MAYOR CONSULTS WITH G.T.R.;
MAY BRING BACK GOOD NEWS*Arranging for Erection of Depot, Freight Sheds, Etc.
---C. P. R. to Branch Out From London.

City Hall circles are acutely interested in the visit to Toronto today of Mayor Judd, for it is understood that his purpose is to see the General Manager of the Grand Trunk Railway, with a view to opening negotiations with the company at once for a new depot, freight shed, etc., for London.

It is understood that last week his worship had a message from Mr. McGowan asking if it would be convenient for the mayor to meet him in Toronto, and it is not improbable that Mr. Judd will return with an important announcement for the railway committee of the council, as well as for the council as a whole and the citizens at large.

Many important matters will need to be considered when the city and company meet, and it is expected that the Grand Trunk will arrange with Mayor Judd for a meeting in this city shortly, at which they will lay their plans before the council.

It is known, too, that Chief Engineer Hubben, of the Grand Trunk Railway, was in London yesterday and with his secretary and assistants inspected the present depot, the freight house, yards, and different crossings. It is understood that he is acting under orders from General Manager McGowan, and will make a full report on the subject right away.

While here the chief engineer was met by several of the aldermen who talked with him on the matter of the improvement of the depot, which are to be made by the Grand Trunk, C. P. R., also in line.

Railway matters continue to boom.

PLOWING IN JANUARY*West Londoner Busy in His Garden Breaking Up the Sod.

It is a new departure for people in this vicinity to do plowing in midwinter. Nevertheless, Mr. W. J. Goodland, of Paul street, West London, yesterday took advantage of the phenomenon mild weather and the absence of frost, and did a good day's plowing in his garden. Part of the ground turned over was sodded land.

REDS HISS ROOSEVELT*The Chicago Friends of Russ Rebels Remember Red Sunday.

Chicago, Jan. 22. — A thousand men and women carrying slush sleds and wind in a parade to commemorate St. Petersburg's "Red Sunday" of a year ago. The parade ended at a hall, where a meeting was held. Red flags fluttered in the breeze, and the crowd, many of whom were called emissaries of the evil one, and the name of President Roosevelt was hissed when mentioned by Seymour Steadman in connection with the sending of condolences on the assassination of Grand Duke Saxon. When the collection was taken Chairman Thomas J. Morgan announced: "This money will be sent to the international bureau at Brussels, and from there to Russia, to help widows and orphans of the slain, and if necessary to buy dynamite."

AFTER A WEEK IN JAIL*Young Fellows Who Traveled in C. P. R. Freight Car Dismissed.

The three young travelers who came in on a private freight car a week ago on the C. P. R., and who were so suspiciously received by some of Chief Williams' staff and the carriage were this morning allowed to go.

They had spent a week in jail, and since nothing had been stolen, nor any damage done, the magistrate thought that punishment enough had been inflicted on them for trespassing. The accused thought so, too. They didn't relish the complications which generally ensue when traveling in the close season for hobos.

Willis Moxley acquired a big last night. It had partly left him this morning, but to insure its entire removal, Moxley was remanded for a week.

CLEVER FENCING AT ALGECIRAS; DELEGATES SEE FRESH CLASH

Algeciras, Jan. 22. — The plenipotentiaries were entertained at today's sitting of the Moroccan conference by an almost continuous skirmish between M. Revell, head of the French delegation, and Count Von Tattenbach, the second of the German delegates. While the amenities were carefully observed, the other delegates were conscious that today was the beginning of fresh controversies between France and Germany which are likely to be long protracted and of increasing earnestness.

The styles of fence displayed by the two plenipotentiaries suggested their differences of race. M. Revell was keen, analytical of mind, skillful in diplomatic phrasing, and with a grace of expression and winning personality, Count Von Tattenbach was down-around the city hall in other directions. Today City Clerk Baker received a copy of a notice to the effect that at the next session of parliament the Grand Trunk Railway Company will apply to the Parliament of Canada at its next session for authority to build a branch line from a point on the company's line at or near the city of London, Ont., in a northerly direction through the counties of Middlesex, Oxford, Perth, Huron and Bruce, to a point on Lake Huron in the county of Huron and Bruce and for other purposes.

London Vitality Interested.

This is the C. P. R. in Ontario, the city clerk says, and it means that the big trunk line which has so long held undisputed possession in the Northwest, is now going to give the Grand Trunk and all other roads in Ontario competition at every point, since the C. P. R. is to now have competition in the west.

London will be vitally interested in this new line, as it will not only afford competition to many points, but will also mean the practical opening up of a territory very much neglected as far as the railways are concerned at present.

Mayor Judd Made Commissioner.

(Special to The Advertiser.)
Toronto, Ont., Jan. 23.—Mayor Joseph Judd, of London, has been appointed the commissioner to take the evidence in the fisheries investigation ordered by Hon. Dr. Reame, Minister of Public Works. Friction has been said to exist between the deputy minister, Mr. Bastedo, and the inspectors for some time, but Hon. Dr. Reame, in his letter, said that he will not make a statement. The taking of evidence will begin immediately. It is not likely that other commissioners than Mayor Judd will be appointed.

ECHO OF THE ROWLEY CASE*Trial Judge Sustained in Elgin Loan vs. C. G. and A. Company.

In the high court, Toronto, in Elgin Loan and Savings Company vs. London Guarantee and Accident Company—Judgment (H.) on appeal by plaintiffs from order of a divisional court G. O. W. R. 349, 9 O. L. R. 559, affirming judgment of MacLaren, J. (4 O. W. R. 99, 8 O. L. R. 117), dismissing action upon a guarantee policy issued by defendants in favor of plaintiff loan company to secure the fidelity of one George Rowley, manager of that company. The guarantee was for the sum of $2,500 against loss by embezzlement during the continuance of the agreement. The defendants alleged that there was no proper audit of Rowley's accounts, and that a change had been made in the duties of Rowley without notice to defendants. The trial judge held that there had been a change in the business of the plaintiff company, which was contrary to the terms of the policy, and that a change had been made in the duties of Rowley without notice to defendants. DOSED WITH MORPHINE*Woman Accused of Poisoning Husband to Secure Life Insurance.

New York, Jan. 23.—A dispatch to the World from Gloster, Miss., says: Mrs. Clarke Stuart, wife of a wealthy planter, was arrested yesterday, charged with poisoning her husband for the purpose of collecting a life insurance policy of $10,000. Two circumstances connected with the arrest make one of the most remarkable criminal stories in the history of the state, and if the evidence furnished be proved the authorities will show a most daring attempt to swindle an insurance company by committing a murder.

Mrs. Stuart is Stuart's third wife. Mr. Stuart is just recovering from a critical illness, caused, it is alleged, by heavy doses of morphine administered without his knowledge, and for the purpose of getting rid of him in order that his life insurance might be collected. The trial witnesses against Mrs. Stuart are her husband and two physicians.

High Court of Appeals Consider His Plea to Set Aside Verdict.

In the court of appeal, Toronto, before Chief Justice Moss, and Justices Osler, Garrow, MacLaren and Clute, in the case of the King vs. Burdell, J. F. Faulds, of this city, for prisoner, moved for leave to appeal (and for a direction to state a case) from the conviction of prisoner by Mr. Justice Street and a jury for burglary of Jacob Obermeyer's hotel. A verdict of guilty was recorded, and prisoner sentenced to fifteen years in the Kingston Penitentiary.

The prisoner contended that the judge in effect commented upon the failure of the prisoner to testify in his own behalf, that the jurors disagreed, as was disclosed when they were polled, and that there was no evidence of prisoner's guilt to go to the jury.

J. R. Cartwright, K.C., for the crown, contra. Judgment reserved.

Chinese Recent Taxation.

Canton, China, Jan. 23. — Serious trouble is feared as a result of the viceroy's scheme for taxation in order to raise revenue for the construction of the Canton-Hankow Railway. The merchants' guilds are determined on a retaliatory strike and the viceroy threatens the leaders with decapitation. Three Chinese gunboats have been summoned here from Shanghai.

BUYS GREAT PICTURE*Velasquez "Venus" Purchased for the British Nation.

London, Jan. 23.—The Standard this morning says it understands that the "Venus" of Velasquez was purchased for the nation yesterday owing to an anonymous personage becoming the guarantor of the purchase money. The Paris Louvre has unavailingly offered $250,000 for the canvas.

HERE'S A DILEMMA*Sweethearts of Hotelman's Girls Innocently Arouse Suspicion.

Trenton, Jan. 23. — The crusade against Sunday liquor selling, now in full swing in this city, has greatly worried a prosperous saloonkeeper who has five marriageable daughters. It is because he has these daughters that he is worried, and the cause of his anxiety is explained in a communication sent anonymously to a newspaper by one of the young women.

She writes that she and her sisters have five young men calling on them Sunday evenings, and her father has objected on the plea that the young fellows coming and going Sunday nights through the side door lead the police to suspect that they are bar patrons getting drinks in violation of the Sunday law. The young woman asks if the five sweethearts should not be "tagged" so they will not be in danger of arrest on their Sunday evening visits.

DR. TORREY CONVERTS 3,300.

(Special to The Advertiser.)

Toronto, Jan. 23.—It was officially stated on behalf of the Torrey-Alexander mission this morning that in the 52 meetings held in Toronto so far, 3,300 people have been converted. The mission has also been a success financially.

THE BALKAN STATES SNARLING;
THREE-CORNERED ROW IS ON*Servia, Turkey and Austria Clash Over Commerce and War May Follow—Peter's Dynasty Doomed.

London, Jan. 23.—Special dispatches from Vienna to this morning's London newspapers are inclined to attribute the strained relations between Austria-Hungary and Servia, partly to the waning influence of King Peter. The king is represented as being powerless to control the policy of his cabinet owing to the growth of the Radical and Republican influences, which, it is said, appear to threaten the position of the Servian dynasty.

The correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "It is believed in Austria that the days of the Karageorgievitch dynasty are numbered, and that before a year has elapsed King Peter and his family will be expelled. King Peter's court is virtually boycotted by the European courts, owing to suspicions that he had foreknowledge of the murder of King Alexander and Queen Draga, and already a strong party is trying to place a German prince on the Servian throne."

The correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says he hears that Austria has learned of the conclusion of a military alliance between Servia and Bulgaria.

Sofia, Jan. 23.—Telegraphing from Sofia yesterday, the Times correspondent says: Contending that Bulgaria has no right under the provisions of the Berlin treaty to conclude such a convention, Turkey has presented a note requesting that Bulgaria abandon the Servo-Bulgarian convention. Bulgaria refuses to comply with the request.

"TEXAS" BURDELL'S CASE*High Court of Appeals Consider His Plea to Set Aside Verdict.

In the court of appeal, Toronto, before Chief Justice Moss, and Justices Osler, Garrow, MacLaren and Clute, in the case of the King vs. Burdell, J. F. ACTION IS RESENTED*Mr. Fielding's Friends Believe the Clique Is Doing Spite Work.

Halifax, Jan. 22.—On Saturday Hon. W. S. Fielding and M. Carney, M. P., were served with writs to appear next Wednesday before Judge Meagher for discovery.

In the case of Mr. Fielding there has been much resentment locally among Liberals, who believe that the action taken against him is a clique of Conservatives to inflict a personal wound on the Finance Minister; for, unless the writ is set aside, Mr. Fielding will be prevented from accompanying the body of Hon. Mr. Prefontaine to Montreal.

DID FRANCE BACK MATOS?*Venezuelans Claim Treatment of M.
Taigay Was Justified.

Caracas, Jan. 23, via Port of Spain.—The Franco-Venezuelan correspondence, which the Constitutional has been publishing, fully demonstrates, it is claimed, the complicity of the French Government in the Matos revolution. It is added, that the fact that the French Cable Company had been the French Government's best news carrier justified the action by the Government against the company. Hence the position which Venezuela assumed towards M. Taigay, the former charge d'affaires, when in his protest in behalf of the Venezuelan Government of despoiling the company was correct, according to the Venezuelan point of view.

Run Aground in Fog.

Bristol, England, Jan. 23. — Three vessels, the Bristol liner Exeter City from New York, the British steamer Trevint and the British steamer Faithful, ran ashore in a bunch in the river Avon today during a dense fog. They remain fast, but are in no immediate danger.

SOMEWHAT MIXED
AS TO HER SPOUSE*Quite Sure He Is Her Own
"Chris," But the Police Say
She Is M. Siaken.

It is not often that a wife mistakes another man's identity for that of her husband, but so it seems to be with a woman of about 33 years of age, who sat for a while in the police station this morning. She had called there for the purpose of laying an information against the man whom she firmly believes to be her husband, but whom the police know to be another man entirely.

The woman's marital relations have not been of the happiest. Three years ago she married a man named Christopher Columbus—at least those were his given names. Connubial bliss lasted only a day or so, Christopher disappearing, and his wife left a wiser, perhaps, but certainly a poorer woman.

