The Young Housewife

is anxious to get good results from her first efforts in baking. She is eager for the admiring comments of her husband and her visitors. She knows that her bread and pastry will be subjected to close criticism, and realizes that in her nervous anxiety she is likely to make mistakes, by using too much of this or too little of that. Then again, the flour she uses is apt to vary in quality from time to time, unless she uses which takes a heavy burden of responsibility off the young wife's shoulders. It is a scrupulously exact blend of Manitoba Spring wheat and Ontario Fall wheat, so balanced as to provide an unvarying uniformity of superlative quality.

"Beaver" Flour

"BEAVER FLOUR" contains all the gluten - the bone and muscle forming element-of the Manitoba wheat and the qualities of the Ontario wheat that make bread light and white, and cakes and pastry tasty and flaky.

"BEAVER FLOUR" saves the trouble of keeping one flour for bread and another for pastry. It is a bread flour and a pastry flour too. It is reliable at all times and under all conditions. It is also economical, for it makes more loaves to the barrel than any other flour-loaves that are as good to look upon as they are tasty and nutritious. For biscuits, pies and pastry, "BEAVER FLOUR" has no equal. Don't take our word for it. Try it, and be convinced.

The Evening Chit-Chat

To be able to give gracefully is a rather unusual talent. But to be able to receive gracefully is an infinitely rarer one. The childish prolonged squabbles ' hear so often in street cars over the payment of fares are an excellent example of the inability of many of us to accept a favor simply and gracefully. To protest and make much fuss and feathers about receiving a favor seems to be the popular idea of gratitude As a matter of fact it is extremely bad taste to protest a favor that you know in your heart you will accept in the end. Accept promptly and simply. Say "Thank you" in the prettiest and most gracious way that you know how, but with as little fuss and feathers about receiving a favor seems to be the popular idea of gratitude.

I had the pleasure of meeting the other day a well-known woman of whose brilliance and charm I had long heard, and the thing which impressed me about her, even more than her witty conversation and her beauty, was the perfect graciousness and simplicity with which she accepted it when another member of the party offered her a more comfortable chair.

There is, of course, such a thing as the self-worship which accepts all favors simply and unprotestingly just because it looks upon them as tribute

But I do not mean that kind of simplicity. I mean the kind that seems to say, "You wish to do me a kindness. I thank you. I will try to honor you by accepting it as gra ciously as you give it, and some day I shall hope to have my turn at being

The blessedness and happiness of giving is not a moral fiction. It is a live fact To balk it by an ungererous reception is selfishness therefore.

I once knew a girl who for many years received an unusually good salary as a stenographer and had been lavishly generous with her earnings, doing good in every direction, and enjoying to the full the blessedness of giving. Reverses came to her. Her health gave way and she had to give up her position and go back to her home in the country.

Some of her friends and office mater thinking it was a good opportunity to do by her as she had done by others, got together and made up a purse which they planned to give her on her departure. And she who had been indulging for years in the joy of giving refused to help others to do the same happi-

She indignantly refused the purse, saying that when she needed charity she would ask for it.

For, like many others, though pastmistress in the art of gracious giving, she did not know the A. B. C. of the art of receiving.

Just as it is far easier to look down upon anyone with dignity than to look un and still be dignified, so it is far easier to give with graciousness than to receive.

But as he who has the true dignity may maitain it, no matter how often the accident of height forces him to look up, so he who has the true graciousness may maintain it no matter how constantly the accident of position and possessions forces him to give rather than to receive.

Sydney Man Killed.

Sydney, July 16.-Frank Bezanson aged thirty-five, was instantly killed and three companions narrowly escaped meeting the same fate, in an auto accident near Cape Smoky, Ingonish, about eight o'clock last night. Mr. Bezanson, with Dr. Bruce, Sanford Shaver and Walter Hall, left Sydney on the steamer Marion last Thursday morning for Baddeck, taking Bezanson's auto with them for a trip through the western part of the island. They were on the return journey to Baddeck when the accident oc-dent is very narrow, there being only room enough for one team. Bezanson with Shaver was in the front seat and the former was driving. A large boulder was directly in their path on the inside of the road. Bazanson steered out to pass it but could not go far enough and the hind wheel passed over it, tilting the auto over the bank. All four men were thrown out Bezanson was pinned between the good of the auto and a large block of concrete, and when found he was dead with his breast badly crushed. The other three men were injured, Shaver being the most fortunate, he falling in a tree when the machine

Woman Leaped Into the Ocean.

