CHAPTER XXVIII.
ENGAGED.

If anyone had told him that Lady Grace had gone home a few minutes after parting from him, and shut herself up for a couple of days, reappearing, looking pale and weary, it would never have occurred to him that her sudden disappearance had been on his account.

He went to Norway, and though he thought of her now and again with a gratitude which made him miserable—for he could not see how on earth he was going to repay the money she had so generously paid for him—he was too much occupied with recalling Doris to think much of this other beautiful woman. He ought to have been happy in Norway, for the fishing was good, and he was lucky; but the big salmon did not bring him the satisfaction they used to do; and he was sitting one evening in the room of the rather rough inn at which he was staying, wondering what he should do with himself next, and whether it wouldn't be better to go and bury himself in South Africa or volunteer for the next of our little wars, when he heard his name mentioned. There was a party of young men staying at the inn, and they occupied the room next to his and divided from it by the thinness of partitions, through which their constant chatter and laughter filtered day and night to worry him.

When he heard his name, he woke up from a reverie in which he was wondering whether Doris was happy, and whether she ever thought of him, and those days in the Barton Meadows; and remembering that listeners seldom hear any good of themselves, he took up his pipe, and was walking out to smoke in the open air, when it seemed to him that he heard Lady Grace's name also.

Thinking that the speakers might be friends of his and hers he waited a moment, then sunk back into his chair, his face scarlet, his brow dark with a heavy frown—for this is what he heard:

"Tell you, it's an absolute truth," said one of the young fellows. "I had it from a most reliable source. The lady in question was seen leaving Lord Cecil Neville's rooms alone and unattended."

"Nonsense! Lady Grace—Lady Grace, of all women in the world!—go alone to Lord Neville's chambers! You must be mad, old fellow!"

"I'm not mad!" retorted the first speaker; "and I wish to goodness you wouldn't bellow out her name. I carefully avoided mentioning it. These walls are no thicker than paper, and you can't tell who may be on the other side."

"Oh, it's all right," said the other; "but come; you know the story is as thin as the partition. Why, no woman would do such a thing unless she were utterly reckless of her good name."

"I daresay not," said the first, still so cool; "but perhaps the lady in question happens to be reckless where this gentleman is concerned. Anyhow, I had it on good authority, and I happen to know it is an indisputable fact. Why, man, it was all the talk when I left London. It is said that she is head over ears in love with him—"

"Phew!" exclaimed one of the others. "That makes it worse. If she was guilty of such an indiscretion, all I can say she must be very much in love. Lady Grace—"

"Do shut up!" cried the first speaker. "No names, remember!"

"Well, well, the lady in question is one of the best-known women in society, and such a report would mean social ruin to her. Where did you hear it? Give me your authority."

The first man seemed to pause a moment, then in a voice too low for Cecil to hear, said:

"I don't mind giving it to you. I heard it from Spenser Churchill!"

"Then you may swear to its truth. That man never makes a mistake!" responded one of the young fellows. "Well, I'm awfully sorry, Lady—The lady is always very kind and pleasant to me, and I think her one of the loveliest creatures in the world. As for Lord Neville—well, if he can remain quiescent while this story is going—about, and does nothing to contradict or set it right—all I can say is, he is a very different man from what I have always understood him to be. Where is he now? I hear he has come a regular cropper in money matters. I saw him a little while ago, and he looked awfully down on his luck."

"Oh, he's gone abroad, I believe," replied the other.

Lord Cecil sat perfectly still for a minute, his brain surging, his heart beating with mingled fury and consternation; then, with his pipe still in his hand, he got up and knocked at the door of the adjoining room.

Someone opened it, and Lord Cecil, with a slight bow, stepped in and stood before the group of young men who stared at his now grave, pale face inquiringly.

"I am sorry to disturb you, gentlemen," he said; "but it is only right I should tell you that I have heard every word you said."

"There!" exclaimed the young fellow who had started the conversation in a tone of vexation and reproach.

"I told you so! I said the partition was like paper, and that someone might be on the other side, and you fellows wouldn't believe me!"

"Yes; I have heard every word," said Lord Cecil, sternly: "and as I have the honour to be a friend of the lady of whom you were speaking, it is my duty to tell you that the man who whispers a word against the reputation of that lady is a liar!"

They sprang to their feet as a body, and stared at him with angry surprise; but Lord Cecil put up his hand to command silence.

"Hear me out, please. You may, not unnaturally, demand to know why I should take upon myself to champion this lady's cause. I do so because I hope to have the honour of being that lady's husband. My name is Cecil Neville. There is my card." He did not toss it melodramatically, but courteously placed it on the table before them. "If any of you consider that he is affronted by what I have said, I shall be happy to afford him my satisfaction—I may think necessary."

With a slight bow he was leaving the room, when the young fellow who had been the first speaker, said:

"One moment, Lord Neville, if you would have to marry sooner or later—though his heart throbbed and ached every time he thought of Doris Marlowe—and why not marry Lady Grace?

He thought of her beauty; he recalled her noble generosity to him. Why, she had not only come to his aid when he was in mortal straits, but she had done so at the risk of her social reputation. Surely, if he must marry someone, it must be Lady Grace.

He might also have reminded himself that by so doing he would win his uncle's—the marquis's—favour; but, to do Lord Cecil credit, he did not think of that; he only remembered Lady Grace's goodness to him.

He reached London at noon, had a bath, and allowed his valet to clothe him in the regulation morning attire, and went straight to the Peppins' house.

The footman told him that Lady Grace was out riding in the park.

"If anyone is to blame in this matter, it is myself; and I am ready to give you any satisfaction you may require; but I think it right to state, frankly and freely, that I did not mention the lady's name, nor was I aware that she was engaged to you. I will say, also, that I deeply regret that I should have mentioned the subject at all. But I spoke the simple truth when I said that it was a topic of common rumour; and I may add that it will give me great pleasure and satisfaction to contradict the report whenever and wherever I may hear it repeated."