For some time now the woman has been boarding on King street, and there she met a young fellow of about 20 years of age. She spread the tale of her troubles broadcast, among her friends. This young fellow one day jokingly remarked that he was her husband who had disappeared. The idea seemed to take root in Kate's mind, that is her name—brain, for it stayed with her. Since then the young fellow to her has been Christopher Columbus.

But last night Kate's troubles took a complicated turn. She had picked up a ring in the house and had placed it on her hand. She thought it the wedding ring that Christopher had given her. While standing on a couch last night, she claims some of the others in the house had endeavored to take the ring off. She awoke and a struggle ensued, in which Kate's hand was badly cut where the ring had been placed. But she would give the ring to no one but "Christopher," and this she did.

"He was good to me last night," she told a police official. "He let me sit on the sofa beside him and talked to me." But, alas, "Chris" had left this morning on the 8:30 train, but will be back late tonight, and she wanted to lay an information against him for non-support. She talked of divorce and alimony as well, and would not be dissuaded could she obtain these two.

The case, though it has a humorous side, is extremely pathetic, inasmuch as the woman is now practically alone on the street without friends or money.

The supposed relation with the young fellow appears to be of the nature of a mental delusion.

GIVES BOOBY TO THIEF*Prisoner Weeps in Court and Com-

Montreal, Jan. 22.—An instance of the most advanced theories in dealing with reforming criminals was recorded here today in the case of Alphonse Gladeau, who was charged by A. H. Scott, Westmount, with having stolen a pair of moccasins, valued at $2.25. The accused had been caught with the goods in his possession and there was a clear case against him. He seemed, however, to be in a rather unenviable condition all round, and when referring to his ill fortune he wept so that Mr. Scott could not refrain from sympathizing with him. Stepping forward, the complainant, interceded by pleading before Judge Choquette for the release of the prisoner. After a few questions from the bench the accused was allowed to go on suspended sentence, and as he turned to move into the corridor on his way to liberty Mr. Scott pushed forward and thrust the offending moccasins into his hands, remarking that probably he had greater need of them than the owner.

London, Jan. 23. — The East, or Bromsgrove, division of Worcestershire, has re-elected Joseph Austen Chamberlain, Liberal Unionist, eldest son of Joseph Chamberlain, and former chancellor of the exchequer, by over 4,000. Otherwise the election returns today continued to record Liberal successes.

London, Jan. 22.—Donald McMaster, K.C., Montreal, has failed in his energetic effort to wrest Leigh division of Lancashire from the Liberal column.

He was defeated today by J. F. Brimmer, Liberal, by 2,006, the vote being 7,175 to 5,169.

The constituency has been Liberal for over twenty years, with majorities ranging in the neighborhood of a thousand. Last election the majority was reduced to 120.

The riding includes large mining interests, and the Liberal vote is considerable.

Appealing for the Labor vote, the Liberal candidate pointed out in a recent speech that Donald McMaster

OF MIDDLESEX COUNTY COUNCIL*Mr. Jackson Breaks Deadlock
by Voting for Nominee of Conservatives.

The county council met yesterday afternoon, with the clerk, Capt. T. E. Robson, in the chair. The first item of business was the election of a warden for 1906.

W. A. Galbraith, county councillor, of Ekfrid, was nominated by Councillors Hutchinson and Piper.

G. D. Roebottom was nominated by Councillors D. D. Graham and McDonald.

The first vote was a tie, the council dividing along political lines. The Conservatives supported Councillor Galbraith, as follows: Councillors Clark, Westman, Hutchinson, Fitzgerald, Galbraith, Young, Lewis and Piper.

The Liberals lined up behind Councillor Roebottom as follows: Councillors Jackson, McCallum, McDonald, McLeish, Graham, Turnbull, Roebottom and Cousins. As there seemed to be no prospect of the deadlock being broken, the council adjourned until this morning at 10 a.m.

The clerk occupied the chair, and the names of the two nominees were again read. The vote resulted in precisely the same division as on the afternoon before. The names were submitted to the council, and Councillor W. Jackson left the Liberal side, and voted for Mr. Galbraith, who was declared elected.

He was escorted to the chair by his sponsors, Councillors Hutchinson and Piper, and introduced to the council. Mr. Galbraith made a brief speech, in which he thanked the council for the honor conferred upon him.

Several communications were read. The secretary of the Western Fair Association asked the county council to send two representatives to the Western Fair Association's annual meeting this week. The communication was sent to the agricultural committee.

A communication from Hattie Yeeves, matron of the Salvation Army Rescue Home, asking for the usual small grant of $50 to that institution, was sent to the finance committee.

The National Sanatorium Association, through W. J. Gage, asked for a grant to the Free Hospital for Consumption. Referred to finance committee.

City Clerk Baker informed the county council, that the city council passed a resolution showing the need of an electric light at the corner of Egerton and Trafalgar streets, and that the council were willing to pay half the cost, if the county council would do the same. Referred to the finance committee.

Mr. Moore, secretary for the Canadian Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, wrote inviting the county council to send delegates to the coming convention in Ottawa, dealing with that subject. There was considerable tuberculosis in dairy herds, and the matter should be inquired into. This communication was sent to the agricultural committee.

Mr. J. Ross Robertson solicited aid for the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto. This request was sent to the finance committee.

J. W. Jardine, secretary of the Municipal Association of Ontario, invited representatives from the county council to wait on the Ontario Government to protest against, and prevent, if possible, any change in the present county council act. Referred to the petitioning committee.

J. W. McNellie, of Lindsay, on behalf of the county of Victoria, asked for co-operation in obtaining the views of county clerks and treasurers on the workings of the present municipal act. Referred to the petitioning committee.

W. McLeay, secretary of the Watford High School, informed the county council that the Watford High School was open to pupils from Middlesex on the same terms as county pupils. Referred to educational committee.

Secretary G. G. German, of the Strathroy Collegiate, informed the council that the term of Mr. James H. English as trustee had expired, but that he was eligible for re-election.

A communication was also received from the Oxford County Council, inviting co-operation in the coming convention in Toronto, regarding changes in municipal act. Referred to petitioning committee.

had spoken against Labor candidates in other ridings, while he had shown friendship to labor by loaning his motor car to three Labor candidates and each had won.

But the campaign has not been entirely in vain for the Conservative candidate, for a report from the riding says that after the meetings several ladies insisted on kissing McMaster.

McMaster is a prominent Montreal lawyer, whose work for the Conservative party in Canada has been zealous and unselfish. He was born in Glasgow, and is a son of a rich Scotch brewer and magnetic personality.

Only two other returns have been received tonight out of twenty-two pollings today.

Sir J. F. Leesele retains Ayrshire division of Lancashire for the Independents by 2,357 over the Labor and Independent-Socialist candidates. The other division goes to Labor, Hodgson defeating Reys, Conservative, by 4,225. This seat was won for Conservatives by Hatch with a majority of 520 in 1900, but Hatch went over to the Liberals last year, and did not seek re-election.

Austin Chamberlain's fate will be announced tomorrow. Much uncertainty arises owing to the fact that nine thousand new voters have been added to the list since the last contest in 1895.

In short, in the race for the biggest majority, Romford bids fair to be second, Sir Edward Clarke, Conservative, with a majority of 10,706 in the city of London, is still at the top, but Romford today disclosed a Liberal majority of 8,822, a change from a Conservative majority of 3,062 last time.

Snider, elected for Forfarshire, is solicitor-general.

Deadlock Grips the Board of Health at First Meeting

The Question of Chairmanship Results in a Tie Vote.

Mayor Judd Called in and Votes for Dr. English.

Board Decides Ice May Be Cut Almost Anywhere This Season at Least.

The board of health was attacked by the deadlock today yesterday afternoon, and it required the vote of Mayor Judd, who had to be sent for, to elect Dr. English to the chairmanship. In this case it can scarcely be argued that politics was at the bottom of the trouble, for of the seven members of the board, only one is a Liberal.

When the board met the first order of business was the election of a chairman, it being the inaugural meeting. Dr. English was proposed and so was Mr. W. D. Willis. A vote was taken and it resulted in a deadlock, as follows, the name of Mr. Willis being the first to be voted on:

Yeas—Messrs. Carrothers, Stevenson and Skinner.

Nays—Messrs. English, Willis and Taylor.

To Break the Tie.

The vote thus showed Mr. Willis to be in the magnificent position of voting against himself, and also thereby creating a deadlock.

Somebody suggested that City Clerk Baker, the secretary of the board, should break the deadlock, but the clerk declared there was nothing in the law which gave him this power.

Then Mayor Judd was sent for. It took some time to find him, and the board passed the time away discussing everything but the chairmanship. Finally his worship arrived.

"Gentlemen, can't you come to a decision without me?" he asked.

"No," said a couple of members, laconically.

"I guess I had better withdraw," remarked Mr. Willis.

"They had better retire and come to terms, don't you think so, Bob?" said the mayor to Mr. Carrothers.

"No," said Mr. Carrothers, "give your vote. You've a vote the same as the rest of us."

"Then I'll vote for Dr. English," said his worship, and the doctor was elected.

The new chairman then thanked the committee, and promised to do his best for the city this year.

No Notices Sent Out.

Mr. Skinner complained that he had not received notice of the last meeting held last year. He said that owing to the irregular manner in which the meetings were being held he did not know what was going on.

City Clerk Baker said he had sent out notices in the usual manner, and in time to give all members a chance to attend the meetings.

The chairman said as far as he was concerned, the meetings had been called in the usual manner.

Mr. Skinner wanted to know what had become of all the money the board had last year. He thought the board should have had a larger balance than $150.

Dr. English said the accounts were on hand, and could be scrutinized.

Then it was ascertained that the last meeting had been a minority one, and after a short discussion the minutes were confirmed as the record of a minority meeting.

The Ice Question.

Mr. Carrothers introduced the cool, and yet very warm, ice question when he moved that the ice men be allowed to cut ice now, as in the past, anywhere they can get ice fit to cut.

"Who will you say shall declare what ice is fit to cut?" asked Dr. English.

"Let them cut ice as in the past," retorted Mr. Carrothers, "let them cut it anywhere."

"On the coasts" asked Mr. Taylor.

"Yes," Mr. Carrothers replied, "as

WORKS WITHOUT FAITH.

Faith Came After the Works Had Laid the Foundation.

A Bay State belle talks thus about coffee:

"While a coffee drinker I was a sufferer from indigestion and intensely painful nervous headaches, from childhood.

"Seven years ago my health gave out entirely. I grew so weak that the exertion of walking, if only a few feet, made it necessary for me to lie down. My friends thought I was marked for consumption—weak, thin and pale.

"I realized the danger I was in and tried faithfully to get relief from medicine, till, at last, after having employed all kinds of drugs, the doctor acknowledged that he did not believe it was in his power to cure me.

"While in this condition a friend induced me to quit coffee and try Postum Food Coffee, and I did so without the least hope that it would do me any good. I did not like it at first, but when it was properly made I found it was a most delicious and refreshing beverage. I am especially fond of it served at dinner ice-cold, with cream.

"In a month's time I began to improve, and in a few weeks my indigestion ceased to trouble me, my headache stopped entirely. I am so perfectly well now that I do not look like the same person who was so racked in good ice as was brought to London from other places last year has been cut on the coasts."

Ald. Stevenson, in seconding the motion, asked if it wasn't time to settle the ice question and not have the ice men in a panic and the people in fear of a famine every year. The doctor added that the best ice brought here from Hamilton last year was not as good as the poor ice formerly harvested in London.

Mr. Carrothers said the core ice, on one analysis was shown to be better than North Branch ice.

Mayor Judd said he feared that under Mr. Carrothers' motion the ice men might cut bad ice and sell it in the city.

"Stop them selling it," said Mr. Carrothers.

Is Pond Polluted?

The mayor then stated that he saw no reason why the ice men should not cut ice on the North Branch or the coasts.

Mr. Carrothers asked Dr. Hutchinson if he had not at one time reported that the pond ice was pure.

"I did not," said the doctor.

It was at the board when you made the report," Mr. Carrothers declared.

Mr. Willis said that certain places where ice may be cut should be named by the board. He thought Mr. Carrothers' motion a little too sweeping.

Ald. Stevenson said the ice men, if the resolution was passed, would simply go to their old haunts, and there would be no trouble over the ice question this year.

Places Defined.

Mayor Judd asked if it is not true that Pond Mills ice is all right, but Dr. English said it has not as yet been tested.

Ald. Stevenson said that the Government bacteriologist confessed Springbank water and the city did not believe him; the same gentleman had condemned certain sources of London's ice supply, and the city believed him. He thought this rather queer.

Mr. Willis declared the board said last year that ice could not be cut in certain places and now Mr. Carrothers wanted to allow the ice men to cut ice anywhere. This looked like the board swallowing itself.

The board finally adopted a resolution to allow the ice men to cut ice for domestic purposes on the north and south branches, and the west cove, for this season.

The Contagious Hospital.