New York, July 16 .- As the steam er La Lorraine, which arrived to-day from Havre, was approaching the American coast on Wednesday morning, steaming through a dense fog, her passengers were startled by a sudden alarm, the stoppage of the ship's engines, and the hasty lowering of a lifeboat. It soon developed that one of the first cabin passengers, Miss Eleanor Koffman, had jumped overboard. In the thick fog the mission of the lifeboat seemed hopeless, but a search was kept up of the surrounding waters for a long time. The hunt was given up and the lifeboar To keep a dish of food hot for half was compelled to return to the ship's side without having discovered any Miss Koffman was 53 years of age and lived in New Jersey. She took passage with her sister, Sarah, and no one on the vessel noticed anything unusual about her during the voyage up to the time she took her fatal plunge. On the day before she spent her time quietly in her cabin and in the sitting room and in the library of the steamer, and appeared rational in every respect.

Under the heading "Congested Conditions in London," Windermere, the London correspondent of the Montreal Star cabled on Saturday the message we append, which shows that the money market in London was not in favourable condition when the Morris loan of £800,000 (roughly $4,000,000) was put on the market. and that the public took up only 7 per cent. of the loan, in other words £56,000 (roughly $280,000), the rest £744,000, or $3,720,000, remaining on the underwriters' hands. #### Wants to Know.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir,-There are a few things connected with our annual derby which seem hard to understand, and which I wish to ask the logic of. One of these, I hear, is the hard drawn line that none but those actually engaged in newspaper offices are eligible to compete in the Press Race. nd these may be editors, reporters typos machinists or even assistants. while printers of other offices, or an amalgamation of printers from several offices, are barred out. To my mind, knowing as I do the composition of the crews which have been entered for former Regattas, the latter class are none the less members of the Press, and I don't see why, as a printer, if I wanted to create an interest in the Press Race I should be debarred from entering a "nondescript" crew of printers to compete in that race.

The second objection occurs in the Society Race. For the past two years this race has been contested by societies pure and simple. The logic which bars printers from the Press with newspapers, makes it possible in the Society Race for clubs to comqualify by forming a club. Sir, I can't see why this is thus, and my opinion is, if it is wrong for printers to enter the Press Race, it is obviously wrong for clubs to enter the Society Race. Will some one please explain the nice distinction and oblige, Yours truly, IGNORAMUS. St. John's, Nfld., July 22nd, '10. P.S .- Of course clubs belonging to benefit societies are not referred to

(Daily News Message.)

THE HAGUE, July 21. Ewart, K.C., continuing, endeavored to show that if the United States had been accorded fishing servitude by treaty, the exercise of such servitude was susceptible of modification by Britain, by regulations or laws which were not incompatible with the Treaty, no clause in the Treaty obliging Britain to submit such regulations to the United States' Government for assent. Attempts to frame regulations in common had failed.

The servitude theory, as put forward by the States, will be dealt with by Attorney General Sir William Snowden Robson. The Tribunal has expressed the wish that the contending parties should communicate, within one week, detailed copies of the laws and regulations whereto they object, together with a statement of their own objections, which it stated would be transmitted to the other side, in order that the latter might reply to them, in the course of the following week.

Mr. Samuel J. A very fine new flag staff adorns the stand from which was floating to the breeze "Old Glory," the Union Jack, a most appropriate one for Victoria Park, and long may it continue to wave over Britain's Oldest Colony. Owing, no doubt, to the coolness of the night Officers Sparks and Devine allowed the small "ones" a little latitude in their innocent amusements, was exemplary. From a musical standpoint I would say the programme given was a carefully selected one which aroused much enthusiasm. The younger portion accompanying the orchestra in several tunes by singing in unison, causing general applause throughout the grounds. From the bulletin suspended from

A fascinating interview with Edison, it. and gave it to a man. great American inventor, appears Munsey's Magazine (July). It ms to contain much new material. replied. ixty-four years of age, and still rd at work. Edison has crowded inhis life a unique record of public itility and invention. Listen to hese tales.

Here is the way in which experinents with the telephone led him to the invention of the phonograph: An Historic Experiment.

