THE PANGS OF REMORSE —OR— A COMPLICATED TANGLE.

CHAPTER XIII.

"Would you wait an eternity for my love," she interrupted him, looking up into his half-darkened face with eager eyes.

He smiled down at her again and stood looking from the window, musing on:

"Clifford shut up in France, these two out of the way, we can rest while her ladyship takes possession."

A dark and sinister smile accompanied these words and was shadowed upon the woman's face.

"And she?" she asked, fixing her eyes upon him. "How long will she remain mistress of Rivershall?"

"As long as I please," he said, with a smile. "Until my revenge has been reached. Ah, Kate, it has been gathering its compound interest all these years; my thirst for it has known no abatement. I have only to remember that I am—what I am; have only to look upon her still beautiful, ever false face; have only to call up the memory of those short, sweet, deceptive months when my youth was fresh as that patch of sky yonder, and I feel the fire of hate blaze up afresh and strong, and I long for the ruin of this hated race as the tiger longs for blood."

His hand clinched as he spoke, and his face grew black as night, fit index of the soul.

"Hush!" she said, soothing him with a touch and glancing warningly at the bed. "Much has yet to be done, much to be disposed of, Melchior, ere the time can come when you and I will reap our reward. For the present have you no fear?"

"None!" he said, with a curling lip. "What have I to fear? Not this old man and his daughter; they are as wax in my hands."

"Nor Mr. Besant?" she asked.

"I trust to his cowardice and meanness," he said, with a gesture of contempt. "While the ban of fever hangs over the house he will keep clear of it, never fear."

"The doctor?" she asked.

He laughed a low, scornful laugh.

"His folly and senility are our safeguards. He leaves everything to me. My forged diplomas, my stories of renowned patients and august acquaintances—above all, my cure of that girl in the cottage yonder—have won him to believe in me implicitly. Not, if he can be so deceived as to mistake this partial state of coma, into which I have cast these two, for the fever he can be deceived as to anything. No, the old idiot is safe, perfectly. Who comes next, Kate? It is well that we should review them."

"The lawyers," she said.

"What have I to do with them?" he asked, raising his dark eyebrows. "My task done here, I shall depart, leaving them the field clear."

"I see, I see," she mused. "For the rest they are not to be feared. Her ladyship—"

He interrupted her with a dark and fateful smile.

"Will endure the torments of the lost. She shall believe that all this is her work and ah—what a meal of revenge for me! and yet more to come."

"How?" asked the woman, quickly.

He replied with a frown.

"That is for me," he said, curtly, and she knew she had gone too far.

"Last, there is left Clarence Clifford; fate may desert us and bring him on the scene too quickly."

"No," he said, with a smile; "he is safe. Trust a Calais private prison to hold him until I give the word. Then when the bird is free and flies hither he will find the nest gone. The pretty sweetheart and her dotting father dead and buried—"

A cry short and awful stopped him. The woman grasped his arm with the sudden clutch of a vice.

He looked down at her, turned swiftly in the direction her eyes were staring and saw his patient and victim sitting up in bed looking at them with two wide-stretched eyes and white, parted lips.

"She has heard all!" breathed Miss Lucas, her breath coming fast and thick.

Melchior silenced her with a look, and with a noiseless step approached the bed.

The terror-stricken girl, alive to and fully aware of the horrible plot against her own and her father's life, sprang up and essayed to scream, but all that her terrified tongue would pronounce was a gasping:

"Murderers!"

Before he could say more Miss Lucas darted forward like a snake, caught her in her arms and forced her down again.

"Quick!" she cried, holding her hand over the poor, struggling lips. "Give me the handkerchief—quick!"

Melchior, with flashing eyes, drew a vial from his pocket, poured its contents upon a handkerchief, and held it over Lillian's face. After one or two convulsive struggles a quivering sigh ran through her frame, and she lay perfectly motionless.

Miss Lucas straightened her back with a breath of relief, while Melchior still bent over her.

"Hush!" he said, "not a word, some one may be outside. Give me that glass. The draught must be ministered now—at once—before we are detected."

Miss Lucas passed a wine glass from the table, and Melchior, taking a tiny vial from his pocket, poured out a few drops of a colorless liquid.

These he forced between the teeth of the unconscious girl, and then threw the vial upon the fire, where its thin substance soon melted and disappeared. The handkerchief was also consigned to the flames and the bedclothes arranged neatly.

Then the two conspirators stood and looked at each other. Their work thus far had been well done, now for its completion.

"Kate," said Melchior, "it is done."

Watch her closely while I mark the time."

The woman bent over the still form, and fixed her eyes upon the pallid face.

"She is growing deathlike! It is death itself!"

"And the breath?" asked Melchior, keeping his eyes fixed upon the second hand of his watch.

"Is going, going fast. It has gone!" she exclaimed, in an awe-struck whisper.

"Good!" he said, with a sinister smile. "Now for our places. Stay here while I go below to the library or dining room. In five minutes ring the bell loudly and cry out for assistance; the first one who comes send to look for me. The rest I can manage."

Waiting only for her word of acquiescence, the grave doctor walked slowly down the stairs, stopping to answer one of the servants inquiries with a grave shake of the head, and passing into the dining room.

Some luncheon was spread there, and with his usual coolness the doctor helped himself to some raised pie and sipped a glass of choice claret.

Five minutes passed and he was still enjoying his repast when a bell rang loudly. There followed a rushing of two or three servants—there were only a few in the house now, most of them had taken flight at the fever—and then a cry of distress.

In another minute a servant entered hurriedly.

"Doctor, Miss Lucas is calling for you, I'm afraid—"

"For me?" interrupted the doctor, setting down his glass and rising hastily. "Yes, certainly," and he ran up the stairs and entered the sick room.

In a few seconds he came out again with a solemn face and addressed the group of terror-stricken servants in the lobby:

"One of you ride for Mr. Morecroft, and bring him back immediately."

One of the grooms dashed off and soon returned with the old doctor, who, from what he had been able to glean from the man's account, was fully prepared.

Mr. Bromwell met him at the head of the staircase, and without a word took him into the sick room.

"My dear sir," he said, "I regret to say—"

The poor old doctor, notwithstanding his years of experience, burst into tears.

"I have known her from her birth," was all he could say, and it was some moments before he could approach her bed.

When he did it was to burst out afresh:

"Dead, dead!" and he looked down upon the white, marble-lined face, the still, rigid outline. "Dead, and I not here at the time."

So affecting was the scene that Miss Lucas sobs came thick and fast:

"Oh!" she cried, "who is to break it to poor Sir Ralph? My dear, dear girl! my poor Lillian!"

At this reminder of fresh trouble to come the old doctor summoned all his fortitude and consulted with Dr. Bromwell, who, though not an old friend of the unfortunate family, was very much moved and spoke quite huskily.

Between them it was determined to conceal the sad calamity from Sir Ralph until he had fully recovered—"If he should do so," added Dr. Bromwell, with sad significance.

Isle of Wight Peril

IN DANGER OF BEING CUT IN TWO

The Hampshire Archaeological Association have visited Freshwater Bay, Isle of Wight, where the sea threatens to break through and join the river flowing into the Solent, cutting off the western portion of the island from the remainder.

Mr. George Colenutt, of Ryde, who has studied coast erosion locally, said the possibility was not remote if a southerly gale were accompanied by a high tide, and if so the fall of the land and the difference in the height of the water in the Channel and Solent would cause a huge rush of sea, inundating the whole valley and involving public water and sewage works, railway, and much private property.

He claimed that the rapid advance of the sea was due to the folly of the Government about seventy years ago in removing large quantities of the natural shingle barrier for building forts at the entrance to the Solent. Only a narrow strip of shingle now holds back the sea.

Local authorities have appealed to the Government for help to erect protective works, but without result.

The Imperial Idea

A scheme to educate the rising generation to the possibilities of Empire trade has been started in the Australian Pavilion at the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley.

Parties of 400 or 500 boys from secondary schools are taken each day for a three hours' tour of the pavilion by Australians who explain the exhibits and give short lectures on Empire trade and history. The boys are then invited to write essays on their visit, prizes being awarded for the best.

Of the 5,000 boys who have already attended, 2,500 have sent in essays, and others pour in every day.

A Hammersmith boy, Allan Munro, aged 14, after visiting the exhibition, went to a shipping company and within a fortnight had arranged to work his passage to Australia, as he is too young to go out under the boys' migration scheme. Munro sets off on his adventure very soon.

Pit Phenomenon

Reference to the condition of affairs in Scotswood Pit, where on March 30 last 35 men and boys lost their lives, through being trapped by an influx of water, is made by Mr. W. Straker, secretary of the Northumbrian Miners' Association in a recent circular.

He states that at the place where the water broke through and where there is still a considerable quantity

70th Annual Convention OF CANADIAN GRAND LODGE.

HAMILTON, Ont., July 3.—(Canadian Press)—An interesting ceremony will take place at the 70th annual communication of the Masonic Grand Lodge of Canada in the province of Ontario, which is to be held here July 15 and 16, when a number of past masters in good standing of affiliated lodges, who have attained their 50th anniversary of installation as rulers in the craft, will be presented with appropriately inscribed silver medals.

Approximately 105,000 "blue lodge" masons in the province will be represented at the communication, to be presided over by W. J. Drope, Grand Master.

The committee of general purpose meets on July 13 and 14 for presentation to Grand Lodge, which as a whole opens on July 15, being received on behalf of the local masons by W. J. Jutten, mayor of Hamilton, and member of the craft.

At the election of officers on the day, July 16, it is expected that W. Rowland, of Toronto, present puty grand master, will become grand master. Candidates for position of puty grand master will probably be Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, and A. J. Jutten of Toronto and North Bay.

British Government Appoints First Lord as Mediator In Miners' Dispute

Anthracite Miners Demand Further Concessions.—French Chamber Appropriates an Additional 180,000,000 Francs for Riff War.

GOVERNMENT INTERVENTION IN MINING TROUBLES.

LONDON, July 9. The Government to-day began its efforts to mediate the differences between the miners and mine owners growing out of the men's refusal to work under a new agreement providing for lower wages and increased working hours. W. C. Bridgeman, First Lord of the Admiralty, who has agreed to act as mediator, had a conference with a committee appointed by the Mine Owners Association at which Sir Arthur Steel Maitland and George Richard Laneox, secretary for the miners, were present. Tomorrow these ministers will confer with the executive of the miners' federation. After this hearing both sides, it is expected the mediators will endeavor to induce the mine owners to submit a more acceptable draft for a new wage agreement.

MOROCCAN POLICY ENDORSED.

PARIS, July 9. The government's Moroccan policy was endorsed to-night by the chamber of deputies by an overwhelming majority. An additional appropriation for the Moroccan operations of 189,000,000 francs was granted the Government by a vote of 411 to 39.

U. S. MINERS DEMANDS.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., July 9. John L. Lewis, International Miners' President, presented to the anthracite mine owners in joint conference, the demands of the 158,000 miners for a ten per cent wage increase, the check off, a two year contract and various improvements in working conditions, upon expiration of the present contract, on August 31st, Samuel D. Warriner, chairman of the anthracite operators conference, in reply confessed to "wonder and amazement" at the terms. He said the market conditions dictated a wage decrease rather than increase, pronounced the operators' hostility to the check off as unabated but closed by using arbitration in event of a deadlock. If arbitration had not effected some reversal of the contract by September 1, Mr. Warriner said, the employees were willing to continue under the present scale until an award had been made. The miners' attitude was not disclosed.

ARMSTRONG UNDERWENT SERIOUS OPERATION.

HALIFAX, July 9. Hon. E. H. Armstrong, Premier of Nova Scotia, defeated in the general elections of June 25 when only three of his supporters were elected to a house of 43 members, was to-night slowly recovering from a dangerous operation to an affected hip at the Victoria General Hospital following an indisposition lasting over a week which altered all his plans for tendering the resignation of the Government, and developed a condition which seriously alarms his physicians. The report from the hospital to-night was that Premier Armstrong was no longer in pain and that his physician was satisfied with the patient's improvement. Hon. E. T. Rhodes, leader of the Conservative forces, is resting to-day from his journey from Ottawa and the demonstration given him on his arrival here last night. He has held meetings of the members elected, the majority of whom were in Halifax for the reception last night, and it is understood that the new cabinet has been practically completed, in readiness for the resignation of the defeated government.

AUTHORS WIDOW DEAD.

BERLIN, July 9. Mrs. Bayard Taylor, widow of the noted author and diplomat, who was United States minister to Germany in 1878 died to-day at Partenkirchen, Bavaria. She was 96 years of age.

U. S. WHEAT AND CORN CROP.

WASHINGTON, July 9. This year's wheat crop was forecast at 680,000,000 bushels by the United States Department of Agriculture to-day. The corn crop was forecast at 2,065,000,000.

A TEMPORARY SETTLEMENT.

NEW YORK, July 9. The threatened tie-up of millions of dollars in new construction was averted to-day when representatives of the Plasterers and Bricklayers Unions signed an agreement, assuring a temporary settlement at least of their jurisdictional disputes.

BANK OF FRANCE LOWERS DISCOUNT RATE.

PARIS, July 9. The Bank of France to-day lowered the discount rate from seven to six per cent, but the rate for loans on ### securities remains at eight per cent.