Dr. English brought up the matter of refusing any more consumptive patients in Victoria Hospital, owing to the danger to other patients. He also said that this year the question of a contagious hospital will need to be taken up by the board. Inspector Bruce-Smith having written the trust a very strong letter on the subject. If the contagious hospital is not built, it will mean that the Government grant to Victoria Hospital will be cut off, and London, like Toronto, and several other cities will be compelled to establish an institution for the care of consumptive patients. When the hygienic department was in Toronto recently, several members of the board of health called on the provincial health department, and were given to understand that the above drastic measure must be taken in case the hospital is not built.

Dr. Stevenson said it would be a great hardship on the poor to absolutely prohibit the receiving of tuberculosis patients in the hospital.

Mayor Judd said matters had come to such a stage that no more tuberculosis patients could be cared for at the hospital.

Mr. Carrothers said he could not see where the great objection to contagious patients was coming from. When the hospital was built, the contagious wards were erected in accordance with the law.

The board finally adjourned without taking any action on the matter.

Wm. Siddell, of Ilderton, offered to sell the city ice, 10 inches thick, off his pond.—Piled.

On motion of Dr. Stevenson, seconded by Mr. Carrothers, the board decided to meet in future on the second Tuesday in each month, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

Chairman English, Dr. W. J. Stevenson, W. H. Skinner, Charles Taylor, R. A. Carrothers, W. D. Willis, Mayor Judd and City Clerk Baker were present.

"While a coffee drinker I was a sufferer from indigestion and intensely painful nervous headaches, from childhood.

"Seven years ago my health gave out entirely. I grew so weak that the exertion of walking, if only a few feet, made it necessary for me to lie down. My friends thought I was marked for consumption—weak, thin and pale.

"I realized the danger I was in and tried faithfully to get relief from medicine, till, at last, after having employed all kinds of drugs, the doctor acknowledged that he did not believe it was in his power to cure me.

"While in this condition a friend induced me to quit coffee and try Postum Food Coffee, and I did so without the least hope that it would do me any good. I did not like it at first, but when it was properly made I found it was a most delicious and refreshing beverage. I am especially fond of it served at dinner ice-cold, with cream.

CHINA'S MILITARY PROGRESS AMAZES

Experts See Work of New Army and Marvel at It.

SOON TO HAVE 2,250,000 MEN

Officers Trained in Germany Returning to Organize Immense Force.

Berlin, Jan. 22.—With 1,000,000 rifles of the latest pattern on order in Europe, and contracts signed for 300 modern batteries, the Chinese Empire has made a highly effective start on its big army reorganization scheme.

The actual creation of China's great war machine of the future will probably begin in earnest some time in April or May, for late in March the man who has been chosen to take the business in hand will leave Europe for Peking. This is Gen. Yin Schang, China's greatest soldier, who for the last three years has been representing his country at the Kaiser's court.

China's new army, which is to number 2,250,000 men and cost $600,000,000, will be modeled on that greatest of all European military machines—the army of Kaiser Wilhelm and Gen. Yin Schang is undoubtedly the person to do it. Sent as a young man to study the art of war in the school of Moltke and Von Clausewitz, he was brought up as a German officer, spent seven years in the Kaiser's service and returned to China in 1882, just in time to take an active part in his country's struggle against the Japanese a year later.

It was he who conducted the brilliant defense of Tien Tsin against the Mikado's army of invasion, and this performance made him recognized as undoubtedly the most able soldier under the dragon flag. A few years later, he left the army to enter China's diplomatic service, acting first as minister to Vienna, and later to Berlin. Slight of build and extremely youthful looking in spite of his 40 odd years, Gen. Yin Schang speaks both English and German fluently, and is the most accomplished after dinner speaker in the Berlin diplomatic corps.

Officers Trained in Germany.

Aided by the many Japanese experts who are already engaged in drilling the Chinese army, Gen. Yin Schang may be expected to do great things with the forces of the Hermit Kingdom. And in that task he is likely to benefit greatly by the advice of seven keen-witted young Chinamen, who, following his example, have been serving their apprenticeship as officers in the German army and whom the world may some day have occasion to acclaim as the Oyamas, Kadamas, Nogis and Kurokis of their race.

Most of them are to return home as members of Gen. Yin Schang's staff. Sons of mandarins and representatives of the new spirit of modern China, these alert, almond-eyed young men are not novices at the game of war. Each of them has finished a four years' course at the great Chinese military academy of Wuchang, which is founded on German models, and they are doing "post-graduate work" in Germany now. Three of them are assigned to the artillery branch, three to the cavalry (hussars), and one to the engineering corps. Their headquarters is Cassel, one of the most important military centers in North Germany. Almost all of them command the German language sufficiently to get the full benefit of German training. Some of them speak it fluently. They wear neither Chinese nor German uniforms, but a specially designed costume, which is a combination of the French and Chilean uniform, white shakos being the only feature in which the three services are represented. The hussars wear helmets up to which the Chinese dragon is a conspicuous feature.

Learn Much in Germany.

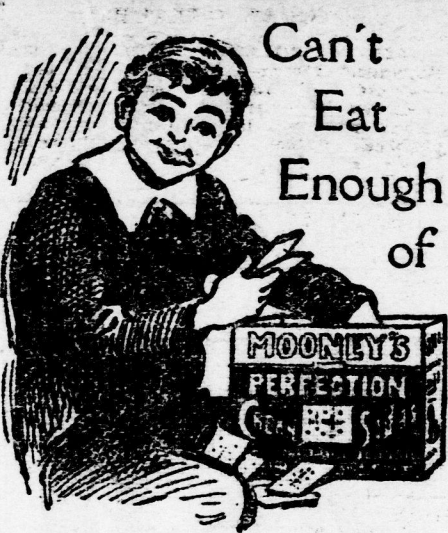

As the father of the "yellow peril" theory, it is understood that Emperor Wilhelm was averse to permitting these young Chinamen to perfect themselves in the art of warfare in Germany. He argued that it was inconsistent that Germany should train men who may at no distant day lead hostile armies against the Kaiser's own legions. The Chinese Government asked the permission as a great favor, however, and it was represented to Wilhelm that refusal would be prejudicial to German policy in the far east. So the Chinamen came and have been given every opportunity to learn.

It is supposed that their teachers have instructions from August quartermasters to withhold imparting too intimate knowledge on certain subjects, but the Chinese are keen question askers and are on record as having an annoying habit of launching persistent queries wherever they detect a desire to withhold information. The Chinese officers have no command over German troops, but accompany German officers at drill and at maneuvers and are given every opportunity of practicing the duties of command short of actual authority.

Big Army To Be Perfect.

That they will be more than ordinarily capable of leading Chinese troops against a possible enemy there is no doubt, and further details which I have obtained confirm the statement that the equipment and discipline of the Chinese army of the future are to be brought as nearly as possible to perfection.

At the present time that army, which two years ago consisted of only 100,000 men—numbers 300,000 and it is now planned that before the end of next spring over 400,000 soldiers will be undergoing training under the dragon flag. The men will be carefully chosen, and each will serve three years as regulars and six as reserves. At present the principal weakness of the Chinese forces lies in the rifles with which they are equipped, these being chiefly old style Mausers and Martinis, but in a few months they will be provided with the magazine rifles now on order, with modern field guns, and European equipment.

Given skilled and experienced instructors of their own nationality, such, for instance, as the young officers already mentioned and the others who are now studying the art of war at West Point and in Tokio, what will the army of the Flower Kingdom be capable of doing at the end of half a dozen years from now? Remembering what a spectacle the cohorts of China furnished when last in action, one might be inclined to give a careless answer to that question were it not for many recent indications that our estimate of the Chinese as military men may have to be altered drastically.

Shadow and Sunlight

He laughs with marked satisfaction. "I saw Lady Carlton," he says; "no one else. I am bound to confess that I wronged her."

Madge looks up quickly. "Yes," he goes on, "she is not such a fool as she looks. I expected that she would run all over London, but she only ran to one place."

"Where?" asks Madge. "To Minerva House," he replies. Madge's eyes and lips open with dismay.

"Don't be alarmed, darling," he reassures her, with a laugh. "Oh, Lady Carlton is cleverer than I gave her credit for being. When she found we had missed the train she coolly told before to get you back to school in time, and they believed her. Mrs. Sowerby looked rather incredulous, but I don't fancy she will care to contradict Lady Carlton. Well, Lady Carlton reached home, waited for an hour, then—finding we did not turn up—she sent a polite note to Miss Tethbury's, saying that she had a bad headache and that you had kindly consented to stay the night with her."

"But—but—" says Madge, astounded—"suppose I had gone—no matter how—gone back to school?"

"Well," he says coolly, "she had to chance that you see; at any rate, it answered. No one has been here inquiring for you, Mrs. Freeman tells me."

Madge shakes her head; then she thinks for a moment, then starts. "But Lady Carlton, herself?" she inquires. "What did she tell her?"

He takes her face in both hands and turns it on his shoulder so that she cannot see him. "Don't look at me accusingly while I confess the stories I have had to tell her. I told her that I had taken you to your father."

Madge looks up at him. "And she believed you?"

"She was polite enough to pretend to do so, at any rate. Besides my presence in town rather reassured her."

"Why?" asks Madge, innocently. "Why, if I had run away with you last night it is probable that I should have left you so soon?"

"I see," says Madge, with a blush. "Yes, she pretended to believe me; but no doubt she will go to your father."

"Oh!" murmurs Madge. "But I found out before I told her that he had gone to Sandown today, so that, supposing she went to him—which she will be certain to do—he could not get up to Berkeley Square and down there."

"In time," says Madge, faintly. "Exactly," he says, and he takes a paper from his pocket and touches her cheek caressingly.

"By the potent aid of this document, your father's daughter will be my wife long before your father can come to claim you. This is a special license. I killed the time coming down by studying it. His grace the archbishop is most affectionate. But are you ready, my queen?"

Madge looks down, then up at him, with a smile, half arch, half ashamed. "It will not take me long to dress," she says. "I have only got an ulster, a hat, and a pair of gloves."

"Yes, I know; poor Mrs. Freeman beset me with moans and lamentations at your obstinacy. I told her to put the box in the fly. Dress—what does it matter, or do you mind? I would not see you grieved for the world, my darling."

Madge laughs frankly. "I did rather regret a white satin, and a bouquet," she says, "but never mind."

"You can buy them afterward, if you like," he suggests. "For my next marriage!" says Madge.

It is a light, thoughtless repartee, but it seems to have affected him strangely. His face grows pale, his lips contract, and a questioning look comes into his eyes, but he sees nothing in it.

SOME RESULTS OF TORPID LIVER

When the liver gets torpid and inactive, bile is left in the blood—causing jaundice.

Indigestion results, because the liver is an important organ of digestion. Constipation arises, because bile from the liver is nature's own cathartic.

A torpid liver means a poisoned system—pain, suffering, chronic disease. By their extraordinary influence on the liver Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills positively remove the cause of such disorders.

Biliousness, dyspepsia, constipation—headaches, backaches and bodily pains disappear when the digestive, filtering and excretory systems are set right by the use of this great medicine.

When you feel out of sorts and notice any of the symptoms of torpid liver and biliousness, put Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to the test, and you will then understand why this great medicine is considered indispensable in the great majority of homes.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

her face to give the light speech weight and his brow clears again. "Exactly," he says in the same tone. "Seriously, it doesn't matter in the slightest. Some women would regret the fiery and foolery of the thing, but not you, Madge, not you, if I know you!"

"No," she says in a low voice, "I do not regret anything."

"Thanks, Madge, thanks," he says, kissing her with passionate gratitude. "And by heaven, you shall not!" he adds fervently. "Now go and get your things on."

She is not gone long, and Mrs. Freeman's carpet is not quite worn threadbare by his pacing feet before Madge puts in an appearance in the new ulster. He looks at her as if every time he saw her caused him fresh surprise and delight.

"Good heaven," he exclaims, "is there anything in the shape of women's apparel that would not become you? Madge, you ought to have been one of those women who try things on in the milliners' shops."

Madge makes him a little courtesy. "That is a very great compliment," she says, with a smile. "No woman could resist it."

She tries to speak lightly, but her voice falters and her lips quiver. As the time approaches, a sense of the step she is about to take grows more distinctly upon her.

Her great happiness seems almost too good to be true; it is too wild, too tumultuous, too sudden; and yet no presentiment of coming evil overshadows her. In his presence, under the wing of his adoration, she feels safe. She has resigned herself body and soul to him, she is in his hands.

The fly is at the door. The occasion is too great to be coped with by a common stableman, and Mr. Freeman himself is in the box.

Lord Lashwood vainly tries to persuade Madge to take some wine; he himself merely puts his lips to a glass to satisfy Mrs. Freeman, and then they enter the fly, and are driven quietly into the country lanes gleam brightly in the morning sun; the river runs alongside their road, its silver face turned smilingly upward to catch the rays of the life-giver; the birds sing merrily in the trees; all is so full of peace and happiness so it seems to Madge—as if all Nature herself rejoiced in her joy.