Edison, Bell, and Gray had been working on a new kind of telegraph. ey were trying to do away with the icker at each end of the wire by substituting tuning-forks, w h i c h ould sing sounds that meant letters. They were experimenting with diaragms stretched over small boxames. Edison noticed that the nd-wayes produced by his vocal made the model: ords greatly agitated the diaphgm. Possessing for a moment the hshund spirit, he rigged up little per figures of men and women. diaphragm made them dance. 'Quite accidently, Bell discovered at he could hear his assistant's ice over the wire. That ended the experiments with the new telegraph; and, with the telephone discovered by Bell, it looked, for a time, as if the dancing paper dolls would constitute about the only pleasure that Edison ould derive from the experience Inventing the Phonograph. "However, the dancing of the paper dolls made Edison think. The power of the voice to agitate the air had been visualised. What could he do with the power? In those days, said Edison, 'my essistants were working by the piece, and it was my custom, when I sketched out a design for a model, to mark on the sketch the price I was willing to pay for making the model. So I sketched out my idea of a talkingmachine, marked "fifteen dollars" on

"'What's this for?" he asked. "'Oh, that's a machine to talk."

"'Word that I was working on a talking-machine went quickly around among the hundred employees in the further use for them - but they wouldn't quit; stayed right along, just the same.

An Amazed Crowd. "'So, when they all gathered around me, I said to the man who

"'Bill, get me a little tinfoil now and we'll make this thing talk." "'I wrapped the foil around the cylinder, placed the needle of the great resisting power that would not diaphragm against it, and shouted ino the funnel what were to be the list words ever spoken by a machine

Edison Invents the Incandescent Light "'The fact that I know so many things that will not work never helped me more than it did when I was inventing the incandescent electric light. I wanted to turn a current of electricity upon some substance of burn. I ran over in my mind the many things that might be used, and determined to try carbon. The carbon must be shaped like thread, so I N. T.." as it used to be called-looped it around in a bulb as it ought to be, burned it to an ash without break-

Brush, of Cleveland, had invented the arc-light, but everybody said that a small electric light could not be made.

on the current. Instantly there was

The Problem of Carbon. "The next question was how long my small light would burn. My as-body could hear it. I never saw such an amazed crowd of men.

"The discovery of a satisfactory naterial for films did not, however complete the invention of the electric light. The light was in existence but no way had yet been devised to use it. There was no such thing as meter to measure the current, and ione of the equipment that is to-day matter of course. All this Edison had to devise and introduce.

"'The invention of the light,' he years the phonograph lay practically said, 'was really the smallest part of the task. Altogether it took me two Everyone was called after ne had slept four hours. Everyone worked a twenty-hour day. Even the common labourers did. Complain? Not much! They were as much inerested in the light as I was We were a jolly crowd. I had an organ brought to the laboratory, and we istened to music as we worked. Oh.

hose were great days! "'Yet for some reasons, I wouldn't want to live them over. Never, before or since, was I compelled to put up such a fight. The gas companies, all over the country, were determined that I should not succeed. They had a tremendous investment that they believed would be ruined unless I failed. Even now. I should not like to tell of some of the things they did.

Gas Fights Electricity.

"'One of their hired liars overstepped himself a little, and was really esponsible for the increased efficiency of my light. He ridiculed me in a particularly offensive way, and pooh-poohed the idea that a small incandescent lamp could be ever more than a toy. I read what he said at a time when I thought I had made the ight as could as I could. What he said made me so angry that I tackled made up my mind to use thread. I the job again. Mr. Edison had some very interesting things to say of the future of the flying-machine. "I am suspicious of the type of flying-machne that is now in use. Flying-machines have developed too rapidly-too easily. I believe the flying-machine is destined to revolutionise our methods of communication and transportation. I believe that within ten years it will be carrying mails and a few passengers -but not in its present form. Now it sistants and myself sat down by the is a machine for sport. "I believe the present machines are built on the wrong principle. They can't lift themselves. It is necessary to propel them along the ground until the resistance of the air against their successful electric light. A lamp that planes causes them to rise. I believe would burn only forty hours could a flying machine can be built, and will be built within ten years, that will lift itself and go off to its destination in all kinds of weather at the rate of a hundred miles an hour It doesn't take long to perfect an invention after it is once started. Look than I had dared to expect. - The how quickly the perfected automolamp burned for more than a week. I bile came. The Wright Brothers have made a fine start, and are entitled to all credit for having made it, but the finish is yet to come."

Poor Father.

A woman of very real influence in her own circle, the German Empress is simply worshipped by her husband and children. The love of her sons is well illustrated by a story told of the Crown Prince in his boyhood. One day, while giving the Prince religious instruction, the court chaplain tried to impress him that all people are sinners. "Well." ejaculated His Imperial Highness, "father may be a sinner, as you say, but I am quite sure