"Thank you," said Lord Cecil, simply; and with a grave bow that took in all of them he turned and left the room.

An hour later he was on his way to England.

By whomsoever spread this report was in circulation—and he could not contradict it! Lady Grace had been to his rooms alone and unattended, and it was his duty as a gentleman and a man of honour to protect her.

He had heard, with a scarlet face, the words of the young fellow who had said that Lady Grace was in love with him; and though he did not believe it—for had she not herself said that it was not so?—it was his duty to propose to her.

What did it matter what became of him—or whom he married? He must marry someone and some day. The heir to the marquisate of Stoye could not remain single. Rank has its duties as well as its privileges, and it is the duty of the head of a noble house to carry on the direct line. He started perceptibly at sight of him—so much so that she dropped her whip. He sprang forward and picked it up for her, and by the time he had given it her—few moments though the action required—she had recovered herself.

"Back so soon!" she said, giving him her hand, small and white and warm. "This is a surprise! Don't the salmon bite or rise or whatever you call it? Or has it rained all the time, and have you been bored to death? I'm afraid you'll be bored just as much in London; for everyone is leaving."

"The salmon were all right," he said, still holding her hand. "I came back because I wanted to see you."

"To see me?" she said, her eyes flashing into his for a moment, and then drooping. "Well, you were just in time, for papa and I were off to the Continent."

"Then I have just come in time," he said.

"Let me give you some tea. Sit down," she said, and gently tried to withdraw her hand; but he held it firmly.

"Never mind the tea, Lady Grace," he said, with something of his old light-heartedness. "You shall give me—or refuse me—a cup after you have heard what I have to say."

"And what have you to say that is more important than tea?" she retorted, in a light tone, which was belied by the quiver on her lips.

"I have come to ask you to be my wife," he said, quietly.

She put her left hand to her bosom, and her beautiful eyes dilated. If joy always killed, then Lady Grace would have fallen dead at Cecil Neville's feet that moment; but it is sorrow, not joy, that kills; and instead of falling, she leaned towards him with a tremulous sigh. It was almost too good to be believed. Spenser Churchill had told her that it would come; but she had always doubted it; and now—it had come. He was hers! Hers!—he, whom she had grown to love—the man for whom she had plotted and risked so much, even her social good name—was hers!

It was a proud, an ecstatic moment; no wonder she prolonged it.

"What do you say?" he asked, still holding her hand, his grave voice as much unlike an ardent lover's as it is possible to imagine; and yet it was like music to her. "I know I am not worthy to win so great a prize; but I will do my best to make you happy."

"And—do you love me?" she asked.

It was a dangerous question; but she was a woman, and longed to hear the magic words which every woman loves to hear from the lips of the man she loves.

He paused imperceptibly.

5000 Persons Murdered by Bolsheviks in Minsk.

Undesirables to be Kept Out of Britain---Germany Short of Coal---Odessa Occupied.

ODESSA OCCUPIED.

LONDON, Aug. 26. The occupation of Odessa, the chief Russian port on the Black Sea, by Allied forces is admitted in a Bolshevik Government wireless message from Moscow received here to-day. The occupation was effected, the despatch states after thirty vessels had bombarded the city for two days.

OCCUPATION OF ODESSA.

LONDON, Aug. 25. The actual occupation of Odessa was carried out by detachments of general Denikin's troops with which its anti-Bolshevik population co-operated. A British warship covered the operations.

BOLSHEVIK BRUTALITY.

LONDON, Aug. 26. (Reuter's)—Information has been received by Reuter from a Polish official giving additional details of the occupation of Minsk. The entry of Poles was so sudden that they captured the whole local staff of the notorious extraordinary commission for combating revolutions in whose cellars which were used as chambers were found the remains of thirty Polish officers horribly mutilated by the Bolsheviks who had tortured and murdered altogether five thousand people during their occupation.

GERMAN CRUELTY.

LONDON, Aug. 25. (Reuter's)—According to information the policies that were the sources of trouble in Silesia were caused by the Anti-Polish attitude of the German authorities who gradually imprisoned or deported into Germany almost the whole educated class of Poles hoping that without the guidance of these leaders the working class of Poles could be persuaded to vote for Germany in the forthcoming plebiscite. After finding workers who remained loyal the Germans began deporting and imprisoning them, also killing or wounding others. This resulted in many fleeing to Poland while many of those who could hid in the galleries or disused mines being fed by their wives and families whom the German soldiers forced to disclose the hiding

FIXES RESPONSIBILITY.

PARIS, Aug. 25. At to-day's meeting the Supreme Council of the Peace Conference approved the report of the inter-Allied military commission relative to recent incidents at Flume. It is understood the document fixes the responsibility for the clashes between the Italian and Allied soldiers and recommends a method for preventing the repetition of trouble.

AMERICANS HAVE PLANS.

COBLENZ, Aug. 23. Details of the organization of a large German volunteer corps in the Baltic provinces to support the Russian reactionary movement against the Bolsheviks are in the hands of American military authorities.

RUMOUR DENIED.

VLADIVOSTOK, Aug. 25. Lieut-General Rosanoff the highest Russian authority in Eastern Siberia, denies the recent reports that the All-Russian Government under Admiral Kolchak abandoned Omsk and has been moved to Irkutsk.

GOES TO SCHLESWIG.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 26. The French cruiser Mareuilaise has left this port for the coast of Schleswig.

PROVOKED DISORDER TO SUPPRESS IT.

LONDON, Aug. 26. (Reuter's)—The Times and the Morning Post have both received a telegram from Warsaw which confirms atrocities by the Germans in Silesia. The Times in its comment deplores the delay in sending the inter-Allied commission troops to Silesia to control the plebiscite and says that the real interest in the situation is the evidence that the Government of the new so-called Democratic Germany clings faithfully to the conditions of the Wilhelmstrasse in provoking disorder in order to suppress it.

BARKER'S FLIGHT.