Evidently Mr. Freeman has received his orders, for he drives on steadily through green lanes and by yellowing cornfields, and brings them to a small village nestling in a little vale. Madge sees the ivy-covered turret of an old church rising among the trees, and her heart beats fast. Lord Lashwood takes her hand.

"See, Madge," he says, "that is our destination."

The fly pulls up at the vicarage gate and he jumps out.

"I shall not be long," he says, with a touch of the hand. "There is an old clergyman at work in the garden; he comes forward, pulling off his gloves, and Madge sees him take the license from Lord Lashwood's hands, then, with a few emphatic words, he disappears into the house, and Lord Lashwood returns to the fly.

"All right," he says with a smile as he helps her out. "Wait here, Freeman."

Then he draws Madge's arm within his and they walk up to the church door and wait in silence.

Presently a bent old man comes up the path, dangling a key, and touching his hat, opens the door.

"Be I to give the young lady away, sir, as if he were in the habit of doing it every day in the year."

Lord Lashwood nods. The clerk beckons them to the altar, and they stand still in silence.

"If you please, my lord," says the clerk, "that strange feeling creeps over Madge; she feels as if she were looking at her own funeral. But suddenly the vestry door opens, and the old clergyman comes into the chancel, and Lord Lashwood follows him, and a lady and a little girl, evidently his wife and daughter."

The clerk, who has been pottering up and down in a matter-of-fact way, hobbles up to join the group, and the service commences.

It is a question whether Madge hears a word; it is all a confused sound, without rhyme or reason, until the words, "I will," in the beloved voice, strike on her ear; then she finds herself repeating them, then her hand is clasped lovingly in his, and she feels a ring slipped on to her finger. More sounds, a cracked voice chanting "Amen!" and—she is married.

This way, sir," says the clerk, and Lord Lashwood takes her upon his arm and leads her into the vestry.

The clergyman fills in the register—his wife and daughter standing by—then he points to the place for signature.

she is doing it. Madge feels a little tug at her dress—it is the little girl. "May I write, too?" she inquires, in a sweet little treble. Madge nods, between a smile and a tear, and the child writes her name also, making a great and important business of it. Then she lays down the pen and turns to Madge, and with a fair imitation of her father's manner says sweetly: "I wish you every earthly and heavenly happiness."

At this, Madge's tears spring to her eyes. With a little laughing sob, she takes the child to her arms, and lifting her up, kisses her.

"Thank you, my dear," she says, hiding her face behind the child's. "You are a very dear little girl."

"And you a very pretty lady," says the little girl.

Madge, smiling through her tears, holds her out to Lord Lashwood, and he takes her in his arms.

One touch of nature makes the whole world kin. He takes her in his arms and kisses her, then with a smile he puts her down beside her mother, whose eyes are anything but dry.

"Let me echo my little girl's wish, Lady Lashwood," she says, holding out her hand.

But Madge, obeying a sudden impulse, bends and kisses her too, and then she puts her hand on her husband's arm and they go out—man and wife.

LADY WARWICK TALKS ON Having Won a Socialist Seat in Commons Tells of Plans of Labor.

London, Jan. 22.—The Countess of Warwick, whose vigorous efforts and earnest speeches really elected to the House of Commons a shipwright named Thorne, Socialist, says:

"What amazed me is the weight of the labor vote in the face of so many difficulties. Lack of money, defective organization, popular love for the two-party system and a manifest fear of Socialism—everything seems to have come into the open now."

"I see a growing recognition all around of pure class antagonism and an anxiety on the Liberal side to prevent the consolidation of the labor party by squaring the labor men who are supposed to be influential. But how hopeless is it!"

"See the enormous increase of the purely Socialist vote, modernized and extreme, given to men like Thorne, Roberts, Snowden, Williams, Gribble, Quelch and Hyndman. And these men are not only utterly indifferent to the opinions of the press or to party leaders, and fishes to give away, but they are going to consolidate themselves at once into an absolutely independent party, voting as they please from the first day of parliament; all knowing, moreover, what they want."

"Two points, for instance. I know. The party is united on state-feeding and state-maintenance of children, and on secular and greatly improved education. We are going to get those."

BRITISH TRADE RETURNS Total Exports Valued at $565,270,402, a Great Increase.

Ottawa, Jan. 22.—A synopsis of the British trade returns for the past year reached the department of trade and commerce yesterday through the commercial agent at Leeds, Mr. J. B. Jackson. The total imports for the year were valued at $565,270,402, an increase of $14,240,774. The total exports from Great Britain were valued at $320,023,437, an increase of $29,312,427. The exports of woolens to the United States amounted to 1,704,400 yards, while to Canada the exports of worsteds to the United States reached a total of 34,001,000 yards, while to Canada the total was 11,611,600 yards.

Mr. Jackson calls attention to the enormous increase in the export of worsteds to the United States, amounting to nearly 9,000,000 yards, and this, notwithstanding an adverse tariff of from 50 to 100 per cent.

Mr. Shaw, of the technical department of Leeds University, who was sent out to the United States to study trade conditions, reported when he got back that the English manufacturer had nothing to learn from the United States, and Mr. Jackson says that the trade figures bear this out.

Cloudburst in Alabama. Huntsville, Ala., was flooded today by a cloudburst. Many houses were inundated, bridges washed away, and electric railway traffic stopped. No loss of life is reported.

Recently when Uncle Sam ousted a tribe of Indians from their ancestral home of Warner's ranch, San Diego County, and moved them to the Palo Verde reservation, he gave them a number of portable homes. A gale swept all these houses away and the red men are homeless.

DEAFNESS. Its Cause, Treatment and Cure.

Many sufferers blame their poor hearing to the use of improper remedies for catarrh such as sprays, douches and atomizers. Perhaps the most common cause of ear troubles and deafness is a catarrhal condition of the eustachian tube. Not infrequently the ear drum is broken or partially eaten away.

A few days treatment with Catarrh-ozone always gives satisfactory relief. It is a certain cure for catarrh in any part of the system and there is no case of catarrhal deafness which will not cure in a few weeks.

A well-known contractor living in St. Thomas, Ont., Mr. Thomas Riddle, was cured by Catarrh-ozone of deafness and writes: "My hearing was always poor, and not long ago I became almost totally deaf. It was the result of catarrhal inflammation and nothing did me any good till I used Catarrh-ozone. It cured me, so I strongly recommend it to everyone suffering from deafness or poor hearing."

If your case can possibly be cured, Catarrh-ozone will do the work. Two months treatment costs only one dollar, and is sold everywhere by druggists or sent by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Kingston, Ont., or Hartford, Conn., U. S. A.

MANN MADE THINGS PLEASANT

Sheet Had Nice or Nasty Things to Say According as Contributions Came In.

New York, Jan. 22.—Col. W. D. Mann, editor of Town Topics, testified at the Hagwood criminal libel trial today that he had borrowed nearly $200,000 from J. P. Morgan, James R. Keene, W. K. Vanderbilt, Wm. C. Whitney and other prominent financiers.

Many of these loans never were repaid, so far as Col. Mann could recall, and others were repaid in stock of the Town Topics Company at $1000 per share.

Among the others named by Col. Mann in the list of men from whom he had borrowed large sums were: Collis P. Huntington, Charles M. Schwab, Howard Gould, George Gould, John W. Gates, $20,000; Charles M. Schwab, $10,000; Thomas F. Ryan, $10,000.

Then Col. Mann testified that many of these loans were paid in Town Topics stock at $1000 a share. James W. Osborne, counsel for Mr. Hagwood, asked if the par value of the stock is not $10 per share.

Col. Mann replied that $10 per share is the par value.

Asked whether he ever stopped the Town Topics press to suppress an article about Loyal Smith, Col. Mann said that such an article was taken from the paper and that a man who came with Smith placed a $1,200 advertisement in Town Topics.

Colonel Mann testified that he might have made the remark that scandal was sent to the office of Town Topics. He asked who sent it he replied that it came from writers, society people, clubmen and others.

OPEN SHOP MOVEMENT The Allied Iron Trades of New York Puts It Into Effect.

New York, Jan. 22.—The open shop rule went into effect today on all the contracts of the Allied Iron Trades, Iron League and Employers' Association in this city, all of which are included in the National Association of Structural Steel and Iron Workers.

It was said also that most of the independent contractors have also joined in the open shop movement. Enforcement of the open shop rule is practically a lock-out against the International Association of Iron Workers.

The officers of the Housemiths' Union deny that their men have deserted. They also assert that the strike has not been lost and that the members of the Allied Iron Trades, Iron League and contracting firms will have to yield to the union's terms when business gets brisk.

A FISH COMMISSION Charges Against Government Officials To Be Inquired Into.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—It is understood that the Government has under consideration the advisability of appointing a royal commission to deal with certain matters connected with the provincial fisheries department.

Hon. Dr. Reame, of whose department the fisheries branch is a section, was out of the city today, and it is not likely that the action mentioned would be taken during his absence.

The question will be definitely settled at the meeting tomorrow, however. It is said that informally the Government has decided upon a commission, and will take the necessary formal steps tomorrow.

The commission, if appointed, will likely consist of one person, a lawyer of ability, who will be clothed with powers to subpoena and examine witnesses on oath, and take every other necessary step to make the investigation most thorough.

Charges that have been made against certain of the officials have led to the decision of the Government.

ELECTRIC ENERGY The Temiskaming Road Will Sell It to Municipalities.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—In connection with the proposal to electrify the first 120 miles of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, it transpires that the plan embraces the sale of electrical energy to municipalities and industries along the railway.

This energy, it is proposed, should be sold to distributing companies at various points, so that the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway commission would not have to undertake the keeping of accounts and the other work entailed in selling to private consumers.

The rates, however, would be fixed by the commission.

A number of companies and individuals engaged in mining at Cobalt already have made application for the purchase of electricity.

LITTLE ONES BURNED Gasoline Fires an Ottawa Home and Two Infants Perish.

Ottawa, Jan. 22.—Two children, aged 1 and 3, a boy and a girl, of Mr. Fabien Sayer, cabman, of Hintonburg, were burned to death in a fire which destroyed the home this evening.

An older daughter, aged 23 years, was cleaning a neck ruff with gasoline. She was near the stove, when the gasoline ignited, the flames leaping up into her face and arms. In agony, Miss Sayer ran to the door to throw herself into the snow, and, in doing so, scattered the fire through the house.

The two little tots who perished were sleeping in a corner of the room, one in a cradle and the other in a swinging bed. As there was no one near to help, the unfortunate tots were soon enveloped in flames and burned to a crisp.

The mother was across the street directly opposite. Two prelates were the first to arrive, and, with the mother crying, "Save the children!" one of the prelates made an ineffective effort to do so, his face being scorched. The mother also made a frantic attempt, but was pulled back.

The house was completely destroyed, and charred remains of the little ones were found in the ruins.

Miss Sayer was taken to the Water Street Hospital and will recover.

MOSCOW SCENES DURING REVOLT

One Who Was There Tells How Rebels Were Crushed.

THE FIGHTING AT BARRICADES

Slaughter by the Czar's Troops in the Streets—Poor Were Greatest Sufferers.

Moscow, Jan. 21.—Today, the Czar's christening day, was expected with various feelings. At one time it was rumored that the Czar himself would come to Moscow and from the shrine of the empire issue a new manifesto of a free constitution, which would include a distribution of the crown lands to the peasants. The day also has been awaited with terror, especially by the Progressives and the Jews. Christians have been preparing large crosses of wood, iron, or even cardboard, which they hang under their coats, so that when the religious mob attacks them they may show their Christianity visibly on their waists. Yesterday the Order of the Men of Russia, the patriotic organization of the Black Hundred, issued a manifesto calling for the extermination of all Jews and foreigners. At the same time the more moderate of the priesthood wrote a letter to the few papers which still appear, appealing to the faithful to act like Christians, and not to kill the Jews.

It was puzzling advice. To kill Jews is to act like Christians. Ages of history have proved it. So the Jews, foreigners and most of the revolutionaries fortified their houses and hid themselves.

All Moscow is indeed fortified, and new shutters and barricades protect all the houses and shops which were left open before. I went through the streets last night, and all was darkness and silence and fear. In one place a soldier who had boasted of the revolution was taken into a side court and slaughtered.

Mob Urged to Murder.

Morning came, intensely cold, but clear and bright. By 9 o'clock crowds were gathering on the Kremlin. The priest had asked for a special ceremony of prayer on account of Russia's troubles, and the new governor, Admiral Dubasoff, could not well refuse a prayer to patriots, especially when the governor only longs for disturbances as an excuse for violence.

It was impossible to estimate the number of people who swarmed on every open space and crowded the steps of all the churches. There must have been very many thousands, and all were bowing and crossing themselves or kneeling in the snow with adoration at every shrine and every saint that passed.

The services over, the procession of bishops and priests in marvellous apparel, with gorgeous shrines, moved away.

