercourse and music, but a gloom is now cast over that happy household which only time can raise.

All day on Sunday crowds of people visited the house of mourning and offered sympathy to the bereaved ones. The deepest sympathy of all goes out to the heart-broken widow and children. May his soul rest in peace.

The funeral service was conducted on Tuesday morning in the Church of St. Denis, Athens, by the parish priest, Rev. Father Cullinane of Trevelyan. The church could not contain the large number from village and country who assembled to pay the last tribute of respect to their deceased friend. During his discourse the priest made feeling reference to the worth of deceased. Interment was made at the Trevelyan cemetery.

LOVE FULFILLS LAW

(Golden Text, May 19.—Rom. 13: 8.)

If God's law thou wouldst fulfil,
Love thy Heavenly Father true;
Seek to do His righteous will;
Render Him all service due.

Love the Son who for thee died,
Nailed to Calvary's cruel cross;
Let His name be glorified;
Win Him, all else counting loss.

Love the Holy Spirit too,
Sent within thy heart to dwell;
To the triune God be true.
True to mortal man, as well.

As thyself thy neighbor love,
And thy love by service prove;
Then to realms of bliss above
After death thou shalt remove.

I. O. O. F AT CHURCH

On Sunday afternoon members of the local lodge of I. O. O. F. attended service in St. Paul's Presbyterian church, where they were addressed by the pastor, Rev. W. H. Montgomery, on the subject of brotherly love.

In his discourse, the pastor gave an interesting review of the inception and growth of the principle of brotherly love, from remote ages to the present time, and pointed out that Peter's injunction to add to other virtues brotherly kindness was being obeyed to-day as never before. It is to the recognition of this virtue that we owe our hospitals, asylums and other charities as well as the existence of the scores of fraternal and benevolent societies, which make brotherly kindness the cardinal feature of their organizations.

An excellent song service was rendered by the choir, which included a solo by Mr. Thomas Drinnan that was very favorably appreciated.

On returning to the lodge room, brief addresses were delivered by local and visiting brethren and a cordial vote of thanks was passed to the pastor and choir of the church.

An Appreciation

At the last meeting of the Official Board of the Athens circuit of the Methodist church the following resolution was unanimously passed and presented to Rev. F. A. Read, who is closing his ministry in Athens after a most successful four years term:—

"That this Quarterly Official Board desires to record its appreciation of the faithful and efficient services of their pastor, Rev. F. A. Read, during the four years of his pastorate, and of the helpful influence exerted by his estimable wife. The beauty of the unselfishness of your lives has been an inspiration to us. Your wisdom and efficiency, manifested in all the departments of the church's work, have been a source of help and gratification to all.

"We regret that the voice of the Church requires the severance of the harmonious ties of affection that have bound us together as pastor and people."

What to do for POISON

"ACID."
(By a Physician.)
Carbolic acid is a deadly corrosive poison. It produces vomiting and intense abdominal pain and is very quick in its action. The victim of this poison may be recognized instantly by the color of the lips, which are burned either white or black, according to whether the acid is pure or not, and by the familiar odor of the poison.

SOME DON'TS.
The Rev. Dr. A. Marion Hyde, of Brockton, Mass., has issued ten "don'ts" for young men, as follows:
Don't speak of an old gentleman as an old woman. Fathers and mothers are a necessary evil in the present system of things. They have spoken respectfully of you when outsiders could not see anything on which they could hang a compliment.
Don't give all your attention to your education in sport. It is not sufficient training for life.
Don't invest your $3. in a glass of beer and then criticize the other fellow who invested his in the savings bank.
Don't expend the money of your tailor or your laundress in theatre tickets. The tailor or the laundress may prefer to spend their earnings in some other way.
Don't measure your job entirely by the size of the pay envelope or the length of the vacation. Highway robbery is an ideal vocation measured in these ways.
Don't try to "get rich quick." Smart men who have tried it, and lost all they had.
Don't defile your tongue with profane and vulgar speech, revealing your ignorance and showing the coarseness of your soul.
Don't think you have sounded all the ocean of truth when you have let out all your little line in the crean on whose shore Newton gathered only a few pebbles. It can never be all in your little tin can.

THE LADY'S YES.
"Yes!" I answered you last night;
"No!" this morning, sir, I say.
Colors seen by candle light
Will not look the same by day.
When the labors played their best,
Lamps above, and laughs below,
Love me sounded like a jest,
Fit for Yes, or fit for No!
Call me false; or call me free;
Vow, whatever light may shine,
No man on thy face shall see
Any grief for change on mine.
Yet the sin is on us both:
Time to dance is not to woo;
Woeer light makes fickle troth,
Scorn me recalls on you.