MINEOLA, N. Y., Aug. 26. Colonel William Barker, Canadian Ace, arrived here from Albany at 9:20 o'clock this morning completing the first half of the international air race from Toronto to New York and return. His machine is a captured German Fokker model. He carried a bag of Canadian mail which was immediately transferred to another airplane waiting on the field and rushed off to Washington. Five airplanes which were unable to start from the local field yesterday for various reasons got away just before Colonel Barker arrived. Colonel Barker made the trip from Albany in one hour and twenty minutes. Sergt. Coombs the places. These conditions reigned for many months and finally resulted in the people rising against their oppressors.

BRITAIN KEEPS OUT UNDESIRABLES.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26. Britain alone of the Great European Nations has declined for the present at least to remove restrictions on admission of persons under foreign passes imposed during war for the purpose of excluding political agitators and persons of doubtful loyalty and other undesirables. This was developed to-day by inquiry as to why Great Britain was not included in the list of countries to which the State Department had announced passports will be granted on pre-war conditions after September 15.

COAL SHORTAGE IN GERMANY.

LONDON, Aug. 26. The coal shortage in Germany is daily becoming worse, according to reports. Many Margarine factories have been compelled to close.

LABOUR LEADERS GETTING WISE.

(Reuters)—Mr. Brownlee, Chairman of the Almagamated Society of Engineers has written to Mr. A. C. Bowerman, M.P., Secretary of the Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union Congress, urging him to take steps to disseminate relative information in Great Britain and Europe. He quotes the following passage from formation regarding the economic position Europe is in:

"Unless productivity can be rapidly increased there can be nothing but political, moral and economic chaos, finally interpreting itself in loss of life on a scale hitherto undreamed of. No economic policy will bring food to those stomachs, fuel to those hearts, that does not secure the maximum of production. There is no use wasting tears over the increase in prices which are to a great degree the visualization of insufficient production."

The Trades Union movement, said Mr. Brownlee, is more powerful to-day than at any period in its history. With power comes responsibility and however much we may reject the criticism of those who are not Trades Unionists, we cannot evade the responsibility of the community. I consider it incumbent upon your committee to take some action to alleviate the situation. The mere raise of wages without increased production is no solution to the difficulty.

SEAMEN'S STRIKE ENDED.

SYDNEY, N. S., Aug. 26. The seamen's strike ended to-day when a mass meeting of the men decided to remain the ships.

The World's Largest Picture Screen.

What is, perhaps, the world's largest picture screen, higher than an eight-story building, is 115 by 115 feet. It was a feature of the recent Methodist Centenary Celebration in Columbus, Ohio.

Each night stereopticon views or motion pictures were thrown upon this gigantic screen 75 feet high and 100 feet wide, more than six times the size of the average motion picture.

The audience each night numbered thousands, sometimes as many as 30,000—the biggest motion-picture audience ever brought together at one time.

The screen cost $8,000 to build. It contains 100,000 square feet of lumber. It was built originally for giant stereopticon slides to illustrate the conditions and needs of the foreign and home land missionary fields, but the success in putting these before the crowds that flocked to the grandstand each night led the officials to believe that motion pictures ought to be tried.

Projecting machine experts were consulted. After experimenting several days and nights, they succeeded in throwing a picture 54 feet by 40 feet. Leo S. Dyer of Cincinnati, Ohio, continued the experiments until the size increased to 100 by 75 feet.

The ordinary motion-picture projector used was equipped with heavy duty lamp houses, 2½ inch equivalent focus lenses, 170 ampere rheostats and a special shutter—the extra light shutter, which relieves the eye strain of the onlooker and at the same time increases the light on the screen.

The films, which must be black-and-white without artistic effects, are run through the machine rapidly in order to prevent the powerful lamps from burning them. The pictures, however, are clear and distinct, and people 400 feet away can readily see them.—Scientific American.

The World's Largest Picture Screen.

What is, perhaps, the world's largest picture screen, higher than an eight-story building, is 115 by 115 feet. It was a feature of the recent Methodist Centenary Celebration in Columbus, Ohio.

Each night stereopticon views or motion pictures were thrown upon this gigantic screen 75 feet high and 100 feet wide, more than six times the size of the average motion picture.

The audience each night numbered thousands, sometimes as many as 30,000—the biggest motion-picture audience ever brought together at one time.

The screen cost $8,000 to build. It contains 100,000 square feet of lumber. It was built originally for giant stereopticon slides to illustrate the conditions and needs of the foreign and home land missionary fields, but the success in putting these before the crowds that flocked to the grandstand each night led the officials to believe that motion pictures ought to be tried.

Projecting machine experts were consulted. After experimenting several days and nights, they succeeded in throwing a picture 54 feet by 40 feet. Leo S. Dyer of Cincinnati, Ohio, continued the experiments un-

Our Baseball Column.

PLAGIARISED AND OTHERWISE.

Tuesday night's tryout can enjoy themselves again to-night when the "home-team" will be given the final once over.

Editor Baseball Column.

Will you be good enough to say through your column how you think Orr came to be selected to represent St. John's in the inter-town games. There is quite a lot of speculation rife over the City third baseman, and some of the boys are wondering why he was selected at all.

According to the records he has only played one game this year, and beyond batting his eyelids at the fast ones did nothing to warrant his selection as third baseman. As a matter of fact, his position in that game was shortstop, and the third bag was occupied by Canning—a much better man. The little B.I.S. fellow O'Donnell—also played a brilliant game all through the year, and has batted with the best of them.

Kindly say, sir, who is Orr anyhow in the city score-book, and why he is holding down the city third bag?

Thanking you in anticipation of your kind offices, and hoping you will give the public the benefit of your experience in this matter, I remain,

Yours very truly,
 WILLIAM J. BRETT,
 Wanderers' Baseball Club.

It cost the Baseball League $500, as its proportion, to replace the grandstand at St. George's Field this season.

Naturally, therefore, this sadly depleted its earnings particularly as during the War period all receipts over and above expenses were devoted to the various Patriotic funds.