Then the dangerous moment came. A fervid orator sprang upon a platform and endeavored to lash up the crowd with appeals to heaven and the Czar. Portraits of the Czar and his baby boy were distributed everywhere. The people cheered and shouted and rushed up and down. The orator raised the Russian hymn, and with frantic gestures set off to march up the length of the square.

The whole crowd swarmed after him, thousands strong. They crowded under the two little arches of the Iberian Gate, and swept to the great street called Tverskaja. They were going to slaughter the Jews and exterminate the Russians. No end to the horrors they were going to do.

But they reached the square in front of the government's house, and there they stopped to make speeches, calling one more upon heaven and the Czar, and urging the governor to take vengeance on the students and all other enemies of the country.

The governor appeared on the balcony, a white-haired man, tall and pale. In rather a fine voice he addressed the crowd, saying how pleased he was to see so many Russians still on the side of the Czar, and that he would telegraph to the Czar to say that the loyalty and courage of Moscow could safely be relied upon.

Overtaken by a Panic.

It was unfortunate that just at that moment some one raised the cry, "The students are coming!" Like a wind, the panic swept through the square, and plunging and crashing into one another the mob rushed down the street and corner for their lives. I have seen many panics, but never anything quite so ludicrous as that stampede of patriotism.

For nothing whatever had happened, and when at last the terror-stricken loyalists took heart to look round they saw the square peaceful and almost empty. They tried to rekindle their patriotic zeal and resume their murderous aspect. But it was no good. That run had spoiled it all.

Work of the Black Gang.

Later, I have been round the center of the town and all was quiet except that exactly opposite my door a student was set upon by the Black Gang and is said to have died.

Two students were walking with a girl when the loyalists sprang upon them, and beat them without mercy. One student was struck down and kicked to death, as it is thought.

The other, who was stripped to his shirt, dragged himself into an eating-house, with the help of the girl, and barred the door. The gang remained outside listening with interest to the girl's passionate crying.

ACCORDING TO DOCTOR TORREY

Appeals to Thousands of Toronto
Young Men to Confess Faith
Before the World.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—Massey Hall was crowded to the doors last night at the meeting "for men only," held by the evangelists, Dr. Torrey and Mr. Alexander. The proceedings were timed to commence at 8:45, but long before that hour every seat was filled.

Mr. Alexander opened the meeting with a brief prayer, and then called upon the vast audience to sing the hymn "Hold the Fort." The singing was hearty in the extreme, a striking effect being produced when, as the last line of the last verse, "Cheer, My Comrades, Cheer," was sung, the entire audience, at the request of Mr. Alexander, waved their white handkerchiefs above their heads in unison with the words, "Cheer, My Comrades, Cheer."

Another hymn followed, and then came "The Glory Song," which was as possible sung even more heartily than the first of the evening, "Hold the Fort."

Dr. Torrey, then, coming to the front, asked his hearers to engage in prayer, mentioning that he had received several special requests from different quarters that prayer might be offered. One of these was from a mother, whose son was "breaking her heart through drink," and yet another from a mother for her son in India, who was very ill.

Charles Butler then sang as a solo, the hymn, "Is He Yours?" everyone listening with the closest attention.

Mr. Alexander then announced that the collection would be taken, adding that if the liberality of those attending the meetings was maintained to the end as it had been since the meetings began, all the expenses of the mission would be fully provided for.

Dr. Torrey commenced his address by saying that every man desiring a reward, and he should find his address on two texts, the first being from St. John's Gospel, xii, 42, 43, where we were told that "many believed on him," yet would not confess their belief for fear they would "be put out of the synagogue." His second was from II. Corinthians, xii, 10, where the Apostle Paul expressed his joy in suffering for Christ.

Dr. Torrey urged all to have moral courage and not to be ashamed to confess "Christ and him crucified," before the world. He implored them to have courage to do so, and he admitted it required courage, adding, "It takes more courage to be a Christian than to be a soldier." There were many hundreds of soldiers who would gladly go "to the front," would, when there, face death calmly, deliberately, heroically, yet would be ashamed to kneel down in barracks at their bedside and thus confess Christ before their comrades.

"It takes more courage to be a real Christian than anything else in the world," proceeded Dr. Torrey. "How can you confess Christ with your life if you don't confess him with your lips? Christ's service was a glorious service. He was a glorious Master."

Dr. Torrey proceeded to say he had been in Australia, Tasmania, Canada, almost all over the world. He knew the British people revered the memory of Queen Victoria, and though he was not a British subject, but an American citizen, he believed "Queen Victoria to have been the noblest queen that ever reigned on earth."

This utterance caused the audience to give a warm round of applause. Dr. Torrey remarked that, though he did not want sensationism, he thought the applause was warranted. He continued: "The glory of Queen Victoria, though, pales before the glory of Christ."

He urged upon all who heard him to confess Christ before men. He called upon employers to acknowledge their faith before those they employed. "Stand up and confess Christ before men; stand up and let the world know it." If men will not do this, said the doctor, they are cowards, the most contemptible of men.

After an earnest appeal to his hearers to "confess Christ," Dr. Torrey called upon those "who were willing to accept Christ tonight" to stand up in their places and admit that they did so. In response a great many did so in all parts of the hall. They included youths, middle-aged and old men, each one as he rose being saluted by Dr. Torrey with a hearty "God bless you!"

Dr. Torrey then invited those who had stood up—about a hundred in number—to come to the front of the hall, and facing the audience to recite, "I have taken Jesus as my Saviour, my Lord, my King." This was done, and then, after more singing the great gathering dispersed.

The audience at the afternoon meeting was composed largely of students of both sexes from the various educational institutions of the city. The general public was not admitted until the students had found places. Dr. Torrey's discourse on "Heroes and Cowards" was directed more especially for the young collegians. About sixty made public profession of newly-born faith.

New Big Power Dam.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—A power dam, costing $250,000 to generate 2,575-horse power, on the Matilda River, about four miles from Goderich, probably will be commenced within a few months. The promoters have just completed financial arrangements, making this announcement possible.

The power probably will be used not only for industrial purposes, but to run the town's water and light plant, and probably a system of radial railways.

A little girl likes to take care of a baby almost as well as a little boy doesn't.

WHAT THE MINERS WANT

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Overwork and long hours at the office, together with a neglected cold, brought on a female trouble until finally I was unable to go to work. I tried change of scene and climate, but found that I did not regain my health. I then thought of a friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when her health was in the same condition that mine was, and straightway sent out for a bottle. I finished that and took two more before I really began to improve, but after that my recovery was very rapid, and when I had finished the sixth bottle I was well and able to go back to work again. ## Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cures Where Others Fail

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Overwork and long hours at the office, together with a neglected cold, brought on a female trouble until finally I was unable to go to work. I tried change of scene and climate, but found that I did not regain my health. I then thought of a friend who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when her health was in the same condition that mine was, and straightway sent out for a bottle. I finished that and took two more before I really began to improve, but after that my recovery was very rapid, and when I had finished the sixth bottle I was well and able to go back to work again. I certainly think your medicine worthy of praise, and am indeed glad to endorse it.

Mrs. ALMA ROBITAILLE, 73 rue St. Francois, Quebec, Que.

Oh, if Canadian girls who work would only realize that they have but one life to live, and make the most of their precious health and strength!

Oh, if Canadian girls who work would only realize that they have but one life to live, and make the most of their precious health and strength!

In office and factory, shop, store or kitchen girls are at work all over this land, and, alas! far beyond their strength. Young women who work are especially liable to female ills. Too often the girl is the bread winner of the family and she must toil unremittently, no matter if her back does ache, her limbs and abdomen throb with dull pain and dragging sensations, and dizzy spells make her utterly unfit for work. These are the sure signs of female irregularities which kill beauty and youth.

builds health and strength for all women who work and are weary. It creates the vitality that makes work easy. From the thousands of grateful letters written by working girls to Mrs. Pinkham we quote the following:

SNAP-SHOTS AT VARIOUS SPORTS

Vanderbilt's new racing car is expected to travel 152 miles an hour. That's fast enough to keep a chauffeur busy.

College football players are no longer to be heroes. The badge of heroism will likely be handed over to chess players. It is a good thing Casey Baldwin does not live in Chicago.

The reforms advocated in football by the "Big Nine" of western universities are summarized as follows:

Football should be suspended for two years unless proper modifications in the rules are made.

Coaches must be members of the respective university faculties.

Period of ineligibility of freshmen to appear in intercollegiate contests extended from six months to one year.

No graduate student to play on a college team.

Athletes must take full university work during training season.

Football season to end on the second Saturday before Thanksgiving day.

Number of intercollegiate games played by each university team limited to five.

Admission to athletic games limited to 50 cents for students.

No training table for athletes.

At end of first year in college athletes must be free of all entrance and other conditions in order to compete.

Coach to be employed by the trustees of the individual universities at the recommendation of the faculties.

The financial management in the hands of the university faculties.

Football practice season to open at beginning of regular school year.

Hart's coming fight with Tommy Burns is not being taken seriously, as Burns, although a fairly good fighter, is anything but a championship possibility. About the only interesting feature of the fight will be the manner in which Marvin handles himself. There is no doubt as to his ability to hand out a wallop with steam enough behind it to settle the contest whenever he lands it, which he attested at Butte when he knocked out Pat Callahan in the second round.

Hart stated himself to stop Callahan in four rounds or forfeit $100, and was nearly put away by Pat in the first. The Butte man, although heavily handicapped in weight, stood toe to toe and exchanged punch for punch with Marvin, and during one of the series of exchanges he landed a right to the champion's jaw, sending him down for the count of three. Hart's experience and better knowledge of the game asserted itself in the second round, in which he put the Butte aspirant down for the limit and saved his "century." Callahan seems to have the right kind of stuff in him and probably will be heard from later.

It is hoped that "Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien, who has taken on some individuality in the pugilistic world, will not insist upon trying to demonstrate that a prize-fighter can be a gentleman. We got enough of that mawkish twaddle when Jim Corbett with powdered face and rakish coiffure was posing for the orchestra. That portion of the public which pays tribute to pugilism does not exact anything from a boxer but boxing. It depends upon the head waiter and the police to see that its finer sensibilities are not offended.

The poster for the Chicago automobile show pictures a man with wings on his head and with his hands on the steering wheel. So long as wings were necessary to the illustration, the artist showed great discretion by not placing them where they are usually found.

In the percentage of lame backs and sore fingers a continuous bowling performance averages up as a worthy sequel to the six-day bike race.

Young Corbett says that Herrera is the best fighter he ever met, and that the Mexican is in line for the light-weight championship on merit alone. Meanwhile Herrera declares that he will not be satisfied until he has secured a match with Brit or Battling Nelson, whichever may signify a will-ness to meet him first. Nelson's go with McGovern for six rounds in Philadelphia in March will probably afford Herrera's next opponent; and interest in this contest, by the way, is growing apace. Dave Sullivan, one of the leading feather-weights several years ago, says that he believes Nelson and McGovern will put up the most sensational battle yet seen in the east, but he does not look for a knockout by either man inside of the limit. Sullivan thinks McGovern, as a light-weight, will be hot stuff when he stalks up against the Battler, inasmuch as Terry has a wonderful punch and is a terrific fighter. But at that he gives credit to Nelson for being a high-class pugilist with all the qualities necessary for success. Sullivan, incidentally, says that Nelson's strongest points are his great physical strength and his untiring boring tactics, which have worn all of his opponents down.

"Rassling" is said to be the coming "sport" at the universities in the States. A bunch of Turkish grapplers should find the country to the south of us a splendid place to earn an honest penny. We look for a big immigration of that desirable class of citizens.

The art of boxing, with its many saving virtues, is a subject little understood outside of those who follow the events of the prize ring, and in this statement one has the real trouble with the whole proposition. In the minds of the general public, boxing and the ring are synonymous, or if not, so closely allied as to belong to the same class. As sometimes happens, the general public is mistaken.

Boxing is subject to the same test that other sports must stand. It has its uses and abuses. Properly studied and indulged, it can be made a splendid art. It is the easiest sport to abuse that is known.

Persons who read McClure's Magazine for January will undoubtedly recall Steward Edward White's article on President Roosevelt, of which a prominent incident was a description of the bout to decide the lightweight championship of Harvard, between Roosevelt, then a junior, and a senior, who has since become known in the golf world, especially by the penname of "Niblick." In telling the story, the following language is used: "The first round was vigorously contested. Roosevelt closed in at the very outset. Because of his bad eyes he realized that infighting gave him his only chance to win. Blows were exchanged with lightning rapidity, and they were hard blows. Roosevelt drew first blood, but soon his own nose was bleeding. At the call of time, however, he got the decision for the round."

"The senior had learned his lesson. Thereafter he would not permit Roosevelt to close in on him. With his longer reach, and aided by his antagonist's near-sightedness, he succeeded in landing frequent blows. Roosevelt worked hard, but to no avail. The round was awarded to the senior. In the third round the senior endeavored to pursue the same tactics, but with less success. The result of this round was a draw, and an extra round had to be sparred. Here superior weight and longer reach began to tell, but Roosevelt boxed gamely to the end. Said his antagonist—now known by the penname of 'Niblick': 'I can see him now as he came in fiercely to the attack. But I kept him out, taking no chances, and landing at long reach, I got the decision; but Roosevelt was far more scientific. Given good eyes, he would have defeated me easily.'"