THE ASSES.
(Vancouver Saturday Sunset.)
An Irishman, with a very thick head of hair was one day in the centre of a few Englishmen, who endeavored to crack jokes at his expense.
"Why," exclaimed one of them, "your head of hair is like a stack of hay."
"Well," returned Pat, "that's just what I myself was thinking when I saw as many asses round."

NOT FLATTERING.
Dubleigh—Somebody told me to-day that I was handsome.
Miss Keen—When was that?
Dubleigh—To-day.
Miss Keen—No, I mean when were you handsome?

UNLUCKY NUMBER.

The Visitor—Indeed; how's that?

WISE ABOUT OWLS.

Jerseyman Says They Can See Pretty Well in the Daytime.

"I have studied the nature and habits of owls for a long time and think I have it down to a fine point," writes a Jersey correspondent of Fur News. "Of what I have read and heard about them I find there is quite a number of great mistakes and about the greatest one is that they can't see in the daytime."
"I once read a sermon in it was preached by Dr. Talmage. His text was 'He that formed the eye, shall he not see?' (Isaiah 45: 18). In the course of the sermon he said the eye of the owl is billed in the daytime, and I wondered at the remark very much, as the doctor was raised on a farm and was always talking and preaching about birds.
"Now some owls may see better than others, but they all can see well enough. I have often found it very difficult to get within gunshot of the great horned owl in open sunshine. And another mistake is that the unearthly noises in the woods and swamps are laid to the great horned owl.
"It is not made by him at all. It is made by the barred owl. He has two named ones of both kinds and have stood by and seen them hunt. I used to practice making these noises and I got it so perfect that I could fool the owl, and when they found out their mistake you would laugh to see them take to flight.
"If owls are taken from the nest when quite young they become very tame and can have their liberty, except the great horned owl, and he will put his claws in a duck's or chicken's back and to get them loose you have to nearly smother it to death.
"We have about six or eight species of owls that fly with us the year around and breed here. The great horned owl makes a nest of sticks, lays two eggs, white and only a little oval. They hatch their eggs in February. The barred, mottled and barn or monkey face owls all nest in holes. The great horned owl is the only one that does any harm to the poultry.
"The most common is the little mottled or screech owl, and it catches a great many birds. I saw one that had had four or five young, one of them was a mouse and seven birds. The birds were swallows and warblers. Now that is the question, whether they do more harm catching those birds than they do good in catching mice.
"I once knew two young fellows that had a large piece offered them for owl gizzards. But when they found out that owl gizzards they were completely sold. Although the owl is a gizzard, it has a machine inside that separates all the bones and fur and feathers from the meat and it is thrown out of their mouths and nothing is digested by them but soft substances. I have had many tame owls and have seen them and seen them work that wonderful machine often.
"If you take a mouse or a piece of meat and pitch it to a tame owl it will catch it on the fly and in broad day that owl will prove whether they can see in the daytime.
"I read in the Fur News where a boy shot an owl and sent a letter to his father asking him if they were good to eat. Now if he had asked me I should have told him they were fine. I once knew a German that had a taxidermy shop in Newark, N. J., and was doing quite a business, and at one time had two or three carcasses of large cat owl in his shop.
"Some of his neighbors happened in and he said, 'Would you like some nice fat ducks?' They said yes, and the next time he saw them after that they said, 'Oh, Danz, those ducks was the best ducks that we ever in our life did eat.'
"My daughter Emma once broiled a large fat owl for me. She ate a little of it and I finished the rest of it and it certainly was O. K. Now if you don't believe it, try one and then you will know it, yourself.
"The eye-balls of the owl are stationary in the skull and don't move about like other birds' and animals' and I think that is the cause of their bobbing their heads in all directions."

