Caline composed herself and continued: "Seeing monsteur, I stopped, for I did not wish him to discover me abroad so late. So I stood in the thick shade until he should have passed. He came slowly toward me and, just about four paces from my hiding-place, paused, turned and looked back at the house. I could see him soing toward the upper windows, and presently I saw your shadew pent the blind as you entered your dressing troom. The light shone out from your window, too; and after looking for a while, I heard him murmur to himself. "That must be her window; I believe I am bewitched, for I can't bear to lose its light, and then."

"Stop laughing, you ridiculous girl! And what then?"

How long she had slept it never afterward occurred to Miss Arthur to inquire. Something recalled her from the land of visions, and starting up in her chair she saw Celine, standing demuraly before her, her face wreathed in smiles, and no signs of any uncanny adventure lingering about her.

Beholding her safe and sound Miss Hess head of Celine, the vials of wrath prepared for her benefit.

The girl listened with a face indicative of some secret source of amusement. After a few more words they decided that, as Claire did not return, and time was precious, they would order a carriage immediately, after luncheon, and pay a visit to the detective forthwith. Accordingly, half an hour earlier than usual, a light repast was served, and sparingly partaken of. Then having left a message for Miss Keith, who was momentarily expected, the two friends drove into the city.

After a few more words they decided "Do you recall the name of the man who was wounded, so said the jury, by Mr. Girard?"

"Do you recall the name of the man who was wounded, so said the jury, by Mr. Girard?"

"Up sprang Claire, her eyes blazing. "Madeline," she cried. 'I see what you are coming at. You have got into your head the ridiculous idea that this man Percy and Edward Percy are the same. It is absurd!"

"I never heard of such a nest of vultures," she exclaimed, excitedly, when Madeline had completed her story "Why, it's worse than a chapter out of a French drama. Goodness gracious, Madeline Payne, I wish I could help you deal out justice to these wretches! Where is my fairy godmother now, that she don't come and convert me into a six-foot brother, to take some of this burden out of your little weak hands?"

CHAPTER XVIII.—THE HAND OF FRIENDSHIP WIELDS THE SURGEON'S KNIFE.

Returning two hours later, they found Claire impatiently waiting their arrival, radiantly beautiful, and overflowing with joy at sight of her beloved Madeline.

"You delightfully horrible girl!" she exclaimed, after greetings had been exchanged, and they had all seated themselves in the drawing room. "To think that you are growing more lovely every day, and that you go and hide all your beauty under an old fright of a wig, nasty blue spectacles and deformities of jackets! I declare, it's too bad! And then to wait on an old spinster whe wears no end of false hair, and false the the false—"

"Puzzled already. So much for not being a lady's maid; new I can enumer at every 'falseheod' assumed by that