The story of a boxing bout by rounds between men of such prominence, and especially concerning a man of such high ideals as Theodore Roosevelt, may be shocking to some, but it simply helps to prove that boxing is neither generally understood nor appreciated.

Roosevelt, when young, learned boxing as a health measure and because he considered it manly. He fought because he liked honest competition. Today, as President of the United States, he keeps in touch with boxing, both as a practitioner and an interested follower.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Judging from appearances there will be no hockey this week. Postponed games are piling up at a rapid rate. Last night the Beavers' game with Watford was postponed, and tonight the Seventh Regiment will not go to Clinton. The date set for the Seventh Regiment-Goderich game is Jan. 30. A big crowd will go north with the boys.

DONLIN GREATEST 1905 RUN-GETTER

Led the Major Leagues With Average of .827 per Game—Clymer Second.

New York, Jan. 22.—The things that most affect a baseball player's ability to make runs are his batting, base running, judgment in waiting for bases on balls, the batting strength of the men following to send him around, the number of outs when he gets on base and the skill with which his team as a whole works at the bat. Mike Donlin of the New York Nationals, made a greater proportion of runs to a game last season than any other man in either of the two big leagues. Next to him comes Clymer of the Philadelphia Athletics, then Roy Thomas of the Philadelphia Athletics, then Frank Chance of the Chicago Nationals, then Miller Huggins of the Cincinnati Reds, then John Wagner of the Pittsburghs, then George Brown of the New York Nationals, then Eddie Hahn of the New York Americans.

As a corollary to batting ability is the ability of the opposing pitcher, but batters make the rounds of the pitching supply, except those on their own team. Hence what runs geters have to contend against in pitching is practically the same for all. No run getter in the major leagues is so good that he averages one run a game. Donlin's average per game of .827 is the best—eight-tenths of a run a game. Naturally the good batters make the most runs for the obvious reason that they get on the bases oftener. Among the men in both leagues who batted .250 or better the average of runs a game ranges from eight-tenths of a run to a little less than three-tenths.

In the average of hits to a game Seymour of the Cincinnati, who led the National League in batting, ranks first with 1.47, a shade less than one and one-half hits a game. But as a run getter Seymour does not show up anything like as well. For every run he made last season he used up 2.31 hits, whereas Huggins made one run for every 1.31 hits, and Chance needed only 1.35 hits for every run he made. Huggins and Chance are the best of them all in that regard. The former's bases on balls and the latter's base running playing a big part in their run getting. In runs per game, hits per game and hits to one run combined Chance is the best of the lot. Thomas presses him closely. His ability to draw bases on balls and his fleetness of foot serving him well in circling the bases. Clymer has a fine record, and Hahn also made excellent use of his hits, an average of 1.59 to each run. He made 1.19 hits a game and .74 runs a game.

THE BASKETBALL FACE.

New York American: Beware of the basketball face! Don't become too enthusiastic over the game. That is, don't watch over three or four a week. If you do awful things may happen. Your eyes are likely to become heavy and bulky and feel sore and itchy. This is the opinion of students of the game. They have discovered the basketball face just as the automobile and subway does develop. The indoor game is so fast and the scenes of play changes so constantly that the eyes grow dizzy from basket to basket. Any one who has seen several basketball games knows this, and yet, knowing of the strain, wonders why it is that his eyes seem so tired when the game is over and the crowd is leaving. Perhaps they really ache when rubbed in to play the itching. It is simply because the muscles in constant play for well over an hour, are tired.

A basketball fan who has sat through four long evenings of basketball suffered considerable annoyance by the soreness of his eyeballs. A week passed and with no more games his optics were as good as ever. This was the explanation given to him by one of the students of the strange affliction. "It is simply the tiring of the muscles," he declared. "I do not think watching the game would ever affect the eyesight, however. It is more or less of a strain on them to keep constantly watching the ball, forever on the bounce."

To add to the difficulty, there are the bright colored suits. To the outsider the glaring, blinding color combinations devised by the best basketball teams for uniforms is simply a matter of personal conceit and desire to appear "showy," but this is not so.

The wise basketball manager dresses his men up in the glaring dyes because it aids the team at combination work. When a player catches the ball his opponent is on top of him, covering him to prevent a good pass. He sees a patch of brilliant red somewhere in front of him and knows that it is a team-mate. The "brilliant red" patch gets the ball. The spectator gets the basketball face.

LAJOIE EARNS $30,000; TO EARN $30,000 MORE

The Great Player Cleans Up Small Fortunes in Four Years—Tests a Pneumatic Ball.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 22.—With $30,000 stacked up to his credit for work since June, 1902, Napoleon Lajoie will take up his first contract now for four years some time this month. The Blues' chieftain signed his first and only contract with Cleveland while hostilities were raging just four seasons ago. The date was June, 1902, and the time covered ran through the campaign of 1905. Larry is now in the prime of his ball-playing life, and he should have eight good seasons left in him yet. This means that he will draw down $30,000 before he side-steps the game for good, more than any athlete has earned up on the baseball field, with the possible exception of "Muggsy" John McGraw, who is to be reckoned with.

TESTS PNEUMATIC BALL. Akron, Jan. 22.—Manager Lajoie, of the Cleveland baseball team, took part in secret tests of a pneumatic baseball here this week, in which the new ball, a product of one of the rubber factories, was given a thorough thumping.

The center of the new ball is hollow, and this is filled with compressed air, surrounded by a rubber casing. Then the ball is wrapped to regulation size and a regulation cover put on.

The new ball was put in with a lot of regulation league baseballs, and Lajoie was given a chance to swat them about which he did for several hours on the Akron baseball ground.

He admitted that, so far as the batting qualities of the ball are concerned, he could not tell it from one of the regulars.

The point in the new product is that its makers claim the compressed air always keeps it expanded so that it cannot lose its shape or become soggy. New covers can readily be applied.

Lajoie said: "The new ball is a wonder, and answers the requirements of all the tests."

SENIOR HOCKEY PROBABILITIES

Toronto Is Not Likely to Get the Championship, Says The News

The Toronto News does the senior hockey season as follows:

From the present outlook there is little chance of the senior championship coming to town again this season. In former years the race for the honors lay between the Toronto clubs, for, in almost every case, any of the local teams winning their district could easily dispose of the winners in the east or the west.

The dividing up of the local teams seemed to have made a big difference in the championship race. It has been a new interest. Up in Barrie they did not take nearly as much interest last season as there is taken this. This is practically due to the good showing that the new men have made.

Berlin has not so many changes on their line-up, the principal change being Charlton. This team is one of the best that has ever been known in the association, and, at the present time, the fight for the honors looks to be between the Flying Dutchmen and the northern team.

The Marlboros and the St. George's have shown little of their qualities of last season. This is due to the new men on the line. With one exception the juniors tried on the Saints have failed to make good, while it is even worse with the champions of last season. None of the juniors tried out by them are yet fit for senior company.

It has not been so hard with the Argonauts, as they have not so many changes on their team. This team was never figured as being dangerous in former years in Toronto, but this winter they will be a greater factor than either the Saints or the Marlboros.

Of the other senior clubs, Stratford, Woodstock and Galt, there is not much to be said. They all have fair teams, but it does not appear that they will out much figure in the race for the championship.

Galt and Woodstock have got fast teams, but do not look as good as either Berlin or Stratford. The latter place has a lot of young players, who are speedy, and they are to be feared by the Dutchmen.

Midland, the remaining team in the other district, threw away a good chance when they failed to win from Barrie on their own ice, for it is an assured fact that Barrie will win from Midland when at home.

ABOUT NEW ZEALAND FOOTBALL

Time was when the British athlete had no equal in the whole world. But in the last 25 years the men of the "younger nations," among whom the people of the United States must be included, have taught him many an unexpected lesson, and, except in the matter of long-distance running, he can no longer boast of his world-wide supremacy. In physique, natural aptitude for all kinds of games, and in the qualities collectively described as "bottom spirit" by critical followers of nineteenth-century athletics, he is at least as good as any of his pupils.

But it is not to be denied that some of them have brought a keener and more subtle intelligence to bear on the development of their favorite pastimes. In sprinting, jumping and hammer-throwing, for example, American athletes are superior to ours, not only because their methods of training are more thorough and scientific, but also because they have invented new devices—for example, the curious twist of the body which enables the high jumper to add from two to three feet to his record. Even if the American college institution of the free "training table"—a seat at which is equivalent to a scholarship for athletics—became established at Oxford and Cambridge, our picked men would still be slightly inferior to their American rivals in these less trying contests. Again, the art of bowling has been greatly advanced by the Australian cricketers. They have taught our professional the advantage of persistent changes, and the deadly device of "swinging." Mr. Armstrong's plan of bowling under the leg-stump, with six or seven fielders out on that side, was the chief cricketing novelty of last season. It is justified from the scientific point of view by the fact that only balls pitching on the outside are likely to pass through the "blind spot" of the batsman's vision. No doubt the time will come when South African cricketers, who are rapidly improving, will have something to teach us. From Canada we have received tuition in lacrosse, and also in curling as every student practitioner of the game very well knows. After all, New Zealand has given us the most conclusive object lesson in the art science of playing a co-operative game. It is not too much to say that the New Zealand team, now touring in this country and across the globe, have revolutionized the theory and practice of Rugby.

Union football. An account of the steps by which they attained their triumphant style is an interesting study in the evolution of a really fine pastime of co-operative skill. The orthodox English game, in which the forwards go on with the ball and the backs must make their own chances, insists that the pack should consist of eight men in a 2-3-2 formation. These eight forwards are chosen for their genial ability, and those among them who happen to be up first form the front rank, and so on. But each New Zealand forward is a specialist and has his special duties, and the scrumming is so built up that seven men in a 2-3-2 formation have all the shoving power of the eight scrummers of the old country style. The two who are picked to form the point of the New Zealand pack are chosen for their ability in "hooking" the ball and keeping it. The second rank are men of momentum, the middle one, who is a long-armed Hercules, being the "lock" or binding force of the little phalanx. The twin in the third rank who sometimes hold hands for the sake of their cohesion, must be strong at shoving, quick at following up, and expert dribblers. There can be no doubt whatever that the New Zealand scrumming, thus composed of specialists and built up on scientific principles, cannot be overruled by the old-fashioned scrumming. Thanks to this invention they have eight backs instead of seven, a fact which necessitates a scientific rearrangement of the men behind the scrumming. One of these is the "wing forward," who is really a practical half-back standing very close up, and asserting his right to a true forward's immunity from the strict offside rule by placing his hand on the shoulders of a toiler in the scrumming. His special duties include that of protecting the other half-back—whose standpoint is further off—and harrying the opponents' half. At a direct result of this device the half back seldom or never fails to get his pass out of the two "five-eighths," who practically act as "three-quarters" when the attack is begun. By avoiding the use of a fourth, three-quarter, the average length of passes is diminished, the speed thereof increased, depth is added to the defense, and the spectacle—so often seen in our home matches—of the ball traveling from hand to hand across the field without a yard of ground gained is avoided.—Nineteenth Century Magazine.

WOODSTOCK KICKS OVER THAT GAME

Claims Stratford Should Have Forfeited Contest According to the Rules.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—Formal notice of protest has been received by the secretary of the O. H. A. in connection with Friday night's game. Woodstock was leading by 4 to 3 when the Heron Lalonde bout started and the Stratford man refused to continue the game.

Referee Dixon, it is claimed, gave the Stratford team three minutes in which to line up for the restart, and they refused to do so.

Dixon made four or five attempts to get the game started again before he was successful, and it was finished under protest. It is claimed that several of the Stratford players were taken from the ice to their training room and carefully looked after by their trainers. The Pontiac Club has notified the O. H. A. by wire that they intend to protest the Midland juniors, alleging that McLennan, the coverpoint, is over age, and that several of the others do not qualify under the residence rule.

RASSLER ELOPES.

Montreal, Jan. 22.—A sensation has been created in sporting circles by the elopement of Apollo, the wrestler, with the wife of a cork-cutter named Kutsin. The latter has taken refuge at St. James Park and the athletic association which was managing Apollo, to secure any money in their hands due to the wrestler.

DOYLES QUIT HOCKEY.

Newmarket, Jan. 22.—The three Doyle brothers of the Newmarket O. H. A. intermediate team, have quit hockey for the season, because of the death of Eddie Doyle, one of the family, at Brantford, as the result of a railway accident at Waterloo. This will weaken the Newmarket team considerably, and they may have to drop out of the series.

HENSALL HAS NOT DEFAULTED IN O. H. O.