COINS AND MEDALS MOULDED IN THE MINT.
The mint does not buy old coins nor paper money, except certain rare Colonial coins in fine condition, desired for the mint's cabinet. Mutilated or unrecalled United States gold and silver coins are purchased as bullion. The mint has no pattern pieces for sale, and the government pays no premium for the return of its coins or paper money.
New coins cannot be struck in this country in the absence of authorization by Congress. The mint supplies United States coins only and not of any other date. The $50 gold piece and the half-dollar and quarter-dollar pieces in gold were struck by private parties on the Pacific Coast during the '60 period, and not by the Federal Government.
The coins of the following countries ceased in the year named: The half-cent, copper, in 1857; one cent, nickel, 1864; half-dime and three-cent silver, and two cent, bronze, in 1873; twenty-cent, silver, 1853; trade dollars, 1853; one dollar and three dollar, gold, and three-cent, nickel, 1859. The Columbian half-dollar was coined in 1892, and the Isabella quarter in 1893. The Lafayette dollar was struck in 1890, the date on the coin (1870) being that of the unveiling of the memorial.
Certain markings indicating the place of coinage are to be seen on our coins. Those struck at the Philadelphia mint have no mint mark, but those struck at all other mints are distinguished by a small letter on the reverse, near the bottom. These letters are: "C" for Charlotte, N. C., discontinued in 1861; "C" for Carson City, Nev., discontinued in 1878; "D" for Dahlonega, Ga., discontinued in 1861; "O" for New Orleans, and "S" for San Francisco, Cal.
The coins of the United States now authorized by law are: In gold, double eagle, eagle, half-eagle, quarter-eagle; in silver, half-dollar, quarter-dollar, dime, minor, five cent nickel, and one cent bronze.
Proof sets of both gold and silver coins are to be had by purchase from the mint. When business there is slack medals may be struck from dies furnished by individuals, public institutions and incorporated societies, at a charge sufficient to cover the cost of the operation and the value of the metal.—From the Scientific American.

MINARD'S LINIMENT used by Physicians
A little boy who was looking at a new brick house the other day told his father that they had forgotten to fasten the windows down, as there was no mortar under any of them.
The reason that the windowsills in a brick house are left without any mortar under them is to prevent them from being broken in two at the middle. As all houses settle a little after they are first built the mortar at the side of the windows would press the ends of the windowsills down, and if the middle was held up by bricks and mortar the sill would break in two.
It is sometimes a very difficult thing to avoid this tendency of the settling to crack stone sills or plinths some time after the building is finished. If you ever go to the Library of Congress at Washington and look at the plinths under the beautiful Corinthian columns of white marble in the main entrance hall you will see that most of them have been cracked in that way, and it was impossible to take them out and put in plinth and base in one piece without taking down the whole building.

Woman's Death Not Publicly Mourned.
No matter what the social status of a Palestine woman may be in strict obedience to the honored Oriental rules, her decease is not publicly lamented nor is any particular way by any manifest of bereavement on her account.
When, on the other hand, a prominent male member of a clan or family in the smaller towns or country villages of Palestine departs this life there is then much ado by way of ceremonial and ritual performed in order to express in due form a correct idea of the loss sustained to the whole countryside. On such occasions "days of lamentation" extending from seven to forty days, according to the importance of popularity of the deceased, are observed, during each of which one or more sheep are slaughtered "in atonement for his soul," and a feast spread before the assembled mourners.—From the London Graphic.

JANE AUSTEN AT BATH.
Bath, where it has been decided to erect a pedestal in memory of Jane Austen, was the home of the novelist from 1801 to 1803. Her father, whose health had broken down, removed thither from Steventon, leaving his son James in charge of the rectory as locum tenens. The daughters did not seem to have been consulted with regard to this change of plans. Miss Constance Hill, in her book, "Jane Austen, Her Homes and Her Friends," says that, "coming one day from a walk, as they entered the room their mother greeted them with the intelligence 'Well, girls, it is all settled. We have decided to leave Steventon and go to Bath.' To Jane, who had never been from home and who had not heard much about the matter, it was such a shock that she fainted away." Although both "Northanger Abbey" and "Persuasion" deal very largely with Bath, neither of them was written in that city.—Westminster Gazette.

TAILORS' THIMBLES.
If you have ever noticed a tailor's thimble you must have observed that it is not like the one your mother or your sisters use, because it has no top. As there is a reason for everything, there is a reason for this.
The stuff your mother sews on is usually very light and the needle is easily pushed through by pressing the top of the thimble against the needle. But tailors often have to sew very coarse and heavy material and they cannot get enough pressure on the top of the thimble, so they use the side and therefore they have no use for a top.

A PERSONAL AFFRONT.
Striking members of the Amalgamated Shirt Stitchers were holding a conference. "Where is that tall thin girl who joined the union last week?" inquired the delegate. The secretary arose to reply. "She handed in her resignation this morning, and to defer the prosecuting of the unfortunate victim until the doctors have had a chance to say whether he or she was responsible?"

WHEN IS A MAN OLD?

Sixty-four Per Cent. of History's Big Men Over 50.