$1,000,000 PROFIT IN MANITOBA'S LIQUOR TRADE.

WINNIPEG, July 9. Approximately $1,000,000 profit was netted by the Manitoba Liquor Control Commission for the eight months period ending April 30th, 1925, it was announced to-day. It was also announced that the finances of the Commission for the eight month period showed a surplus of $125,000 as compared with an estimated deficit of $245,000.

DROWNING FATALITIES.

MONTREAL, July 9. Moe Michaelson, 20, and Sidney Pascal, 18, both of Montreal were drowned while bathing in Lake Lacazza 105 miles from here last night.

FRANCE'S CHINESE TREATIES.

PARIS, July 9. Two Washington arms conference treaties relating to China which were ratified Tuesday by the Chamber of Deputies were favorably reported to-day by the Foreign Affairs Committee of the French Senate and will be presented to-morrow to the Senate for ratification.

44th VICTIM.

BOSTON, July 9. The Pickwick Club disaster of July 4th claimed the 44th victim to-day when Max Mullmat of Roxbury died in the city hospital.

PASTOR CALLED.

SAINT JOHN, July 9. Main Street Baptist Church congregation last night decided to extend a call to Rev. J. A. Huntley D.D. pastor of Main Street Baptist Church, Montreal.

FRENCH RELEASE NATIVES.

FEZ, July 9. Several hundred native women and children being held as hostages by Abd-el Krim's Rifians, were released by the French to-day when the latter by a quick drive along the Quercba River captured several villages from the enemy. The women and children were being held by the Rifians in an attempt to compel the men of their tribe to join the forces fighting the French. To-day's French official communication announced another repulse of Abd-el Krim's attacking troops in the upper Lohen region where the Rifian leader recently began an extensive drive against the French.

Only a Few Minutes for Beauty and Charm

Just before retiring use the Three Flowers cleansing cream, rubbing well into the skin. In the morning a minute should be taken for the Vanishing cream, then apply Three Flowers Face Powder. This only takes a few minutes, and what woman would not gladly give a few minutes a day for a beautiful, charming complexion. July 9, 21

Urgent Repairs Needed

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir—The attention of the Municipal authorities is called to the disgraceful condition of the north side of Quidi Viar Road. From the junction of Circular Road to Rose's gate is so badly holed as to make walking extremely dangerous at night time, while to motorists (and they have certain rights, too!) it must be like taking the bumps at a Coney Island pleasure resort. The approach of the annual Regatta means that large numbers of citizens congregate there nightly, while a walk around the Fond for health's sake is proverbial. Now that some excavation is being done on the roadside near the Cemetery it should be an easy and inexpensive matter to have the necessary repairs to the road done expeditiously. Yours truly, PEDESTRIAN.

Fire Discovered at Hickman's Premises

An alarm of fire at 2 o'clock this morning brought the Central and West End Fire Companies to A. E. Hickman's premises where the watchman had discovered a blaze amongst the ruins left after the conflagration of Saturday last. A couple of streams of water were effectively applied and the outbreak was subdued in a short while.

"FIND YOUR MAN" HAS EXCELLENT STORY AND GREAT PLOT.

Theatre-goers should see "Find Your Man," the picture which opened at the Nickel last night. If only to get a glimpse of a real lumber country. If the picture had nothing else to recommend it, it would still be considered a good production because of the extraordinary scenery—the spectacular water falls, the smooth, sparkling river, the secluded but in a magnificent country.

The scenery, to be sure, would be sufficient recommendation for this production, but you do not have to accept our suggestion to see the picture for one particular feature, for there is another—in fact many others to recommend it. One of the most important is the acting of Rin-Tin-Tin, a

Belgian police dog with almost uncanny intelligence.

He has had the training of a real athlete, as his high jumps, running and broad jumps will prove.

June Marlowe plays the leading feminine role convincingly. Eric St. Clair, as her sweetheart, is exceptionally good. Other members of the cast are Charles Mallet, Pat Hartigan, Fred Stanton, Lew Harvey and Charles Conklin. The direction is to be credited to Mill St. Clair, director of "George Washington, Jr."

"Find Your Man" is a Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen.

Caplin and Salmon Canning at Holyrood

We understand that Mr. Robert Chambers with Mr. Morgan has already made a promising start in the development of a caplin canning industry. A new factory has been built at George's Cove, Holyrood, the necessary apparatus installed, and under the management of Capt. Walter Kennedy operations have begun which promise satisfactory results.

Mr. Chambers, who recently arrived from British Columbia to investigate the canning industries at the request of the Government, is conversant with every detail of the work, is an enthusiast, and has most favourably impressed those who have visited the scene with the great possibilities of the industry.

While the work at present is more or less in the experimental stages, the abundance of the supply of fish, the success which has been achieved and praise bestowed on the new food product by those who have partaken of it encourage the promoters to believe that they are proceeding in the right direction, and that another source of wealth will soon be added to the harvest of the sea.

In addition to preserving the caplin, Mr. Chambers has introduced new methods in the manner of putting up salmon, with marked results. The initial success in these operations fully justify the venture, and the Government are to be congratulated on their enterprise.

Convicted of Larceny

Yesterday afternoon a domestic was arraigned before Mr. McCarthy, J.P.

and was charged with stealing $6.55 in cash, and one diamond ring, valued at $100, the property of Rev. Facey, Kelligrewa. The girl admitted taking the money, but stated she bought the ring from another domestic at Rev. Facey's home, for twenty cents. The evidence showed that this could not be true, as Mr. Facey wore the ring after the time the girl had said she made the purchase. Mr. McCarthy, J.P., in summing up, could not believe the girl's story, and taking into consideration that it was her first appearance before court, he would give her the option of a fine in the sum of $30 or in default two months imprisonment.

HELLO, MEN!

Were you one of the crowd that thronged our Store all day last Saturday? From the minute the doors opened and until the last minute of the last business hour they came. It was an enthusiastic crowd that snapped up the Bargains faster than we could wrap them up at times, but with a jolly and appreciative lot, and we surely enjoyed serving them even though taxed to the limits of our capacity at times. A MODERN MIRACLE EXPLAINED.

We had been talking food costs.

One woman with four children said it had cost her about $45 a week to feed her household of seven.

Another who has ten months to feed lives on a budget which $25 goes for food.

Two young married people who have themselves to look out for consumed $16 a week spent for food.

Other budgets followed about this way the lowest cost per person being a week.

How Can They Get Along. And then I asked the question that always comes to me when we are discussing this problem: How in the world do the people who make perhaps $80 a week and have six or eight children live at all? Sometimes when I have been appalled by my own food costs I have lain awake nights trying to puzzle them out. Suppose there are six children and $30 a week. That's eight in the family. Suppose they feed that family on $2.50 per person. That means $20 for food and leaves $10 a week for rent (which must take at least half of that and generally more) and for clothes, car fares (if the man has to ride to work), doctor's bills and any incidentals for eight persons.

PEARS' Used in the best circles.

It Can't Be Done But It Is.
It just can't be done. And yet I know there are plenty of men who make no more than that and plenty of families of six or eight children. Of course I know that as soon as they are old enough the children go to work. But there must be years before they can. It can't be done but it is. I shall never cease wondering about it. I think it's a modern miracle.

I said something to that effect and some of the others expressed a similar wonder and then one woman said: "I've done a little as a social worker and I can tell you one way it's done."

"How?" asked several of us at once. "By the help of some relative in the background, some brother or sister who isn't married and who helps out when things get too bad. Maybe he lives with them and pays pretty good board or maybe he just hands over something when things get too bad. But I don't know why I say 'he' for more times it's a 'she', generally the wife's sister. When I hear people talking about how noble it is to have a lot of children and about the sacrifices parents make I often think of these next parents in the background and wish they might get more credit."

FEET ACHE?
Rub them well with Minard's and know what real foot comfort means.

All Honor To These Next Parents.
Her explanation opened up an interesting vista, don't you think? A vista down which we can look and see ranks on ranks of these patient, self-sacrificing, next parents, who without the satisfaction of parenthood make money of their sacrifices.

I shall think of them now when I ponder over the modern miracle. Think of them and honor them.
If we didn't have too many "Days" already, I should like to try and bring about an Aunt's and Uncle's day when such as these should be honored.

WITH A SMILE.

Some of the tasks we have to do are of a kind to make us blue; if we're cheap sports we show we're sore when up against some painful chore, but if we're thorough breads we show no symptoms of internal woe.

Collectors come to me with bills for groceries and hats and pills; it is a painful thing to think that I must dig the hard-earned chink. It is a ghastly thing to pay the sad old bills of yesterday, to pay out silver coins and brass that I would like to blow for gas. My tired old heart feels sick and sore when come collectors at my door, and for a moment brief, perchance, there is some hauteur in my glance. But bitter thoughts I promptly spurn, and to my eager callers turn, and cry, "Fair maids and merry men, come in and get the useful yen! How pleasant 'tis to pay one's bills! It always gives me joyous thrills." I take the bills with bows and beams, and write my pink and purple checks, and pay the bill of every toff, and wear the smile that won't come off. The glad collectors go their ways, and everywhere they give me praise. "It all the people," they observe. "How emulate his graceful curve, and hand out wads of hard-earned mon as though they thought the process fun, without a rumble of distress, our lives would be a great success." But scores of men look bleak and gray when they are called upon to pay; they gnash their teeth and wag their ears and shed some plain and fancy tears, and thereby gain some unpleasant fame as being pikers in the game.

Lend a Helping Hand

The Regatta Committee, in the successful efforts they are making to improve the Lakeside, are deserving of great credit, and what is even more to the point, of the practical support of all public minded citizens.

The northern bank of Quidi Vidi Lake is a park in the making. The land was obtained from the former owner, the Hon. Sir Edgar Bowring, at what was nothing more than a nominal figure, and if our citizens will lend their support to the project, St. John's will possess one of the most beautiful resorts within the precincts of any city.

At times acts of vandalism are recorded in the press, and the conduct of the perpetrators is condemned in the strongest language permissible, but is it not possible that we ourselves are in a certain measure to blame for these depredations, in that we fail to make a feature of the beautiful in our surroundings?

There are few individuals to whom beauty, cleanliness, and orderliness make no appeal whatever. In some, the taste for such things may not be very pronounced, but in most cases it can be cultivated, and the educative factor to a great extent is environment. Even the youngest child whose home is surrounded by flowers and trees is easily taught to love them and to leave them unmolested. It must therefore be concluded that a considerable part of the destruction of plants and the lack of respect—as we term it—for private property are due, not so much to wantonness, as to a lack of appreciation caused by ignorance and neglect.

Let us strive in St. John's to improve its general appearance, and the many acts of which we have to complain to-day will soon far less frequently be committed. Bowring Park we have in the West of the city, and its influence is all for good. The East end of the city is urgently in need of a similar facility, a similar educative influence, and what finer site could be selected for such a park than the slopes of our most popular resort, Quidi Vidi Lake?

Lend your aid, citizens, to a most worthy cause by a prompt and generous response to the request made for funds by the Regatta Committee. They have undertaken this work, not for themselves, but for the benefit of all of us, and not for us alone, but for posterity.

Another matter. If by Regatta Day the condition of the surroundings of our War Memorial have not received attention by the authorities, we would suggest that the citizens of St. John's take the matter in their own hands, rope off the square, and with pick and shovel set about making the place in keeping with the sacred purpose to which it has been dedicated. Would we have vehicles wearing ruts across the plots where our dead lie buried, or the monuments erected to their memory made to appear a mockery by the dilapidated and neglected appearance of the surroundings? Surely the devotion of those who made the greatest sacrifice of all is deserving of something more than lip-service!

Let us be up and doing, in justice to those heroes, as an example to our children, and in order that we may be acquitted of being remiss in a plain matter of duty.

We commend the suggestion to the enterprising Acting Secretary of the G. W. V. A., who with his colleagues would no doubt have little difficulty in organizing such a Citizens' Army. If the authorities cannot be moved by a sense of their responsibility or by importunities into taking the necessary action, perhaps they may be shamed into following the lead given by private individuals.

Road Work Progressing

Great activity is in evidence on the Salmonier Road where some twelve gangs of men are engaged under the Highroads Commission in getting the road in good condition. The work is being superintended by Mr. R. J. Kennedy and Mr. Patrick Ezechiel and great progress has been made. Recently reports were heard that unnecessary destruction was caused to the forests through which the road passes. This we learn is unfounded. In places where the road passed through swampy country, a certain amount of woods had to be cleared to facilitate drainage but Commissioner Hall has directed matters himself and has taken every precaution to preserve the beauty of the scenery.

Operations were started also on Monday on the main line where Mr. Edward Butler is in charge.

Improvements at Quidi Vidi Park

It is very pleasing to note that the regatta collectors are meeting with a ready response, due no doubt to the improved aspect of Quidi Vidi Lake. The committee is to be congratulated on attempting, with very limited funds, such a herculean task, and the fact that citizens generally are increasing their regular subscriptions, speaks well for their appreciation. The intention is to have a promenade extend from the head of the Lake to the eastern boathouse eliminating entirely that soft, marshy portion of the ground near the upper end, and very materially increasing the area there, so that everyone may now witness each race with ease. All this is being piled and filled in, and the necessity for further funds to complete the work is nicely outlined in a circular letter issued by the regatta publicity staff, P. F. Collins, J. J. Lac and E. A. Smith, which letter is being sent out to the various business houses. The regatta committee have every reason to be proud of the work accomplished to date.