Toronto, Jan. 22.—A. H. King, secretary of the Hensall Hockey Club, writes as follows to the O. H. A.: "Instead of default to Clinton, we have agreed to play them there Tuesday, Jan. 30. It is not true that we have dropped out of the association. We intend to play all our scheduled games. Seaforth plays here Jan. 25, and our game in Goderich will be probably played this week."

without DY-O-LA," says Mrs. J. Monbouquette, of Lower L'Ardoise, N. S., in a recent letter to us, "for it is the best dye I ever used."

Uncommon to say the least, are the DY-O-LA virtues. Here's one sterling feature: DY-O-LA dyes perfectly any cloth, pure or mixed.

No need to worry about cotton being in the weave. The purest looking "all-wool" is often guilty of a cotton thread running through the heart of it.

The same package of DY-O-LA will color silk, wool, cotton, linen, lace.

Your druggist has it. Enough to dye one and one-half to three pounds for 10c. Color-card (home-dyed) sent on receipt of 2c stamp. The Johnson-Richardson Company, Limited, Montreal, Can.

GANS ENTITLED TO WELTERWEIGHT HONORS

Gotham's Ring Followers Satisfied About It, After His Fight With Mike Sullivan.

New York, Jan. 22.—The signal victory of Joe Gans over Mike (Twin) Sullivan in the fifteenth round of their battle at San Francisco on Friday night was widely discussed by ring followers here. An impression had prevailed that Gans had gone back, which was intensified by the statement of Al Herford of Baltimore, that he did not intend to back the negro for a dollar.

Gans' rather poor showing with Jimmy Britt some time ago, in a mill which the former won on a foul, was taken as a line on the Sullivan contest by many persons who did not know exactly how good Gans was. But it is now apparent that Gans as a welterweight still possesses all of his old strength and skill, and that he is one of the most dangerous fighters in the ring at the present time. It is no doubt that Gans is of the light-weight class, and that if he should ever try to meet Nelson at 133 pounds ringside he would be compelled to weaken himself to make that weight. But at 142 pounds, although Gans scaled under that limit with his overcoat on, Friday night, there is no pugilist in the ring just now who appears to have a chance with him.

Gans has always been regarded as a wonderful boxer, whose heavy hitting qualities have kept him at the top of his class. In first class trim he possesses remarkable speed, unlimited science, and exceptional generalship. In disposing of so good a man as Sullivan, therefore, Gans showed that he was at his best and that he is clearly entitled to the welterweight championship. Were it possible for the Baltimore fighter to take on more weight and retain his skill, he might prove a hard proposition for Tommy Ryan, providing a match could be made at 154 pounds ringside, which is the weight that Ryan generally prefers. But the talk of a meeting between Gans and Jack O'Brien is out of the question, because of O'Brien's pronounced advantage in weight, 165 pounds being his best scaling figure. In view of Herford's expressed lack of confidence in Gans and the fact that big money was wagered at the last moment against Sullivan's chances, local sporting men were wondering last night whether Herford had played a foxy game in order to throw off the public and at the same time get in on the ground floor himself. Herford and Gans have pulled off some money-making coups in the past and this affair with Sullivan appears to be one of them.

The A. H. C. defeated H Company of the Seventh Regiment in a fast and very close game of basketball by a score of 12 to 11. This was a return match, and had to be played at an outdoor supper, which was afterwards provided in a downtown restaurant. Some splendid playing was done by both teams. The lineup was:

BASEBALL IN JANUARY

First Nine-Innings Game Ever Played in North in Midwinter.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 21.—A new baseball record was established in this city this afternoon, when two amateur teams played a match game of baseball in nine innings. Never before has such weather been experienced at a baseball game played outside in the month of January in Cleveland. At noon the temperature was 79 degrees, and it was almost an ideal baseball day, despite a high wind. The teams which played are well-known local aggregations and have been together for several seasons.

WILL ATTEMPT TO DRAG JEFFRIES INTO RING

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 22.—Will ever anybody be able to entice James J. Jeffries back to the squared circle? Several million people say no, but there are a few persons hereabouts who believe that Jeffries has been Crockett will be seen once more in the ring. One of these is James W. Croft. He leaves for Los Angeles in the coming week and he has given us the private tip that when he returns, he will have the sign of the cross on his chest. He is a champion of champions to appear in this city in one more battle before he really and truly retires. That battle in which Jeffries will participate will come very late in the year, possibly on Admission Day in September, the anniversary of the great Brit-Nelson fight.

With the Jeffries fight as a windup, Croft proposes to pull off a series of heavyweight bouts in this city during the interval between now and September. Two of these heavyweight affairs will have a tinge of championship color and will be held on Washington's Birthday and the Fourth of July, either in the Colma open-air arena or in the Mechanics' Pavilion.

It goes without saying that Philadelphia Jack O'Brien will be one of the contestants in the initial big fight. Just who will be his opponent has not yet been decided. Admiration of Jack (Twin) Sullivan are claiming for him the privilege, but in all probability it will be the winner of the Mike Schrock-John Wills contest, which takes place at Colma on Feb. 2. The proposition is that if O'Brien stows away his man on Washington's Birthday he is to be pitted against Marvin Hart for the Fourth of July date. The winner of this battle may or may not go up against Jeffries. Between dates Croft will give the lesser lights in the heavyweight division a chance to show their mettle at his Colma club, but he intends to stick closely to his proposition of three battles that will attract the attention of the entire country.

DEAF?

And have Catarrh? Japanese Catarrh Cure will cure you of both.

Japanese Catarrh Cure has cured more cases of deafness than all the "cures for deafness" in existence. Simply because 99 cases out of 100 come from catarrh of the tubes, leading from the back of the throat to the ears, become inflamed by catarrh. The ulceration prevents sound from reaching the drums, causing buzzing, roaring and finally deafness. Japanese Catarrh Cure kills the catarrh germs, clears away the offensive discharge, and heals the membranes. The Griffiths & Macpherson Co., Limited, Toronto, Canada.

Thames Grows Quiet Again Breakwater Stood Test

The Water Made Very Slight
Inroads on the New Wall.

The flood in the Thames has proven to be only a small one after all. For a while it looked threatening, but since 7 o'clock last night, the water has continued to fall steadily. At the hour named 7 feet 4 inches of water was going over the dam, and at noon today this had fallen to about 6 feet.

Contrary to certain alarmist statements which were given credence, the breakwater did not suffer to any appreciable extent from the flood. North of Blackfriars bridge, water failed to reach the new barrier, which was built behind the old wall. South of Blackfriars, a small amount of loose filling—mostly rubbish dumped there by storekeepers—was washed away. Between Wilson avenue and Mount Pleasant avenue, the water failed to reach the new barrier, which was built behind the old wall. South of Blackfriars, a small amount of loose filling—mostly rubbish dumped there by storekeepers—was washed away.

Speaking of the probable serious results to the city should a break occur in the main from Springbank, which runs under the coverts, and which, owing to the flood of yesterday, was under water for about half a mile, Chairman Darch, of the water commission, stated that it had been suggested to him, that as the second main proposal had been voted down, the city should erect a large standpipe or water tower in the city, so that if a break did occur in the main, the citizens would not be left without water until the break was repaired. Mr. Darch said that a tower of say two million gallons capacity would be needed, and it could be easily filled and always kept in case of emergency. The cost of the tower would be considerable, but not nearly so great as that of a second main.

The point that yesterday's flood emphasizes is that if a break occurred at the coverts it could not be got at until the flood subsided, which might mean that the city's water supply would be cut off for several days, and the people might be compelled to use boiled river water.

Notes.
The city engineer's department had a number of men watching the breakwater until 3 o'clock this morning. The people of West London as a whole did not worry over this flood. Ex-Mayor Campbell's breakwater overdrift appears to have been money well spent.
A number of West Londoners have asked the city engineer to raise the breakwater behind the Scarrow cottages on Dundas street, but Mr. Graydon does not think any danger lies there. He is, however, looking into the matter and will see that any spots in the wall are remedied without delay.

WEDNESDAY MARKS CHINESE NEW YEAR

Local Celestials Will Observe the Day Quietly—Women Celebrate.

"Kung hall! Fat toy!" meaning "I congratulate you. Increased wealth and compliments of the season," will be passed among the Chinese of the city tomorrow. On that day the Celestials celebrate their new year. It is the Chinese New Year's Day and general hilarity and merry-making will mark the occasion. Particularly in the cities where the Chinese are numerous is this the case.

In this city the celebration will be of a modulated nature necessarily, for in this particular Chinese festival season the women and children take a prominent part. There are no Chinese women in London.

In the larger centers the Chinese merchants gaily decorate their houses, suspend bannisters and heartily indulge in the pleasures of the day. This social event is the one opportunity afforded the wives of the Chinese, who set out everything in Oriental style for their guests' pleasure. Various kinds of fireworks, lantern-bedecked balconies, music, feasting and drinking in plenty mark the occasion. Business and gamblers are laid aside.

On the eve of the new year, and into the next morning, a Sabbath stillness will creep over the Chinatowns of the large cities, and then the booming of cannon and blowing of horns will begin, not to rise until the ending of the period set for the day. The children will be made happy, for it is a Chinese custom that in calling, money is wrapped up in red paper and given to the children to spend as they desire. But since London lacks the Chinese women, and also lacks children, the day will be quietly and differently observed. One Dundas street Celestial, when asked what he was going to do, said:

"Work! Work! Of course, I work!"
"But how do the Chinese celebrate the day in London?"
"Like you! Some sleepers, some dance; some go away; some drink, get drunk I suppose. What I care about today?"

This particular John seemed absorbed in his business. Not so with his several employees. The mention of the day brought a wide grin to their faces. Though placed in different conditions from their more fortunate brothers, they anticipated with pleasure the day even though they could not entirely cease from their labors.

FRENCH DEFEAT CHINESE

Three Hundred of Latter Killed in Three Hours Battle.

Marseilles, France, Jan. 22.—The Chinese mail which arrived here today brought an account of the invasion of Tonquin, French Indo-China, by Chinese regulars, who encountered a French force numbering 400 men, of whom 150 were Europeans. A three-hour battle ensued, resulting in the defeat of the Chinese, who lost 300 killed and 300 wounded. The French lost 16 men of the foreign legion and 50 Annamites killed.

whose property might be washed away?

Ancient History.
It is pointed out that a quarter of a century or more ago the river ran around what is now called the island, and that the late Gen. Renwick dug a small ditch across the neck of land for some reason. The river washed the ditch into the present large channel, and forsook its old course around "The Elm," as it was also called, it being a favorite swimming hole for the youth of London at the time. This action of Gen. Renwick resulted in a lawsuit in which the late Henry Winton, of Front street, secured substantial damages from the general. Will not the city be in the same position as General Renwick was if it meddles with the channel?

Water Tower for London.
Speaking of the probable serious results to the city should a break occur in the main from Springbank, which runs under the coverts, and which, owing to the flood of yesterday, was under water for about half a mile, Chairman Darch, of the water commission, stated that it had been suggested to him, that as the second main proposal had been voted down, the city should erect a large standpipe or water tower in the city, so that if a break did occur in the main, the citizens would not be left without water until the break was repaired. ## RAIN AND FOGS BOTHER RAILWAYS

T. T. R.'s New Roadbed Suffers
Some Damage—Trains
Have to Go Slowly.

The rains and mild weather of the past few days have made the roads in the country well-nigh impassable. Bridges have been washed out in several localities, while acres and acres of the low-lying lands are under water and will be damaged to a considerable degree.

The Grand Trunk has had some little difficulty, but not of a serious nature. The new roadbed between London and Kingscourt has had its severest test, and stood it remarkably well in most places. The line coming out heaved it in some quarters, and in others made the roadbed a mass of mud. The track had to be worked with all day Sunday and yesterday, and in some places trains were only run at a speed of two miles an hour. Many crews from the line were working on it, and by nightfall it was ballasted beyond any immediate danger. There will be little trouble with it in the spring.

The railways had some difficulty from fog. Trains had to be run slowly, as the engines could not distinguish an object any distance ahead of them. Most trains from the east ran from an hour to an hour late.

MANAGERS HAVE A LARGE GRIEVANCE

Theatrical Men Think That the Auditorium Should Pay a License.

The managers of the local theaters called on Acting Mayor Forristal today and registered an objection against the Auditorium being rented to Miss Anna Eva Fay, the wonder worker, who is billed for the Auditorium next week.

The argument of the theatrical men was that they are compelled to pay a license fee of $80 a year to run their houses, and they wanted to know why it is that the Auditorium is not also taxed.

Miss Fay has had trouble in almost every town in Canada securing a place in which to give her performance, and she was barred out of Ottawa altogether, where it is alleged, the theater manager rented every hall in the place, so as to block her showing in the city.

Ald. Forristal took the matter into consideration and will lay the facts before Mayor Judd when he returns.

COURT SETTLES SNELL-LEE FEUD

Ellen and Sarah Appear Equally to Blame and Magistrate Discharges Case.

Ellen Snell and Sarah Lee appeared in the police court this morning in an assault and wounding case, the former as defendant, the latter as complainant, but from the evidence adduced it would be difficult to determine which should be which.