Is man at his best between 60 and 70? A hundred men, the foremost of the race, as shown by their achievements, were selected. The utmost scrutiny was exercised by the judges, and the list winnowed down to the hundred grains. All big grains.
The great battle, picture, book, statecraft or whatever each one's line of production, was then traced to the decade in the actor's life. The astounding figures are that the ten years between 60 and 70 produced 35 per cent. of the world's greatest achievements by its greatest men. Between 50 and 60 are found 25 per cent. of the master deeds. Between 40 and 50 appears almost as fruitful, being 23 per cent. of great acts.
If we are to believe Dr. William A. N. Rowland, the compiler of these statistics, 64 per cent. of the most remarkable things done by the 100 of the most remarkable men in all history were the product of their lives after they were 50 years old. "The Age of Mental Vitality" is a book of interest. This is cheerful reading. We are all looking forward to at least a year. That our best results in life are made after we are 50. There are two or three in the list of the best of our species. These were superior human animals, their superiority shown through their being intellectual, physical, mental, spiritual. The ordinary human animal may doubt his part in such a list. None of the great number of such dry goods clerks, railroad conductors, housewives, or any other of the type of plain everyday toilers, such as we are. In other words, the greatest are in a class by themselves.—New York Mail.

MINISTERS' SALARIES.
(Montreal Witness.)
There is no religious tenet that has taken so strong a hold of the popular mind of to-day as that the clergy should be unworriedly and should live altogether above and beyond any consideration for this world's comfort. The idea that a minister should get a good salary is accepted by many popular declaimers as a sufficient condemnation of all religion. It is, according to the advocates of plain living, such a thing as to be his life one of anxious, and if grace is not abundant, narrowing penury, with abundant remuneration often than a hardship, and that often obtained under almost humiliating circumstances. Such are their conditions that they are expected to take advantage of and to plead for special privileges of cheap tickets and discounts, some of them embarrassing to respect. Those who think such conditions ideal for the clergy might perhaps ask themselves whether the minister's own life is more than they do, or whether what is so good for the minister's soul might not benefit themselves.

MYSTIFIED.
(Montreal Herald.)
A number of Englishmen, who were bound for New York, met together on board a Cunarder.
When in mid-ocean, Smith gave a supper, at which champagne abounded, and was partaken of freely by all, particularly the steward.
The next morning one of the party was on deck rather early, when a steward approached him.
"Good morning, sir, but Mr. Smith would like to see you. He is still in his state-room."
The other hastened down, and found Smith with a wet towel round his head.
"Hello, old chap, how are you?" he asked him.
"Oh, I am all right," was the reply. "I wasn't very well, you know, though I did have a good share of the fizz. I remember everything that happened, but there's one thing that puzzles me. I know I stood the supper, but, I say, old chap, who the dickens paid for the cab?"

A STRANGE FIGURE OF SPEECH.

One of the Titanic survivors—a saloon steward—was close to the steamer when she went down, and in searching for a simile to give an idea of what he heard at that last dreadful moment, he found a most curious one, and one that at first thought gives the mind a painful shock. The mingled cries, he said, sounded like the barking of dogs in a kennel at feeding time! A sensitive person, even though he had noticed such a resemblance, would not have mentioned it to others, and yet, now that it has been mentioned, one can hardly deny the probability of its marvelous accuracy. Almost certainly these last cries were quite inarticulate, as uttered despair always is, and for a moment they rose and fell, a lugubrious ululation. The very bravest may have been silent, but such self-control is almost superhuman, and for its absence there is no reproach.—New York Times.

PATIENT LOST.
(Montreal Gazette.)
A New Jersey court rendered a verdict against a patient who sued a doctor for $25,000 damages because he left a pair of forceps in the interior of the subject after an operation. There was no doubt as to the ownership of the forceps, as the patient had been operated on before by another surgeon. But perhaps the court was of the opinion that a fair exchange is no robbery. A good surgical instrument is worth as much as a damaged appendix.

THE VERDICT.
Mrs. Hamilton Fish Webster at a luncheon in Newport said of a young girl who had just returned from Paris: "She studied, you know, under the Reske. They tell a story about her. 'One afternoon in the presence of the whole class she sang an aria of Puccini's. All the while she was singing the maestro walked up and down muttering 'Mon Dieu! Peste!' and such like expressions. When she finished everybody looked at him expectantly, anxious to hear the final verdict. 'M. de Reske strode up to the girl, laid his hand on her shoulder in a gentle, fatherly way, and delivered his verdict in a murmur: 'A ma chere; 'marmouste,' he said, 'marry soon. Good bye.'—Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin.