Belvedere Garden Party

There have been so many comments in recent years about patrons being annoyed with frequent requests to buy lottery tickets in practically everything from a cheap cigar to a departmental store, that the Management of Belvedere Garden Party has wisely banned any such proceeding on the picnic grounds. Positively no lotteries will be conducted on the grounds on Wednesday and those who attend will not suffer that annoyance. The grounds belong to the public on Wednesday and the committee in charge want to see everyone thoroughly well pleased with the day's entertainment. It is to be hoped that every lady and gentleman in the city who have the interests of Belvedere's little fatherless tots at heart will come on Wednesday and bring their friends. If you have a dollar to spend good value will be given you for it, but the spending will be appreciated. If you have not come anyway and you will be made welcome. The orphans are "At Home" next Wednesday from 3 to 8 or 9 p.m.—July 14, 11

Smuggling Case Continues

The smuggling case was continued in the Magistrates Court at 4.30 yesterday afternoon, when Customs Officers S. Kendrick was again called and cross-examined by Mr. Fenelon. Witness said he was doing plain clothes duty on the night of the seizure. His duty was to prevent smuggling and to protect the revenue of the country. He partly knew Bryne's plans from the beginning, and he did not tell them what they were doing was wrong. He did not think he did wrong when he gave the signal. Witness was acting under special instructions on that night after ten o'clock. Before that hour he was on ordinary duty.

To Mr. Fox—After the signal had been given Mr. Shears told witness that he was tired, and was going over to the Orleans at this time why they did not wish to take the captain or supercargo. It was about 11 o'clock when the captain and supercargo came on board. After this Shears and Bryne came over but witness remained on the wharf. Witness was on board about ten minutes before the Herbert Green cast off her lines. At that time he had a conversation with the supercargo, in company with Customs Officer Wilson. The supercargo offered them a bottle or a case of whiskey, and told them to be jolly good fellows and keep their eyes closed, and that they would be away in a few minutes. Witness then came ashore and left Wilson on board. Adjournment was taken at 5.30 until 11.30 to-day.

Song Recital by Miss Marjorie Hutchings, L.T.C.M.

THE SUNDAY MORNING'S SESSION.

The splendid programme of music rendered in the Synod Hall last night by Miss Marjorie Hutchings assisted by Mr. Alex Mews, was deserving of a far larger audience than attended. The smallness of the number present was to a great extent made up by the warm appreciation expressed by those who were privileged to hear the talented musicians.

The selections rendered by Miss Hutchings covered a wide range and afforded the audience an excellent opportunity to judge of her remarkable versatility, her interpretation, and the power and expression of her splendid contralto voice. The delight of the audience was shown by their undivided attention to the various selections and by their repeated requests for encores.

Mr. Alex Mews, who gave several selections on the 'cello, was accompanied by Miss Mews, and Mr. H. Gordon Christian acted as accompanist to Miss Hutchings. During the performance both the ladies were presented with bouquets.

PEPYS BEHIND THE SCENES

July 9th—Up betimes and abroad, the weather grown fine albeit somewhat cold. Anon to the Petty Court where the hearing of the smuggling charges against the captain of the Herbert Green and 3 other men do attract a great crowd of people. The evidence for the day to show how 5 cases of whiskey are sold by the Green to an American vessel that is in port. Anon to the Sessions Court where Mr. Howley do argue the cause of the defendants in the claims made against the Reid Newfoundland Company by Mr. Thomson and others. Already there are 240,000 words in the evidence, and the case like to be a record in one in this country for length. Talking this day with Dr. Grieve and anon with Dr. Moores, and both do tell me of the Medical Convention that will be held next September, and among others will be present are divers doctors from Canada that are specialists in certain branches of physics. The discourses of the convention like to have particular reference to such ailments as are nightly common in this country. But Lord, 'twere hard to know what may happen when doctors come together and I do hope that they will not attempt to popularise some new operation that may take the place of those that do now grow common from much use.

Magistrates Court

THIS MORNING'S SESSION.

The action arising out of the seizure of the Herbert Green was continued in the Magistrate's Court at 11.30 this morning, before Mr. McCarthy, J.P., when the evidence of Customs Officer Wilson was taken.

James Wilson, sworn and examined. Witness said he was a Customs officer with nine years' experience in the service. He recognised with four defendants in court. He remembered Saturday last when the Herbert Green was lying at the Furness Wharf. Capt. Nauffis and super cargo Ryan were charge of the ship. He met Capt. Bryne about eight o'clock on the morning of the 4th, and had several conversations with super cargo Ryan on the wharf during the day. The Herbert Green's cargo consisted of whiskey, champagnes and other brands of liquors. She arrived about 2.45 Saturday evening and witness boarded her in the stream. After witness had proceeded on board, he spoke to the captain and warned him not to sell any liquors or cigarettes. About eight o'clock on Saturday evening Capt. Bryne came down on the wharf and asked witness about the Herbert Green's cargo, mentioning that he wanted to get four or five cases of liquor. Capt. Bryne then took from his pocket a roll of bills, and while he was holding it out, he asked witness what was the price of the liquor. Witness replied that he did not know. Bryne then went on board, and was followed by witness about half minute later. According to witness the captain of the Orleans and super cargo Ryan then went into the captain's cabin, and witness overheard a conversation between the two from the outside. He remembered Capt. Bryne asking super cargo Ryan if he could get four or five cases of whiskey for him. The super cargo told him that there was nothing doing, as the ship was sailing at eleven o'clock. Ryan remarked that he would see him later. Witness then said good night and left the ship. Meanwhile Capt. Bryne and super cargo Ryan also left the ship and walked up the wharf.

Nothing of any importance occurred until 11 o'clock, until the Herbert Green's whistle blew, which denoted her sailing in a half hour's time. Super-cargo Ryan told Customs officials at that hour that nothing would be taken from the ship. Witness stated that Super-cargo Ryan gave officer Kendrick a bottle of liquor a short while later in his presence and told him to be a good sport, and keep his eyes shut. Witness then saw four men coming down the wharf. He did not know they were policemen until Const. Kenny ordered witness to put lines around the gump head. He did so but the line broke. Witness did not see any liquor go over the side of ship on the night of the 4th, and also did not know if liquor of any description had been taken until he saw it in possession of a constable in a boat. That was about 12.30 Sunday morning. Const. Churchill was the officer in charge.

Witness remembered the time Super-cargo Ryan gave Kendrick a bottle of liquor in the captain's cabin. The bottle was produced in court. Witness could not swear it was the same as given Kendrick, but felt sure it was the same-brand. It was 11.45 p.m. that Super-cargo Ryan offered a case or a bottle of whiskey to Kendrick. Kendrick offered Customs officers Roberts and witness a case of whiskey, but it was not accepted.

Cross-examined by Mr. Fenelon—Witness was on board the Herbert Green shortly before she left the wharf. He was in company with Customs officer Kendrick when the ship's whistle blew.

The court arose at 1 p.m. for recess.

Missing Fishermen Return

Three men, Wm. At 11 o'clock last night Constables F. Bennett, G. Lovatt and J. Seward left in the police motor boat to institute a search for the missing men, and were obliged to return early this morning without locating them. At about 10 o'clock the missing ones came back to port. Owing to the breeze last night they were not able to enter the Narrows, and were obliged to seek shelter in the bay.

Cod Liver Oil Industry

C. C. Lewis, who is now here in connection with the Cod Liver Oil Industry interests of Messrs. E. R. Squibb & Sons of New York, whose name is at the very top of Medical and Pharmaceutical requirements, has given us the following information, which we are sure will be of greatest interest to the mercantile community who are working this industry, also to the Government, especially to the Marine Fisheries Department, who have control of the Oil Inspectors, and do so much to assist scientific investigations, and establish our Refined Cod Liver Oil as the very highest quality manufactured anywhere.

Referring to what others have said we must make special reference to the Excellency the Governor, who is at once on his arrival here in connection with the Cod Liver Oil Industry passing through, and Dr. S. S. Zilva and Mr. Michaelham the British Experts by the Government, and has allowed no opportunity to pass whereby the industry could be advanced.

The influence that the Government has taken in this is only one of the indefatigable work done by Lady Allardyce in the Maritime Association, where Cod Liver Oil has been one of their "stocks" to build up the bodies of the children. The Secretary of the Association refers to their supply of Cod Liver Oil as the "Widow's Cruise" as being an unending supply for the welfare of the poor children they are looking after.

With such interest being taken from the very highest in the land for the welfare of every one, we need only refer to the strong support given by the Minister, Hon. W. S. Monroe, altho' the Minister of Finance, Sir John Coakley, as evidenced in his famous speech, and the daily work of the Medical Association to show how the whole community are of the opinion that has been done to establish this industry as one of our best resources in Newfoundland.

But to get back to our interview we would kindly ask our many readers who do not know what Squibb & Sons preparations stand for, to ask any doctor or Druggist in St. John's the simple question of "Have you heard of Squibb & Sons?" and they will tell you at once that they stand at the top of the profession, and by the superiority of their preparations hold commanding position not alone in the United States, but in every civilized country. The firm are multi-millionaires, and ever on the outlook for the highest quality products that the world can produce.

This is a long introduction, but the industry deserves it, and we will now let Mr. Lewis tell his own story.

This is my second visit to Newfoundland, and it is a very great pleasure to come back again to your beautiful country. The opportunity I have had to meet many Newfoundlanders and discuss matters of mutual interest leads me to look forward to my return visits.

For eighty years the firm of E. R. Squibb & Sons, whom I represent here, has taken the lead in the Medicinal Cod Liver Oil Industry. The founder of our firm, Dr. Edward R. Squibb, realized long ago the merits of Cod Liver Oil as a most valuable remedy preventive for many diseases, and he impressed upon me, that he visited personally near the middle of the last century, where he probably found more than any other person to encourage the manufacture of Medicinal Cod Liver Oil, and especially to develop methods of improving its quality.

His sons have been leaders in practically every improvement in Norwegian Oil, as their principal manufacturers will tell you.

We know everything that has happened in the manufacture of Newfoundland Medicinal Cod Liver Oil during the past thirty or forty years. A general thing Norwegian Oil has been superior to yours, especially in taste, color, and odor. The greater collection in Norway and the support of scientists and statesmen enabled our manufacturers there to establish world-wide reputation for the quality of their oil, due largely to careful supervision of manufacturing and to thorough grading of the oil.

Only in recent years has Science discovered that the health-giving and preserving qualities of Cod Liver Oil are due to the vitamins, and scientists endeavored to find out just what these vitamins are, and how to determine the vitamin strength of any sample of oil. Dr. Zilva and his colleagues visited Newfoundland recently to measure the vitamin strength of the oil made here, and to compare it with the oil from Norway and Iceland. The analytical laboratories are constantly sending oil from Norway, Newfoundland, New Scotia, and Maine, as well as some from Iceland and Alaska.

This new knowledge of Oil has led the best manufacturers to try and secure for physicians and the public, the richest in vitamins. Our firm goes far as to paste a label on each bottle stating the actual vitamin strength the oil contains.

We find that it costs more to make here than in Norway. Lives are expensive, labor is better paid, practical costs are higher, so that Norway is undersold Newfoundland, therefore every assistance must be given the Manufacturer to offset these difficulties, or the business cannot be continued.

The best Non-freezing Medicinal Oil from Norway has been selling in the United States for the same price as your refiners expect here for Crude Medicinal Oil before removal of the stearine, packing, and paying freight to Newfoundland Oil will be paid only if you can produce a superior oil, and your great drawing card will have to be vitamin strength. Norwegian Manufacturers know this, and their scientists are doing everything to produce their product with greatest vitamin strength, therefore you are up against a hard proposition.

Our firm believes that Newfoundland Medicinal Cod Liver Oil can be made much better than it has been made. By improved steaming and protection of the oil from the air, the vitamin content can be increased, so that it will show from 25 to 100 per cent, richer oil than now produced here, but you must prove to the World that this can be done.

I have been delighted with the taste of freshly made oil, which has a sweet nutty flavor, and practically no odor. Cleanliness, proper straining, and prompt freezing will preserve this sweet oil from developing a disagreeable taste and color. We consider that such an oil can be produced, which would be superior to any now on sale.

After careful investigation I find that Newfoundland Oil can be made more profitably. For example the residue left over after cooking the livers can be turned into a product of sufficient value to pay a good part of the expense of running a factory, and I have taken up this matter and others very carefully with Mr. Munn.

I cannot understand why you should encourage the shipment of Cod Liver Oil in the crude state out of your Country. In Harbor Grace Mr. Munn has a splendid plant for this work, and he is now installing there new machinery costing thousands of dollars. It is the finest equipment and most modern that I know of. With this equipment he can preserve the vitamins in the oil, and offer to the world a much better product than in the past.