In order to make ends meet, a post-season game was arranged by the League between the Cubs and this year's champs—the Lions—for yesterday afternoon—both managers giving their assent.

The game was duly advertised in all the papers on Monday and Tuesday, and the usual publicity given it in all their columns.

The League's Treasurer, at the request of one of the managers, even went to the trouble—not to say inconvenience—of interviewing every member of this particular team to ensure their presence, and secured their promise to appear.

The clash was eagerly looked forward to by the fans, and they assembled in numbers at the time appointed on yesterday afternoon.

Imagine their surprise, therefore, to find the gates barred but the ticket man on his perch awaiting instructions as to whether or not he was to admit the crowd.

Enquiry from him elicited the fact that there were some doubts as to whether the game could be played as both teams were short of players.

Eventually the umps arrived in their flivvers, and later some of the League officials.

A hurried consultation was held, and it was decided to scramble two "nines" and the managers went forth among the bleachers to get substitutes to play the positions of Munn, Payne 1b., and Gowans of the Lions, and Canning 3b., O'Driscoll and Duggan 2b. of the Cubs.

Smith, Gushue and Bill Duggan donned the uniform of the champs, and Keefe, Manning and Harvey Thomas donned that of the Cubs.

The League officials—not being able to present the line-ups as advertised—admitted the multitude of fans to the grounds without charge—much to the latter's surprise, and eventual disappointment when they found unfamiliar forms adorning the positions occupied by regular players.

The League officials—not being able to present the line-ups as advertised—admitted the multitude of fans to the grounds without charge—much to the latter's surprise, and eventual disappointment when they found unfamiliar forms adorning the positions occupied by regular players.

Nevertheless, with that cheerfulness which has always been a characteristic of local fandom, they suppressed their annoyance—and chagrin, and settled down to witness the scrap.

Pitcher Smith of the Wanderers was asked by the Lions to go in the box for them with Walter Callahan doing duty on first base. Hall was the slab-artist for the Cubs.

The game was progressing quite favorably up to the fourth inning when Jupiter Pluvius poured forth his vials of wrath, and the game was called with the score 3 to 2 in the Lions' favor.

We hold no brief for Orr, but think the selecting committee was justified in picking him, and feel confident in prophesying that his performance will cause no regrets.

We must admire (and we are sure Orr and the fans will, too) Brett's frankness in writing as he did, particularly when he himself has been selected for the "home-team." It shows his sincerity of purpose and his keen desire to have absolutely the strongest aggregation that can be produced to repel the invasion of the Grand Falls' horde.

The fans did their part yesterday! Some of the players did NOT!

But why COD the former?

The defaulting players evidently believe in the saying of the famous showman "the public likes to be fooled," or is it a case with them, as we sometimes hear in local political parlance, "The public be damned?"

Get your tickets at Ches's to-day for the big games next week. They cost only a quarter and you're sure to enjoy the fun. The most ardent fan ever you met—Mrs. Slocum of Grand Falls—will be there in Section B leading her coterie of semi-fans from the inland town.

We note Mr. Cheeseman has assigned the Grand Falls' rosters the rear seats in Section B. The farther away the better, eh, Freddie?

The city boys had a great tryout at St. George's Field on Tuesday evening under the eagle eye of Manager Montgomerie. The Major put them through their paces in good style, but he didn't get a chance on Walter Callahan, Clouston and Brett—who were conspicuous by their absence.

WHY WE WORRY.

One is apt to think of hurrying as something which one does under stress of circumstances something which one would avoid if one could. But the older I grow more I am becoming convinced that nine-tenths of our hurry is nothing but a habit. Nine times out of ten, when we rush about and do things tensely it is not because we have so much to do, but because we have gotten into that habit.

And even when we hurry we have so much that seems necessary and vital to do, I doubt whether—if we stopped to think—we would find it was all really so necessary and vital as the need of keeping our nerves healthy—in other words, the need of not hurrying. For nothing in the world is any more destructive of nerve health than hurry.

Better Have Given Them Both Up.

If it had been necessary in order to keep from hurrying, I could better have afforded to throw over one of those comparatively important errands than to rush.

You have heard the old saying,

"Your health is worth more than it can possibly cost you." That is quite as true of nervous health as of physical health.

The great psychologist, William James, lays the majority of our nervous breakdowns to that and closely allied causes:

Not Because We Do So Much But Because We Do It So Hard.

"We say that so many of our fellow countrymen collapse and have to seek abroad to rest their nerves because they work so hard. I suspect that is an immense mistake. I suspect that neither the nature nor the amount of our work is accountable for the frequency and severity of our breakdowns, but that the cause lies rather in those absurd feelings of hurry and having no time, in that breathlessness and tension, that anxiety of feature and that solicitude for results, that lack of inner harmony and ease by which, with us, the work is so apt to be accompanied."

Did you ever try to analyze your need of hurry?

My Five "Necessary" Errands.

I was in town shopping the other day and had to catch a certain train home. As the fatal time grew near, I found myself fretting when ele-

Men Who Have Made Love to Me.

By MELVIN M. RIDDLE, in Vancouver "Sun."

"Of course it's nice to have men make love to me," said Wanda Hawley, the talented leading lady in Paramount-Artcraft pictures, and considered by many of her admirers as one of the most beautiful blonde types on the screen.

"A man pays a woman a compliment when he makes love to her, and a love of praise is a common human weakness. Although in my case, I know the man is acting for the benefit of the camera and his flattery is perhaps not altogether sincere, nevertheless, a good actor is such a good deceiver that I sometimes catch myself harkening to their songs of love."

I could not help putting in a remark intimating that if she looked as lovely as the stars who make love to her as she did to me, they could not possibly deserve to be called "deceivers" as she had termed them, but must surely make love in earnest.

"That's very kind of you, I'm sure," she replied, "but I am not quite sure if everybody is of the same opinion.