The boy received 80 cents. A lousy one cent for every ten flies.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

DROPPED THE WOMEN INTO THE LIFEBOATS

More Testimony as to the Opening of the Watertight Compartments.

To Cross-Examine Witness as to Sir Comas Duff-Gordon.

London, cable. The Board of Trade inquiry into the Titanic disaster was resumed today under the presidency of Lord Mersey.

So important did the White Star Company consider the evidence of Charles Hendrickson, one of the firemen of the Titanic, who testified yesterday that the descent of which he was one of the crew had not returned to the scene of the disaster because Sir Comas and Lady Duff-Gordon objected that it would be dangerous to do so, that the company's attorney, on the reopening of the inquiry this morning, requested that the cross-examination of the witness be postponed. The attorney desired time to consult with the surviving officers of the Titanic. These are arriving in England on board the Adriatic, on which vessel J. Bruce Ismay is also a passenger.

The request was granted by the court and Lord Mersey also asked that the tribunal be supplied with a list of the lifeboats and with the number of passengers on board of them, showing as far as possible the proportion of the different classes of passengers and of the crew.

Other members of the crew were called today and closely examined as to how they left the Titanic, the number of passengers in their boats and whether they returned to the scene of the disaster to try and rescue some of those in a straits.

A steward testified that he had actually to push women into the boats. No account he said, was taken of the class to which they belonged.

His evidence is considered important, as he is in lifeboat No. 14, from which all the passengers were transferred to other boats, while No. 14 returned to where the Titanic was wrecked.

He said that although the boat's crew were about throughout the night they found only three people alive. He admitted in cross-examination, however, that some of those in the water might have been alive, but were unconscious and they only went to those who were crying for help.

The attorney representing the White Star Line questioned the witness regarding the foreign staff in the restaurant of the Titanic. His object, he explained, was that as those men did not understand orders given in English, he desired to show that they were a source of danger. No evidence, however, was given to show that any action of these men was contrary to discipline.

Consideration was given today of the evidence of Thomas Dillon, the engineer's staff, that the watertight doors were opened by order of the engineer.

For Scott, who was on duty in the third engine room on the night of the disaster, said that at a quarter to one he was ordered to open the watertight doors from the engine room through to the steam compartment, so as to enable the engineers to get at the pumps. At first he opened the doors only about a foot, then the engineer, having first telephoned to the bridge, they threw the doors wide open.

Lady Mersey remarked: "This taken in conjunction with Thomas Dillon's evidence would show that the doors were opened by the opening of the White Star Co. intended, saying that evidence would be called to show that when the water reached a certain height the watertight doors would close automatically."

Scott was testified as to the orders given in the engine room. The first order was "stop." A quarter of two the doors were closed. Then followed "open again" and "again stop."

According to Scott, it had been the duty ascertained that the lights reported to have been seen by some of the lifeboats on the Titanic were those of the Titanic.

He testified that the women were given life belts by a third class steward. There were no passengers as far as he could see in the third class, except about that time, which was about half past one in the morning.

"It was only a matter of keeping your head," said the witness.

Before the ship went down Joughan said that he took a half tumbler full of liquor.

DUFF GORDON

Objected to Them Trying to Save Those in Water.

The escape of Sir Comas and Lady Duff-Gordon from the Titanic in lifeboat No. 1, which was less than half-filled, was enquired into scathingly.

Charles Hendrickson, a fireman of the Titanic, and one of the crew in the boat, on being asked why he did not return to the scene of the disaster to try and rescue some of those in the water who were crying for help, said that he suggested that the boat should return, but Sir Comas objected, on the grounds that it would be dangerous. Lady Duff-Gordon had agreed with her husband and the boat did not return.

Lord Mersey asked the witness: "You do not object to the fact that because two passengers objected the rest of you kept your mouths shut and did not go to the rescue?" Hendrickson replied: "That's right."

Witness said that Sir Comas Duff-Gordon gave each member of the crew of the boat £5 (£25), but he insisted that no arrangement to that effect had been made, and the first he heard of a reward was after the lifeboat reached the Caranthis.

Hendrickson had previously testified that his boat, which could hold 24 persons, contained only 12, made up of seven members of the crew and two women and three men passengers. One of the women, witness said, was Lady Duff-Gordon, but he did not know who the other was. He was asked if it was Mrs. Astor, but his reply was that he did not know.