We have followed with interest the work of Mr. Munn toward improving your Cod Liver Oil during the past forty years. He adopted the use of the lin-lined barrels to preserve the flavor of the oil when wooden barrels were still in common use elsewhere. He was the leader in introducing the first direct steam appliances now in universal use here. His connection in bringing to this Country an Inspector trained in Norway, and his persuasion of Dr. Zilva and his colleagues to come here have had a lasting effect upon this industry. I have found that the owners of the factories appreciate his work, and undoubtedly his efforts receive the support of the Government and of the public. In the United States we support the work of a real leader in an industry, and our efforts are now being directed to assist Mr. Munn with the best advice of our Scientists toward the solution of the problem of a better oil and its more economical production.

I want to acknowledge the courtesy and interest of Government officials, and especially the Department of Marine and Fisheries, in offering assistance and information, but I have always found that private enterprise must usually solve its own difficulties, and after that the Government can assist by regulation and inspection.

Your country is blessed with the happy feeding grounds of the Codfish, and scientific reports show your fish to be of the finest quality. If the efforts of those now trying to improve the quality of your Oil are supported and the business brought down to an economic basis you will quickly increase the value of this very important industry in Newfoundland.

Sentiment in Business

(From MR. A. M. SAMUEL, M.P., Parliamentary Secretary to the Department of Overseas Trade.)

There is a maximum that sentiment should not influence business. It is a saying with which I disagree. Sentiment does—and, I hope, will always enter into business. It is precisely because of this fact that words and actions, not connected with business at all, which drew closer the sentimental ties existing between nations have, in the past, been followed by extended and more cordial commercial relations. It is because of this fact that anything which tends to bring into closer sympathy the nations of the British Commonwealth has such an important bearing on its future prosperity.

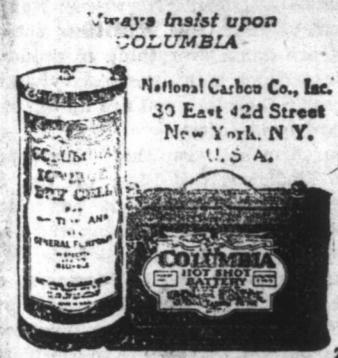

It lies within the power of comparatively few to take action which directly affects trade between the scattered communities which together make up the Empire, but it is within the scope of many to foster still warmer sentiments, and every step taken with this end in view brings nearer the day when the Commonwealth will indeed be a Commonwealth in the fullest sense of the word.—Empire Mail.

A Chinese Puzzle

Many and varied are the etain etain (By ELLIOT O'DONNELL).

While ploughing its way one March morning, against wind and wave, about four miles north of Barnegat, the American schooner Thos. E. French encountered a yawl that seemed to be in distress.

On drawing up alongside Captain Webb and his crew found, to their astonishment, that the sole occupant of the yawl was a sleek and rather dapper Chinaman, who had apparently nothing with him but a compass, a hatchet, and a few provisions.

The Yellow Man's Story. Far from evincing any antipathy on being invited on board the Thos. E. French, the Chinaman looked very sour and glum, and at first only replied to the questions put to him in monosyllables.

By degrees, however, he waxed a little more communicative, and said his name was John Low, but that he was generally called Jackalow. He went on to explain that for four years he had been cook to Captain Leete and his brother on board the sloop Spray, of Guilford, Connecticut.

He said that on March 15th of that year—1862—the sloop had left New York Harbor in company with the schooner Gem; she separated from the Gem the following day, and all had gone well till the morning of the 19th, when a dense fog had suddenly come up.

"I was below deck," added Jackalow. He spoke in quite fluent English, which showed he had been in America for a long time.

Wouldn't Leave the Ship.

"Captain Leete was at the wheel and his brother in the bows, when there was a cry of 'Ship ahoy! Ship ahoy!' followed the next moment by a great crash. We had been struck amidships by a sloop called the Lucinda.

"I came tumbling up the ladder to the deck, only to find the skipper and his brother gone. They had apparently been hurled overboard by the collision. The captain of the Lucinda wished to take me on board, as he feared the Spray wouldn't keep afloat long. I refused, however, as I was very much attached to my old ship, and wanted to stand by her to the last."

"She went down?" Skipper Webb observed. Jackalow nodded.

"Yupp," he said, "soon after the Lucinda had drawn off, but not before I had succeeded in launching the yawl."

"It seems plain enough," Webb commented, "just an ordinary collision. We are going to put into Little Egg Harbor, and will land you there. You will have to report this matter, you know, to the owners of the Spray. Who are they?"

In the Skipper's Cabin.

"I reckon the Leete brothers owned her themselves," Jackalow answered, "but I will call at their house to make certain, and I will also tell the port authorities."

"That's good," Webb responded, and nothing further was said. As soon as the Thos. E. French ran into Little Egg Harbor Jackalow picked up his belongings and disappeared. Webb was preparing to go to the harbor-master and report what had taken place, when his sharp eyes alighted on the Lucinda lying at anchor and apparently badly damaged. He at once paid her a visit and had an interview with her skipper.

The skipper's story of the collision had certain elements of strangeness in it.

"When we collided with the Spray," he said, "we saw no one on board but a Chinik, and the deck was strewn with bedding, furniture, and all kinds of things. This struck us as very odd, and we told the Chinik to come on board so that we could interrogate him. He declined, however, stating he was the only person left on the Spray, the other two having been washed or knocked overboard at the moment of collision, and that he intended to take her to port. We argued with him, but he was obstinate, and in the end we had to leave him."

"Then you think there's something fishy about it?" said Webb.

"I do, so did we all," the skipper of the Lucinda replied. "Very fishy." Webb, accompanied by the other skipper, then went to the port authorities, and reported the matter to them.

The next day a grim discovery was made that sent a thrill of horror through New York. The harbor police found, on the sandy beach at the south end of the battery, a wreck, which the name on the bows informed them was that of the Spray.

She had been washed up and left high and dry by the receding tide. A big hole on the larboard bow confirmed the story of the skipper of the Lucinda, but not that of Jackalow, who, it will be remembered, told Webb the Spray had been struck amidships.

This discrepancy was the first thing that set the police wondering, and they wondered more before very long. Descending the ladder leading below deck, they received a big shock on entering what they presumed was the skipper's cabin. It was in a great state of disorder. Blankets, clothes, and cooking crocks lay scattered over the floor in hopeless confusion.

A Grim Discovery.

Worse than that, mingled with all this debris, and glistening in the yellow sunlight that poured into the cabin through the porthole, were blotches and pools of blood. The whole place was literally steeped in it. It looked a veritable slaughter-house. The police were aghast. Accustomed as they were to queer sights, what they looked on now appalled them.

"This ain't far short of butchery," one of them remarked at last; "but where's the bodies?"

Then they set to work and searched the ship, but without result. No bodies were to be found.

"It's murder right enough," the police chief said tersely; "we'll get a warrant out for Master Jackalow."

They did, but though a hue and cry was made for him all over New York State and elsewhere, he was nowhere to be found. What became of him has always remained a mystery.

Of course, it could never be said for certain that he had actually murdered the Leete brothers, but what else could have happened? Jackalow was found out to have had a very bad record. He had stolen several times from the Leetes, and on one occasion had been prosecuted by them, but they always took him back.

Slain in Their Sleep.

The police theory was that he had again been detected stealing, and had been threatened with punishment. In revenge he had drugged the Leetes' tea with opium, and murdered them while they were sleeping, heaving their bodies overboard.

That done, he had plundered the ship, and was meditating getting away with his booty when the collision with the Lucinda occurred.

Fearful lest his secret should be discovered, he had obstinately refused to leave the Spray, which had sunk shortly afterwards, almost before he had time to launch the yawl, and certainly before he was able to secure any of his ill-gotten plunder.

Then followed his meeting with the Thos. E. French. Why the bodies of his victims had not been washed ashore, however, and how he had succeeded in getting the yawl outside Sandy Hook and down as far as Barnegat without attracting the attention of the innumerable craft plying those waters, were not the least of the puzzles in this very curious unsolved problem of the sea.

The Perils of Popularity

If you have ever shaken hands with a prince or a president you will have realized that they have reduced hand-shaking to a fine art. There is none of the hearty pressure with which one friend meets another.

There cannot be, for when a man has to shake hundreds or even thousands of hands in a day, the result is not merely unpleasant—it is painful, as the Prince of Wales has discovered.

American Presidents spend hours weekly in shaking hands. I once attended a reception given by the late President Cleveland (says a writer in the Daily Mail), and, although the place was a mere country village, over seven hundred people were waiting to shake his hand. I was told that Mr. Cleveland's right hand was a size larger than the left, and I believe that this is one of the disabilities which attend the term of office of nearly every President.

A New Charlie Chaplin

PLUS ALL THE CHAPLIN TRICKS IN THE NEW CHAPLIN COMEDY "THE GOLD RUSH."

Charlie Chaplin as a pathetic tenderfoot struggling along with hundreds of others in search of gold in the Klondyke, plus the Charlie Chaplin of comedy fame, with all the Chaplin tricks of old—this is the keynote of what has been described as the greatest Chaplin comedy ever filmed—"The Gold Rush," which is set for early fall release.

Poetic pathos and whimsical comedy are blended cleverly in "The Gold Rush," which was more than a year in the making, which will be shown in nine reels, and which has in it all the elements of "big production" which have been lacking in the earlier and short films of this laugh producing genius of the screen.

The picture has its bits of deepest pathos which are swept instantly into moments of hilarious comedy; a picture where the tear of pathos loses itself in the wrinkles of laughter.

There is the scene, for instance, where Chaplin, the tenderfoot, a lone bit of human flotsam and jetsam, just a bedraggled bit of lonely humanity, finds a sympathizer a sweetheart—a girl in a dancehall. In her garish finery she dances with the sad, little tramp, who beams over her shoulder into the eyes of his rival, a wealthy miner.

There is Big Jim McKay, a giant with ox-like strength. He is enraged and the little lone prospector trembles as the big man menaces him. And the little man thinks that death, after all, is better than the loss of the queen of the dancehall.

To have the right types in Trukee, in Northern California, where many of the scenes of the picture were photographed, Chaplin took out a special load of tramps, with well-scared faces and tattered garb. In several sequences it seems an endless line of ragged humanity that is crossing the Chilkoote Pass. A blizzard rages, and men are blown about helplessly and hopelessly. They fight on doggedly, as this winding path cut through the snows over a precipitous mountain side, is the gateway to their goal—the Klondyke, and Gold.

In another stretch in the film is Black Larsen, a fugitive. He builds a little hut in the Alaskan mountains, and there lives as a hermit, amid snow and ice. To the hut comes the pathetic little tramp—Chaplin. He knocks at the door for rest and a bite of food, ere plodding on to the land of promised gold. Larsen does not care who starves. His only thought is of the police.

The scenes aboard a steamship show human interest at its big height. The luxury and comfort of the first cabin are contrasted with the misery, want and illness in the steerage. There is the little man, who a few years before went on the long hike to the Klondyke, and now on board the ship is seen in rich raiment and costly furs. He is unhappy because he had lost his sweetheart. And in the steerage—there is a girl returning from Alaska, dreaming of wishing she could find her dear little tramp again.

Squatter's Rights

EDMONTON, Alta., July 3.—(Canadian Press)—For probably the first time in the history of the province, an aged woman has been granted patent to an Alberta homestead. After years of tireless effort in her behalf, Mrs. Madeline Desjardins, 80 years of age, received word, that the little 50-acre plot of ground "squatted" away back in 1894 finally comes legally into her possession. Thirty years ago, before the survey of the district was made, Mr. and Mrs. Desjardins staked out and settled upon a 50-acre homestead near Cold Lake, even now more than 60 miles from the nearest railway centre. St. Paul de Metis. Although in the eyes of the law merely "squatters," they were permitted to remain undisturbed on their little farm. After Mr. Desjardins' death, outsiders tried to purchase the land, and Ottawa was communicated with in behalf of the widow, with the result just announced.

Know Your Nose

First glimpse at a man or woman is the color of the hair, the color of the nose, all the other component parts which go to make up the face. The lips and teeth. A first glance is which seeks to weigh up the character of the man or woman in a moment. Sentiment and color come with a further knowledge of the nose.

The nose is a most important guide to a sure foundation for race and temperament. The fact that so few of us are without one, makes it an ever present clue for our research into its owner. The only other clue of importance (perhaps even more important) is the color of the skin; by which we know that a black skin denotes Negro blood and so on.

The student of Anthropology or Physiognomy, if he can pick out the Hamite, Semite or Mongol in a crowd by the shape of his nose, a practical eye can easily discover signs of racial tendencies however minute in persons who may be regarded many generations by intermarriage from the original pure stock these means.

We talk of the Roman nose, the Greek or Semetic, the Grecian and so on, and use these terms together with new descriptive, in order to describe more easily that a man has a certain type of nose, and we could use a more accurate way. It is natural to us to depict a General, Admiral or Politician with a Roman nose. The actor, artist and musician call for the Grecian, while the Semetic type for comrade.

Other noses such as the Patrician nose, which is blue blood in the proud nose's veins. The pug is the badge of the pugilist, a sign of determination and ferocity. The multitude of various styles of noses are too many to describe in a short space.

A nose is a good companion and a straight road is at your feet, but a nose of leading a contrary existence of drinking to excess for instance do not give your nose the expanse of blushing for you; the beacon of an angry nose is enough to warn your friends of the rocks you are crashed on.