"Of course, it is very interesting to have men pour out their hearts to me in adoring terms, but after all, I remember that the whole affair is only part of the day's business and not prompted by feelings of the heart, and the camera's click is an incessant reminder of this cold fact. But it is very interesting to note how different men make love. I am getting so experienced a judge of how men declare what is supposed to be in their hearts, that before they ever start I can usually foretell just how they are going to proceed. A study of human nature and character is always very interesting to me."

"But don't their pleas arouse a touch of sentiment in you?"

"A little perhaps, but sentiment is something that must be handled with great delicacy. Love, in my opinion, is a form of temperament, and loses most of its beauty and feeling when forced or put under set limitations and rules, as it must be under these conditions. I have been wooed by many handsome men, and although the novelty of each new screen romance is not so striking as one would imagine, yet at the same time I feel just a tiny little thrill of interest, sentiment, pathos or whatever of Speeding.

Public wrath at the evil and menace of speeding is fast approaching the bursting point, and unless something is quickly done to eliminate the road-hog, people will take the law into their own hands.

That speeding is a menace is proven by the number of accidents—fatal and otherwise—that have resulted therefrom within the past year or so, and there can be no doubt that it is on the increase.

With something like six hundred automobiles in the city there must be a large quota of inexperienced and incompetent drivers who should not be permitted to drive cars. As long as there are such accidents will happen.

That, naturally, prompts the question, "What amount of training does an automobile driver receive before he is permitted to control a car?" Is he permitted to learn the mechanism while driving on the public street, where people are passing back and forth? Must he sit for and pass any examination before he may drive a car?

And may the son, or the daughter, or the friend of a licensed driver control his car simply because he, (the owner) has secured the right to do so? Why does not the police force take the matter earnestly in hand and make a determined effort to eliminate speeding and all that must necessarily result therefrom? Why are not the policemen equipped with stop watches by which they may convict road-hogs of the crime? Is it because they cost too much? Is it because the expense of such is quite prohibitive or because it is not thought that the game would be worth the candle?

Why is it? There must be some reason, logical or otherwise, behind the failure of the proper authority or authorities in providing every policeman with a stop-watch. Surely it cannot result from mere negligence and apathy and indifference? Surely we have not a police force so constituted. Are human lives to be set at naught and their safety ignored—and the candle?

road-hogs allowed to continue their criminal tactics?

Expense! What is expense compared with human life? Which is the more valuable—a few hundred dollars or a few human lives?

The human life cut short by motor cars within the past year is worth infinitely more, immeasurably more, incalculably more, than enough stop-watches to supply every man in the country with one.

Speeding must be put down. If it is not put down by the right people and in the right way, it will be put down otherwise. But down it must go.

The Telegram will publish the number of every car it sees speeding. The second time the same car is seen speeding its number will be handed over to the Inspector General of Police with the offer to supply evidence to bring conviction. We invite every other city newspaper to do the same thing. In this way, we believe, speeding will be threatened and, perhaps, eliminated. Something must be done. Human life is too precious to be at the mercy of an unscrupulous, unthinking, criminal road-hog.

Choir Outing.

The members of the C. of E. Cathedral Choir to the number of about 30, with the Rector Rev. Mr. Jeeves, held their annual outing at Mrs. Williams' Forest Pond, yesterday. Leaving town at 10:30 a.m. by motor cars and truck, arrival was made in good time despite the fog and thick mist. Though somewhat wet after their long drive the spirits of the younger members were in no way dampened and they hoped that the weather man would yet be kind. Alas, their hopes were vain for the weather was unsettled all day and out of the sports programme a short football match, which resulted in a tie, and some races for the boys could be run off. After a sumptuous dinner at 1 o'clock, Mr. F. J. Cornick, in a few well chosen words, expressed the pleasure of the choir at having Rev. Mr. Jeeves present with them, and hoped that the same would be true for many years and under favourable weather conditions. Mr. Jeeves in reply expressed his pleasure at being present at the annual outing, but regretted that I had to postpone my visit before, and I do not wish to disappoint the people a second time.

Regretting very much my inability to be present, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

FEET CUT.

Hearing that excellent results in the Howley seam, recently begun by the St. George's Coal Fields Ltd., had been shown, the Telegram reporter enquired at the Company's office this morning and found the statement to be correct in every detail. Mr. T. J. Freeman, the manager, has just received despatches from the scene of mining operations in which is contained the encouraging news that in the Howley seam, begun some few weeks ago, coal seven and eight feet thick had been cut, and in one section, latterly, was found to open out to eleven feet of pure, clean, coal. This is now the third seam of the five large seams to be opened up by the company. Work on the present seam will be continued possibly during the winter with a view to being able to bring coal to the market, and the fourth seam, which is the largest, will, in all probability, be begun sometime in September. This will naturally be very acceptable news to the shareholders of the Company and to the country in general, as it will add many millions of tons of coal to the Company's holdings.

Obituary.

REV. E. P. WARD.

To the great regret of many friends and admirers, Rev. E. P. Ward, Methodist Minister, departed this life on Tuesday night at the General Hospital. A serious operation sapped his strength and the end came as mentioned.

Rev. Mr. Ward was born in Yorkshire, England, forty one years ago, and came to this country in 1900. He was first stationed at Twillingate and later at Bonne Bay and Grand Brunt. Then went to Montreal where he attended the Wesleyan Theological College graduating after three years study. Returning to Newfoundland in 1907, he was received into full connection with the Methodist Church and ordained and since laboured at Sound Island, P.B., Old Perlican, Western Bay, Shoal Harbor and Catalina, where he was later stationed. He was a prominent member of the Orange Association and took deep interest in the Grand Orange Lodge, in which he held the office of Grand Chaplain for a term of five years. He was greatly loved by the brethren of that association and none will regret his passing more than they. Rev. Mr. Ward was married to Miss Hattie Campbell, daughter of Mr. Wm. Campbell the well known victualler of Water St. He has four children, the eldest of whom Campbell is just recovering from a severe operation for appendicitis. He has also a mother and one sister residing in London, England. The funeral takes place this afternoon at 2:30 from the residence of Mr. Campbell, Water St. A service will be held in George Street Methodist Church after which interment takes place at the General Protestant cemetery.