The objection of Sir Comas Duff-Gordon to going back to the scene of the Titanic's sinking was that it would be dangerous, as the boat might be swamped. Hendrickson agreed with Sir Comas that it would be dangerous, but said that they might have been saved, as with so many men in the boat they should have been able to keep those in the water from swamping her.

Witness added that with proper organization it would have been possible to load all the boats to their full capacity. At the request of the attorney for the White Star Line, Hendrickson will be called to the stand tomorrow for cross-examination. Other witnesses identified today that their boats did not return to the immediate vicinity of the wreck because their passengers feared the boats would be swamped.

Victim, Alta., May 12.—In saving the life of W. Kickpatrick, a neighbor who had fallen into a 42 foot well, in which there was considerable gas, Frank Dayton, a young farmer, who came here from Eastern Minnesota, a year ago, plunged to his death before the eyes of his young wife. Dayton went to the bottom of the well to rescue Kickpatrick, and Mrs. Dayton pulled the latter up to safety.

U. S. METHODISTS

Ask Amusement Discipline Paragraph Amended.

And Women Want to be Ordained to Preach.

Minneapolis, Minn., May 12.—Scores of memorials are pouring into the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in session here, and probably before the final adjournment, will appear before the conference for final action.

Far in the lead is that relating to the famous paragraph 280 of the church discipline, which prohibits dancing, card playing and kindred amusements. That this section will be amended at the present session to leave the question to the "conscience" of the individual is the desire of many of the delegates.

Another memorial which has appeared frequently in the church records is that changing the name of the "human district superintendent" back to that of "presiding elder." The latter was in use until the change was made at Baltimore four years ago, and it is claimed by many that the new name has not proved satisfactory.

There is a "suffragette movement" in the church, which has been introduced by the introduction of a resolution, which asks that women be licensed to preach. A number of years ago a rule was adopted forbidding the ordaining of a woman minister, but it is probable that the question again will be discussed at the present session.

Card of Thanks

Mrs. Charles J. Slack and family desire to thank their kind friends in Athens and vicinity for kindnesses shown during the illness and death of their husband and father.

The date of the regular meeting of the Women's Institute has been changed to Saturday May 18th, so as to include the annual meeting on that date. A full attendance is especially requested to make arrangements for the summer meeting, at which Mrs. Watts, lecturer for Leeds county, is to appear. Meeting at 3 o'clock sharp.

Dr. Beattie Nesbitt, former president of the Farmers Bank, was brought back to Toronto from Chicago this week on charges of fraud and is now on remand for a week. On furnishing bail to the amount of $15,000, he was allowed his liberty. Perhaps he will come up for trial next week, but what is $15,000 to such a financier as the Doctor!

On Sunday last four members of Delta lodge of I. O. O. F. lost faith in automobiling as a sure and certain means of reaching a given point on schedule time. They left the inter-laken village in Mr. A. Halladay's car and clipped off the miles in good style until they reached a point about three and a half miles from Athens where the car dropped in a rut and in turning out something happened. It looked like a broken axle and the boys abandoned the outfit and hiked along the pike for Athens. They proved to be good heel and toe artists and arrived here only a few minutes late. They returned in Mr. Percival's car.

Taking Precautions

An order-in-council has been passed prohibiting for three months the importation into Canada of any hay, straw, fodder, feed stuffs, or litter accompanying horses from continental Europe. The importation into Canada of cattle from Great Britain, Ireland and the Channel Islands on steamers carrying horses from the continent is also prohibited. Fear of glanders has led to these orders.

Too Many Veterans

The Militia department at Ottawa is being deluged with applications for hundred-dollar grants from men who say that they are veterans of the Fenian raids of 1866-70. Some hundreds of these applications are based upon a misconception of the conditions governing the grant. Others is said to be fraudulent. There are, it is estimated, less than ten thousand bona-fide veterans who saw active service 1869-70. There are already seventeen thousand applications and every day adds hundreds more.

At the British Board of Trade enquiry into the loss of the Titanic passengers are being elicited that the U. S. coast failed to uncover. One witness testified that there was a rush for one lifeboat and that she left the Titanic with only four or five women and three children, while sixty-one men got away in her. Another witness said that a lifeboat containing only a few passengers did not return because tilted a lady and gentleman thought it would be dangerous to do so. Comment is caused by the fact that a much larger percentage of lady passengers of the first-class was saved than of the second or third-class. Looks as if there were cowards on the sea as well as on the land, and that among British women social distinctions are observed to the verge of the grave.