Savage society is always proud of noses, they are often decorated and adorned with rings or studded with pearls. Civilization is not behind in appreciation of that important organ, but the ceremonies and rites are peculiar to the women folk, who are most fanatic of votaries; these may have been full of meaning in the world was young, but to-day they seem like many other customs, left to say the least of it.

The most important rite seems to be the act of anointing the organ with blue-white scented powder, which is to one unacquainted with the mysteries of the ceremonies, quite foolish, but I am told by one or two celebrated priestesses of the cult that the very fact of having a blueish nose showing up against the natural skin, like a marble monument on plain, tends to raise the morale and strengthen the faith of the votary, by very mockery and laughter created among the Philistines.

Three V.C.'s in One Street

WINNIPEG, Man., July 3.—(Canadian Press)—Discovery that one street in Winnipeg has been the home of three Victoria Cross winners may lead to erection of a permanent memorial and the changing of the name of the street, according to proposals made to the city by the Women's Canadian Club. It is proposed to place memorial lights on the street for Marshal Haig's visit. Pine Street, in the west end, has been found to enjoy the unique honor of having three residents whose valor won them the highest decoration of the British Empire. Two of the heroes fell in action during the war, but the third, Major Robert Shankland, V.C., still is living in this city. The other two were F. W. Hall, who was decorated for bravery at the Ypres, April 23, 1915, and Leo Clarke, who won the Victoria Cross at the Somme in 1916.

The Importance of Water Power

TORONTO, Ont., July 3.—(Canadian Press)—Throughout Ontario and Quebec the development of waterpower is taking place so rapidly and ubiquitously that it seems to be a single movement which is destined to make Canada one of the great industrial nations of the world, says the Royal Bank of Canada's monthly letter for July. But it is not generally realized that the industrial revolution in Canada is occurring without producing the evils resulting from intense concentration of population in large cities, attendant upon the industrial revolutions in Great Britain and the United States. Industrialization is taking place in the Dominion under conditions of comparative decentralization.

One of the most indicative measures of a country's industrial progress is its power consumption, the letter continues. Within the last four years there has been a 40 per cent increase in waterpower production in Quebec, more than 50 per cent in Ontario and 25 per cent in British Columbia.

Dr. Grenfell's Tribute to Women

MONTREAL, Que., July 3.—(Canadian Press)—"Women are usually equal to and sometimes superior to men when the needs for courage, common-sense and devotion arise," said Dr. W. J. Grenfell, medical missionary, of St. Anthony, Newfoundland, who has just returned to Canada after a tour with Mrs. Grenfell around the world, a trip which proved a delightful vacation after 35 years of service to the British settlers in the Canadian and Newfoundland Labrador.

"The way in which Miss Jardine, a nurse at the St. Anthony Hospital, cooperated with Rev. Father Thibault, a French-Canadian priest from Quebec, in saving the life of a man who, in delirium, had gravely mutilated himself when medical aid was 60 miles distant, is one instance which makes me say: Give the woman the challenge and she will always rise to the occasion," continued Dr. Grenfell.

"Miss Jardine said to the priest: 'You administer the last rites and then give him the chloroform,' which the priest did. Thereupon the nurse tended to the man who was very close to death, and shortly afterward patient was quite well."

Women a Bundle of Nerves

"Everything irritates me—I'm a bundle of nerves, I ache all over, cannot sleep and am so depressed. This extract from a letter written from one woman to another describes the condition of many women who suffer from feminine ailments. Nothing will relieve this distressing condition so surely as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs. For fifty years it has been restoring sick and ailing women of the Dominion of Canada to health and strength.

 The marriage of Miss Charlotte Louise Wornell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Wornell of 81 Long's Hill, to Mr. Samuel Spencer, of Freshold, New Jersey, was solemnized on Wednesday, at 7 p.m. at Gower Street Church.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. Hammond Johnson, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. J. B. Wornell was attended by Miss Marie Wornell and Mrs. Ida Stratton, while Mr. F. J. Wornell supported the groom.

Miss Elsie Taft, Organist of the Church, and the Choir, of which the bride had been a member for a number of years, enhanced the beauty of the ceremony with their contributions of music and song.
 After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents and at 9.30 p.m. the happy couple motored to Toppal, where the honeymoon is being spent.
 They leave by S.S. Silvia on the 25th inst., for New Jersey, where they will, in future reside.

O'NEILL—FREEMAN.
 On Sunday June 14th, the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, Jamaica Plain, Mass., was the scene of a quiet evening wedding, when Miss Maud M. O'Neill formerly of St. John's was united in marriage to Mr. Thomas J. Freeman one time resident of Fr. Grace. The bride looked attractive in a gown of white Satin, trimmed with shadow lace, with picture hat and carried a beautiful shower bouquet of white roses. She was attended by her cousin Miss Eileen O'Keefe of Revere, who looked charming in a gown of beige Crepe with hat to match. She also carried a bouquet of roses. Little Miss Betty Freeman was flower girl. The Groom was ably assisted by Mr. Harry A. Bindon, son of Mr. Wm. Bindon well known business man of St. John's. The Groom's present to the Bride was a handsome string of pearls to the bridesmaid a bracelet, and to the best man a watch chain.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward O'Neill, 77 Easton St. Allston, after which the happy couple left by motor, for the long ride to Sunrise Beach, where the honeymoon was spent. The Wedding gifts were numerous and costly, showing esteem in which the couple were held. Mr. and Mrs. Freeman will reside at 5 Haskell St. Allston, Mass.

 CANTON, July 10.
 Increased military activities in Canton are adding to the tension already felt by foreign residents in their concession at Shamreen. One of the Chinese Generals is reported to have boasted yesterday he is able to capture Shamreen in spite of the fortifications which have been made. A low flying and fast by a narrow strip of water. Military camp airplanes daily encircle the concession with the apparent purpose of spotting its fortification. The General was said to have been ready to lose a thousand soldiers in three minutes under his capture plan.

CHARGES MADE AGAINST PORTUGUESE COLONIAL GOVERNMENT.
 NEW YORK, July 10.
 Charges that the Portuguese Colonial Government requisitioned native labor in Portuguese Africa on a wholesale scale and used it without pay were made in report on compulsory labor in Portuguese Africa made public yesterday by Dr. Edward A. Ross, Professor of Sociology of the University of Wisconsin. The report, which has been submitted to the Secretary General of the League of Nations with a request that the Slavery Commission investigate, alleged that under the Peon system natives were working on Government projects or leased to private planters. The system was described as worse than slavery, because the Peon was often not fit. Women with babies on their backs are requisitioned like other laborers. The period of compulsory labor without pay may run from a few months to 12 months of each year and some of the gangs are tortured and flogged.

Dodge Brothers Set New Record
 Deliveries and Production Exceed Best Previous Week in History.
 Dodge Brothers have been establishing new high records continuously for several months, as compared with similar periods for previous years, but the record of the week ending April 11 is the best in the company's history. With retail deliveries aggregating more than 7,000, an average of more than 1,300 each production day, the best previous week was surpassed by several hundred cars. New retail orders exceeded the corresponding week of 1924 by 1,000, or approximately 10.7 per cent.

Although Dodge Brothers Motor Cars are now being built at the rate of 1,500 a day, both deliveries and new orders are some 200 a day in excess of production.
 "Had dealers' stocks permitted, the number of deliveries for the record week would have been even greater," said John A. Nichol, Jr., Vice-President in Charge of Sales. "It is not a spurt, but a steady, healthful climb."

THE DELCO Electric Plant

FOR OUT-OF-TOWN LIGHTING.

"DELCO LIGHT" consists of an air-cooled engine which will operate on gasoline or kerosene, directly connected to an electric generator and switchboard, on which are the necessary controlling instruments. These are all enclosed in one unit and may be called the Generating Unit.

The second unit is the Storage Battery, consisting of sixteen glass or rubber jar cells for 32 volt equipment. The engine is self-cranking, when the starting lever is held up electricity flows from the storage battery through the field coils and armature. This electric energy is conducted to the incandescent lamps by means of copper wires to any position desired.

The lights do not, as a rule, require the entire output of the Generator, so the excess is taken up and stored by the Storage Battery. When the engine stops the storage battery is used as the source of supply, after which it is necessary to run the engine again to re-charge the battery. It may only be necessary to run the engine two or three times a week when used to light a residence, but when used in stores, or where considerable current is used the engine has to be run more frequently. It can be used to light your church, residence, barns, wharf, store or mill. The operation is simple, and the cost of running, very low.

We are Agents for the "Delco" Electric Plant, and we have a staff of electricians who will make installations in any part of the Island. If you are interested, write us for descriptive booklet and our estimate of the cost. We will be pleased to give you any information you require

Alberta Government House for Sale

EDMONTON, Alta., July 3.—(Canadian Press)—The Alberta Government is offering Government House for sale and the Journal says anent this, editorially, that while it would have been better for the province to have waited for some years before expending so much money on the building yet now it would be folly to abandon it. "An official residence of some kind is required if the lieutenant-governor is to discharge properly the duties incumbent upon him. There is no basis whatever for the talk that has been heard about the snobbery to which it gives rise. There has been nothing narrow in the hospitality which has been extended there. The amount which would be saved by informing the next appointee that he could look after his own household arrangements and was not expected to do any entertaining at all would be very small as compared with the loss which this would mean in a variety of ways."

Now, let me think a minute or three, for your Uncle Dave's full of perplexity. Yes, I'm trying to remember how we ended last night's story. Oh, yes, now I recall what had happened. The Ragged Rabbit Giant had thrown a big rope down from the mountain top. Well, I'm glad my old Memory Cap is on my head. Without that wonderful cap I'd be in a sad fix. Yes, indeed.

Quickly tying the rope to the front axle, wise Uncle Lucky hopped back into the Luckymobile. Then, waving his old wedding stovepipe hat as a signal to haul away, he held tight to the steering wheel while the great strong giant pulled the motor car right up the mountain side as easily as you please.

"Hip, hip, hurrah!" shouted Little Jack Rabbit, while the four little Cottontails waved their bonnets and hats and chuckled with glee. After many a bump and a hoppy hump, the good old Luckymobile stood on the top of the mountain right at the feet of the Ragged Rabbit Giant. My goodness, what big, high boots he bore. Why, their tops were even with the windshield, and the little bunnies had to bend away back to see the first button on the big man's waistcoat.

"Ha, ha," he laughed, as he untied the great rope, "I brought you up all right, eh?" And then he began to laugh some more, until all the leaves trembled on the trees and a brick fell from the tall castle chimney.

"Please only smile," begged Little Jack Rabbit. "When you laugh it sounds like thunder."

"All right, my little bunnikins," answered the kind old giant, "and leaning over, he picked up the little rabbit and slipped him into his waistcoat pocket. Then in his other pockets he carefully placed the four little Cottontails, but when he looked at dear Uncle Lucky, all dressed up in his swallowtail coat, pink vest and precious wedding stovepipe hat, he hesitated.

"Wouldn't do to put the President of the Rabbitville Savings Bank in my pocket," laughed the Ragged Rabbit Giant. "No, siree. That wouldn't be the proper caper. May I carry you in old gentleman rabbit seated himself on the broad palm of the giant's hand. Then away strode the Ragged Rabbit Giant to his castle, the great front door of which he unlocked with a key as long as a shovel, handle and all. After seating Uncle Lucky in a big armchair, the giant carefully took the little rabbits from his pockets and placed them on a long sofa—as long as 40 chairs side by side. The next minute he gave a merry whistle, and in through the open window flew a pretty Yellow Bird. Perching on his shoulder, she commenced to sing:

"Welcome, little rabbits To our castle old and gray. My kind old giant master Is glad you came to-day."

And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

St. Patrick's Garden Party

The St. Patrick's Parish Garden Party which was to have taken place on Wednesday but was postponed owing to the inclement weather was held yesterday afternoon at Lesters field. Opening at 4 p.m. the affair was largely attended and proved very enjoyable. Amongst those present were—His Grace Archbishop Roche, Monsignor McDermott, Rev. Dr. Kitchin, Pastor of St. Patrick's and many of the Priests of the City and Outports as well as the Christian Brothers.

Various side shows provided entertainment throughout the evening, appetizing teas were served by the ladies in charge and quite a lot of revenue was secured from this source. The Sports programme was started at 7 p.m. and the proceedings ended with a band concert. The music supplied during the evening by the Mount Cashel and C.C.C. Bands added much to the enjoyment.

The results of the various athletic events will be found in the Sports Columns.

Found Chained to a Tree

Had Been Taken from Auto by Hooded Men Ten Days Ago—Blindfolded each Night and Removed to Another Place.

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 6.—Dr. W. D. Mason, veterinary surgeon, and Lawrence Bowman, who have been the object of a ten days' search by a posse of more than 150 men since their mysterious disappearance on Signal Mountain on the night of June 23, were found handcuffed and chained to a tree yesterday by Jim Thomas, mountaineer.

Mason and Bowman, after being sufficiently revived, stated that they had been set upon the night of their disappearance by five hooded men, carried off from Dr. Mason's car and chained to a tree. Each night they were blindfolded and removed to another place they stated.

As the two men were found on a spot that was previously searched by a posse, it is believed that the men were moved each night to a section of the mountain that was searched on a previous day by the posse to prevent their discovery.