The Telegram extends sympathy to the sorrowing relatives.

The First Sod Is Turned.

THE SOLVING OF THE HOUSING PROBLEM NOW ACCOMPLISHED.

The turning of the first sod of the first house of the first building association in Newfoundland was performed yesterday morning in a heavy rain shower. Lady Harris, wife of the Governor, was present to perform the ceremony. The ground selected is the field adjoining St. George's, called Nun's Field. Some 250 houses, with front and back gardens, will be erected there and a model little town should result. Representatives of the various Labor Unions, Church, State and general public were present and the occasion was marked by hearty cheering and applause. Mr. W. Linegar, President of the Coopers' Union, acted as chairman. Hon. John Anderson briefly outlined the scheme, while other speakers were Hon. Sir E. R. Bowring, Hon. J. D. Ryan and Hon. M. P. Gibbs, every one of whom eulogized the project and its energetic backer. Cheers for Lady Harris, Hon. John Anderson and Hon. M. P. Gibbs were given. Other prominent men were to have spoken but the day being rainy it was thought that the ceremony should not be any longer than necessary. The following letter from the Archbishop explains itself:

St. John's, Aug. 26th, 1919.

Hon. John Anderson, M.L.C., City.

My dear Mr. Anderson—I regret very much that I shall be unable to attend the function arranged for tomorrow. I have an important Church engagement at Flatrock at 11 o'clock.

I would gladly cancel the engagement but that I have had to postpone my visit before, and I do not wish to disappoint the people a second time.

Regretting very much my inability to be present, I remain,

Yours sincerely,

†E. P. ROCHE.

Steamer's Steam
Tubes Blow Out.PASSENGERS TOOK TO BOATS,
FEARING SHIP WOULD BLOW UP.
Motor Boats to the Rescue.

The excursionists of the Bell Island Co's boat, Euphrates, got a bad scare this morning, when it was thought that the steamer would be blown out of the water at almost any moment.

Leaving Topsail yesterday with a large number of excursionists, the boat spent the night at Bell Island and left on the return trip for Topsail this morning. About three quarters of an hour after leaving, or when about half way between the Island and the destination, two steam tubes blew out and the steam burst out in blinding quantity.

The passengers became rather uneasy now, as the engineers could not enter the engine room and stroked to raise the fire, it was feared that at any moment the boiler would explode and kill everyone aboard.

The boats were gotten quickly afloat and the excursionists took to them and rowed to a safe distance, Meanwhile, motor boats from Horse Cove put out and took them aboard and to Topsail.

The Euphrates is now lying at the wharf in the same place.

GIVEN ANNUAL OUTING.

The children of St. Thomas's Sunday School were given their annual outing at Shannon Munn Park yesterday afternoon, and despite the rain showers spent a most enjoyable day. A large number of young folks, accompanied by their teachers, was taken in motor cars and trucks to the grounds where they thoroughly enjoyed themselves at the various games up to tea hour, when a splendid spread to which all did full justice, was provided. During the evening the members of St. Thomas's Missionary Society served tea, etc., and raised a handsome sum which will be devoted to Rev. H. Gordon's work at Cartwright. Revs. Jeeves, Clayton and Brinton were present, and assisted greatly in making the day a pleasant one for the children.

At the Majestic.

Madge Kennedy, in "Day Dreams," stars at the Majestic to-night. Primrose, a country girl, has lived in the country alone for so long that she has peopled her empty world with the knights and fairies of her story books. She despises the common suitor who comes a-wooing and tells her that she is waiting for the White Knight. The White Knight comes, but he is the tool of the rejected suitor, who plans to be revenged upon Primrose by shattering her dream; but her fairy friends are faithful to their queen, and day dreams become pleasant realities.

This is a picture of love that everyone will be glad to have seen. The scenes and acting are excellent and will well repay following. A three-reel Spanish romance makes up a fine show.

COLGATE'S TALC POWDER

If you could see the tiny meshes of the sheer silk through which Colgate's Talc is sifted, you would realize why Colgate's is satin-smooth and fairy-light.

But this thistle-down fineness is only one of the reasons why Colgate's Talc is best for babies. Analysis shows that Colgate's contains 10.54% Boric Acid—just the right amount—and two other healing and soothing ingredients not found in other Talsc examined. Of nine other Talsc analysed, not one contained over 4% Boric Acid.

Tender Skins Require the 10.54% Boric Acid in Colgate's Talc

Wide Range of PERFUMES IN COLGATE'S TALC
Cashmere Bouquet	Radiant Rose
Florient	Viol
Monet Violet	Colgate's
La France Rose	Madame
Eclat	U
Tinted	Splendor
Violet de Mai

Mild, efficient, and antiseptic—the Boric Acid in Colgate's is necessary for use on the delicate skin of babies. And it is just as desirable for baby's mother. Remember, no Talc is complete without sufficient Boric Acid.

See that Colgate's—surely Colgate's—is used in your household. Its daily use is as desirable as the daily use of soap and water. Cooling and soothing, it protects the skin, relieves chafing, and gives greater comfort.

News "Scoops."

Reformers Preserved Pure

(By Associated Press Aurora-Borealis-Ray Service.)

COSEYHURST, BAFFIN'S BAY, April 20.—Professor Ja-pak-to-puk, the eminent Eskimo social economist, announced that the electro-isothermal department of Polaris University has completed the new international plant for keeping advanced thinkers in cold storage till the world catches up to their ideas. The Hague Central Committee on Peace and Quiet has reserved spaces for several thousand eminent citizens.

Another Small Nationality

(By Trans-Alpine Wind Transmission)

GENEVA, April 20.—After a stormy three-day's meeting the International Congress of Husbands to-day adopted a resolution declaring itself an oppressed small nationality and demanding the right of self-determination. Nothing is expected to come of it, as the Executive Committee of the Super-League of Selected Nations of the League of Nations consists at present of ninety-seven women and only one man, and has already laid down the ruling that a husband is not a nationality but merely a labor organization.