Sarah Lee, on Jan. 4, was certainly wounded in a very serious manner, for she was compelled to remain in hospital for fourteen days as a result.

It seems that Mrs. Lee gave Mrs. Snell $200 the rent of a room, which the former did not like when she had been in it a short while, and she wanted her money back.

An altercation ensued and Mrs. Lee claimed that the defendant struck her on the face with a heavy piece of wood. The blow caused a frightful gash, it being more in the nature of a thrust than a downright blow.

Wood was freely and when taken to the hospital Mrs. Lee was faint from loss. It required seven stitches to draw the wound together. The scar shows yet on Mrs. Lee's cheek.

Magistrate Lane, under the circumstances, found Mrs. Snell not guilty, and discharged her. Several witnesses were called for each side, and the evidence of all went to show that both women were greatly to blame.

Mrs. Snell's home is on Bathurst street.

There was a large number of applications for the position of High Constable, but they will not be opened until Thursday, when the matter will be taken up.

On motion of Councilors McCallum and Graham, the committee for striking the standing committees for the year was as follows: Councilors McCallum, Westman, Reebotham, Clark, McCallum, Piper, Graham and Young.

On motion of Councilors Turnbull and Young, W. D. Stanley and A. L. Leitch were appointed auditors.

Rev. A. H. Thomas was reappointed trustee of the Lucan High School on motion by Councilors Westman and Jackson.

On motion of Councilors McCallum and McDonald, Peter Lindsay was appointed trustee for the Parkhill High School.

On motion of Councilors Reebotham and Lewis, James H. English was reappointed trustee to the Strathroy Collegiate Institute.

On motion of Councilors Graham and Cousins, John Thompson, of Ekfrid, was appointed trustee of the Glencoe High School.

The council adjourned until Wednesday at 10 a.m.

EAST END GIRL BADLY FRIGHTENED

Was Pursued by Rowdies on Trafalgar Street Last Night.

Ald. Forristal was acting mayor today, Mayor Judd being in Toronto. The first visitor the acting mayor had was a resident of Trafalgar street east, who complained that lawlessness is rampant in the south-eastern part of the city owing to the absence of police.

The resident told of how his daughter, a young girl, was on her way from St. Paul's church last evening when she was followed by a number of rowdies. Becoming frightened she ran and her pursuers followed her at a run to her home, where she fell in an exhausted condition.

Ald. Forristal assured the resident of his sympathy and will see that the matter is through Mayor Judd, is brought to the attention of the police commissioners and the chief of police, who may be relied upon to wipe out all such rowdism.

SAVING MONEY FOR THE CITY

Services of Street Watering
Inspectors Are To Be Dispensed With.

It was announced at the city hall today that this year there will be no street watering inspectors, and that the services of Messrs. Turner and Morlin will be dispensed with. This will mean a saving of about $1,000 per annum, and is due to the new method the city proposes to adopt in regard to the street watering.

On Thursday night Manager King will submit a contract to the city offering to do five miles of the watering with a sprinkler operated by electricity. The city will do another two miles with its own teams, and the other twenty miles will be done by contract.

The claim is made that under the conditions the ward foremen can be made to do the inspecting, and that the city may as well save the thousand dollars a year.

A joint meeting of the board of works and the market, fire and light committee will be held on Thursday night at which the street watering, and street cleaning, and the advisability of combining both works, or least of allowing one committee instead of two, to deal with the matter will be considered.

At present No. 2 attends to the street cleaning and No. 3 to the street watering. Under the new scheme, by which both a portion of the street watering and the street cleaning is to be done by civic teams, it will be necessary to have but one committee to look after the work, and this committee will probably be the board of works. After the meeting, the members will attend Ald. Gerry's banquet.

THIRTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

TODAY

[From The London Advertiser of Jan. 23, 1911.]

Yesterday and today we experienced some genuine Canadian winter weather. Early this morning the cold was intense, the thermometer ranging about ten degrees below zero.

The police took their new clothing into wear yesterday. Today the whole force was inspected by the commission, who appeared well pleased with its appearance, in the new uniform.

On Saturday evening the members of the London Typographical Union held their second anniversary supper at Rook's Terrace Restaurant. Mr. John Dewar, president of the union, occupied the chair, and Mr. Thomas Coffey, ex-president, the vice-chair. An excellent supper of oysters, roast turkey, and the necessary accompaniments, was served in Rook's best style.

Mr. Gladstone, as we learn by cablegram, has resigned his seat for Greenwich, in consequence of the dissatisfaction with his course expressed by his constituents. The sensitive feeling of the Premier of England is in marked contrast with that of the Premier of Canada.

A member of the Imperial Cabinet, it is said, will introduce a measure during the coming session of the English Parliament providing for vote by ballot. In a country like England, where social, proprietary and corporate influences are so powerful, the ballot is almost necessary to the untrammelled exercise of the franchise; and on the whole, we believe it would also considerably diminish electoral corruption.

The annual meeting of the East-Middlesex Reform Association will be held in Sherwood Hall, City, on Saturday afternoon next.

The Fifth-Baton Concert Company gave a pleasing entertainment in the Auditorium last evening before a good-sized audience.

—Grand Chief Counselor Friend E. T. Essey installed the officers of London Council, No. 75, C. O. C. F., last night. Friend John McHarg acted as grand marshal.

Three teachers in Christ Church Sunday School were very successful in the recent diocesan examinations. Miss Ida Drake took 94 per cent, just 2 marks lower than medal standing. Miss French and Miss Fitzgerald took 90 per cent each.

—On Thursday, Jan. 25, George Burdick, grand chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, will pay an official visit to White Lily Lodge of Stratford. He will be accompanied by the district deputy, James E. Reid, of this city, who will install the officers of White Lily Lodge. Quite a number of the brethren of this city are expected to accompany them.

A meeting of those interested in the proposed consumption sanatorium has been called for 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in the committee room of the city hall. Everyone interested in any way is invited to be present tomorrow afternoon.

THRILLING ACT AT THE VAUDEVILLE

Daring Tourbillon Rides His Wheel Over Lions in a Cage.

The most thrilling act ever seen in London, not even excepting the looping-the-loop act of the famous Diavola, of circus fame, is to be seen at Bennett's this week. It is known as the sensational "Circle of Death" ride of Tourbillon, the bicyclist, who rides his wheel around the circular top of a lion's cage, in which three magnificent lions are kept. The audience scarcely breathed while the act was being performed last night, and at its conclusion Tourbillon was given a tremendous ovation. All realized that one mis-move was possible death for the cyclist.

The bill as a whole this week is what is known in theatrical parlance as a "knock-out." There is not a poor act, each and every turn being of the highest order.

The Howard brothers put on a juggling band act, playing the instruments all the while, which is probably the finest of its kind in the world.

Harry Botter & Co. have an extremely funny and well-written sketch, entitled "A Matrimonial Blizzard," the cast being as follows: Dick Savage, Symeon Pinloft, Robert Dyke, Harry Botter, Mrs. Dick Savage, and a number of others.

Harry Lane is certainly one of the best pieces of comedy seen at Bennett's this year, and the way the people laughed and applauded last night showed that it was greatly appreciated.

Mr. Harry Lane is a splendid character artist. Mr. Potter carries out his part excellently, and Miss Pinloft is a finished actress, who appears to special advantage in her present role.

The diorama of the Miller brothers is also a feature of this week's bill, the dissolving pictures being both instructive and interesting. Besides these acts there are the acrobatic turn of the Kates brothers, which is very good; the singing and talking act of a pair of clever rapid-fire artists, Hammond and Forrester; the illustrated songs, the moving pictures, presenting the old-time drama, "The Millers Daughter," and last but not least, "The Dance of the Goblins," a characteristic overture by Professor Stevens' accomplished orchestra.

Matinee each day and performance each night this week.

"Dora Thorne," that ever popular love story, was presented by a fair company at the Grand last night before a large audience. Everybody appeared well satisfied with the play, which for a quarter of a century has been a favorite in England and America. The piece was well staged.

He Didn't Know Thames; Thought It a Quiet Creek

Yankee Surprised at What the Old Fellow Can Do in a Pinch.

A genuine, dyed-in-the-wool Yankee dropped into The Advertiser editorial room yesterday, and as he had heard of the Thames being on a tear he began to ask questions about the stream, and what it was capable of doing in the way of floods. What made him inquisitive was the fact that he had himself been questioned on the subject, and he did not want to again have to play "green."

The Yankee was told that the Thames went on a rampage at least once a year, and that when it did the residents in some parts of the city spent sleepless nights. He was informed that the river had been known to raise eight feet, ten feet—yes, more, in a short space of time, and he looked thunderstruck.

Didn't Think It.

"Well, I'll be durned," he said, in real Yankee fashion, "who would have thought that of such a small stream as that. Never dreamed it could be possible."

"You know, I had an experience with a flood once that I won't soon forget. I was at a hotel down south over night—or at least, it was my intention to stop over night. I went to bed and fell asleep, but was aroused early in the morning by the hotelman hollering for every person to get out in a hurry, or they might not get out at all. Well, sir, do you know, that a river flowed right in front of our hotel, and that 'ere stream had riz about four feet in the few hours I slept. I didn't realize it was possible."

"And then to think that London has just such a stream. Why, when I first saw London, I thought it was a shame that it lacked water facilities. Struck me the river down there was nothing more than a creek, but to think of it being capable of doin' such things. It beats anything I ever heard of over in our country. I'll have to surprise the folks at home when I go back to see them."

And with that the Yankee left, shaking his head as if unable to realize that such things were true about the Thames.

Westerners Frightened.

Residents along the Thames, west of London, were very much concerned yesterday over the proportions assumed by the river, and during the day more than one inquiry came from interested ones as to the "probs," and whether the river was rising, falling, or remaining stationary.

One farmer living near Glencoe telephoned The Advertiser to ascertain the outlook up this way. He was interested to the extent that he had between 300 and 400 cords of wood piled on the bank, and he didn't want to see it go down the stream. The river was then so high that he did not feel at all easy, and if it was continuing to rise he would have to get busy and move the wood back to a place of safety.

He was told—that was at 11 o'clock—that there was seven feet of water going over the dam; that the stream had gone up five feet of water since Saturday morning, but that as the heavy rain had ceased and there was little or no snow left, the river would not likely rise further. However, during the remainder of the day it did swell more.

"Keep us posted in The Advertiser from day to day on the condition of the river," he said, as he was about to hang up the receiver. "We will watch for it down here, where many are concerned."

A REMARKABLE WOMAN.

ANNA EVA FAY.

Mind-reading has long been a recognized mental adjunct, possessed however, by few persons, and possibly for this reason the public knows little of the accomplishments of those who have labored in this particular field for years. There is one exception, Anna Eva Fay, a remarkable woman, who makes her appearance in London next Thursday evening, Jan. 25, at the Auditorium, where she will remain for six nights, giving a matinee exclusively for ladies on Saturday.

Miss Fay is known to two continents, although her visits to this city have been few. She was last here about eight years ago, when, as is anticipated in the present instance, she created a furore by her many, apparently, occult demonstrations.

As a mind-reader, pure and simple, she is unique, and performs her work with a rapidity and accuracy that is astounding. Her reputation, however, does not rest entirely upon her ability to read the unspoken thought of others, but it is a most peculiar gift with which she is endowed that has been the subject of so much discussion and speculation the world over.

This gift is her power of locating things that have been lost, or locating missing persons and piercing the veil of the future. It is in her exhibition of "somnolency" that Miss Fay is said to surpass anything of its kind ever before attempted. While in a passive state, which is induced partially by auto-hypnotism, the clever little woman is enabled to read not only what her auditors may be thinking of, but their names, their occupation and so on, tell the lost things, money, jewelry, bonds, or, in fact, anything that has been stolen, lost or mislaid.

THE HYGIENIC INSTITUTE

Promoters Meet to Formulate Their Proposals—Committee Chosen.

There was a large attendance of those interested in the proposed hygienic institute for London at a meeting held in the city hall last night, which was called by Mayor Judd for the purpose of deciding upon just what the city wants in the way of a hygienic institute, so that the claim may be presented in writing to Premier Whitney.

The attendance was made up of those who formed the deputation which went to Toronto in connection with the matter a few days ago, as well as a number of others.

After Mr. S. Scream had been chosen chairman and Ald. Matthews secretary, it was decided that the boards of trade, farmers' institutes and public in general should be asked to co-operate towards impressing upon the Government the desirability of having the institute in London.

On motion of Mayor Judd it was agreed to have a document drawn up in accordance with what London desires from the Government, and setting forth the advantages it will mean to outside places to have such an institute in London, available to all.

On motion of Dr. McMillan the meeting adjourned.

ing put itself on record as of the opinion that the institute should be established, owned and controlled by the Government.

Drs. McCallum, Moorhouse, Wilson, English, Stevenson, Roome, Graham, and Cl. T. Campbell were named a committee to draft the document which will put in writing the wishes of the city, as requested by the Premier. This committee will meet in the city hall again tonight.