Mason was called to Signal Mountain on the night of June 23 by a faked telephone message saying that a horse belonging to Sam Lewis, mountaineer, was sick. The person calling suggested that he ask Bowman to accompany him as a guide.

For some years a bitter feud has existed between the Bowman and Godsey families factions over alleged liquor making transactions, and this was climaxed several months ago when Benton Godsey killed Ike and wounded Homer Bowman, brothers of Lawrence, in a pistol fight.

Decay of Houses of Parliament

£500,000 RESTORATION COST. The preservation and restoration of the Houses of Parliament, upon which Sir Frank Baines, Director of Works in charge of all public buildings under the Office of Works, is preparing a report for submission to the Cabinet, may cost anything up to £500,000.

Workmen are at present examining the stonework with a view to the removal of stones that are dangerous or beyond preservation, and the Department of Industrial and Scientific Research is seeking a method of preventing further deterioration.

It was stated at the Office of Works that there is no danger to the structure of the building. "The trouble is that the smoke and atmosphere of London are causing the stone (magnesium limestone) to crumble, and it is becoming very unsightly," said an official.

The Houses of Parliament were designed by Sir Charles Barry, and were erected between 1840 and 1860.

Does Marriage Kill Love

"I love you, but I won't marry you," said Pat.

"Marriage kills romance."

For she had seen her married sisters, her own mother, flirt outrageously.

"Isn't there a place where love is free?" she asked.

"Yes," said Cary, "a place where fools go and never return."

As you shall see in "Flaming Youth" at the Star Movie Monday.

Store Burglarised

It is stated that the store of Mrs. John Ryan of Norris Arm was broken into on the night of July 4th and $209 stolen. The money taken was mostly cheques. All efforts to find the thief were unavailing.

British Manufacturers' Methods

A HINT TO OVERSEAS BUYERS.

(By Mr. Wm. B. Pickering, Director and Commercial Manager of Hadfields, Ltd., Steel Manufacturers.)

One hears a great deal about alleged complaints from overseas on the supposed shortcomings of British manufacturers, but I think they are being a little overdone and carried too far. Personally, I am somewhat tired of reading so much about them, and I feel that the Press could do better to replace the publicity given to them and take up the cudgels on behalf of British manufacturers.

The days of the old fashioned conservatism in business, when manufacturers could be charged with not being willing to meet the special needs of their customers, have long since passed, and I do not know of any progressive firms today who are not only willing but most anxious to meet the reasonable needs of their clients.

The question of extended credit, however, is a very delicate proposition in these days, and I would respectfully suggest to buyers throughout the Dominion that British manufacturers cannot act as financiers, and the times are too difficult for most of them to do much in the direction of giving long credit.

It seems to me very strange that the Press should be so anxious to give such prominence to the desire on the part of the Dominion and Colonial buyers to place their orders with British manufacturers, whilst at the same time these buyers do not hesitate to send their valuable inquiries to the Continent, and to Germany in particular. This, I think, is remarkably inconsistent with their professions of loyalty to the Empire. Their patriotism is very different from that of the Germans, who never send British manufacturers their inquiries.

Supreme Court

Address of Howley, K.C. (Continued).
I submit that the letter of September 27th, and the reference to Major MacDonald and the company that is formed, misleads the Reids, whether intentionally or not, I am not going to say, but it is misleading, inasmuch as it conveys anything but the true facts as to what has happened; but what I want particularly to point out is that here we are in the first week in October, and the only impression that we have, the only mental view of the MacDonald organisation that we can have is what is conveyed to us in these two letters, and strangely enough, when Mr. Thomson writes us for the first time about Major MacDonald and his organisation, on the 27th September, he not alone does not send us a copy of the letter which he wrote Major MacDonald on the 12th September, but he does not refer to it.
If your lordship will look at No. 28; H.B.T. x 22, you will find the letter from Mr. Thomson to Major MacDonald, dated the 12th September, in which he states that he is authorised by Mr. Reid to offer or negotiate for the sale of the following properties, and then he deals with the various properties, and he winds up that letter by saying:
"Both Mr. Reid and I realize that you and your friends are forming a syndicate with a view to the development of some of the above properties and on the understanding that Mr. Reid gives, or procures for your syndicate the option to acquire the same. In view of these facts, I am authorised by him to state that immediately the syndicate is formed he will enter into negotiations with it with a view to its acquisition of any of the said properties on the most favorable terms possible, and that both he and I will use our best endeavours to facilitate the carrying through of such acquisition and will in every way within our power assist the syndicate in developing the properties in the most advantageous way. In particular, we will use our best endeavours to assist this syndicate in every way possible."
What that means I find it very difficult to even conjecture. It seems to be a repetition of the previous sentence, and has no meaning whatever except as such repetition.
He continues:
"In the meantime, neither Mr. Reid nor I will deal with the properties in any way with any other party without first giving to your syndicate a reasonable opportunity of coming to terms."
Now here I submit, is a letter written by Mr. Thomson to Major MacDonald on the 12th September, when the only information that the Reids have to the existence of Major MacDonald is that conveyed in Greenwood's letter of the 28th June, and except in so far as Greenwood's reference to Major MacDonald's being thoroughly organised to carry on his extensive business is concerned, there is no reference at all, or no knowledge at all of "your syndicate"; and the strange thing is that when Mr. Thomson writes to Mr. Reid a copy of this letter, nor does he make any reference to this letter except in a general way.

Now, the object that I have in drawing attention to these matters, is that I wish to try to bring before your lordship what must have been the attitude of mind of the Reid people towards this "syndicate," in the fall of 1919, and we cannot escape from the conclusion that their state of mind, and their view of Major MacDonald and his syndicate must have been based on these two letters of Greenwood on the 28th June and Mr.

Thomson's on the 27th September, because these, and these alone, cover all the information that we have about Major MacDonald.
Then we come down to the letter of November 6th from Mr. Thomson to Major MacDonald, a letter which, strangely enough has not been disclosed, and only comes to light from the copy of the directors' report submitted to the Statutory meeting of the Trust on December 31st, 1919.
MR. EMERSON—That statutory report was disclosed.
MR. HOWLEY—Was it?

MR. EMERSON—Yes.
MR. HOWLEY—But the letter is not disclosed.
MR. EMERSON—The letter is contained in the report. The whole was disclosed.
MR. HOWLEY—The directors' report was disclosed by us.
MR. EMERSON—It was disclosed by us also.
MR. HOWLEY—On the 5th November, Mr. Thomson writes this letter to Major MacDonald, which amounts to an undertaking to give options on different properties, and he supports his right to give those options by a reference, first of all, to H.B.T. 24 which is No. 25 in the book, and which is a telegram from Mr. Reid to Mr. Thomson, of the 21st October:
"Your letter twenty-seventh September, just received very satisfactory. Very important you should try arrange meet me Montreal middle November."
Now, the letter of the 27th September to which that refers, is the one that I have just been talking about, and there is nothing in that letter about giving options to Major MacDonald or his syndicate. At the end of the second page of that letter, after he describes Major MacDonald and his company, that is, this organisation, he says:
"Through him and others we have got into touch with a number of people to whom the different projects are attractive in their own individual line. His company would secure information and get the different projects up to a point where a development syndicate would be formed to carry them out. Just at present, as you know, it is difficult to arrange for subscription of money for outside projects, but, of course, as his is an English concern, this difficulty can be got over."
There is the position represented to us with regard to his company—his syndicate; and the actual facts as disclosed in the evidence before your lordship particularly in the minute of the Trust of the 3rd December 1919, are that as late as the 3rd December, 1919, this company has to its credit; has apparently capital paid up of £205, which is reduced by a cheque for £100 drawn payable to Major MacDonald on that date for reimbursement of his organisation expenses.
Mr. Thomson in his letter of November 6th, substantiates his authority and right to grant to this organisation of Major MacDonald these options by, first of all referring to this telegram of October 21st, 1919, which I have read; and then he goes on to say that "in order to clear up the situation as to Mr. Reid's attitude towards the granting of options, he called him on October 27th, 1919, as follows: That is the document which appears in Volume 2, No. 619, has been marked H.B.T. 57:

October 27th, 1919—to Reid St. John's from Thomson.
"Referring my letter September 27th, and your cable reply October 21st. Can I agree you will give options on properties when prices and terms are settled your satisfaction."
And then he cites Mr. Reid's reply, which is No. 620 in the book, H.B.T. 58, October 28th, 1919, telegram to Thomson, London from Reid:
"Expect complete Gander title one moment but you can agree regardless of this give options on properties subject satisfactory terms. Negotiating everything only through you."
Now, my lord, I have sought to deal with these matters, as I have said, for the purpose of trying to satisfy ourselves on what must have been the viewpoint or state of mind of the Reid Newfoundland Company directors at this period towards this MacDonald organisation, and with that I propose to deal with the alleged oral agreement of December 1919 and January 1920.
Now the Plaintiffs say in this amended Paragraph 2, that:
"It was orally agreed between the said H. D. Reid on behalf of the Reid Company with the said Henry B. Thomson and William Hamar Greenwood on behalf of the Plaintiff Company that the Plaintiff Company should act as the sole agent of the Reid Company in Europe and should receive reasonable remuneration for the services, and that so far as regarded services rendered in connection with any sales or other dealings in respect of which the Reid Company or its subsidiary companies should receive, money, shares or other securities or rights, such remuneration would be ten per cent. of the amounts received."
Now, my lord, what is the evidence in support of that allegation? Your lordship will remember that on the examination in chief of Mr. Thomson he dealt in a more or less general way and indefinitely with the letter No. 32, marked in the book as H.B.T. 25 (a). This purports to be a letter which, we are told in evidence submitted on behalf of the Plaintiffs, was written by Major MacDonald to Mr. Greenwood on the 18th November, 1919. Your lordship will recollect that I asked my learned friend if he had the original of this letter and he said—no, but he had a carbon copy of it. If we give any credence to the story told by the witnesses for the Plaintiffs that such a letter was written by Major MacDonald to Mr. Greenwood on November 18th, 1919, . . .
MR. EMERSON—If you are questioning credibility, I would remind you that I said, not that I had a carbon copy, but that I had the duplicate original.
MR. HOWLEY—I asked my learned friend for the original, and he said he had it; and afterwards he corrected himself and said that he had a carbon copy.
MR. EMERSON—I beg your pardon. I distinctly remember that I said I had the carbon original—that is the carbon copy that was made at the time. I offered you the duplicate original and you did not take it.
MR. HOWLEY—I made a statement as to what actually happened, and you are misrepresenting the facts when you make that statement now.
MR. EMERSON—It is you who are misrepresenting the facts, not I.
MR. HOWLEY—Here is the position, my lord. Here is an allegation that such a letter was written by Major MacDonald to Mr. Greenwood on the 18th October, 1919. I am not contending that such a letter was not written—I am not saying that at all, but on his main examination Mr. Thomson has said—has referred in a general and indefinite way.
To This Letter
as a letter that formed the basis of the negotiations between himself and Greenwood and the Messrs. Reid in Montreal; but at the conclusion of his examination, and at the suggestion, I think, of Mr. Reid, he was never suggested of your lordship, he was examined in more detail with regard to this matter, and he specifically swore to the fact that the various clauses laid down in that letter, particularly the clauses with regard to the agency and the 10 per cent. commission agreement on sales, were assented to, and agreed to by the Messrs. Reid. Then in his opening address my learned friend informed your lordship that he would substantiate the existence of this 10 per cent. commission agreement, first of all by the evidence of Mr. Thomson, who was actually present and was a party to the making of the agreement, and secondly by the evidence of what Mr. R. G. Reid told Major MacDonald when he got over to London in the Spring of 1920. I submit that Major MacDonald's answers in that respect are just as vague and indefinite, if not more so, than Mr. Thomson's answers in his original examination. But be that as it may, let us take Mr. Thomson's answers to the categorical questions put to him at the close of the case, when he swore that Mr. Reid specifically agreed to that 10 per cent. commission—and that is the evidence in support of that allegation.