Males Greatly Improved.

(Special From Our Orinoco Edition.)

CARAMELVILLE, AMAZONIA, April 20.—This capital to-day celebrated the thirtieth anniversary of the All-Women's Republic. A pretty feature of the exercises was the parade of 1,000,000 males who had been serving the Republic as house-workers. Their neat, bright appearance was a revelation to old-timers who remembered the ancient business-streets of 1930. In a speech at the Government candy Palace the President of the Republic pointed to the fact as proving that even those who have been regarded by heartless science as hopelessly inferior can be improved by rigid discipline tempered with kindness.

Cloud Conservation Decree

(From Our Own High-Altitude News Bureau.)

CUMULI JUNCTION, April 20.—Owing to alarming depictions of Stratas No. 1 and No. 2 of low-lying rain-clouds by tramp air-craft which pump water only after asking permission from Cumuli Junction and clearly specifying the cloud. It is recognized that this measure is only a partial remedy, and that it will be necessary as the Lines O' Type News has pointed out with its characteristic enterprise, to declare the entire power-cloud strata an international park. It is a notorious fact that the once popular week-end scenic cloudland excursions to the trade-wind region have been practically abandoned, because passengers so often arrived only to find the clouds practically pumped dry and hanging as mere shapeless bags.

Dangerous Revolt Crushed.

(By Accelerated Aero-Rhythmic Transmission.)

CHICAGO, April 20.—Our efficient police-women this afternoon nipped a revolt in the well-known bud when they dispersed a mass-meeting of capitalists who made inflammatory speeches about what they called the aristocratic privileges of ruling labor classes. The capitalists attended, with their push-carts piled high as usual with the bonds, mortgages, stocks and other petty merchandise which this unfortunate element sells in the poorer quarters. There was considerable waving of red flags, but the men made no violent attacks on the police-women, contenting themselves with furious cries of "Cowards!" and "Bullies!"

It is suspected that many of the speakers were disguised members of the dangerous I. W. W. S. (Independent Workers of Wall Street) who are trying to provoke an uprising against Bricklayers' Union No. 5 which is acting as Chicago Mandatory for the Seventeen Brick-Laying Nations under Hague Convention No. 48,376.

Nld. Scotch

Cured Herring.

The condition of the Newfoundland

Scotch cured herring market has had the effect of reducing the volume of business for the summer season, and many contend that this petty profiteering on the part of the retailer has worked a permanent injury to the herring trade, and that it has removed herring from the list of cheaper goods in small quantities, the prevailing market on both fall and winter and spring herring of "ordinary quality" is about $14 per barrel in some instances less. As there is a fair supply on hand, merchants in New York are showing a little more anxiety to sell, and this has not had a good effect on market conditions. As there is a supply yet to come forward from Newfoundland, buyers have taken the position that it is just as well to wait until the market is settled before making heavy purchases. So far as can be observed the demand has been of a hand-to-mouth order. Jobbers have been taking only sufficient stocks to meet their requirements for a short time, and retailers have been buying in the same manner. As the retail trade has figured heavy profits on goods held this season, the consumption demand has naturally been restricted.

This, of course, has had the effect of reducing the volume of business for the summer season, and many contend that this petty profiteering on the part of the retailer has worked a permanent injury to the herring trade, and that it has removed herring from the list of cheaper goods in small quantities, the prevailing market on both fall and winter and spring herring of "ordinary quality" is about $14 per barrel in some instances less. As there is a fair supply on hand, merchants in New York are showing a little more anxiety to sell, and this has not had a good effect on market conditions. As there is a supply yet to come forward from Newfoundland, buyers have taken the position that it is just as well to wait until the market is settled before making heavy purchases. So far as can be observed the demand has been of a hand-to-mouth order. Jobbers have been taking only sufficient stocks

Armada Treasure Ship

(From the London Chronicle.)

After seven months' preparation Colonel Foss, the director of the operation, and his staff have placed the diving and dredging plant permanently on the steam lighter and pontoon now anchored near the spot where the old Spanish Armada galleon lies in the bay. The digger has already reached some lead and copper sheathing, which may have belonged to the sunken treasure ship, and divers report that the coating of silt over the excavations of 1912, when the operations were suspended, does not exceed an inch for each year which has elapsed. The treasure ship is understood to lie at a depth of from ten to fourteen fathoms and under from 35 to 40 feet of sand. Colonel Foss enters on his work anew, confident that the wealth which went down with the galleon is still there, as the means of taking it from these depths have not hitherto been available.

The Terrible Flame of Race Hatred.

The Desperate Nature of the Colour Problem in the United States—Twelve Million Workers Not Socially Acceptable.

Abe Lincoln's 4,000,000 emancipated slaves have multiplied to 12,000,000.

"Once again the strange, instinctive loathing of the white man for the Ethiop has blazed out, and human beings have been burned—not in the Africas, but in lavish Chicago, the seat and centre of America's 'Big Business'; a city devoted to culture and the arts (all sneers to the contrary notwithstanding), and with a population as great as that of Paris," says Ignatius Phayre in the Observer.

"How shall we explain this fame of brutal savagery in the land of liberty? How account for the murderous onslaughts, a few months back, in East St. Louis—a city in Lincoln's own State?

"What started that razor and pistol orgie in the great city of Chicago? A little nigger strayed over the 'black line' on the lake beach, reserved for whites, and was driven back with a shower of stones from outraged dignity. There has been bad feeling in the North ever since the blacks came migrating from the South in hundreds of thousands, allured by high wages, due to war-work and the absence of millions of men 'Over there' in France.

"Now is your chance to settle the negro problem," said the German Emperor to Mr. James W. Gerard in Berlin. "If America insists on coming into the war, why doesn't she send her negroes across and let us shoot them down?"