Now, what evidence is there against it? First of all, my lord, there is the sworn testimony of Mr. H. D. Reid, who says that no such agreement was ever made; that he never saw this letter; that the terms of this letter as they are set forth in it were never discussed with him. Then there is the evidence of Mr. R. G. Reid to the same effect.
But That is Not All, although I submit that that is more than sufficient to create the position that the Plaintiffs had failed to sustain their allegations. That is not all. You will recollect that it has been deposited by the Plaintiffs' witnesses that before Greenwood left for this side in November this matter had been discussed between himself and Thomson and MacDonald, and before Thomson left it had been discussed between himself and MacDonald; and that as a result of that discussion, Mr. MacDonald wrote this letter of November 18th to Mr. Greenwood, and forwarded a copy of it over to Mr. Thomson in Ireland. It was also agreed before Mr. Thomson left that the Trust, although it had general powers to deal with any properties, would concentrate on the Reid properties.
At this time they held Mr. Thomson's letter of November 6th written to the Trust, as from the Reid representative, and if your lordship will turn to No. 36 in the book, which is J. A. McD. 234, and which purports to be a minute of a meeting of the Plaintiffs' directors held on the 2nd December, 1919, attended by Messrs. MacDonald and Thomson, we find it minutely:

Supreme Court

We Find That:

"Mr. Thomson reported to the Board 'his intention of proceeding to Canada on the 9th instant, and stated he would see Mr. Reid in Montreal and go into all outstanding questions in regard to the negotiations at present 'under way regarding properties in Newfoundland, and would also explain to Mr. Reid the present position in England and the progress to date.' Now, my lord, at this time, the only outstanding questions that there could be with regard to the properties were the questions of titles and the question of option prices on such of the properties as had not been specifically priced in the letter of November 5th, 1919. There is no reference—no suggestion in either of these minutes that either Mr. Greenwood or Mr. Thomson on the occasions of their visits to Canada had to confer with the Reids as to the method or mode of remuneration which the Trust was to get for handling the Reid properties of any kind whatsoever. Then, if your lordship will turn to No. 40, that H.B.T. 27, which is a letter of December 23rd, 1919, from Mr. Thomson to Mr. Reid, we find: "Referring to our conversation this afternoon along with Mr. Greenwood 'relative to the Trust Company in London which we formed to put your

"proposals in shape in order to place them before investors. "The expenses, etc. . . . And then he says: "Our proposal is that you and your brother, Mr. R. G. Reid, should join with us in the participation of the profits of the Trust Company in the selling or flotation of the Newfoundland properties, and would suggest to you the following: And then goes on to suggest four different proposals, but not one of them is a suggestion of a commission of ten per cent, or of any percentage. In the following page, No. 42, H.B.T. 28, we find Mr. Reid's reply of the same date: "Referring to your letter of to-day's date relative to the payment of one thousand pounds. . . . and the right for us to purchase one quarter interest jointly of the 75,000 one shilling shares. . . . I beg to say we accept this proposition." There is no reference to commission. I am afraid I am more or less repeating what I stated in my motion for dismissal, and what my learned friend stated in his opening, but I cannot help it. Then, if your lordship will turn to No. 41, which is W.H.G. 9, which is a message from Greenwood to the Trust in London, on the 23rd December, 1919: "Thousand pounds contribution towards paying management expense during next four months stop Reid says later for quarter interest stop 'Instruction me future action stop Mery 'Xmas to MacDonald."

Now I submit that here, on the 23rd December, Thomson and Greenwood having conversed with Reid as to Trust matters, Thomson writes this letter, No. 40, embodying the proposals without any reference to any commission. Mr. Reid replies, replying without any reference to any commission, and on the same day Greenwood telegraphs Major MacDonald as to the arrangement that has been arrived at, without any reference to any commission. Then on the 29th No. 44, W.H.G. 10, Major MacDonald telegraphs to Greenwood: "My letter November 18th, your cable 'December 22nd stop Would like Reid 'hold quarter our shares Trust and 'have letter eighteenth used as basis 'of arrangements with modifications 'considered mutually agreeable.' Except in so far as there is reference to the letter of November 18th, which contains a reference to a ten per cent. commission, there is no mention, nothing that can be construed as a mention of a commission; and if this proposal that a term of the agreement should be the rate of remuneration to be at ten per cent. commission, surely it is natural to suppose that that would be one of the first things that Major MacDonald would take up specifically when he answered the telegram W.H.G. 9, No. 41.

But Further Than That, on the 6th January, No. 46, H.B.T. 30—after Mr. MacDonald has received the two letters of December 23rd, the letter that passed from Thomson to Reid and Reid's reply to Thomson, he says: "Terms you offer Reid regarding 'Trust in letter 23rd not as understood between us. Still holding 'thousand remittance stop. These constant changes and delays in settling 'working basis continue to paralyse 'business and waste everyone's time.' And on the same day Mr. Thomson writes him H.B.T. 31: "Answering cables sixth. Cable 'your ideas terms Reids participating 'in Trust." And on the next day, the 7th, he comes back with No. 48, H.B.T. 32: "Consider fair agreement Reid pay 'MacDonald Greenwood one thousand pounds each yearly for two years 'terminable six months' notice by 'Reid stop If agreement terminated 'under year we have option re- 'chase quarter interest if Reid has 'exercised his option—otherwise op- 'tion to lapse."

Not a Word about a ten per cent. commission; not a word about any commission. And then, my lord, here is the report, the directors' report of the Home and Overseas Trading Trust Limited, which is in evidence, marked J. A. MacD. 409, the directors' report to the Statutory meeting the 31st December, 1919, on matters on hand and in view, and after setting forth at length Mr. Thomson's letter to Major MacDonald of the 12th September, and his letter to MacDonald of November 5th, the report goes on to say—and this report, my lord, was made after Thomson had left for Montreal, made up by Major MacDonald. On the third page of the report, after setting out Thomson's letter of the 5th November, he says: "Following on this letter Mr. Hamar Greenwood proceeded to Newfoundland, and where he is now engaged on behalf of the Trust and with Mr. Reid's assistance in making investigation 'into the various properties, titles, etc., and negotiating details of options, on terms which would ensure their being profitably turned to account by the Trust. Mr. Thomson also went to Canada on the 9th instant with the same objects in view." That is the report that was presented to the shareholders of the Trust on the 31st December, 1919, and then it goes on to say: "Meantime the Trust is collecting and obtaining reports from recognized authorities on the various up-

"dertakings with a view to dealing 'with them at a profit.' And on the following page of the report, page 4, he says: "A cablegram received from Mr. Thomson the 29th November, 1919, 'states' (which cablegram, by the way has not been disclosed) 'I have 'satisfied myself that the properties 'necessary for the nitrogen scheme 'can be secured, etc. . . . And he says: "As indicating the terms on which options can be obtained, etc. . . . Then he speaks of chrome and iron, and he says: "The Trust has obtained from Mr. 'H. D. Reid and his co-owners a 'working option for one year, etc.' And in the next paragraph: "The Trust would in turn grant a 'similar working option to an Eng- 'lish syndicate on the same basis of 'development, etc.' Now, then, if the position was that an oral agreement for remuneration of the Trust on the basis of a ten per cent. commission was agreed to in December in Montreal, and if that oral agreement resulted from instructions which Greenwood or Greenwood and Thomson had when they left England, or before they left England, how is it that in the report made to the shareholders of the Trust on the 31st December, 1919, it is not alone not disclosed that such an agreement has been made or was being negotiated, but expressly tells the shareholders of the options that they have and the profit that they expect to make of these options. (To be continued.)

Complaints From Mundy Pond Road

Dear Sir.—Please allow me space in your valuable paper to comment on the conditions of Mundy Pond Road and vicinity west of the city limits. First, the road is in a most disgraceful condition, at present it is dry, but not from the efforts of those in authority. A short time back a few car-loads of yellow clay was sprinkled in the wet places making regular "gold mines" for mud. Since the fine water this mud has considerably dried, leaving a sort of gold dust or powder, not of the kind that the ladies use voluntarily. This powder is free has a disagreeable feeling and is forcibly applied to both sexes.

Conveniences, there are absolutely none; no telephone, no telegraph, no electric lights. The telegraph and lights, particularly the telegraph could be dispensed with, but the telephone is an absolute necessity should an accident or sudden illness occur. The nearest telephone is in the Rope-walk from a mile to a mile and a half away. Is this justice to the people living in this vicinity? A bathing pool situated at the head of Mundy's Pond is a place called a bathing pool. It is a parody on the name. It could be converted into a very nice place, and the many bathers and a certain religious body who perform certain religious ceremonies there, would appreciate a little consideration from one of our M.H.A.'s for this District.

Yours truly,
J. BUTLER,
Mundy Pond Road W.
July 7, 1925.

which arrived at Glasgow recently. Two days out from Montreal, a Kentucky student, John S. Wells, was taken seriously ill with appendicitis, and an immediate operation was essential. The Metagama was in rough weather, but Capt. Henderson promptly stopped and steadied her for 40 minutes to permit the operation being performed by the ship's surgeon, an American doctor acting as anaesthetist. Wells was almost convalescent when the ship reached port, and was conveyed to a nursing home. Devotees of the Oxford rejoice that it has come back to favor.

When to Charge a Battery

EDITED BY JOHN M. CLAYTON.

It is a lot of fun to be all ready for an evening's entertainment from the radio set—the friends have been invited in and you have been boasting a little about how much long distance you have been hearing—the stage is all set for a nice radio demonstration. The set is turned on and operates nicely for about five minutes, when all of a sudden things become dim—the music fades out and you turn up the rheostats a bit. The music comes back in a bit better, but again fades out. You suddenly realize that the A battery has run down and the evening's entertainment is concluded with a game of cards and no thoughts of radio!

That has happened a thousand times a day over the United States. We don't keep track of how much we have used the set between charging times and the battery is always "flat" just when we want it the most. This is not necessary. We can get a direct current voltmeter (and they don't cost much) and permanently connect it to the circuit, directly across the terminals of the battery itself. As the battery is used the voltage will drop. Just before the battery goes dead (as far as practical use is concerned) it will register about five volts; if it registers six volts when fully charged. The exact reading of the battery when it has ceased to be of any further use until it is charged will vary with different batteries, but you can easily tell about yours. Connect the voltmeter across the A battery terminals and leave it so connected. Every night before you turn the set off note the reading of the voltmeter—jot it down on a piece of paper. Do not charge the battery until it needs it—until the signals get weak and the rheostats have to be turned up past their normal operating point in order to get the proper volume out of the set. When this time comes, and just as soon as the battery shows signs of being dead, note the voltmeter reading. If it is at 4.5 on your battery, you will always know that when the voltmeter needle begins to run down toward 4.5 at the end of an evening it is time to put the battery in charge. As the charge in the battery is used up the voltmeter will go further and further toward zero. Don't let it go down too far before recharging. Every night before you turn the set off note the reading of the voltmeter for the discharged condition of your particular battery, and whenever the voltmeter nears this reading put the battery on charge. Its a very handy thing to have good idea as to the state of charge in the battery without having to resort to the messy hydrometer measurement.

FOOTBALL.

Saints Defeat Star.

Last night's football game between the Star and Saints resulted in a victory for the latter by five goals to one. There was a poor attendance of spectators and the game proved to be too unexciting to be of interest. The Star team played without the services of three of their regular players, while the Saints also had several changes in their line-up.

The Saints scored one goal in the first half and four in the second. The Star had many good chances to score, but the forwards seemed to lack the ability.

The C.L.B. and C.E.I. game advertised for to-night has been postponed.

NO TRUTH TO SUCH RUMOURS.

There are many rumours going round in racing circles that the race-horse Nellie R. will not participate in the races at the forthcoming annual regatta. This we are glad to state is incorrect, as she is already crowned by the following:—Football, Intermediate, Junior Football, Bankers, Amateur, Factory and Juvenile.

Further entries will be accepted by Mr. George Hunter, Phone 1310, or call Reid Newfoundland Company.

GENEROUS DONORS.

Additional medals for the football five at Belvedere Orphanage Garden Party which takes place next Wednesday have been donated. As soon as it was made known that four medals had been donated and one other was needed Master Grattan Kieley, son of Mr. J. P. Kieley of the Nickel Theatre, and Mr. W. R. Neal, kindly offered to supply the remaining medal. Mr. Kieley kindly gave a silver cup for the road race a couple of years ago, and Mr. Will Neal's hand is ever extended to help a cause as worthy as that of Belvedere Orphanage. The extra medal now obtained will be used for the road race at a later date. The donors of medals are as follows, Dr. M. S. Power, W. B. Comerford, J. P. Burke, Major P. J. Cashin, W. R. Neal and Grattan Kieley.

ST. PATRICK'S GARDEN PARTY SPORTS.

At St. Patrick's Garden Party yesterday afternoon the various races were keenly contested and were finished in good time considering the condition of the ground. The Junior League Relay Race was a special item. Three teams entered, viz.: Holy Cross, T.A. and B.I.S. Russell, the first runner for the T.A. took the lead followed by Malone of Holy Cross and Manning of the B.I.S. when the relays were passed over after the first round the order was the same, but in going around, McCormack of the T.A. fell, allowing Vincombe of Holy Cross to get a big lead over McCormack and Malone of the B.I.S. and when the last runners went off, namely Healey, Holy Cross; Nikosey, T.A. and Halley, B.I.S. the last two were unable to overtake the first, who finished about 5 yards in advance of Nikosey.

The three mile road race had four entries, R. O'Toole, W. Linegar, V. Spry and J. Woodley. The race was started at the three mile mark and at the outset O'Toole took the lead followed for about the first half mile by Woodley, Linegar and Spry in the order named; after this Linegar took second place and Spry third, and in this order the race finished. O'Toole having a lead of nearly a lap over Linegar who was about four times this ahead of Spry. O'Toole's time was 16.55. The Junior League Football Sixes were hard fought contests, and in the finals, the Mount Cashel were victorious over the B.I.S.

At the conclusion of the programme the prizes were presented, by Miss Hynes, President of the St. Patrick's Association, and the winners were accorded the generous plaudits of the spectators. The following is the complete sports programme:—

100 Yards Dash—1st, S. Russell; 2nd, J. Vincombe.

Junior League Relay Race—1st, Holy Cross; 2nd, T. A.; 3rd, B. I. S.; J. Malone, J. Vincombe, J. Healey.

220 Yards—1st, S. Russell; 2nd, G. Downs.

Football Sixes—B. I. S. defeat T. A. 1 goal, 2 corners to 1 corner.

3 Mile Road Race—1st, R. O'Toole; Time 16.55; 2nd, W. Linegar; 3rd, V. Spry.

Man's Lost Privilege

(By a Romantic Modern).

In an Italian novel that I have just been reading so many men kissed the hands of beautiful women and lovely girls that I feel in danger of unconsciously falling, at the first opportunity, into their gracious mode of salutation. When did it cease to be an English habit? And, above all, why did we abandon this form of gallantry which so many people on the Continent maintain with a delicate sense of what is charming in manners?

The instinct that I feel awakened in me has ever been latent in my nature. On taking leave of an old lady who stretches out her hand with a regal smile like a benediction, I am conscious that nothing would be more fitting than to bend over it to touch those trembling white fingers with my lips. In no other way could my natural devotion and reverence be so fitly expressed.

My delightful hostess at dinner prompts the same desire to express more than I can convey by a few conventional words of thanks for her hospitality while I hold her hand. With her husband standing beside her I can hardly tell her how beautiful she is looking. It at that moment I might bow over her hand and salute it she would understand all the gratitude and humble adoration that is in my heart. And probably she would ask me to dine again.

One of the charms of this chivalrous custom is that it need not be too formal. If we kiss the hand of a pretty girl we may convey only that we are her humble servant and admirer. But, if you choose, you can express more tender sentiments or supply a touch of gay daring, making the occasion memorable after the manner of a short story with a vivid unexpected conclusion. Women, I think, are not averse from a little audacity, above all when it is combined with a gesture of homage and high respect.

Is there a more gracious favour than a lovely girl could grant her humble admirer than to hold her hand that he may bend over it and touch it with his lips—as, says my Italian novel, he would have kissed the hand of his mother?

Steel Tariff

Application Referred to Research Committee.

It is stated in well-informed quarters that the Government has decided that the application of the iron and steel trades under the Safeguarding of Industries Scheme for a protective tariff against unfair foreign competition raises too wide an issue for reference to an ad hoc committee appointed by the Board of Trade.

The cost of imported steel so vitally affects a number of other important heavy industries that it would clearly be impossible to recommend a tariff solely on the evidence, of the strength of which no doubt is entertained, that British steel is being undercut by cheap foreign imports.

It is therefore stated that the application, together with the wide issues which it raises, will be referred to the Committee of Imperial Civil Research, the body for the examination of such questions which is analogous to the Committee of Imperial Defence in its particular sphere.

Municipal Council

WEEKLY MEETING.

The weekly meeting of the Municipal Council was held yesterday afternoon, Mayor Cook presided and Councillors Martin, Outerbridge, Collier, Ryan and Dowden were present. After reading the confirmation of Minutes of last meeting Dr. J. S. Tait addressed the Council with regard to what he considered the unsatisfactory condition of Plank Road, particularly the stables which were without water and sewerage connections. As a result people living in the neighbourhood were greatly annoyed by flies. He also mentioned that the fences were very dilapidated and depreciated the value of surrounding property. The former matter will be taken up with the Department of Public Health, while the latter will be enquired into and if as stated owners will be notified to replace or repair the fences complained of.

A deputation from the Playground Association, consisting of Messrs. C. J. Cahill and J. F. Meehan, was their object to place before the Council a proposition recently made their Association by Mr. Hamilton, represented the Rodgers' Amusement Company, who have recently been visiting Canadian Cities where they held a Fair or Circus, the admission to which was free with a charge for side-shows, etc. The Company usually worked in conjunction with some charitable organization, and in this particular case were willing to assist the Playground Association in its endeavours to provide suitable recreation for the children of our City. The question of a site for the holding of the entertainment was now receiving consideration, and it was with this end in view they wished to consult the Council. Many sites had been discussed; the City Parks, although suitable, could not be obtained. It was their desire, if possible, to secure Banerman Road for this purpose. They pointed out that it could be roped off or closed to vehicle traffic, if the Council would accede to their request, and if necessary a portion could be reserved for traffic. After the deputation had fully placed their views before the Board, the Mayor informed them every consideration would be given the proposition, but he could not guarantee that the site suggested would be available, and recommended that if possible they should try to secure some other place which would not interfere with or cause inconvenience to the public. The Engineer was instructed to look over the ground and submit full particulars, and in the meantime consideration was deferred. Following the communication forwarded the Government some weeks ago with regard to a loan for extension of water and sewerage facilities, the Deputy Colonial Secretary indicated that the Government desired further particulars in this connection. He is to be informed the Council asks the usual guarantee of the Government for obtaining of a loan from the Royal Bank of Canada.

Mr. Charles R. Ayre asked that some attention be given the Lane east of the Telegram Building which is much frequented by pedestrians going to and from Water Street. He also complained of the condition of water shutters of several buildings in the locality, which on wet days were the cause of great inconvenience to the public. Both matters are referred to the City Engineer.

Mr. T. F. Thompson asked that drains on Quiddi Vidi Road be attended to, particularly as the road has been repaired and the gullies must necessarily be placed on a level with the surface. The Engineer will look after same.

Messrs. George Knowling, Limited, wrote re the concrete sidewalk in front of their premises, Water Street, and signified their intention of contributing their portion towards repairs. Notification has been served upon all owners of property on this most important thoroughfare to repair the pavement in front of their premises, failing which on expiration of the time allowed legal proceedings will be taken. The above company also guaranteed to pay all costs that may be incurred for making necessary connections to their sprinkler system. Work is to be proceeded with by the Water Department.

Superintendent Morris reported that of late on both Carpasian and Alandale Roads street lamps have been deliberately broken, and if any complaints were received by the Council of the non-lighting of these thoroughfares he would like them to bear this in mind. During the past few months several street lamps have been broken, presumably by boys who make them a target, and the Inspector General is to be asked if it is possible to locate the guilty parties.

Mr. P. Grace, on behalf of the Mount Carmel Cemetery Committee stated in making improvements to the wall at this place they had excavated a large quantity of good gravel which they offered the Council for road purposes. This is not required, as two gravel pits are at present being worked.

Mr. J. M. Tobin, on behalf of the Benevolent Irish Society, requested that repairs be made to the steps, Garrison Hill. The City Engineer informed the Board this had been neglected owing to the pressure of other work but that he had arranged to have repairs start on Monday next.

Mr. W. A. Martin, on behalf of the Board of Trustees, Wesley Church, made application for the placing of a concrete sidewalk in front of the said Church and property generally, which he pointed out would greatly improve the appearance of the thoroughfare. He asked if in this case the Council would, as in others, contribute proportion of cost. Same was agreed to.

Mr. P. Murphy, Secretary of the Truckmen's Protective Union, in reply to a letter addressed to the President, stated the question of rates paid truckmen on city works would be discussed at the next meeting of the Union and that he, the Secretary, would inform the Council of the decision arrived at. The Council's inquiry in this connection was brought about by a rumour of a reduction in rates for certain work at present being carried on by non-resident contractors, and they considered that if such is the case the city should be given the benefit of the reduction also.

The application of the Inspector General to place a gasoline tank at the Central Fire Hall was granted.

Complaint was made to the Council by citizens of the inconvenience caused them by trucks, etc. discharging freight at Hickman's motor premises, blocking the sidewalk on Water Street. When the plans of this intention of the Council to permit such an entrance, failing which on expiration of the time allowed legal proceedings will be taken. The above company also guaranteed to pay all costs that may be incurred for making necessary connections to their sprinkler system. Work is to be proceeded with by the Water Department.

The obstruction at Gill's Cove was again the subject of a lengthy discussion, and by unanimous vote of Council the City Solicitor was instructed to prevent the Company proceeding further with work of any erections over the Cove in question.

In view of the present slogan "Paint Up and Clean Up!" the Council thought it would be in order to ask the Newfoundland Light & Power Company to give a little attention to the cleaning of globes of street lamps throughout the City. The City Clerk is to write them accordingly.

The overcrowding of lodging houses, etc. in the city was brought up, and the notice of the Board called to one house on Prince's Street in which some fifteen men are living in very meagre quarters. The same conditions apply to a large number of men employed at the Dry Dock who are being housed in old disused vessels moored at that premises. Almost every day we read reports and recommendations on the health of our City, but if such conditions are allowed to continue what can we expect? An epidemic is likely to occur at any time. The Council viewing the matter in a very serious light thought it would be only fitting to acquaint the Department of Public Health with regard to these matters, and the City Clerk was asked to write Dr. Brehm without further delay.

Mr. T. J. Foran, Supervisor of Enumerators, reported that this work was now almost completed. He had given very careful consideration to the many defects apparent in the conduct of past Municipal Elections, and strongly recommended certain improvements for this year. The division of the city into six wards was, he thought, impracticable, and as a result some hundreds of voters were disfranchised. He submitted that it would be better to use eleven wards, as in the General Election, and thus avoid the confusion experienced formerly. The Council having thoroughly gone into his report were of opinion that his suggestions were most timely, and therefore decided that the wards as agreed upon for last Election be amended, and a new plan of eleven wards, as recommended by the Supervisor, be confirmed. The City Clerk will confer with the Solicitor on the matter, after which a new plan will be drawn up by the City Engineer.

Plans.
The following were passed subject to the approval of the City Engineer at whose office permits may be obtained on application:—

Garage, F. Rees, Pennywell Road, provided ventilator is installed.
Dwelling, W. Colford, extension of Machine Shop Stores, Water Street West (temporary permit.)

That of George Cooper to erect garage on Charlton Street was deferred until location plan is submitted, while that of Nicholas Jackson to build a bungalow on Goodridge Street was not passed, as no water or sewerage connections are available.

Plans submitted for the reconstruction of the Methodist College Building, Long's Hill, were referred to the City Engineer and Inspector General. Permit is to be issued the Newfoundland Tourist Publicity Association for the erection of a sign over entrance to offices, Board of Trade Building.

The City Engineer reported on work of Roads, Water Works and Sewerage Departments for the week. He stated that owing to unfavourable weather it was impossible to get very far with the silting of streets, but that the best possible was being done in the circumstances.

The City Clerk tabled statements of Revenue and Expenditure to June 30th last. The various items were work of the Sanitary Department, that the cleaning and flushing of hoopers, etc., had been given particular attention; that some five hundred gullies were cleaned and dipped and the contents carried to the various dumps, and that the catch basins were regularly cleaned—in some cases two or three times daily.

The City Clerk tabled statements of Revenue and Expenditure to June 30th last. The various items were carefully gone into by the Council. While generally satisfactory, it was pointed out that the Revenue was not quite up to expectations, possibly by reason of the shortage in coal duties, but at the same time it was considered that citizens are not fulfilling their obligations in payment of City Taxes. Notice is at present being given in the daily papers to all delinquents, and a limited time given after expiration of which the City Clerk will proceed as provided for by the Municipal Act to take legal proceedings.

The City Clerk also reported that he had received from the City Appraiser as also the Supervisor of Enumerators a list of those liable for the Poll Tax, and that without any further notice he would in the course of a few days have a number of writs issued in this connection.

Many routine matters were disposed of and requisitions for various departments granted, after which the meeting adjourned.

Installation of R.W.M. Lodge MacKay

At Bay Roberts on Wednesday evening, July 9th, at 8 o'clock, the installation of the R.W.M. of Lodge MacKay, S.C., took place, the ceremony being performed by the District Grand Master, Bro. Hon. T. K. Cook, who, with a large party of Masons had motored over from the city to attend this function, there being present a large number of Brethren, including representatives from Harbor Grace, Carleton Place and Heart's Content. Lodge MacKay was opened at 8 p.m. when the following deputation from the District Grand Lodge of England were received:—
Wor. Bro. Sir R. A. Squires, P.D.G., Registrar.

A collection in aid of the Benevolent Fund realized a substantial amount. The members of the two District Grand Lodges retired, after which the Lodge was closed and all those present adjourned to the Banquet Hall, where a splendid repast had been prepared by the energetic Ladies' Auxiliary of Lodge MacKay. The rapidity with which the good things disappeared from the table was surely sufficient evidence that the efforts of the ladies to appease the wants of the inner man were appreciated by all the Brethren present. The Committee in charge of these preparations, and particularly the energetic Secretary, Bro. Myers, to whom most of the credit is due, are to be congratulated on the splendid manner in which the entire arrangements were carried out. The following Toasts were duly proposed and honored:—

TYLER'S TOAST—Bro. W. C. Major, D.G. Tyler; God Save the King.
Solo singing and Community Chorus singing from Lodge MacKay Song Sheet dispersed throughout the evening's proceedings, helped in no small way to make the evening one of the most enjoyable that has yet been spent around the Bay. Some of the city Brethren motored to town on Thursday morning in the early hours; the balance returned after dawn, arriving in the city at 1.30 after an eventful trip to Bay Roberts, which has been noted by all those privileged to be present as better than the best.

A Bargain to Those Who Look Ahead

When it comes to the acid test of really hard gruelling work and comfort—that is where the Morris-Oxford and Cowley Cars come out on top. Sturdy, reliable and steadfast, it has that rugged power and beefiness that your car in future will be a Morris. And it asks for little—only a gallon of fuel every 30 miles on the Oxford—only a gallon of fuel every 36 miles on the "Cowley," proven by Morris owners in Newfoundland. Prices wonderfully low, you can reach them.

It's British—and you'll be proud of it.