"As a fact, 900,000 black troopers were available, and nearly 200,000 were sent to France. The return of 200,000 black heroes, trained in the use of lethal weapons, aroused no enthusiasm in either North or South.

Meanwhile, 'Jim Crowism'—special cars and trams, waiting-rooms, schools, churches, and residential quarters—is rigidly enforced against the coloured folks."

America's Race Conflict.

"The deadly feud between whites and blacks, which has been productive of so much bloodshed in Washington and Chicago in recent days, appears to be growing in intensity," says the Glasgow Herald. "Reports from Chicago, where the casualties own.

Parker & Monroe, Ltd.,
THE SHOE MEN.

"The immediate occasion of the conflicts in Chicago and elsewhere is said to have been the influx of negro workers, with their families, into several of the States of the Middle West in the course of the war. The depletion of the labour market in the North and West and the attraction of high wages have affected the blacks during the absence of so many thousands of Americans in Europe as the same causes affected the stream of Latin and Slav immigration in the years preceding the war. But with these differences, the Italians and the peasants of Slavdom who may settle permanently in the States are only a degree or two less assimilable than the British or Scandinavians, who may pass almost unremarked into the melting-pot of American nationality.

"With the blacks there can be no question of fusion. Nominally they are American citizens. But in spite of Constitutional amendments they are denied political rights. The Labour Unions will not admit them to membership. The colour bar is immovably fixed between them and the social life of the white community. They may not break bread in public with man or woman whose skin is of a different hue from theirs, and miscegenation and its unhappy products are abhorred unto the third and fourth generation.

Two Americas.

"In effect there are two Americas. There is the America which we know as the virile cousin of all the races of Europe, alert, resourceful, generous, enthusiastic, brimful of political ideals, eager in political experiment, more than half willing to believe that it is an elect people whose destiny it is, as befits the heir of all the ages, to excel the grandest achievements of the human family in art, literature, and science. And there is the America which is unknown, except as a dark background to the energies of a mighty nation, the America twenty millions strong or thereby of which we get humorous or pathetic glimpses in verse or story, but for the rest is a cipher or a problem, according as we choose to throw it an indifferent glance or pause for a moment to look at the impulsive countenance of the poor drudge, the black Cinderella of the American household. Well, it is the problem and not the cipher that is going to count.

"The very fact that White America has done or left undone in respect of its dark inheritance. Given the same conditions, who among us would concede equality at bed and board and all the rest of it to a race in but not of our history, tradition, and culture, whose characteristics, physical and moral, whatever functions they may be destined to fulfil in the long evolution of the human family, arouse a certain antipathy or quicken an active sense of race superiority?

"America has other colour questions to face. The question of the Red Man is being solved by his own more or less rapid disappearance. With the case of the Chinese and Japanese the Americans may continue to deal as they have dealt in the past, though at the risk of perils which will probably not decrease as time passes. But the negro is a domestic question that will not die a convenient death, like the Sioux and Pawnees, but will be augmented from year to year by the natural growth of a prolific race, by the increased measure in which blacks will enter to compete with whites, and by the persistence with which the hewers of wood and carriers of water will advocate their right to political equality."

An Old Salt's Plaint.

Oh, I've sailed the blue Pacific and
I've crossed the ocean wide,
And I've swallowed more than twice
my share of green Atlantic brine;
But the days of sails are over since the first steel ship was born,
And the gallant wooden boats of old are fading across the Line.

I have paced a pitching quarterdeck in Southern seas' typhoons.
When the waves ran high as mountains,
leaving terror in their wake;

But where metal ships would founder and collapse like pricked balloons,
Why, the gallant craft with oaken sides would hardly even quake.

Once, when sailors really earned the name 'twas fun to play with Death.
As we trod the good old wooden decks with iron men for crew:
Till the steamers—more's the pity—
came disdaining heaven's breath.
Driving sailing men before them till they'd cleared the billows blue.

Yes, we mixed commands with curses,
while the bucko mates of yore
Used their axes and belaying-pins
on half-rebelling sailors;
But our men were men for all o' that —they proved it when ashore (Though often more drunk than sober, what with rot-gut brands
of booze.)

Ah, the good old days back yonder, when a man could hoist his sail with the old Blue Peter flying—destination, "parts unknown,"
And slip out into the briny with a crew as hard as nails.
While the sheets strained at their halyards, and the bow plucked up a bone.

Aye, the good old days are over, leaving stranded high and dry
All the relics of a past decade, with yawning, open seams;
And the sea seen for baleful purpose—
that's bringin' such as I.
The remembrance that all sails are gone save those within my dreams,

New Relief For Constipation,
"LES FRUITS"

Physicians agree that with the modern habits of living, constipation is likely to be always with us. They also agreed that the constant use of any drug for the relief of constipation is exceedingly unwise—unwise for two reasons. First, a drug constantly used loses its effect and requires a constantly increased dose. Second, because the constant use of any drug is bad anyway.

So the cry is constantly going up from the constipated, "What can we do?" It will be interesting to a great many to know that an answer has been found in the re-discovery of a method which was used with great success by our Forefathers, and in Arabia far back in the twelfth century. The food is called "Les Fruits" because it is composed entirely of figs, dates, prunes, raisins and the leaves of each with the substitution of the Alexandra leaf for the raisin leaf. The taste is pleasant, if not to say delicious, and the effect is exceedingly satisfactory. Try it and be convinced.

Of all the poison taken into the blood, the germs and pus contributed by diseased gums and teeth are the most destructive to the human system. If every red blood cell is forced to fight against numbers of germs to the cell, the blood cannot attend to the building up of the body, and it allowed to continue the system is bound to break down and eventually you are liable to kidney trouble, heart trouble, rheumatism and many other diseases are brought on by diseased gums and teeth.

Opportunities in Long-Term Bonds

Bonds maturing in 1919 or 1920
may now be sold advantageously, and the funds reinvested in longer term securities. The benefits of present high interest yield rates may thereby be secured for a period of ten years and longer.

We shall be glad to offer suggestions.
